England and Artesia exchanged greetings recently as Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Nixon of Darby, England, stopped in town to visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jones, 504 West Quay and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kelly, Artesia Motel, 807 North First. Mr. and Mrs. Nixon also made a side trip to Hagerman to visit with Mr. and Mrs. A. Hewitt. All the persons visited are relatives of their son-in-law, L. C. Hewitt, Hereford, Texas, with whom they have been staying for the past month.

While visiting in Hereford, Texas, the Nixons took time out from sightseeing and going to parties to give out some information on conditions in England and how they compare with those in the United States. Amazed at Farms. They said they were particularly impressed with the large scale farming operations in the United States. The Hewitts' hundred acres of wheat, scanty by usual high plains standards, looked large to the visitors from Darby. They also enjoyed watching potato harvest operations and saw cotton growing for the first time.

All cotton is imported into England, and prices of cotton goods are high. For instance, Mrs. Nixon says ordinary good white sheets sell for the English equivalent of $14 a pair, towels for about $3, tea towels $1 and the cheapest chenille bedspread costs about $34. Ready-to-wear is scarce and prices are high. Meat, eggs and other foodstuffs are still rationed, but prices are lower than they are in the United States. The food bill for an English family is fairly low, says Mrs. Nixon, partly because the English simply do not eat so much as average Americans do. They have no breakfast—or at most a light meal, and the heavy meal is at noon. Tea—jam, rolls, salad and the traditional English beverage—is served at 4 o'clock every afternoon.

A family of two in Darby will pay an average of $1 a week for their ration of meat, milk, butter and sweets. But vegetables and bread are plentiful, Mrs. Nixon says, and they can be added to the rationed foods to make out a wholesome diet. Children First. Although there is a tight squeeze on certain items in the diet of adults, children get preferential treatment when it comes to foodstuffs. There's no limit on the milk ration for children, and cod liver oil and orange juice is furnished free for youngsters. It's a part of the Socialist government's cradle to the grave security program, and according to Mrs. Nixon not so bad as it has been painted on this side of the Atlantic. Bomb Damage Lingers. One of the proverbial certainties of life—taxes—furnished the basis of another set of remarks by Mrs. Nixon.

Taxes are high, but most British industrial workers can't remember any other condition. And they prefer some of the taxes to be spent on a welfare program. Fear of another war, bomb damages inflicted in World War II, and the current Iranian oil crisis, are some of the things people in England are concerned with, according to Mrs. Nixon. People in England are living in constant expectation of another war, while some cities still are in ruins from World War II, the visitors revealed. Southampton, one of the largest seaports, still lies in ruin, and is a dreadful sight. London is so large that her scars are less noticeable.

The English are, of course, concerned over the oil situation in Iran. Some large oil refineries are being built in England at the present time. Weather, Too. In a lighter vein, Mrs. Nixon compared the weather of England and Texas. The weather comments were evoked by a record heat wave which greeted the Nixons during their stay at Hereford. She said they enjoy the sunshine, something to which they are not accustomed at Darby, a Midlands industrial city where it rains nearly every day and smoke casts a continual pall over the landscape. The Nixons arrived at the home of their daughter, 12 miles south-east of Hereford, early in July. Their daughter and son-in-law met them in New York and they enjoyed the automobile trip to Texas, even though Mr. Hewitt was. (Continued on Page Eight)

Artesia Articles To Appear In Next "Sun Trails" Issue

Artesia will receive publicity in two feature articles, illustrated with four full page in color, plus other pictures, in the September issue of Sun Trails, a Summer publication, printed at 418 West Gold, Albuquerque.

Rocky Arroyo Road Sector To Be Improved

Bids for three and one half miles of new paving along U. S. 285, north of Carlsbad to the Rocky Arroyo store will be advertised on Aug. 10, and contracts will be let on Aug. 24, according to an announcement by County Clerk R. A. Wilcox, in the Carlsbad Current-Argus for Aug. 3.

The highway will be widened and reconstructed to eliminate dangerous curves and dips. The project will be a continuation of the eight-mile project which was completed near Carlsbad a year or two ago, Wilcox said. Right-of-way for the highway has been obtained by the county commission.

The stretch of road on which improvements are going to be made, is part of an 11-mile project originally proposed by the board of county commissioners and the highway committee of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce. This larger undertaking can not now be completed because of insufficient supplies of steel.

DUMPS STRINGBEANS RATHER THAN SELL UNDER $2

WHILE FARMER Raymond T. Bailey sits disconsolately in background, New York sanitation department men empty his bushel baskets of stringbeans into a garbage truck at Bronx terminal market. Bailey hauled them to market to sell for $2 a bushel minimum. He was offered from 25 cents to a dollar top. He said the baskets cost 25 cents apiece, picking cost 50 cents a bushel, and there were seed and fertilizer costs. So he decided to dump them rather than sell. (International Soundphoto)

Lordsburg Woman Expert on State's Vivid Folklore

When a pioneer New Mexican talks pioneer days, the history of the state unfolds as colorfully as a patchwork quilt. New Mexico Western College students who recently heard Mrs. John Muir, Lordsburg, N. M., address their class in Southeastern literature got a glimpse of that color.

Did you know, for instance, that the first coeds at New Mexico Western made the trip to the post office twice a day, even though there was only one mail delivery? ("In those days it wasn't considered nice for girls to walk to town without a specific purpose," said Mrs. Muir.)

Did you know that a man claiming to be the boy captured by the Indians in the McComas massacre recently showed up in Bisbee, Ariz., using the claim as a wedge in asking for a $500.00 loan? (He makes a new candidate for the fraternity of John Wilkes Booth, Jesse James, Billy the Kid, and survivors of Custer's last stand, new editions of which crop up every year.)

Did you know that an innocent promoter of a diamond mine swindled near Shakespeare, N. M. ruined himself financially by paying back all the people who had bought shares at his advice?

All this and much other lore belongs to the memories of Mrs. Muir. A former president of Shakespeare, Mrs. Muir was among the first students at New Mexico Western and graduated in 1897 with the third graduating class. She has written widely on New Mexico history, both for organizations and for New Mexico Magazine.

State Press Bulb Exploders To Form Society

Wayne Winters of the Grants Beacon is sponsoring a move to organize a New Mexico press photographers' association. A meeting for that purpose has been called for 2 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 12, in 212 Journalism, Yale and East Central, University of New Mexico, in Albuquerque.

"It was with considerable surprise," writes Winters, "that upon moving to New Mexico I discovered there was no such organization."

Photographers who do press work, publishers interested in photo coverage are invited to the organizational session.

Crochet Contest On Fair Program

Domestic skills are handsomely recognized with ribbons and premiums at the annual New Mexico Fair.

A case in point is the nationwide crochet contest, for which entries may be filed through the state fair. It is one of the largest needlework contests in the country.

Entries are accepted in 16 classifications. First place winners in any of the 16 classes at the fair are eligible for national judging in competition with first place winners from other fairs all over the country.

The national contest offers $2500 cash prizes and expense-paid trips to Chicago.

There are special classifications for men, for teen-age girls, 4-H club girls and for women over 65.

Rules and regulations for the New Mexico Fair contest can be obtained from the premium book. For a free copy write Leon H. Harms, Secretary-Manager, New Mexico State Fair, Box 1693, Albuquerque.

The 1951 New Mexico State Fair will be held in Albuquerque, Sept. 29-Oct. 7.

Nursery Opened By Mrs. Giles

Sandboxes, scooters, tricycles, and crayons have been getting a work out the last few days since Cassie's Day and Night Nursery, 305 South Roselawn, opened its doors.

The nursery is located in a five room, one story house with a large fenced in yard.

It is equipped with baby beds, a play table for coloring and cutting paper dolls, and toy autos. The back yard has swings and a sandbox.

The program of the nursery consists of supervised play activities, and reading of children's stories. The aim of the program is to teach the children cooperation.

Age range of the children is from a few months to five years. Children may be enrolled by the hour, the day or the week. Those staying by the day or week get one free meal. A 'nursery day' equals eight hours.

Personnel of the Nursery include Mrs. Cassie Giles, owner, who lives in a room in back of the nursery. She takes charge of the children who are placed in the nursery overnight.

Mrs. W. F. Robertson, South Sixteenth Street, who is the day superintendent.

Assisting these are Mrs. Elsie Newton, 616 South Second, the owner's mother, and four teen agers: Winnie and Phyllis Earhart, 1007 Bullock, Jane Short, 810 West Chisum, and Jerry Robertson, South Sixteenth.

Mrs. Giles, who doubles as assistant to Dr. Ralph Earhart, 301 South Roselawn, previously operated a similar nursery at 102 East Missouri, called the "Children's Play Club" for a period of six months.

She has also been a Sunday school teacher. She has one boy, Ronald Edwin, 5. Mrs. Giles has lived in Artesia since 1945.

Mrs. Robertson has been in the hotel business for 22 years and taken care of children for 25 years. She has been engaged in church work with children and taught Vacation Bible School at Weed and Sacramento.

She has also had a course in child guidance.

Mrs. Robertson who owns the building the nursery is in, and also a five acre lot southwest of Artesia, has lived in town since 1946.

She has two daughters Jerry 14, who is one of the teenagers assistants, and Mrs. Ella Rose Roberts, Dallas. Her husband is district manager of the Merry Way Ice-Cream Company, of Dallas.

Mrs. Newton, the owner's mother is a nurse at the Artesia General Hospital.

The nursery opened its doors Wednesday, August 1.

Warrant Officer Qualifications Cut, Says Army

It was announced today, by Col. L. S. Graham, chief, New Mexico Military District, that Department of the Army has authorized sergeants first class with a total of six years service and three months in grade to apply for appointment as warrant officers junior grade.

Previously, only master sergeants and sergeants first class who served as warrant officers in World War II could apply for appointments. The requirements were lowered because not enough master sergeants were applying to meet the quota needed.

Fourth Army Headquarters recognized that since most master sergeants would suffer a loss of pay by changing to warrant officers they would be reluctant to apply. Consequently, a recommendation was submitted by Fourth Army Headquarters to the Department of the Army that the requirements be lowered.

The current appointment program which was announced by Fourth Army Headquarters last week has been amended to include sergeants first class. As a result, Army officials now believe that little difficulty will be experienced in filling the warrant of officer vacancies in the Fourth Army Area.

Carlsbad Boy Among Winners In Car Designing

One boy from Eddy County and one from Roswell, Chaves County, are among seven youthful New Mexico automobile designers named award winners as a result of their skill in building miniature cars in the 1951 Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild competition.

Donald L. Henrander of Carlsbad won the state junior division while George D. Zimmerman won third in the state junior.

The Carlsbad boy will receive $150, Roswell $50.

The boys were entered in a competition in which the grand national awards are eight university scholarships ranging in value from $1000 to $4000 each. These will be announced at the annual and Sacramento.

She has also had a course in child guidance.

Mrs. Robertson who owns the building the nursery is in, and also a five acre lot southwest of Artesia, has lived in town since 1946.

She has two daughters Jerry 14, who is one of the teenagers assistants, and Mrs. Ella Rose Roberts, Dallas. Her husband is district manager of the Merry Way Ice-Cream Company, of Dallas.

Rodeo's Top Cowboys, Brones And Bulls To Be Here

Like the gangster by the same name, in a bygone era, "Scarface," the ugly marked-up black saddle bronc in the famous "Wild Bill Elliott-Tommy Steiner rodeo string, has murder on the brain: A bad actor in the chutes, "Scarface" has added plenty of battle scars to his coarse head in his perpetual fight against man in the rough, tough rodeo game! Sorry, Jerry, We Meant Cave City "Hankered"

Jerry Brown, sports editor of The Daily Current-Argus, injects a mild criticism of a yarn on the sports page of The Artesia Advocate, which quoted Jerry's column.

The subject was the liking Carlsbad baseball fans have for the Artesia Driller baseball park and set up generally and describing the fans from the Cavern City as being "envious."

Writes Jerry:

"We aren't envious. Maybe I didn't make it plain but as far as I have been able to probe, I have yet to discover a single baseball fan in Carlsbad who is envious of Artesia's having the team."

The Carlsbad writer's letter sent the editor of The Advocate scurrying to the dictionary:

"Envy, v. Covet, begrudge, grudge."

Jeeryy K&Z

Jerry, the word we should have used was hanker. Either that or pine, yearn, or long.

"We thing it's great," says Jerry, "that you should have a team. First of all it gives us a chance to see organized baseball levery once in a while and secondly, it means that pro baseball is getting closer to both geographically and in point of time to Carlsbad."

"That's going to be might fine Longhorn League when Carlsbad joins Artesia and Roswell."

Carlsbad Pools Take Toll Of Falsies, Trunks

Can Paul Kerley, manager of the Artesia Municipal Swimming Pool, located on West Richardson, come up with a story to rival one in the Aug. 2 issue of the Carlsbad Current-Argus.

The county seat has put up some sort of challenge with this yarn: "If this doesn't take the cake, we don't know what will. A pair of 'falsies' were found in the Country Club swimming pool recently. The apparently embarrassed young lady who lost them has never called to claim them.

Even Sailors Must March, Flynn Learns

Bobby Flynn, captain of the 1951 tennis squad of Artesia High School, says "to think I joined the navy to ride a ship" after commenting that "navy life is fine, if it wasn't for the marching, marching, and more marching."

In a letter to the editor of The Artesia Advocate, young Flynn tells of his experiences at the naval training station in San Diego. He enlisted in the navy a month ago. Also with him is Charles (Warty) Gibson, who was on the state double tennis championship team this year.

Bobby sent along a copy of the U. S. N. T. C. Hoist, camp newspaper.

"The chow here is excellent, a variety of food greater than any I've ever seen.

"The only sports we have gotten to play are basketball, softball, and volleyball. Although I've played no tennis I've had quite a bit of fun."

Bobby concludes his letter with a typical nautical note:

"Well, I've got to wash and hang out my clothes, so I'd better close."

Drillers Battle Redskins Tonight

Four home games are on tap for the Drillers as they host Midland Indians tonight and Wednesday, and Big Spring Thursday, Aug. 9, and Friday, August 10.

The games with Big Spring erroneously reported as slated for Friday and Saturday, which fact was reported in The Advocate, which parallels a little yarn in the Eddy County News for Aug. 3.

This tale relates how Chinese editors deliberately insert typographical errors in their papers because of the wonderful lift it gives the ego of the readers when they find the mistake.

This Saturday marked a special day for the Drillers, for they not only managed to snare a win from Vernon, 12-11, but were also presented with an American flag by the American Legion.

The presentation was made by Fred L. Jacobs, commander of the Clarence Kepple Post 41 of the American Legion, to Clyde Guy, president of the Artesia Baseball Club. Guy made a short speech of acceptance.

Assisting in the presentation were Carl Foster, area chairman, American Legion Junior baseball; John Simons, Jr., chairman of the baseball committee; Don Bush, adjutant, was not able to be on hand for the presentation.

The Drillers came out 50-50 on games won and lost this week. In addition to beating Vernon Saturday by a score of 12-11, they dehorned the Big Spring Broncs, 10-9 Thursday.

On Friday the Drillers received a dusting off at the hands of the Vernon Dusters by the score of 10-8, in a game that was not without its consolations.

Highlight of the game was Artesia Manager Stubby Greer's 5th run homer over the centerfield fence in the seventh inning.

Artesia Player Leading Batsman

In Sunday night's game which saw the Drillers go down to defeat at the hands of Sweetwater 9-8, the outstanding feature was a one-run homer by Stubby Greer in the first inning.

Seven hundred and fifty fans saw the slugfest in which the lead changed hands three times before the Swatters got the upper hand. The contest which saw five pitchers take the mound was marked by a total of 22 hits.

Starting Pitcher Dunn was the loser, being relieved in the fifth by Kimball, who also went to the showers in the eighth in favor of Marshall.

Taken for Granted

IT HAS ALWAYS been rather remarkable to us how many things in our home communities we take for granted.

If some outsider or someone from elsewhere comes along does maybe the same thing we seem to think we are obligated to voice our appreciation and we do so. Yet we never think of passing on a few kind words to those at home who perhaps render even more service than the outsider did.

We have done this for a long time as a community. The fact is that the majority of us never bother to voice our thanks and appreciation. We just take certain things for granted; we expect them to be done; we never bother to voice our thanks.

Yet what the home folks do or have done are far more important than what some outsider does. It is what we do here at home which really counts. And it is the folks at home and the business firms at home which make our community. It is these folks who in reality are the ones who care about our community.

Those from the outside as a rule want something or are seeking something. They want to sell us a service or some merchandise. They want our business or our money.

It may be true that the local folks want our business but they are the ones who deserve it. They are the ones who provide the payrolls and the jobs; they pay the taxes; they make the gifts and contributions and they give of their time, their energy and their ability to worthy movements and projects and undertakings.

And when we take a little time out and voice our thanks to them we encourage them to do more things and to do other things. We create within them the feeling there are those who appreciate what we try to do even though the average individual is firmly convinced that the performing of community jobs is always a thankless task.

We don't know of a finer trait we could develop than to remember to say thanks to our local merchants, professional people and business people for the things they do to help us and to help our community.

And we do know that the very fact we do voice our thanks would encourage them to be more willing to do more things and other things in the weeks ahead.

Values All Confused

WE HAVE DONE a pretty good job as a group of citizens and individuals in confusing values and getting the idea that money, power and social position are far more important than a good many other things which time has proven have real merit.

The greatest thing in life, of course, is not money and it is not power. It is true that oftentimes money can buy many things which bring happiness. It is true that power has and does give some individuals happiness.

But there comes a day and a time to many who have both money and power and yet with all of this they cannot buy and they cannot acquire happiness.

We have always felt that the real goal of life is happiness. Many things help contribute to happiness. Many contend that security is the greatest thing in life. But as we grow older we begin to realize that perhaps there is no such thing as security.

Time has proven at least or the past 1900 years have proven that the way of the Christian life is lasting, is real, is genuine and is the one thing which brings real happiness.

These years have proven that religion brings more happiness than perhaps any other one thing and it does not require money or power to acquire. It does, of course, have a price. It makes certain demands and often times these demands are not easy to meet, yet we are sure that the Christian life perhaps brings more joy, more happiness and more satisfaction than anything else we may acquire in the life we live.

Some of the happiest individuals we have known have been those who found religion and who practice their religion. They have found and know a joy which is real and genuine and sincere.

It, of course, wasn't easy. The mere joining of a church and helping to contribute to its support was only the beginning. Their real religion and their real convictions did not come overnight or in a day or a week but only after they had really learned what religion could mean to them.

They had to realize that it didn't matter so much who was the minister or the kind of sermons he preached, or the kind of church building in which they worshipped. They had to learn that the religion had to be something down deep inside of them—something they couldn't altogether perhaps explain but a something which gave them what they had sought.

They had to learn the hard way that it gave them genuine satisfaction just to be in the Lord's house on the Sabbath Day, they had to learn that everything there, the music, the sermon, the quietness, the prayers and the people all combine to make this a worship hour. They had to learn that here they could commune with God and find a satisfaction and a joy which isn't acquired otherwise.

And this doesn't happen overnight. It takes work and effort and sincerity on our part. It only comes when we realize there is something missing out of our lives—something missing because we have tried to fill its place with things which have the real values we are seeking.

As we have said many times before, all within the church are not perfect. Those within the church have admitted publicly by their church attendance they need the church. And they are far better off within the church even though they haven't as yet acquired the way of the Christian life than outside the church.

They have taken the step in the right direction. They are not confused about the values of life. They have chosen a value which is the greatest to be found.

You, too, can find that value and acquire something which does not change with time, if you seek what the church and the religion of the church can offer you.

COMPETITION IS ALL-IMPORTANT

Is competition a really important factor in the oil industry?

You don't need to ask an oil man to answer that question. In a speech made last winter Oscar Chapman, Secretary of the Interior, said: "Competition is the basic reason for the productive vigor of the oil industry. Accordingly, competition should be retained or disturbed as little as possible. . . It shall be my purpose, as Petroleum Administrator, to use the power entrusted to me, as far as humanly possible, in such a way as to leave at the end of this emergency the same competitive relationships among the units of the oil and gas industry as exist today."

The record of oil during and since World War II fully substantiates Secretary Chapman's views. It is estimated that 22,000,000,000 gallons of oil were needed to conquer Germany alone. The Army and Navy Petroleum Board is authority for the statement that, "not one single military operation was delayed or impeded because of lack of petroleum products." The competitive American oil industry supplied that vast flood to the fighting forces and met every essential civilian need. And today the industry is able to produce and market 25 per cent more oil and oil products than at the peak of World War II.

Quantity isn't the whole story. As the result of the competitive struggles between oil companies in their search for consumer favor, the quality of oil products has been greatly improved. To take one example, two gallons of 1951 gasoline will do the work of three gallons of 1926 gasoline. And the price, excluding taxes, over which the industry has no control, is about the same.

Free competition gives the nation both more production and higher-grade products. Oil is a first class example of that truism.

FOLKS GROW BETTER

CHURCH membership in the United States now exceeds 85 million worshippers, being a record of 55.9 per cent of the total population, and the highest point in the history of the country.

Last year's gain in membership was appreciable, but church leadership declares that there were "no easy, sweeping advances," and that religion had to fight every inch of the way.

We dispute that last statement for we have a serious doubt that church membership has ever been advanced through a fight for every foot of gain.

We believe that this remarkable gain in church affiliation comes about with the times; an era which began about the opening of World War II.

And we believe that the turn to the church comes about through the fact that world situations have been so tense that people are confused, and that they hope to find consolation in their uneasiness and confusion through the channels of religion.

We believe, also, that there has been a great turning point in the affairs of men and women during the last decade that has proven to them that they are not self-sufficient, and that the church offers them something they can't find any place else on earth.

And this turning point appears to us to be a permanent thing; not a matter of hysteria or through a campaign of pressure to put names on church rolls.

It looks to us like a sincere example of an improving society, and we do not believe we are wrong in that belief, in spite of the folks who believe that the country and the people are bound for perdition in a handbasket.

We do not belong to the school of thought that pretends that the world grows worse. We believe that each generation shows moral improvement over the preceding one, and we hope it continues.

STILL WASTE AS USUAL

Only the strongest kind of public pressure can force the government to economize. That is the theme of a striking article by Stanley High in The Reader's Digest, called "In Washington It's Waste As Usual."

Mr. High shows how our money is being dissipated on unnecessary projects of a thousand and one kind, and says: "Lately there has been a notable increase in mail from constituents—making sharp demands for economy on the part of Congress. These demands have already strengthened the efforts of Congressmen who believe with Senator Byrd that 'our strength and preparedness in all respects depend upon reduction in non-essential spending.'"

"But there will be no adequate reductions unless pressure from the people is greatly increased. To add to that pressure without delay is, I believe, an obligation upon every patriotic American."

The increase in government spending, which has no connection whatsoever with our military preparedness, has been incredible. The Department of Commerce's 1950 budget showed a 1049 per cent increase over its 1940 budget. The Department of Labor spent 1283 per cent more in 1950 than in 1940. The State Department spent 1634 per cent more. So it goes, all down the line. Soon, Mr. High writes, "The army of U. S. Government civilian employees will be nearly as big as the combined total of all the men in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines as of last spring."

Although the city hall reporter at Alamogordo does not give the duties of city employees, it is plain enough that some of them are plumb good ones, for they get up to $525 a month. None are expected to accept less than $125 per month. Identifiable is R. E. Rutz, the city manager, who gets along with the stipend of $425 a month in some way. Most of the rest get from $200 to $300 a month.

First Aid is featured at the summer institute for bus drivers, at Silver City, July 30 to Aug. 3. Beginning with the standards set up by the Red Cross, the curriculum includes every phase of first aid approved by practical experience. All drivers must have standard first aid card to enter the course or to hold a job.

Alamogordo is one of the progressive cities that does not expect the municipal hospital to get along without help. The city council has just peeled off $500 from its roll for the use of the Gerald Champion Memorial Hospital. Several hundred dollars a year are granted to the hospital by the city council and everybody approves the grant. The hospital takes care of a big area.

Employment Rises

The employment security commission reports that non-agricultural employment in New Mexico reached a new all-time high on June 15, when the total employment stood at 166,500 workers, 9,300 over the number for June 1949. Over 1,500 more than in June and 9,200 above the number for June, 1950.

Optimist Club at Alamogordo collected $108 for the American Cancer Society Crusade up to last week. Fifty-four local business houses allowed places for the collection of coins.

The National Guardsmen of Socorro and Belen will camp together for the two weeks at Fort Bliss, starting Sunday morning, Aug. 12. The second week will be used for training with .90 and .50 calibre machine guns at Oro Grande firing range.

My New York
 By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—You abandon the great about midnight, realizing at last seldom can you buy a jack between queen-king, and you come out onto the city.

The city has changed. When you last, it was its customary raucous, but with a hundred people fighting to get and a thousand people shoving each other sidewalks. Its tempo was the stut of key and its calling cards were chaos was the city as it has fascinated years—the macabre and arresting scenes. But now it is midnight, and someone the indicator to half-speed. Only a faint adrift on the streets and they are as muclilage. The hot summer night has vision to the city, and the city lies helpless, like a four-man. This is the hour when the cabs would be scrambling as easily like so many dogdoms, hunting the after-saloon, the crowd, but now as they pass you at intervals they are lazily along Madison avenue. You could call one, but almost like unsettling the dead, so you just watch them turning neither their fretful peace nor just watch them.

ABOVE THE SKY IS DEEP BLUE with white clouds and unaturally theatrical. The Empire State building's tip is shrouded in a faint haze, and if there were trees leaves would be stirring. The people of the city might slowly, as if in a dream—an uncomfortable policeman in shop windows, a newsboy whose T-shirt is stuck damply a lady of the evening with tight shoes and no amibiles in a couple of 19-year-old secretaries coming from the movie. Loud voices are part of the city's night, but tonight they are soft, and most of the drifters are silent as they go by mer spell has wrung them dry, unable even to make smalling only of something cold to drink and a bed to flop down on. They go by you and down into the subway for the final violent steam bath before peace.

You take the long way around and go through Bryant though the night is half gone, the benches still are full of the morning they will be red-eyed and exhausted on the work, but now they let the faint breeze of the park give cease. A girl rests her head on a boy's shoulder. The stifling for the violent passions; it is a night for the whole tender embrace, the dream.

YOU COME FINALLY to Times Square. The great 1947 was the only element ever to have stopped the whole matanz here completely, and even now the lights still along the marquee and the city still is exploding wildly here the night has laid its sticky hand. The shufflers on Broadway move along inches at a time. Men carry the Women fan themselves with the pink editions of the time knots of people gather in front of each movie house, nor selves in the blasts of cold air. A shoeshine boy abandons life and curls up in a hallway.

You end up home, ultimately, with the river whooshing to shore and the lights of the bridge gleaming ice-cool. Here you are off the beaten path, and the apartment is dark, with the curtains waving gently through the open windows. A barge goes slowly down the river. You look south is the cluster of the city's lights you have just had been different tonight—slow and soft and dreamy, and charging its batteries again, for the daily war to begin late.

There will be calf roping, tall riding, team ribbon roping, barrel races, and competition for the best dressed cow girl and cowboy. Prize for the winner is an all-expense trip to the Herald-Posts Rodeo at El Paso. Some of the best known cow persons in the state are contributing their services for the contest, which is open to New Mexico youngsters only.

NOBODY can say Dean Acheson is not a bold man. The House no sooner voted to let him have his $22,500 pay than he asked for $25 billion more for foreign maintenance.

He does make one concession, however. The $22,500 is for only one year, while the $25 billion is for three.

Some senators advance the theory that $25 billion may be more than our country can stand. Others say it's Acheson that's more than our country can stand.

GROWTH OF THE VETERAN'S ANNUAL CELEBRATION AND

RODEO

On August 15, 1945, citizens of Artesia will remember the impromptu two-hour parade of cars and a street dance held on the corner of Second and Quay as the beginning of the annual V-J Day Celebration. From that entirely unrehearsed beginning, the United Veteran's Club has made that display of community spirit and patriotism an annual affair which represents a return to the citizens of this community the courtesy shown the servicemen during World War II.

Due to a conflict in dates, the 1951 celebration will be held September 13, 14, and 15 and will feature Bill Elliot's Rodeo. Dances will be held each night of the celebration at the Veterans Memorial Building.

Figures cited on the yearly budget set aside for the celebration run like this: 1947,

$1,200; 1948, $7,500; 1949, $10,000; 1950, $12,000. This year the tentative budget has been set at $15,000. It was estimated last year that nine-tenths of the gross remained in Artesia.

This annual celebration has brought publicity to Artesia from far out of this district. Visitors from all the neighboring states have attended and it is estimated that this year's rodeo, with Bill Elliot, will draw an even greater crowd than ever before.

Oil Company Uses Radio Both For Orders And Emergencies

Radio, which played so vital a part in the communication network of war, is doing its part in speeding up operations in the oil industry, every day, as an article in the Humble Way, put out by Humble Oil and Refining Company, Houston, entitled "Refining with Radio," shows.

The article shows how in the old days workers on a drilling crew would have to drive two miles across the plant to the drillers shack, only to find out the next job was just a few yards from the one they had just completed.

With two way radio new instructions can be relayed to all parts of the field in a few seconds, as a sample conversation in the magazine shows "3 to 305" went the call form the rigger shack to one of the men in the field.

"305" answered the man at the other end of the line.

"Exchanger east side number one at sand blasters" went the instructions from the drilled shack. "Clear" came the reply from the field.

So two way radio has saved precious time which would otherwise have been lost traveling back and forth between various parts of the field.

Six Dispatchers

The 60 watt FM microwave transmitter, which is used for inter-communication can reach mobile units as far as 15 miles away, and contact between units can be established for a distance of five miles.

Each of six groups, including medical and fire departments has a dispatcher who receives telephone calls from the communications hub of the refinery telling him of jobs to be done.

Contact is maintained with each piece of equipment in the group, and jobs are assigned to the nearest unit.

The dispatcher of each unit clears his messenger through the chief dispatcher by telephone and obtains permission go on the air to direct the new operations of a unit.

Mobile units can also call the dispatcher by using his call number to report, request supplies or ask for a new assignment.

Besides its day-to-day value in routine assignments, the radio system is especially useful in emergencies.

Speed

Things don't usually go wrong slowly in a refinery. A few minutes saved might prevent a fire or loss of control of some operating unit.

With radio, the maintenance people and equipment can be quickly called to the spot. The electricians "hotshot" truck can be rushed in to repair a pump motor in case of fire equipment can be quickly called into action; the visiting nurse can be notified to call on an employee who has become suddenly ill at home or should some disaster or emergency occur in Baytown or surrounding communities, supplies and aid could be sent for.

With the help of radio, Baytown Refinery keeps its operation fluid and flexible.

Start Made On Third Cut Of Alfalfa Crop

Cutting of the second crop of alfalfa continues over New Mexico says the Aug 1 issue of crop conditions and other agricultural data issued by the Santa Fe Railway.

A start has also been made on the third crop but in many sections including the Pecos and Mesilla valleys, future yields may be reduced by dry weather.

Grain sorghum acreage is larger than usual. Light rains have been helpful but most areas are short of moisture. Cotton generally is making good growth and the usual program of spraying, dusting, and cultivating the crop is in progress.

Although showers have dotted other portions of the state only in the eastern border counties are range conditions satisfactory.

Scenes from the lusty youth of one of New Mexico's most storied and romantic old counties will be presented by the Lincoln County Historical Society Aug. 12 in its annual pageant, "A Day In old Lincoln."

The celebration is scheduled to commence at 10 a. m. and will continue through the small hours of the following morning. Staging of the pageant will take place in back of the old County Courthouse at Lincoln.

—ANDY ANDERSON

the daily increase proposed for the average Gas Customer is about the Cost of a 3¢ stamp

Southern Union pioneered the natural gas industry in New Mexico in 1930, and in its 21 years of operation in this state, the company has voluntarily reduced gas rates a number of times. Now for the first time, Southern Union has found it necessary to request an increase in gas rates.

In common with all other business enterprises, the cost to Southern Union of doing business has increased tremendously since 1940. Materials and supplies are up more than 118 per cent; hourly wages and basic labor costs have increased as much as 130 per cent. Taxes have been raised twice in the past twelve months... may be increased again this year.

These advancing costs have inevitably forced increases in the selling price of almost all commodities, but the proposed adjustment in gas rates in comparison with other price increases is indeed modest—amounting to about 3c a day for the average consumer of gas. The change in gas rates is necessary in order for Southern Union to continue to render adequate gas service to its customers.

When the proposed new gas rates become effective, they will NOT be priced on the usual inflated 1951 levels. Southern Union customers today will be paying on an average about the same rates as paid by Southern Union customers in 1940. Natural gas will continue to be priced on pre-war and pre-inflation levels.
