Artesia-El Paso Railroad as Major Project in 1911

Artesia-El Paso railroad connecting Artesia and El Paso—no, the Santa Fe railway isn't laying any plans for such a line, but it was a torrid project in 1911, as an article by Bob Langford, manager of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce, in the coming issue of New Mexico magazine will reveal.

The line was the brain child of W. E. Tullis, at that time editor of the Artesia Advocate, although it was originally fought for an east-west rather than north-south line.

As Artesia-El Paso line what the Santa Fe promised to build in response to the agitation of railroads through this part of the country.

As soon as the announcement of the line would be built conditions started coming in and started putting on special taxes to raise the money.

However, as contributions started to taper off the project was dropped down to a line between Artesia and Hope, at least as a start, and a contract for $350,000 was awarded to McCarty Engineering Company.

D. Mahoney was appointed contractor and managed to raise money around town, particularly from W. E. Ragsdale, who is still actively engaged in business.

Construction was begun on Sept. 1911, and by Nov. 30 part of the line between Artesia and Hope had been ballasted and graded.

At that time construction was suspended, apparently from lack of money, and the property was bought by Mahoney to Col. A. Bujac, a Carlsbad attorney, on Oct. 14, 1915.

Why the project folded is not clear, as there was brisk traffic in alfalfa, apples, cantaloupes, peaches and vegetables produced at Artesia were shipped out of Artesia during 1911, the year the project started and died.

This traffic was counted upon to pay for the railroad pay even though the population of Artesia and Hope had only 1,200 at the time.

However, when the financial backers failed the project, it died, and only an empty roadbed firmly entrenched in grass remains to remind passersby of what might have been a thriving traffic artery.

Three New Families Move Into Artesia

Families of a band director, permit man, and retired railroad employee, are the latest newcomers to Artesia.

The band director, Ben Stevens, has been the subject of a story in the Artesia Advocate before.

Stevens is director of the high school band. He was at Atoka last year. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens have three children, all girls—Susan, 9; Kay, 9; and Nancy, 7.

Another on the list of Gulf employees is W. J. Stark. He is permitted for Gulf research and development. They come here from Austin, Travis County, Texas, have a daughter, Mary Jo, nine months.

From the Sioux state they are Mrs. George Eiler. They are the parents of Mrs. William Terling, 602 West Texas. The Eilers moved to Artesia from Glen Ullin, Ill., and have purchased a home in Artesia.

Artesia 'Shivers' as Mercury Declines to 'Freezing 70s'

Torrid August cooled off slightly during the week of Aug. 20 with no downright cool days coming along on which it stayed really cold.

Since that time while the daytime temperature has been what you would expect, the early morning temperatures have remained low.

Friday's unofficial morning temperature was a cool 74.

The question now might be asked, "Will torrid August just fade away like the old soldiers of the past?"

Former Loco Hills Sailor Now in Army

Taking a refresher course at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, is Russell W. Smith, 24, of Loco Hills. Upon completion he will leave for Fort Benning, Ga., for airborne training, the service of his choice.

Smith had prior service in the U. S. Navy. He enlisted in the Army for a three-year period at El Paso, according to a letter received here from Carl V. Ireton, Roswell, sergeant first class, army and air force recruiter.

August Gives Hint Of the Rains Came

August refused to go down in the annals of the weather bureau as the month of no rain.

It was beginning to look that way when only a trace had fallen by Aug. 24.

But on Saturday, Aug. 25, the picture changed and .10 inches were recorded. This was followed on Sunday, Aug. 26, by .04 inches, bringing the total measurable precipitation for the month to date to .14 inches.

The August total to date is higher than the total for June when only .05 inches were recorded, but is lower than for any date last month, when the lowest measurable precipitation was .25 on July 16.

Saturday and Sunday's rains bring the total for the year to date to 6.16 inches.

Swinging into action for another pigskin period, the Artesia Quarterback Club will hold an organizational session at 7:30 tonight in the high school cafeteria.

Pot Bert Admitted To Abilene Hospital

Taking a check-up at Hendricks Memorial hospital in Abilene, Texas, is A. L. (Pot) Bert, building salesman, formerly editor of The Artesia Advocate.

The Bert family recently moved to Abilene to take up residence there. Bert is district sales manager for his concern, with Abilene as headquarters. He had expected that he would be assigned to Lubbock, but a switch in company plans sent him to Abilene.

He entered the Abilene hospital on Monday, Aug. 20, according to a letter received here from Carl V. Ireton, Roswell, sergeant first class, army and air force recruiter.

Artesia Guard Wins Top Unit Award at Camp

Artesia battery of New Mexico National Guard gained two honors at the annual encampment held Aug. 12-26 at Fort Bliss, near El Paso.

Scheduled to go on display in a "few days" is the 21-inch high walnut and gold trophy, top unit award. It will be shown at Nelson Appliance, 334 West Main.

Artesia won its second triumph when Major William C. Thompson, Jr., was named commander of the 697th Antiaircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battalion. Major Thompson, since last February, has been acting commander, substituting for Lt. Col. James McMinn of Carlsbad, hospitalized.

The Artesia Major is now "officially" the chief officer of the battalion which has units at Roswell, Carlsbad, Hobbs, and Artesia.

Award of the top unit of the battalion trophy was based on "all-around performance of the unit during the field training two-week period," according to Capt. Marshall H. Belshe, commander of Battery C.

"This includes administration, efficiency in the training area and on the firing range, conduct on range, adherence to schedule, sanitation, military discipline and courtesy" and "performance of officers and men generally," said Captain Belshe.

The two-year old trophy went to Battery A, Roswell, last year. Name of the local battery is to be engraved on the trophy. Winning the cup award three times in a row gives a unit permanent possession.

Two eagles, two stars, decorate the base of the trophy, atop of which is a golden figure of a soldier. An oddity of the award is that a soldier with a rifle is the figure, which could properly represent infantry instead of ack-ack.

The unit receiving the award is decided by a five-officer committee of the base.

Artesia barracks and supply won top rating in the entire camp on an inspection by a Fourth Army officer.

Captain Belshe gave glimpses of the battery on the firing range, telling how the Artesia battery fired 40 millimeter guns, knocking down an aerial radio control target moving at 225 miles an hour. Range was 2,100 yards.

While Sept. 4 is the scholastic kick-off day, the day that classes start, there will be preliminary faculty briefings, a flurry of registration for those pupils new to the system, new to school anywhere—in general those not in Artesia schools last year and not enrolled for the 1951-52 session.

Sept. 3, Monday, is Labor Day, and a holiday. Next day the students begin their tasks.

Improvements have been made on all of the seven schools in the system. Contract has been let for Roselawn construction and also at Loco Hills.

Indicative of the steady growth of the schools is the fact there will be 111 on what educators call the "certified faculty" this session, a gain of five over last year. Including principals and elementary supervisors, there will be 109 teachers. Administration is included in the 111 total.

A complete list of all teachers, supervisors, bus drivers and others connected with the schools, has not yet been released, nor a roster of the Artesia High School football squad, altho both are expected soon.

New Teachers

There are a dozen new members of the faculties. They include: High School—Ben H. Stevens, originally from Maude, Okla., graduate of East Central Oklahoma State, Ada, completing master's degree at Eastern New Mexico University, Portales, who is the new band director. He succeeds Russell Lewis Jr., recalled into the armed forces.

Junior High—Catherine Cummings, Painesville, Ohio, Kent State, Kent, Ohio, and Ohio State University, Columbus, formerly teacher at Lake Arthur, will be librarian and home economics instructor.

Thomas Davison, Hobbs, completing master's degree at Sul Ross, Alpine, Texas, Grade 6.

William Trenfield, Lubbock, Texas Tech, Grade 6.

Donald Knorr, 406 Shelton, formerly of Roswell, master of arts from University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, to teach English.

John Wilborn, Alamogordo, New Mexico A. & M., State College, completed most of master degree requirements at Colorado College for Education, Greeley, boys physical education and coach.

Margaret Anna Irwin, Deming, New Mexico A. & M., girls physical education.

Central—Mrs. Gloria Anderson, Pryor, Okla., Northeast Oklahoma State, Grade 1.

Battle of Books H-Hour Set For 9 A.M. on September 4

Here's the way a flier sees the 15-acre spread of Artesia High School. Long row of barracks building structures at the right attest to the constant growth of Artesia public schools, expanding so rapidly buildings can't keep pace with the rising tide of learners. At the top of the picture is Morris Field, scene of the exploits of Artesia's great football team of 1950, which lost only two games of a rugged 12-game schedule. Swimming pool, tennis courts, playground—all are there, waiting for the 1951-52 session to begin.

By BROWNWOOD EMERSON

For 2600 Artesia boys and girls, Tuesday, Sept. 4, marks the beginning of another combat with reading, writing, arithmetic and the score of other subjects that go into the long long trail to a high school diploma and the beginning of adult responsibility, far removed from the happy-go-lucky carefree teen and below-teen-age years.

Enrollment in the schools last year, including all pupils who attended even one day, totaled 3171. Average daily attendance, the key index of the school statistics, was 2437 which representing a gain of 231 over the preceding session.

Supt. Tom J. Mayfield estimated the average daily attendance this school year as 2600 or 163 more than last year, not quite so wide an increase.

While Sept. 4 is the scholastic kick-off day, the day that classes start, there will be preliminary faculty briefings, a flurry of registration for those pupils new to the system, new to school anywhere—in general those not in Artesia schools last year and not enrolled for the 1951-52 session.

CC Lauds 20-30 For Work Done In Safety Plan

The 20-30 Club was commended by the chamber of commerce for their part in the purchase of a Safety Sallies for the Hope School.

The letter from Manager Bob Koonce stated that the club with the fewest members had done the most good. Safety Sallies are a kind of "slow-school" metal safety sign put up on streets and roads near schools.

President Ray reported that the outfitting of the club's candidate for rodeo queen was proceeding smoothly and that she would wear a western skirt, instead of trousers as the other candidates will.

No action was taken on the question of the club contributing to the Langford fund. President Ray reported that he (Continued on page three)

Sure, a Touch of Killarney in Sign At Girl Scout Office

Something new has been added to the Girl Scout Office located at 110 South Roselawn.

It is a sign which clearly identifies the office as the "Southeast New Mexico Girl Scout Office" in big green letters.

The sign measures one foot by four and is made of wood painted white, square, with rounded edges. The sign was put up a couple of weeks ago and is the first of the office has had in recent times.

Collector Brings In 'The Thing It'

The Advocate office continues to serve as a receiving center for unidentified small animals.

Latest in the series was brought in by Charles Ransberger, 301 West Richardson, yesterday morning.

It was all curled up one tenth of an inch in diameter, 16 inches in length, black and looking like a rubber band.

However, it was no rubber band, as it moved and continued to coil up when shaken.

No head or other discernible body parts could be seen on the animal. The animated rubber band, which might possibly double for a squashed taxpayer, is the second in a series of "wha-zats" duly processed across the counter of this newspaper.

First was the four-legged lizard-like creature brought in by Arthur Wilson, who lives southeast of town. The yarn was in the Aug. 24 issue of The Advocate.

Help! Is there a biologist in the house?

As a little Artesia girl was admitted to a Dallas hospital yesterday for a heart operation, generous Artesians opened their hearts and purses still wider to add $336.10 to the aLangford Fund.

The child is due to undergo the operation today. A poignant touch was added when friends here told of the girl's visit with her grandparents, preceding admission into the hospital.

Mrs. James Boggs, 321 West Missouri, who initiated and is carrying on the campaign to raise the money to pay the cost of the operation for Lula Belle Langford, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Langford, reported yesterday that a total of $604.10 or one half of the minimum $1,200 had been obtained.

She added she had not had a report from some of the churches, which likely will swell the total even more. Money is checked in by The Artesia Advocate to Mrs. Boggs at 9 a. m. daily. This consists of collections received by this newspaper.

To boost the fund coin containers, made from ice cream cartons, have been put on a counter at the First National Bank. The containers each bear a clipping of the picture of Lula Belle from the story in the Aug. 24 issue of The Advocate.

Members of the Calvary Baptist turned in $166. Containers at the bank yesterday morning contained $15.50, including a $5.00 donation from Ethridge Smith, and $10.50 in change.

The list below includes all donors since the original list of 15 was published in The Advocate on Aug. 24. Check-in time on the list is 9 a. m. In the case of donations received after that time, names go on the next day's report.

The five counties comprise the Southeast New Mexico Girl Scout area.

Miss Millan succeeds Leigh Johnson, former area director, who resigned in May.

Old Postmarks Being Sought By Collector

Does anyone in Artesia have any old letters, kicking around dated prior to 1912? If so, C. Gottfried Finke, Artesia sign painter, would like to get hold of them.

Finke, who is trying to collect data for a series of articles entitled, "New Mexico Under the Territorial Post Offices", is looking for envelopes and post cards bearing postmarks of Artesia, Stegman, Miller and Hope.

Stegman and Miller are names Artesia was formerly known by, according to Finke.

Letters postmarked Seven Rivers, Greenfield, Lake Arthur and other points over the state would also be appreciated by Finke.

He already has envelopes from each of the three above named towns, but would like to get more.

The envelope from Greenfield is noteworthy in that it contains a letter from James Chisum, and the postmark is spelled Greenfield.

New Term Coined For Roustabouts

Don't say "roughneck" — say "crewman". That was the advice of George P. Livermore, president of Livermore Drilling Company, in the August issue of The Independent Petroleum Association of America Monthly, published at Tulsa.

Livermore pointed out that the term crewman conveyed a better idea to the layman on the job involved and that the term roughneck gives an unfavorable impression of these semi-skilled workers, because it is associated with rowdiness.

So next time you need a man to work in the oil fields, ask for a crewman, not a roughneck.

Petroleum Cause Of Four Families Moving to Artesia

Oil is the reason Artesia has added four new families to its list of residents. Each of the four are associated with the petroleum industry. Latest list of newcomers to Artesia has two representative of Gulf, one for Continental, and one for NuMex.

From Lamesa, Texas, comes Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Spoor and their two children—Dennis, 4, and Barbara, 2; and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bray, and Sammie June, 4. Both Spoor and Bray are with Gulf, Spoor as research and development party chief, Bray as an assistant geophysicist.

The other new families are Mr. and Mrs. John T. Swearingin and son, Dan, 4, from Torrington, Wyo., while from Weatherford, Texas, comes Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Huddleston and son, Jack, 17.

Swearingin is a Continental computer, Huddleston a NuMex instrument maker.

Artesia Soldier With Famed 82nd On 'Southern Pine'

Paratrooper Pat J. Lyman, son of Mrs. Lulla Henderson, 801 West Richardson, Artesia, is taking part in the airborne phase of the huge Army-Air Force exercise, Southern Pine, now being conducted in the Fort Bragg, N. C., area.

Lyman made the jump into enemy held territory of Camp Mackall of Aug. 25 with thousands of other paratroopers of the famed 82nd Airborne Division.

Troopers of this rugged Division are playing a major role in the big 110,000 man training exercise which started Aug. 10 and ended yesterday.

The airborne assault was the most spectacular phase of the entire maneuver. Troop and equipment carrying planes moved in V-ed formations across the drop zone, filling the skies with the many colored parachutes of thousands of troopers and hundreds of tons of supplies.

Once on the ground the troopers gathered their equipment and moved through the mazes of partially filled parachutes to their various assembly areas. There, in 20 minutes they reorganized into units of fighting teams and took the offensive against the wily aggressor.

had no news on the 20-30 shirts which have been ordered, but suggested that if they arrived on time members should wear them to the rodeo, to let people know the club was still functioning.

Various plans for boosting membership were discussed. Among these was the suggestion that someone with an unusual business here in Artesia might let the club something about the operations of his business.

Harry Singer, Advocate reporter, who was a guest of the club, was asked to be prepared to talk on his experiences in England and the United States, at some future date.

A motion to invite members of the Carlsbad Club to report on the activities of the district convention held at Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 20-23, was tabled.

Polling members on reasons for non-attendance, and giving members "the dickens" for not showing up were other plans considered.

Each member was asked to bring a guest.

Bob Gates was appointed program chairman for the meeting of Aug. 30.

The meeting of Aug. 24, which was attended by five members and one guest, was held at 7 p. m. in Cliff's Cafeteria.

Help on Collections

ONE OF THE GREAT NEEDS in this business world of ours is a plan or a program to aid and assist business firms and concerns in collecting their accounts.

For years now thousands of dollars are lost every year because of the fact many who create accounts, refuse to pay them, know and realize they are not going to be sued.

They know they are not going to be sued for the account because of its size and because of the expense involved in employing attorneys, paying court costs and other expenses involved in connection with taking a bill to court to collect it.

And far too many know and realize this. And since they do know and realize this they refuse to pay accounts and get away with it.

There is needed some way or plan or program whereby these accounts could be collected. Maybe it is possible the bar association could work out some plan. We, of course, don't know about that.

But we do know there are thousands of dollars in accounts which range from a few dollars up to perhaps $150 or $200 which are never collected. And they are not collected because the individuals owing the accounts make no effort to pay them and because they feel they will not be sued because of the expense involved in connection with the suit.

Now and then, of course, some individual becomes determined they are going to collect an account and they don't bother about the expense—they sue to collect and do so.

But it is unfortunate, of course, that the situation exists because perhaps in some instances it encourages individuals to refuse to pay honest bills merely because they think they can get away with not paying the account. And they depend on the fact that the individual will not sue them because of the expense involved.

Someone who could work out ways and means to help individuals collect these small accounts so that the individuals could keep or get most of the account would be doing a great favor for those who extend credit.

Collection agencies, of course, do collect bills but it usually takes about 50 per cent of them and the attitude of the firm or concern or even individual is that what they get out of the bill isn't worth the trouble and cost connected with the efforts to make the collection.

But credit would be improved as well as collections if there was a less expensive way to take such cases to court and collect them.

Changes Underway

IT BEGINS TO APPEAR that a number of changes are in store for some of the boards and commissions in our state as well as the way some of these state agencies do business.

We hope that Gov. Edwin L. Mechem can continue to bring about these changes and in a measure, at least, restore the government to the people of the state.

For years there has been a growing concern in the fact that boards and commissions set up in the state to look into the qualifications, experiences and even the training or the licenses of individuals coming into the state have become so powerful they determine whether these individuals can practice in this state.

It started with one or two businesses or professionals and then rapidly spread and it has almost reached the point where an individual has to be right politically to be able to come into New Mexico.

These boards have been set up as examining boards—to examine credentials, qualifications, diplomas, licenses or experiences—but they want to examine the individuals. They have set up their so-called rules and regulations and as a result have been in a position not only to control the matter of whether people entered the state but they have been able to keep competition out of certain cities and areas.

That was not the intent of the boards when they were set up but they have assumed these roles. Their plea is the protection of the people. They are not protecting the people when they can create monopolies, keep out competition and prevent qualified individuals in various professions or fields of endeavor to enter this state.

And the various state organizations have secured the passage of these bills and laws not to improve their professions or business and not to provide better service for the people but only to protect themselves from competition.

They can control who will or won't practice in our state or who will or won't follow their profession in New Mexico.

And these boards or these commissions have through these laws and through their so-called examining gained absolute control over their own profession or their own business. This has given them an opportunity to control the affairs, dictate who can come into the state; who can or can't perform certain practices or carry on certain work in certain communities, areas or cities of the state.

Now we are told that these agencies were not set up for this purpose and they are being reminded they have assumed authority they do not have and that the practices they have been following must be halted.

Certain such boards or agencies do not make for free enterprise. It doesn't permit people entitled to come into New Mexico to practice their profession or to follow their trade to do so. It has reached the point where people are denied certain rights and privileges which are theirs and which they should have.

We only hope that Governor Mechem can carry out the elimination of certain of these practices in New Mexico.

We hope that he can see the boards are only permitted to perform those tasks they were created to perform and that the practice of barring people whether they are professional men and women or skilled craftsmen from coming into our state.

New Mexico has and does need them. The people of the state need to be protected as well as the ones in various professions or groups but up to now the people have been the for-

What Other Editors Are Saying

OF THIS AND THAT

What makes men good is held by some to be nature, by others habit or training, by others instruction. As for the goodness that comes from nature, this is plainly not within our control, but is bestowed by some divine agency on certain people who truly deserve to be called fortunate.—Aristotle.

Some time ago this editor wrote to an old-time friend who is now a high ranking officer on Gen. Eisenhower's Atlantic staff in Paris, asking the officer's impressions of the general, and whether or not he believed him to be presidential material.

This is his reply: "I would unhesitatingly be for Gen. Eisenhower for many reasons. If we look at it purely from the standpoint of the man himself, for he is truly one of the most high principled men I have ever been around.

"He is inclined to trust everybody until they prove themselves rascals and that could prove his undoing in the presidency.

"His judgment of men in high places is unerring, and very, very sound, but as to the smaller fry some awful jerks do manage to hang leech-like onto him.

"I would hate to see such a great and good man as Eisenhower get smeared up by a little bunch of so-and-sos who always seem to figure out some way to use the president for their own personal gain.

"Frankly I don't think he will agree to run anyway. I could be dead wrong. There are a lot of people right around him who are counting his being a candidate for the reasons I stated above.

"Another reason for my hoping he will not run is that he is too badly needed in the job he is doing now. I don't think there is another man alive who could inspire Europe to rise up on its haunches and get ready to fight back if it is attacked. At least not in the way Eisenhower can and has inspired them.

"A man like Eisenhower comes along just once in each generation or so. By this time next year great progress in the defense of Western Europe will be in evidence. With the kingpin pulled out, I have a very real fear that the whole thing might fall into a bickering mess.

"He is the key to the alliance with more influence than all the other alleged heads of state put together when it comes to getting these people to agree to anything.

"Since the war, I have been in close contact with Gen. Eisenhower for about three years. I still have no idea whether he is Democrat or Republican or neither. I don't believe he knows either. On foreign affairs he's certainly a Democrat, but he hates the creeping bureaucracy that is shackling everything at home... and in that department he is more Republican than Democrat.

"So you can take your choice as to what he is. Personally I don't care. If he runs on either ticket I'll vote for him. But I still hope he does not."—Roswell Daily Record.

THE "REAL COST" OF FOOD

One of the common beliefs today is that the cost of food is sky-high, and is completely out of line in the light of the prices of past times.

So it will come as a surprise to most people to learn that the "real cost"—the amount of time workers must spend to buy given quantities of food—is lower than it used to be.

As proof of this, take a typical "market basket" of foods containing bread, round steak and pork chops, butter, flour, coffee and so on. According to U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics figures, the average industrial worker would have had to work 438 minutes to buy the basket in 1929, 275 minutes in 1939, and 274 minutes in June of last year. In April of this year, by contrast, he could buy it with 264 minutes of work. It is notable that the "real cost" of food in terms of wages is substantially lower than in 1929 and 1939 which were periods of severe depression in agriculture, with resulting drops in prices.

In short, the worker can buy more food with his labor than before. And that, in large part, is the result of greater economy and efficiency in retail distribution. As is well known, the chain stores pioneered low-cost mass-distribution of food and other consumer commodities. Their idea was to cut the profit on each sale to a minimum and to make an adequate total profit through increased volume of business. The idea worked—and it is to the credit of the independent merchants that they adapted it with great success to their operations. And the consumer has benefited all along the line.

In a competitive economy, where every merchant is out for our business, the consumer gets peak value for his money. That's true of food and everything else.—Industrial News Review.

Roswell Proposes Joint Oil-Ranch Code of Ethics

A proposed "Code of Ethics" in the use and development of state and public lands in New Mexico between oil and gas operators and livestock producers will be considered at the third quarterly meeting of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association in Gallup, Sept. 7 and 8, according to Roy Forehand, Carlsbad, president.

"The New Mexico Oil and Gas Association of Roswell has proposed such a code, particularly in the San Juan Basin region," Forehand said. "And if it is endorsed and approved by both associations there is a possibility that it may be applied on a voluntary basis throughout the state."

There has been considerable conflict in past years between users of surface and sub-surface rights on state and public lands and the Code will attempt to clarify principles of operation which will lead to a better understanding between oil operators and livestock producers.

Charles C. Lovelace, Jr., executive secretary of the state oil and gas association will appear before the cattle growers public land committee which is headed by Huling Ussery of Carlsbad. Others who will participate in discussions concerning the Code are Donald I. Bailey, area manager, bureau of land management, Albuquerque; Ed Pierson, chief, division of range management, BLM, Albuquerque and Guy Shepard, state land commissioner of Santa Fe.

F. E. Mollin, executive secretary, American National Cattle-men's Association, Denver, and Judge Joe G. Montague, attorney, Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, Fort Worth, will discuss probable effects of the Price Control act which was recently adopted by Congress. Mollin and Montague spearheaded the livestock industry recommendations in Congress that there be no further roll-back in the price of cattle and to ban slaughter quotas. Both amendments were accepted in final passage of the bill.

"The entire livestock industry believes that if Congress and the OPS will stop tinkering with the cattle and meat price situation that producers, feeders and packers will settle down to a real production program," Forehand said.

"Our industry cannot plan on less than a three year basis and we must have some degree of security against unfair government rules and regulations if our people are to produce the abundant supply of meat necessary for this country. Increased production is the only way we can stop the in-

NEW YORK—I was talking this morning with a charming young lady at the Hayden Planetarium up on Central Park West, and was delighted to my dark core to learn there are still at least 20,000 romantic souls left in this mundane life.

More than a year ago the Planetarium, a branch of the American Museum of Natural History, was opened 16 years ago to give the public an idea of what goes with the stars, comets, meteors and planets, presented a 45-minute show called Conquest of Space.

There was nothing over-startling about the show itself; it was just another in the series and it dealt with a mythical visit by a ship to other worlds in the solar system.

The cash customers leaned back in their seats, which are arranged so you can look up at the ceiling, where the show takes place, and amid the craters of the moon and other potential resort sites of the future.

The planetarium, however, doesn't do things half-way. It gives its estimated 20,000 visitors a month the full treatment in connection with Conquest of Space, it set up in the lobby a booth that advertised holiday cruises on a space ship called Luna.

The booth, under the supervision of a young meteorologist named Frank Forrester, provided space ship timetables and, with a staff, took reservations for the first flight into space.

"Just a stunt," Forrester said later. "We expected a few boys and girls would get a bang out of signing up for a mythical trip to Mars."

That was more than a year ago. Today the charming lady at the planetarium told me that about 20,000 reservations have been made for that first trip to the moon.

ACCORDING TO THE C. Y. L., more than half of these reservations are from adults, and the planetarium people aren't sure whether they're all just going along with the gag or are serious.

If they are serious, it indicates, as I have noted, that there are countless thousands of romantics still among us, or there are a few escapists than one would suspect.

The prospective space ship customers are a motley crew. The entire first grade of Potomac school in Washington, D. C., has signed up, for example, while there is an 85-year-old West Virginia woman who made her reservation with the accompanying plea to "take that trip, so I will be able to go."

Two small-town radio announcers from Illinois have offered to broadcast the first trip, and any number of radio and electronic technicians have asked for jobs.

From El Paso, Tex., came an application by a sidewalk astronomer who has been showing passersby the moon for 10 cents for 25 years and now feels like flying up to it and seeing what all the fuss is about.

A California woman wants to buy a ticket to Mars. "It would be nice," she said wistfully if naively, "if we could all live together without killing for food, fun or war."

All of these names, ages and addresses are being filed away by the planetarium people. They will be turned over to the first established company to offer space ship cruises, but it makes no suggestion about when this will be.

Scientific people seem of the opinion that earth men will be on the moon before the end of the Twentieth Century, but weekend travelers is something else again.

THIS IS NOT THE FIRST TIME the planetarium's shows have whipped up a little storm. Back in 1939 it tried a couple of shows called A Trip to the Moon and The End of the World, and they were history-making.

At least one member of each audience fainted, and the screams of surprise or horror filled the auditorium frequently. The planetarium was equipped to offer space ship cruises, but it makes no suggestion about when this will be.

The hall is plunged into almost complete darkness when the show are staged, which sometimes has two unlooked-for reactions. Some, some of them, either get so nervous that they have to be led out, or they lean back in the nice plushy seats—and fall asleep.

Well, one of these days the boys will be off to Venus with a collection of full and half fares, and the 20,000 romantics will be on the ground floor. Not among those present will be the bitter man who wrote the planetarium: "You screwballs have ruined the Earth so why not let the Moon alone?"

JASCHA HEIFETZ played ten concerts with the Philharmonic Orchestra in Tel Aviv last season, and to demonstrate the musical sophistication of the Israeli, tells of an encounter with a taxi driver at the conclusion of his first recital.

"I liked the way you played that Brahms Concerto," said the driver, "but I didn't recognize one cadenza. Was that the Joachim version?" "No," said Heifetz. "I wrote it myself and the pity is I have to play it here nine more times." "That's not the worst of it," sighed the driver. "I'll have to listen to it nine more times."

The most famous band leader in Tel Aviv, incidentally, is sixty-year-old Jacob Adler. His calling card reads, "Jacob Adler, Sharpshooter." And he won the right to that title in guerrilla warfare a few years ago.

The Drillers scored the most unusual inning was the eighth, when the Rockets scored runs without a hit. The runs came on six bases on balls and a hit.

Crushing Cavemen Due Again To Be Gurkhas of New Mexico Grid

The potent, powerful, crushing, maelstrom Cavemen are going to be that and all that and more this season.

Champions of New Mexico High School football in 1950, the Carlsbad Cavemen, look like repeaters with a record turnout of 81 players, including 15 from the squad that triumphed over Artesia in the Mehauffey Masacre of last fall.

Coach Ralph Bowyer's squad has 19 seniors, 17 juniors, 35 sophomores, and 10 freshmen.

Forty of the squad were taken into the Sacramento Mountains for workouts in a training camp.

In addition to lettermen and other locals who have played on B and junior high squads, there are several boys to report who recently moved into Carlsbad.

These include Dick Baker, 152-pound halfback, who played on a six-man team in North Carolina; Doss Morrow, 158, quarterback, Ken Jaeger, Frank Robinson, Bill Sawey, Jim Spencer, Johnny Mobley, Bill Henry, Don Pfutzenreuter, Ken Bridwell, David Spiker, Richard Bynum and Leland Boatwright.

Other late additions to the squad were Larry Davis, end; John Ford, back; and Bob Andis, center.

Drillers Rank Sixth in Batting, Cellar in Fielding

In fielding, the Drillers are still in the cellar with 3,038 putouts in 117 games for a percentage of 285.

Farmers Home Agency Notes Fifth Birthday

On Aug. 14, the Farmers Home Administration completed its fifth year of providing the credit and on-farm guidance needed by family farm operators to round out their farm programs, improve soil, strengthen their hold on the land, and reach a better living standard with more satisfactory year-round incomes.

In the five years, the FHA has made more than 600,000 production loans to family-type farmers, approximately 16,000 loans to buy, develop or enlarge farms, and more than 9155 loans to build or repair farm houses and other farm buildings.

Since 1946, the Farmers Home Administration has continued loans to install and repair water facilities in 17 western states. It has made about 5000 loans to individual farmers and over 100 to associations for better farm water and irrigation facilities.

Man borrowers' crop yields have been doubled, and a substantial increase in dairy cows has been noted. Approximately 98 per cent of maturities have been repaid. Over 43,000 former renters or farm workers were using farm ownership loans as of June 30, 1951. Over 31,000 had repaid their loans in full.

Silver City Climate Makes Hit With Fliers

New Mexico's "air-conditioned-by-nature" climate is being advertised throughout the nation by airmen who have trained at New Mexico Western College, Silver City, T/Sgt. Harold Nichols, student counselor, said today.

Letters have been received from 15 graduates stationed in various parts of the United States saying that they miss the Silver City climate and would like to be back, Nichols said.

About 300 airmen are enrolled at Western in the 3463rd School Squadron for training as clerk-typists. Western is one of the 24 colleges in the nation chosen to provide this type of training.

Young men from every state in the union have been enrolled here since the program started and their civilian backgrounds range all the way from minister to concert pianist. The estimated average age of the airmen is about 19.

Many of the young men have finished basic training recently and will be assigned to outfits from here. Some have been on duty at regular bases and will return to their assignments there when they complete the 12-week course at Western.

Women Marines are going to the Pacific early in October for the first time since World War II, Colonel Albert F. Metzger, marine recruiting chief of the southwestern U. S., announced today in San Antonio.

The lady Leathernecks will be assigned to headquarters Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, at Pearl Harbor for administrative duties. The first detachment will consist of one officer and 17 enlisted women.

Leathernecks, Female, Off to Korean Conflict

Women Marines are going to the Pacific early in October for the first time since World War II, Colonel Albert F. Metzger, marine recruiting chief of the southwestern U. S., announced today in San Antonio.

The lady Leathernecks will be assigned to headquarters Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, at Pearl Harbor for administrative duties. The first detachment will consist of one officer and 17 enlisted women.

During World War II, approximately 1,000 Women Marines volunteered to serve in the Hawaiian Islands. They were stationed at Pearl Harbor and the Marine Corps Air Station at Ewa.

The present contingent of Women Marines did not volunteer, however. They and others will be ordered to duty overseas under new regulations governing women in the Armed Forces. Marine Corps Headquarters in Washington said that it had no plans for sending its women members overseas except to the Hawaiian Islands.

One Woman Marine, Lt. Col. Julia E. Hamblet, has already reported for duty on the staff of the Commanding General, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, in Hawaii.

"IN ARTESIA SINCE 1908"

During the summer, improvements have been made at all seven of the Artesia schools, high, junior high, Central, Park, Carver, Roselawn and Loco Hills.

At the high school, all rooms and corridors have been re-decorated in a varying color scheme, girls gymnasium re-decorated; cafeteria repaired and exterior painted.

Artesia's newest school, the junior high, which opened for its first term last winter, also has had a share in the maintenance work. Shelving has been installed in the vault and ante-rooms and bleachers have been brought to be put in one side of the big gymnasium.

The campus had a good stand of grass and in places is well-sodded. Central had the biggest overhaul. There a new roof was put on the structure, new sewer system put in, cafeteria exterior and some of the interior of the school repainted.

At Park, music and art room has been painted, exterior of all the barracks overflow buildings, re-decorated.

A new room has been built at Carver measuring 26x37 feet. Old barracks structure, moved to the southeast corner of the property, is being remodeled for the teachers.

Roselawn is in for the biggest remodeling job. The fire that hit the school months ago made it necessary to move the office back of Barracks 3. Nor is that all. Only last week, Pecos Construction of Roswell, got the bid for construction of an additional 12-classroom, office and general purpose room structure, to be incorporated into the present brick building.

There were six bidders in all, three from Roswell, two Artesia, one from Carlsbad. Artesia bidders were Tom Heflin and Campbell Construction; Roswell, Pecos Construction ($203,837), T. D. Sumner and Valley Construction and Carr, Carlsbad.

eration of every man and officer in the battery. Spirit in which the men entered into their training period was outstanding. Their discipline was particularly noticeable. There was not a single case of an Artesia man getting into trouble of any kind," commented the Captain.

Arid Artesia got a tests of "swampy" Fort Bliss as it rained when the local battery was on the range, back in camp it rained, and it rained when the local battery pulled out on the return trip. The battery, 42 men and five officers, arrived in Artesia at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. Regular drill will be held at the army, Fourth and Centre at 7 p. m. tomorrow.

Six of the personnel have perfect attendance records for all battery drills and summer camp for the period August, 1950-August, 1951. They are Lt. Don W.
