North Eddy Couples Attend Nogal Mesa Cowhand Services

By MRS. E. L. COX
Hope Correspondent for
The Artesia Advocate

Couples from Artesia, Lake Arthur, Hope, and Hagerman attended the 13th annual cowhands' camp meeting on Nogal Mesa in Lincoln county on July 15.

Couples reported to the Advocate included Mr. and Mrs. Austin Reeves and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harwell, Hope; Mr. and Mrs. John Lane of Lake Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. Elton Langford, Hagerman; and Mr. and Mrs. Alf Coll, Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw, Mrs. W. B. Pistole, Hugh Kiddy, Orville Kiddy, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Briscoe, Artesia.

The idea for the establishment of the cowmen's own unique religious service, sponsored by stockmen of all denominations, was born in the minds of a few far-sighted Westerners. The manager, Ralph Hall, is a well-known cowboy missionary. One of the leaders, Joe Evans, is an author, a great story-teller, and a rancher, assistant manager, Rev. Roger Sherman, is a minister in Magdalena.

Founded in 1940—The camp meeting was founded in 1940 when the ranchers stretched a tent for their church. These men and their families donated all the food and then listened to Christian teachings. The Western men who had shied off from church always before were now glad to come and bow their heads in the simplicity of neighborly devotions. At these meetings all the men may wear levis and no ties. They can enjoy themselves and not be bothered with details of sectarian creed.

The ten was outgrown, and the ranchers built a fine new building that seats several hundred people. In the afternoon when the women held their meetings in the tabernacle, the men walk to the "bunker" beneath a juniper tree which they call their "prayer tree." The ministers do not take part in these meetings. This gives the men a chance to express their thoughts in a free way.

At first a chuck wagon was used as a kitchen. After the first year the ranchers built a kitchen and store house. They put a roof over the pits for their cooking. Three years ago a long dining room was built. Still several of the old-timers squat under the trees to eat, and some chunk the barbecue hot from the pit.

This year several men of Nogal and neighboring towns built a chimney for the pits and placed grills over the oven fires. A six-burner gas plate was installed for coffee and hot cakes. Two cisterns are now catching all the early rains. They used to haul water from Nogal Lake.

Russell Bird says, "We never pass a collection plate, but the ranchers always get their bills paid."

Protective Cover Helps Farmers Reard Erosion

A single raindrop falling on a field of unprotected soil may go unnoticed, but that raindrop tells the whole story of erosion.

As the drop of water hits the soil it splashes. In the spray that comes up are tiny soil particles which are moved from where they were. Where the raindrop hits, a film is formed by the mixture of water and soil. There is a breakdown of soil structure.

While a single raindrop does little harm, it does demonstrate the beginning of erosion—how tons and tons of topsoil are carried away.

In a heavy rain, soil crumbs are broken up and the soil particles are churned into a puddle. This puddling seals the surface of the soil and starts the little collections of water that grow into a stream. The soil particles lifted into the air by the splashing raindrops fall back to earth farther down the slope. As the water moves down the slope, the loosened soil particles are carried along with it.

A protective cover is important in checking this raindrop bombing of loose soil. When a raindrop falls on a blade of grass or a clover leaf, it loses its destructive force. Instead of the soil particles being broken up, the raindrops itself is shattered and more water soaks into the soil.

Country Club Golf Tourney Qualifying Slated Sunday

Local golfers will be out en masse Sunday afternoon to qualify for the annual Country Club tournament, which starts August 1. Championship golfers and other aspirants will be shooting for the low qualifying score and the Medalist Trophy given for the low qualifying score each year.

Pre-tournament indications point to the largest tournament in the history of the local Country Club, with some estimates going as high as eight full flights of eight golfers each. Qualifying will continue thru Tuesday, July 29.

Spectators are invited to follow any of the qualifying foursomes this Sunday afternoon, and will have a good opportunity of seeing some creditable golfing.

Bill Bullock, club champion for the past three years, will be defending his championship again this year. However, the competition appears much keener than in recent years. Such local golfers as Bob Bergman, Bob Bourland, Cliff Loyd, Jim Miller and others are getting their shots down to a fine point, and regardless of this year's champion, it will call for good shooting in every match.

With the exception of the years 1930, 1937, and 1944, here are the past champions and runner-ups:

The annual barbecue and Calcutta Pool will be held Tuesday evening, July 29, with the barbecue beginning at 5 p. m. Pairings and the tournament brackets will be completed Tuesday night. Players will be auctioned in the Calcutta Pool, including Fred Cole, who has played in every tournament listed above, and many other in addition.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners, runner-ups, and consolation winners in each flight. A club championship trophy is being awarded by the First National bank, and the Medalist Trophy is being awarded by the Carper Drilling Co.

A "blind bogey" award of $25 in golfing merchandise is being awarded by the New Mexico Asphalt and Refining Co. Keys Men's Wear and the Yates Drilling Co. are giving prizes to the winners of the putting and driving contest.

Drillers to Return to City After Losing Road Games

Artesia Drillers take a day out from regular Longhorn league play today for the all-star East-West game in San Angelo this afternoon, in which four Drillers are playing.

Tomorrow the Drillers return for the first of a two-game series against league-leading Odessa. The game is slated for 7:30 p. m. at Driller Park.

Artesia lost 7 to 6 Wednesday night at San Angelo, the team's third one-point defeat in a row this week on a road trip. The Drillers lost 12-11 Tuesday at Odessa and 9-8 Monday against the loop leaders.

Artesia shoved to a 10-9 lead in the fifth with seven runs on nine hits, but Odessa countered with two in the sixth. The score was tied in the top of the ninth 11-11. Rooster Mills then walked Roberto Fabian in the bottom of the ninth with the bases loaded to give Odessa a forced-in winning run.

Forty runs and 65 hits were stacked up during the night. Artesia's 9-8 loss Monday night was also won in the bottom of the ninth when Felix Castro of the Oilers bunted Charley Weber home.

Artesia had again held a lead in the Monday game, leading 8-4 with a six-run sixth inning.

$1 1/2 Million a Month for New Mexico's Telephone Expansion

● New Mexico has had the highest percentage of telephone growth of any state in the last decade. We're spending over $1/2 million a month to meet service demands. This is the money we obtain from people who invest their savings with us—the money that makes growth possible.

● Like any other business we must receive enough for the service we sell to pay the cost of furnishing it, including a fair return to those whose savings are invested in the business.

● Inflation has put a squeeze on the telephone business as it has on every business and every household. We have to pay higher prices for everything we buy. We want to continue to pay wages that are comparable to others in the community for similar skills. Taxes now amount to $2.70 a month on each New Mexico telephone, including excise taxes.

● But despite higher costs of providing your service, the cost of your calls can be counted in pennies. Telephone service has gone up less in price than many commodities you buy. Its value is often beyond measure.

Salary Fixers Issue Definition Of 'Engineer'

A note of warning was sounded today to employers of professional engineers by Robert M. Dergance, regional director, office of salary stabilization in Denver, with the release of interpretation No. 12, defining the scope of the amendment to the defense production act which excludes from stabilization the salaries and other compensation of professional engineers. Dergance stated that, evidenced by the amendment, it was the intent of Congress to limit this exemption specifically to "professional engineers employed in a professional capacity."

"Employers with salary plans," Dergance stated, "are cautioned that granting increases to professional engineers under this exemption will not be basis for modification of the plan with respect to granting raises to other employees."

Defines Engineer
 Interpretation No. 12 provides that a professional engineer is a person who, by reason of his special knowledge of the mathematical and physical sciences and the principles and methods of engineering analysis and design, acquired by professional education and practical experience, is qualified to apply such special knowledge for the purpose of rendering professional services or accomplishing creative work, such as consultation, investigation, evaluation, planning, design, or supervision of construction for the purpose of assuring compliance with specifications and structures, machines, processes, works or projects; also a person qualified by reason of his professional education, if he holds a professional

Aid to Navajo Economy Sought Through Minerals

Improvement of Navajo economy through the discovery of mineral and water resources on the reservation is the goal of a federal-sponsored project now underway by scientists of the New Mexico Bureau of Mines and Mineral Resources, according to Dr. Eugene Callaghan, director of the bureau. The geology of some 450 square miles of the Navajo reservation near Fort Defiance will be studied and mapped under a mineral survey contract granted by the U.S. bureau of Indian affairs, department of interior, under authority of the Navajo rehabilitation act. The survey represents a large-scale cooperative research program, involving a group of specialists in various aspects of geology. Its purpose is to determine whether there are mineral deposits, such as coal, uranium, petroleum, gem stones, gypsum, building stone, and other products of economic value which can be developed for the use of the Navajo. The study also will determine if there are water-bearing strata suitable for drilling.

Add Experts
 A number of nationally-known geological experts have been added to the N. M. Bureau of Mines staff during recent months, and this plus the acquisition of specialized equipment, has made possible the undertaking of such an important cooperative program for the government, Dr. Callaghan said. "It is hoped that the survey will help the New Mexico Navajos by locating resources on tribal land," he commented.

Dr. John Eliot Allen, economic geologist, has been named head of the survey party. In order to direct the project, he was transferred from his post as head of the geology department with the college division of New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology. The state bureau of mines is a division of NMIMT.

Two quadrangles in the Navajo country—the Tohatchie NW, and the Zith-Tusayan Butte NE—will be studied. The quadrangles lie west of Tohatchie and north of Fort Defiance, and include such geologic features as the southern end of the Chuska Mountains, Toldito Park, and Buell Park. According to Dr. Allen, the geology ranges from the Precambrian (more than 500 million years old) to the Tertiary period of two million years ago, with outstanding sections of Purissic and Cretaceous rocks. Known mineral resources include coal and clay.

Other "engineering" personnel who may work in more or less close association with professional engineers, but who are not qualified to do the work of professional engineers, are not professional engineers.

Kiwanis Club Discusses Artesia Future; Finds Outlook Serious

"The Future of Artesia" was discussed by a forum held before Kiwanis club at its weekly meeting Thursday. The forum was led by Paul Dillard, Artesia attorney, introduced by Milt Losee, program chairman.

Guest at Thursday's meeting was Lyle Donovan of Lubbock. Dillard pointed out charts and talks shown before the club pointing out declining and shortening life of North Eddy county oilfields and the fact the city has received very little outside money.

Dillard also pointed out the dangerous level of underground water resources. These shortcomings do not speak well for Artesia's future, the attorney said.

A forum on these and other points which may affect the city's growth proved highly interesting to club members.

Briscoe Proposes—

Roberts intimated the council should study Josey's duties and more thoroughly outline the job facing the present city supervisor, before expanding the administrative field.

Councilmen and Roberts were agreed that "Josey is a good man," but again and again expressed the belief "he is overworked" and thus cannot properly do the jobs delegated him.

Three Artesia Voting Machines Ordered Held

Three voting machines in Artesia and a ballot box in Cottonwood were ordered kept "intact" this week, according to orders received by R. A. Wilcox, county clerk.

The boxes are to be kept intact "subject to further orders of the district court of Chaves county in connection with contested Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Lake J. Frazier is contesting results which show Everett Grant-ham as Democratic nominee.

Proceeding involving some of the machines and the Cottonwood box are pending in Chaves county district court, according to Quincy D. Adams and Charles C. Spann, attorneys for Frazier.

Artesia boxes involved are the machines for 6-C, 6-D, and 6-F.

Clyde Newsom Funeral Service Held Thursday

Funeral services for Clyde Newsom, a resident of Artesia for 23 years, were held from Paulin Chapel Thursday afternoon with Rev. Charles Mitchell of Lake Arthur officiating.

Mr. Newsom died Tuesday at the Las Vegas, N. M., hospital following a lingering illness. Burial was in Woodbine cemetery.

Mr. Newsom was 47 at the time of his death. He had moved to Artesia 23 years ago from Texas. He was born March 10, 1905 in Texas, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Newsom.

In January of 1947 he married May L. Wheeler in Carlsbad. In addition to his widow, Mr. Newsom is survived by three children. They are Glanda Faye and Willie Lucinda and a son, Clyde Leonard.

In addition, two brothers, Frank and Calvin Newsom, also survive.

State Gets First Calls for Able Television Men

By WALTER E. TAYLOR
New Mexico State Employment Service

Television Self-Training— Although television is an infant in New Mexico and there are relatively few home sets in operation, some local offices of the New Mexico state employment service are receiving orders for television repairmen which are difficult to fill. Few servicemen experienced in television are available in the state but most workers now in the radio repair field can go into television work without too much additional training or study. To help these workers enter the field of television service, McGraw-Hill will publish "Principles of Television Servicing" in September. It is a text which can be used for home study by those who already have a knowledge of radio.

The book follows the unit system of teaching, with each functional part of the television receiver considered as a separate unit for study. Users of the book must have a knowledge of radio fundamentals to understand the practical circuit explanations. The book, by C. V. Rabidinoff and Magdalena Wolbrecht, is a companion volume to "Questions and Answers in Television Engineering," which was a best-seller among trade publications.

Unemployment—

National unemployment stood at 1.6 million at the end of May according to Department of Labor statistics. Although unemployment has been down to 1.6 million in 11 different months since the end of World War II, it has not once dropped below that apparent "floor." Economists believe that, unless the nation is in an all-out war, the 1.6 million figure is about as low as unemployment can get, since the figure is made up largely of groups of workers who are out of employment because they are changing jobs, students who have left school but have not been absorbed into the labor market, workers who are out because of material shortages, etc.

Follow the Suggestions

MANY A CITY, which has refused or neglected to follow the suggestions made and offered to improve the sanitary conditions, finds later they must do these things but at a heavy cost.

The suggestions offered for improved sanitary conditions in our community often times seem needless and unnecessary. And oftentimes we are inclined to refuse to participate in these programs.

The suggestion that approved and proper garbage containers be used seems to many to be rather foolish. The suggestion that lids not only be provided for these garbage cans, but that they be kept on the cans also seems to be unnecessary.

Yet when an epidemic strikes or when polio prevails—all of this and many other things seem important. The fact is that when polio strikes we are willing to do anything and everything that needs to be done to try and halt the epidemic.

The time to halt the epidemic is before it starts and oftentimes that can be done just by following good sanitary rules and regulations.

It is conditions which we permit to develop in our community which makes for the spread of disease.

Although there is not a great deal known about polio it is known that unsanitary conditions help to cause disease and to cause the spread of disease. It is safe to assume that filthy conditions also help the spread of polio.

The time to keep a close check on the water supply and the milk supply is before the epidemic strikes. The health department has certain standards and requirements for the adequate and proper chlorination of the water. They recommend there be some four-tenths of one per cent of residual chlorine in the water at all times to provide safe water.

Keeping water properly and adequately chlorinated provides safety.

There are certain health rules and regulations concerning milk and when these are followed then everyone knows that the milk supply is safe.

Yes, it is always easier to follow good sanitary rules and regulations and to prevent an epidemic than it is to combat the epidemic after it once gets underway.

You Have to Invite Business

MOST OF US FEEL that everyone who puts in the same type of service or merchandise and offers it in our community is our competitor. Our attitude is they are the ones we want to compete with and we want to keep as much business away from them as possible.

Frequently we feel if we are in business in a community and someone else comes into the community that we will share our business with them.

This could be true in some lines of business where the volume of business is limited but on the whole it is not true. When we have someone else come into our community and offer a definite service or a definite type of merchandise, we usually find they help to increase the volume of business the community enjoys in that line or field.

Their coming into our community helps increase the services to be offered and the lines and varieties of merchandise to be offered and the result is that our city is a better place in which to trade. And because it does offer more services, more merchandise, and is a better trading center, we have and enjoy more business.

Frequently we should be the ones to welcome our competitors. We should be the ones to emphasize that you can find that merchandise in Artesia instead of having to go elsewhere to buy it.

We, too, must join in the inviting people to trade with us and to trade in our community.

Just remember there are always those seeking our business—our real competitors are the mail order houses and the stores in our larger neighboring cities.

These merchants and business people not only invite our business by their advertisements in their newspapers but they very frequently send people into the community to solicit our business. They not only come in to solicit it but they get it.

There is no use to argue about that dollar which goes out of our city. We know it is gone and it doesn't return. Our merchant doesn't have it to pay wages or salaries; he doesn't have it to pay rent or his light bill or power bill or his taxes or his license fee. He doesn't have it to contribute to the community.

It is our local firms, businesses and concerns, which help to build Artesia. It is the local concerns, which provide the payrolls and it is the payrolls which create prosperous conditions.

Merchants and business people, of course, must meet their competition. They must render as good a service; they must offer the variety of merchandise; they must be in the price range.

Artesia is fortunate in that it is a good distance from any real large city of the metropolitan class. But the merchants and business people must invite the business; they must keep the shoppers informed; and they must convince the buyers they want and appreciate their business.

That day of sitting and waiting for business is long since gone out of fashion. When we sit and wait for the business instead of going after it—well, we just don't get it any more.

But the fact does remain that the better variety of merchandise and the greater service we can provide as a community the more attractive a trading center we become. And the more attraction as a trading center we have for the shoppers the greater the number of buyers we have to shop here.

COMMENDABLE PROGRAM

Now that the decision has been made, where will the rehabilitation center for alcoholics in southeastern New Mexico be located? What town was enterprising enough to anticipate such a project and ask for the location?

So far as we have heard there has been no bid for the center which will have some economic value to the community where it may be set up. The Albuquerque center will handle around $50,000 per year it is said, and it may be assumed that the two to be located in the southeast and southwest regions will be about on the same scale. In addition to the state operating costs, patients will be required to pay for treatment, and therefore, the economic value of the institution will be increased considerably.

The rehabilitation centers will be set up by the State Commission on Alcoholism and will be financed by a special state tax on alcohol. The tax has come under some fire.

Criticism of the movement, and the tax especially, appears to be from a selfish motive much more than from one of practical proportions, and probably will not amount to anything.

Recognition of the fact that alcoholism is a disease which can be treated successfully is to the credit of the state, and intentions to set up centers where men can be rehabilitated should be commended rather than criticized.

Properly conducted, there isn't any doubt that these centers can be helpful in returning men to useful places in society and restore them to the families they often abuse and neglect. And that sort of accomplishment is worth any amount of money.—Roswell Record.

PRESSURE GROUP PREVAILS

The city council appears to have finally yielded to a small pressure group within the city, and it is likely that a 1-cent tax will be levied upon cigars at the August meeting of the city's lawmaking body.

This tax was proposed some time ago, but the council was unwilling to act upon it at the time. Meantime those who favored it apparently have bided their time, and have taken advantage of an increased budget for city government to argue in favor of the additional tax.

Maybe the tax will be justified, inasmuch as two fine institutions will be benefited by the funds that will be secured through the levy. Both the museum and the public library probably should have more money for operations, but it occurs to us that it could be secured by careful paring of the larger items of the budget, instead of resorting to a discriminatory tax to secure the funds.

For the sake of argument let us assume that half the people of the city smoke cigars, and that

PENSIONS OR ASSISTANCE

A landslide for the legislature in Albuquerque is making quite an issue about people who own their homes being ineligible for the state's old age assistance.

The subject, which on the surface sounds like a detail that could be resolved one way or the other without serious consequence, concerns the whole principle of the assistance program.

Assistance for the indigent aged as it is administered in New Mexico and in most other states under the federal social security program is intended as help for the aged who cannot help themselves. It is not a pension for those who have attained a certain age.

Under its operation those who have property which they can use or convert to help themselves are not helped from the public funds. Those who earn and help themselves are aided by the program only if they fail to earn enough for subsistence.

This method of operation is opposed by a group who would permit property owners to receive public assistance without disposing of their property and using the funds for their own keep, and who would permit old age assistance clients to earn what they could without the amount being deducted from their welfare department checks.

The methods, both with faults and merits, are a long way apart. The latter carried to its obvious conclusion would be pensions from public funds for all who have reached a specified age. The other plan, as practiced here, is intended to provide the bare essentials of subsistence for the old who cannot provide for themselves.

The decision on the property owning question could make the difference of whether we will wind up with pensions for all or assistance for the needy.—Gallup Independent.

estimate is several percentage points too liberal. Taking that figure for a base, it will be recognized that half the people are being especially taxed for the benefit of all the people, and that hardly squares with honest and decent government.

Some of the pressure group will declare that if one does not want to pay the tax, let him quit the habit. But one's habits are his own and should not be attacked unless they are harmful to other people. In other words it is nobody's cockeyed business in this case.

We have no hope that we will be able to convince the council that it should back upon its intentions, inasmuch as our pressure is one against several.—Roswell Record.

CALIFORNIA SUFFERS SECOND STRONGEST 'QUAKE

SHATTERED WINDOWS of the May company department store in Los Angeles are shown following second strongest earthquake in California's history. The earthquake town of Tehachapi, southeast of Bakersfield and site of the state women's prison, is reported leveled and many persons are feared dead. The first violent temblor was followed by a series of lesser shocks. (International Soundphoto.)

Ragsdale Protests Street Move

To the Editor,
Artesia Advocate:

It seems to me that our present city administration has gone a little too far in closing Third street from Main to Texas avenue.

Is this because of the accidents at this intersection or is it deemed a congested area? I have lived in Artesia longer than 95 per cent of the people here, having come here in 1905. Even if I am considered of an advanced age I am at my office practically every day, that is if I'm not attending to business out of the city or on a pleasure trip. I have not seen nor heard of any more accidents at this intersection than in other areas. There are other places where traffic is heavier and hazards much greater.

Since the street is closed who will acquire the property or to who use will it be put that will be beneficial to the city?

Twenty-three town or city administrations have governed the town or city of Artesia from 1905 to 1952, prior to our present city administration, and none deemed it wise or necessary to close Third street from Main to Texas avenue.

Is there an ulterior motive in this closing? If the city administration has in mind the selling of the north and south ends of the street to the alley; why don't they come out and say so, let the citizens of Artesia know their intentions. If this be so, why the subterfuge?

Are the members of the present city administration wiser than their predecessors? Is the present chief of police more of an authority on street hazards than was his predecessor? Did Police Chief Lindsey, "one of the very best," ever so advise?

I'm not, and I suppose others, are not too well pleased with the spending of thousands of dollars to get a trickle of water in the new well near the baseball park.

You did not wait until you were certain you'd get even a small well before you spent more money digging the trench and laying pipe to it.

I do not believe any one of you would have been so careless in spending your own money.

Going back to the Third street closing from Main to Texas avenue. Just how many accidents have occurred at this intersection in the last five years? Give the public more statistics on this matter. Authentic statistics, not imaginary or manufactured.

Artesia has been fortunate in the past in having capable and conscientious, economy-minded men serving in public office. I believe our present city officials have the qualities necessary to follow in our predecessors footsteps, but it seems to me, and perhaps others, you have gotten off to a bad start, perhaps ill advised. (Signed) W. E. RAGSDALE

1951 Crop Loan Cotton Pool Is Set for August

All 1951-crop loan cotton still under loan on August 1, 1952, will be pooled on that date by commodity credit corporation for producers' accounts, the U. S. department of agriculture has announced. The loans mature July 31, 1952.

About 1,111,000 bales of 1951-crop cotton were put under loan. Through May 29, a total of about 675,000 bales had been redeemed, leaving loans outstanding on about 436,000 bales.

"Producers may either sell their equity in the loan cotton or redeem the cotton from the loan and then sell it in the open market," Marshall Thompson, extension cotton marketing specialist at New Mexico A&M college, explains. "The market price of the various qualities of cotton has varied materially during the year, but at present prices farmers should be able to dispose of most qualities of cotton at prices that will give them some net profits above the loan and charges against the cotton."

The 1951-crop loan cotton not redeemed prior to August 1, will be placed in a pool, as provided in the loan agreements, and sold in an orderly manner by Commodity Credit Corporation.

On final liquidation of all cotton in the pool, the net proceeds, if any, after deduction of all advances, interest and accrued costs—including storage, insurance, and handling charges—will be distributed among the producers whose cotton was placed in the pool, in proportion to the amount of the loans on the cotton placed in such pool.

No payment will be made to producers at the time their cotton is placed in the pool, and after July 31, 1952, producers will not be entitled to order the sale of the cotton.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Walter Winchell

NEW YORK—Across my desk this week came the second phonograph record which my life would be incomplete.

The first, some of you may remember—Marlene Dietrich's recording of Black Market my copy of it is scratchy and worn now less classical than ever. Readers who have pristine copies of this record are invited to lend them to me at no appreciable cost to them.

Now comes Hooley for Captain Spaulding—a song written hundreds of years ago for a called Animal Crackers, which starred the brothers. Hooley is sung by Groucho, as it were, and I have been spending hours of this week listening to the great man's dulcet purring over the song.

It has brought back a wave of memories reaffirmed for me a vow I made many seasons ago: Never listen to Groucho. He obviously is the greatest man in the world and the no obvious sense in going to see and talk with him and discover he may be human.

Persons of my generation—those are persons who are reared aged, from 35 to 45—each have their own particular memory of encountering the Marxes. My memory is of sitting in the balcony movie house in Yonkers, N. Y., somewhere around 1932 or 1933, being stunned by the unveiling of a film called Cocoanuts.

The first glimpse of the Marxes, back in those days when they were spilling over with joie de vivre and the greatest flood of sheer wit ever unleashed by mere man, was like first tasting champagne or being in love or seeing the Statue of Liberty from the deck of a bound liner.

Others have their own memories, and I sometimes wonder if Winston Churchill's viewing of their film The Big Store wasn't his memory of them, because it is a fact that he wouldn't halt the smug of it even after he was told urgently that Rudolph Hess had landed in Scotland.

NEW YORK ALWAYS HAS BEEN the Marxes' stronghold; they were born in assorted railroad flats ranging from 53rd to 135th streets on the East Side, and whenever in later years their shows were dubious and bad box office bets during out-of-town tryouts, they would come sailing into Manhattan and be clasped to the city's bosom warmly. The cold truth is that this is a subtle town and the Marxes for all their apparent slapstick, are possibly the subtlest comedians to stride across a stage.

One of the stories about them that always made me snicker at the time they sneaked Walter Winchell into the theater to see the opening night of Cocoanuts. The theater-owning and producing Harberts were warring with the gossip columnist and had barred him from any of their theaters. Since he was reviewing shows in the city and since he was a friend of the Marxes, there was no possibility of his not seeing the show. He was going to, of course. Right? Just a question of how.

In the early evening, Winchell turned up at the Algonquin. Harpo, using a rubber bath mat for a humped back, a beard and wig, made the columnist up as a dirty old man. Then he took the theater and walked happily past the doorman.

"Uncle Heinie," Harpo explained to the doorman. "Once in Harpo's dressing room, Winchell ripped off that disguise and promptly put on another one, consisting of red wig, long horn tuckered in his belt, etc. . . . until he looked more like Harpo than Harpo did himself."

There was a guard in the wings, posted by the Shuberts to make sure Winchell didn't crash backstage, and Harpo led the columnist past the guard serenely, saying "My double-part of the act, you know."

SO IT WAS FROM THE WINGS that Winchell watched Cocoanuts until right near the final curtain, when he hurried back to the dressing room, climbed through a window and vanished into the streets of Broadway. The next morning the Mirror carried a lavish review of the show and, presumably, Lee and Jake Shubert stomped up and down all day, slowly acquiring ulcers.

A LADY in Wichita loved goldfish so dearly that she had the tub in her bathroom filled to the brim with them. "But what do you do with the goldfish when you want to take a bath?" asked a friend. "When I bathe," the lady explained, "I simply blind-fold them."

"No, Professor Thiswhistle," said the Vassar sophomore dolorously, "your question doesn't bother me a bit. It's the answer I'm having trouble with."

A one-armed man happened into Greece's barber shop and demanded a shave. A young barber just out of school drew blood in four places, and tried to cover his confusion by asking, "Haven't I shaved you somewhere before?" "I should say so," said the customer firmly.
