A Goal for Artesia Business

Planned Program, Cooperation To Boost Retail Sales Volume

Through a coordinated program of community unity cooperation, Artesia can be made the retail trade center of the Pecos Valley, Chamber of Commerce Mgr. Paul W. Scott told civic clubs this week in a series of hard-hitting, illustrated talks.

The merchant who says business is terrible, too many people trade out of town, and there's too much competition isn't backed up by the facts," Scott declared.

Business is not terrible in Artesia. It has the second highest retail sales per capita in Southeastern New Mexico El Paso, and is one of only two cities in Southeastern New Mexico where retail sales exceed effective buying income per capita.

Scott said Artesia can be made the leading retail trade center in the area through optimism, keeping a clean city, going through sound retail promotions, and city-wide cooperation.

What the customer wants must be satisfied, Scott declared, pointing out that the demands are for:

- 1.—A wide variety of merchandise.
- 2.—Courteous, efficient salesmen and saleswomen.
- 3.—Clean, modern, attractive, up-to-date stores.
- 4.—Reasonable prices and some honest-to-goodness bargains.

The manager pointed out that Dollar Days, starting Monday and continuing on the first Thursday of every other month, are a sound start toward further building the city as an attractive place to shop.

Dollar Days can be made effective by advertising, offering honest-to-goodness bargains, and stocking new merchandise, the manager said.

The chamber is cooperating through widespread promotional circulars and with goodwill tours.

Artesia merchants have good reason to be optimistic about their business prospects, Scott pointed out.

The city is second to Hobbs and ahead of Roswell, Carlsbad and El Paso as a shopping center on a per capita basis, he pointed out.

Hobbs with a 1951 population of 14,100 did $24,234,000 worth of retail business in 1950, although its effective buying income for its own population was only $18,020,000. This indicates, Scott pointed out, that the city is drawing $6 million worth of business from outside the community.

Carlsbad with a 1951 population of 18,200 did $24,974,000 worth of retail business, while there was $26,062,000 effective buying income in the city. In other words, people were coming to the city to buy elsewhere or else saving away a lot of money.

Roswell is a similar case. With a 1951 population of 26,000 it did $37,545,000 worth of business, while it had an effective buying income of $38,896,000.

Artesia, on the other hand, did $13,055,000 worth of business with a population of 8,300. Its effective net income was $11,529,000, showing that the city brought in $1 1/2 million worth of buying income from outside the city.

"We have every reason to be optimistic," Scott said. "In 1950 we had an effective buying income of $1,389 per capita. We did retail sales amounting to $1,573 per capita. Our latest surveys show, is the same today. We are drawing people into Artesia. We have a good start toward making the Pecos Valley's shopping center."

CAA Approves $8,500 Request For Airport

Authorization of $8,550 for improvements at Artesia Municipal Airport by the civil aeronautics administration was announced by Sen. Clinton Anderson in a telegram to the Artesia Advocate Wednesday.

Anderson wired the $8,550 appropriation was for construction of an apron and an entrance road to the airport.

CAA regulations specify that appropriations by it for a local project must be supplemented by city appropriations. Estimated cost of the apron and access road construction at the airport is about $15,000. The City of Artesia would be responsible for 45 per cent of the total, or a little more than $6,000.

City officials Wednesday night indicated the city council would provide the matching funds from the city's emergency fund, which was set-up last year to include the airport appropriation in the event it would be authorized by CAA.

Should Proceed—

Mayor J. L. Briscoe said Wednesday night "we should go ahead with this improvement program while the money is available from the CAA. Even though we have not had definite word on whether Artesia will have airline service, we should take this step."

Mayor Briscoe pointed out that airport business has steadily increased under management of A. H. "Shug" Hazel, growing from two planes when first started after the (Continued on Page Six)

Republicans Set District Meeting Series

Republican district committee meetings to elect chairmen, secretary, and county central committee representatives were announced Thursday by E. E. Kinney of Artesia, chairman of the Eddy County Republican Central committee.

Kinney, in a letter to all registered Republicans, pointed out rules and regulations have been revised as to provide for active participation by a greater number of people. Each voting district will have its own chairman, secretary, and county central committee representative, Kinney said.

Artesia division x x 6E will elect three convention delegates, 6B two, 6A and 6D four each, 6C six delegates and 6A, 6C and 6D, two each. All others will elect one each.

Individual letters noting time and place of district meetings have been sent to Eddy County Republicans. Where information is lacking, a telephone call to Artesia phone 1319-R will provide information, the county chairman said.

In his letter Kinney declared: "The very foundation of our national government is molded at the local, county, and state level. What are we doing to evaluate, improve, and strengthen that foundation?"

The Republican county convention will be held at 8 p. m. June 5 in the district court room, county court house building, Carlsbad.

The new county central committee will organize at the same place at 6 p. m. June 5, Kinney added. All contests of voting district elections must be filed with the committee by that hour, the chairman said.

Annual County 4-H, FFA Livestock Show, Sale To Be Held in Artesia Two Days in October

Eddy county's annual 4-H and Future Farmers of America Livestock Show and Sale have been set for Oct. 30 and 31 in Artesia by joint committees of the sponsoring groups from Artesia and Carlsbad.

In a recent meeting in Artesia, the Carlsbad Farm and Ranch Improvement association and Artesia Kiwanis club formulated plans for the big show, which has annually increased in size to what is now a big, two-day show.

No site for the fair has yet been selected. Kiwanis Pres. Vernon Bryan said Thursday, but committees investigating possible sites in Artesia are exploring every possibility.

Bryan also pointed out this year's show has more and better awards than ever before. Value of prizes has been increased and the number of ribbons

School Board Defers Action on Consolidation

Action on effecting consolidation of Hope schools with Artesia public schools was deferred Monday evening by the Artesia board of education.

The school board, in a press release on its meeting, said the deferral of action was made after questions arose which necessitated further advice from the state department of education.

The board heard a report that rates are much lower on the new Hermosa school building because of the poured gypsum deck and complete absence of wood in the building.

In other action Monday night the school board:

—Approved employees other than faculty members, including M. A. Sams, attendance; Myrtle Carpenter and Holly Oberlas, health; Elizabeth Bach, Marguerite Collard, Eloise Donnell, Betty Griffin, Polly Haines, Ann Smith, clerical; Margaret Wilson, cafeteria operator; and W. E. Bailey, Robert Birch, Homer Cannon, Herman Coffman, C. G. Howard, Fred Jackson, Walker Lewis, J. D. Nunnelee, W. F. Martin, William Parsons, Narcisso Pecheco, Mrs. Urcisso Pecheco, Henry Terpening, J. C. Walker and A. H. Ward, janitors.

Midland Engineer Hired By Council To Succeed Josey

Hiring of William D. Fowler, now office and maintenance engineer for Midland, Texas, as Artesia city engineer was agreed on Wednesday night by the city council. Fowler will start June 1 in the $550 a month job here.

He will succeed J. D. Josey, Jr., city engineer who resigned in April after serving the city for five years since 1948.

Fowler was hired after a lengthy, private interview by city councilmen Wednesday night. Applicants were first screened, according to Mayor J. L. Briscoe, by a council screening committee.

Before accepting his present post at Midland, Fowler for two years was city manager of Dalhart, Texas. From 1948 to 1950 he was project engineer for aHfield Engineering Co. of Amarillo, Texas.

For an eight-year period from 1940 to 1948 he was city manager and engineer for Clovis, N. M., during that city's period of greatest expansion.

He was project engineer for French and Pruitt Engineering Co. of Abilene, Texas, from 1938 to 1940, and for two years before that city engineer for Big Spring, Texas.

Takes ICS Course—

Fowler studied engineering through the International Correspondence School and post-graduate work at Texas A&M college.

He is married and has three children. They are Cynthia Anna, a Texas Tech freshman; Bill, now in high school; and Kathryn.

Fowler will be coming into Artesia as city engineer during one of the most active periods of civic construction of recent years.

Now underway is a $100,000 sewer plant reconstruction project.

Scheduled to be let for bids in the near future is a $200,000 city reservoir and distribution system.

In addition, paving, laying of new water and sewer lines, is continuing at a rapid pace.

New Budget—

Fowler will also be faced with helping to draw the new city budget for the 1953-54 fiscal year, which begins July 1.

The city has been without a full-time engineer since Aug. 16, when a council committee, acting after Josey had resigned, moved his resignation date up from May 1 to April 16.

Josey at various times during his five-year tenure had been hired as city manager, city supervisor, and city engineer. Mayor Briscoe pointed out that Fowler is being hired as city engineer.

State Turns Down Proposed Standby Well

City attempts to set-up some type of standby water supply in the event existing municipal water wells become inadequate under heavy summer water use received another blow Wednesday night.

City councilmen heard reports that three different samples from a well the city was testing with an eye to buying as a standby emergency water supply were declared unfit for drinking water by state health authorities.

However, Mayor J. L. Briscoe immediately appointed a council committee to investigate another well west of town for possible purchase.

The Denton well, on which the unfavorable report was received, was reported to make nearly 900 gallons per minute during a 12-hour test. Water Supt. Red Vaughan told councilmen he had taken samples for examination by health authorities during stages of the test.

Skeet Range—

Wednesday night the council also heard a request by H. C. Schimmel, one of a group of enthusiasts backing a skeet club, for approval to locate the skeet range on the city's airport property. The request was referred to the airport committee under councilman Marshall Rowley.

Councilmen heard a request by a United Veterans club representative for permission to sub-lease the race track near the airport which the club intends to reactivate through sub-lease to a track operator. The matter was referred to City Atty. Neil Watson.

Mrs. H. B. Naylor, hospital administrator, presented the hospital operating statement for March, reporting increased collections of accounts receivable have put the hospital in better financial condition.

The council's street and light committee under Dr. John J. Clarke, Jr., recommended a city policy of requiring that on streets partially paved, new pavement be required to conform to the width of the pavement first installed.

Fire Survey—

Dallas Golden, city fireman, reported a survey by him and Chief Albert Richards disclosed a serious lack of available water for fire fighting on the southeast corner of the city in the vicinity of Second and Hermosa, where there are 37 houses in the city limits which city fire equipment would have to lay over 1,400 feet of hose to reach. A fire hydrant at Second and Hermosa was authorized.

Plans Developing for Top Artesia Invitational Golf

By STANLEY SUTTON Floyd Springer has announced that plans are developing for making the Artesia Invitational one of the biggest and finest tournaments in the West Texas-New Mexico area. The key attribute of the event is the accomplishment of Springer in securing the time for play.

The contest will occupy five days starting July 1 and continuing through July 5. This is the prize holiday week-end of summer golf activity and is expected to result in the finest collection of golfers as well as appealing to the large group of play-for-pleasure amateurs who follow the summer tournaments.

G. Taylor, Haskell Harris, Ralph Lennon, Allen Daniels, Troy J. Harris, Ralph Earhart, F. E. Cressman, Ralph Vandewart, and James E. Foster. There is a little too much respectability in this group to match the accepted standards of the club but a close examination of the list we detect a few names such as Harris, Daniels, and Lennon who are already members of the Sandraisers association.

It's these gentlemen you have to watch. Archer and Blocker, of course, can be depended on to hold down behavior standards. Four of these memberships, incidentally, are permanent memberships as a result of transfers and sales. Harry Plowman, who has recently moved from Artesia, asks that we announce his membership is for sale to a qualified applicant. It is paid up in full and can be purchased at a slight saving.

Today Deadline For Filing Seed Application

May 15 is the final date for filing applications for seed certification on small grains, according to county agent Richard Marek. Anyone having a field of wheat, oats, barley, rye, etc., eligible for certification should make application at once, Marek says.

Application blanks are available at the county agent's office. With this application, the grower will need registered or certified tags from the seed planter, or other evidence which proves the source of planting seed showing its eligibility for certification.

Final application dates for other crops are June 15 for alfalfa, clover, grasses, onions, Sudan grass and chile peppers, and Aug. 1 for beans, cotton, corn, broomcorn, all sorghums and any other fall crop. Marek explains that, even though some of these dates are well into the future, there is no reason for delaying these applications, since it is so easy to forget and let the deadline slip past.

BEER DRINKERS VOTE!

Research Girls Conduct Survey

Three pretty research specialists known as the "Beer Test Trio" invade our city today in the process of conducting a three-state opinion poll on beer. Representing Moffett Research Company, nationally famous survey organization, the girls are taking the "preference pulse" of the beer-drinking public in West Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona for the Mitchell Brewing Company of El Paso.

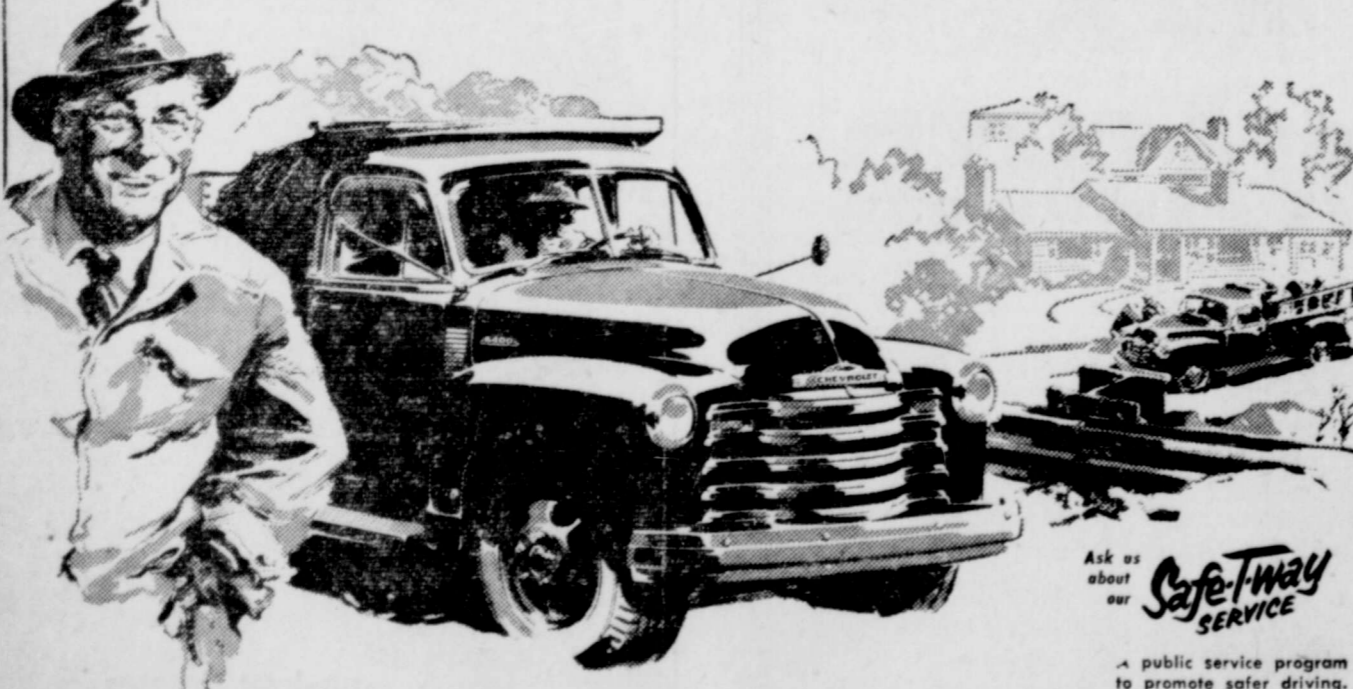

The Moffett Research Group assigned to make the Mitchell Brewing Company's Tri-State Taste Test of Mitchell's Survey Brews. Shown are Lynn Sullivan, Chet Swital, Kay Michael, Jessie Moffett, head of the Moffett Research Company and Lucille Ellings.

Each "beer voter" samples three different types of beer, brewed specially for this unique opinion poll. Glasses from which the voter drinks are merely marked "200," "300," and "400." After making the leisurely taste test, the man or woman indicates on a printed ballot which of the three beers he or she likes best, and why. These answers will be tallied by Moffett Research Company and used to guide the Mitchell Brewery.

Under the direction of merchandising counselor, Chet L. Swital, the Beer Test Trio, composed of Lucille Ellings, Kay Michael, and Lynn Sullivan, is visiting all cities from Midland, Texas to Tucson, Arizona, and from Albuquerque, New Mexico to the Mexican border. Service clubs, taverns, homes, and hotels are being covered by the girls so that no segment of society will be overlooked. They will make many public appearances and will be on several radio and television shows to demonstrate their unique taste test.

No doubt about it... Chevrolet trucks must be the best buy!

This year - for the 12th straight production year - truck users are buying more Chevrolet trucks than any other make. That couldn't be true unless Chevrolet trucks offered more of what you want. Already, 1953's official sales figures tell a remarkable story of clear-cut and decisive preference for Chevrolet trucks. But, this is not surprising, for truck users everywhere are discovering how far ahead of all others Chevrolet trucks really are.

Relatives of Artesia Couple Blocked in Adoption of Korean

If the United State's immigration quota for Korea weren't filled, Cpl. Douglas Walden, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Walden of Tulelake, Calif., and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Barton of 802 First, Artesia, would have brought a Korean war orphan home with him.

Now home from Korea, the corporal in the last several months of his Korean duty came to be war-fought father for a homeless, 7-year-old Korean waif.

His parents have made a long-distance, unofficial adoption of the youngster, and have agreed with their son that the boy should be brought to the Walden home in Tulelake. All necessary legal papers have been approved and when the immigration quota permits, the boy will probably be brought to the United States to live with the Waldens.

Walden's parents have been sending the boy, Bock Chun Sikhee, toys and other presents, and are anxious to have him brought to Tulelake.

Cpl. Walden adopted the boy the day before Christmas, 1952. Walden saw the orphan standing in a dirt road near an American military post, dressed only in rags despite the cold of the Korean winter.

Filled with the Christmase spirit of good will toward men, he brought the youth in for a hot meal and an old sweater to keep warm. But when Christmas Eve still was cold, Walden couldn't turn the lad out.

Walden's plan to adopt the youngster ran into a snag when California law, he found, allowed only married couples to adopt children.

That's when the corporal wrote his parents about the boy. His parents wrote him right back they were highly enthused about the plan.

Bock's mother and father were killed in Seoul. The boy was committed to an orphanage, but later fled south with the long streams of refugees.

Today Bock misses his buddy, the American corporal now rotated home. But Walden and his parents are cutting through a mountain of red tape to bring the lad, now a robust youngster with a passion for American movies, to the United States.

"We will get airline service either now or later—it's coming," Mayor Briscoe pointed out to councilmen. "If we can get at least this part of the airport ready, we'll have just that much less to do when we finally do get airline service."

Need Apron—

Councilman Marshall Rowley pointed out that a taxing apron is especially needed at the airport for large planes which occasionally fly here.

"Those big planes don't dare taxi on that gravel," Rowley said. "We should have an apron."

The apron and access road construction project is one phase of an airport improvement program which would also see construction of a fence around areas of the airport where public protection is needed.

United Southwest Can Bring Water

WATER—OR THE absence thereof—is the greatest single influence on the character of the Southwest. When irrigation project dams hold ample water and underground basins are charged, it is a rich contributor to the American economy.

When it is in the throes of a drought—such as the 10-year-siege we now are witnessing—its vitality is sapped, its resources dwindle, its contribution to the economy is slashed.

Southwesterners still had enough humor to bitterly chuckle last summer when reports of a drought in the South and New England states had the country running in circles.

For the drought which touched off the scare was no worse than the prolonged dry spell which has not seen adequate water supply in the Southwest for the 11 years since 1942, when the last big rains fell, filling big irrigation storage projects and recharging such underground basins as our own Roswell Artesian Basin.

That the Southwest has attempted to do something about this problem is questionable, although increasingly the problem of low water supplies in one of the country's potentially richest regions has received national attention.

There have been piecemeal attempts to bring this situation to a position of national attention and concern. Legislators, especially when running for office, have expressed grave concern and promises to fully explore the situation.

Civic-minded professional societies, such as the Roswell Geological Society, have focused attention on the problem in a well-planned but nevertheless limited campaign.

Newspapers from the localized efforts of community publications such as The Artesia Advocate, through the larger dailies, such as at Amarillo, the nationally circulated Christian Science Monitor and New York Times have turned to interpretative studies of continual, prolonged drought in the Southwest.

Yet these examinations, while remarkable for the detail they have uncovered, have been sporadic, and in a sense, pioneering. They are paving the way, perhaps, for a great step.

The Southwest, in fact, the entire American West, still today is the region demanding of its people more hardiness, patience, and foresight than perhaps any other region in the country. Our farmers might make a more assured living elsewhere, our infant industries would find freight rates, labor supply, and raw materials much simpler problems in other sections.

It is possible that a regional conference on water problems might stimulate action to solve the difficulties of water supply. It has been pointed out that the American West has all the water it needs—potentially. It has the Missouri, the Columbia, the Colorado, the Mississippi.

Such a regional conference might readily attract attention to the enormous possibilities of a water plan for the West and the Southwest. In fact, such a conference might readily bring before the public in a dramatic way that water is not the problem of the West and Southwest alone, but of the entire nation.

Last year, for instance, the President's Water Resources Policy Commission declared in a report that the nation has no water policy—and vitally needs one. Great

Cat Elimination Program at T or C Is Fraught With Peril If Natural Balance Is Unsettled

THE CAT ELIMINATION program at Truth or Consequences has brought about a lot of discussion as to results, reports Paul O. Tooley, publisher of the Hot Springs Herald.

Quoth Tooley: "One fellow says that if the cats are eliminated the birds and rats will take over."

"If the birds take over, the insect crop won't be enough to provide food and the birds will eat up fruit and vegetables."

"And the rats will spread disease and filth."

"It just looks," concludes Tooley, "like modern civilization is based on an adequate supply of cats."

MANGANESE ORE MILL tests have been successfully com-

metropolitan centers are threatened by water limitations, dwindling reservoir supplies.

In the Southwest, where the problem is most acute, where the water problem has reached what are perhaps crisis proportions, there must be the dedicated leaders who can launch a continuing study of water difficulties on such a scale as to draw the dedicated, vital interest of a hardy, pioneering, far-sighted people.

Estill Tour Fund

ARTESIA AND NEW MEXICO are honored to have Milford Estill, young Artesia attorney and an active worker in his church, chosen as one of seven laymen in the United States for a two-month summer examination of Protestant church work in the world today.

Estill will travel with a seminar from Butler University school of religion. The traveling seminar will visit many countries in Europe before arriving Aug. 12 at Hamburg, Germany, for one of the greatest Christian men's meetings in modern history, the second annual meeting of the men of the German Evangelical church.

This meeting is high in dramatic import to Christianity throughout the world today because of its location on one of the hottest battlefronts for the future of man. Of 400,000 who attended the first such meeting in June, 1951, 300,000 were from behind the Iron Curtain, from the Soviet zone of Germany.

Estill was chosen for the trip because of his activity of national scope in men's work of the Christian church. His present mission surpasses his denominational affiliation, becoming one of importance to the cause of Christianity in a world of bitter strife over directly opposing ideologies.

He has agreed to close his law office for two months to make the trip, a decision which means financial sacrifice for Estill and his family. He will also be responsible for many expenses outside direct cost of the transportation, food, and lodging included in a $1,500 tour fund.

We congratulate Estill for having been chosen for this mission as well as those friends who have contributed generously to the Estill Fund that they might share directly in so important an undertaking.

What Can You Do?

I'M INTERESTED in the schools, in what they're doing for my children, but how can I express that interest?

For the citizen seriously interested in schools and education in his community, the question is a grave one. Seemingly there is no effective organization which can channel his interest in a creative and satisfying direction.

The National Citizens Commission for the Public Schools suggests that before a citizen, or a group of citizens, sets out to express an interest, they might better channel their efforts after getting an understanding of the over-all situation in their community, reaching a decision as to what schools needs are in the local community.

To get an over-all picture, the commission suggests that the answers to the following questions are a pretty good index.

Is our community apathetic toward our schools?

Does the community rally to the support of the schools where there is a need?

What do people in town say about our schools?

How does the amount of money spent per pupil per year in our school system compare to that in nearby communities?

How do the salaries we pay our teachers compare with those paid in other communities?

Do we have enough good teachers? What do the records of recent graduates reveal about our schools?

What do local employers say about our graduates?

What do graduates of our schools who have not gone to college think about our schools?

How many pupils drop out of our school system before graduating? How does this compare to other communities?

When one visits the schools, what kind of general impression do they make?

What is the relationship between our schools and our community?

What should our schools be doing that they aren't?

What inadequacies in our school system need immediate attention?

Finding the answers to those questions would be a handy starter for a citizen—or a group of citizens—interested in the schools.

NEW MEXICO EDITORS ARE SAYING—

If Convicts Are Going to Run State Prison, Why Waste Money on Useless Warden, Guards

CONVICT RULE

Felons at the state prison have told investigators that every thing is hunky-dory out there and that no changes are in order. The investigating legislators are very much impressed and we suppose we should be impressed, too. The information does come directly from the people who have had so much influence in the conduct of the institution during recent months and they should know what's what.

We recall that the convicts demanded and got the resignation of the prison warden last June and got the man they recommended as his successor. They demanded and got the transfer of the assistant warden last September as well as the resignation of the prison steward and his assistant. They smashed a safe containing narcotics at the prison hospital last fall without punishment. They staged an armed break out attempt in December and suffered nothing worse than a couple of weeks look up. In January a mob of the convicts went on a drunken spree, killed one of their crowd and wounded three others without much inconvenience to the participants.

Thus this information that the legislative investigators have about everything being rosy comes directly from the horse's mouth and maybe we should all

TRUTH MISHANDLED

The powerful liquor dealers' lobby was still in action this week when the state association of dealers met in Albuquerque, with their attorney, John B. Wright, of Raton, being the most offensive representative.

In a speech before the convention Wright said that the newspapers of New Mexico had opposed fair trade price fixing on liquor sales for "their own selfish purposes." He said that the intention in the opposition is to create a more highly competitive situation so that advertising revenue would drop fast into the newspapers' tills.

Now, in a situation like that one must call a spade by its proper name. That would add up to the fact that Wright is either an ignoramus, or he's a deliberate liar. Having met the man one time we know that he is not ignorant, and therefore the other conclusion is the only one that will stand.

Another angle that one might want to approach in placing an estimate on the attorney's statements is that he wants to hold his job, and perhaps feels that by making a show of defiance toward his opposition he can please the membership of the association, and improve his own situation.

Perhaps it has never occurred to men like the attorney, and some other spokesmen for the association, that there are people in this world who regard their professional integrity rather highly. Perhaps these sources have never considered that there are people and agencies who believe that it is a duty to protect the interests of the people insofar as their ability to do it can be bent in that direction.

Perhaps it is the case that they measure the motives of others by their own yardstick. — Roswell Daily Record.

COFFEE TALK—

Coach Reese Smith Has Backing on Theory of Hard Work for Gridders

COACH REESE SMITH was dead serious the other day about finding heavy summer work for 35 to 40 boys who will make up the Bulldog football squad next fall.

Smith would like to have the boys in summer jobs where they'd be required to do plenty of muscle work. This would put the team ahead as far as its physical conditioning is concerned, and presumably, more time can be spent on skill sessions and bringing that conditioning to its peak.

Fans right here can recall that one of Albuquerque's coaches last fall, in trying to analyze the ascendancy of southeastern New Mexico teams on the state's football horizons, pointed out that those fellows down there do heavy work in the summer on farms, in the oilfields, in the potash mines.

So you can see that other coaches—even the opposition—share Coach Smith's idea of what benefits may accrue from summer vacation labor.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING for a real week-end, join those Artesia citizens who this week-end will go up to Camp Mary White, the Girl Scout camp in the Sacramento mountains, to do some clean-up and repair work.

The group which went last year reported one of the finest week-ends they've ever spent. Not only were they in the great out-of-doors for the week-end, but most had a welcome change from stuffy desk and counter jobs.

The idea is to clean-up and repair the group of cabins—"the Oaks"—for which Artesia is responsible at the camp.

After a completely different week-end from the run-of-the-mill variety those who make the trip feel refreshed, even though physically tired, for the atmosphere has been enjoyable and the work done in a good cause.

YOU COTTON GROWERS who think using geese as hands is a new idea only recently developed have the hawk from one John Gould, a gentleman who runs the Lisbon (Maine) Enterprise, and occasional enter a dispatch from the White, Boston, Adams, and for the Christian Science Monitor.

Gould reports geese have been used in Maine to eat strawberry patches. There geese have a liking for the which grow up in strawberry patches, but never touch the luscious berries themselves. To boot, the geese can be for more than one year in hot strawberries, while here in the South-west, growers report after one season as goose hand the cotton patches, geese have been shipped off to a goose or killed, because in the year their finicky distinction between Johnson grass and cotton plants is somewhat dulled, they turn on the cotton.

PEOPLE WHO LIVE DO that way will be glad to that Milt Losee, local contractor who is rebuilding the plant, reports reconstruction about 12 per cent along the and things are progressing nicely.

The plant, since its last permanent breakdown, has no good neighbor, especially the strong winds of recent which, when they shift to a which direction as they have habit of doing, are anything gentle spring zephyrs.

ONE ARTESIAN, EYE the dust storm which started come Tuesday but never made it, was asking pass "do you know what all clouds are?"

To the good-natured "no" replied, "well, all that dust been blown out of here in last month is just coming back. Sounds like an Oakie's osophy."

Pat Hanagan of Roswell, district attorney, today announced the appointment of John H. Lawless, Jr., as assistant succeeding E. K. (Doc) Neumann, who resigned effective May 15, 1953.

Neumann has been assistant since Jan. 1 this year. He resigned to join the law firm of Neal Neumann and Neal, having formerly been associated with Caswell Neal.

The new assistant has lived in New Mexico since July 1951. He was admitted to the New Mexico bar in May 1952 and since September of that year has practiced in Carlsbad. Lawless is commander of the Carlsbad Post of the American Legion and a director of the Carlsbad Junior Chamber of Commerce.

He was with the office of price stabilization from August 1951 to August 1952 when he came to this state, following three years of practice with the firm of Walsh and Bentley, 1948-1951, in New Bedford, Mass.

Lawless grew up in New Bedford, graduated from high school there, then attended Ohio Wesleyan university from 1940 to 1943. From 1943 to 1946 he was in the Army. He graduated from Boston University school of law in 1948 and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in July following his graduation.

In Carlsbad he is a member of the firm of Dow and Lawless, attorneys at law, with offices in the Harris building. While he grew up in Massachusetts, and attended college in Ohio and the Old Bay state, Lawless is a native of New Jersey, born April 25, 1922 in Roselle.
