Meeting Scheduled Tuesday in Teenage Center Program

A meeting is scheduled Tuesday at 7:00 o'clock in the Artesia High School girl's gymnasium for the purpose of planning the operation of a teenage recreation center.

If enough students express an interest in the center, it will probably open in the near future. The movement for a youth center was first instigated by Miss Jo Nunn, Wayne Westerman, and Jay Mitchell. All three graduated this year.

Interest, and we think it has helped us, too," Miss Nunn commented. However, if there isn't a good turnout at Tuesday's meeting, the program will probably be abandoned. It was thought at the beginning that 30 students should become members before the center project was undertaken, but that was before the gymnasium was offered for the students' use.

Walker Air Base Evacuation Held; 4,000 Meet At Airport

CD Officials Pleased With Local Program

The evacuation of Walker Air Force Base was held today, and Artesia Civil Defense workers were called out for their part in the action at 6:15 a.m. with the pre-arranged signal of blasts on the Artesia Fire Department's siren.

TRAFFIC control is being maintained at this Artesia intersection as civilian employees and non-essential military personnel begin arriving here from Walker Air Force Base in the evacuation today. Some 2,500 to 3,000 automobiles brought about 4,000 persons to the Artesia airport during the evacuation. (Advocate Staff Photo).

Police Chief Frank Powell, head of the Civil Defense Police Auxiliary here, said word of the evacuation reached here at 6 a.m. He said within 25 minutes after the siren sounded 16 members of the unit had arrived at the police station, and were on their way to duty stations where they aided in traffic control.

"I want to express my appreciation for the fine cooperation of the auxiliary here given in this operation," Powell said. "I think they did an outstanding job."

Tom Yager, director of the CD, said he thought the members of the unit did an outstanding job in carrying out their duties. "There was a minimum of confusion," he said.

While the police auxiliary section of the Civil Defense unit was at work directing traffic, the members of the other sections were acting as observing teams and were studying the operations.

Artesia airport was the terminal point for the voluntary test evacuation, and some 4,000 civilians and non-essential military personnel came here in 2,500 to 3,000 automobiles. No equipment with the exception of a few trucks was involved.

The families from the base brought picnic lunches with them from Roswell, ate at the airport and started the return trip. Air Force personnel ate rations, and then they returned to Walker.

Almost all Strategic Air Command bases throughout the country were scheduled to participate in similar operations.

Mrs. Buckout was at Altman's store in Hope today, continuing her visits to outlying communities where she is giving the second shots. She will be in Cottonwood Thursday.

Inoculations are given at 10 a. m. in the rural communities on the day scheduled.

Returning Home After Years Away Sometimes Enlightening

By HAL BOYCE

KANSAS CITY —What does a man find if he comes back years later to his old home town, and tries to dig back into his boyhood?

Well, the surprises he discovers may rather in a small way reconcile him to the guy he has become.

He may find, for example, that dumb and lonely as he felt himself to be then, he wasn't altogether as dumb as he thought he was. He may even be sobered by a thoughtful new responsibility.

calendar hasn't made him a new man. Do people improve with time? Do they get worse?

It's a great adventure to go back and try to decide. The opportunity to revisit myself when young fell to me during a stopover here on the way back from the Southwest to New York, where I work.

My mother had just sold the old home that had been the center of our family for 34 years.

The job I had to do was a basement job. It was my own job. Since I was a small child I had early grown the habit of collecting small souvenirs of my adventures on this earth, and now the problem was that the storage place at home was gone.

The old family home was gone, too. What did I want to hold on to? Throwing away the momentos of your life is rather hard. These old memories have hands in them that grip you from old times.

The first day, when Mama was there and said, "you can't live ahead while you're still trying to live behind you," I was stubborn and threw little away.

The next day I came back without her and threw away my youth all alone with both hands. I feel now I threw too much away. But it's a personal handicap. Anything in life... I don't like to see go.

As I said before, excavating the souvenirs of youth—only from your own living—is a surprising experience. I don't hesitate to use the word amazing. I am amazed to discover that at the age of 44, except for the weapon of experience—and this is dull but useful and sometimes a momentarily effective weapon—I face life with no brighter sword than the hope and courage and intelligence I had when I was 19. All you can acquire is the information of caution.

What was there in the basement showed that. Digging back through the dusty debris of childhood, put away originally neither with no more nor no less self-consciousness than I recall it now. I find small change.

Then, after finishing my high school classes and riding a bike for pay for the drug store six days a week at 15 cents an hour from 6 in the evening until 11 o'clock I would go home and draw cartoons, because I wanted to be a cartoonist.

I gave it up because I didn't have what it takes—talent, ability. So I turned to words, and earn this living.

I wrote poems then, but poems in that time, as in this time, were the cake of the spirit and bought no bread for the body.

Digging there all alone in the basement, I found the poor sad practice cartoons. They weren't as bad as I thought them. They looked rather good to me, after these years. It isn't the pencil, it's the idea. I found the poems, I read them and felt them again. What is a poem but the lyric reach of a heart grasping beyond the imprisoned mind?

Of course, there all alone in this rubble of remembrance in the

Mel Heimer A Briton views the Village

NEW YORK—The trouble with Greenwich Village these days, of course, is that it is run with junior executives.

There is a place for junior executives, to be sure, in the West Sixties or Seventies, or the East Sixties and Seventies, but it is expensive. They should be fitted neatly into reasonably new apartment buildings, with men who tip their hats politely each morning. They should be allowed one poodle and no cats. The dullest of the a.m. papers should be at their door.

However, whether wistfully or because considered chic, hundreds of them infest the Village. After work at night, they slip into levis and go off to pass the time of night with genuine and pseudo artists, at places like the Shop or the San Remo. The oil and water not really mix, though, and after a while they, back to the wall and uneasy at the clean shaven faces, drift off to return to their basement hovels to begin the last half-bottle of Chianti somewhere in a closet.

THIS MELANCHOLY STATE OF AFFAIRS has come to the attention of Kenneth Tynan, one of England's bright young men. Writing in a London newspaper recently, Tynan pointed out that in the Village—"the internment camp of American conformity"—the artists are outnumbered by "civilians" 100 to 1 that the secret garden is ridden with vagabond neurotics and led underfoot by tourism.

Tynan points out with what seems to be rue that "extremism, the clash of political ideals" have vanished from the Village days. "It is softer now," he points out, "emphatic only in the of its shrugging, determined only in its tolerance of personal idiosyncrasies. This latter is the only Village rule and, as Mary McCarty said: 'It is plainly not one that will build cities or cathedrals; on the other hand, neither will it destroy them.'"

In the traditional jazz joints downtown, Tynan observes, a "musical" is being played by "intent young men in spectacles." He says with clinical gloom, "is the shorthand of jazz, an epigrammatic defying the platitudes of conventional harmony; it performs a mortem on the dissected melody. The chastity of this music is a cant. It shuns climaxes of feeling, and affirms nothing but distance."

OUR BRITISH FRIEND HOLDS OUT some small hope. After cussing the many kinds of Village there are—the tourist Village, rowdy Village, the advertising men's Village—he points out the thing through them all is "the real one, the excuse for the legend, is made up of many races and many social strata," Tynan reports. Negroes and of whites for there is no color bar in the Village, cert, a showing of "Earth," a lecture on diabetics; to quote Mary Carthy again, "A sense of the American possibility becomes very strong."

There is, he adds, peril in living too long in the Village. "The corner is a hotel for itinerants, locally known as 'The Burns' Room. Next door lives the general secretary of the West Side Writers' Asthma club. Beside him is a deep-drinking bar called 'Dimensions' then the local branch office of Alcoholics Anonymous; and, mockingly, a funeral parlor."

One item keeps Tynan's hopes for our "attic for rejects" alive: a building door; is painted a cryptic sign "Integrity," it reads "Flight Up."

Terrell Reaches Home on Passed Ball for Win

ODESSA, Tex. (AP)—Shortstop Jackie Terrell reached home from third base on Catcher Bob Boyd's passed ball in the seventh inning to score the decisive run as Odessa nipped Artesia 4-3 last night.
Winner Mige Gazella scattered six Artesia safeties in going the full route. Three of the NuMexers' hits were collected by Leftfielder Eddie Locke, who also scored two runs and hit a solo homer in the sixth inning.
Artesia committed two errors and both led to Odessa runs, once in the third and again in the fifth inning.
Tom Buford was nicked for seven hits in absorbing the loss. The game was delayed for 23 minutes in the top of the third inning because of rain.
Every man in the Big Spring lineup but Tom Costello hit safely at least once.
Duke Henderson hit a first-inning home run for Carlsbad but Big Spring went ahead to stay with a three-run second. The Cops steadily added to that margin and chased starter Frank Maren in the fifth inning.
Goldie Gholson collected three hits for Carlsbad.

Sports Score 8-5 Win Over Midland

HOBBS (AP)—Before 1,146 paid admissions, the Hobbs Sports scored four runs in the eighth inning to hand Bob Swanson his second defeat of the season and down Midland 8-5.
Midland scored in the first inning on singles by Ben Jones and Don Deckman and a home run by Manager Bill Capps.
Again in the second inning Midland added another run on a single and a stolen base by Jones.
He was again driven in by Capps. The Sports scored their first run in the fourth on a single by Julio De La Torre and a double by Eddie Menesse.
The Indians scored their last run in the fifth on a double by Burns and a two base error by the Hobbs second baseman.
The eighth saw the game turn in the favor of Hobbs on a base on balls two singles and two intentional passes failed to get the Indians out of the whole.
Chico Recio drove in two runs with a single and big Alex Crespo supplied the finishing touches with a single to score the final two runs.

Many Factors Enter Big Money Battle

By BOB MYERS
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—How you gonna figure the winner of the 1955 U. S. Open?
The human element is risky enough to assess in a cast of golfers of comparable skill and temperaments—particularly when they range from a stolid Gene Littler to a tempestuous Tommy Bolt.
Everyone concedes that this 55th annual money battle is a wide open proposition, involving such interesting angles as the young fellows against the old pappy guys, the established players versus the dark horses and all aiming at the crown worn by one of the darkest horses of all, plucky Ed Furgel of St. Louis.
All the possible factors—fog, rain, wind, cold—are here, more so by far than at the usual sites of the National Opens. Baltusrol may have its rain, which it did last year. Texas could have its heat, as it did in 1952, but rarely does the U. S. Open offer such a variable prospect as this one.
Experts, looking over the entry list of 132 professionals and 30 amateurs, have come up with no less than 25 contestants who cannot be ignored in pre-tournament selections.
Cary Middlecoff, the Masters champion; Gene Littler, perhaps the brightest of the younger crop, with big Mike Souchak striding close behind; Julius Boros, the 1952 winner at Dallas; slender Dick Mayer, the Florida stylist, the famed slammer, Sam Snead, still seeking his first U. S. Open title—these and many more are mentioned as distinct possibilities.
And never to be forgotten is that man of golf himself, Ben Hogan. Hogan, still a threatening figure, although not as fearsome in the past year, has won this tournament four times. There is no doubt that Fort Worth's favorite golfer son wants to become the only man to be a five-time champion.

Pampa Downs Dukes 17-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Pampa lit on Albuquerque's left-handed pitching last night and downed the Dukes 17-2 in a West Texas-New Mexico League game.
The league-leading Oilers collected 20 hits to seven for the losers.
El Paso, on the bottom rung of the circuit ladder, whipped Lubbock 7-1 and Amarillo took a 9-3 victory from Plainview. Clovis' tilt at Abilene was rained out in the first.
Pampa garnered three runs in the first, three in the second, five in the seventh and four in the eighth. Red Dial was the winner, and Jack Martin took the loss.
Ken Yoke, El Paso southpaw, scattered 10 hits for his win over Lubbock. His teammates backed him up with 11 hits.
Amarillo's Marshall Bridges, a lefthander, struck out 16 Plainview Ponies to salt away his win.

Fish Disease May Stop Chama Hatchery

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—Fred Thompson, assistant director of the State Game and Fish Department, said an unknown fish disease may curtail operations of the hatchery at Parkview, near Chama.
Thompson said the disease, unknown to fish pathologists who examined specimens at Courtland, N. Y., and Seattle, has affected more than 4,000 fish.
The disease has attacked fish between six and 12 inches in length. It is not of epidemic proportions, Thompson said, but definitely will cut into the fishery's operations.
Thompson said the disease causes a rupture of the skin between one and two inches long. Fish smaller than six inches in length are not affected, he said.
He said the disease is no fault of the hatchery or its personnel.

Asks Charge Investigation In Big Expense

PARIS (AP)—The Wes Santee "excessive expenses" case exploded again today with the announcement from International Olympic Committee President Avery Brundage that he had asked the American AAU to investigate the charges.
Brundage offered no opinion on the case. He said he merely had studied the charges by a San Francisco newspaper that Santee had accepted more than the allowed expenses for three meets in California.
"I sent the story and a letter to Dan Ferris, AAU chairman and suggested the matter be looked into," said Brundage. "I have not yet heard from Ferris."
"No action has been taken against Santee yet and I don't know that any will. However, the charges are certainly too serious to let them stand."
Santee, on duty as a second lieutenant with the Marine Corps at Camp Pendleton, Calif., reiterated his denial.
"It's simply a newspaper story," he commented. "It's Brundage's duty to check into any charges made against amateur athletes."
Ferris, in New York, said the matter would have to be taken up by the Missouri Valley district of the AAU and that it wasn't in his hands.
Marion Miller, Missouri Valley secretary, has taken no action yet because he hasn't seen the itemized expense list which the runner is required to turn in.
"Santee has not yet turned in his travel permits showing the amounts he received for expenses in the meets in question," Miller said. "These are not about two weeks over due. Until we get those permits signed by the meet managers and check the exact amounts he received, the case is still open."

Moore Having Tough Time Meeting 175-Pound Limit

NEW YORK (AP)—With the light heavyweight championship fight pitting Billist Archie Moore against challenger Carl Bobo Olson just a week away, two admissions came to light today:
1.—Moore is having a tough time getting down to the 175-pound lightweight limit.
2.—Predictions of a $350,000 gate were slightly optimistic. The gate for the New York fight will be closer to $250,000.
Moore, a secretive fellow, has refused to tell anyone his weight. He was listed as weighing 196 1/2 when he licked Nino Valdes in Las Vegas May 2. That means he's having to shed 21 1/2 pounds in seven weeks, a mighty tough task.
"I've never had such a rough time taking off weight," he admitted. "I've always had more time to take it off. Anyway, I just can't shake the idea that I should be fighting Rocky Marciano for the heavyweight championship and not Olson."
Right now, Moore is reported to weigh in the neighborhood of 180 pounds, which means he still has five to go. He also admitted that he certainly wouldn't be as strong at 175 pounds as he usually is.
As to the cash register, Jim Norris, International Boxing Club president, sounds a doleful note.
"When we made the match I thought surely it would do $350,000 at least," he said. "Right now I'd say that we won't do more than $250,000. There will have to be some terrific action in the next few days if we're going to get over $250,000. The ringside tickets are going fine, but the lower priced tickets aren't moving."

Cause of Sinus Trouble Discussed By Local Doctor

Many Artesians are needlessly suffering with sinus trouble because they do not know that Chiropractic can help them. If they will talk to patients who have had this trouble and found relief through Chiropractic, they will find how simple, painless and effective Chiropractic adjustments can be. Chiropractically we have found that the usual cause of sinus trouble is nerve pressure due to misaligned vertebrae in the neck. All of us at some time in our lives have had falls or accidents that may have thrown the vertebrae out of line, produced a pressure on nerves, thereby starting a chain of reactions that ended up in sinus trouble. With an instrument known as the Neurocolometer, the Chiropractor can locate the point of nerve interference. Special training enables the Chiropractor to remove the nerve interference.
Therefore if you are suffering from sinus trouble, it is not true to say "I have done everything possible" until you try Chiropractic.
For further information about Chiropractic, you are cordially invited to consult Dr. K. Behnke Rains, Palmer Graduate Chiropractor, 420 W. Quay, phone SH 6-3800. Office hours daily except Saturday. —Adv.

Garden Ware Prominent in Our Living

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Outdoor living is part of the American scheme of enjoyment. So garden furniture has come into prominence.

Bamboo, rattan, redwood, wrought iron, aluminum, stainless steel and plastic are just a few of the materials that bring the outdoors into the realm of easy living.

Redwood, is popular, easy to refinish and to keep looking new with this method: Sand, smoothing away wood fibers, using a holder for the sandpaper. Remove all wood dust with a clean dry brush or lint-free cloth. Two coats of color-toned resin sealer give a durable finish protecting your wood against warping, swelling. Pores of wood are sealed against damaging moisture and special pigments filter out sun's rays. Resin color tones include driftwood, redwood, sage, cedar, mahogany or others, permitting natural wood grain to show through. Sand lightly between coats.

Outdoor metal furniture may be rejuvenated by washing, sandpapering rough or glossy surfaces, cracks and rust spots, and then painting. Give bare metal a coat of metal primer. Stir a speed enamel that is a nonfading weather protector. Use a clean soft-bristled brush. Place tables upside down so you can do less first. Eighteen colors are available in this enamel. High style colors include antique white, cream dusky, black, aqua, pale pink and coral this year. You can sprinkle a little gold metallic powder on newly painted surfaces before the paint dries for a special treat.

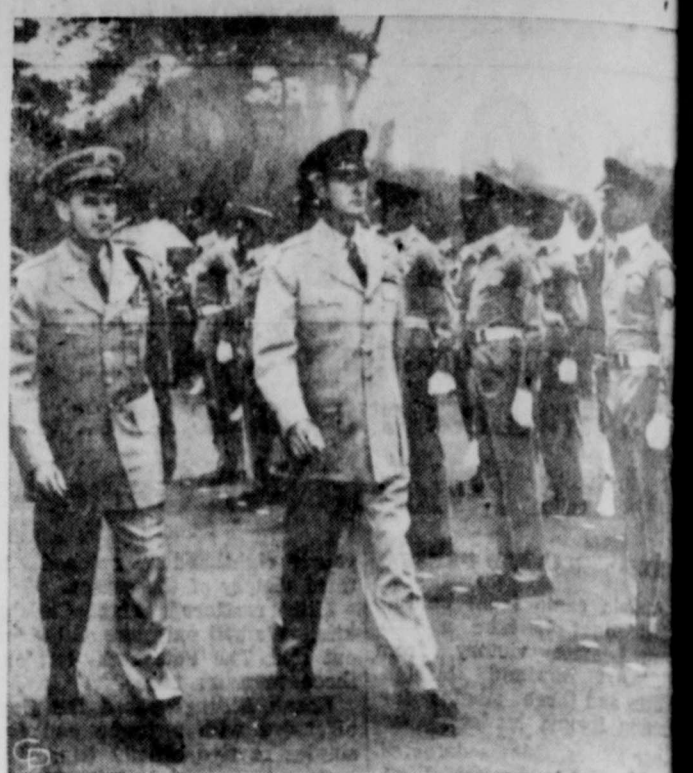

Bamboo and rattan are also being painted in a dull black finish—better for patio or covered terrace, however, than in the broiling sun. Reds, vivid green and blue paints are being used on other wood finishes. Cracks or nail head indentations should be filled in wood chairs with a spackling material before sanding and painting.

Fence posts and trellises may be protected from fungi and borers by using a wood preservative. Surfaces must be clean before applying liquid.

Garden walks and patios may be coated in gay colors with a waterproof enamel that provides weather protection. It has a plastic rubber base, easy to use on concrete and flagstone.

Screens can get rustproof protection with a special sealer enamel that does not clog wire mesh.

Explanation Is Needed

EVERY two years when the legislature meets we get a set of new state laws that go into effect immediately or after 60 to 90 days time but no one ever knows anything about them.

The fact is that it has usually been so long since the legislature passed them the public even forgets the law was adopted even though there may have been plenty of discussions at the time.

We now have a number of state laws that are effective but no one seems to know just what the laws provide; who is going to enforce them; or what is to be done about them.

A certain amount of publicity is given the laws but this never provides all the information that is needed.

For instance we have a new driver's license law but no one is just sure when their present license expires, when they must renew it or what is to be done about it even though licenses have been issued for one, two and three year periods.

We have a 'loss-leader law' that makes it mandatory that all advertised specials be sold and that prohibits a merchant from limiting the amount of merchandise advertised at a special price he will sell yet no one is just sure who will enforce the law.

We have a state minimum wage law but it is already being attacked and probably will go to the state supreme court for a decision as being a law no one can follow, understand or observe.

But every two years we go through this same procedure and no one knows just what the new laws are or how they are going to be enforced or who is going to do the job.

We believe what we need is someone to provide for the publishing of these laws and explaining them prior to the time they go into effect and that definite instructions be provided as to who will enforce the laws. This information should be provided for the general public.

There is always a better observance of laws if there is an understanding of these laws. Our state adopts the laws but certainly we have neglected to help make it possible for the public to know these laws and to understand them.

We believe it would be wise in the future for the full explanations of the laws to be provided the public before their effective date so the public could cooperate in observing them.

Build the Kid A Playpen

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Why not build your baby an outdoor playpen?

Make it large enough to give him plenty of freedom and he'll enjoy it, perhaps from toddler stage until age 4. Then a stone fortress won't be able to hold him within.

Mom and Dad can make this playpen a joint project. Dad may dig the post holes and Mom can help to unfurl and steady the chain-link fence as Dad adjusts it into place. Aluminum chain-link is light, easy to handle, needs no paint as it does not rust. It may be mounted on wooden or steel posts.

Although these fences have a luster bright finish, you might add a creeping vine of some sort. You could also plant a flower border or shrubs around the pen. If they are low growing they will not screen out baby.

Here's how:

Dig post holes two feet deep and big enough around to hold 4 by 4's of any good grade of lumber. Post holes should be 6 to 8 feet apart. If the fence is 10 feet square, post holes should be about 5 feet apart. Use a regular post hole digger or if the ground is rocky rent one of the electric professional diggers that grind into the rocks in a jiffy. (Some states prohibit the rental of this type of high-powered tool.)

Put a 4 by 4 in each hole making ing sure it is absolutely vertical by bracing it while the concrete is poured and hardened. A small bag of pre-mixed concrete that merely requires the addition of water, is all that is needed.

Nail 2 by 4 cross beams between the posts. Use a heavy duty stapler (that can be rented at local hardware stores or borrowed from a factory or office) to fasten the chain-link fence directly to the cross beams and posts.

The usual height of this baby playpen would be about 4 feet. It is linked so that it cannot be climbed by a youngster.

Junior can entertain in this play area to his heart's delight. A sandbox with awning may be put inside to provide shade on a hot day. A little wading pool may also be built within this space, providing it is filled only when adults supervise the play.

Russians Get Too Much Credit for Being Clever

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Every time the Russian sneeze, the world twitches. What are they up to? It must be dark, devious and diabolical. There were even some misgivings they might outwit President Eisenhower if he sat down with them.

They're devious and clever. But they get too much credit for cleverness.

What they wanted more than anything for years was to keep the Western Allies unarmed and separated and West Germany neutralized. Thanks to Stalin, they failed in both. Sour, stubborn, Stalin yielded nothing.

Then he got too tough and upset the apple cart by letting the Korean war begin. This not only showed the west into alliance and rearming but eventually into letting Germany rearm and join the partnership.

For a year after Stalin's death his heirs, as if they could think of nothing better, followed his tactics out the window: threats and dire warnings if Germany was permitted to rearm.

the Kremlin policy got softer instead of tougher and nobody has lost his head there yet.

1. They were losing with Stalin's tactics. By a shift, to a show of friendliness and cooperation, they might still weaken the Western Alliance and even keep Germany from rearming since it hadn't started to rearm yet.

2. If they kept on the way they were going, with the West building up its strength, they might head into a war which would leave them pulverized.

3. A change in tactics needed a change in people. Malenkov should not be in the showcase if they were going to display a new face of good fellowship and sweet reasonableness. Malenkov, like Stalin, looks sour and immovable. Judging from his pictures, he's an introvert. Good-Time-Charleys are extroverts.

The Kremlin shoved forward two men who at least act like Good-

Time-Charleys: Premier Nikolai Bulganin with a velvety beard which makes him look more like a symphony orchestra conductor than a revolutionist; and Nikita Khrushchev, credited with being the real boss, who performed like a butter-and-egg salesman on a spree when he visited Yugoslavia.

In time Red China got in on the act. It had good reason to want the West to relax. It needed trade with the West. The new Kremlin tactics evolved fairly fast.

They agreed to Austrian independence, with Austria neutralized. They agreed to a Big Four conference. They visited Yugoslavia with grins instead of threats. The Red Chinese suggested talks with the United States and let the shooting around Formosa die down.

Now the Russians have invited German Chancellor Julius Raab there earlier in the year and no doubt with the same purpose: to try for a neutralized Germany.

Perhaps they thought this technique still had a chance, for until late in 1954 the Allies were squabbling among themselves on letting the Germans have guns again.

The Kremlin team must have seen the jig was up Dec. 30 when the French Chamber of Deputies voted for German independence and rearmament. Not long afterwards things began to change.

On Feb. 8 Stalin's successor, Premier Georgi Malenkov, was bounced. This was widely interpreted in the guessing West as meaning (A) a tougher Kremlin policy and, or, (B) that there was now a fierce struggle for power in the Kremlin.

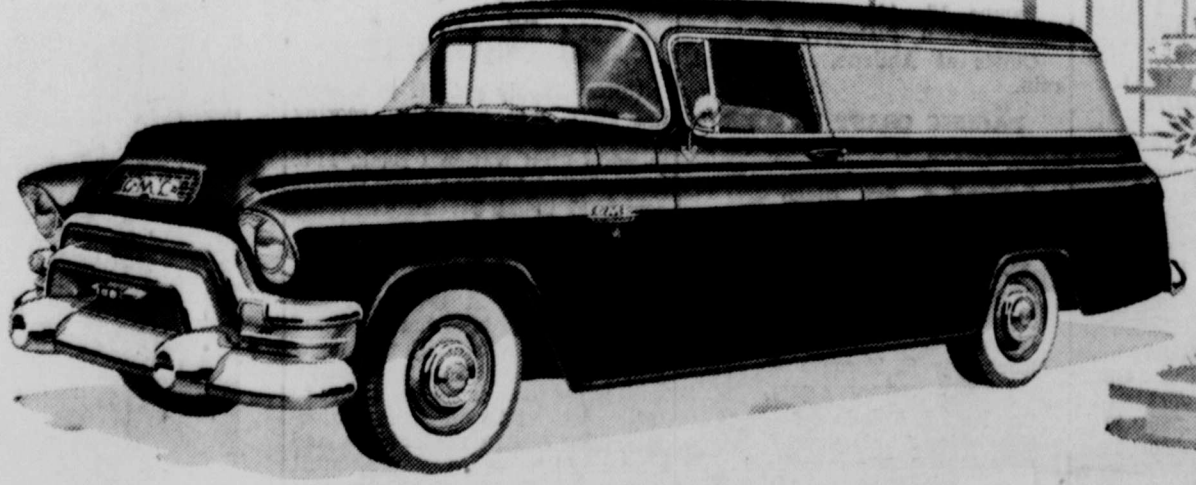

Perhaps the following was closer to the truth for, as events showed,

Cat Rates High As Television Femme Fatale

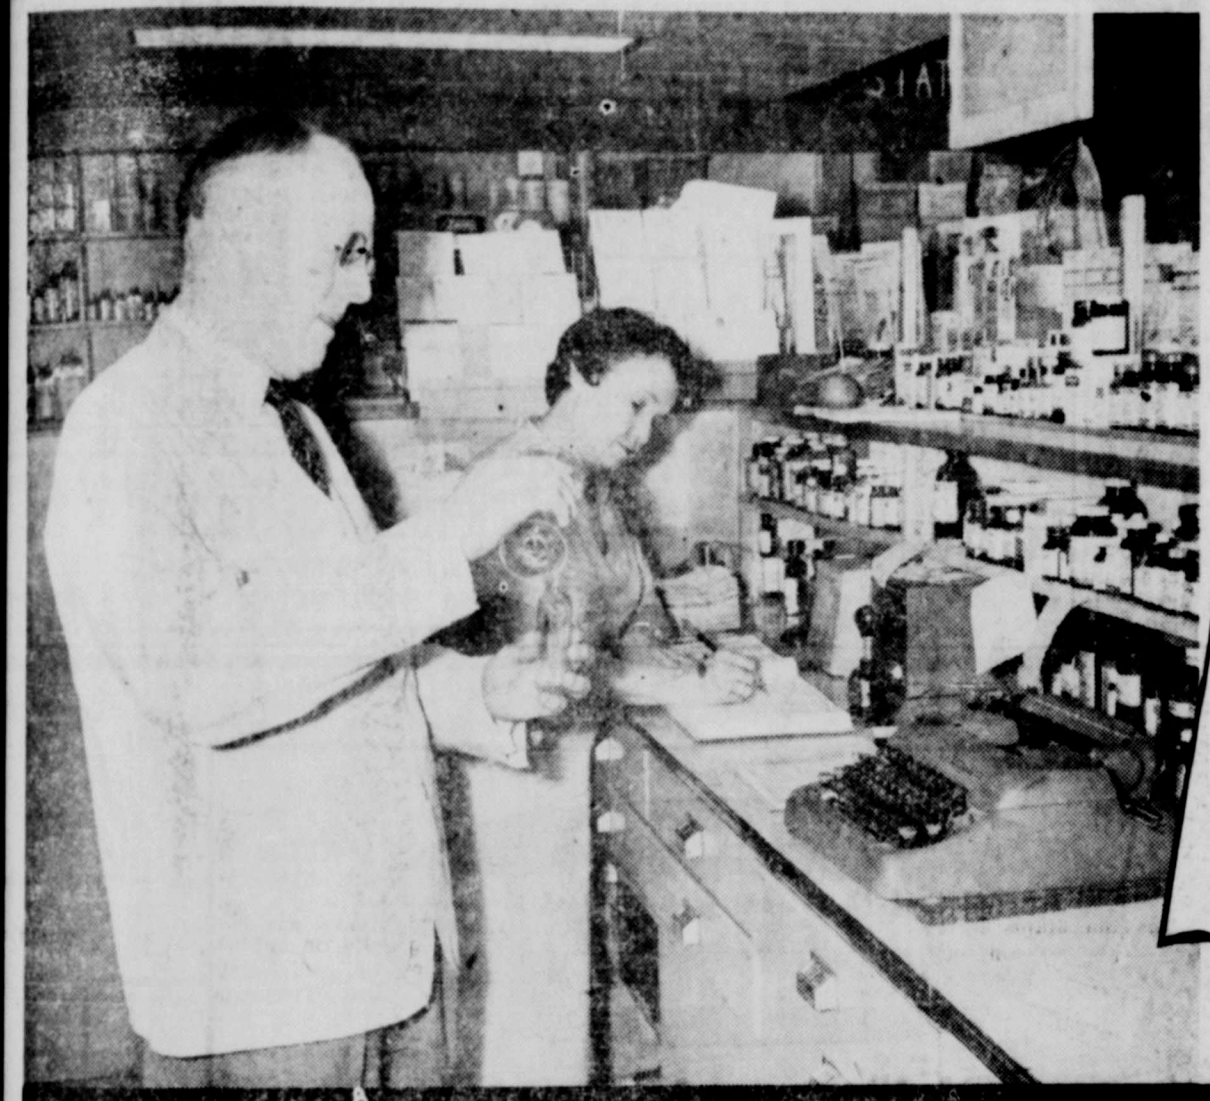

By TOM DYCARD
LITTLE ROCK — The most popular actress on television Channel 4 in Little Rock is a femme fatal who came to KARK-TV without invitation, application, experience, or a particular talent.
She has a thin figure, beady eyes, and hair that is best described as the color of dish-water. She has neither a sponsor nor a program of her own and she is paid no money.
But she rates high. She spends her idle moments away from the camera dozing in the boss' chair. She received more Christmas cards and gifts than anyone else at the station.
She is a cat, name of Hurricane, who accepted a photographer's invitation to come in out of the cold five months ago and has stuck around ever since. Her entry coincided with Hurricane Hazel. Hence, the name.
After about a week of loafing in station manager Doug Romine's soft chair, the show business bug bit Hurricane and she wandered in front of the camera for the first time.
The fan mail started. It in-

Stopping Simple Nose Bleed Easy for Informed Mothers

Tony was sobbing as he burst into the kitchen by the back door. One look at him and mother dropped her dishcloth and ran over to him. His face was a mass of dirt, tears and blood. It was hard to see just what was the matter with him.
Mother sat him down on a kitchen chair and sponged off the sad, little face.
created every time she looks over Bud Campbell's shoulder during a late sports show, every time she scoots papers off the desk of newscaster Les Bolton, and every time she strolls onto a set while the cameras grind.
The people at KARK-TV, who have fixed a box for Hurricane in the announcer's dressing room, claim she has a sixth sense about knowing when the camera is on her. When on the air, they say, she jumps frantically, eyes the camera perty, battles ferociously with a wad of waste paper, or tussles with an actor who had a straight face until then.
"Freddy punched me," sobbed Tony, more scared than hurt.
Once the face was cleaned it was clear that the blood was coming from one nostril. There was not much else the matter with Tony.
Tony's mother was accustomed to crises of this sort. She'd not brought up four boys without learning how to cope with the unexpected.
"Do YOU know what to do for a nosebleed?"
Just in case you don't here's what to do.
Have the child lie down with his head tilted over to one side, so that the blood will not trickle down his throat.
Apply ice, first right over his nose, second at the back of his neck. Get the youngster to suck a piece of ice.
Usually this is about all you need to do. In a few minutes the bleeding will stop. The child should remain quiet for an hour or two and not blow his nose during that time.
If the bleeding does not subside soon, put a few drops of hydrogen peroxide into the bleeding nostril. This will usually help to form a clot and stop the bleeding.

If the nose continues to bleed even after these simple measures, it's best to phone your doctor.
However, even the next step is not difficult, and if you cannot reach your doctor you may have to do it yourself.
A nose that continues to bleed may have to be packed and there are a few simple tricks worth knowing.
Use a long piece of inch-wide gauze bandage. Moisten the bandage in plain vaseline you have melted on the stove. Let the vaseline cool to about body temperature. With a small blunt stick poke an end of the vaseline gauze up the offending nostril. Continue to poke it as long as very gentle pressure puts more gauze into the nostril.
Be sure that all the gauze is in one piece and can all be pulled out together. Never, never, poke wads of cotton up the nose.
Let the pack stay in place for four or five hours, then remove it gently.
After the bleeding has stopped it's necessary for the injured spot to heal without forming a scab, because when a scab is pulled off the bleeding starts up all over again. If the inside of the nose is coated with vaseline the spot will heal without a scab. Use a cotton swab and coat the inside of the nostril with vaseline.

CARLSBAD, NEW MEXICO

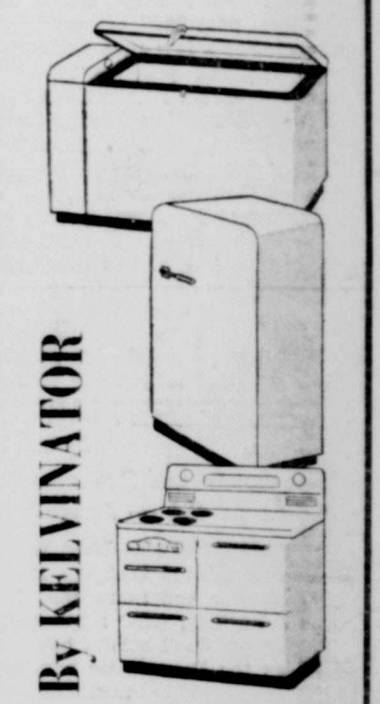

Rx TAKE an adequate electric service entrance that provides plenty of outlets and the right size wire for your present day appliances and those you plan in the future.
ADD an electric home freezer which is ready, at a moment's notice, to provide you with a snack or a full-course dinner. Then, too, the freezer makes it possible for you to buy "in season" when quality is high.
ADD an electric range for perfect cooking results. Electric ranges are fast, economical, convenient, accurate, cool, clean. In one word — Matchless.
ADD an electric washer and an electric clothes dryer. You are assured of perfect drying — better than the sun — when you dry clothes electrically.

Rx ADD an electric workshop for relaxation and recreation. A home like the Powers', because it is all-electric, is always spotlessly clean, and that means much more pleasure in a hobby room such as Mr. Powers has in his workshop.
ADD noiseless and attractive remote control lighting. The Powers' can turn on — or off — any light in the house from the master control in the bedroom. Safe, too.
RESULT — all the ease and comfort of modern, electric living. Mr. and Mrs. Powers both work at their Carlsbad pharmacy. They don't have too much time at home, but thanks to electric living, they enjoy every minute of it. And the safety of electric living appeals to them, especially as they are away so much. That's why they heat their water electrically, too.

Walt Disney To Preview Disneyland

HOLLYWOOD — Walt Disney, who has already proven that TV can be used to promote his other enterprises, will use the medium to its fullest extent when he previews his Disneyland Park.

Plans are now shaping up for a giant ABC network telecast from the Anaheim, Calif., pleasureland Sunday, July 17.

It will be the first time a Disney TV offering will be seen on a live basis. Walt will conduct his millions of fans on a tour of his dream project.

Final results are seven years away—one year to plan, two years to build and pave roads, two years regular testing and a year of special tests and a year for analysis.

Comparisons will be made between trucks carrying from 10,000 pounds to 50,000 pounds per axle, some single, some double axle. R. Bartelsmeyer says financing will come from federal funds, 42 state agencies and industry which will furnish vehicles, oil, fuel, tires and other equipment.

Data from these tests will be used in the project here.

Road Engineers Pound Highways In Truck Test

OTTOWA, Ill. — Highway engineers from 42 states hope to keep 48 big trucks going around and around for two years to get you better roads. Tests planned here will go on 20 hours a day on four big highway loops and will cost around 12 million dollars.

The American Assn of State Highway Officials hopes to learn how to build pavement, preserve old roads, put engineering facts behind truck weight laws and get data to use in building better trucks.

Sterilization after Caesarian Not Justified, Doctors Say

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE AP Science Reporter

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. — The practice of sterilizing women after they have had several babies by Caesarian birth is apparently not justified, two obstetricians said today.

Their study finds many women apparently can safely have a number of babies by this surgical method.

The old wives' concept is that a woman can have only one or two babies by Caesarian delivery.

Drs. Hugh B. McNally and Vincent de P. Fitzpatrick of the University of Maryland told the American Medical Assn. of a study of 130 women who had had three or more earlier Caesarian deliveries.

They said they were seeking evidence to confirm or refute the need for what they called the "common practice" of sterilizing women after a few such deliveries. They said the practice is based upon fear that a scar in the uterus womb will rupture during pregnancy after a few such operations.

Their 130 patients had had 494 previous Caesarian babies, and 44 earlier normal deliveries, and another 130 babies were born later during the time of the study.

More than 60 per cent of the women had had more than four Caesarian sections or deliveries. 30 had had five, nine had six, five had seven, one had nine, and one 10.

They said the number of pregnancies had begun to drop sharply after about three Caesarian births, for reasons not explained. Among possibilities were earlier sterilizations, natural sterility, or fear of repeat operations.

Their studies were based on women in 18 United States and two Irish hospitals where sterilization is forbidden unless diseased tissues can be proved.

In the 130 deliveries during the time of study, seven resulted in death of the unborn baby or fetus. But there had been 36 such deaths of the fetus in the 508 previous deliveries. Only one death of the fetus was attributed to rupture of the previous Caesarian scar. Only one woman in the group died, and that death was apparently due to causes not related to delivery, they said.

McNally and Fitzpatrick said a series of Caesarian births is not in itself a "justified indication" for sterilization, and that women can apparently have any number of babies by Caesarian birth so long as there is no diagnosable defective scar from a previous operation.

Fighter Testifies

PRIZE FIGHTER Harold Johnson is shown as he was sworn in to testify before the Pennsylvania State Athletic commission in Philadelphia, where he told about his fight with Julio Mederos May 6, in which Johnson collapsed at end of the second round. The fight resulted in a 90-day suspension of boxing in the state. Johnson testified that one of his visitors before the fight was Louis Sacaroma, who did time for narcotics conviction, but said Sacaroma was not the man who gave him the "good luck orange," in which there may have been a sleep producer.

Inside WASHINGTON MARCH OF EVENTS

Eisenhower and Stevenson Capital Politicians Predict Again in '56 — Forecast Return 'Match' Next Year

WASHINGTON—Most Washington politicians are more and more convinced that the 1956 presidential candidates again will be Eisenhower and Stevenson. While the President has not announced his intentions, GOP strategists are pinning their hopes on his candidacy and don't believe he'll let them down. Stevenson is also emerging as the Democratic nominee, with his close friends saying he is available.

With the withdrawal of Senators Richard Russell and Stuart Symington, Stevenson appears far and away the best bet for the Democratic nomination. Govs. Averell Harriman of New York and G. Mennen Williams of Michigan also have said they will support Stevenson thus eliminating two other top possibilities.

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee still remains in the picture, but it is doubtful that he could muster enough support to win the nomination if Stevenson goes after it.

VACCINE BATTLE—Republicans are quietly claiming an early victory in their battle with Senate Democratic leaders over need for federal stand-by controls on distribution of Salk polio vaccine. GOP insiders predict Congress will not override President Eisenhower's opposition to the controls which the administration regards as unnecessary. They base their forecast on two developments:

1—Democratic members of the Senate labor committee have given up completely on all proposals for rigid automatic regulations to allocate the vaccine on a priority basis.

2—As a result of an informal GOP boycott of the labor committee, action has been delayed on the standby legislation. Meanwhile, the American Medical association has called for public hearings on the issue.

The upshot, say the Republicans, is that the administration has gained enough time to win support of its stand and that labor committee Democrats will ease off in their demands for the legislation.

TAX CUTS FIRST—Administration sources say President Eisenhower didn't exactly mean it that way when he said "the first thing we must do is balance the budget," before cutting taxes.

They explain that a balanced budget is still the administration's No. 1 fiscal goal, but that taxes will be cut even before that goal is achieved. Tax reductions are almost certainly in sight in 1956, but not a balanced budget.

The administration policy, according to those who know, is this: federal expenses must be brought into line with federal income, but that is a long-range, long-haul job. To help bring it about, revenue should be increased as much as possible, not by boosting tax rates, but by assuring a booming economy so that more individuals and more firms will have higher income on which to pay taxes.

The way to do this, the administration feels, is to lower current tax rates, so people will spend more money, give the nation an economic shot in the arm and provide more taxable income.

Waldrep Agency Represents One of Big Three Companies

One member of the "Big Three" in insurance is represented right here in Artesia. It's the Cecil Waldrep Insurance Agency which represents the Equitable Life Assurance Society, one of the members of the nation's top three. The agency handles insurance

Central Valley Co-op Serving Large District

"It is a group of persons who combine their resources to satisfy a mutual need." That is the definition given by Paul L. Frost manager of the Central Valley Electric Co-op, for such an organization.

The co-op, located in Artesia, serves 1,100 members within a 65-mile radius, and there are 40 employees who spend much of their payroll in Artesia. The annual payroll is $175,000.

There have been many types of cooperatives. Farmers have combined to purchase machinery, feed and seed. Others have formed co-ops to simplify or otherwise enhance the marketing of farm products.

Central Electric was formed because farmers and ranchers in Eddy, Chavez Counties needed electricity and couldn't buy it at reasonable rates from available sources.

Since its first loan of $164,000 in 1937 to get started on the co-op has borrowed 16 times through REA. The largest one was a one-million dollar loan in 1951 for general expansion. At this time, the co-op owes REA about $3,800,000.

Manager Frost is president of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce.

GOLFERS HIT GREENS
 ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—About 300 golfers from four states are expected to compete next week for the title of the Southwest Golf Assn.

The match play tourney runs June 23-26. Practice rounds start June 18.

Dr. Edward Updegraff of Tucson the defending champion, heads the field of competitors. All 30 clubs belonging to the association in New Mexico, Texas, Arizona and California are expected to be represented.

The tourney will be held on the Albuquerque Country Club course.

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—Here it is with the baseball season more than a third gone and Clovis hasn't yet played in Abilene this season in the West Texas-New Mexico League.

The first time Clovis was scheduled in Abilene, May 10-11, both games were rained out. Same story last night.

They're going to try again tonight. A doubleheader is scheduled of all types, loans for homes and autos included.

The agency is located at 112 S. Fifth, and he had operated the business for more than two years. Available at his office under Equitable plans are programs to meet the coverage needs and budget requirements of everyone. Many citizens of Artesia and North Eddy County have taken advantage of the opportunities offered at Waldrep's and they will give you their endorsement.

That Waldrep's agency is one of the top in the Valley, however, is not at all amazing when you know the background. The man who runs it is one with the experience of a former bank official. Prior to going into business for himself, Waldrep was executive vice-president of Peoples State Bank in Artesia. He is widely known for his civic work as well as for his business activities. He formerly was president of the Chamber of Commerce.

More than all this, Waldrep believes in insurance and knows its advantages all too well.

I've seen it in action to many times not to be aware of its value," he said.

Waldrep writes life, fire, theft, auto liability and casualty, and home insurance for houses and contents. Also, plans are available for the purchase of almost any type car, tailored to meet the budget needs of the buyer.

More and More Patrons Going To Appointment

Business is continuing to improve at the Appointment Barber-shop as more and more Artesians are finding that it is more convenient to get their haircuts by making appointments in advance.

The price is the same, too, and that appeals to the thrifty but busy patrons.

The shop, located at 1011 Mann Avenue, just one block south of the junior high school, is operated by Virgil (Jake) Jakeway.

Appointments are made either in person or by telephoning SH 6-4194. Haircuts are one dollar each.

Although the shop is run on an get a haircut, but it might be necessary to make an appointment to get a haircut, but it might be necessary to make an appointment if one doesn't want to wait in line.

As Jakeway said:

"Anyone can stop by and if we can accommodate you as soon as you arrive we will be happy to do so. But, should you arrive a few minutes before a scheduled appointment, we just couldn't serve you until after the appointment, as you can easily understand."

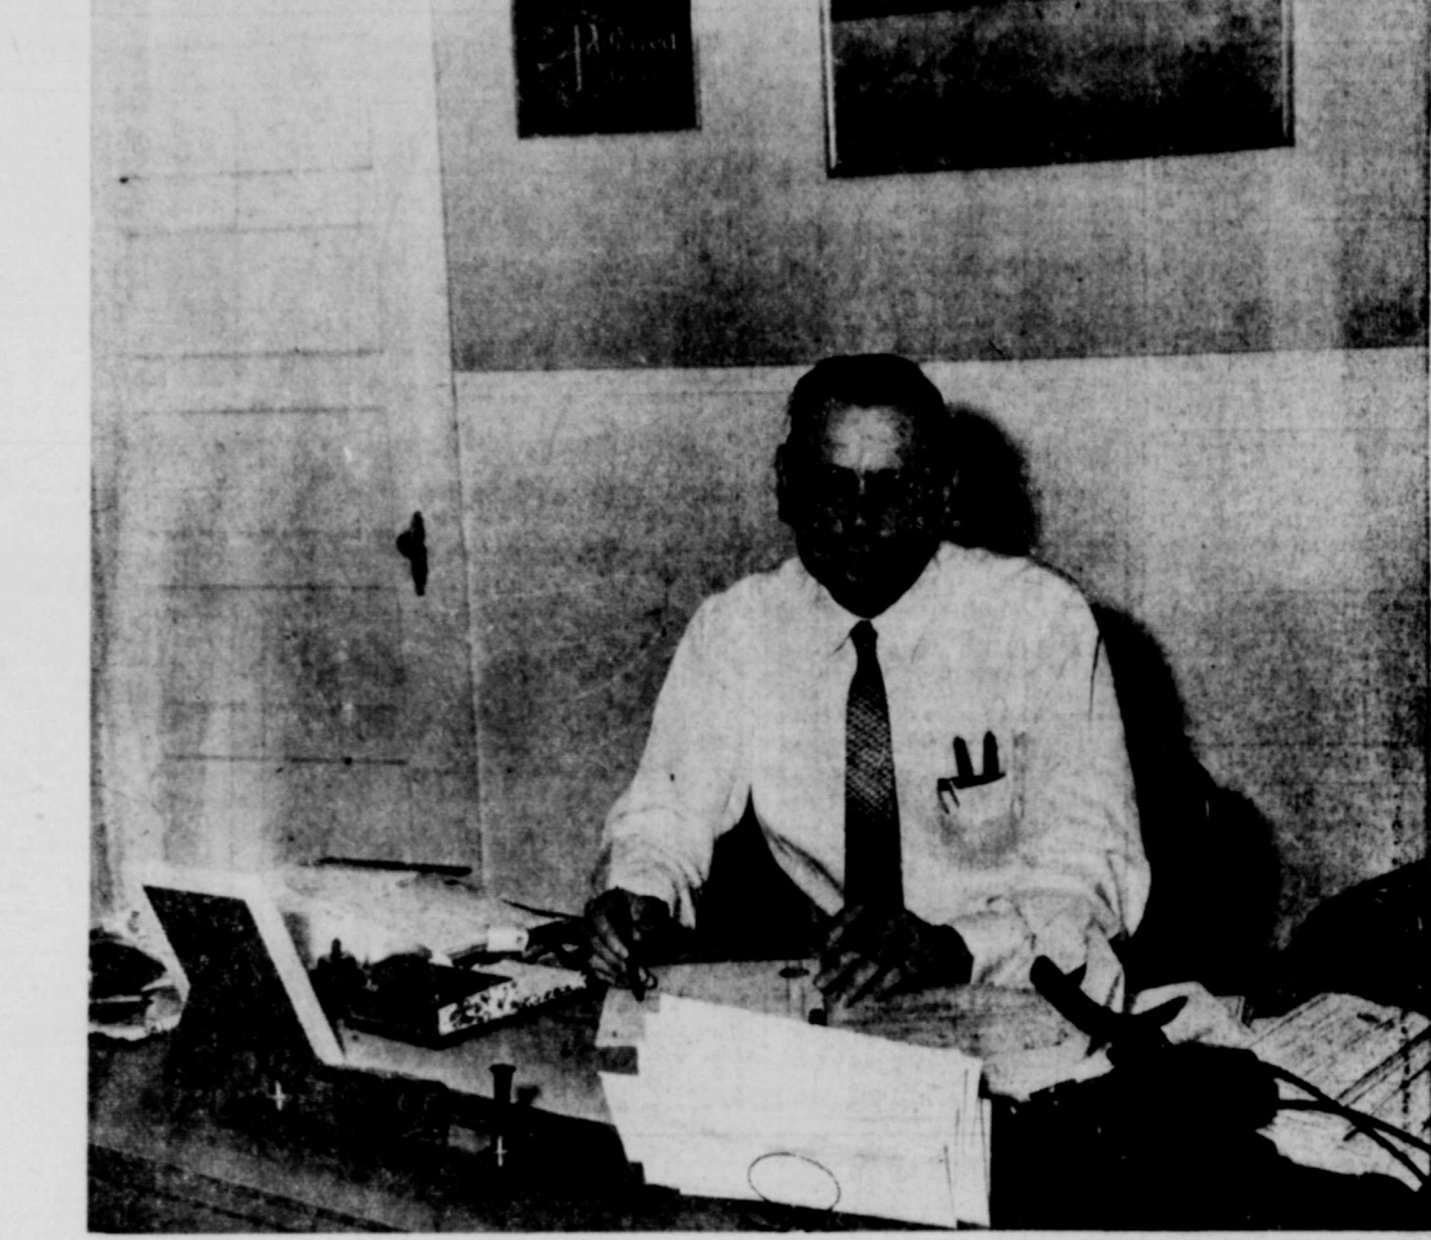

Jakeway has a Master Barber License.

Junior Proving He Cooks as Well as Dad

AP Newsfeatures
 Now that Dad has discovered the joys of the backyard barbecue, Junior is following in his footsteps and proving that good cooks need not be women.

This sidelight on the changing habits of the American population was turned up recently by Kay Stanley, Chicago toy maker, who was interested to note that a great number of orders for refill kits for her children's cake baking sets were coming from small boys.

Having started the miniature cake baking room for little girls, Miss Stanley inquired further into the subject. She came up with the information that not only small boys but also teen-agers are joining their dads in the current invasion of the kitchen.

It seems there is nothing so satisfying to the male ego as to do a chef's cap and apron and watch the amazement of the female members of the family when he produces a perfect steak—or cake.

Some modern schools even are offering cooking and baking courses nowadays to boys in the 7th, 8th and 9th grades.

Psychologists point out that it

Doss Garage Offers Big Range of Auto Repairs; Specializes in Wheel Work

The only thing in the auto repair line that the Doss Garage doesn't do is body repair work, but the business offers a full range of auto service and repair from routine hydraulic fluid reservoirs to overhauling the entire brake system.

Welding equipment in use at Doss is used in automotive repairs and to make items according to plans submitted by the customers.

But like all businesses, the good ones anyway, Doss has a speciality.

ATTEND GAME MEETING

is perfectly natural for small boys to want to imitate their mothers' activities in the kitchen, and now that fathers also are taking their turn at the cookstove, cooking has become a family activity.

All of which promises a group of wonderful husbands in the next generation.
