THE ARTESIAN WELL

By RICK RAPHAEL
We sat on the grass in Central Park Friday night and listened to the band concert and let all the cares and worries of this hectic-bustle modern day life be forgotten for an hour or so as we were carried back in nostalgia to America of a half century ago. Summer evening band concerts in the town park, along with the town meeting and Fourth of July oratory are part of the American scene and tradition. Problems of living were probably just as tough 50 years ago, but each new era looks back in envy upon an earlier day when the pace seemed a little more leisurely. Besides a touch of nostalgia, the band concert was corking good entertainment and a credit both to music director Justin Bradbury and the community.

In a neighboring column on this page today is a summary of Fourth of July celebration and living 50 years ago when the Advocate was just three-years old. The verbatim recounts from our yellowed files is the work of one of America's top newsmen, Frank King, now southwestern region general executive for the Associated Press, and former AP London bureau chief. Frank spent the day with us late this week and was so fascinated by the early editions of the Advocate that he sat down at a typewriter and extracted our Fourth of July tale of 50 years ago. Pretty high-priced reporting considering his position but he did it for the fun of it and an attempt to recapture the spirit of his early newspaper days on a small town publication.

Speaking of the Associated Press, it's a good feeling for us to realize that in this largest of all global news agencies, the Advocate is sole representative in Eddy County. When we sit down and "punch out" story on Artesia on the direct teletype AP circuits in the office, we're telling the whole world about our community and Eddy county.

Sidebar on horse racing in New Mexico:
An attempt to put a long distance phone call to Ruidoso Friday ended in failure late in the evening when phone operators quoted a four to five-hour delay via Roswell. All the circuits were jammed and the same situation was in evidence early Saturday morning. Seems that the race crowd has the circuits tied up over the big holiday weekend. And we'll bet they aren't honing grandmother back in Ashtabula to wish her a happy Fourth of July either. We'd make that bet across the board, as matter of fact.

History repeats itself — Fifty years ago a Kentucky gentleman visiting out here put this time of year dropped his wallet containing $10 a nearby irrigation canal. was found and returned to him by an Artesia fisherman. Friday, another Kentucky man, Ed Finley, who lives here, lost HIS wallet. It hasn't been found yet and anyway, it can't contain any cash.

Farm Laborers Needed For Work Around Artesia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The New Mexico State Employment Service reports that a surplus of farm workers exists at only one New Mexico farm center while six others are needing hands. Four other centers report supply and demand just about balanced. Portales says there is a slight surplus of workers but that onion harvesting in the next few days should absorb it. Artesia reports a need for general hands and irrigators. Silver City, Carlsbad and Hobbs, all report shortages of general hands. Las Cruces needs onion toppers. Albuquerque, Clovis, Gallup and Tucumcari each report supply and demand balanced.

Shouting Argentine Mobs Demand Return Of Bishop

BUENOS AIRES, July 2 (AP)—Parading Roman Catholics shouted demands today for the return of the exiled auxiliary archbishop of Buenos Aires, Msgr. Manuel Tato. Thousands strong, they had just attended the first Mass in Metropolitan Cathedral since the abortive air force-navy revolt of June 16, the day after the Peron government put Msgr. Tato on a plane for Rome. The faithful waved white handkerchiefs in the traditional Argentine gesture of support and yelled, "Return, Tato," time and again as they marched from the cathedral through the Plaza de Mayo to the Basílica de San Francisco. The basilica was one of the churches burned out by vandals the night of the rebellion. En route there and in the adjoining square, the Catholics also shouted, "Liberty," "Argentina Catholic" and "Christ the King." They sang the Argentine national anthem. Many of the faithful later moved on to other damaged churches. Their orderly column stopped traffic, but police watched without interfering. At San Nicholas church, another of those burned and looted, they again waved white handkerchiefs.

Walls will be light and medium green and the ceilings will be done in white, she said.

New Mexico On Display In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, July 2 (AP)—This old city of brotherly love will see the most spectacular display of New Mexico products in its history next week. Hampton Martin of Carlsbad has made arrangements to ship eight tons of New Mexico natural products to be seen—and most of them given away—to an expected 50,000 delegates to the annual Elks convention. The New Mexico Elks have rented the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel for the display. It will be open from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. daily July 10 through July 13. Accompanying the New Mexico delegation here will be seven members of the Carlsbad Elks Lodge degree team, the state champions. The seven members of the team will be dressed for the grand parade and other events in typical cowboy costumes complete with wide sombreros and high-heeled boots. The rest of the delegation, scheduled to arrive in Philadelphia at midnight July 9, will be in Mexican costume signifying the Spanish-American heritage of their state. The delegation will be accompanied by a band of their state.

July 4th Was Big Affair For Artesia Half Century Ago

The Glorious Fourth... 1904 Style!!!
From the Advocate Files of Long Ago.
Artesians celebrated July 4 in a big way more than 50 years ago just as they are doing this weekend of 1955. The Artesia Advocate started publications on August 29, 1903, and thus did not report a July 4 celebration until the following year. Typical of the way Independence Day was observed was the detailed description in the Advocate of a big picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mart Fanning on Seven Rivers, about seven miles southwest of McMullen. Friends and neighbors gathered with well-filled baskets and dinner was served to about 300 people. A 40-foot table was abundantly arranged with pies, cakes, chicken, ham, beef, salads, pickles and fruit. "There was plenty for everyone and baskets full left over," the enthusiastic Advocate reporter of the day wrote in his account of the celebration. "The cakes need special mention, from the fact there were so many and they were so good. By actual count there were 55, all nice, large delicious ones, and more than 100 pies. The seven rivers mothers know how to prepare good dinners, it seems, and they surely deserve credit on this occasion. "A barrel of ice cold lemonade was under a shade tree, free for all to go and drink when they pleased. The young folks enjoyed dancing during the afternoon and evening and the table with plenty of eatables was left where they could help themselves as they wished. "It was a nice, pleasant, sociable affair and we vote thanks to Mr. Wilder who suggested that we ought to celebrate this way at least three or four times a year."

Crying Airman Denies Texas Murder Rap

GALVESTON, July 2 (AP)—Five Texas Rangers today returned Ellis Euclid Lathon, 26-year-old Air Force man, to Houston for further questioning in the slaying of three persons. Lathon, who was brought across the border from Mexico earlier in the day, signed a waiver of extradition. After Lathon was seized in Nogales, Mexico, officers quizzed him about the sensational triple slaying at Dickinson, Tex., a week ago. "I've never been in Dickinson," Lathon maintained throughout long questioning by Texas Rangers, police and FBI officers. Several times he broke down and cried.

Portales Plane Crash Victim Fights For Life

PORTALES (AP)—Vilah W. Kytte, 32-year-old ex-paratrooper is fighting for his life in a hospital here, his body broken and torn by the crash of a private plane. His father, an old time resident of the Rogers community, said that his son fought from Sicily to Bastogne with the famed 82nd airborne division, without so much as a scratch during World War II. He and his companion, 2nd Lt. John W. Vandenberg, an F-86 pilot from the Clovis air force base crashed into an alfalfa field in a privately-owned PT-22 Friday evening. Vandenberg, 23, of New York City, was killed instantly. His wife, who was waiting at the Portales municipal airport with their 7-week-old daughter and 2½ (Continued on page four.)

Those were busy days in Artesia, busy with politics, business, farm, ranch and other developments.

The first county convention held in New Mexico for the campaign of 1904 convened at the Courthouse at Carlsbad on the evening of July 2. A full roster of delegates, territorial, legislative and Congressional were named. Gayle Talbot of Artesia headed the new Central Committee. Resolutions adopted filled nearly two columns of the Advocate. "One of the prettiest of all the big artesian wells for which this part of the Pecos Valley is famous, is now doing business 24 hours out of the 24 in Mrs. Sallie Robert's addition to Artesia, one half block off west Main street. The well, nearly 900 feet deep, was drilled in ten days. The pressure of water is something terrific and rises in a six-inch column five feet above the casing. Its seething frothing spray is awe inspiring. The wide ditches leading away from it look like ravines after a series of spring rains. The well is only a few blocks from the business portion of town. One of the surest indications of the constant growth of Artesia in 1904. The Advocate reported, was that it was almost impossible to provide hotel accommodations for the visiting public. During the first part of the year, the D'Arcy Hotel, a two story house was built to help the other two hotels feed the visitors. Then the Hotel Artesia received a 12-room addition. About a month later the Hotel Gibson, a two-story structure, was built. The four hotels were not able to supply the demand, so J. C. Gage, proprietor of the Hotel Artesia, let a contract to J. T. Patrick for the erection of an (Continued on page four.)

Navy Continues Grim Search For Missing Airmen

TOKYO, Sunday, July 3 (AP)—Long-range B29 search planes, glaring searchlights and powerful illumination rockets today were pressed into the spreading hunt for three Marine airmen missing in the Pacific. The dogged, costly search entered its seventh day today and a Navy spokesman said, "We will keep this up until hope is exhausted. We continue to hope." Just a week ago the vast search (Continued on page four.)

MUSIC DIRECTOR Justin Bradbury leads the summer concert band in Sousa's stirring Semper Fidelis March Friday night in the conclusion of the first of the summer under-the-stars band concerts held at Central Park. Hundreds of Artesians lounged on the grass or in their cars to enjoy the hour-long musical entertainment. The band is composed of adults and school musicians. (Advocate Staff Photo)

Mexican Cotton Growers Blockade Roads Leading To United States

MATAMOROS, Mexico, July 2 (AP)—Mexican cotton growers today blocked their roadblocks but indicated they would go back up Monday if their delegation to Mexico City failed to get a reduction in the cotton export tax.

Soldiers were posted by the Army on the border town, located across the Rio Grande from Brownsville, Tex., late yesterday after cotton farmers blocked all main highways by parking their trucks and other vehicles across the roadways. They allowed American tourists to go through but stopped all commercial traffic. There was no violence.

The farmers are protesting a 22.55 per cent export tax on cotton which the Mexican government has levied. A committee representing the Mexican Cotton Assn. of Matamoros is now in Mexico City urging the federal government to lower the tax.

Alfonso Pacheco, president of the Mexican Cotton Growers Assn. at Matamoros, said today the roadblocks had been terminated for the present at least while the growers awaited the results of the Mexico City meeting and so that they would not interfere with tomorrow's national elections.

He said, however, that he understood the cotton growers planned to resume their blockade Monday if any satisfactory agreement had not been reached in Mexico City.

Culver Gidden, American consul here, said the farmers met in Matamoros Plaza yesterday before starting the blockade. He said they want a lower export duty on cotton which is now about 5 per cent higher than similar duties on the Mexican, Baja California, area cotton.

"Growers around Matamoros don't know what to do with their cotton," Gidden said. "Cotton picking has been going on for a couple of weeks."

Denver, July 2 (AP)—All was quiet today on the strike front in the nation's copper mining and smelting industry.

Picketing was reported orderly at plants of three large companies struck yesterday by the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (IUMS), seeking higher wages and other benefits.

No violence was reported.

The companies are the American Smelting Refining Co., Kennecott Copper Corp. and the Phelps-Dodge Copper Corp. They and the Anaconda Co. from "the big four" of America's copper producing industry.

From 50,000 to 60,000 members of the Mine-Mill union work at the four companies.

So far no strike has been called against Anaconda. William G. Hossie, federal conciliator at Butte, Mont., said company-union negotiations are in a state of "suspended animation."

Because of the three-day holiday weekend, it seemed likely no progress in negotiations could be expected before Tuesday.

"We believed earlier, when negotiations were still in progress, that there were some real prospects of settlement," a union official said at Denver headquarters.

"But the fact that bargaining sessions have been recessed at Butte, Miami, Ariz., and Salt Lake City punctured that idea."

URANIUM TROUBLE

CARRIZOZO, N. M. (AP)—Uranium prospectors are getting in the hair of at least one oldtimer here.

He recently wrote the Lincoln County News he had paid taxes on his homestead for more than 30 years. "Received patent from the U.S. government in 1921. There was no demand for this land at that time. I fenced the land and built tanks for stock water. Now the uranium hunters have taken my place over, bulldozed holes all over the place and spooked the cattle away from water tanks. Just what can the poor homesteader expect from good old Uncle Sam?"

(Modern homesteaders acquire only surface rights to their land).

Pedro Osorio of Carlsbad has scored the most runs, with 81, while Gholson leads in triples with 11, and in runs batted in with 81.

Dean Franks of Roswell leads the pitchers in victories with 14, while Art Dicesare of Big Spring, who has an 8-7 record, tops in strikeouts with 108.

State Mines Have Top Accident-free Record in History

ALBUQUERQUE, July 2 (AP)—State Mining Inspector John Garcia said today New Mexico mines enjoyed their best year in history accident-wise.

He said there were no lives lost in actual mining operations during the fiscal year ending June 30th.

Two fatalities were charged to milling and processing, he said. One of these occurred at a manganese mill south of Socorro and the other at a rock crusher 22 miles southeast of Belen.

"This is indeed a wonderful record considering the fact that New Mexico ranks 12th in mineral production in the nation and the fact that 8,200 persons are directly employed in mines," Garcia said.

Tentative figures indicate a 10 per cent reduction in lost-time accidents over the previous year, he said.

He said seven died in accidents last year and that the 10-year average is five deaths per year.

As the final count was being tabulated Johnny Logan, Milwaukee shortstop, and Whitey Lockman, New York Giants left fielder, climbed into leading positions.

Logan forged ahead of Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs by 52,073 votes in the latest compilation and Lockman moved in front of Del Ennis of the Philadelphia Phils by 11,501 votes.

Chico Carrasquel of the Chicago White Sox, with strong support from the Latin-American Radio Corp. operating in Venezuela, Mexico and Cuba, retained his lead over Detroit shortstop Harvey Kuenn in the American League race. Chico now leads the Tigers' 24-year-old star by 15,424 votes.

Late heavy returns boosted the total vote in the poll to 5,649,473. The previous record high vote was 4,637,743, established in 1949.

Darrell Floyd, All-American basketball player at Furman University last season was named the athlete of the year in the Southern Conference.

America's happiest birthday!

This July Fourth, America celebrates its 179th birthday.

Independence Day, we call it, because on this day, in 1776, the thirteen colonies declared themselves a free nation of free men.

But should Americans single out any one particular day as Independence Day? In this great land of liberty, isn't every day Independence Day?

Every day we are free to speak our mind.

Every day we are free to read what we want to read.

Every day we are free to worship as we want to worship.

Every day we live in a land of peace and good will—a land that respects the God-given dignity of each human being.

For all our freedoms, for all our blessings, we believe that Americans should be devoutly grateful—not only on America's birthday, but 365 days a year.

NuMexers Hold Slim Lead With 13-7 Win Over Midland Indians

Herron Taps Out Inside Park Homer

The league-leading Artesia NuMexers held on to their slim grip at the top of the Lingham League as their steamrollered the Midland Indians 13 to 7 here last night.

Four Midland hurlers failed to get out to fire as the NuMexers took the lead in the bottom of the first inning, were edged by one on in the top of the fourth and then went on to pound the Indians for eight more runs in the remaining frames.

Bob Herron tapped out an inside-park homer in the eighth, the only one on for the lone hurler of the game.

Paul Dobkowski was missing for the first five innings of the game but he cut his hand in pre-game practice. After getting medical treatment he came into the game in the fifth.

In other league games, San Antonio unloaded with three home runs to down the Hobbs Sports 6-1. Marshall Epperson picked up his fourth win as he limited Hobbs to only four hits in the nine innings.

The Odessa Eagles outlasted the Hobbs Potashers through 11 innings to win 8-6—the first Odessa win over the Carlsbad Lancers in the last even outings.

The Eagles held a 6-1 edge going into the last of the ninth, but Carlsbad runs highlighted by which triple by Mario Cassio and home run by Pedro Osorio tied the contest and sent it into the extra frames.

Bob Weaver, coming on in relief of Darwin Chriseo in the 10th, was edged with the loss, and Dick Rumbach, relieving starter Aud Malone in the ninth, picked up a win.

At Big Spring Kossie Hill pitched and batted the Big Spring Lancers to a 3-5 victory over Roswell.

Hill set the Rockets down with 8 hits and connected safely three times himself.

The young righthander got off a shakey start when he yielded three-run homer to Stubby Greer the first inning. He was airtight after that, however.

et Pilot Jumps Near Belen After Plane Explosion

ALBUQUERQUE, July 2 (AP)—An Air Force pilot on a rocketing mission was forced to bail out of his F86D early today about 15 miles east of Belen. He was injured.

Force officials said 1st Lt. Old McKaig, Davis-Monthan Force Base, Tucson, Ariz., ejected an internal explosion in engine of his plane shortly after taking off from Kirtland at Albuquerque.

Kaig said the explosion took place directly over Belen. "I headed east and stayed with it long enough to get clear of Belen," he said. "Then I bailed out."

He landed about 15 miles north of Belen and four or five miles north of State Road 47 on mesa. He said the plane landed five miles north of him in foothills of the Manzano Moun-

Million-Dollar Gate Seen In Moore-Marciano Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—It should be an old-fashioned Fourth of July for Archie Moore with sky rockets, Roman candles, cannon crackers and pin wheels to celebrate the end of a mission—a heavyweight title shot.

The 38-year-old ring gypsy, who changes home towns with the seasons, finally has caught up with heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano. They will meet in a 15-round match, Tuesday Sept. 20 at New York's Yankee Stadium.

Million dollar gate talk is in the air. Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, estimates a $750,000 house with another $250,000 from theater network television. There will be no home television, but a radio broadcast probably will be worked out.

Both managers, Al Weill of Marciano and Charlie Johnston of Moore, believe the fight will draw "a million or more."

At $40 tops, the fight should

Champ Wins First Invitational Round

Bergman Dumps J. B. Marlow, Hobbs 5 And 4 To Move Into Second Round As Barry Upsets Sherwood Speegle

Defending champion Bob Bergman of Roswell Saturday afternoon came through the first round of the annual Artesia Invitational Golf Tourney without strain as he defeated J. B. Marlow of Hobbs 5 and 4.

The first round play over the hot 6,000-yard fairways at the Artesia Country Club went according to schedule with most favorites advancing to second round of the three-day match play tournament. Only upset came when E. C. Barry of Roswell dumped Sherwood Speegle of Hobbs 3 and 2.

In other championship flight play D. P. Teed, Hobbs, beat Bill McAfee Jr., Carlsbad one up. Ray Lewis of Roswell downed Jim Hoiles of Roswell 3 and 2.

M. C. Scott, Lovington, topped Kirk Newman, Roswell one up in 20 holes while Jim Miller of Artesia beat L. E. Daniels, Roswell, one up.

Bob Meiering of Roswell, defeated Charles Summers, Hobbs 3 and 2 while Ted Martinez, Artesia, beat Andy DeWees, Carlsbad, 6 and 5.

Meiering and Martinez are pegged to be the featured pairings in second round play Sunday.

And in the second round Champion Bob Bergman tangles with fellow Roswell golfer E. C. Barry. More than 80 golfers from southeastern New Mexico and four Texas cities are entered in the play.

Friday, M. C. Scott of Lovington took medalist honors in the qualifying rounds when he fired an on-the-button par 70.

Final rounds will be played here Monday afternoon.

Upsets Galore In Atom City Golf Tourney

LOS ALAMOS, July 2 (AP)—The heat-dizzy Atomic City Invitational Golf Tournament today saw upsets in half of the championship flight matches.

Only Walt Garcia, former Hill resident now of Albuquerque, came through about as expected. Garcia had it tough, too. He defeated Jim Gardner of Santa Fe, one up.

Tom Cornish of Albuquerque broke a long standing jinx by whipping defending champion Mutt Mitchell of Los Alamos, 3 and 2.

A darkhorse contender sprang into contention when Tom Reed, a young Denver shotmaker, trounced the hill's Ernie Rithe, 4 and 3.

Lowell Taylor of Denver defeated Charley Badsgard, a Los Alamos teenager, two up and Harry Bakr of Albuquerque, knocked out Mike Clancy of Los Alamos who tied Garcia Friday for low medalist with 72. Louis Ruffin Jr., of Albuquerque whipped Gregg Kelly, Farmington, one up and Jeff Goodwin, home town unknown, edged Henry Lanman of Santa Fe, one up in 19 holes. Paul Rachett of Los Alamos overcame Howard Erwin of Santa Fe, one up in the other championship match.

The sun-baked course is expected to take its toll again tomorrow when Cornish plays Goodwin. Garcia meets Ruffin, Bark takes on Taylor, and Rachett tangles with Reed.

SANTA FE, July 2 (AP)—The University of New Mexico figures it is going to get $115,000 from its intercollegiate athletic program this fiscal year.

The university estimates it will spend $185,000 for athletics, making a subsidy of $70,500 necessary.

Figures are from the 1955-56 operating budget and show that UNM will be spending $12,000 more this year for athletics.

A&M budgeted $134,000 for athletics. Highlands, $18,000; New Mexico Western, $31,962; Eastern, $47,400 and NMML, $46,650.

Subsidies needed to support an athletic program total $72,632 for A&M, $8,000 for Highlands, $25,012 for Western, $22,000 for Eastern and $32,650 from NMML.

Total estimated take from athletics for six New Mexico colleges this year is $233,350. Subsidies needed to carry out the programs figure out at an estimated $230,794 making athletics in the state a near half-million dollar operation.

It Has Made Us Great

THERE are those today contending that the constitution is outmoded and we should write another one. We have never been a party to that school and aren't now. We are rather firmly convinced that the present constitution, the bill of rights and the amendments to that constitution have made America the great nation it is today.

We appreciate fully that in some instances we have seemingly gotten rather far removed from the constitution. We admit at times even our courts including the United States Supreme court has handed down opinions we felt were contrary to the constitution. A good many outstanding constitutional attorneys believe the same thing.

But that perhaps is our fault as American citizens. We have not registered our complaints as loud and as long as we should.

We know we have laws passed by the Congress of the United States granting certain rights to government bureaus and government agencies that are in conflict with the constitution and yet the courts have ruled this is not true.

Everyone knows of more than one instance where civil rights as guaranteed by the constitution or bill of rights have been ignored or forgotten. And we have let those who have done this get away with it.

For instance immigration authorities feel they have a law which grants them the right to invade private property. Yet the constitution says his cannot be done without due process of law or without permission.

We have government agencies which can seize and do seize books and records—confiscates them so to speak—and yet the court has said they can do it although the constitution says it can't be done.

We have another government agency that says it can seize our funds and our money or can even serve a levy on an employer and seize the money of that employee without due process of law.

We are still rather firmly convinced the constitution means what it says when it clearly states this can't be done. And we believe that despite what the high court has said that a change in the membership in the high court can also bring about a change in their ruling.

We still believe we are great because of the constitution and that it only needs to be observed and to be followed not changed and we definitely don't think it is outmoded or that we need a new one.

Fire-Wrecked Highlands U. Takes Over Public Schools

LAS VEGAS, July 2 (AP)—President Thomas Donnelly of Highlands University said today empty public school quarters have provided a temporary solution to the problem caused by the fire Friday.

But he said special action will be necessary before September if the school is to be able to operate normally.

A fire Friday gutted Sprinzer Hall, the main classroom building at the school. It left the school with sharply reduced classroom space.

Summer school classes have been moved to a public school and the city high school nearby, he said.

"We are now working on some plan for next fall," he said.

The governors' office earlier today announced that the governor would meet with the school's board of regents Tuesday to consider the problem.

Mr. Donnelly explained that the building was insured for about $350,000. He said he didn't know whether that would adequately cover damages or not. He said that would depend largely on whether the old building could be repaired or would have to be razed and rebuilt.

He commented that the building, built in 1898, had burned once before the Friday fire.

"Whether or not the insurance covers the loss," he said, "we still have the problem of taking care of students this fall. An institution like this can't shut down for a year."

He said school officials have been considering stopgap measures over the weekend. He said they have talked about renting or buying residential areas near the school.

He explained that the campus is in the middle of town and that there is no space for temporary quarters on the campus itself.

Lauson him to Texas. Lauson's arrest yesterday climaxed a six-day, nationwide hunt for a "big-nosed" husky airman with a crew cut."

An airman wearing a single chevron airman third class was seen with Mrs. Ruby McPherson in a Dickinson cafe on the night of June 22. She introduced him as "Don Ellis."

Mrs. McPherson, 42, her son, George 12, and her mother, Mrs. Zola Norman, 62, were fatally shot in their home near Dickinson the morning of June 23.

When Lauson was arrested yesterday he was driving a maroon and cream automobile that officers say was registered to Mrs. McPherson.

Lauson said the car belonged to his father in Altus, Ark. Nogales police found a 22 caliber pistol and two rings when they searched the car Lauson was driving.

Earlier this week Texas Ranger Capt. Hardy Purvis recovered a bullet from one of the bodies. The bullet was badly smashed but Purvis said he believed it was fired from a 22 caliber rifle.

Rings Missing
Two rings were missing from the fingers of Mrs. McPherson when he body was found.

Lauson's father said he thought his son was still at Robbins Air Force Base, Ga. "I got a letter from him three weeks ago," he said.

The senior Lauson, a retired school teacher, said his son "has always been considered a model child and young man."

"He's never been in any trouble, but he has been handicapped since birth," the father said. He explained that the son's "nervous system was damaged at birth."

The father said the son had "occasional mental blackouts," but had never been violent "during or after the blackouts and he has never been in any kind of trouble."

Lauson was hurried across the border this morning in handcuffs after the Mexican government ruled him an undesirable and unwanted alien.

Insulted Mexican
Earlier in a Mexican jail cell Lauson told editor Alvin Sisk of The Nogales Ariz. Herald that he made a remark that Mexican officers interpreted to be "insulting to the nation."

He said he came to Nogales after visiting a friend in Phoenix. The friend told officers he had been in Texas on a visit and had not seen Lauson since February.

Mexican officers said they arrested Lauson while he was trying to steal the Ford sedan in the red light district of Nogales. They said he was jailed when he got "abusive."

year-old son, saw the plane crash. Kyte, a welder in Portales had been spending his spare time in the municipal airport. He was considering buying the plane and Vandebrook was "checking him out" in it, according to Mrs. Vandebrook. Kyte is also married, and has three daughters, age 2, 4, and 6.

The doctor attending Kyte terms his condition "extremely critical" and reports his injuries include fractures of the skull, jaw, ribs, and of both arms and legs. Three hundred stitches were taken to close severe lacerations of the scalp, face and arms.

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the Safety Council, said the traffic toll was running about 20 per cent ahead of that for last year's Fourth of July holiday.

"If this rate continues," Dearborn said, "The toll will be the highest for a three-day Fourth of July holiday in history. We urge every driver to double his alertness and caution."

The Safety Council's predicted toll was higher than the 1954 Fourth highway toll. Because of shifting factors experts do not attempt to fix a norm for traffic deaths over a given period.

However, an Associated Press survey for a nonholiday weekend period of 78 hours June 17-20 this year showed a nationwide traffic toll of 342. The over-all accident toll for the test period was 515, including 111 drownings.

Hardin Cruicher found a pocketbook containing a ten dollar bill floating in an irrigation ditch Monday. Gentleman, like, he instituted a search for the owner and found him in the person of Mr. Cox, a new comer from Kentucky. It is not unusual to find money in irrigation ditches in New Mexico.

J. P. Dyer got another piece of land Tuesday. He was a pioneer in Artesia and knows the value of valley dirt.

Main street has a very certified appearance since the big telephone poles were placed in position. We are informed that an electric light system will be put in immediately. Things are coming so fast its hard to keep up.

While the host of Democracy were uniting their ballots Saturday in the name of good government, the longed-for showers of rain came. The prayers of the righteous availeth much and a congregation of Democrats always bring the blessings of providence.

Editorial in the colorful style of 1904:

A (train) coach of Artesia folks went to Hagerman Monday to help keep the Fourth unholy and to absorb any of the star-spangled patriotism that might be lying around loose. They subdued the mild-eyed wooden benches to the tune of "Mary was a Lady," drank religious lemonade with commendable patriotism, listened to Sockless Jerry expound the latest brand of populist bombast, and in the afternoon witnessed the tragic event on the diamond when Hagerman and Dexter demonstrated to their mutual satisfaction that they couldn't play ball. Considering the overwhelming crowd present our little neighbor in the bend of the river did very well. The Artesia crowd had a good warm time and were refreshed after a rest from the rush of business and a day spent among rural shades."

The Kingdoms of Israel and Judah ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher
 Scripture—Jeremiah 22: 36; II Kings 23:31-24:7.

Jeremiah called Baruch, son of Neriah, and told him to write down his words of warning to the king so that he would hear of all the evil the Lord would bring upon him and his people.
 Jeremiah then directed Baruch to take the scroll and read it to the people on the "fasting day" and to all Judah, so that they might understand and avoid the evil that would come upon them.
 To Jeremiah the prophet came the word of the Lord commanding him to go down to the king of Judah, warning him to turn from his evil ways and he would prosper. Jeremiah did so.
 The king ordered the scroll brought before him and his princes. After hearing a part of the words of Jeremiah, the king cut the scroll and cast it into the hearth fire and burned it.
 MEMORY VERSE—Jeremiah 22:13.

The Prophet of Judah's Decline
 JEREMIAH WAS A PROPHET WHO WOULD NOT BE SILENCED

Scripture—Jeremiah 22: 36; II Kings 23:31; 24:7.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
 THE PROPHET Jeremiah is called the "prophet of doom." He was a courageous man who had been told by the Lord what would happen to his people if they did not turn from their evil ways, and return to God who had blessed them in the past.
 In spite of persecution, Jeremiah persisted in warning the king of Judah, Jehoiakim, and all the people of the fall of Judah and desolation that would come if they persisted in their evil ways. Some were frightened, but the king would not be warned, and so Judah was conquered at last by Nebuchadnezzar and Jerusalem destroyed.
 It has been suggested that the younger classes be introduced to the lesson by an example from our modern day. If a person parks his automobile next to a fire hydrant or other place that is forbidden by law, he will be given a ticket and must appear in court, and if guilty he is fined. It is no use ignoring the ticket or tearing it up, or the fine will be heavier and must be paid.
 The Lord spoke to Jeremiah and told him to go to the king and say: "Hear the word of the Lord, O king of Judah, that sit-

Legal Battle On Over Right To Lewis And Clark Notes

By GRAHAM BERRY
 LOS ANGELES (AP)—Who owns the priceless "lost" field notes of the Lewis and Clark expedition? The notes, penned by Capt. William Clark and covering the first 17 months of the historic expedition into the Western wilderness, turned up three years ago in an attic in St. Paul, Minn. No one even knew they existed.
 The writing, of incalculable historical value, detailed the activities of the pioneers while camped at the mouth of the Missouri River, preparing for their journey into the Pacific Northwest.
 The notes cover the period from December, 1803 to April, 1805.
 Persons who found the faded papers in an old desk were so surprised that they turned them over to the Minnesota Historical Society to determine their authenticity.
 The desk belonged to Gen. John Henry Hammond, who died 65 years ago. It was in the attic of the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sophia V. H. Foster who died in 1952.
 Authentication of the notes touched off a series of legal moves to establish their ownership. Heirs to the Hammond estate, the Minnesota Historical Society and Uncle Sam all claimed ownership.
 Justin Turner, a noted West Los Angeles collector and attorney for the American Manuscript Society, said his society intends to file a new action within a week opposing the government's claim.
 Gen. Hammond's heirs, represented by the First Trust Co. of St. Paul, contend they own the notes because they have been in the possession of the family for years. It is not known how the general acquired them.
 The historical society claims it was given the notes by one of the heirs.
 After the trust company sued the historical society for the papers in September, 1953, the federal government filed an intervening petition to contest the ownership.
 Asst. U. S. Atty. Gen. J. Lee Rankin produced a letter by Pres. Thomas Jefferson, written in 1803, which instructed Capt. Clark: "Your observations are to be taken with great pains and accuracy." The letter continued to say that several copies of notes should be made, preferably on birch leaf because it is "less liable to injury from damp than common paper."
 Jefferson also instructed Clark: "At the end of the expedition repair yourself with your papers to the seat of government."
 Rankin asserted the notes always belonged to the government and that the Jefferson letters show they were made specifically under instructions of the president.
 Turner said the manuscript society, representing 800 large libraries and collectors, also is filing an intervening petition contending the government has no more right to the Clark papers than to any other of thousands of historic documents which have been in private hands for years.
 He declared Clark's field notes of later phases of the three-year expedition have been in the hands of the American Philosophical Society in Philadelphia since the early 1800s and have never been claimed by the government.

85 Powder Puff Women Air Race Entries Take Off

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 2 (AP)—Eighty-five of the nation's top women pilots, depayed five hours because of bad weather, finally took off today in the ninth annual Powder Puff Derby.
 Dottie Sanders and Dottie Davis, both of San Diego, Calif., pulled their single-engine Cessna into the overcast sky to lead the 47 propeller-driven planes on the first leg of the 2,800-mile trip to Springfield, Mass.
 The gals fly only during daylight hours and since both single and twin-engine planes are in the race, a handicap system has been set up to determine the winner. All planes must finish by 5 p.m., July 6.
 The women will follow a route through Blythe, Calif., Phoenix, and Tucson, Ariz., El Paso, Midland and Wichita Falls, Tex., Tulsa, Okla., Springfield and St. Louis, Mo., Terre Haute, Ind., Dayton, Ohio, Wheeling, W. Va., and Reading, Pa.
 This is the longest of the derbies. Last minute cancellations today cut the field from 54 planes. The first took off at 2:30 p.m. PDT. Originally they were to leave at 9 a.m. but an overcast at South California's San Geronio Park caused the delay.

 The man who escaped from the jail was James Howard, alias Willard M. Farris.
 Earlier this week, a car belonging to Rich Carter of Carlsbad, in which Howard was believed to have made his escape, was located in Brownfield Texas.

Bear Joins Family Picnic in Sandias

ALBUQUERQUE, July 2 (AP)—An Albuquerque family reported that a medium-sized black bear joined their picnic in the Sandia Mountains Friday.
 Mr. and Mrs. Darwin C. Grooms said a bear came out of the woods where they were picnicking near Placitas. It attempted to climb in the trunk of the car, they said, then ran off when they approached.
 Cibola National Forest officials said it has been years since a bear was seen in that area.

Average Medicine Chest Looks Like Warehouse For Drug Store Overflow

By HAL BOYLE
 NEW YORK (AP)—Most new houses being built today have a recreation room. What they really need is a medicine room.
 Every home today is a small drugstore.
 It overflows with scores of tubes and bottles and jars of medications, lotions and cosmetics which the average human being now feels he needs to keep himself physically fit and socially acceptable.
 The American people never have been more healthy — and never have taken more medicine. Some people now get their main exercise simply by the muscular effort expended in taking the medicines to keep themselves feeling well — or applying the toiletry aids which they hope will make them look less creepy.
 A man's social status today is judged as much by the diseases he boasts as by his bank account. You never can be sure how far he really has risen into his bathroom medicine cabinet.
 The trouble is that no medicine cabinet is large enough any longer to hold the jumbled drug hoards of a civilized family.
 I can remember as a boy when the old-fashioned small bathroom medicine cabinet in our home was quite ample. It held a par of vaseline, a tube of toothpaste, a box of baking soda, a razor, a cake of shaving soap, a bottle of iodine, a package of absorbent cotton, a can of talcum, a roll of gauze and some adhesive tape. Oh, yes, and some boric acid solution and a small tin of aspirin tablets.
 This small stock served the health needs of a family of seven. It enabled one to bandage a cut or ease a headache.
 But in those simple days, when you got your vitamins from groceries instead of from a druggist, health was taken as a matter of fact. It hadn't become either a

TV Showing Of Comic Bull Fight Hailed

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This week NBC-TV ventured into the "wide wide world" and so did Mike Todd. The flamboyant producer took a couple of plane-loads of observers to Tijuana, Baja California to watch the Mexican portion of the international spectacular. No, Todd has no connection with NBC.
 But he is making a picture of Jules Verne's "Around the World in 80 days," and one of his stars is Cantinflas, the Mexican idol. NBC showed Cantinflas fighting the bull on the TV show. Now you get the picture.
 Cantinflas put on a whale of a show. Todd did all right, too. This was no phony match of man and bull. The Mexican comic actually got into the ring with the animal. Some scoffers remarked that it was a small bull. Okay, it was small. But the only way most observers would have wanted to meet it would be well-done and swimming in gravy.
 Wearing long drawers, a shabby piece of cloth purported to be a vest and pants drooping on his hips, Cantinflas performed amazing stunts before the bull. While the bull gazed defiantly, waiting to charge, the comic seated himself and stared it down.
 "Mambo!" shouted the cheering crowd.
 Cantinflas signaled the band, which broke into music. He then tossed away his cape and performed a mambo before the bull. He even turned his back on it as he danced.
 That was when Todd performed. The producer screamed "Don't— you crazy character!" or words to that effect and kicked the grandstand savagely.
 Despite Todd's pleas, Cantinflas continued his daredevil stunts. At one point he lay down right in front of the bull. When the tormented animal decided to charge, Cantinflas showed great agility in making an escape.
 After the TV cameras were turned off, he made the kill-switch things are unsuitable for tender eyes above the border. The bull refused to give up. Cantinflas walked right up and held a shot under its nose. It reportedly contained chloroform. The comic sat down inches away when the bull finally collapsed.

Hazel Flying Service Handles Everything In Aviation Business

"When we fly higher than 100 feet off the ground," pilot Franke Dupre said jokingly, "we feel like we need oxygen for all that high altitude."

That "on the deck" philosophy seems to crystallize the idea of crop spraying methods used by the highly-skilled air crew of Artesia's own Hazel Flying Service.

Located at the municipal airport two miles west of the city, Sug and Burle Hazel first established their air operations here in Artesia 11 years ago. That was in 1944, and the following year the Hazel Flying Service moved out to its present location at municipal airport.

While crop spray and dusting is one of the biggest operations of the organization, there are many other activities centered around the airport which are controlled and handled by Hazel Flying Service.

Today Sug and Burle own and operate more than a dozen planes supplying the crop dusting and spraying service, an air ambulance service, are busy with a charter plane operation to all points in the West and Southwest, and find time to keep a flying school going which is accredited under the GI training program as well as for civilian non-veterans.

All of these manifest operations are competently carried out by the crew of six persons which make up Hazel Flying Service.

Heading the list, of course, is Sug, owner and chief pilot for the service, and his pretty wife, Burle, who is office manager and chief dispatcher.

Three other pilots, M. H. Peters, Dupre, and J. M. Lee, keep Hazel planes in the air from "kin to kain't" flying the souped-up and stripped-down spraying and dusting Cubs inches above the greenery on almost every farm and ranch in this part of the state.

In addition, all three are qualified pilot instructors and take turns in the student training program of which Peters is pilot in charge.

In addition to their flying duties Lee and Dupre double up the former as shop foreman in charge of airplane maintenance and overhaul, and the latter as charter pilot.

Completing the list of Hazel personnel is Mario Vasquez, field airplane service man, and Russell Fogerson, entomologist for OK Tex Chemicals.

Included in the many operations at the airport are also pipe line flying patrols, dealer sales—Hazel is authorized agent for Piper Aircraft—and, believe it or not, eagle and coyote hunting by plane.

Two fast Cub Tri-Pacers stand ready for instant use at all times for either charter or ambulance service and carry four passengers.

The Hazels lease the entire airport from the city and operate it in their own name. For visiting pilots, there is free tie-down service, and complete service and mechanical facilities.

The airport was originally constructed by the government and used during World War II as an auxiliary B-17, B-24, and later, B-29 field. Its 7000-foot runways of heavy construction still are capable of handling the largest military or commercial aircraft.

And the runways are in perfect shape today since the city repairs minor cracks and the type of traffic using them is light in weight.

The center of flying activities for northern Eddy County, Hazel Flying Service offices are the headquarters each weekend for Artesia air-minded people and visiting pilots. And Sug cordially invites everyone to drop around and talk flying with the boys.

If you want flying on a small scale, the modern office building and dispatch center is also headquarters for model airplane supplies for everything from non-flying scale models to the largest gas-powered contest models.

BARRELS OF INSECTICIDES are rolled out to waiting spray ships in picture at upper left and when the planes are ready to go, owner and chief pilot Sug Hazel (picture above) chalks out the field areas for each of the three pilots. Mrs. Burle Hazel (sitting) listens as Sug outlines the days work to pilots (left to right) Peters, Dupre and Lee. The three low-flying boys pour the last of the insecticide into Peters plane (picture at right) just before takeoff from Artesia municipal airport.

DOWN ON THE DECK three of the crop spraying Cubs of Hazel Flying Service zoom at the photographer, spray booms at ready, in the same type of maneuver they use in spraying agricultural fields throughout the area. However, formation flying as shown in the picture above, is not included in the spraying and dusting service. Piloting the three fast little ships are Hazel dusters, M. H. Peters, Frank Dupre, and J. M. Lee.

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT functions of Hazel Flying Service is this emergency ambulance operation being demonstrated at left by Dupre and Peters with "patient" Mario Vasquez on the stretcher. The contour stretcher easily fits through the door of the big Cub Pacer in the background which is also used for charter service and carries four passengers.

Young Moderns

By VIVIAN BROWN

Wedding bells still chime merrily for the under-19 group while parents quake at the thought of darling daughters meeting new responsibility.

Marriage is a serious proposition as even golden anniversary celebrants will admit. But happiness may be had by an intelligent young married couple.

The prescription is simple. . . . Respect for your spouse is the first ingredient necessary to wedded bliss. That means quarrels belong in the home, if at all. Ditto criticism, and if it is given it should be constructive. No belittling of your man to others with in or without his presence.

No one is perfect—good to remember when you become intolerant of one of your help mate's faults. If you can't resist the impulse to let off steam, meditate for just one moment on one of your own faults that might irritate him before you sputter off.

Encourage him to family devotion instead of weaning him away from his sisters, brothers or even mother and father. Possessiveness can ruin a marriage.

If he enjoys a religion, different from yours, respect his point of view, rather than trying to get him to conform to yours.

Feed him to the best of your ability. Learn how to cook interesting. Anybody who can read a cookbook should be able to concoct well-balanced tasty meals without too much hysterics.

Men are not necessarily neat (because their mothers picked up after them as children) so don't heckle him because he leaves his shoes in the living room occasionally.

Keep your home clean, neat and cheerful. It is as stiff looking as a window display in a furniture store, how can your man be comfortable?

Be a good hostess. Even a blase man likes to brag that his wife is a good cook and homemaker. Encourage him to bring his friends and business associates to the home.

Your good appearance is more important in holding your man than getting him in the first place. Make a regular routine of your beauty (without overdoing it) and no man should object to the time you spend at it.

Be interested in his work—whatever it is. Help him to surmount obstacles so that he might get ahead in whatever he wants to do.

When things go wrong offer sympathetic understanding instead of siding with his critics. Jealousy can't exist in a happy home. Be mature and curb your tendency to be suspicious of his moving glance or of someone else's in his direction.

Cooperate on money problems. Keep within the budget you've set and help him to buy a new suit or shoes when he needs them even if you must scrimp.

Be selfless. You'll find it one of the keys to happiness, married or not—a better example to set for a selfish mate than heckling him because of neglect, unconsiderateness, unthoughtfulness.

Don't be one of those wives who sits waiting to see if her man is going to forget a birthday or anniversary. Rather, give a gentle hint a couple of days before, and save yourself the despair. You'll never know then whether he might have forgotten it and you can give him the benefits of the doubt.

A good memory never has been an indication of greater love anyway. Some people are more prone to sentimental gestures than others—that's all.

Davidson - Jordan Rites Held In Vegas Church

On Saturday afternoon, June 25, at Las Vegas, Miss Nancy Lee Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Davidson, Las Vegas, was united in marriage to Jack Gerald Jordan, son of Mrs. Jane Jordan of Artesia.

The wedding was performed in the sanctuary of the First Presbyterian church, with the Rev. John Mancini, pastor, officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

The ceremony was held before an altar banked with tall baskets of pink and white gladioli and pastel yellow supreme daisies and tall candelabrum. Mrs. William Fisher played traditional wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white waltz length nylon tulle gown, designed with lace applique on the bodice and skirt. A lace bolero jacket was worn over the strapless bodice. Her short veil of bridal illusion was held in place by a Queen Anne bonnet trimmed with double rows of seed pearls. She carried a Glamella bouquet with showers of stephanotis on her Rainbow Bible.

Nina Lou Davidson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a street length dress of blue-green cotton and silk, designed with a long waist and full skirt. She wore a white flowered hat and white accessories. She carried a cascade bouquet of Peruvian lilies.

Kirk Jordan, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers included Phil Cravens, Bob and Dan Hannifin, Larry Jordan, another brother of the bridegroom, lit the candles.

Mrs. Davidson chose lavender and white nylon with white accessories, for her daughter's wedding. She had a gardenia corsage centered in frenched white carnations.

Mrs. Jordan, mother of the bridegroom wore a gray and white afternoon dress with white accessories. She wore a gardenia and frenched carnation corsage similar to that of the bride's mother.

A reception for 150 was held in the Davidson home immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was laid with a lace cloth, made by the bride's grandmother. It was effectively placed over yellow. The table was centered with large candelabra with white tapers and arrangements of yellow roses and columbine in a low bowl.

The all-white five-tiered cake, decorated with white rosebuds and silver, rested on a large glass plate. It was topped with a bouquet of white snapdragons. Mrs. Louis Rudolph served the cake. Mrs. Gaynor Stafford and Miss Calliope Chamis presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Phillip Cravens was in charge of the guest book.

For going away, the bride wore a white linen dress with a fitted rose redingote. Her accessories were white, with her corsage from the center of her bridal bouquet.

The bride, a graduate of the Las Vegas high school, has completed her junior year at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. She is a member of Chi Omega sorority. In high school she was active in the Honor Society, Pep Club, Press club, Annual staff, Commerce club, Student Council and the G. A. A.

The bridegroom attended Artesia High school and graduated from the university of New Mexico in 1953, with a major in geology. He has just completed two years of army service, receiving his discharge June 15 at Fort Sill, Okla. He served as an instructor in the survey school at Fort Sill.

Following a wedding trip to Tres Ritos, the couple will be at home at 414 Ridge Place, N. E. Albuquerque.

Among the out-of-town guests present for the wedding were Mrs. Jane Jordan, and sons, Larry and Kirk, of Artesia, mother and brothers of the bridegroom.

Budget Fur Popular On College Campus

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor

Something new has been added to the U. S. Campus scene.

It is the college fur coat, scheduled to show up in even greater numbers this fall, as manufacturers concentrate on new young styles in furs with budget price tags.

There's a wide variety of pelts and styles available to the college girl this year, at prices ranging from about $125 to $500. Included are such furs as mouton, muskrat, mole, sheared raccoon, dyed squirrel, French rabbit.

Processes and styling have been so much improved that even the inexpensive mouton now is so supple and lightweight that it could pass for beaver at 50 paces.

The college furs are shown in all lengths, from boleros to full-length greatcoats. New styling details include low-placed back belts, low pockets, hip cuffs or tabs, a slimmer silhouette, accent on hip-hugging jackets, many big collars and many versions of the A line.

Little furs carry big importance this season. There are lots of shorter stoles and cape stoles.

Not strictly new this season, as shown by the associated Fur Manufacturers, is the campus fashion of fur cardigans or vests dyed to match a dress or skirt. Newest colors are charcoal gray, caramel and rosy beige and high shades such as burgundy, cardinal red, bottle green.

Margaret Belle Henderson Is Bride Of Joe H. Giles

Miss Margaret Belle Henderson became the bride of Joe Hugh Giles, at 12:00 noon Sunday, June 26, in the First Baptist Church, Artesia. The Rev. S. M. Morgan officiated at the double ring ceremony before a floral arrangement of White Gladioli, Shasta Daisies and fern.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Henderson, Artesia, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Giles, Carlsbad, who were present for the occasion.

Miss Beverly Boteler presented a prelude of organ music and Miss Guy Smith, accompanied Jane Ann Giles, sister of the groom, who sang "Because." Patricia Clark sang a dedication song written by Mrs. Henderson for the occasion.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white organdy from an Italian import pattern, ballerina length, boat neck, wasp waist, 12 gore skirt, with pleated gusset and gusset in each skirt section. An heirloom cameo was her only jewelry. Her bandeau of organdy and flowers held a fingertip veil of imported illusion and she carried an arrangement of Pinocchio roses and gladioli on a white Rainbow Bible.

Following tradition she wore an heirloom cameo belonging to her maternal grandmother, something new her bridal veil, something borrowed a white handkerchief of Mrs. W. W. Maxwell. She wore a blue garter and lucky coin in her slipper.

Miss Wynona Schrader, Lawton, Oklahoma, was maid of honor and Marguerite Frances Hunter of San Antonio, Texas, a cousin of the bride served as flower girl.

Miss Schrader wore a ballerina gown of blue organza with low rounded neckline and tiered skirt. She wore a bandeau of blue and carried a nosegay of sweet peas. Flower girl wore a dress similar to maid of honor. It was shell pink had a rounded neckline, full tiered skirt and short sleeves.

The bride's mother chose an organ dress of avocado green with pink and white accessories. Her hat was pink and her corsage was of yellow gladioli.

Miss Giles wore a pink all over embroidered frock and pique hat, with which she wore a yellow gladioli corsage.

Mr. Sparks, Lawton, Oklahoma, was the groom's attendant. Sammy Henderson, brother of the bride, Jerry and Jimmy Giles, brothers of the bridegroom, served as ushers.

The newlyweds left that evening on a honeymoon trip to Alabama and through the southern states. She chose for traveling a brown summer weight wool dressmaker suit with white accessories and her corsage was of yellow gladioli. They will be at home at 504 "A" Ave., Lawton, Oklahoma.

Eye Fashion Notes For Sun Fun

Time was when sun glasses were reserved for beachwear, and those who wore them strolling or driving were earmarked extroverts. These days working girls don sunglasses even when going off to lunch.

A great many sun glasses are being designed to meet specific glare protection needs, so that for riding in an open convertible or boat, lenses with gradient density are made in two gay feminine frames.

There are lenses too, designed to U. S. Air Force specifications. FOIL EYE GLARE. Sunglass lenses should be lare enough to protect eyes. These are available in smart Caribbean hues.

providing true color vision in brilliant sunlight, now available in three Caribbean style frames—white twill, South Sea twill and a blue tartan.

Sunglasses are particularly gay and fashionable this year in sophisticated designs and colors with matching cases. But it is important to establish their usefulness, too. They should be large enough certainly to cover the entire area as too small lenses won't filter out harmful rays. It is better to have ground and polished lenses without bubbles waves or other imperfections.

Strive for good fit. Improper position of lenses can create distortion even though correctly made. Frames should be comfortable. Metal frames of a lesser quality than 1/10 12K. gold filled are likely to discolor, corrode and irritate the skin. Metal hinges are better than plastic ones if frames are plastic, because once broken they are beyond repair.

You can find chic colors to match any costume. There are sunny jonquil hues, a white tinsel that combines white mesh with silver, a muted green and off-white combination, and a black frame striated with white. Sophisticated too are ebony, cocoa or mint frames touched with gold.

Set A Trap With Fishnet Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor

If you're angling for a new summer romance, dress the part in crisp fishnet separates. Summer's smartest charmers love the peek-a-boo look of wide-mesh cotton net underlined with solid color cotton.

One effective combination is a simple scoop-neck blouse and circle skirt of carnation pink net used over deeper pink cotton for a wonderful textured effect. Black ball fringe at neck and hem add sophistication.

Local sewing center experts say that sewing with fishnet is a cinch for even a beginning seamstress. The same pattern pieces are used for the net and the cotton lining sections. To make the dress described from a simple standard pattern, first cut out the cotton sections from the same pattern pieces. Lay the fishnet over its corresponding cotton piece and sew the two pieces as one.

To guarantee smooth work, you might pin the sections firmly together before basting. Seams are stitched, darts made zipper inserted and hems turned as though you were working on one piece of fabric.

Since the net will not ravel or stretch out of shape, you'll find this work much easier than it looks. A new permanent finish keeps the net crisp after washing, makes starching and stretching unnecessary.

The blouse requires about 1 1/2 yards of 39-inch fabric, the skirt less than four yards of 35-inch fabric. Included in the skirt pattern are directions for a separate petticoat with chinoline facing.

NET PROFIT . . . Gay summer blouse and skirt of pink fishnet over deeper pink cotton, easy to make.

Backstage New Mexico

By The New Mexico Staff Of The Associated Press

A possible fifth U. S. Air Force installation in the state of New Mexico has a good number of communities in an economic tizzy—with every justification.

An Air Force survey team last week completed a searching look at facilities in various cities ranging from Las Vegas in the north to several spots in the south.

There is no assurance that an air base will be established. The team was merely, as Sen. Dennis Chavez put it in letters to city officials, "looking over your city with an eye to future needs and your resources and availabilities in the light of those requirements."

But even the possibility has stirred the excitement of those who would like an economic hypo for their community.

Chambers of commerce, bankers, civic and social organizations and local promoters have eyed with envy the cities in the state which have military installations—and the resultant population hike and payroll expenditures. Albuquerque, Clovis, Roswell, Alamogordo, Las Cruces and others have been greatly benefited by having military installations parked in their backyards.

The survey team met with civic officials in Las Vegas, Truth or Consequences, Deming, Carlsbad, Las Cruces, Artesia and Hobbs. Expected to be surveyed later are Santa, Mountainair, Clayton, Taos, Estancia, Raton, Fort Sumner and Tucuman. There may be others later. The next inspection trip is scheduled in July.

The passing of the first survey team left hopes high in almost every city. Deming Chamber of Commerce President Godfrey Towbridge said the group indicated Deming was "worthy of every consideration and was very much impressed with our facilities." In Las Cruces, city officials were proud and pleased—and hopeful—that the Air Force group spent several more hours there than it was expected to.

A Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce official said he feels Carlsbad is "very much in the running." There were similar expressions of optimism in almost every place visited.

A touch of politics entered the situation at Artesia where the Artesia Advocate said: "Privately informed sources have indicated that the state's congressional delegation were all but committed on Hobbs as the site for the new base." But Sen. Chavez had written all communities earlier "I leave to the Air Force the determination of what is best suited as a site for the special needs."

What are the special needs? In Carlsbad, the team told officials it was gathering information for a multi-purpose installation. One of the requirements is a spot which can accommodate runways from 16,000 to 18,000 feet in length—a lot of runway by current standards.

The team was interested in libraries, school facilities, housing, recreation, tax payments and property evaluations. It wasn't much interested in previous air base installations or currently operating airports.

The decision—which will be based on authority to expand the Air Force—may be a long time in coming. In the meantime, a lot of New Mexico communities are keeping their economic fingers crossed.

The other day the State Tourist Bureau got a letter asking for a "visa" to visit New Mexico. Happens all the time, these applications for "visas, passports etc." But recently a letter came from someone in North Dakota addressed this way:

"New Mexico Capital of Mexico Arizona, Mexico"

The July issue of Fortune Magazine will have an article on New Mexico's new uranium venture, United Western Minerals. Pictures of Alva Simpson Jr., president, and directors John Hay Whitney, Patrick J. Hurley will be included.

Everyone has an Amos Carter story. Following his recent death, all the tales about the fabulous late publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram started exchanging hands. One told of the origin of his power in the oil industry.

After 99 dry holes, Carter became known as the dry hole champion of the world. A dry hole is a drilling for oil which finds nothing.

Carter's partners, so the story goes, said that was all. They didn't want any part of a 100th dry hole. Carter found new partners—and hit production on the 100th try.

The well was in Lea County, in southeastern New Mexico.

Subsequently, the Publisher sold out part of his oil interests and from the sale established the 16½ million dollar Amos Carter Foundation, a charitable organization.

Some folks are wondering, since Lea County and New Mexico gave him his start in the oil business, whether any foundation funds have been spent in this state.

It's no joking matter to many—but the continued expansion of military land holdings in New Mexico has its humorous side.

At the recent congressional hearing in Alamogordo, one state official expressed fear the Armed Forces eventually might extend its present holdings clear to the Colorado border. Then, he commented, "we would have two states—Little Texas and What's Left!"

STATE AUDITOR J. D. Hannah is showing signs of impatience with the way personnel matters are going in the Statehouse these days. And especially with Republican holdovers.

Hannah, an oldtime Democrat, apparently wants to get Democrats back on capitol jobs in even the lowliest positions.

He was the first department head to openly say he did not like the way the state's personnel system was set up. His opposition helped lead to re-organization of the system, although GOP holdover John Hallahan, the personnel director, is still on the job.

Some Statehouse people feel that Hannah has been trying to steer State Comptroller Dan Smith Jr., former UNM professor, in job matters.

Not long ago it was no secret around capitol corridors that some comptroller department employees were restless. Many began casting around for jobs in private industry, in case a wholesale changeover came. The pressure has eased off somewhat, now, although Frank Ortiz Jr., got the heave-ho from Smith. Ortiz is the son of the Santa Fe Republican postmaster.

On another part of the employment front Hannah recently told Game and Fish Director Homer Pickens in a letter to supply him with a certificate of employment for every employee or the department payroll was going to be held up.

Pickens quickly got an attorney general's opinion which sloshed cold water on that. The opinion said only Pickens himself is required to obtain a certificate of employment.

Space in the state capitol is at a premium now. And several of the smaller departments are anxiously awaiting the State Highway Department's move to its new building out by State Police headquarters.

New state parole director, William Cooper, is jammed up in a committee room on the third floor of the Capitol. His office is in one room, his secretary is next door. He is one who is not particularly unhappy, however, about his out-of-the-way location. "The kind of visitors I get usually will make it a point to seek me out," he says.

The State Bank Examiner's office is located down a little path behind the Supreme Court building and Bank Examiner Woodlan Saunders is hoping to get new quarters soon. The way it is now, his office sits immediately in front of the entrance and Saunders has to act as receptionist and question-answer for tourists.

The Highway Department is spread all over. Maintenance is in a building across from the utility building. It is an old Methodist parsonage, converted to an office building.

As soon as Highway opens up its new place, chances are the Santa Fe County Welfare Department will move in. Welfare Director Murray Hintz has had an eye on the old parsonage for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hampton and daughter Claudette went out Monday, while Kay went earlier with her aunt from Roswell. The reunion was held at Amos' sister's home, Leslie Tatum. While on their trip the Hamptons of Hagerman visited Mrs. Hamptons brother's family, the Gordon Smiths of Florence, Ariz. (Gordon had gone fishing), also her sister, Eleanor Johnson of Phoenix, Ariz., and her brother Paul Smith of Pasadena, Calif. Amos' brother and family, the Warren Hamptons of San Antonio, Texas, returned to Hagerman with them Thursday for a visit here.

Jackie Langenegger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Langenegger of Hagerman, went up to Cloudfort Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor. Mr. Taylor will bring Jackie back Saturday, then he will return to spend the fourth of July with his wife and five children in Cloudfort.

Raymond Bledsoe and June Tulk will spend the fourth of July in Cloudfort.

Tentative plans of the A. L. Ackermans are to spend the fourth with Ackerman's brother in High Rolls.

The Barney Greens are expecting a visit from Mrs. Green's sister and family, the H. B. Williams of Albuquerque.

Susan McCullough of Phoenix, Ariz., arrived Friday for a visit with her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Templeton and children Susan and Sidney will spend some time at the Templeton cabin in Ruidoso over the fourth of July holidays.

Mrs. Howard Templeton entertained Thursday evening with a little get-together in honor of her niece, Wanda Hopkins, who is visiting here from Bakersfield, Calif. Games and visiting were enjoyed.

Harvey Yates and Emory Carper attended the meeting held in the Oil Conservation Commission Auditorium at the state capitol building in Santa Fe, last week. Yates went as a delegate appointed by the Oil Commission to represent the oil industry. Carper is president of the New Mexico Oil and Gas Conservation Commission.

The meeting was sponsored by the Oil and Gas Conservation Commission with representatives from the oil and the potash industries present.

Also attending the meeting were Howard Jennings of Roswell, representing the oil industry and two delegates from this area representing the potash industry. Ernie Hanson, Roswell is a nalternate representative of the oil industry.

Purpose of the meeting was to try to arrive to some way that both industries may develop their respective industries as both hold leases on the same land. The land is owned by the federal government and is located southeast of Artesia.

The group were asked to study the problems involved and make recommendations at a meeting to be held in Carlsbad at a date to be announced later.
