DR. H. R. VARNEY

Has recently been appointed dean and director of Agriculture at New Mexico A & M College to coordinate more closely the functions of the extension service, the experiment station and the school of agriculture. Dr. Varney was formerly associate dean and director of agriculture at the University of Vermont.

TOWN WATER DUES NOW PAYABLE

Water dues for 1948-49 are now due and payable at the office of the Town Clerk.

Four Ring Horse Show At State Fair

A four-ring horse show will be presented at this year's New Mexico State Fair, opening Sept. 28. Entries in the four-division show will contest for $4525 in cash prizes, championship ribbons and coveted trophies offered by the major horse breeder associations of the west. Horse show judging begins Monday morning, Sept. 30 with entries in the annual New Mexico show of the American Quarter Horse Breeders Association going through their paces; to be followed Monday afternoon by the first show in New Mexico under auspices of the recently organized National Quarter Horse Breeders Association. There are ten classes in each of the Quarter Horse shows, with $650 in awards in each show. Each association will provide its own approved judges and horses will show under the rules of the respective organizations.

Tuesday morning, Sept. 30, the New Mexico Palomino Exhibitors association will stage its annual Palomino show with 11 classes each for stock type and pleasure type Palominos contending for total cash awards of $1950, championship ribbons and the annual trophy offered by the New Mexico Palomino group. The Palomino show is under the auspices of the Palomino Horse Breeders Association of America.

Sharp rivalry exists between the long established American Quarter Horse association and the recently organized National association. The American association registry was formed 10 years ago under leadership of prominent southwestern Quarter Horse breeders. Albert K. Mitchell, well known New Mexico cattle grower, is president of the American. The National association was organized in Texas two years ago. It announced recently that its registrations had passed the 5000 mark. R. J. "Rusty" Bradley, Jr., of Electra, Tex., is president of the National. Bradley visited State Fair headquarters early in July for a conference with fair manager, Leon H. Harms, at which plans for the National's participation in this year's horse show were completed.

Tuesday afternoon the fourth division of the horse show will be judge. In this group are classes for Thoroughbreds, American Saddlebreds, Tennessee Walking Horses, and Arabians, with $240 in premiums offered for each of these breeds. Jack Dean of Willard, New Mexico, is superintendent of this year's horse show with John Dickinson of Albuquerque as his assistant.

The first cutting horse contest to be held at a New Mexico Fair will be a feature of this year's horse show. A number of famous southwestern cutting horses have been entered. The contest is a popular one with Quarter Horse fanciers and cattle folks. Another new feature here will be a Quarter Horse reining contest. Six special performance contests are scheduled for Palominos, with $65 in awards for each event. There are special performance classes also for five-gaited class, three-gaited class, girl's riding class, boy's riding class and boy and girl riding class. A light harness class is expected to fill, chiefly from members of the Albuquerque riding and driving club, although the event is open to the world.

The fair management is providing additional stable space for this year's horse show as entries are expected to be double those of last year, when a new entry record was set.

SCHOOL NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lipsett of Elk City, Okla., have signed a contract with the Hope Municipal School Board and will be here in time for the opening of school. Mr. Lipsett, will teach math and science in high school and Mrs. Lipsett will teach seventh and eighth grades. Both have college degrees and several years experience in the teaching profession.

Prospects are bright for the securing of John Elliott, of Oakwood, Okla., as coach and teacher in the commercial department. Mr. Elliott has nine years experience as coach and comes highly recommended from places where he has taught before.

Others on the faculty will be Mrs. Williams, home ex. teacher, Mrs. Ethel Fowler, fourth and fifth grades, and Mrs. Ben Marable, first, second and third grades.

New walls and ceilings are being put up in several of the rooms in the high school building. The floor in the gym has been sanded and oiled and will be in readiness for the opening of school in September.

Workmen have been at work this week pulling the pump rods in order to get the pump in working order. New leathers was all that was needed.

MISSIONARY CIRCLE MET FRIDAY

The Young Women's Missionary Circle met Friday, July 25 at the home of Mrs. Leonard Olson for a covered dish luncheon. Inez Crockett was in charge of the program, which was as follows:

Group singing, led by Mrs. Wallace Johnson. Three short talks, "O'er All the Earth," by Inez Crockett; "Are We Thinking?" by Pauline Schwalbe; "Children—A Major Concern of Christian Women," by Cross." The program ended with a prayer by Jane Pitt.

The next meeting is to be a joint meeting of the Young Women's Missionary Circle with the W. S. C. S., on Aug. 7. Everyone is urged to attend.

Those present were: Inez Crockett, Helen Seeley, Edith Johnson, Glynn Bush, Jane Pitt, Alice Ruth Williams, Madie Teel, Margaret Fincke, Imogene Moore, Lee Crockett, Pauline Schwalbe, Billie Crockett, Veima Olson and Becky Johnson.

Former county agent leader, is now associate director of the extension service at the New Mexico A & M College at Las Cruces.

Cooperation That Builds Towns, Schools, Churches

Last week several members of the Methodist Church, being able to get the use of a sander, pulled off their coats, rolled up their sleeves and went to work, and when we say work, we mean WORK. The pews were carried outside and the floor was sanded three times. Then two applications of floor wax was applied. Early Sunday morning a group gathered at the church and carried the pews back and went over all the furniture with a dust cloth. Needless to say, the appearance of the church is improved 100 per cent. The persons who did the work donated their labor, all the cost was the buying of material with which to do the work. Two citizens of Hope met in front of the church and watched the men at work. One man remarked, "Now that's the spirit of cooperation that builds churches, schools and towns; we need plenty of that in Hope."

26TH INFANTRY DIVISION

The 26th Infantry, known as the Yankee Division was originally composed of National Guard troops from the New England States and it has made history in both World Wars. It was among the first to see duty in France in 1918 and on January 21, 1941, it was again called to Federal service with its personnel composed mostly of Massachusetts National Guard. The Division went overseas in August, 1944, and its components then were the 101st, 104th and 358th infantry regiments and the 101st, 102nd and 108th field artillery battalions. The 26th was rushed to the relief of the beleaguered American forces at Bastogne and it took a prominent part in spearheading the drive which linked the Third Army, of which it was a part, to the Seventh Army. The Division first went into action on September 29th, 1944, southeast of Verdun and by October 5 it had received its baptism of fire the hard way. It relieved the 4th armored division near Yancy and by the end of October it was battling the Germans north of the Parroy forest, helping reduce the fortress of Metz. In March the Division spearheaded the Third Army drive slicing the Saar Palatinate and routing the German defenders. They drove into the heart of the Reich and held a 15-mile front west of Nuremberg and on V-E day had advanced 20 miles north of Litz. The Division then was commanded by Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul.

U.N. Denies Debate on Greece

The United Nations security council, which has yet to meet a tough problem head-on and overcome it, rejected an American appeal for an emergency debate on the Balkan situation, despite reports of increasing strife in Greece.

When Herschel V. Johnson, deputy U. S. delegate, warned that the crisis developing in Greece "may burst into explosion any day," Andrei Gromyko, Soviet delegate, protested that an emergency debate on the issue was unnecessary and France added that the United Nations "must not act too hastily."

However, the council did schedule two special meetings in response to an American request to speed up the discussion of trouble in southeastern Europe. Russia objected to this, too, charging that the U. S. was attempting to "prove that an extraordinary situation had been created in Greece."

Main U. S. proposal for working out the difficulty in Greece calls for

Yanks Are Coming

The conservative Athens newspaper Elinikon Aima has reported on "excellent" authority that United States troops will aid Greece halt further invasions such as the one government forces now are fighting. The newspaper quoted an American spokesman as saying, "The United States are decided to contribute to the safeguard of Greek freedom and independence, even with American armed forces."

establishment of a powerful 11-nation border patrol with authority to scout both sides of the borders separating Greece from the Communist-dominated countries of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania.

War Again

As additional troops were sent up to reinforce both the invading leftist guerrillas and the Greek government forces, the swiftly developing battle in the rugged heights of northern Greece began to take on a cast reminiscent of the Spanish civil war.

The war ministry disclosed that six strong guerrilla units had been concentrated along the Albanian and Yugoslav frontiers of Greece and that all were poised to join the original invasion force of 2,000 which government troops had so far been able to repel.

Napoleon Zervas, defense minister, told a press conference at Ioannina that several of 20 prisoners taken by the defenders were unable to speak Greek and wore the Red Star insignia of the Soviet Union.

In the meantime, a war department announcement said that one invading force of 2,000 had been gripped in a pincers nine miles from Albania and that a battle of annihilation was in progress. A second column was halted in its drive toward Ioannina and surrounded by the government troops.

FLOOD CONTROL:

10-Year Program

Termining the problem one of "desperate urgency," President Truman, in a special message to congress, proposed that a swift start be made on a 10-year, 250 million dollar program to control floods in the entire Mississippi basin and change the character of the river from a destructive giant to a productive force.

He strongly implied that the present congress should undertake the immense, long-range task before its adjournment. A number of senators immediately threw their support behind the President's proposal.

In general, the construction program as outlined by Mr. Truman would provide a coordinated system of storage reservoirs in all the major tributary basins of the Mississippi, coupled with levees, floodwalls and diversion channels to protect cities, towns and farms in those basins.

Also, he proposed that soil conservation measures be put into effect farther up-river on the tributaries of each major basin in order to retard the flow and run-off of waters from heavy rains and reduce topsoil loss.

Mr. Truman recommended harnessing the flood waters for productive use, adding that "the major opportunity of our generation to increase the wealth of the nation lies in the development of our great river systems."

Despite the urgency of Mr. Truman's message, it became rapidly apparent that congress was disinclined to pass any flood control legislation during this session. Also, house appropriations leaders were said to be clutching the federal purse a little tighter when the tremendous project was mentioned.

RUHR PLAN:

Britain Objects

Abandoning as unworkable the Potsdam proposals for control of the German Ruhr, vital industrial district, the United States has put forward its own plan which would:

1. Give the U. S. dominant control over the Ruhr, now under the British military government.
2. Postpone a decision on future ownership of Ruhr coal, steel and other industries for five years.
3. Have the United States furnish the industrial equipment needed to repair and modernize the damaged mines and factories in order to raise the level of German industrial production.

The entire project is designed to make restoration of the Ruhr industries the fulcrum of the Marshall plan to provide leverage in raising Europe from its economic bog.

Great Britain, however, is thoroughly alarmed over the American proposal which, the British believe, is an open move to deprive them of their supremacy in the Ruhr. Moreover, if, as the U. S. wishes, decision of ownership of Ruhr industries is postponed, the British government would have to put off until 1952 its proclaimed policy of socializing basic German industries.

Early developments indicated that a major British-American crisis may be in the making as a result of this divided opinion.

RACKET:

Training Hit

Dr. Allan Bates, a Chicago scientist, testified before a house armed services sub-committee that universal military training has become "a vicious political racket" and will be "a horrible cancer on the United States."

He cited the fate of European nations in the last war, declaring that despite assurances from their top army leaders that universal training would safeguard them from invasion they all fell before the Nazi blitzkrieg.

As an alternative to universal military training, Bates said the United States should concentrate on a strong striking force, a large air force, strong reserves and a well organized national guard, all backed by adequate scientific and industrial research.

BISON'S 'FAMILY TREE' . . . First comprehensive study of the Great Plains bison's lineage is being made by University of Nebraska state museum from its collection of buffalo skeletal remains. The large skull and horns (foreground) are 500,000 years old and belong to the first type of bison to roam the Great Plains area. The skull at left is 50,000 years old while the one at right is a 1,000-year-old buffalo, nearly the same as the present type seen in parks and zoos. Dr. C. B. Schultz, director of the museum, is on the left, with W. D. Frankforter, assistant curator of paleontology, at right.

Museum Traces 'Family Tree' Of Shaggy-Haired Plains Bison

WNU Features.

LINCOLN, NEB.—The "family tree" of the Great Plains bison is being given its first geologically scientific appraisal by the University of Nebraska state museum. Research completed in the past eight years reveals that ancestors of the shaggy-haired creatures, which in the 19th century numbered over the world to the plains of Kansas and Nebraska, first came to North America about 500,000 years ago. That was when the second of the three big glaciers of the Ice Age was retreating from the northern Great Plains.

Dr. C. B. Schultz, museum director, and W. D. Frankforter, assistant curator of paleontology of the museum, report that their studies thus far indicate two unusual tendencies in evolution of the bison.

First, the great granddaddy of them all who came to this continent from Asia was characterized mainly by huge horns which averaged 80 inches from tip to tip. But the body of this creature, known scientifically as "superbison," was less than a foot taller and a foot longer than the present buffalo. Succeeding generations showed only one significant change: size of the horns. They steadily shrank to today's average of 22 inches from tip to tip. The body remained nearly the same.

Second, the bison, unlike other prehistoric animals found in North America such as elephants, rhinos, horses and camels, first appeared on our continent as a large animal and decreased in size. The University of Nebraska scientists also believe, on the basis of present studies, that the bison population has had its "ups and downs." The first bison, they say, apparently was relatively few in numbers since only a few scattered skeletal remains have been found thus far in Kansas and Nebraska.

But they increased in numbers rapidly as the climate began warming up, and more food was made available to the growing herds. But about 20,000 years ago a human civilization, apparently a race of hunters, migrated from Asia to this continent, and the numbers of bison were greatly reduced. These tribes, however, suddenly disappeared from the Great Plains for reasons which are still a mystery to scientists. After their disappearance, however, bison herds staged a comeback.

The herds gained steadily in size, even after appearance of the early Indians in the Great Plains region. But with the coming of the white man, the bison all but disappeared from the continent.

The research work now under way at University of Nebraska is expected to take at least five more years to complete.

Woman of 75 Finds New Career in Art

CLARISSA, MINN.— Her duties as a wife and mother kept her occupied for most of her 75 years but now Mrs. Mabel Radabaugh has a new career as an artist.

While visiting a son in Portland, Ore., four years ago, Mrs. Radabaugh attended art classes sponsored by the city. Her interest centered on the painting of pastel floral prints, which are created by working a chalk-like substance into a mat or canvas.

Now Mrs. Radabaugh has a "workshop" in her home here.

Income Tax Cited As Aid to Farmers

MOUNTAIN VIEW, OKLA.— Do you complain loud and bitterly about that mounting levy which Uncle Sam surreptitiously sneaks from your pockets in the form of income tax?

If you do, particularly if you're a farmer, you may obtain some consolation from a local banker, who contends that the federal income tax has helped Oklahoma farmers.

R. M. Kobs, president of the First National bank, maintains that many farmers are making more money than before because of the income tax. Paying the tax, he insists, forced farmers for the first time to add up income from the "little things" like milk and egg checks and feed sales.

"As a result of having to figure their tax," the banker concludes, "farmers have come to know just what profit they are making from some crop, instead of merely guessing they're getting along all right."

$100,000 Coal Grant Remains Unused for Period of 80 Years

PITTSBURGH, PA.— For 80 years the sum of $100,000, intended to buy coal for needy families, has been kicking around here and nobody knows how to dispose of it.

In the 1860s two wealthy men, Charles Brewer and James Crawford, bequeathed large amounts of money to West Penn hospital to buy coal for needy families.

The hospital found that there were not enough needy residents in the designated areas to spend the fund. When the hospital took the case to court, the combined funds were ordered turned over to the Pittsburgh foundation.

Dog Saves Woman From Second Fire

CHICAGO.—For the second time, Fawn, a Seeing Eye dog, has led her mistress, Miss Anita Blair, to safety through fire.

While Miss Blair, who has been blind since childhood, was giving a safety lecture at Bowen high school, a fire broke out behind the school. Miss Blair, led by Fawn, left the building along with the 3,000 students.

In the tragic La Salle hotel fire of June, 1946, in which 61 died, Miss Blair followed Fawn down a fire escape to safety.

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Eligibility Proof Simplified

In an effort to expedite issuance of certificates of eligibility for education and training under the G.I. bill, Veterans' administration has announced it will accept terminal leave orders as a basis for determining eligibility.

Where orders reflect at least eight days of terminal leave indicating they have at least 90 days of service, they will be accepted as valid for a period of six months, VA said.

VA said the procedure would expedite issuance of certificates where army and navy personnel are separated from service but will not be discharged until expiration of their leave period. Under the new plan it will not be necessary for VA to check applicant's service records to determine eligibility before authorizing matriculation in an educational institution or training establishment. The temporary certificates will be replaced by regular forms after the veteran's exact period of entitlement has been determined. Also, by this procedure service personnel in separated status may take advantage of the education and training privileges pending their discharge. There is one rub. They will not be eligible for subsistence allowance until their formal discharge.

Questions and Answers

Q. I am a navy seabee veteran with less than three months service, having received a medical discharge due to an un-united fracture of the right ankle, not service-connected. This injury, which was sustained prior to my entrance in the service, had given no trouble at all in civilian life. But the rigorous training aggravated it to such an extent that the navy saw fit to discharge me. Shortly after my return to civilian life I applied for a pension, which was denied on the grounds that the examination given me at the VA hospital showed no such condition existed. However, this condition most certainly does exist and is growing steadily worse. On the basis of the facts as outlined above, am I eligible for treatment, an operation if necessary? My present condition and the cause for my discharge is due to an old injury being made much worse while in training to the point of making me unfit for service and curtailing my activities and normal pursuits of recreation as a civilian.—C. F. S., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. On the basis of facts as outlined, you are suffering from an injury aggravated by your service and as such should be entitled to treatment by Veterans' administration. Your recourse is to file a claim for an appeal to the board of appeals at your nearest regional VA office within a year after your original examination. Any new evidence from your local physician or other evidence would be helpful. You will find forms available to fill out and a contact man at the regional office will aid you.

Q. I am a veteran with four years service in the army. Does Veterans' administration provide maternity care for my wife either at a VA hospital or at the out-patient clinics?—J. T. R., Jonesboro, Ark.

A. No. Under existing laws only veterans are eligible for hospital care or the out-patient clinics.

Q. My son had dental work done shortly after his discharge from the navy. He was in four years. I understand the government takes care of such expense for a year after discharge. He wasn't aware of it. Could he get a refund by having dentist give bill and type of work? Amount was $25.—Box 60, Coronado Beach, Fla.

A. Veterans' administration does provide for certain treatment for veterans for a year after discharge on the theory that such disability is presumed to be service-connected for that long. However, application for such service must be applied for in advance and there is no provision for refund for work done by civilian medics.

Q. I was discharged in June, 1942. May I still get vocational training in barbering?—E. G. W., Savannah, Ga.

A. You may, if you apply for training within four years after date of your discharge.

ON AUGUST 4th, at 11:45 a. m. (E.S.T.), your correspondent goes on the air, to be interviewed by Ted Malone on his program on ABC, and be given his Excellence Award for "consistently impartial coverage of radio broadcasting news." That night Ted leaves the country! He will fly to Stockholm, Oslo, Copenhagen, Berlin, Amsterdam, and Shannon, taking four cameras—he says he has lost expensive cameras all around the globe. In ten days he will be back; with his gift for description, he will make the rest of us feel that we, too, have had a glimpse of the countries he has visited. Remember when he went around the world in 1945 and told us about it?

We don't hear much about Mary Astor these days, though she goes right on working, turning in one good performance after another. She celebrated her 26th anniversary in pictures with her role as Elizabeth Scott's mother in "Desert Fury."

Old-timers may remember "Secrets," made as a silent picture in 1924 with Norma Talmadge, again in 1932 as a talkie with Mary Pickford. Samuel Goldwyn will do it again, setting it in the U. S. A., and starring Teresa Wright and Dana Andrews.

"Duel in the Sun" has grossed about $7,000,000 and caused no end of discussion. Some say it's wonderful, some say it's bad; others claim that it's a satire on all pictures of that type, and scream with laughter over the blue faces created by Technicolor. Of course the answer is that enough people have paid to see it pile up $7,000,000.

A deal is under way to film a series of short subjects based on Gabriel Heatter's "A Brighter Tomorrow," stressing the point that courage can overcome practically insurmountable obstacles; a film mogul thinks the material is wonderful.

Profuse apologies are extended to William Bendix (who didn't ask for them) because his radio program was called "Where There's Life" instead of "The Life of Riley" recently in this space. Also, we'd been told he wasn't a Brooklynite. Seems he did live in Brooklyn, though he wasn't born there. So if the citizens want to name him "Mr. Brooklyn" it comes naturally.

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello have a contract with Universal-International permitting them to make one outside picture a year, so they've signed with Eagle-Lion to do "The Noose Hangs High."

In September—and high time, too!—Jack Lawrence gets his own radio program; he'll play the piano, sing his own songs, and introduce them. In case you didn't know, he wrote such hits as "Symphony," "If I Didn't Care," "All or Nothing at All," and the current "Linda." Also wrote the lyrics for the songs in Greer Garson's forthcoming musical, "A Woman of My Own."

You'll see Betty Hutton on the screen in "Dream Girl"—but you'll hear Nadine Connor's voice singing "One Fine Day" from "Madame Butterfly" in the sequence in which Betty imagines herself an opera star, impressing Macdonald Carey.

Penny Singleton ("Blondie") has become a backyard theater manager. She and her husband have built a miniature stage with sets, seats for the audience, curtains and an arch at the rear of their home in Van Nuys, Calif. It's the special property of their youngsters, Dorothy and Susan, and Penny is delighted with its name—it's called the DorSue, of course.

Chaplain Gives 'Words of Wisdom'

WHEN the Republicans reorganized the senate, they ousted the Democratic chaplain, the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, and replaced him with the Rev. Peter Marshall. However, it appears that Mr. Marshall does not entirely agree with his Republican friends regarding labor. For the tall, sedate clergyman delivered a broad-gauged talk at the New York Avenue Presbyterian church recently on labor, soil conservation and various problems on which the GOP congress has frowned.

"I am not suggesting that the whole responsibility for labor unrest lies upon employers," said Mr. Marshall, "but I do say without any fear of contradiction that where employers are God-guided men . . . and where they are willing to run their businesses as Christ would run them, then I say that labor troubles would vanish."

Touching on the question of reclamation and soil conservation, both drastically cut by GOP leaders, the senate chaplain said that soil erosion alone destroys 300,000 acres of land annually, equivalent to "dumping into the ocean each year 1,875 farms of 160 acres each."

Wonder what GOP leaders who put Mr. Marshall in office would say if he should open the august senate one day with similar words of wisdom?

Russian Obstruction Now Open

GENERAL MARSHALL appears to his friends to have been worried lately. So is all the state department crowd. The Paris conference confirmed the worst about the Soviets. Not only are they against peace; they are opposed to restoring stability. They are against the Western powers even aiding Europe further. Officially, they have presented this deliberate position. Consequently nearly everyone now realizes Russia has become bolder in promoting a not very subtle revolution to establish world communism. They will block anything which interferes, and cooperate only with ventures furthering their revolutionary cause.

This projects a somewhat new field for diplomatic operations. Marshall seems to want to let things develop to see what is necessary, and then to do it, without any preconceived fastidious or isolated notions that it should be done thus or so, and only he can do it. Consequently new policies like the Ruhr restoration are developing slowly and carefully.

No one here really knows anything to do about the open Communist obstructionist revolution, except this: War is unthinkable. You cannot appease a revolution. You cannot even appease a Communist, except by destroying yourself for him.

Outlook for Farm Measures

THE BEST GUESS here in Washington is that with full pressure of the farm organizations turned on a white heat, the senate will restore most of the cuts made in agriculture department appropriations. It is expected that the full amount of 267 million dollars for soil conservation will be restored; that the school lunch program will be hiked from 45 to 75 million dollars and further that for farm surplus disposal the full amount asked, 48 million dollars, will be restored. If the house finally agrees to this restoration in conference, the agriculture bill will go to the President with only an approximate 15 per cent cut instead of 40 per cent, as it came from the house.

Although wool represents only something like 3 per cent or less of the American farm production, the wool bill stands out from all other farm measures in distorted proportion. This is because of the fact that it was in direct opposition to our announced reciprocal trade policy in that it boosted the import duties upon wool from Australia and other countries.

Since its modification, however, leaving impost of duties or import quotas to discretion of the President, the bill resumes more or less its original objective form—namely to support price of American wool and to aid in liquidation of U. S. wool stocks. GOP leaders say that Presidential veto of the act would be an admission that Mr. Truman does not expect to be president after 1948.

Early Groom Furnished Bride With Security Gifts

The custom of giving wedding presents probably arose in the earliest days of marriage-by-purchase when the Anglo-Saxon groom furnished his bride with "wed" or security gifts—animals for stall or stable or trinkets for her adornment—in token of his intention to fulfill their engagement. Later came the "bridal bidding" the fore-runner of our "shower." The most popular bridal present in the time of Elizabeth was a pair of knives (a pair of scissors to us) with which it was suggested the bride might cut the thread of love if her husband should prove untrue.

ON AUGUST 4th, at 11:45 a. m. (E.S.T.), your correspondent goes on the air, to be interviewed by Ted Malone on his program on ABC, and be given his Excellence Award for "consistently impartial coverage of radio broadcasting news." That night Ted leaves the country! He will fly to Stockholm, Oslo, Copenhagen, Berlin, Amsterdam, and Shannon, taking four cameras—he says he has lost expensive cameras all around the globe. In ten days he will be back; with his gift for description, he will make the rest of us feel that we, too, have had a glimpse of the countries he has visited. Remember when he went around the world in 1945 and told us about it?

We don't hear much about Mary Astor these days, though she goes right on working, turning in one good performance after another. She celebrated her 26th anniversary in pictures with her role as Elizabeth Scott's mother in "Desert Fury."

Old-timers may remember "Secrets," made as a silent picture in 1924 with Norma Talmadge, again in 1932 as a talkie with Mary Pickford. Samuel Goldwyn will do it again, setting it in the U. S. A., and starring Teresa Wright and Dana Andrews.

"Duel in the Sun" has grossed about $7,000,000 and caused no end of discussion. Some say it's wonderful, some say it's bad; others claim that it's a satire on all pictures of that type, and scream with laughter over the blue faces created by Technicolor. Of course the answer is that enough people have paid to see it pile up $7,000,000.

A deal is under way to film a series of short subjects based on Gabriel Heatter's "A Brighter Tomorrow," stressing the point that courage can overcome practically insurmountable obstacles; a film mogul thinks the material is wonderful.

Profuse apologies are extended to William Bendix (who didn't ask for them) because his radio program was called "Where There's Life" instead of "The Life of Riley" recently in this space. Also, we'd been told he wasn't a Brooklynite. Seems he did live in Brooklyn, though he wasn't born there. So if the citizens want to name him "Mr. Brooklyn" it comes naturally.

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello have a contract with Universal-International permitting them to make one outside picture a year, so they've signed with Eagle-Lion to do "The Noose Hangs High."

In September—and high time, too!—Jack Lawrence gets his own radio program; he'll play the piano, sing his own songs, and introduce them. In case you didn't know, he wrote such hits as "Symphony," "If I Didn't Care," "All or Nothing at All," and the current "Linda." Also wrote the lyrics for the songs in Greer Garson's forthcoming musical, "A Woman of My Own."

You'll see Betty Hutton on the screen in "Dream Girl"—but you'll hear Nadine Connor's voice singing "One Fine Day" from "Madame Butterfly" in the sequence in which Betty imagines herself an opera star, impressing Macdonald Carey.

Penny Singleton ("Blondie") has become a backyard theater manager. She and her husband have built a miniature stage with sets, seats for the audience, curtains and an arch at the rear of their home in Van Nuys, Calif. It's the special property of their youngsters, Dorothy and Susan, and Penny is delighted with its name—it's called the DorSue, of course.

WHEN the Republicans reorganized the senate, they ousted the Democratic chaplain, the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, and replaced him with the Rev. Peter Marshall. However, it appears that Mr. Marshall does not entirely agree with his Republican friends regarding labor. For the tall, sedate clergyman delivered a broad-gauged talk at the New York Avenue Presbyterian church recently on labor, soil conservation and various problems on which the GOP congress has frowned.

"I am not suggesting that the whole responsibility for labor unrest lies upon employers," said Mr. Marshall, "but I do say without any fear of contradiction that where employers are God-guided men . . . and where they are willing to run their businesses as Christ would run them, then I say that labor troubles would vanish."

Touching on the question of reclamation and soil conservation, both drastically cut by GOP leaders, the senate chaplain said that soil erosion alone destroys 300,000 acres of land annually, equivalent to "dumping into the ocean each year 1,875 farms of 160 acres each."

Wonder what GOP leaders who put Mr. Marshall in office would say if he should open the august senate one day with similar words of wisdom?

Russian Obstruction Now Open

GENERAL MARSHALL appears to his friends to have been worried lately. So is all the state department crowd. The Paris conference confirmed the worst about the Soviets. Not only are they against peace; they are opposed to restoring stability. They are against the Western powers even aiding Europe further. Officially, they have presented this deliberate position. Consequently nearly everyone now realizes Russia has become bolder in promoting a not very subtle revolution to establish world communism. They will block anything which interferes, and cooperate only with ventures furthering their revolutionary cause.

This projects a somewhat new field for diplomatic operations. Marshall seems to want to let things develop to see what is necessary, and then to do it, without any preconceived fastidious or isolated notions that it should be done thus or so, and only he can do it. Consequently new policies like the Ruhr restoration are developing slowly and carefully.

No one here really knows anything to do about the open Communist obstructionist revolution, except this: War is unthinkable. You cannot appease a revolution. You cannot even appease a Communist, except by destroying yourself for him.

Jane Cupper's "Daring" Bathing Suit

The Cuppers showed me some tin-types of their nineteen-ten vacation—picnicking on the beach with beer and pretzels, in bathing suits that made them look like they were dressed in street-wear.

Dee was smothered in a long-sleeved pull-over with knee length shorts, and looking embarrassed—as if he thought Jane's costume of a heavy blouse, two copious skirts, and long black stockings was a little daring.

We laughed a lot at those costumes ... but come to think of it, as Dee says, we'll probably look just as funny twenty years from now, in what we call our "Modern" clothes. Only thing that won't change in the picture is that mellow, wholesome glass of beer.

From where I sit, tolerance that lets us wear sensible, decent clothes—to give us sun and air and freedom—will keep that wholesome glass of beer a part of the American tradition.

Can Your Most Luscious Fruit (See recipe below.)

Fruit Preserving

This is the year many women have waited for—the year when they could obtain unlimited quantities of sugar to put up all the fruit in their orchards, and berries in their patches.

For many of us, it has been so long since we put up fruit in any quantity that a quick brush-up of methods is essential. As in all big undertakings, the underlying organizational work is most important, and this can be done the day before.

The day before you begin actual canning, check on equipment to be sure that it works properly. For fruit and berry canning you will need a water bath, which may be a large kettle or broiler, fitted with a rack, and a tightly fitting cover. Or, you also may use a pressure cooker for processing, but this is not as essential for fruits as it is for vegetables.

You will need several large pans and kettles for preparing the fruit and for making the syrup. You also will need to prepare jars, checking them for cracks and imperfections, and washing them in hot soapy suds. Make certain you have enough covers or lids.

Estimating Amounts

Although fruits and berries vary in size and moisture content, it is still possible to make some sort of estimate as to how much syrup and the number of jars you will need.

For sweet fruits, you will use a syrup made of 2 cups of sugar to 4 cups of water; for slightly acid fruit, use 2 cups of sugar to 3 cups of water; for acid fruit, 2 cups of sugar to 2 cups of water is ample. If the fruit is very acid, 2 cups of sugar to 1 cup of water is essential. The syrup is made simply by adding the sugar to the water and boiling together for 5 minutes.

If you are canning large fruits such as peaches and pears, allow 1 pint of syrup to a quart jar of fruit. For small fruit, or berries, you will need only a half pint of syrup to the quart.

The amount of fruit usually depends upon the size, but ordinarily we count 2 pounds of fruit for the quart jar. This will aid in estimating your yield.

Method of Packing

Some fruits and berries are hot-packed, but most women prefer using the cold pack method for preparing fruit for canning as it takes less time. If the fruit is carefully packed, there will be little floating.

Wash and clean the fruit, peeling and coring, slicing and stoning when necessary. Pack into sterile jars and attach the lid, using manufacturers' directions.

Process by placing the fruits in a boiling water bath, making certain that the water comes to two inches above the jars. If the water tends to boil away during the processing time, it's a good idea to have a kettle of boiling water near by from which the supply can be readily replenished.

Count the processing time from the time the water starts boiling. When processing time is finished, remove jars (with a jar lifter to prevent burning the fingers) and place on thick layers of newspaper to cool.

For many of the new type lids, the manufacturer does not approve inverting the jar to test for leaks. This is one reason for not inverting certain types of jars.

When the jars are cool, wipe them off, label and store in a cool, dark place.

Use This Time Table

If you are using the water bath, which is recommended by most experts, you will want to observe the processing time very carefully. The following fruits are processed for 20 minutes: apricots, blackberries, blueberries, cherries, currants, gooseberries, peaches, pears, plums, raspberries, rhubarb and strawberries.

Apples and pineapple, processed in the same type of water bath, will require 30 minutes, while quinces require 35 minutes.

If you are using the pressure cooker for processing, keep the indicator between 5 and 10 pounds pressure and process all fruits, except pineapple and quinces, for 10 minutes. The two exceptions will require 15 minutes processing.

Queries Answered

How high should fruit be packed for canning? Pack fruit and syrup to within one inch of the top.

How much salt should be added to water in which peeled fruit is placed to prevent discoloration? Add one teaspoon of salt to each quart of water used.

What makes fruit and tomatoes float? Too much processing, too heavy a syrup or too loose a pack may be the causes.

Why should fruit for canning be uniform in size and ripeness? Fruit should be evenly ripe and about the same size so that processing will be equal.

Can I can over-ripe fruit? No, it's too difficult to get a good product. Use over-ripe fruit and berries for fruit butters as the fruit will have to be mashed and there is enough sugar to act as a preservative.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Our Responsibility in Influencing Family Life

LESSON TEXT FOR AUGUST 3—Proverbs 1:8, 9; 6:20-23; 17:6; 19:18; 22:6; 23:22-26.

MEMORY SELECTION—Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it.—Proverbs 22:6.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TRUTH must be translated into living, and there is no place where it can be more effective than in the home. We will want to make much of this lesson, for it is the only one during the entire year which deals directly with the home.

Everyone in the home has a measure of responsibility for making the family life what it ought to be. No one from the small child to the great-grandmother is without influence, and each must contribute to the welfare of the home. Our lesson reaches from the young person to the grandfather rejoicing in his children's children.

It begins quite properly with

I. Youth Looking to Parents (1:8, 9; 6:20-23; 23:22-26).

YOUNG people want to be well-dressed and properly groomed. They are interested in that which adorns and improves their appearance. It is right that they should have such concern. Let us remind them, however, that a young man or woman should not only be physically well-groomed, but spiritually attractive as well. If we should give as much thought to that side of our beings as we do to our bodies, there would be wonderful improvement in the life of the individual and in the home.

The child who is properly instructed, and who is responsive to that instruction, is prepared for life no matter where it may lead him (6:22). Wherever and whenever he needs guidance, night or day, it is with him. Even when he sleeps, he is in the hand of God for blessing.

Let no young man or woman be betrayed into that awful folly of our day which neglects the teaching of parents and of the church. Disaster is ahead on that road—sure disaster, and swift!

But now look at the other side of the matter, where we see

II. Parents Looking After Youth (19:18; 22:6).

THERE is a foolish idea current in our day which says that the way to rear children is to let them develop according to their own interests and instincts, without discipline or definite guidance.

The fruits of that kind of child training are now being harvested in the present crop of juvenile delinquents. We have the sad and awful proof before us that children cannot be reared that way.

We are not pleading for a return to the unduly restrictive measures of some of our forefathers; children are not helped by harshness or cruelty. But there is a proper place for definite instruction, for discipline, yes, even for chastening when that becomes necessary.

The larger part, and the most effective part, of this matter is the training of the child (22:6) and when properly done it brings forth the finest of results in later life. The boy who has been taught and directed right may get on a sidetrack for a time, but there is always the promise of a return to the right way.

III. Age and Youth Working Together (17:6).

OLD men need encouragement, and they receive it in no richer or more satisfying measure than in the delight they take in their children's children. Young people should remember that, and not fail to give to their grandparents, as well as their parents, the full measure of their interest and devotion.

But now note that "the glory of children are their fathers," yes, and grandfathers. How sad it is when a boy has to be ashamed of his father or one of his grandparents.

That puts on each one of us who has children a truly weighty responsibility. We must walk worthily before God, and before our children, even down to old age, when our grandchildren look to us for an example of godliness!

No Time Like Present, So Anniversary Date Is Set Up

An acquaintance of Mrs. B. congratulated the old lady on her golden wedding anniversary. "Guess you read in the paper," Mrs. B. replied, "about the party and all the presents we got." Then she chuckled. "It wasn't really our 50th anniversary. Only our 49th. But Pa's getting pretty feeble and I'm not too spry myself, so we decided we'd better have our celebration while the getting was good."

Uncle Sam Says

You, too, can be a harvester—and not once or twice a year but every month. What farmer—even the wheat men and women of Kansas and the Dakotas who at this moment are reaping the greatest harvest in history—would not prize a harvest every month. The harvest-a-month plan has popular name—the Bond-a-Month Plan. Begin today sowing financial seeds. 26TH INFANTRY DIVISION

The 26th Infantry, known as the Yankee Division was originally composed of National Guard troops from the New England States and it has made history in both World Wars.

It was among the first to see duty in France in 1918 and on January 21, 1941, it was again called to Federal service with its personnel composed mostly of Massachusetts National Guard. The Division went overseas in August, 1944, and its components then were the 101st, 104th and 353rd infantry regiments and the 101st, 102nd and 108th field artillery battalions.

The 26th was rushed to the relief of the beleaguered American forces at Bastogne and it took a prominent part in spearheading the drive which linked the Third Army, of which it was a part, to the Seventh Army.

The Division first went into action on September 29th, 1944, southeast of Verdun and by October 5 it had received its baptism of fire the hard way. It relieved the 4th armored division near Yancy and by the end of October it was battling the Germans north of the Parroy forest, helping reduce the fortress of Metz.

In March the Division spearheaded the Third Army drive slicing the Saar Palatinate and routing the German defenders. They drove into the heart of the Reich and held a 16-mile front west of Nurenberg and on V-E day had advanced 20 miles north of Liez. The Division then was commanded by Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul.
