Yellow Jackets Split With Lake Arthur

The Hope Yellow Jackets opened their 1948-49 Basketball Season last Friday night by winning the "B" game 38 to 21 and dropping the "A" game to Lake Arthur 45 to 27. The "B" team opened the double header by soundly outscoring Lake Arthur with Blaine McGuire, Yellow Jacket Junior, capturing high point honors by scoring 17 points. Ray Jones, Yellow Jacket Sophomore, followed close behind by hitting 11 points with Tommy Young, Yellow Jacket Senior, scoring 8 points. The "B" team showed the home fans a high geared offense but displayed a poor defense with the entire starting five lacking in pregame experience.

The Yellow Jacket "A" team dropped their game to Lake Arthur 45-27 with the game much closer than the score indicated. It was not until the last quarter that the Yellow Jacket defense weakened which enabled Lake Arthur to widen the margin of victory. Coach Luke Toyobo's Yellow Jackets starting line-up consisting of four freshmen and one senior gave the much experienced Lake Arthur five a close game until the final period at which time Lake Arthur pulled away by a safe margin of victory. Lake Arthur starting line-up consisted of five experienced players, a big advantage in size and height were pressed by the local lads for three full quarters in the Friday night game before the Yellow Jackets yielded.

Lin Harrison, one of the four freshmen on the Yellow Jacket starting line-up was high point man with 8 points. W. G. Madron also scored 6 points with Glen Harrison and Kent Terry scoring 4 points apiece. The Hope five apparently weakened by the absence of Alvin Melton, their starting center, allowed Merritt, Lake Arthur center, to score 21 points with Funk, Lake Arthur forward, also scoring 12 points.

The Yellow Jackets will play Weed here in the local gym Friday, Nov. 19, in their next game of the season. There will be two games with the first game beginning at 7:00 P. M. and the main game at 8:00 P. M. The local lads are pointing for this game after losing the season opener to Lake Arthur so let's all come out and support the local team.

The line-ups and points made by each team follows—
Hope B game—B. McGuire 17 points, R. Jones 11 points, H. Taylor 2 points, D. Young 0, T. Joy 8 points.
Lake Arthur—Christian 2 points, L. Everett 12 points, Valenzuela 4 points, Howard 3 points and Duncar 0.

A game—Hope—W. G. Madron 6 points, L. Harrison 8 points, K. Terry 4 points, Jr. Newsom 1 point, G. Harrison 4 points, R. Jones 1 point, C. Forrester 0, and B. McGuire 3 points.
Lake Arthur—Merritt 23 points, Nelson 4 points, Gomez 2 points, Kimbrough 0, Funk 12, Cogdill 3, Cook 1, Lillard 0, Christian 0, Robinson 0.

School News

Third and Fourth Grade News

We have had much fun this week putting the United States puzzle maps together. We are dressing a paper doll in our social science work. We are using the materials: wool, cotton silk, rayon, nylon, linen, fur, and leather.

Peggy Clements is knitting a doll blanket for her doll and doing a good job of it too. Jackie Stephens knitted a real nice doll hat.

We are very interested in reading from our Spanish primer. We are having some trouble learning to pronounce our words. The fourth grade drew a large circus picture and colored it in bright colors.

Fifth and Sixth Grade News

Anna Lee Madron has moved back to her home at Walnut Grove. She will attend school there. We are sorry to lose her.

It is deer hunting season now. We have made a pretty border of bucks and does. The boys have told many interesting deer stories this week. In our sixth grade arithmetic we are adding fractions. Those who have not been absent or tardy this year are: Letha Mae Newbill, Billy Stephen, Don Harris, Floyd Bryant, Roy Trimble, and Gordon Goddard. Our room has joined the Junior Red Cross. We have 100 per cent membership. Mrs. Lipsett gave our room several magazines and stories to read.

Those who attended the 4-H Club sale and exhibit at Carlebad last Saturday were: Letha Mae Newbill, Billy Crockett, and Bobby Rex Seeley. Billy sold his 4-H calf for $267.60.

Seventh and Eighth Grade News

Lee Mack was absent from school Monday. Mrs. Williams has been absent from teaching school on account of illness. We hope she will be back with us soon. Everyone enjoyed the ball game Friday night, although some of us are hoarse from cheering for Hope.

First and Second Grade News

Do we like parties? Yes, yes, and Jeri Lynn was 6 on Wednesday. That was a good party and such good good cake. Now all the first graders are 6 but Bobby. One group of first graders have read 6 books and the second grade can write all their A B C's. Every morning we show our clean handkerchiefs and practice our "manners". We try so hard not to talk when some one else is talking. Virginia Madron has moved and now there are only 21 of us.

Freshman News

We have one new girl in our class now. Her name is Marline Carter. We are very glad to see Muriel Dickman back in school now. I suppose we will have a little bit of excitement. Raleigh Newbill is going to rob a bank (his little sister's piggy bank). I wonder how long he will be sentenced to prison. Not for long we hope because he is our class president.

Junior News

The Juniors sold candy and popcorn at the ball game Friday night. The return was $16.00. The Hope people should be very proud of their sporting basketball team this year as they will make someone happy every game they play, even if it may be the opponents.

Senior News

The Senior class has a new pupil, Betty Newbill. This makes a total of 9. We still have Christmas cards and all occasion cards for sale. We appreciate anyone who buys from us. We are sorry that Mrs. Williams is unable to teach this week. She is seriously ill. We don't know when she will return, but we hope that it won't be too long. Betty Zane Teague and Elta Chalk missed school Friday. They took a trip to Portales and from all the reports they had a swell time. The former students of Hope seem to be getting along all right but seem to welcome anyone from back home.

New Mexico Extension Service Issues Report

The 1947 annual report of the New Mexico Extension Service has been received. It is the first report attempted in 10 years. It is nicely printed and has illustrations covering all types of work that the extension service specializes in. It gives a report on farming, stock raising, poultry, dairying, what the extension Club Women have been doing 4-H Club boys and girls activities. It is a booklet well worth reading and keeping.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lipsett and Newell had as their guests last week Mrs. Lipsett's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Coulson of Elk City, Okla.

'Such As We' Not In Circulation At Artesia Library

A few weeks ago we published a criticism on a book entitled, "Such As We" by Pierre Sichel. We are glad to announce that this book is not in circulation at the Artesia public library. We are sorry that there was a misunderstanding about this.

Counterspy Jim By Josef Berger

If you want to read an exciting story of the sea during the World War II get "Counterspy Jim," at the Artesia Library. It is good, clean fiction of the highest order. The adventures described are real and will keep you awake until finished.

EDITORIAL—The Meaning Of Truman's Victory

The scope and significance of President Truman's victory deserve to be underscored fully and faithfully.

It was a political victory of national proportion. It was not limited to any section of the country. I came from New England, from the east, the mid-west, the far south. It embraced such widely scattered states as Massachusetts, Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri, Texas, Iowa, California, and Washington. Mr. Truman carried northern states, border states and western states. He won sufficiently elsewhere in the nation to be able to lose 33 southern electoral votes.

It was a victory which represents a substantial cross-section of the electorate. Obviously, its principal single source was the labor vote in the most populous industrial areas. But it was by no means limited to the labor vote. It included farm states which often have voted Republican in the past. Mr. Truman also ran well in the smaller communities as well as the larger cities, and the larger number of independent, switch party voters undoubtedly were on his side.

The President personally fashioned his own victory. Before Philadelphia and after, in his own party tanks, Mr. Truman was Mr. Truman's own, and, for a long time, almost his own cheer leader. He lifted his party from despondency to determination. He lifted up his own candidacy by his bootstraps. The election was not only overwhelming but it was decisive—Christian Science Monitor.

Leaving For Oklahoma

Ralph and Andy Lewis have purchased a ranch near Sallisaw, Oklahoma, and are shipping three truck loads of stock this month to their new location.

New District Attorney

In all probability Eddy County will have a new assistant district attorney when Randy Reese of Roswell, takes over as District Attorney next January. Reese was opposed in the election by Jack McGarry, the present assistant district attorney. Lon P. Watkins, secretary of the County Democratic Central Committee and president of Eddy County Young Democrats, is discussed as prospect for the job—The Little Argus.

Eddy Co. Again Banner Demo Area

Eddy County is again the banner Democratic county in New Mexico, returns from Tuesday's general election discloses.

Eddy County gave Gov. Thomas J. Mabry and other Democratic candidates a bigger majority than any other of the state's 31 counties.

With a total of 10,169, Eddy County had the third largest vote of all counties. Only Bernalillo and Santa Fe counties cast a larger vote, and both of these were in the Republican column in the governor's race.

Eddy County's vote in the governor's race was: Mabry 8,191; Lujan, Eddy County's majority of 6,213. Eddy County's vote was more than twice as great as that of Lea, and this county's vote for Mabry was larger than Chavez county's entire vote.

The Hope precinct gave the Governor 136 votes and Lujan 51 votes.

EDITORIAL

Democratic Leaders Should Consider The Hope Precinct

In view of the fact that Eddy County went over big for the Democratic candidates we think that the Hope precinct should get their share of consideration by the Democratic leaders. Therefore we suggest that Governor Mabry make possible for Hope to have two blocks paved from curb to curb, have a state patrolman assigned to Hope for at least one day a week to stop some of this speeding past the Hope schools, eliminate those hair pin curves between Eagle bridge and Hope on highway 83, contact the state highway department and have them erect signs west of Hope and also east of Hope advising motorists to "SLOW DOWN." This matter of speeding through Hope is getting serious. If something isn't done someone is going to get killed or crippled for life and when that is done all the law enforcement officers in Eddy County and reinforced by the state patrolmen will be up here to find out how it all happened, but then it will be too late. Let us "Lock The Barn Before The Horse Is Stolen." The editor of the Penasco Valley News is not asking a thing for what he did in electing Governor Mabry but he would like to see this speeding stopped and a little road work done in the Hope precinct. How about it Governor? Can we depend on your cooperation.

Stinking Smut Remains Major Wheat Disease

Bunt or stinking smut remains a major wheat disease even though science knows how to control it, demonstrating the need for continual vigilance in preventive measures.

Plant scientists recommend use of resistant varieties combined with treatment of the seed with a reliable fungicide. Where practical, the grower should avoid planting when the soil temperature favors development of smut in the soil.

Horses Need Attention During Stabled Period

Disease and injury that sometimes prove crippling can be prevented by giving special attention to horses' feet during the stabled period. Brittle hoofs, spongy hoofs, thrush and foot canker are the four diseases commonly caused by bad stable conditions.

Clean, dry floors are recommended as a precaution. The feet of stabled animals also should be trimmed at least once a month.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Russ Reject U. N. Berlin Proposal; Stalin Hits Three Western Powers As Attempting to Start a New War

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

DIFFERENT COAL STRIKE . . . French troops in battle array march into the Villiers mine in the St. Etienne area of France as the government seized strike-bound coal mines throughout northern France. Vicious rioting and assorted civil battles preceded the government's action in taking over the mines.

REJECTION: U. N. Proposal

Russia wouldn't play ball with the United Nations on the settlement of the Berlin dispute.

A six-power "face-saving" resolution for solving the crisis was presented to the U. N. security council and promptly batted down by the Soviets—to the surprise of no one concerned.

THE RESOLUTION proposed that Russia lift the Berlin blockade immediately; that the four military governors of Germany begin immediate negotiations to implement the Moscow agreement of August 30 for a Soviet-backed, four-power controlled mark in Berlin by November 20, and that a foreign ministers' council be convened within 10 days thereafter to take up other serious differences over Germany.

Russia's stated objection to the resolution was that it provided for the lifting of the blockade before the currency control went into effect.

Previously, the western powers had turned down Andrei Vishinsky's counter proposal for simultaneous lifting of the blockade and putting into effect the currency agreement.

IN REALITY, this point of difference upon which the latest deadlock centered was a minor one, but it served to illustrate the vast gap that must be closed before a meeting of minds between the East and West can be achieved.

MOREOVER, it has become increasingly clear that Moscow does not even have any desire to lift the blockade. It is, for them, too good a weapon with which to attempt to bludgeon the U. S. and the West into granting them further concessions in Germany, including a voice in the operation of the all-valuable Ruhr industrial area.

STALIN TALKS: 'Horrors'

In what is probably the most amazing outburst he has made since the war, Soviet Premier Josef Stalin told the world that the U. S., Great Britain and France are seeking a new war through a "policy of aggression."

The accusation, despite the high level of its source, amounted to nothing more than a repetition of the already stereotyped Russian practice of attempting to turn an opponent's reasoning back on him.

HOWEVER, he added, the "public forces favoring peace" are too strong to permit "the instigators of a new war" to plunge the world again into the "horrors" of conflict.

Stalin named Winston Churchill as "the main instigator of a new war" and predicted that Churchill's "pupils of aggression" would be rejected by the people just as Churchill has been.

Although he did not label President Truman or any other leader as a "pupil in aggression," the implication was too clear to be mistaken, particularly since the Moscow radio had broadcast a prediction that Mr. Truman would be defeated on November 2.

STALIN accused the U. S. and Britain of twice rejecting settlements of the Berlin crisis with Russia and said that debate on the Berlin question in the U. N. security council "was a display of aggression on the part of Anglo-Americans and French ruling circles."

The British and Americans, the Soviet premier said, declared "null and void" an agreement reached in the Kremlin conferences August 30 that would have

TREATY: On the Way?

In view of the existing physical and ideological rift which has divided the world into two opposing battalions, it has come to seem almost inevitable that the western bloc sooner or later would devise some kind of informal military treaty for the mutual protection of the nations concerned.

AND A few days before the election word began to creep out from among "high American sources" that a military treaty was on the way.

The report was that drafting was scheduled to begin soon of an agreement pledging full aid to the five-nation Brussels alliance of western Europe. Results of the U. S. election were in no way supposed to affect the plan, since both major parties had committed themselves in principle to backing the Brussels alliance.

SUCH AN alliance supposedly will link the United States and Canada in formal treaty relationships with Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

From a behind-the-scenes standpoint, this will not be a new move. It is highly probable, indeed, that the broad outlines of a north Atlantic pact—with some details sketched in—has been in existence for some time.

The alliance is expected to commit the U. S. and Canada to:

1. BUILD up air, land and sea forces of the Brussels powers.
2. STANDARDIZE equipment and training.
3. CREATE a seven-nation unified military strategic command under an American commander-in-chief.
4. PLEDGE a guarantee of each nation's territorial integrity in case of war.
5. GIVE the North American powers the right to establish air, land or sea bases in any of the five other countries.

U. S. officials expect that the treaty will be ready for ratification by the middle of 1949, barring extraordinary events. How congress will react to such a treaty is, for the time being, a debatable question.

SHIPBUILDING: Navy Expands

Increasing importance in the minds of U. S. defense chiefs of underwater and air warfare, including consideration of possible attacks across the Arctic, was revealed in a statement outlining the navy's post-war shipbuilding program.

Vice Adm. Earle M. Mills, chief of the bureau of ships, listed the development of advanced prototypes in four major fields as the aim of the building and conversion plan:

"FIRST, aircraft carriers capable of handling the fast, heavy long-range naval planes developed and under development since the war; second, high-speed, deep-submergence submarines; third, anti-submarine vessels to combat these submarines; fourth, ships equipped for Polar and picket service."

Battleships were not mentioned in the statement, nor was there any direct reference to preparations against air attack over the roof of the globe, but the program's emphasis on polar ships was considered self-explanatory.

IN THIS phase of the program, two destroyer escorts and two submarines will be specially fitted for off-shore aircraft detection. One cargo ship and two floating dry-docks for landing ships will be converted for service in polar waters.

The aircraft carrier part of the program includes the construction, to begin late this year or early in 1949, of the yet-unnamed super-carrier of 85,000 tons, designated as the CVA-58.

Conspicuous First

One of the minor sidelights of the late, great election was provided by Mrs. Fannie Rockwell of Danbury, Conn. She turned 104 years old on October 25 and celebrated this chronological attainment six days later, on November 2, by casting a vote for the first time in her life.

lifted the Soviet blockade and ended the crisis. HE CHARGED that the western powers fear "most of all" to reach any agreement with the Soviet Union.

"What they want is not agreement and cooperation, but talk about agreement," and cooperation, so as to put the blame on the U. S. S. R. by preventing agreement, and to 'prove' that cooperation is impossible."

Stalin's statement obviously was issued as a high-powered propaganda stroke—a move the Russians undoubtedly hoped would tip the Berlin scales in their favor.

Headliners

IN YORK, Pa. . . Mrs. Walter Sechrist made a wide-eyed announcement that her gas range picks up short wave transmissions made by her next-door neighbor, an amateur radio operator, vowed it had broadcast a conversation between the neighbor and another operator in South America.

IN SALEM, Mass. . . Robert C. Carter claimed in a divorce suit that his wife had deserted him a block from the church just two minutes after they were married in 1944.

IN HAGERSTOWN, Mo. . . Thieves broke into the Potomac Edison building, got away with a specially equipped camera set up to take pictures of thieves breaking into the Potomac Edison building.

IN LITTLE BRICKHILL, Eng. . . Postmaster N. C. Parrott looked down his nose at the man with the gun trying to rob him of his postal receipts, sneered, "The revolver is not loaded, you know." "Sorry," said the crushed desperado, slinking away.

IN DURAND, Wis. . . Frank Weiminski was forced to reassure his customers as to the fact that he still was in the popcorn and soft drink business after he began making deliveries with an old hearse.

BLUFFING:

In Berlin

Gen. H. H. Arnold, wartime commander-in-chief of the U. S. air forces, turned up in the news with a military man's hearty opinion about what to do with the Russians in Berlin.

"WHY NOT take a motor convoy and push it through the corridor to Berlin?" he suggested. "Perhaps we might have learned something from Gen. George Patton's technique. If Patton were running the show he would take it through."

Russia, he claimed, is attempting a tremendous bluff against the U. S. and the western allies, but is "not ready to fight, doesn't want to fight and won't fight" if someone should call her bluff.

WHAT would the Russians do if an armed convoy did plow through the blockade? "Not much, if anything," was Arnold's laconic estimate.

"It would be a grave and basic error to let the Communists bluff us out in the present deadlock in Germany."

"They are not ready to fight and they do not want to fight. We should curb the national tendency to be in awe of the Russians, an awe amounting almost to fear."

Nicest Compliment I've Had

One of the nicest comments I've received about this column was from an editor in the Middle West I called on. And while I don't like to give myself orchids, I think it illustrates a point.

"Joe," he said, "it so happens I don't agree with everything you say, but I always like to run your column. Because it gets down to earth and talks about the right to disagree. And it only asks for tolerance towards the other person's point of view."

He went on to explain, by way of illustration, that he never had happened to have a taste for ale or beer. But that when I spoke of the right to enjoy a moderate beverage like beer, well, he was right there with me!

And from where I sit, that's the important thing: not whether you share another person's tastes or point of view—but whether you recognize his right to exercise a free choice in a free land.

Better Care, Feeding
Increase Hog Profits
Improved Rations and Cleanliness Stressed

Extra care for the brood sow and her litter, with emphasis on cleanliness and better feeding, will assure extra profits whether the herd includes one sow or a hundred.

Proof of that assertion is contained in the experience of Joseph O'Bryan of Hiatville, Kas., nationally-known breeder and exhibitor of purebred Hampshires, who raises about 3,000 hogs a year, most of them for market.

Although O'Bryan raises hogs on a wholesale scale, he keeps his operation on an individual farm basis as a means of insuring proper care. A program of better care and better feeding for sows and their litters, introduced on his farms in the fall of 1947, already has paid dividends, O'Bryan reports. With 100 litters last spring, he raised as much pork as he formerly raised from 150.

Early in the gestation period sows were given a special ration of 80 per cent oats, 5 per cent meat scrap, 4 per cent pelleted milk product and the balance either corn or wheat. Sows were sprayed and washed thoroughly prior to farrowing. Clean pens and a brooder for the little pigs also were provided. The sow's ration was changed when the pigs were about two weeks old, cutting down oats to about 40 per cent and increasing portions of wheat or corn.

At less than two weeks of age little pigs were started creep feeding in a low pan or trough. Their ration consisted of 80 per cent oats, 4 per cent meat scrap, 8 per cent pelleted milk product and the balance course wheat. Pans and troughs were washed and disinfected regularly. As the little pigs grow, oats in the ration is reduced while corn or wheat is increased to about 70 to 80 per cent.

Summarizing the program, O'Bryan maintains that he had much stronger pigs at birth, with earlier, faster and cheaper gains and a marked reduction in mortality.

WANTED: One Home

If a flock of Leghorn hens were to go househunting, they would look for just about the same comforts as their human prototypes.

Sufficient space, good ventilation, uniform temperatures, a sturdy foundation and floors are a few of the recommendations for housing the birds, according to suggestions in a revised extension bulletin on "Poultry Housing" issued by the University of Minnesota.

Like all construction, building a poultry house is an expensive proposition. As it is difficult to correct mistakes after the building is up, flock owners are advised to consider their problem and needs carefully before starting construction.

Plans for Farm Wiring Should Envision Future

Plan for future as well as present needs when wiring a farm, rural electrification specialists advise farm families. Wiring is a permanent improvement, so there should be an adequate system in the home as well as in other farm buildings.

All buildings should have a proper size load center or protective device, enough sets of wires or circuits and a sufficient number of outlets.

'Police Force'

Plenty of organic matter is a good "police force" for ridding soil of bacteria that cause diseases of growing crops. R. C. Thomas, associate pathologist of the Ohio agricultural experiment station, estimates that 50 million bacteria live in a single ounce of soil. Some of these are beneficial. Others are harmful to crops. The good kind rot the organic matter and release plant nutrients to build a fertile soil. The harmful kind cause plant disease.

Adding organic matter to soil will help increase the good kind and at the same time cut down the harmful bacteria population. Adding organic matter makes the soil a better home for the good kind so they flourish and grow. Extracts from organic matter contain viruses that make disease-causing bacteria harmless to plants.

A good soil management program will increase the soil's organic matter supply and help free the land of disease-causing bacteria.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

By symptoms may be nagging headache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Business Principles Required on Farms

Operation by Guess or 'By Neighbor' Deplored

Cash, credit, equipment, soil fertility and human strength are involved on the ledger of assets controlled by the farmer and rancher—assets that become liabilities when management is lacking.

Probably 90 per cent of the difference between a poor farm or ranch and a profitable one is in the management. Good business principles lead a farmer ahead, whereas one who operates by intuition, by guess or "by neighbor" never gets ahead.

Here are a few points necessary to good farm or ranch management:

- KEEP RECORDS. This assures factual data to use in determining production possibilities of the farm or ranch. See that yields of crops, production of livestock, cash expenses and receipts are recorded properly.
- WATCH MARKET TRENDS. By consistently reading market outlooks or discussions on prices, which reflect the most probable future situations, farmers and ranchers will have a guide to use in planning production. Thus they will be able to have produce ready to sell at the right time to realize the highest price and still have livestock and land more fertile for the following year.
- PLAN LABOR. Make it tie in with seasons for care of machinery and equipment, time for planting, care of crops, harvesting and marketing.
- PLAN THE FARMSTEAD AND FIELDS. Make rotations easy, save labor and increase yields by adapting crops to land.

Study in Contrasts

Long a standby of agriculture in the South, "Sally" views with interest the "new look" in Georgia farming. Latest figures show a steady decrease in the number of mules used for farm power in this state. Replacing them are jeeps, representing another step forward in farm mechanization. Equipped with hydraulic lifts and numerous other special implements and attachments, jeeps have speeded up farm operations and eased the work burden for both farmer and mule.

Mysterious 'X Disease' Termed Serious Threat

"Hyperkeratosis" is the jaw-breaking name of a baffling cattle disease now causing trouble on thousands of farms, particularly in southeastern states.

Known also by the simpler terms of "X disease" and "double X disease," the new malady has caused serious loss in at least 26 states and poses a serious threat to output of meat, milk and other animal products.

One symptom of the disease is a marked thickening of the skin. So far, efforts to transmit it and to treat it with drugs have been unsuccessful.

Agriculture department scientists are cooperating with specialists of several southeastern states in an intensive study of the disease.

Poor Rich Woman

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.
By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"IS THERE any way in which a plain and uninteresting woman can make herself the right wife for a popular and successful man?" Anne Wright asks pathetically in a letter that comes to me from Detroit.

"Joe and I were terribly happy in the little place out West," she goes on. "There were friends in our town, gardens, movies, nice neighbors. Everyone had small children, a small car, school worries and measles worries. My mother lived next door and a dearly loved brother and sister with small families not far away. It was all so terribly happy!

"Then Joe's invention—long a family joke—actually sold and he was offered a magnificent position here in the East. We have two girls, 12 and 15, and at first they were excited as I was, by the change. But the three of us are homesick now. We've got our fur coats and the big cars with a man to drive us. When we first walked into this hotel suite, we just couldn't believe our eyes. Two sitting rooms, three bathrooms, four big bedrooms and even our own dining room. It was like a dream!

They Entertain Lavishly.

"We give dinners which cost plenty, but they don't satisfy Joe and they are ordeals to me. He can talk, he interests other men. I'm a perfect dud. The girls know it and it makes them uneasy and shy. But I never pretended to have anything but a high school education and my folks were plainer even than Joe's.

"We've got our big cars..."

"We don't belong here and we don't belong rich. We're just making ourselves ridiculous by putting on all these airs. Yet how can I ask Joe to go back to the little cottage in Jay street or make the girls give up all they have in the way of opportunities and new clothes?"

"But Joe knows I'm miserable," the letter ends, "and it makes him sorry for me and yet mad, too. Something seems to have gone out of our marriage, with all this gold coming in, and I don't know what to do. I can't make myself smart, charming and entertaining and I can't make Joe a failure. There's the situation. What can we do?"

Anne, my dear, Joe doesn't have to do anything and the girls are all right. They will accustom themselves to their new glories faster and faster. But you've got to make some changes.

All charming women are not well-dressed chatterboxes. Some of the most beloved women in the world have been the silent type. Sympathetic interest, intelligent listening—these are priceless assets in any social gathering.

Use Pleasant Phrases.

Of course you have to have some pleasant easy phrases ready when you greet your guests, lead them to your room to lay wraps aside, introduce them to each other. Practice this sort of talk as simply as you would have used it at home. It only has to be a hospitable murmur, accompanied by a friendly smile.

For the rest—look lovely and look yourself. Have someone make you the clothes in which you feel comfortable—not too much bosom and arms exposed, full comfortable skirts that are also picturesque. Have your hair always brushed and smooth and your dinner unpretentious.

No woman need be dowdy, dull or plain. With a clear skin, groomed hair, becoming clothes, the homeliest among us is attractive. If there were space here, I could tell you about Hollywood beauties and stars who started life handicapped with weak eyes, bad skins, stutters, homely faces and hopeless figures.

Your problem is that of many women. If you lose your Joe, you may be sure it will be your own fault.

Growth of Baby Teeth

When a baby is born his first teeth are already formed in the gums, although they usually don't begin to come through until between the sixth and eighth month.

The diet of the mother before the baby was born determines the health of the baby's teeth, which begin growing five or six months before birth.

The permanent teeth as well as the baby teeth begin to form before birth. The baby's diet affects the condition of these second teeth. Calcium in milk and Vitamin D in fish-liver oil are essential for strong healthy teeth.

Peppertree Inn

By JEAN RANDALL

SYNOPSIS
The loss of their family fortune is accepted stoically by the Bristol family, including Professor Bristol, invalid archeologist; his daughter, Rosemary, and Simmons, a family "fixure." The only property salvaged is Peppertree Inn, a Southern California hotel. Kent Standish, scion of a wealthy family and Rosemary's sweetheart since childhood days, wants to settle their dilemma by marrying Rosemary, but his mother objects until he proves he can earn his own living as well as his wife's. Meanwhile, in California Judge Elliot induces his son, Bob, owner of an avocado grove, to assume temporary management of the inn.

CHAPTER IV

"We're going to California to manage our inn ourselves," Rosemary said.

"Going to—Darling, are you crazy?" Kent asked.

"Simmons and I had a talk. He never used to discuss things with me before but now he actually treats me as if I were grown up. He said our bank account is getting pretty low. The reason is—"

"The reason your bank account is low or the reason Simmons confides in you now?"

"Simmons. You see, I wrote to the man who sold Dad the inn. No, he didn't actually sell it because he didn't own it but—"

"That sounds reasonable. Go on."

"It's a judge."

"What's a judge?"

"He is, Judge Elliot. I suppose he's a real estate man too, as well as a lawyer. Anyhow it was through him that we got Peppertree Inn. And Dad had a bad time right after—well, after we got engaged, I suppose you'd call it—"

"I do. I certainly do!"

"Kent, I'll never be able to tell you if you keep interrupting like that. The thing is I wrote to this Judge Elliot once or twice myself; first to remind him we hadn't had any check that month from the inn—"

"Sorry, but I'll have to cut in just this once, darling, so I can keep up with that leaping mind of yours. When the sale was made it was agreed the Judge should send a monthly check to the Professor? I can't seem to get the connection. I thought that kind of business was conducted on a percentage of the profits, or something like that."

"Yes, that's what the Judge wrote me; and there haven't been any profits lately because the manager ran away with all the money."

"What manager? What money? Rosemary, are you sure you know what you're talking about?"

"Of course," she said indignantly. "It's perfectly simple. Listen. There was a man named Richards, Thomas Benton Richards. He owned the inn. Are you with me so far?"

"With you."

"He had a daughter—her name isn't Richards because she married somebody in New York state who owned a farm—I think it was a stock farm, or maybe it was apples. Yes, I'm sure now it was apples and it wasn't a farm but an orchard. And that's how Dad came to buy the inn!"

He shook his head. "You lost me back there—on the farm, I think it was."

"Well, anyhow we own the inn," she hurried on. "And we don't own much else. The inn needs a manager, and we need a place to live, and what could be better than Southern California? Palm trees and roses and all. Simmons thinks we'd better start right away and I think so, too."

"You know I can't let you go that far away from me," he told her presently in a voice which was low and husky. "I thought by this time I'd have a job that would take care of all of us. I thought Madre would relent about my allowance when she realized I was in earnest."

Kent Proposes 'Marvelous' Idea

"I wish you could get the right sort of position in California but I suppose not. Not in Bellevista anyway. It's just a village, the Judge says. They grow avocados."

"Then how can your father make money out of his inn even if you do go out there?"

"Tourists," she told him promptly. "Not the hard-up kind but wealthy people who go to California for a long stay. They want something between a boarding house and an apartment, and Peppertree Inn's the answer."

"This Judge Bristol say so?"

"Yes, and there are a lot of photographs. It's a darling place. It really does have a peppertree and flowers and all. And its own beach, Kent! I can hardly wait to see it."

"You're really going then—to California—to this Bellevista place?"

"We've got to, Kent. They're going to begin remodeling the house next week. We'd have to move somewhere, and as long as we own a hotel, it seems foolish not to use it."

He admitted the wisdom of this. "But I'm going with you and look Rosemary! Didn't you say your inn was short a manager? Why don't I be he—him—it?"

"Oh, Kent, what a marv—but we couldn't pay you a very big salary, I'm afraid. You see, Simmons was going to manage it and we already are paying him, so . . ."

"Simmons! A fine hotel manager he'd make! Never mind about the salary, darling. We can settle that when we get out there. Lookit! Why don't we drive out? You and I in the front, the Professor and Simmons in back? Zip across the country, staying at night wherever we want to, eating the same way—gosh, we'd have fun!"

"You know I can't let you go that far away from me."

"Yes," she said longingly, "but we can't. It would be too hard on Dad."

"Then let Simmons take him by train—better yet, fly—and you and I'll—"

"Not that either. I'd love it, though. No, we'll meet you there, Kent. Or you could start first and be there when—"

"I hate to drive all that way alone. It's darned lonesome without somebody to talk to. Wonder if Madre would like to go along?"

Picturesque Inn Intrigues Rosemary

"Just for the ride, you mean?"

"Well, and to observe me being a manager, too—for a while, anyway. Money in our pockets, darling. Madre always takes the most expensive suite, you know."

"Wouldn't it—wouldn't it be better to wait and have her come after you'd had a little more experience? There might be things you had to learn about an inn, and you'd want your mother to see you at your best, it seems to me."

"What's it like? I mean—what things to learn? All a manager does is manage, whether it's a city hotel or a village inn. Keep the bellhops hopping and the housekeeper keeping house—isn't that about the size of it?"

"I don't know, Kent. How should I? I should think there'd have to be bookkeeping and buying supplies—"

"I can keep books," he assured her proudly, "and Madre will tell you that there are few who can surpass me when it comes to buying anything. You know, sweetheart, I begin to think we've got something—in this Peppertree Inn. There's a feeling coming over me, and I think it's a surge of enthusiasm for inn-keeping. We'll swim and we'll ride and we'll play tennis. . . . When do we start for Bellevista?"

"You aren't really serious—about managing the inn?"

"Absolutely serious. It's a job, isn't it? And if I hold it for six months we can be married. After that—but we needn't think about what we'll do then. As a matter of fact, I expect Madre'll give in long before that. The only thing I'm afraid of is that when she hears of this plan she'll telephone Herriot to scare up a job for me here."

"You wouldn't take it?"

"Certainly not. You in California and me here? Besides, I'm getting keener on this inn business by the minute. Mine host—his me!"

To begin with, there was no one to meet them at the station in Bellevista. Rosemary herself had wired

Judge Elliot the time of their arrival, asking to have a wheel chair meet the train for her father. And now here they were, tired, travel-stained, and thoroughly depressed; and no sign of wheel chair or its attendant.

Simmons and the porter helped the professor into the waiting room. "It's too bad, ducky," Rosemary told him. "But we'll have you tucked in bed within the next half hour. Simmons, I'm going to telephone the inn. You stay here with Dad."

She dialed the number, heard the repeated ringing of the bell at the end of the line, but there was no answer. She consulted the directory once more, dialed again; no results. She looked about the small station. It was empty save for a gray-haired man at the ticket window.

"How far is the inn from here? Peppertree Inn? And where can I get a taxi?"

"I reckon you'll find one in front of the inn. They're generally one hanging around that neighborhood."

"Don't they meet the trains? I thought—"

"Sure they do; that is, most times. There's only a few cabs, and sometimes they're busy taking tourists around to see the sights; the orange groves and such like. You can walk to the inn, though. It's only a few blocks."

"My father can't walk." She indicated the Professor with a movement of her head. "And we have a lot of luggage. Isn't there some place I can telephone?"

He reflected, then offered a suggestion. "Whyn't you walk to the inn and send a taxi back here? You need a chair, too, don't you? They got one. Right up the street for two blocks, turn left and you'll come to a big peppertree. You'll know the place by the sign: Peppertree Inn."

She explained the situation to her father and set forth briskly according to directions. After the long days in the train, she enjoyed the short walk.

Bellevista, she thought, certainly lived up to its name. Small, picturesque houses clung precariously to the hills which rose almost from the beach itself.

The first thing she saw was the inn itself. She stopped to survey it happily. It was a hundred times better than the photographs. A low white plaster building, it rambled contentedly beneath great trees.

Inside was a combination lobby and living-room with deep, comfortable chairs, couches, a concert piano.

"Perfect!" thought the girl. "But where is everybody?"

There was no one at the desk, no one in the lobby. The telephone was ringing madly. "No wonder I couldn't get an answer," she mused, and resisted an impulse to answer it. That is, she resisted it for a minute or so, then she reached for the instrument and said: "Hello!"

"Hello!" said a man's voice. "Peppertree Inn? Who's speaking?"

"The manager," she replied firmly.

"The manager? But that's impossible. . . . Hetty, is this you? Call Hal, will you? I'm in a hurry."

Rosemary said truthfully: "Hal's not here just now. In fact, no one seems to be here. Is there something I can do for you? I am the manager; at least the temporary manager."

"That surprises me a little because I thought I was. Never mind, we can discuss that when I get back. I'll be held up out here for an hour or so and I want Hal to take the desk till I get there. Would you mind looking for him, Miss Temporary Manager?"

Phone Conversation Proves Confusing

"Where would I be likely to find him? What does he look like?"

"Another time," the voice promised. "I really am in a hurry now. Hal should be in the lobby. If he's not, then I suppose he's in the kitchen swiping something to eat. The cook'll point him out to you. I'll hold the line—no, better have Hal call me. He knows where I am. Good-bye!"

"Well!" exclaimed Rosemary aloud, as she replaced the telephone in its cradle. "That's a cool person, if I ever talked to one! So I'm to go to the kitchen to find Hal. Yes, and what am I to say to Hal if I find him? 'Somebody called you up and said you'd know where he is and to call him.' And how do I know where the kitchen is? I never saw a hotel kitchen. I can't go blundering about, opening doors—"

At this point a door opened without an effort of her own, and a girl came into the lobby.

"Hello," she said. "Where's Bob?"

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Amos 5:21-6:6; 7:10-17; Micah 4:1-5; 5:2-4; 6:6-8
DEVOTIONAL READING: Isaiah 55.

Voices of God
Lesson for November 14, 1948

"WHAT became of our lost mules?" That is the kind of question which prophets once upon a time were expected to answer (I Samuel 9:1-10).

Dr. Foreman

Hired Man and Aristocrat

THE genuine prophets, whose writings make up so much of the Bible, are something far loftier than mere fortune-tellers. They are authentic voices of God. Because of the way they spoke, the timeless truth of what they said, they are God's spokesmen to our own times as well as to their own, and to all times.

The Bible prophets were not "professionals." They had no churches to support them. No regular meetings were arranged for them. You never would have read in the Jerusalem Journal, if there had been such a newspaper, that the Rev. Dr. Isaiah would preach at the temple at 11 a. m. and there would be special music. Few ever knew when or where a prophet might speak.

No one knew beforehand where a prophet might come from. Amos, for example, was a hired man from a sheep-ranch. Micah was a small-town preacher. Isaiah was a highly cultured citizen of the capital, intimate with all the important people. Ezekiel was a trained priest, loving ritual and pageantry. Jeremiah was a lonely, hunted man, living often in jails. Daniel was a member of a king's council, wealthy and famous.

Their Times and Ours

HUMAN nature is always much the same. One man alone, or one man with another man, or a man with a woman, or a man in a crowd—in the Eighth century before Christ when Amos preached, or now in the 20th century after Christ, the same sort of situation brings out the same temptations, the same sins. The prophets often sound quite modern, but that is only because the human race is so old-fashioned.

The prophets looked about them and saw a world much like our own. They saw people spending more than they could afford; they saw wealthy women dressing in competition with one another while poorer women starved.

The prophets lived in evil times and they brought the judgment of God to such times—then, now and always.

Sins of Society

IN AN American town there was a lynching one Saturday night. The next morning there were four sermons in the four little churches of the town; but not one of the preachers had a word to say about that lynching or any lynching or about the causes that produce such crimes.

The prophets never would have missed an opportunity like that. They were not afraid to speak out, even when they had the whole community against them.

What Does God Require?

IT IS easier to say "Don't" than "Do." It is easier to criticize than to construct. But the prophets did not stop with warnings. They have given us a pattern for living, which Micah summed up in those matchless, inspired words: "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Everything that is good, in public life or in private, is included in those 22 words.

LORETTA YOUNG is all in favor of Oregon as a picture-making background. As a rule stars dread location trips. Working outdoors day after day and living under conditions different from those at home usually result in loss of weight, sometimes in sickness. But Loretta was on location in Oregon for six weeks for RKO's "Rachel and the Stranger," and gained eight pounds. More than once she has dieted in the hope of gaining, but unsuccessfully. Good food, fresh air, and Oregon, that's the recipe.

Eve Arden, star of "Our Miss Brooks," has had successful careers in the movies, on the stage, now in radio. But she says that perfection in one medium is not much help in another. The projected performance of the stage would look hammy on the screen; the screen's restrained acting would be dull on the stage. Then in radio, you're not seen at all!

Felix Bressart has never played a role without a mustache since early in his career, when his wife threatened to leave him after he shaved his head and face, to play a grumpy old man. In "A Song Is Born" he uses what he calls his "standard hair brush mustache." "Comedy and tragedy are a hair's breadth apart, and I use a mustache to bridge that narrow gap," he says.

It has taken Dorothy Malone nearly six years to reach the place she attained in "One Sunday Afternoon," opposite Dennis Morgan. Tall, dark, beautiful, she began playing bits and posing for publicity photos at RKO.

Reminiscing on the set for "Every Girl Should Be Married," Alan Mowbray told how he lost his money aboard ship when coming here from England, years ago. A hotel kept his luggage when he couldn't pay his bill, so he slept under a tree in Central Park, ate rolls left on trays in the Automat and drank hot water flavored with catsup, till he landed a job.

Francis L. Sullivan, arriving in Hollywood for his role in "Joan of Arc," with Ingrid Bergman, carried a small, perforated box. It contained Mrs. Sullivan's pet turtles, brought along so that she would not get too homesick for her country place in England, where she has so many small animals and birds. The Sullivans' turtles should meet James Mason's cats.

New film star Jim Mitchell ("Honor Across the Street") and "Colorado Territory" told Atwater Kent he'd like some ivy for his garden. Kent sent some 2,000 plants—Jim needed about two dozen. Anybody want some ivy?

Wallace R. Magill, producer of more than 700 "Telephone Hour" programs starring music's greatest names, gets along beautifully with even the most temperamental musicians, perhaps because he's a musician himself. He's the only person who calls Lily Pons "Didi." It started when, after a bit of clowning, she called him "Mr. Magee." He came back with "Didi," his version of "diminutive diva," the popular label for La Pons.

Lucille Ball of the movies and CBS's "My Favorite Husband" is very proud of the cranberry glass chandelier in her living room. Her mother searched "all over Connecticut" to find one, proudly sent it to the coast. It got broken when it was being unpacked, whereupon the fond parent had to start searching again till she found a duplicate.

Single Dish Suppers Please Family Tastes; Most Prepare Quickly

EVERY HOMEMAKER needs several special dishes on which she can draw for Sunday night suppers and other occasions when company appears and needs hot and hearty refreshment. There are covered dish suppers at the church which are so popular, and then, too, the youngsters coming home from school games and events may want something to warm them as well as to satisfy their appetites.

Plan to serve either a salad or dessert or both as one of the main dishes, depending upon the appetites, and, of course on the type of supper you are serving. All of the recipes I'm giving you today are bound to be special favorites.

Baked Beans
1 quart dried navy beans
1 teaspoon soda
1 medium onion
1/2 cup molasses
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 pound salt pork
1 1/2 cups tomato juice
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
Soak beans in cold water (to cover) overnight. Drain, cover with cold water and add baking soda. Bring to a boil and boil 15 minutes. Drain, cover with fresh water and bring to a boil again. Drain.

Baked beans make an outstandingly good supper for Sunday night or for entertaining informally for men folk or youngsters who like their food hearty, but good to eat.

Place the onion at the bottom of the pot and add beans, molasses, brown sugar, seasonings and juice. Cut pork into small pieces and press into the beans. Add enough water to cover the beans. Bake, covered, in a slow (325-degree) oven for five hours, adding more water when necessary to keep the beans from drying. Remove cover, bring pork to the surface and bake for one hour longer.

BAKED BEANS ARE good when served with the following dessert and salad:

*Cabbage-Fruit Salad
(Serves 6)
2 cups finely shredded cabbage
1 cup diced pineapple
2 red apples, cored and diced
Mayonnaise
Toss all ingredients together with enough mayonnaise to make creamy.

Orange Sponge Pudding
(Serves 5)
2 cups bread crumbs
1 pint milk
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 orange
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
2 beaten egg whites

Place bread crumbs in top of double boiler with milk and cook until soft. Then add remaining ingredients. Pour mixture into a buttered baking dish and bake in a slow (325-degree) oven until firm. Serve with the following sauce: Beat two egg yolks until thick; add one-fourth cup of powdered sugar and the juice and grated rind of one-half orange. Just before serving fold in one cup of cream, whipped. The pudding may be baked as the beans finish since the oven temperature is the same.
