County Board Asks Construction On Five Eddy Co. Roads

The Board of County Commissioners voted to recommend to the State Highway commission that three primary highways and two secondary roads be built concurrently.

The commissioners acted after meeting with the highway committees of the Carlsbad and Artesia Chambers of Commerce in the courthouse. The board's recommendations were based on those of the chamber committees which presented an identical 1949 program, and on the road projects of the county secondary road committee which were decided through a land-use planning program.

Primary roads, listed in the order in which they appeared on the chamber committees' program and on which concurrent construction was recommended by the commissioners follow:

Widening, provision of 24-foot paving strip, construction of necessary structures to provide drainage on U. S. Highway 180 from White's City to Carlsbad, and U. S. Highway 285 from Carlsbad extending north through First Street in Artesia to the Chaves County line.

Widening of shoulders and provision of 24-foot mat on U. S. Highway 180, beginning at Canal Street in Carlsbad and extending east approximately 18 miles to the junction of U. S. Highway 180 with State Highway 31.

Rebuilding of State Highway 83 west of Artesia at a point approximately 12 miles west running in a southwesterly direction, taking out all curves and building a new bridge and entering the City of Hope at a point to be determined by the survey.

The committees and the commissioners voted to make this project No. 3 under primary roads instead of No. 5 under the secondary road program. Present position of the Eagle Draw bridge would be changed under this project.

Mayor Oren C. Roberts of Artesia was chairman of the meeting. Also from Artesia were Luther A. Sharpe, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Emery Carper.

Representing the Carlsbad chamber were Harold R. Miller, manager; Dean R. Wait, Neil McKim, R. T. Spence, Dallas Rierson, county agent, who has worked with the county road committee in the land-use planning program, and George L. Reese, Jr., Democratic county chairman, also attended.—Current-Argus, 1-11-49.

Hope Splits Games With Dexter Teams

The Hope "B" team won the first game last Friday night against Dexter 19-8, with the Hope varsity dropping their game 40-25. The starting lineup for the Hope "B" team consisted of C. Forrester and Ray Jones at guards; Tommy Joy and Glenn Harrison at forwards and T. Harrison at center. This combination easily out-played the Dexter Demons in the preliminary game with R. Jones scoring 11 points to lead the Yellow Jacket attack. G. Harrison also scored four points, C. Forrester 1, T. Harrison 3 in the "B" game.

The Hope varsity dropped their game to Dexter after trailing the entire game. The Yellow Jackets were playing under par and were thoroughly out-played by the Demons. The Hope five was a cold ball club and missed numerous shots inside the free-throw line with their usual offensive attack failing to click. After a two-week holiday vacation and with just four days of practice, the Yellow Jackets failed to gain their pre-holiday form. The Hope cagers will play Carizozo here in the local gym Friday night, Jan. 14 with the first game called at 7 p. m. and the main game at 8 o'clock.

Starting lineup "A" game:
Hope: W. G. Madron 2, B. McGuire 4, K. Terry 7, A. Melton 6, L. Harrison 6.

Dexter: Monk 8, Hardin 2, Green 7, Larrough 9, Grey 8, Florez 6.

New Mexico Notes

... FROM A WHEEL CHAIR
(By Katherine B. Mabry)

While Santa Fe shopkeepers, hotels and restaurants are looking forward to the convening of the 1949 legislature with joy, other parts of the state in less direct contact with the law making body may have some misgivings.

To the average layman, perhaps, there invariably comes the thought and fear of too many poor laws—or maybe just too many laws. But, perhaps, this fear is not always justified.

We must remember that when a new law is written there is generally a corresponding repeal of another whose place it takes. This is not always true, but it is the case more frequently than not. So we need not fear that the compiled, or sum total, of all laws to date of last enactments will overwhelm us in size and content.

I do not disagree with the governor when he says we need "fewer but better laws," but I also believe that if we use experience as the basis of improving our laws as we go along we need not have too much fear that we will have too many laws.

If Congress and the states had stopped writing law twenty years ago, we would, for example, have been without many of the desirable improvements in aid to the indigent and aged; to the public health; aid to state highway construction and public buildings; better control over our natural resources, laws for the protection of women and children and equalization of the tax burden and work for the jobless. We would have found our up to date economy in many ways tied to the hitching post of the horse and buggy days.

One nice thing about laws written into the books by Congress and the legislature, unlike constitutional changes, they can be repealed within two years; so I don't get too excited over any errors that will be made.

And, speaking of legislators, I do not share the feeling of many that we need all lawyers in the legislature, though we do need some to put the right words in the right places, to express the intention, and also for the fine contribution they can otherwise make. But I believe that we also need the viewpoint and understanding of the farmer, the laborer and the business man, who, in many instances may have a better understanding of the problem at hand than the lawyer. I believe our method of scattering representation of professions, vocations and business in the legislature, just as we are doing it, is quite satisfactory.

We often pay too little attention to the character of men and women we elect to the legislature—and even to Congress. We forget that presidents and United States senators and governors, have no more important functions in many instances than have our legislators; at least they do not deal with matters so near to home, oftentimes. We see and know some of the mediocre material we send to our legislature and forget, perhaps, that this kind does not fairly represent the whole body.

Considering what these men and women are paid, I believe we of New Mexico have been fortunate in having suffered so little from poor legislation. But I also believe we would suffer even less if we attached the importance we should to the selection of those we send to represent us in this body—and incidentally, if we paid them enough to attract busy and able men and women to the task which, nearly everyone agrees, we do not.

Well, we are looking forward to a busy and interesting time when our legislature sits down to its 60-day task of looking over the state's needs and trying to improve things. I hope we do not attach too much importance to the few, or many, as the case may be, personal, party or factional bickerings that will inevitably, as always, engage some of their attention. The important thing to watch is the general picture of devotion, or lack of it, to the public interest.

First National Bank Deposits Nearly Nine Million

With deposits of the First National Bank of Artesia at an all-time record high of nearly nine million dollars on Dec. 18, they had dropped back somewhat to $8,236,641.66, according to the statement of the bank as of the close of business Dec. 31, as the cotton season had peaked out.

However, it is estimated cotton loans not completed as yet in the Artesia area will total a million dollars, so it is possible bank deposits will stage another upsurge within the next few weeks, when that money starts coming in.

The deposits at the end of the year were likewise somewhat down from the same date a year ago, when the statement showed a total of $8,453,410.51.

On the other hand, loans and discounts showed more than a 50 per cent gain during 1948, the Dec 31 statement revealing a total of $3,511,513.94, as compared with $2,235,063.17 on Dec. 31, 1947. Loans and deposits on that date in 1946 were $1,906,726.83.

The peak deposits of $8,992,000 on Dec. 18 were nearly a half million dollars more than the previous record of eight and a half million dollars in December, 1947.

The statement last June 30 showed total deposits of $7,852,761.28, from which the climb to nearly nine million dollars was made in five and a half months. After the start of the cotton picking season in 1947, when the bank made an official statement as of Oct. 6, deposits were $6,726,088.36.

Deposits first surpassed eight million dollars in 1946, when they were reported at $8,056,102.69 on Nov. 17. They were $7,627,835.52 on Dec. 31, 1946, as compared with $6,162,415.56 on Dec. 31, 1945.

The recent statement showed capital stock and surplus fund each at $200,000, each double what the statement a year ago showed. The stock was increased in December by vote of the board of directors to $200,000 from $150,000, and was offered to stockholders of record at that time at two for one.

At the same time the directors voted a semi-annual dividend of 7½ per cent, as has been paid to shareholders twice a year for a number of years.

The Dec. 31 statement shows the officers and directors the same as last June 30, with the exception of H. A. Spies, one of the vice presidents, who resigned as of Dec. 10.—The Artesia Advocate.

Frankie Brdecko of Deming has also been awarded a trip to Denver for having the most outstanding 4-H agricultural record for 1948. The 4-H'ers and their coaches will be accompanied to the 4-H Round-up by Santiago Apodaca, assistant state 4-H club leader.

At Denver, the New Mexico boys and girls will take part, along with 75 club members from other states, in educational demonstrations, discussions, recreation, contests, and exhibi-

First National Bank Officers Are Re-Elected

All officers of the First National Bank were re-elected at a meeting Tuesday afternoon, when the directors organized for the coming year after the annual election held by shareholders.

At the shareholders' meeting, it was decided to increase the membership of the board of directors from 10 to 12. However, there had been only nine directors since early December, when H. A. Spies resigned.

The officers re-elected: President, Ross Sears; vice presidents, L. B. Feather and Fred Cole; cashier, Doyle Hankins; assistant cashiers, C. F. Hammett, Martha Broocke, George H. Ferriman, and Vernon Watson.

The three new directors are Bryan Ryan, Russell Rogers, and Clyde Guy.

Hold-over directors are Ross Sears, L. B. Feather, Fred Cole, Emery Carper, Jesse I. Funk, T. J. Sively, J. S. Ward, Neil B. Watson, and Charles R. Martin.

Annual Feeders' Day Is Set For Feb. 14 At New Mexico A&M

Feb. 14 has been set as the date for the tenth annual Feeders' Day at New Mexico A & M College, according to J. H. Knox, head of the animal husbandry department. All farmers and ranchers interested in stock feeding, and in the feeding experiments conducted by the New Mexico Agricultural Experiment Station, are invited to come.

During the day, visitors will hear reports on the feeding research conducted at the college and will see the experimentally-fed animals in the college corrals. Among these experiments is one designed to find the least amount of grain necessary to fatten cattle satisfactorily. Another compares the value of roughages in lamb-fattening rations.

"Although our list of guest speakers is not complete, the program will also include discussions of other problems in producing and marketing fattened animals in New Mexico," Knox said.

Feeders' Day was first held at New Mexico A & M in 1937. It was discontinued during the war, but was resumed in 1946. The day is sponsored jointly by the Experiment Station and the Extension Service.

School News

5th and 6th Grade News—Our January border is pretty. It is also very appropriate for the weather we are having. Little snow birds dressed up like real children are making big fat snow men and having fun sliding down banks of snow on their sleds. The weather is cold and the roads are icy, but most of us have been in school every day. We will take our first semester examinations on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. We spent Tuesday in reviewing all of our books. Roy Trimble and Patsy Wells are absent from school because of illness. In our health class we are studying good health habits and rules.

3rd and 4th Grade News—The boys have made some free hand drawings of horses and it seems that the palomino is their favorite horse. The girls drew birds. We are glad to have George Chalk, Alice Wilkinson, Jackie Stephens and Charles Nunnelee back in school, as they have been absent, due to illness. We are very sorry that Phyllis Bush is absent from school with the measles. We are studying for our six weeks spelling tests.

7th Grade News—Barbara is back again. She was late because of icy weather. Jerry is back to school. He was absent yesterday because he wanted to see Wilma come in late. She has a few skinned knees. Alta Ruth is busy practicing her piano lessons. She intends to know her lesson. Babe Ann is studying as usual. Her big blue eyes shining. Tootsie is very sad because she has to stay in this evening, but she will have company no doubt. John is busy whispering to Sammie. They are also shooting spit wads. They may be studying now, we haven't time to look. If we turn around, we might get hit.

Those Greener Pastures

The old saying that "grass is greener on the other side of the fence" has a scientific basis in fact, according to Dr. William A. Albrecht, head of the soils department of the University of Missouri.

Cattle's grazing habits, he said, are based on a search for feed that will best nourish them.

"When a cow risks her neck to get grass on the other side of the fence," he declared, "she is showing good sense. She does this because the neighboring grass not only looks, but is greener. She is instinctively seeking grass from soil high in protein producing elements."

Feed that contains body-building bone-making values comes only from soil that is high in mineral fertility, Dr. Albrecht said. Declining soil fertility means a decline in the health of our livestock, our crops and ourselves.

Dr. Albrecht warned that widespread loss of "life-giving elements" from the soil is becoming more serious.

Rebuilding the soil's fertility strength so that it can produce crops with body building values, said Dr. Albrecht, depends on proper soil management. That includes liming, the growing of deep-rooted legumes regularly in the rotation, the use of phosphate and potash fertilizers and the return of barnyard manures and green manures to balance fertility losses through crop removals.

From Chick-Fed Mink To Chic Fur Coats

Poultry raising habits of wild mink have provided a tip for economy in the feeding of captive mink which for years have been fed on horse meat and fish.

But the fondness of mink for poultry suggested the feeding of the waste from poultry dressing plants—the heads, feet and entrails. Experiments proved that both adult mink and kits thrived on this cheaper diet.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Asserts Red Aims Split As Some Leaders Desire Accord; Dutch Firm on Indonesian Stand

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

COLD WAR: Someone Tiring

If Harry S. Truman were right, then possibility of war with Russia was less than many Americans imagined. In a "surprise" statement during an unheralded appearance at a luncheon in Kansas City, President Truman declared bluntly that "certain leaders" in Russia "are exceedingly anxious to reach an agreement with the United States to end the cold war."

THEN THE PRESIDENT lashed out with an accusation that the Soviets have violated "sacred" agreements and said their government "has a system of morals that are not moral."

Deliberately or not, President Truman was baring some closeted secrets when he said during that speech that the Russians had not kept important agreements made at Yalta and Potsdam. By that statement, the President was conceding charges of long duration that certain commitments were made at these two parleys with the Russians which were not generally known, and results of which led to accusations that American diplomacy had failed miserably in negotiations with Russia's Josef Stalin.

The President's position was far from an earlier expansive statement that Stalin was a "nice old fellow."

He did not identify the Red leaders who prefer an "understanding"—as he put it—with the United States, but he asserted that there are Soviet top men who have no desire for war. Neither did the President say whether any overtures had been made by such Russian leaders.

The President said frankly: "I made certain specific agreements at Potsdam, none of which have been kept. Certain agreements were made at Yalta, none of which have been kept."

He reiterated that "all the United States wants is peace."

INDONESIA: Dutch Stubborn

Stubbornness is a characteristic trait of the Dutch—and Holland was running true to form. Despite announcement by the United States, from which she is receiving Marshall plan aid, that the invasion of Indonesia must stop, the Dutch said, in effect, they'd think the order over.

THE UNITED NATIONS was concerned, but a Russian step to the fore in demanding a cease-fire order and troop withdrawal in 24 hours did the Indonesians no good. This time, the U. S. abstained from voting and the Russian proposal lost.

However, the American position was difficult of understanding, and the statement of American delegate Philip Jessup did little to clarify it.

"I decline to be put in a false position by other delegations," he said. "The record of the United States on Indonesia is before the world."

BUT ALSO BEFORE the world was the issue of American prestige and the integrity of the Marshall plan. America stood for help for Indonesia; America controlled the powerful weapons of economic aid to the Dutch. Yet, America, as yet, had delivered no ultimatum to the nation whose foray into Indonesia was being helped by American dollars. And the American delegate had declined to vote for a cease-fire order in the Indonesian fighting—joining Great Britain in the vote declination.

Whatever else was true, and regardless of motives, the assertion of the Soviet Ukrainian delegate appeared to be true. He charged: "Without United States financial help, the Netherlands would have been unable to wage war in Indonesia."

Operation 'Tactful'

Sociology was looking up. The Australian Legion of Ex-Servicemen and Women had taken up the task of helping young veterans and their wives with "in-law" troubles. They started a scheme to enable veterans forced by housing shortages to live with parents-in-law to exchange homes with others.

Spokesmen for the legion said many English marriages had been saved from disaster by a similar scheme operating in Britain. They found couples could live happier with strangers where they were paying guests.

Taft Laughed

Usually pontifically serious, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio was in an expansive mood as he chatted with newsmen on his return to Washington following a tour of Europe. He praised the operation of the economic cooperation administration (Marshall plan).

FOR CHINA: Watch and Wait

U. S. policy on China, for the time being at least, appeared to be one of watching and waiting, coupled with a resounding diplomatic silence.

America had two good considerations upon which to base that policy:

1. THE UNITED STATES stood convinced that nothing other than direct intervention in the military situation in China would change the course of events, and that the government is not prepared to intervene to that extent.

2. There is, in the United States, an inaccurate assumption that American economic aid is a fool-proof solution to the difficulties of other countries; that this aid, if put into a given country as raw materials are put into a machine, would suddenly be processed into an effective, finished product. Life was not precisely like that—especially in China.

To all of which might be added these two additional factors:

1. The United States was caught in this dilemma: If it issues a statement supporting the Nationalists, as Mme. Chiang Kai-shek urged, it might merely associate itself with the collapse of the present Chinese regime without preventing that collapse.

2. On the other hand, if it explains why it is not granting further aid to Chiang, and publishes what has happened to previous aid, it might hasten Chiang's collapse.

Hence, the attitude of watchful waiting.

MARSHALL: How Long?

The question of who would be President Truman's secretary of state was concerning official Washington and the diplomatic centers of the world.

Ailing Gen. George C. Marshall was ordered to rest, observe strict dietary instructions. Evidence was largely at hand that the President was reluctant to trust the touchy problems of international policy in less experienced hands, yet the chief problem persisted: Could Marshall carry on effectively despite his serious ailment—loss of a kidney through operation?

THE PRESIDENT appeared committed to a policy of letting Marshall stay on, or, rather, keeping Marshall on the job despite any desire of the latter to give up his post.

A close associate of the President was quoted as saying the chief executive was willing to wait until Marshall recovered sufficiently to do a full-time job, even if that should require months. Robert A. Lovett, said not to "gee" as well with the President as Marshall did, would continue to act for Marshall while the latter rested.

SOME OF THE President's friends declared that if he should finally decide that Marshall can't carry the load, he probably would like to have Chief Justice Fred Vinson take over.

To do so would mean a great personal sacrifice for the Kentuckian, for his position on the court is permanent, while an administration change might leave him out in the cold—and Vinson is no young man, either.

PROBERS: Want More Law

Probers looking officially into the activity of foreign espionage agents in the United States were becoming irked. Too many witnesses had fallen back on the constitutional guarantee of immunity to questioning by claiming the possibility of self-incrimination.

The probe group would put an end to that—they would provide stiffer penalties for contempt of such groups.

REPRESENTATIVE MUNDT, of South Dakota, and Nixon, of California, Republicans, authors of the proposal, did not specify just how much stiffer they would make the penalty for persons convicted of contempt of congress. They did comment that "offenders should be severely and appropriately punished."

Existing law provides a maximum penalty of one year's imprisonment and a $1,000 fine.

Among "reforms" suggested for probe group procedure was protection of the right of all witnesses to counsel in both closed and open sessions; right of the accused to testify in open session; right of the accused to submit questions.

The new congress was to be given the proposals.

MEDICINE: U. S. on Pan

Plans for socialized medicine received a rough setback when the Hoover committee reported it had found "waste and extravagance" in the present federal setup, which it described as without "any central plan."

FINDINGS of the committee—a "task force" of the Hoover commission on organization of the executive branch of the government—were sure to be hailed with delight by members of the American Medical association battling against enactment by congress of a program of socialized medicine.

The investigating group, however, made it plain in its report that compulsory health insurance was outside the scope of its inquiry.

But, even so, its declaration that governmental medical agencies and its program were inadequate and inefficient was certain to be construed as whistling over two strikes on the compulsory health insurance adherents.

THE FACT-FINDING group recommended a sweeping reorganization of federal medical services, and urged channeling of federal subsidies to the upbuilding of medical schools and community and private hospitals, with a minimum of supervision by the government.

The report asserted the government is assuming uncalculated obligations without any understanding of their ultimate cost, the lack of professional manpower to carry them out, or their adverse effect on the hospital system of the country.

BEST COWBOY: No Film Star

The small fry could bellow and complain all they liked—the best cowboy was not Gene Autry or Roy Rogers.

Instead he is Gerald Roberts, Phoenix, Ariz., who was top cowboy—world's champion, to get technical—for 1948. The Rodeo Cowboys association announced Roberts was the best all-round cowboy of the year, and they had the records to prove it.

ROBERTS won top honors by leading the 2,100 professional cowboys who were scored in the association's system for 575 rodeos in the U. S. and Canada.

The scoring system was based on one of the most impressive factors in any American competition—the dollar. One point was scored for each dollar won in competition, and Roberts ended the 1948 season with winnings of $21,866 in cash awards. There was no arguing with that sort of record.

Company Improves Side Delivery Rake

Completely Engineered For Power Operations

A new side-delivery rake, engineered from the ground up for power take-off raking and tedding, and completely designed for mechanized farming is now in production.

Manufacturers declare that a "history of the side-delivery rake, which is the machine you see piling up long rows of hay, straw and other crops for baling, shows that there has been little or no change in the machine since the advent of the tractor. It's the first all-new rake in 50 years."

Exclusive features of the rake are the floating reel and basket which permits use of the full length of the 64 pairs of raking teeth at all times and a positive chain pitch control which changes the angle of the teeth for different raking conditions.

Two speeds forward and one speed for tedding, or reverse raking, permit the operation of the reake at high tractor speeds. The four-bar reel is V-belt powered from the chain-driven power take-off.

The rake is this manufacturer's third contribution toward complete mechanization of haymaking. A first one-man, twine-tying pick-up baler produced commercially, and the new field bale loader already have cut huge chunks from the farmer's haymaking schedule.

Support for Bossy

This scantily-clad bovine beauty attracted wolf whistles at the second annual National Farm show in Chicago by appearing in a newly designed udder support. The novel "unmentionable" is said by the manufacturer to increase a cow's milk yield by 35 per cent.

New Animal Repellent Will Lessen Free Meals

Animal wildlife will find free lunches fewer and farther between next year. A new product developed by the B. F. Goodrich chemical company and tested by the state of Maine fish and game department at its Swan Island wildlife refuge, may be just what farmers have been seeking.

At Swan Island, the new material has been sprayed on leafy crops by biologists who observe that it will not wash off and that a deer, after nipping at the treated leaves, will turn up his nose at future free meals. Certain types of insects also are discouraged by the action of the repellent, researchers revealed.

Crop damage by raiding wild deer runs in excess of $150,000 annually in some districts of Maine and amounts to millions nationally. The search for satisfactory repellents has been a major project.

Son Outsmarts Dad
WALTER was the proud owner of a black mongrel, which was a nuisance to the rest of the household. But Walter was so devoted to the dog that he could not be persuaded to part with it.
 At last Walter's father made him an offer.
 "My boy," he said. "I'll give you $10 if you'll get rid of that dog."
 The following morning Walter came to him and told him that the mongrel had gone.
 "That's excellent news," said his father. "Here's the money. How did you get rid of him?"
 Walter smiled as he pocketed the money.
 "I swapped him with Reggie Jones for two black puppies."

Shopper's Battle
 The tall, dignified man joined the crowd in front of a bargain counter, in an attempt to get a very special pair of hose for his wife. He inched his way patiently, but was buffeted here and there by the women, and made no progress.
 Suddenly he lowered his head, stretched out his arms, and barged through the crowd.
 "Can't you act like a gentleman?" inquired a cold feminine voice at his elbow.
 "I've been acting like a gentleman for the past hour," replied the man, still charging forward. "From now on I'm going to act like a lady."

Dogs Don't Vote
 One day when he was a senator, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was listening to a colleague who was delivering a long-winded address on the plight of the nation's dogs. Dog food, wailed the colleague, was being sold for human consumption, creating a food shortage for the canine population.
 When the senator had concluded his eloquent address, a friend asked Byrnes:
 "What did you think of his speech?"
 "Not bad," replied Byrnes. "What a pity that dogs don't vote."

'Star-Spangled Banner' Once Just Another Tune

Bet you never heard this little-known fact before. "The Star-Spangled Banner" was once just another patriotic tune known as "The Defense Fort McHenry." The words were written in 1814 by Francis Scott Key, a lawyer of Maryland, who witnessed the British bombardment of nearby Fort McHenry during the War of 1812.

The lyric at once gained popularity as a national air. "The Star-Spangled Banner," however, was not officially named and designated as the national anthem until congress so legislated March 3, 1931.

His Growing Years

Lesson for January 16, 1949

DOUBTLESS God can do anything he wants to do. He could have sent Jesus to earth on a moon-beam; he could have had him for the first 30 years of his life on a lonely peak in the Andes, far from any human dwelling; he could have sent him into the world full-grown, without ever having to go through the grind of growing and learning as the rest of us do. But God did not plan it that way. If the manhood of Jesus was to be real, and not a hothouse facsimile, he had to come up the hard way.

No 'Good Chance'

THE world around us makes its impression on us; it makes no impression on dolls. They go on smiling their built-in, painted-on smiles, but we have to learn through tears. And so did Jesus.

He grew up in a village "off the main line," among companions not one of whom ever became famous, working through long years at a simple and not too well-paid trade. During Jesus' first 30 years his neighbors never guessed that the most extraordinary person of history was living in their village.

We sometimes wish that we had an easier time of it, and that God had seen fit to cast our lot in some big city with a rich family, instead of where we are. We feel we could be better people if we "had a chance." Yet every reader of these lines has a far better chance than Jesus.

Holy Family

WE CALL Joseph and Mary and the rest the "Holy Family," but they were not known that way in Nazareth. They were just Joseph the carpenter, and his Mary. Then there were the boys and girls; Mark (6:3) tells the boys' names, but no one ever remembered to put down the sisters' names. Even then it was no small family. Jesus, as the oldest of seven, would have many responsibilities. After Joseph's death he would be the chief breadwinner. Seeing that the rent was paid, that there was grain in the house for Mary to grind into meal, finding money for clothes for seven growing children—this could not have been easy for Jesus the young carpenter.

They were not an easy family to live with, those boys and girls. When Jesus later began his work of teaching and healing, we hear that even his brothers did not believe in him. But in spite of the brothers, there was always Mary. Mother-like, she loved her first-born as no other could or did.

There are some who worship her as "Queen of Heaven;" but it is enough for us to remember that she was queen of the home where Jesus the child grew to be Jesus the man. Not this side of heaven can we know how much we owe, as Christians, to this one woman, whose mind and spirit were woven into the thought and spirit of her Son.

Home Memories

INDEED, Jesus' whole boyhood was woven into his manhood. Among life's most precious memories are those of our growing years. Later on, we can see how Jesus' mind was bright with memories of home. The parables of the patched garment, of the leaven hidden in the meal, of the poor woman hunting with a lamp for her one lost coin, of the hungry neighbor at midnight, of the son who said "I go" but did not go—these and many others may well be echoes of Jesus' boyhood home. Deeper than these are Jesus' habits of prayer, his fondness for calling God "Father," his familiarity with Scripture even in death's agony—here surely are patterns learned in childhood's growing years.

MIRROR of your MIND

The Fear Of Death

Is the fear of death instinctive?

Answer: I do not believe it is directly so, if only because no living person has experienced death or knows what it is like. But all of us have had two types of experience, pain and frustration, and learned to fear them both, and one or the other is the basis of what death means to most people. The average person fears death either because he believes it will involve terrible suffering (which, of course, it may not) or because, as one man put it, "I can't bear to think of missing all the fun that I get out of living."

seem to be that except for the "unattached" themselves no one particularly cares what happens to them. The majority of us seem to feel—unfairly in most cases—that a person who refuses to be or remain a member of a family unit has no claim upon us.

Is psychiatry at best "a drop in the bucket"?

Answer: It is, in the sense that there are not enough practicing psychiatrists to treat more than perhaps five per cent of the people who need their help. But one drop of ink in a bucket of water will tint the whole painful, and it is no less true that ideas originating with psychiatry are coloring the thinking, if not always the behavior of millions of men and women who have had no direct contact with it. Modern theories of education as well as of parent training have a largely psychiatric basis, and criminal law may come next.

Does society neglect the "unattached"?

Answer: Yes, especially in cities, writes Arnold M. Rose in the American Journal of Sociology. Except for the wealthy, it is very hard for any man or woman who lives alone to find satisfactory housing, food, or recreation, or even facilities for wardrobe repairs. The reason would

KEEPING HEALTHY

Can't Live by Vegetables Alone

By Dr. James W. Barton

WHILE there may be a few "strict" vegetarians who apparently are as healthy and vigorous as meat eaters, in the great majority of cases it will be found that they eat butter, egg and milk which, of course, are animal foods. Why should man eat animal products?

Each food stuff—protein, fats, starches—has a special duty or duties to perform in the body, the special duty of proteins being to maintain the structures and cells of the body and to replace those that are worn out. In addition, proteins can supply energy. The special duty of fat and starch foods is to supply energy.

Further, an examination of the stomach and intestines of man and animals clearly proves that man was meant to have a mixed diet—meat, fats, starches—other animals mostly vegetables and grasses, and certain other animals a protein diet only. This has been worked out ac-ording to the length of the trunk of all three.

At the Chicago World's Fair the stomach and intestines of a cow, a dog and a man were shown, in which it could be seen that a cow's stomach (two stomachs) and intestines were much larger and longer than that of a man, and man's much longer than those of a dog.

Animals that live entirely on grasses and vegetables, as the cow, have a larger stomach and longer intestine than those which live on meats alone, or meats and vegetables.

The stomach and intestine of man are not adapted to receive and digest such bulky and un-mixed diets as are advocated by "strict" vegetarians.

It would be difficult for man to eat a large enough bulk of vegetables to obtain his needs for proteins, vitamins and minerals. Further, first-class proteins are found in animal foods—meat, milk, eggs, fish—and the other proteins in vegetables—peas, beans, rice cereals.

Peppertree Inn

By JEAN RANDALL

SYNOPSIS

The loss of their family fortune is accepted stoically by the Bristol family, including Professor Bristol, invalid archeologist; his daughter, Rosemary, and Simmons, a family "fixtured." The only property salvaged is Peppertree Inn, and the Bristols move to California to operate it. Rosemary experiences the hectic turmoil of an innkeeper's existence and is grateful for the aid of Bob Elliot. Bob leaves when Kent Standish arrives as manager. Kent envisages a string of inns and departs on a survey trip. A gala dance party ends disastrously when thieves loot the inn of money and jewelry. Upon his return, Kent is furious with Rosemary and Bob.

CHAPTER XIV

"Wait, Rosemary, Standish is right, to a certain extent," Bob interposed. "I should have foreseen that there was a possibility of a robbery when I came here and saw all that stuff on display. But if I gave the matter any thought at all, I probably believed the gems to be imitation. In any event, no great harm has been done. The insurance covers all loss, even the destruction of the office. The inn won't suffer because of the robbery. On the contrary, as I've been explaining to Rosemary—"

Kent took a step forward. "You do too darned much explaining to Rosemary," he said violently. "Why were you here, in the first place—in an advisory capacity, I mean? I am manager of Peppertree Inn. I don't recall asking you to pinch hit for me while I was away. The fact of the matter is, Elliot, I don't like anything about this affair from start to finish. From what Durham tells me, Rosemary didn't ask you for a suggestion about this party. You drove in of your own accord and put the idea up to her. It was no business of yours how many guests the inn lost or gained."

"Kent, stop this! Stop it right now!" Rosemary spoke sharply. She had kept her eyes on Bob's face during Standish's speech and she was horrified to see the vein in his left temple throbbing visibly. She remembered what Ellen Carter had told her of Bob's anger. He looked furious, she thought now, with his face white beneath its tan, his lips compressed. "I've never seen you like this, Kent. I can only excuse you on the grounds that you're tired, you've been worried about me; but even so, you've said a lot of things you'll be sorry for in the morning. Bob, I'll say good night now, and thank you again for all you've done to help today."

"And now you need to get some sleep. You certainly didn't have much last night. Good night! Night, Standish. You know where to find me if you have anything else to say."

When Bob had gone she said sternly: "Now, Kent, tell me what you mean by behaving like this!"

"Better follow Elliot's advice and go to bed. We'll talk in the morning."

"Are you jealous of Bob, by any chance?"

He gave a short laugh. "Jealous? Concerning you, you mean? I hope I have better sense! No, it's just that I want him to stop poking his nose into the management of the inn. Here I am, driving up and down along the Coast, talking up Peppertree Inns with city managers and Chambers of Commerce and bankers; selling the idea that a chain of inns of the type I've made this one—"

"You've made it?"

Kent's Jealousy Pleases Rosemary

"Certainly, I made it. Things were in a nice mess when I took over, much worse than you realized. Then when I get it running smoothly and go away, Elliot has to put in his two cents' worth again and get everything balled up. Have you seen the papers?"

"Yes, I've seen them; enough of them anyway," she told him wearily. "You're all wrong about Bob, Kent. Peppertree Inn was practically empty before we started the fancy dress party idea. I wrote you about the sunburn case and the effect it had on the guests; I talked to you over the telephone. Why didn't you suggest something, if you didn't want Bob Elliot helping out?"

"Because it wasn't necessary. In a few weeks everybody would have forgotten about the sunburn case. They'll be a long time forgetting this robbery."

"And you hold Bob responsible for the robbery?"

"I do. He had no business putting that party up to you, to begin with. He had no business—"

"Kent, I'm not exactly a moron. I didn't have to agree to the party unless I thought it was wise. I did think it wise, I still do. Not one of our present guests has left and we've had reservations for rooms ahead all day."

"Well, there's to be no more excitement; at least of Elliot's making. I shall—"

"Kent, stop being silly! You talk as if Bob hired the robbers as a publicity stunt."

"What's his interest in the inn, if you come right down to it?"

"None at all except trying to be kind to me." Her voice shook a little

"And you hold Bob responsible for the robbery?"

but she steadied it. "He knows how much Peppertree Inn means to me. Ellen Carter told him how badly I felt over losing so many of the guests, and in the goodness of his heart he drove in and suggested the party. If you can't be grateful to him from a business viewpoint, I should think at least you'd appreciate his wanting to help me out."

"He's too darned willing to help you in any way he can!" She smiled at him suddenly. He was jealous of Bob, after all! Reading those lurid headlines it had suddenly come to him that another man was standing by the girl to whom he was engaged. He had driven hard to reach the inn, poor Kent, and then found her gone; gone with Bob Elliot and returning almost at midnight.

Exhausting Day Ends in Quarrel

"Where's your mother, Kent?"

"I left her in Santa Maria. I'll have to go back there tomorrow so there was no point in her taking that long drive. Just promise me one thing, darling, and then we'll drop the subject. Don't let Elliot give you any more advice about the inn."

"It's my inn, you know, Kent, after all."

"Yours? Your father's, you mean."

She shook her head. "No, he transferred the deed to me two weeks ago. Peppertree Inn belongs to me. And—and I don't like the idea of a chain of inns, Kent. I mean—couldn't you call them something else? Hibiscus inns, or Jasmine. . . but let's keep just one Peppertree Inn."

"Why?"

"I don't believe I can make you understand, but I'll try. This is the first time—and place—that I've ever done anything worth while. I've . . . well, I've grown up here, Kent. Peppertree Inn is not only my place of business, it's my home, I love every inch of it."

"Your home! Nonsense. Rosemary. We won't live here when we're married. We're going back to Philadelphia and live with Madre. I can fly out here as often as I'm needed. California's all right for a visit now and then but it's not a place I want to live in."

"But I might, you know," she said softly. "In fact, I do."

"Are you going to be stubborn about this, Rosemary? Stubborn and sentimental? Madre was afraid you would."

"Your mother said I was—"

"She didn't use those words, of course. She simply said she didn't think you'd want to leave the inn. I told her I knew you better than she did; that I could count on your wanting what I wanted; what was best for me in a business way. It seems that I was mistaken."

"How about your wanting what I want, Kent?"

"You're talking like a child, Rosemary. As nearly as I can make out what you want is to live the rest of your life in Peppertree Inn, with or without me."

Something snapped with Rosemary. She said: "Without you, Kent

I think," and walked out of the dining-room.

They made up their quarrel the next morning, of course. Kent's apology arrived with a boxful of gardenias while she was dressing.

He was his most charming self at breakfast.

"Madre sent you this," he said, handing her a tissue-wrapped box when they had finished. "She found them in an old Spanish shop, and she had them filled for you."

The box held a pair of gold filigree perfume bottles.

"I'll write your mother to thank her, but you'll tell her yourself how pleased I am?"

"Of course. Shall we have our talk now, darling?"

"Kent, dear, must we talk?" She answered her own question. "Yes, of course we must. Shall we go out to the seat under the peppertree?"

"I find I'm allergic to peppertrees this morning. How about your sitting-room? I saw Simmons just wheeling the Professor out-of-doors."

When they reached her room, he began at once.

"Rosemary, I've been trying my best to understand how you feel about your inn. I want to get your point of view. But aren't you being a little—well, young-girlish about it? You said you'd grown up here, darling, but isn't it rather immature to attach so much importance to a place—a name? Peppertree Inn—Bellevista—they're just stopovers on the journey. I think you're confusing the effect that Southern California is having on you with other things."

"What other things?"

"You mentioned some of them last night: getting a little business experience, being independent, helping your father. You could have done all that just as well in Keokuk, Iowa, or Portland, Oregon. You could have taken a job at home as a secretary, or you could have sold books in Nashville, Tennessee. The place doesn't matter, the inn doesn't matter."

"Yes, I see what you mean, Kent. But I shouldn't have grown fond of a boarding house in Iowa, I'm sure, and I wouldn't have objected to your starting a chain of lending libraries clear across the country and giving them the name of the one where I'd learned to sell or rent books. There's only one Peppertree Inn. There always will be only one for me no matter how many others you build along the Coast."

"In that case," he said laughing, "there's no argument, is there? You keep this inn and I'll build others. But seriously, darling, do you think you're being fair to me? For nearly a month I've given all I have to this idea of a string of Peppertree Inns. You knew what I was—am doing. I'll look like a fool if I have to go back over my route and explain that I'm still going to build these inns but the name has to be changed."

She said slowly, "I do see what you mean about the name, Kent. If you're determined to go on with this idea of yours—"

"Idea? It's rapidly becoming a mighty concrete fact. I've bought up or taken options upon sites for five inns already. We're ready to begin production, as the movies say. In three months—"

"Why are you in such a hurry about this, Kent?" she asked.

He gave her a patient look. "I like to do things in a hurry. There's nothing to be gained by fooling around after you've got all your facts and figures. That's one reason. The other is that I'm anxious to get back home. Herriot writes he can use me now in the firm."

"And your inns?"

Kent Pushes Marriage Plans

"I told you last night. I can fly out here whenever it's necessary. Now may we drop the subject of inns and settle something a little more important, more personal?"

"What, Kent?"

"Our marriage, darling. Madre's been talking to me about that. She says I've been trying to rush you and I suppose I have. For a while I couldn't see beyond my present job, but that's all changed now, of course. Say we set the date for October—you can't call that rushing you, can you?—and have it take place in Philadelphia. I suppose your father can come back for it even if he does want to make his permanent home out here—"

"Kent, wait! You're going too fast. Have you forgotten that our home in the East is sold? You surely don't expect me to be married in a hotel!"

"No, of course not. You'll be married from your own home."

"Your mother's?"

Bruises on Livestock Reduce Meat Values

High Number of Injuries
Result of Carelessness

One of the less spectacular but nevertheless important factors contributing to the reduction of meat and livestock values is the waste of meat and lower grading of pork cuts because of bruising.

In view of this it is important to the welfare of the livestock industry and consumer alike that more care and patience be used in handling hogs.

Bruise tests conducted recently by the Live Stock Sanitary Committee at Sioux City, Iowa, on 5,708 hogs

Tests made on 5,708 hogs indicate that the hams receive more bruises than any other part of the animal.

indicate that there are more bruises on hams than on all other major parts of market hogs.

When the animals are driven they tend to turn away from the driver, which often results in their getting hit or kicked on the hams.

The bruise tests on the hogs turned up a total of 902 bruised hams, 207 bruised bellies, 146 bruised shoulders and 134 bruised backs.

Hams are much more often bruised on the lower part of the cushion and shank, or collar, according to the tests which showed 511 and 653 bruises respectively. This indicates that hogs probably are bruised when being driven or sorted.

Most of the injuries are surface bruises, and many are caused by the driver kicking the hog or punching the animal with a cane, sorting pole, club, end gate rod or some other handy instrument.

Some of the ham bruises are caused by protruding nails, broken boards, bolt heads or ends of gate hinges in yards, alleys and loading chutes.

Others occur when trucks are not flush with loading or unloading chutes and platforms and the legs of the hogs slip into the space between the truck and the chutes, scraping the sides of the shanks up to the cushion of the ham.

Dollars for Barley

For writing an essay on "How Can We Make the Barley Crop Bring More Dollars Per Acre?" Bobby V. Bruegger, of Plymouth, Wis., has been named winner in a contest conducted among high school students of vocational agriculture by the Midwest Barley Improvement association.

Bobby, who is 15 years old, and in his sophomore year in the Plymouth high school, won the award, which consists of $50 in cash, in competition with hundreds of high school students in the five Midwest states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and Iowa.

As the winner of the Midwest regional prize, young Bruegger also was a winner of the first Wisconsin state prize of $25 and the Sheboygan county prize of $5 in the contest.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Bruegger, Bobby helps with the work of the family's 40-acre farm, where the principal crops are grains and alfalfa. He has been active in 4-H

Poultry TB Eliminated In One Year With Care

Tuberculosis in chickens can be eradicated in one year, according to Prof. Frank E. Mussehl of the University of Nebraska poultry department.

He advises raising chickens in clean quarters and on clean ground, changing the location of the range every year. Eliminate or sell old hens from the flock by June 1 of each year unless the birds are very high grade breeders.

Pacific Island Farm

"Pigs is pigs," no matter where you find them—even on the Pacific island of Guam in the Marianas. On farms established by the U. S. naval government on Guam, American sailors instruct natives in modern agricultural methods. Produce from the farms is used for naval personnel (who are fond of food anyway) for the rehabilitation of the natives. In the photo an American seaman is driving some of the pigs to feed.

Proper Carburetor Use Cuts Farm Fuel Costs

A heavy tractor operating under a load with the carburetor slightly out of adjustment may burn a half-gallon more fuel per hour. In the average 50 days a year that farm tractors operate, the tractor may burn 250 gallons more fuel annually than it should.

Proper carburetor adjustment would save 10 per cent of the total fuel burned in farm tractors annually.

Summer Milk Slump Costs Farmer Plenty

"Summer slump" in milk production costs farmers plenty in good, hard cash. On the average farm there is about a 30 per cent drop from May until early fall.

Some of the loss in production arises because a higher percentage of cows are dry or approaching the end of their lactation period, but many dairy specialists believe that much of the loss could be prevented by better management.

Splendid Cough
Relief Is Easily
Mixed at Home

To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix this recipe in your kitchen. Once tried, you'll never be without it.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its quick action on throat and bronchial irritations.

Put the Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint of splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. Never spoils. Tastes fine. And for quick, blessed relief, it is surprising. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you sleep. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

beans and cook five minutes longer. Add water and heat to boiling.

THERE ARE MORE than creamy potatoes to the following recipe. With the additional ingredients used to glorify them, you may use them for a light lunch or supper.

- Stuffed Idaho Surprises
(Serves 6)
 - 3 Idaho potatoes, baked
 - 6 frankfurters, sliced
 - 1 cup diced celery
 - 1 small onion
 - 2 to 3 tablespoons shortening
 - ½ pound quick-melting cheese
- Saute the frankfurters, celery and onion in shortening; add a little water and steam until celery is done. Allow water to evaporate. Cut baked potatoes lengthwise and remove potato from skin. Mash the potato, adding seasoning and milk until they are creamy and smooth. Fill potato shell with frankfurter mixture; then a thin slice of cheese and top with the mashed potato. Place in a moderate (350 degree) oven until tops are lightly browned, about 15 to 20 minutes.

- Escalloped Spinach
(Serves 10)
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups cracker crumbs
- 4 tablespoons melted butter
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups cooked spinach

Mix all ingredients thoroughly, reserving about ½ cup of buttered crumbs for the top. Place in a buttered casserole and cover with crumbs. Bake in a slow oven (325 degree) until crumbs are browned and the mixture is set in the center, about 35 minutes.

- French-Fried Cauliflower
(Serves 6 to 8)
- 4½ cups cooked cauliflowerets
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 cup dry bread crumbs

Dip cauliflower into slightly beaten eggs, roll in bread crumbs and let stand at least one-half hour.

Cauliflower will look prettier and taste better when you serve it with canned tomato sauce and a bit of Parmesan cheese as a pep-up touch. This may also be used as an idea for a vegetable platter, adding green beans or peas to surround the cauliflower.

Fry in deep, hot fat (350 degree) until brown. Drain on absorbent paper.

- Broccoli Souffle
(Serves 4)
- 3 eggs, separated
- ½ cup hot, thick white sauce
- 1 cup chopped, cooked broccoli
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Beat egg yolks and add to white sauce. Add broccoli and cheese. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for 50 minutes. Serve with cheese sauce: make two cups thick white sauce with three tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour and two cups milk. Season with one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and add one-half cup grated American cheese. Cook in double boiler until cheese melts.

- Fried Brussels Sprouts
(Serves 6)
- 1 onion, chopped
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 4 cups cooked Brussels Sprouts

Cook onion in butter until tender, add sprouts and toss gently until heated thoroughly.

Ten years can make a big difference. That youngster, now in pigtails, will be grown up and ready for college in 10 years. Or you may be ready to tackle that pet project of yours, a new home, retirement, or starting a small business. Yes, 10 years can make a difference in many things. Money, for instance. If you go about it right you can make today's money grow, right along with those plans for the future.
 Figure, today, how much you'll need in 10 years. Then put aside the amount in U. S. Savings Bonds each week, enough to equal the total you have in mind, always remembering that for every three dollars you invest today, you will receive four dollars in 10 years. If you are on a payroll, join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. If you are self-employed, enroll for the Bond-a-Month Plan at your own bank.

In a drive to stamp out aftosa (foot and mouth disease) from Mexico in two years, a joint U. S.-Mexico commission has undertaken the job of vaccinating from eight to 10 million cattle in the affected area by the end of 1949. Trained teams go ahead of the nine teams of vaccinators to preach the benefits of vaccination and convince the sometimes ignorant cattle owners that vaccination is the only alternative to disaster.
 By the end of 1949 the program will have cost approximately 50 million dollars. It includes five points: constant inspection, disinfection, eradication, vaccination and quarantine.
 The vaccination process itself is simple. A needle of the vaccine is shot into the animal and that's all there is to it. It will take from eight to 10 million shots to complete the job. The vaccine protects for six months.
