Cotton Oil Mill Serves Stockmen

The Pecos Valley Cotton Oil Mill at Loving is one of the leading industries in this section, and offers year-round employment to a large number of employes. It offers the farmers of this valley a place to dispose of their cottonseed to advantage and supplies them with feeds made from this by-product of their leading money crop.

Cottonseed from far up the valley to the north is hauled here for processing since the mill at Roswell burned a couple years ago.

About a year ago a company was formed locally that purchased the oil mill and it is now owned by men in the Pecos Valley. Winston Lovelace is manager of the plant and a part owner.

The company features the well known Wano brands of cottonseed feeds, and carloads and truck loads of these fine feeds go out of Loving daily to points all over this state and adjoining states.

Oil taken from the cottonseed is shipped in tank cars to manufacturers of shortening, margarine and other products requiring vegetable oils.

Passersby can gain some idea of the tremendous amount of seed handled at the mill by the size of the piles that accumulate around the plant during the ginning season. This is only a small part of the seed processed, however, since much of it is warehoused.

Winston Lovelace and other officials of the company are at all times working for the best interests of the cotton farmer and the industry as a whole.

Cottonseed cake bearing the Wano brand has been instrumental in increased beef production on the ranches of Eddy county and at a cost that allows the ranches a good profit on the animals when he sells them to the packer. Cottonseed cake is especially valuable to livestock in the winter and spring months, since it provides minerals that they do not get in any other way.—Eddy County News.

There are many local ranchers and farmers who use the Wano brand in feeding their livestock. Among them are Bryant Williams, Jess Anderson, George and Maurice Teel, Joe Clements, Jack Cassabone, Pete Cassabone, Scarbrough Cattle Co., Charlie Barley, Bert Weddige, Raleigh Newbill, Anderson Young and many others.

Extension Centers Being Established

Extension centers which will offer college credits toward a degree are being established throughout the state by the Academic Senate of New Mexico A. & M. College.

John W. Branson, dean of the college and chairman of the Academic Senate, has been named director of the program.

A center has already been started at Alamogordo and Carlsbad plans to begin one in September.

The Alamogordo center has three classes in progress. Classes are in mathematics, physics and sociology.

The extension centers are of two types. One will provide in-service training for public school teachers. The other is designed to interest high school graduates in starting college work.

Participants in extension courses must meet the regular college entrance requirements of New Mexico A. & M.

Superintendents and principals of selected high schools have been contacted and invited to participate in the program. More communities are expected to establish extension centers later.

Eddy Residents Invest in Bonds

Eddy County residents invested $218,611.25 in U. S. Savings Bonds during February 1949, the Treasury Department has reported to L. B. Feather, County Chairman of the Savings Bonds Committee. Of this total, $61,181.25 was placed in Series E Bonds which will return $81,575.00 to their owners if held to maturity.

New Mexico's citizens invested $1,399,935 in U. S. Savings Bonds in February and $1,514,236.25 in January of this year. February's total exceeded that of all Februaries since 1945 and January's total was exceeded only by January 1946 of the post-war years.

People in five counties set new sales records for themselves in February. Chaves and Lea Counties put more money in Series E Bonds last month than in any month since the Victory Loan, with $118,875 and $43,237.50 respectively. Eddy, Sandoval, and Socorro Counties invested more money in Savings Bonds of all three series last month than in any month since the Victory Loan. The totals were $218,611.25, $21,815.00, and $101,425.00, respectively.

Facts About The Broiler Industry

This important industry was started several years ago on the east coast around Baltimore, Md., to supply the larger cities in that section with a quality bird.

Many of the men who started in the business have grown financially independent and are continuing this business on a larger scale than ever. It has added materially to the income of the producers in that area. Purina Mills of St. Louis, Mo., has had a great deal to do with the development and growth of this industry.

The second largest broiler area in the U. S. is in northeast Arkansas. Many persons who were good honest people but with limited finances have grown to be independently well off. In fact, many are now in a position so that they are able to take winter vacations in Florida. It is from this district that many of the broilers which are now being sold, not only in the Pecos Valley, but also many thousands reach the El Paso market every week.

So long as employment remains at the high level as it is at the present, we are very likely to have profitable markets for broilers which are produced in quantities to insure a dependable source of supply.

Another section which are producing broilers which are reaching our market areas is the Gonzales district down in Texas.

This is another section in which Purina Mills has played an important part in its growth and development. In the Pecos Valley and surrounding territory, such as Carlsbad, Clovis, Roswell and Portales, are producing broilers at a profit following the Purina plan.

It is the opinion of the district Purina representative that the area in and around Hope, is ideally situated and suited for the production of broilers, turkeys and dairy production. With markets available and suitable climate enough should be produced to fill local demand.

Next week an article on the production of turkeys will be published.

A meeting to discuss the broiler, turkey proposition will be held Tuesday evening, March 29 in the Home Ec room at the Hope school at 7:30 p. m. Refreshments will be served and everyone is invited to attend. This meeting is free—no charge.

Uncle Sam Says

Some of my nephews and nieces want to save regularly and actually do it. Others mean to save but don't always get around to it. These latter are the ones who only think about a budget. The best way to save is to do it on a regular basis, every pay-day. And the best investment is U. S. Savings Bonds.

If you're on a payroll, enroll for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or, if self-employed, sign up for the Bond-a-Month Plan at your bank. Either way, you're building future security in the soundest way possible. And your money increases, four dollars for three in 10 years' time.

EDITORIAL—

Hollis Watson was up to Santa Fe a few weeks ago and put in a plug for a new bridge over Eagle. Mr. Watson is a good booster for north Eddy County.

Just about nine more weeks of school. It is going to be a dull phase with the school closing for the summer vacation.

There is not much to say about the water situation in the Penasco Valley. It begins to look as if we will have to wait for the summer rain before we will have much water to irrigate with. But the work that has been done on the river has done some good.

The 19th session of the New Mexico Legislature came to an end Saturday night. They passed a few bills that were worthwhile but the majority were very poor. They failed to pass a bill abolishing the one-man control of the state liquor laws. It would have been much more satisfactory to all concerned if a three-man commission had been appointed to handle the liquor business. They also passed a severance tax increase on natural resources, increased the tobacco tax and placed an additional two-cent tax increase on gasoline. We understand the two cent tax increase on gasoline will go toward paying off on highway construction. The act creating a pre-primary election party convention system requires a prospective candidate to receive 25 per cent of the votes in a pre-primary party convention before he is eligible to appear on the primary election ballot. Governor Mabry and other top politicians have favored such a system. In commenting on this the Current-Argus of Carlsbad says: "State Democrat Bryan Johnson hails passage of this measure as one of the finest things that has happened to New Mexico. What he meant was that it is one of the finest things that has happened to Bryan Johnson, since he figures to lose the new system to capture the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the next election." And the Current-Argus goes on to say that as a practical matter, two or three top politicians now will decide what candidates will be permitted to run for state office. The politicians with the aid of the state legislature, have shoved the people to the background in deciding who shall hold office in New Mexico."

School News

Junior News—We see that Dorane has some glasses. We think they help her look. I think we all need some glasses. We are all studying hard. The teachers sure like to see us work. Some of the kids study until 2 o'clock in the morning, by candlelight. The boys are working harder than the girls, we think. There was a hayride party Friday night. We hear that Lee Mack and Marvin seemed to be having an awful good time. Wonder who it was that threw the dish water at the hayriders. Someone's cow got a good feed the next day, because they lost some hay. Raleigh Jr., seemed awful happy Sunday when he looked toward the Lano Cafe. W. G. drove the tractor. Wonder why? Bet I could guess. Mary Jane can sure write good notes. The subject seems to be Charles Tidwell. The 7th and 8th grade girls sure have some softball team.

3rd and 4th Grade News—We are glad that Bobby Parker has returned to school after being absent with an infected throat. Bobby said that he enjoyed the letters we wrote him while he was ill. Exa Ann Teel is back in school after she had helped with the sheep shearing for two days. We are having a spring house cleaning in our room and we have even washed our windows. We have made March calendars and have learned that March has 31 days. We have up some new Easier pictures about the life of Christ and we have also heard the stories about them. Patsy Young has read 30 extra library books which is more than any one else in the room has read.

7th Grade News—Today all of the 7th grade are here. They all seem to be studying. Mr. Lea has changed our seats in the study hall and all of the 7th grade except two are sitting on the front row. I think all of us like our new seats. We enjoyed the banquet Thursday night very much and would like to thank everyone who helped to make it an enjoyable evening.

8th Grade News—We ordered our diplomas this week. We hope all of us get them. Sammie Chalk was absent from school Monday. Edward Madron was absent from school Monday and Tuesday. We have changed desks in spelling recently. The new desks fit us much better. There was a hayride party Friday night. The ones that went had a very joyous time.

1st and 2nd Grade News—Friday night our rhythm band is going to play at P.T.A. We are all excited about it. We are going to play nine songs. Christine and Georgia Lee have read 35 books and Bobby Madron 34. They are trying to reach 50 now. The second grade is proud to be writing half size. They feel they have one foot in the third grade already. Subtraction is a little hard for some of us though, so that keeps the other foot in the second grade. The first grade loves to read and play basketball. The boys are getting good at both. They may be challenging some of the larger boys soon.

Beef Cattle Reported Liking Citrus Molasses

Beef cattle really go for citrus molasses.

Cattle having access to this feed not only have shown no hesitation about lapping it up from troughs, but have seemed to prefer it.

Cattlemen feeding the molasses are using a combination of trough and drum molasses for making the material available to their animals. The trough used is 30 inches wide and about 12 feet long.

4-H Club Awards Stress Farm Woodlot Management

Farm young people everywhere are taking increased interest in forest management. These two youths are receiving a lesson in the use of the increment borer, an instrument used to determine growth rate of trees. Professional forester, right, instructs.

For the second straight year local farm boys and girls have a chance to compete for state and national awards in a 4-H club forestry project. Three hundred dollar college scholarships plus all-expense paid trips to the 1949 4-H Club Congress in Chicago will go to four national winners in the forestry contest.

Four-H Club members interested in forestry are eligible to compete. In addition to the four top awards, to be distributed on a regional basis, each of the state winners will receive a gold medal.

The 4-H forestry project emphasizes youth's stake in the woodlands of this state. Farmer owned woodlands today constitute a major portion of the Nation's commercial forest area. They represent also a steady source of wealth to their owners that in many cases is virtually untapped.

American Forest Products Industries, a national, non-profit association of wood-dependent industries, is sponsor of the 4-H forestry awards. Last year 18 states participated in the national forestry competition. College scholarships went to club members representing Idaho, Georgia, New York and Wisconsin.

"Opportunities for farmers, who manage their woodlands for continuing forest crops, are greater today than ever before," Charles A. Gillett, managing director of American Forest Products Industries, declared in announcing his organization's sponsorship of the 1949 award. "The importance of good forest management practices on the Nation's farms cannot be over emphasized."

Detailed information about the 4-H forestry project may be obtained from the county extension agent.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Threatens to Take Battle On Legislative Program to People; MacArthur Sees No Russian Attack

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

TRUMAN: All Aboard!

President Truman, who obviously regards himself as the "man with a mandate," was tossing some not too subtle threats toward congressmen inhospitable to his legislative proposals.

Keep fooling with me, he said, in effect, and I'll hit the old stump again—and you know what that means.

The President meant that if congress didn't set about soon enacting into law the pledges he made to the people during the November campaign, he'd hit the trail again and take the issue to the people—the way Franklin D. Roosevelt used to do.

MR. TRUMAN apparently felt that by so doing he could whip public sentiment up to such a pitch that congress would be forced to go along with his program, or else face possible defeat in the 1950 elections.

Not having the vocal equipment of his predecessor, who could get desired results with his "fireside chats," Mr. Truman would have to climb aboard a train if he wanted to influence the masses.

Strangely enough, congress didn't seem unduly perturbed at the President's threat. Things went along in congressional procedure about as usual, with Republicans charging that the 81st congress is also a "do nothing" congress, while Democratic members were inviting comparison with the "do nothing" 80th congress.

IT WAS READILY evident that Mr. Truman was needed by lack of congressional action on his program. Reiterating his campaign pledges of last fall, in which he declared the central issue was the "welfare of all the people," Mr. Truman asserted that lobbyists, pressure groups, and controlled editorial pages, columnists and commentators were offering determined opposition to his legislative program.

"All we have on our side," he said, "is the people."

Pointing out that he found on his campaign tour that the people of the nation are concerned about their government, Mr. Truman termed that concern a "fine thing."

"I propose to do all I can to help it along," he added. Then he hurled the threat: "In fact, I may even get on the train again and make another tour around the country to tell the people how their government is getting on."

INFLATION: Has Two Faces

Observers purportedly on the "inside" of things in Washington regard approval of the congressional committee on the economic report—Mr. Truman's proposal for controls to ward off inflation—as lip service only and argue that none of the committee expect the proposal to win congressional favor.

It was said the favorable committee report was made only to "save face" for the President as he seeks to implement the pledges he made in his election campaign.

THE COMMITTEE vote, which will send the measure to the floor of congress, was 7 to 4 for approval, and that came only after the proposals of the President had been toned down.

Critics of the Truman plan say it poses the unique theory that the country is in the midst of an inflation and deflation period at the same time—a condition admittedly difficult of comprehension.

They assert, too, that it would give dangerous controls to the President at a time when they actually are not needed.

One commentator observed that if any members of the committee considering the proposal had had any idea it would be enacted by the congress, it would have been killed completely before it ever got to the floor of the house or senate.

JAPAN: Reds Answered

The Russians had an answer to what would happen if they ever moved on Japan.

Geh. Douglas MacArthur, in a special interview, declared that he did not expect any attack upon Japan by the Russians, but if that occurred, "we," meaning the United States, "should certainly defend her."

THE ENTIRE IDEA of a Russian

Wins Film Award

Virginia Wave, Cathedral film's star, receives the annual award as the best actress of religious films from the American association of religious film distributors for her work in the film, "Simon Peter, Fisherman," in which she portrayed Concordia.

sian attack on Japan held a bizarre aspect. With the U.S. as chief occupation force, how could the Soviets launch an attack of the Japanese without, in effect, making war on the United States?

But, General MacArthur evidently held the subject serious enough to comment about it.

"In case of another war, we do not want Japan to fight," MacArthur said. "Japan's role is to be the Switzerland of the Pacific," he explained.

THEN HE MADE a telling point in speculation of a Russian attack on Japan:

"Even if the Soviet government had aggressive intentions toward Japan, Russia would be incapable of carrying them out unless she could secure mastery of the air and either had a far Eastern fleet of her own or possessed the means of neutralizing any action by our fleet."

"Russia could not obtain air pre-eminence," he went on. "On Okinawa I had constructed at the end of the war 25 airfields with the capacity to dispatch B-29's, then our largest bombers, on 3,500 missions a day. The whole of eastern Asia from Singapore to Vladivostok would lie within range of those machines."

HE DID NOT point out that with development of the bombing arm of the air force since the war, even farther distances for bombing purposes could be covered by present-day missile carriers.

Of the function of Japan in the American strategy of defense, MacArthur said:

"We never intended to use Japan as an ally. All we want her to do is remain neutral."

UNIVERSE: No Limits?

Since the first man lifted his head and gazed in puzzled awe at a star-studded sky, mankind has been trying to discover the secrets of the universe.

To that end, the huge, 200-inch Palomar mountain telescope was built and put into operation.

But the telescope's first contribution to the sum of man's knowledge of the universe served only to deepen the mystery.

Astronomers using it found that there is no outer edge to the universe of stars, and the look they took was twice as far as man has ever looked before.

The astronomers got some pictures of nebulae a billion light-years distant and spaced about a million light-years apart. Each one is a world of stars, like the Milky Way. The star worlds are about uniformly spread up to the previous limits of sight, about a half-billion light years.

THE NEXT STUDY will be to find whether there is any thinning of the celestial families as sight is extended outward.

On a stunning fact the discovery brought home was that there is more than one star for every human being who ever lived. Nearly every star family, or nebulae, contains more than a hundred million individual stars.

Now it is science concurring in the psalm: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork . . ."

FEWER JOBS: For White Collars

There are many fewer "white collar" job openings than a year ago in most U. S. cities, but high grade personnel is still in demand. The volume of job-seekers, particularly men, is up all the way from ten per cent to as much as 300 per cent, but a heavy majority of the applicants are below-standard material and there is little market for them.

This is the tenor of reports from 106 private employment agencies in 42 principal cities from coast to coast, surveyed by the family economics bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

THE "WEEDING OUT" process is now on in full swing, agency executives report, as employers prune down working forces to eliminate the lazy, the inefficient, the chronic absentees and the chronically tardy. "Who don't realize that the wartime gravy-train has rumbled to a stop, and the era of competition is back."

The biggest drop has occurred in jobs for untrained and junior office help, particularly male, the survey finds. But there is still a nationwide demand, for salesmen and sales promotion personnel, and, in most cities, for accountants and other technically trained men.

MOST AGENCIES report that salaries are the same or slightly better than last year for experienced or trained personnel, but that employment requirements are stiffer, employers interview more candidates per job, and check their qualifications much more thoroughly.

The great majority of employers dealt with are uncertain as to the future, agencies report, but optimists slightly outnumber pessimists. Most employers feel that pre-war competition is here again, and with it the immediate necessity of trimming costs and sharpening efficiency at every possible corner. The prevailing attitude is that good business can be had by means of increased efforts, if pending legislation does not turn out too unfavorably; many concerns are reported as marking time on their future programs until they can see how the new tax program and labor law shape up.

Answers Critics

Former Gov. Mon C. Wallgren, Washington, nominated by President Truman to head the national security resources board, denies critics' charges at committee hearing. He was accused of being "soft toward communism." He branded the charges "ridiculous and silly."

WAR TALK: Little Ease-up

There was little ease-up in the talk of possible war.

War rumors were still flying, the latest reporting that the Russians had strengthened their garrisons along the Soviet-Norwegian border. A "well-informed" Finnish source was credited with the report.

The informant said the Russian troops had come from the Murmansk area. While not estimating the number involved, he said the troop movements had been observed and apparently were in connection with the stand taken by Norway on the north Atlantic defense treaty.

THE INFORMANT said there were no indications of similar troop movements along the Finnish border.

Norway and Russia now have a short common frontier in the far north. The frontier was established when the Petsamo region of Finland was ceded to the Soviet union under terms of the Russo-Finnish peace treaty.

The Soviet union recently proposed to Norway that both nations sign a non-aggression pact. Norway has made it clear she will not enter into such a treaty. Instead, Norway appeared disposed to cast its fortunes with countries in the proposed north Atlantic treaty—The United States, Canada, Britain, France, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Belgium.

New Farm Bath Unit Comes All 'Packaged' Setup May Be Attached To Existing Dwelling

An Indiana manufacturing firm has announced the introduction of a novel, factory-built bathroom to be known as Ad-a-Bath. Representing an entirely new approach to home modernization, the bath is constructed in one complete "package" for attachment to existing dwellings.

Built as a self-contained unit, the bath utilizes conventional materials and equipments, and includes all necessary fixtures and fittings for immediate installation and immediate use. It is shipped fully equipped for addition to a farm, lake cottage or suburban home. Since it is added to the exterior, there is no sacrifice of space or change of interior arrangement of the house to which it is attached.

The setup is complete in every respect with tub, lavatory stool and tank, electric heater and built-in medicine and linen cabinets. It is of frame construction with plywood interior. Walls and floors are heavily insulated and the floor is linoleum covered.

The interior, according to the manufacturer, has been designed for maximum comfort, utility and attractiveness. Such items as towel bar, soap dish, tub grab bar, tooth brush and tumbler holder are included.

Since the unit qualifies for FHA financing, a home owner is required only to make a 10 per cent down payment, paying the balance in convenient monthly installments through his local bank.

Fewer Wormy Apples

Faithful adherents of the "apple a day" maxim, if they can think back to war experience, will realize nowadays they are not nearly so likely as they used to be to find a worm, or half a worm, in their apple. Also, says the U. S. department of agriculture, the "spray residue" problem is not nearly so troublesome as it was.

The apple worm—or codling moth—problem appears to be on its way out as a major concern in apple growing. DDT has proved an effective spray. In fact, in some isolated orchards that do not draw moths from unsprayed or poorly sprayed trees nearby, a good early spray program with DDT may so reduce codling moths that there is no need to spray against a second brood.

But DDT has not proved a full solution to the apple insect problems. It does not make a clean sweep of all the pests. Thus DDT sprays permit a buildup of some pests that it does not control—the apple mites, for instance. The problem shifts, but a problem remains. The mites do not cause wormy apples, but the apples are smaller and of a poorer color.

However, the new insecticide parathion is making an impressive showing against nearly all the apple pests. Federal entomologists say that it can not yet be recommended for general use, that more control is needed.

New Animal Repellent Will Lessen Free Meals

Animal wildlife will find free lunches fewer and farther between next year. A new product developed by the B. F. Goodrich chemical company and tested by the state of Maine fish and game department at its Swan Island wildlife refuge, may be just what farmers have been seeking. At Swan Island, the new material has been sprayed on leafy crops by biologists who observe that it will not wash off and that a deer, after nipping at the treated leaves, will turn up his nose at future free meals. Certain types of insects also are discouraged by the action of the repellent, researchers revealed. Crop damage by raiding wild deer runs in excess of $150,000 annually in some districts of Maine and amounts to millions nationally. The search for satisfactory repellents has been a major project.

Leadership School

Lesson for March 20, 1949

IT TAKES more than a call of God to be a Christian leader. It takes study, it takes work. The call is necessary, of course, but it is not all. Jesus set the church an example here as always. He called his Twelve; but he was not so foolish as to think that just because he had called them they were all ready to go out and take the lead. Jesus put them through what may be called the first Leadership Training School in the history of the Christian church.

Who Was Enrolled?

THE TWELVE Apostles were the training class. Not all Jesus' disciples were equal to it; perhaps some of them actually did not have the time. But these Twelve had already been set off from the others, not because they were better men, but in order to do more direct service in Christ's name. There was nothing formal about Jesus' training school.

It met wherever he was at the time—in a house, or by the roadside, or on a hill-top. There were no set hours, no textbooks, credits or diplomas.

Jesus kept it going to the very end, for even after the Resurrection, as Luke tells us (in Acts 1) he was still teaching his Twelve.

What Did They Study?

THERE WAS no printed circular, no bulletin, no prospectus or catalogue. All the "courses" amounted to just one thing: learning to do what Jesus was doing. To this day, that is the aim of all Christian training.

Many a person now in some hospital for the insane need not have gone there if he had had the help that a well-trained minister can give.

Ministers today are not taught how to perform miracles like the feeding of the 5,000; but knowing that people's physical well-being has a great deal to do with their spiritual welfare, the alert young Christian minister of today will be keenly interested in Christian social action.

How Did They Learn?

THE TWELVE learned by doing. It is the only way you learn anything of a practical nature. Memorizing a textbook, memorizing rules, is not learning. You have learned how to do a thing only when you can do it. Of course you have to see it done, first. A boy on the farm learns to be a farmer by watching his father and helping him, more than from school courses in agriculture, useful as they are. There is nothing to take the place of apprenticeship under one who knows.

Will It Still Work?

THE METHODS Jesus taught are just as effective today as they ever were. Not all churches nowadays follow his line to the letter; in fact, most churches do not. But the basic principles which Jesus drilled into his first traveling representatives are still good. One is faith.

Missionaries in the 20th Century are required to take a great deal more equipment with them to their fields than one pair of shoes, one cane and an empty purse. Yet who can deny that any missionary of any church in China or in Korea today, must live by faith from day to day?

Another of Jesus' principles was direct contact. People are not won to Christ chiefly by sermons from pulpits, but by in-the-home contacts. Ministers know this, missionaries know it; Sunday school teachers ought to know it too. Getting acquainted with your boys and girls at their homes, and being a friend to them there, is what will give your Sunday teaching its greatest force and success.

Loving Helps Understanding

By Lawrence Gould

Does loving a person help you understand him?

Answer: Being "in love" is more apt to have the opposite effect, for it makes you want so desperately to believe the person whom you love is your "ideal" that you're likely to endow him with whatever qualities that implies, whether he shows any actual traces of them or not. But with someone you have loved a long time and are sure of, you may well see virtues or abilities which no one else has noticed and which might never have been developed but for the encouragement you gave them. Such love makes your ideal come true.

ical college tells of a young woman patient whose associations under psychoanalysis showed that at the time of such attacks her superficial calmness hid intense emotion. The attacks came on in situations where her deeper and unconscious feeling conflicted unbearably with those she felt she should have.

Are phobias and nightmares alike?

Answer: They have many points in common in both cases, what the person really is afraid of is something in his own mind (generally a forbidden impulse) which he does not dare to admit except under the disguise of a comparatively harmless "symbol." Also in both cases the danger is made to seem to come from the outside world because this is not as frightening as to accept it as part of himself. A neurotic fear of dogs, or nightmares about tigers might equally represent the person's dread of his own hostile and aggressive feelings.

Can epilepsy mask emotional disturbance?

Answer: This may be true with the mild form called "petit mal," in which there is no conclusive seizure but only a temporary blotting out of consciousness and memory. In Psychosomatic Medicine, Dr. Wayne Barker of Cornell Med-perfectly; if possible, a cast is made from which the plastic hearing attachment is manufactured. If the ear piece does not fit properly, it can interfere with the clearness of sound.

Oculists and optometrists not only make sure of prescribing the proper lenses for the patient, but they also insist upon fitting the frames so that the patient obtains the angle necessary to give him the exact or proper vision through the lenses.

In cases where the little bones of the middle ear drum are damaged and the sound is not transmitted properly to the little hairs or hearing nerve endings, then what is called a bone-conduction hearing aid is necessary to transmit the sound. In these cases the earpiece, called an oscillator, is attached to the mastoid bone, the large bony lump at the back of the ear.

Similarly, the otologist or hearing specialist, after making a complete examination of the patient's loss of hearing and the pitch necessary, prescribes the hearing aid best suited to the patient's needs. And just as the oculist or optometrist is most careful in adjusting the frames of glasses, so the otologist wants to make sure that the apparatus attached to the ear must fit the ear

As most hearing aids are made with amplifiers with three or four vacuum tubes, there is little to choose among them; but the fitting of the hearing aid is most important.

The patient should not hesitate to return for adjustments just as he does for adjustment of glasses.

No Sand is Free

By W. T. PERSON

Tired of working as a clerk in a hardware store for 20 years, Andy Ives suggests to his wife, Kate, that they move from Harbisonville to a grant of free land in the flat, black cotton country of southern Arkansas which is parceled out to those who pay a small fee and agree to live on the land two years, making certain improvements. Andy's family, including his young son, Dave, daughter, Hope, and mother-in-law, who they all call "Granny," approves the idea of modern pioneering and are eager to try their hand at making a comfortable home out of piece of land in the wilderness. Kate feels it is an injustice to "bary" a pretty girl like Hope, but the girl refuses to stay behind.

CHAPTER II

Dave was so startled that he lost step, but hitched and caught it again. "What do you mean?" he blurted. "Why can't I play basketball? Have I got to work afternoons?"

"We're leaving here," his father said. "We're leaving before the month is out, and where we're going you won't have much interest in basketball for a while."

"Leaving Harbisonville?" Again Dave lost step, then caught it determinedly. "Say, where're we goin', pop—I mean, dad? You got a better job somewhere?"

"Much better." Then Andy Ives told his boy what lay ahead of them, and why he had made the break. "We'll have a world of work to do, Dave, and it'll be hard work; but what we make will be ours, and we'll get ahead according to our labor and common sense. How do you feel about it?"

"Well—I—I don't know. I like the fellows here. They're the only ones I've ever known, and—well, it'll be strange somewhere else. Will I go to school down there?"

"Maybe not the rest of this fall and winter," Andy said slowly. "There'll be so much to do. Next year, though."

"You say it's wild country?" Dave broke in. "There'll be good hunting and fishing?"

"Plenty of it. But there'll be precious little time for those things for a while. We'll have to work, Dave. It'll take hard, backbreaking work to make a farm like we want out of that wilderness."

"I can work," Dave said simply. The table was lively at noon that day, for everyone knew of the venture now and all were talking excitedly.

"We'll have a huge white house with big columns," Hope predicted, "and a park for a front yard. We'll call it 'Ives Acres.'"

"We'll have only a hundred and sixty acres," Andy reminded her. "Don't dream on too big a scale."

"Oh, we'll buy more land, then more," she said gaily. "We'll want an estate, won't we? And you'll want to be called a planter instead of a farmer. Takes a lot of land for that, you know."

"She wants to be a Scarlet O'Hara of the swamps," Dave put in. "Gal, you'd better come down to earth; you'll skin your nose on a cloud."

The Piano Proves A Discordant Note

"Don't call me 'Gal!'" Hope flared.

"I should say not," Granny backed her up. "Hope is a young lady, Dave, and a very nice, pretty one. I'll have you know."

"Yes'm." Dave grinned at Hope, who had flushed pleasantly under Granny's tribute. "I take back the 'Gal,'" he said.

Andy was already making plans for the move. I've spoken to Joe Wilson about his truck," he said. "We can get it. Two of Joe's hired boys will drive the truck, and we'll all go down in the car together." He paused, looking about the table, and they knew he had a little bombshell to toss. "I plan to sell the car down there," he added calmly.

"To sell the car?" Kate asked in amazement. "What will we do without it, Andy?"

"Considerable walking," he informed her. "Look, everybody," he hurried on, noting Hope's look of pain and Dave's startled expression, "we'll need a lot of things to start off down there. Tools, mules, a wagon, some fertilizer in the spring, and—"

"I thought it was rich land," Kate broke in. "Why use fertilizer?"

"No need to strain the soil right at the beginning," Andy said dryly. "Furthermore, we'll have to build a house, have a well driven, build a barn, and—well, there's just about everything to be done. Besides, I can get more for the old car now than ever before, and maybe ever again, and it's the time to sell it. We're going to go rock-bottom for a while. Anyway, who ever heard of pioneers having a car?"

"America's last frontier!" Kate mused. "We must have Gertrude and Wilton come down and visit us at Ives Acres."

Dave laughed loudly and took another large helping of peas. "Wouldn't they turn up their noses then, at us poor folks?"

"All joking aside," Andy said earnestly. "I'm proud that you're with me on this deal. It won't be a lot of fun, I'm telling you, but there'll be times when we'll laugh. It's a big job we're tackling, but I'm tired, worn-out, and disgusted with the little job I've had all these years, and whether I fail or succeed down there in the swamp country, I'll still think I did the right thing in trying it."

"Of course you did," said Granny. "And we won't fail. Don't talk of failing, Andy Ives!"

"All right. I won't any more."

There was a great deal to be done in preparation for the move. One of the problems was the piano. Even if there was room for it in the two-room cabin that awaited them in the swamp, Andy gravely doubted that the frail floor would support its weight. But Kate's sentiment for the old, scarred upright was an obstacle to Andy's practicality. They had bought it second hand when Hope was five. In those days Kate had been sure that Hope was extremely talented, and they had skimped and sacrificed in order to make the payments on it. For years it had represented a fond dream—had been a pleasure too. Although Hope had never progressed beyond a stirring arrangement of "Country Gardens" and the playing of "The Minute Waltz" in approximately two minutes, she could accompany well; and there had been many evenings when Andy and Kate had harmonized on "In the Gloaming" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," Hope playing for them. Kate could play a little too, by ear better than by note, and at times when she felt moody she turned to the old piano.

"We're leaving before the month is out, and where we're going you won't have much interest in basketball for a while."

"I just couldn't bear to leave it, Andy," she said. "I can't help it if it's too heavy for you and Dave to handle alone, or if there's no room for it down there, or if we could sell it for enough to buy two plows. I just can't think of a home without a piano."

"Little as that cabin is," Andy pointed out, "you'll be thinking of a piano without a home if we take it. Look, Kate, this is no time for sentiment of this kind; we're up against realities."

"Sentiment is a reality," she said firmly. "We'll just have to take the piano. That's all there is to it."

So, Andy knew that when the time came they would take the piano.

Hope Wants Love Instead of Money

There were several other things to sell, not only for the sake of room in their new quarters, but because they wouldn't be usable down there. The refrigerator, for instance, and all electrical appliances. There was no current in the swamp. Andy said that there was talk of running a line out through that area, from Newcastle over to highway 142, and that in time they might be hooked up with it; but no one knew when that would be. Until it happened, they would have to use oil lamps, and they'd have ice only when they hauled it eight miles out from Newcastle. This outlook was rather dismal for Kate, who had never been without electricity.

"And besides," Dave said, "we can get a battery set sometime. They're pretty good."

When Andy gave Mr. Jaynes notice that he would soon be leaving, the word got out that the Iveses were moving from Harbisonville, and friends came to express regrets. People who hadn't been in the Ives residence in two or three years came now to have their graceful say.

"Of course, we just don't have time to visit these days, Kate, and we just don't go to see anybody, but we've known you were here, and we hate to think of your leaving. We'll miss you just dreadfully."

"We'll miss being here, too," Kate would say, "but it's time we struck out for something of our own. Andy has been in a rut there so long, with Mr. Jaynes. And the children are big enough now for us to take a chance, so—"

"But you'll have to come back and see us. Don't ever forget your old friends here."

"Oh, we won't do that! After all, we've lived a long time in Harbisonville."

And so it went. Kate knew how shallow the regrets of many must be, but she met their moods and suffered with them in their sudden sadness.

Hope knew that she would have to say no to Wall Harbison again, but that would be easy, even though she was a bit proud of the fact that Wall wanted her. Not many girls in town would have refused Wall and the material blessings he could offer, including the tradition of a well-established, enterprising family.

Wall did propose again, on the night of the day Andy gave Mr. Jaynes notice. He said: "Hope, I just can't let you go off down there in the swamp, burying yourself and grubbing away at work you don't have to do. Come on, marry me, Hope. I'll give you every reason I can find to make you happy." He took her hand gently. "You may not love me now, but you will in time. Say yes, Hope."

"No," said Hope, withdrawing her hand. "It wouldn't be right. There's a certain way I must feel about the man I marry, and I don't feel that way about you. I like you, and I think you're nice, but, well, there's just something—"

"O. K. I won't ask you again until I think you're ready to say yes. Look, Hope, you can have a place in the bank and stay here. You know people in Harbisonville, and you're popular. It's not right for you to go down there in the backwoods and—"

"But I want to go, Wall," she broke in. "That's it. I'd be miserable if I let them go off down there without me. Oh, I know you can't see it, but wherever dad and mother and Dave and Granny are is the place for me. And don't feel sorry for me or worry about me, either. We're all in this venture together, to sink or swim."

Wall shrugged. "All right. I hope you swim!"

Moving day was bright and clear and cold.

Granny Scoffs At City Life

Granny had the air of being very sure of herself. She was. If she had had any doubts whatever of the wisdom of remaining with Andy and Kate, the letter she had received from Gertrude the day before had removed those doubts. That letter had not left any latchstrings dangling carelessly about:

"Wilton and I naturally are intrigued by this return to nature that Andy and Kate are planning, and we are almost envious of their bravery in attempting such a thing at their ages. Wilton asks if the fishing for largemouth is good down there, and says tell Andy and Dave to stake out a few big ones for him to catch some day when vacations are in vogue again. You know how Wilton loves the great outdoors, but the poor dear is so terribly busy that he never gets to enjoy roughing it any more. I'll be so glad when he retires, so that we can have a big, roomy house of our own, instead of a cramped apartment. When that time comes, we'll expect you to spend some time with us, mother."

Granny had laughed shortly at that. "You see," she had said in showing the letter to Kate, "how cramped they are for room. What if I had planned to go up there with them?"

Kate stood on the porch and watched the heavily loaded truck ease slowly out of the front yard. A lump rose into her throat.

Observing Rules Is 'Must' When Home Cooks Make Dishes of Cheese, Eggs

IF YOU'RE BUSY juggling menus for Lent or simply trying to add variety to your meals, then there's concrete help in today's column of recipes.

Cheese, eggs and fish are favorite foods right now, and it's a wise idea to know how to bring out the best in each food. All these foods, cheese, eggs and fish are economical, which may be an incentive for you to give them more than a passing thought. However, they're also foods which are highly nourishing. All three contain high quality protein which you need for building and repairing tissue.

Aside from other vitamins, cheese furnishes calcium and riboflavin. Eggs supply vitamin A and riboflavin as well as iron. For these reasons, both foods should be included in the daily diet.

THERE ARE MANY schools of thought on how omelets should be made, but the main thing is to have them light.

A light touch is necessary in putting together an omelet and it should be cooked until just done, then served at once. The omelet

A flavor triumph is this new way with omelet which uses broccoli in the fold and is served with a delightful cheese sauce. There's nourishment aplenty in this cheese, egg and vegetable combination as well as variety for your menu plans.

recipe given here uses one of the season's most delicious green vegetables and is made even more appealing with cheese sauce. Serve it with a vegetable juice cocktail, hot rolls and relishes and a simple fruit dessert, and you have a meal you'll be proud to serve anyone.

Broccoli Omelet (Serves 6)

- 6 eggs
- 6 tablespoons milk
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 cup hot, chopped steamed broccoli
- 1/2 pound American cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup milk
- Whole heads of cooked broccoli.

Beat the egg yolks until light. Add the milk and salt, then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a skillet in which butter has been melted. Cook slowly until puffed and lightly browned on the under side. Place in a slow (300°) oven for a few minutes to dry the top. Spread half of the omelet with hot, chopped broccoli, fold the other half over it and turn onto a platter.

Melt cheese in top of double boiler. Add the milk, stirring constantly until sauce is smooth. Garnish the omelet with whole heads of hot, cooked broccoli and serve with hot cheese sauce.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: My basement floor was painted some time ago, but the paint has worn off and I would like to fix up the floor so that the youngsters can use it for dancing. Because of the expense involved I would prefer not to lay asphalt tile. As it is now, there is powder about one-quarter-inch deep over the whole floor and the surface is not smooth, but full of small pin-holes.

ANSWER: You can treat the floor and get a good job, depending on how much labor you are willing to put into it. I would suggest that you look forward to laying asphalt tile as soon as you can manage it, for the tile would be much more comfortable underfoot than concrete, if the floor is to be used for dancing. In the meantime, you can paint the floor with an appropriate paint with a rubber base.

FROM A WHEEL CHAIR
 (By Katherine B. Mabry)
 The legislature will adjourn this week, after 60 days at the capitol. It may take a few days, or weeks, to properly appraise the work they have done—or left undone. We can see now, at this point that its record is not so bad as some predicted it would be nor so good perhaps as some hoped for.

When we consider that a body of men and women as large as a legislative body must be, and representing divergent business, trades and professions and different sections of the state where interests do, in a way, clash, it is not surprising that the results are as good as we find them here.

From what seems likely to emerge from the legislature, it appears that we can go on with a reasonable road-building program, devote enough of the funds to up-keep so that we can, it is hoped, still keep our main highways in shape so as to preserve our big investment in roads and build farm-to-market routes throughout the state.

It seems that everyone is pleased also with the proposal to have the Highway Commission composed of five instead of three members, as at present, and to give these members some security in office. If the people adopt this plan at the next election, it will doubtless be a forward step. We all hope any unneeded gas tax can be taken off as soon as the old debts are paid. Almost everyone seemed to be working in good faith to get the best program possible out of changes affecting the road building program.

Whether the primary law has been improved upon by the changes proposed, and likely to be made, remains to be seen after a trial. The general feeling, however, is that the changes would prove wholesome. If there is to be any degree of party responsibility (and since there is no "run-off" primary) there ought to be some clarification, or otherwise minorities could easily control both major parties where there might be a large field of candidates from some of the principal offices. If this should not work well for the next election we can try something else. I hope we never feel the necessity of going back to the old convention system, however. There, selfish groups can too easily manipulate things for their own purposes which would cause the people to lose interest in our general elections; and this interest on the part of the people has been building up now to where we are getting a fair expression on election days. Good government can come and remain with us only so long as there is an alert public opinion which will take the pains to get out on election day and register its opinion at the polls.

I was made happy last week when about 30 Albuquerque women (all Republicans, by the way) led by Mrs. Earl Moulton, National Republican committee woman, visiting the capitol, called on me at the mansion to wish me a speedy recovery. It is so nice that good friendships are not too much affected by the fact that we vote opposite tickets on election day. We are all striving for what we believe to be the best for our communities, state and country.
