V-J DAY CELEBRATION AND RODEO AT ARTESIA, THURS-FRI-SAT. AUG. 11-12-13

EDITORIAL—

V-J Day celebration and rodeo will take place in Artesia, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 11, 12, and 13. The annual event is sponsored each year by the United Veterans' Club composed of the local posts of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans. The celebration will consist of a parade Thursday afternoon which will be over a mile long. A top notch rodeo has been booked for three shows at 8:00 p.m. on Aug. 11, 12, and 13. And in addition to all this the veterans will stage a western dance each night starting at 9:00 o'clock. When Hope celebrated with a rodeo the Artesia people turned out 100 per cent and patronized every performance. And not only that the business men of Artesia contributed over $500 to assure the success of the undertaking. In view of all this we think it would be fit and proper for the people of the Penasco valley to patronize the Artesia rodeo and victory celebration to the limit. One good turn deserves another so let's go down and show the Artesia people that we appreciate the support they gave our rodeo.

In the Mt. section the past month has been a blessing to the people of the Penasco valley. Farms and ranches have been soaked up pretty well and prospects for water from now on look very bright. Two cuttings of alfalfa hay is assured, the first cutting to commence the last of this week. There also will be harvested a large acreage of row crops.

Like we have said many times before there is too much water wasted in the Penasco valley. Irrigation canals over the project should be made bigger and steel headgates installed. Land should be leveled and borders drawn up so as to keep the water on the land that needs to be irrigated and not have it running out in the barpits and highways. The farmers up in the mountain section are beginning to level their land and throw up dikes to hold the water where it is needed.

We notice many Texas cars coming through Hope. Some are bound for the west coast and plan on stopping in Cloudcroft for a day. Others are coming to the Sacramento Mts. to escape the heat that parts of Texas are noted for. Others are on their way to attend the Methodist Assembly now in session.

In about four weeks the school bell will begin to ring calling the children to their classes and school books once more. We are all glad to see school start up once again, especially when we know that practically all the old faculty will be back.

Work on the tunnel on Highway 83 west of Cloudcroft is steadily going on. It is hoped that it will be completed and opened for traffic by Sept.

have had this part of the 83 ready by early on. Constructing these mountain highways takes time and we just have to be patient.

The calling of the grand jury over in Dona Ana County seems to have blown the lid off over the state. In Lea county a jury is to be called to investigate the charge that the mayor of Hobbs received a bribe of $1000 to allow a gambling hall to operate. Now it is talked about calling a grand jury in Chavez county to investigate the death of a small boy who was killed by a neighbor boy in a quarrel over a dog. The boy who did the killing was a juvenile and sentenced to the state reform school. We don't see how the court could have done anything else.

The man up in Roswell who killed his wife with a hammer and an ice pick was sentenced to life imprisonment. The D. A. explained that the man was a dipsomaniac and a dipsomaniac cannot be given the death sentence. We noticed about a week ago the D. A. was criticized for changing the charge from first degree murder to second degree.

The grand jury over in Dona Ana county has been in session again. This time it brought in two indictments against the chairman of the State Corporation Commission, whose home is in Dona Ana county. Our comment

Mayor Roberts to Be Hung With Suk Rope

The "Law West of the Pecos" will be in force in Artesia, New Mexico, during the third annual V-J Day celebration and rodeo to be staged there Aug. 11-12-13 by the United Veterans Club. Calvin "Roy Bean" Dunn has just sentenced the city Mayor, Oren C. Roberts, to the noose while Councilman Marshall Rowley (who always wanted to hang the Mayor anyway) is being rehabilitated, other crews, working under guidance of skilled supervisors from the Extension Service and other government and private organizations, will repair dairy barns, repair and remanufacture portions of the dormitories and school structures, improve the landscaping and recreational facilities and in general, put a new face on the entire plant.

Farm-in-a-Day Program Will Be Staged

Albuquerque's greatest community project to date—the remaking in one day of the 80-acre farm and grounds at St. Anthony's Boys Home—will take place on Sept. 10.

"Never before in the city's history has every segment of our population joined together in an undertaking of this kind," says Lee G. Barte, general chairman of the "Farm-in-a-Day" demonstration.

Originally conceived by the Tijeras Soil Conservation District, the local chapter of Friends of the Land and the Soil Conservation Service as a small-scale field day to demonstrate modern farm practices and to assist this worthy but needy institution, the idea caught on throughout the community. Now, in addition to the establishment of soil improvements on the fields which provide food for some 150 orphaned boys, the project has blossomed to include rehabilitation of the entire buildings and grounds and the provision of many needed items of materials and equipment for the housing and educational facilities of the school as well as for the farm.

Other cities, towns and communities in the state are beginning to offer help as the plans go into detailed stages. Businessmen, professional men, Chambers of Commerce, labor unions, contractors, equipment distributors, building materials dealers, feed and seed companies, churches, fraternal and civic organizations, newspapers, radio stations and countless individuals are offering aid of various kinds.

In a dawn-to-dusk operation, fields will be leveled, irrigation ditches and structures rebuilt, fences constructed, pastures fertilized and seeded in accordance with a complete conservation farm plan developed by the local staff of the Soil Conservation Service. Soil conservation district supervisors will take key positions in marshalling the day's work.

more than $50,000 are offered in the livestock divisions of the 1949 State Fair, Francis said everything possible is being done to make this year's show "the most successful and most popular ever held."

Francis also encouraged sheep breeders to attend the first annual sheep ranch tour in the Roswell area, Sept. 1 and 2. The tour will show some 300 sheepmen the modern fenced pasture methods being used successfully on the state's most up-to-date ranches.

Bright Future for Sheep, Wool Industry Seen

A bright future for the sheep and wool industry is predicted by E. Lee Francis, Cubero, N. M. In a recent radio broadcast from Albuquerque, station KOB, Mr. Francis, a member of the New Mexico State Fair Commission encouraged sheep and other livestock producers to exhibit at the 1949 State Fair, Sept. 25 to Oct. 2.

He said that wool consumption in the United States has averaged more than a billion pounds a year, yet production in the U.S. is now only about 300 million pounds.

"With the demand for wool and lambs exceeding the supply, sheep is a good investment," Francis said. "To be successful, a sheepman must improve his sheep and one of the best methods is through the exchange of views and experience. There is no better place to do that than at your State Fair."

In reporting that awards totaling aids in the proceedings. It's all part of the fun that annually attracts thousands of people to this southeast New Mexico city.

O. E. Van Winkle was in Artesia Monday on legal business.

Francis also summarized the progress of the wool industry in the state, through breed improvement programs, the annual New Mexico Ram Sale, scheduled for Aug. 11 and 12 at the State Fair grounds and better ranch management.

"In addition, the annual exhibition of prize sheep and wool at the State Fair gives the sheepmen of this state an opportunity to review the progress being made in development of a better industry," he said. "For only by gauging the progress made in the past can the wool growers of this state accurately plan future operations on a basis which will be in keeping with the modern trend of improvement now being made in all lines of agriculture and business."

Francis also encouraged sheep breeders to attend the first annual sheep ranch tour in the Roswell area, Sept. 1 and 2. The tour will show some 300 sheepmen the modern fenced pasture methods being used successfully on the state's most up-to-date ranches.

European Corn Borer Reduced Crop in 1948

The European corn borer reduced the 1948 crop of field corn by 25, million bushels, the U.S. department of agriculture announced in Washington, D. C. Surveys recently completed by the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, with cooperating agencies, indicate this loss in corn production is more than double that of 1947.

Mechanical Cleaner Suggested for Barns

If you're building a new barn, or remodeling an old one, it would be a good idea to include plans for installing a mechanical barn cleaner. That's the advice of M. W. Forth, an engineer with the University of Illinois college of agriculture. Forth says it would pay to make provisions for a barn cleaner even though plans might not call for one right away.

New pyrethrum-like chemicals that kill insects have been made synthetically for the first time in the laboratories of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, it has been announced by the U. SCRIPTURE: Psalms 92; 103; 136:1-8
 DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 116:1-8, 17-19.

Thank God for God!

Lesson for August 7, 1948

WHILE the little children are thanking God for birds and bees and oatmeal, let us grown people rise and offer some adult thanksgivings. Reading the Psalms of praise which are this week before us, we get the impression that these poets were grateful above all not for anything God had given but for God himself. Thank God for God! sings through every line.

Dr. Foreman

Suppose there were no God? He is the Creator of all; without him nothing else can be. The nature of time and space, of molecule and atom and electron, the mighty power that holds all together; the emergence of life, of mind, the possibility of thought, of values, whatever is and whatever can be, is because he wills it so. That there is energy in the atom, light in the sun, refreshment in the rain and power in the lightning—that these things can be and that anything can be, we thank God.

No Unrighteousness in Him

SUPPOSE God were not good? A vast and vicious devil, his immense mind brimming with intelligence and malice, could perhaps have contrived a universe more enormous than this corner of one which is known to us. A creative devil—what pangs he could have invented to torture his creatures!

It may be, indeed, that only on this earth is there rebellion against the Creator, and that elsewhere in God's dominions all is peace. But suppose it were true that all the evil in the world was ordained by some Creative Hatred?—all the goodness in the world only an illusion, a deception?

Suppose it were the intent of some devilish maker of man finally to destroy all his creatures, or worse still, to make every creature long bitterly for death but find none? Let us thank God for God, the God of mercy whose loving kindness endureth forever.

He Knoweth Our Frame

LET us thank God for his providence. He did not create and then forget us, nor give us so much freedom that we could destroy his majesty or bring to naught his mighty plan. Let us thank God for his infinite love and interest that spares and speeds us, his knowledge of our frame, his remembering even the hairs upon our heads. Let us thank God that being infinite he can have a care for the infinitesimal, and that not a sparrow falls to the ground without our heavenly Father. Let us thank God whose care for us is such that without his knowledge not the least of his creatures can fall asleep.

From death and disaster we and the nation and the world have been saved, time and again. Frail is the craft in which the human spirit is launched through this pathless universe; yet it holds, and will hold, because the universe is there by his almighty decree.

In spite of the chaos of men's unruly wills, in spite of we know not what rebellions in the spirit world, he sees to it that not one good is ever wholly lost.

Who Redeemeth Thy Life

LET US PRAISE God for his promise and for his faithfulness. That he has not left us to our sins nor given us up though long we scorned him; that his divine patience outlasts the hasty heart; that he spared not his own Son but freely gave him for our sakes; that none who come to him will be cast out; that the God who creates is the God who redeems, we praise him from a heart of love. As the Psalmist of old knew himself as one of the children of the Covenant, so may every man who takes God's promises and makes them his heart's own.

After viewing Lord Nelson's flagship, Victory, from a distance, an American visitor was invited aboard to inspect it from closer quarters. "I wouldn't be surprised," replied the American. "I barked my shins on the durned thing myself."

Tobacco Important
In Marshall Plan

Is Present Prop
Of Tobacco Farmer

Tobacco, from the time of the Virginia colony, has marched along as an intimate part of the American story to the present day. In the wake of World War II, as the United States emerged the strongest economic power, the American cigarette became temporarily a universal wampum—the chief currency in both Berlin and Burma.

"You have a cigarette economy from Paris to Peking," a member told the house of commons in 1946. John Rolfe, husband of Pocahontas, would be astonished if he could see what he started when he brought in the seed of modern tobacco. In 1948, the United States made about 387 billion cigarettes, and the tobacco industry directly paid in excise and import taxes nearly two billion dollars.

From Virginia and Maryland the tobacco fields, growing over 25 types, have spread into North and South Carolina, south Georgia and northern Florida, Connecticut and Massachusetts, and the great burley area of Tennessee, Kentucky and the north bank of the Ohio.

America and the world have smoked the tobacco in pipes, cigars and cigarettes, and snuffed it in powdered form and chewed it.

The "chaw" is the most American of tobacco habits. European visitors have looked upon this habit with disgust. In 1947, addicts chewed 100 million pounds of tobacco.

The cigarette is the prime favorite. The modern cigarette, as we know it, was created almost on the eve of World War I. The formula for the popular brands sounds appetizing and nutritious. They mix with the bright leaf some Turkish tobaccos, much sweetened Burley and some Maryland. A quantity of glycerine or its equivalent preserves moisture. The whole is made tasty with such flavors as sugar, rum, licorice, chocolate, and vanilla-like products or chemicals.

The cigarette has even wooed many of the ladies away from their pipes or snuff sticks.

Tobacco is of considerable importance in the Marshall plan—and the Marshall plan is the present prop of the tobacco farmer.

Dulles Rebukes Pact Detractors; England Faces More Austerity; U S Steel Dislikes Truman Plan

Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper. (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of

MONROE DOCTRINE: Pact Fuss

John Foster Dulles, in his first speech as U.S. senator appealed for ratification of the North Atlantic pact and rebuked Senator Robert A. Taft and others opposing it. Taft's opposition was on the grounds that the treaty commits the United States to re-arm its European signers.

Dulles countered with the defense that the pact does not obligate this nation to enter any arms program which "isn't defensible on its own merits." Dulles said that the treaty doesn't give any individual member the right to get any particular thing from any other member. No particular member has any claim on any particular aid he averred. It does not require the United States to build each signer up so that it could defend itself alone, Dulles said.

ANOTHER FOE of the pact, Senator Flanders of Vermont, wanted to extend the Monroe Doctrine in place of entering the pact. He said this nation would not be obligated in details any more than in the original Monroe Doctrine.

Flanders also objected to possible arms commitments to Europe if we signed the pact. He said that if vast arms shipments are made to Europe we don't know what will happen to them in case of communist domination of nations benefited.

Senator Scott W. Lucas, the Democratic senate floor leader, said that the treaty imposes no legal obligation for an arms program, but added such a program is needed just the same.

The Truman administration seeks a $1,130,000,000 program to rearm western Europe.

ENGLAND: More Austerity

Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, has placed a new austerity program before the British people. He announced that Britain will reduce her spending in the United States and Canada by $400,000,000, or one-fourth, in the current fiscal year.

THE BRITISH financial situation is more serious than Secretary of State Acheson has made it appear. However, it is not insoluble. British difficulties cannot be attributed to the American slump. The British will benefit from declining prices here of raw materials and food. Inflated war prices are blamed for the rapid consumption of America's 1946 loan to England.

There is taking place in England, according to a recent poll of the British Institute of Public Opinion, a shift of political sentiment toward the right. A general election now might turn the Labor party out of office.

Union leaders promised to try to end London's wildcat dock strike as more soldiers, sailors and airmen went into the miles of wharves to unload ships and move cargoes of food.

FIRESIDE CHAT:

"Selfish Interests"

President Truman charged in a "fireside chat" to the nation that "selfish interests" are making budget-cut requests which threaten to "blunder" the nation into depression.

In his economic report, Truman assured the nation that it is not in a depression, despite business decline. "Political reasons" lead some people to want depression, he said. He added that depression can be avoided.

He blamed "selfish interests" for the tax cut that congress passed over his veto and for the denial of anti-inflation curbs he requested. HE FEARED a third great blunder and warned that "to slash government expenditures now would add to the downward trend." He defended his $42,000,000,000 budget for government spending the next 12 months.

He said, "If we follow the wrong budget policy at this time and slash our expenditures, we will decrease employment, cut down investment, weaken our defenses, and injure our efforts for peace."

His speech was seen as a movement to line up popular support for a showdown fight with the economy bloc in congress which is demanding that government spending be cut to income.

He criticized those who say we are in a depression.

"Many of these persons for political reasons would like to have a depression," he said. "Others are saying that there is nothing to worry about and an increase of the number looking for work is a good thing. This attitude ignores the human suffering . . ."

"CONEY ISLAND."

"Trivialization"

Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, demanded that mankind's expanding knowledge be turned toward achievement instead of "trivialization" and formation of a huge "Coney Island."

He spoke at the Goethe Bicentennial Convocation at Aspen, Colo. He said that world catastrophe is inevitable if the "tribal self-adoration, which goes under the name of patriotism continues unchecked."

He asked for a world union of "men of good will," and said that world government is a step in the right direction to avert global suicide. He argued that "communication" with Russia is possible if other nations were sincerely willing to try.

A "moral, intellectual and spiritual revolution is the only thing that will turn the world from a downward course, he argued.

He attacked the "purposelessness" of contemporary living, made more so by technology, and declared that new-gained leisure has been used for meaningless recreations.

Of atomic energy in peace and war he said, "If we have war, we shall be blown to bits; if we have peace we shall be bored to death."

Hutchins compared today's civilization with the fears and hopes expressed by the 18th century humanist, Goethe. The theme of his speech was "Goethe and world unity."

Goethe's dream for the world was that it should be a "world of friends," Hutchins said. He advocated Goethe's "civilization of dialogue."

Injured

Among the injured in the crash of the New York-California airliner that came to grief in the Santa Susana mountains near Chatsworth, Calif., was movie actress Caren Marsh. Latest estimates place the death toll of the crash at 25 with 18 injured. The plane crashed shortly after the pilot radioed that a violent fight was going on in the plane among the passengers.

Dairy Herd Spraying Will Yield Dividends

May Mean $75 Extra Profit This Summer

Spraying dairy cows with methoxychlor to control blood-sucking stable and horn flies, may mean at least $75 extra profit this summer, according to H. B. Petty, insect specialist in the Illinois college of agriculture. And the chances are good, he says, that profits from spraying may run much higher.

Spraying dairy cattle is a big job for farmers, but it is one that should be done.

Petty figures the potential $75 extra profit from spraying in this manner: You can get 15 per cent more milk up to September if you spray. This has been demonstrated by careful small-scale field tests.

Spraying dairy cattle is a big job for farmers, but it will help build the type of clean, "contented" dairy herds such as that shown here.

It is generally estimated that the average cow will give 1,700 pounds of milk during the four-month fly season. A 10 per cent boost — instead of 15 per cent — would mean 170 pounds of milk for that time. For a 15-cow herd, that would mean 2,550 pounds of extra milk from fly-control.

Figured conservatively at $3 a hundredweight, that's just under $75 more in milk checks. And it costs only about 20 or 25 cents a head for spraying.

Petty recommends spraying the inside of dairy barns two or three times during the summer. He suggests that the formula used provide for one pound of 50 per cent methoxychlor-wettable powder in two to four gallons of water to every 1,000 square feet of surface.

Dairy cattle should be sprayed with methoxychlor every two to four weeks to control horn flies.

The formula is one-half pound of 50 per cent powder in three gallons of water and apply one quart to each cow.

Old & New

Today's farm machinery is fast replacing the familiar rural picture of pitchfork and horse in haying time. With farm machinery in better supply than at any time in history, scenes like the upper one are giving away to those depicted by the bottom photo. Haymaking equipment like the automatic baler, left, and field bale loader in the lower picture are cutting man hours in the hayfields as much as 75 per cent.

Ain't It So

THERE WAS A TIME when a man had to admit that he couldn't see through a woman. We said there WAS a time.

The skirts are not the least bit thin,
The sun is very, very dim;
That's why you see a fellow grin
When some girl walks in front of him.

Another nice thing about the summer style is that a man doesn't have to go in bathing with a girl to see if nature gave her all that was coming to her.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Lunching with three members of the press, she could hardly get in a word until they finished telling her, at length, how wonderful she had been in "State of the Union," and how much they hope that Hollywood will soon do right by her.

That same day Betty Field lunched at an adjoining table. She and Miss Hussey hadn't seen each other since they worked together in "Gatsby," in which Miss Field and Alan Ladd star. MacDonald Carey and Barry Sullivan are featured.

Off-stage atmosphere: Two deputies of the Hollywood sheriff's office stood guard for two days over the machine gun used in RKO's "Follow Me Quietly." The law demands that such guns be constantly under the eye of a law enforcement officer while in use in a picture, and that it be in the hands of an officer of the law between takes. No unscheduled shooting allowed!

Hi Brown, producer-director of CBS' "Inner Sanctum," with the famous creaking door trademark, can't stand noise, especially squeaking doors. Has a man to come to his home at least once every two weeks to oil door hinges.

Jay Livingston and Ray Evans, who wrote "Buttons and Bows" for Bob Hope's "The Paleface," have done such a good job on "Fancy Pants," written for his "When Men Are Men," that he thought that would be a good title for the picture. However, the other title sticks. Meanwhile Evans and Livingston, authors of "To Each His Own" and other hits, are writing a second song for him.

Bob Poole should have known better. He mentioned on one of his week-end broadcasts over Mutual that the eastern heat wave "sorts has me down." The mail room at the broadcasting station was soon swamped with packages for him. He received two electric fans, 87 assorted cloth fans, some handsomely decorated, 50 straw fans and two lemons.

The short, stubby hooks which stevedores use in their dock work lost out when they were auditioned for Robert Ryan and John Agar to use in "I Married a Communist." Not photogenic enough. Bailing hooks were substituted.

"Meet the Menjous" is hereby nominated as the greatest mystery program on the air. The mystery—why NBC and the sponsors inflit it on us. In sprightly, cultured accents, Veree Teasdale Menjou and her spouse dole out chunks of information on such burning topics as sleep and the animals native to Australia. Couldn't be duller—or easier to turn off!

Wendell Holmes, "Scattergood Baines," claims a radio actor never can get the truth about a performance from his wife. "Statistics," says he, "would prove that, according to wives, their husbands have never given a bad performance."

Make Pleasant Work of Canning Relishes
(See Recipes Below)

Savory Relish
RELISHES go with meals just as easily as some foods team together. What's a sandwich without crisp pickles, or peanut butter without jelly? Doesn't a meat platter look bare without spiced peaches? What's a hamburger without chili sauce or catsup?

If you answer these questions favorably, you probably are planning to stock your canning cupboard with a variety of these relishes, for they are just as much a part of your food supply as are fruits and vegetables.

There's little chance of failure if you follow recipes because spices and vinegar are a preservative and make success easy.

HERE'S A FAVORITE pickle which you'll want to make, especially if there are lots of sandwiches made at your home:

- Chunk Pickles
(Makes 8 pints)
- 25 large (about 6 pounds) cucumbers
 - 3 1/4 cups salt
 - 3 quarts water
 - 2 tablespoons alum
 - 1 quart vinegar
 - 8 cups sugar
 - 2 2-inch sticks cinnamon
 - 2 blades mace
 - 1 tablespoon whole cloves

Wash cucumbers; place in a stone crock or jar; cover with cold brine made by dissolving salt in water; let stand for two weeks. Remove cucumbers from brine; wash and trim off stems. Cut cross-wise, into one-inch pieces. Cover with cold water; add alum and let stand overnight. Drain and wash well. Combine remaining ingredients and bring them to a boil. Pour immediately over cucumber chunks and let stand. Repeat this process for three mornings, reheating the syrup each morning, place cucumbers in sterile jars. Pour hot syrup over them and seal at once.

- Chili Sauce
(Makes 4 pints)
- 10 pounds red tomatoes
 - 1 quart chopped sweet red peppers
 - 1 cup finely chopped white onions
 - 1 quart sugar
 - 2 tablespoons salt
 - 5 cups vinegar
 - 1 teaspoon mustard
 - 1 teaspoon ground cloves
 - 1 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1 teaspoon celery seed

Scald tomatoes, remove skins and cut out cores. Wash peppers, remove seeds and dividing membranes. Put all through food chopper. Add all remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Boil for two hours, stirring frequently to prevent burning, until thick. As soon as the sauce is of desired consistency, pour into sterile jars and seal.

- LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU
- Fried Pork Sausage
 - Potato Salad
 - Sliced Tomatoes
 - Pickles
 - Rolls
 - Butter
 - Beverage
 - Grapes
 - Sugar Cookies

- Spiced Peaches
(Makes 4 1/2 quarts)
- 10 pounds clingstone peaches
 - 3 1/4 pounds sugar (7 1/2 cups)
 - 5 cups vinegar
 - 4 teaspoons whole cloves
 - 3 sticks cinnamon
 - 4 teaspoons whole allspice

Choose ripe but firm, medium-sized peaches. Place sugar and vinegar in a saucepan and heat to boiling. In the meantime, slip the skins off the peaches by dipping them in hot water for a minute or two, then in cold water. Stick two or three cloves in each peach. Tie remaining cloves, cinnamon and allspice loosely in a cheesecloth bag and drop this into the boiling syrup. Add 8 to 10 peaches and cook until tender. Place peaches in sterile jars and cover with lids but do not seal. When all the peaches are done, pour hot syrup into each of the jars to within 1/2 inch of the top. Seal at once.

- Plum Catsup
(Makes 5 pints)
- 5 pounds plums, pitted and chopped
 - 1/2 pound tart green apples, peeled and quartered
 - 2 cups vinegar
 - 4 cups brown sugar
 - 3 tablespoons cinnamon
 - 1 1/2 teaspoon cloves
 - 1/2 teaspoon mace
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt

Cook plums and apples in vinegar until soft enough to put through a sieve. Add remaining ingredients and simmer until as thick as desired. Pour into sterile jars and seal at once.

- Ripe Grape Jam
(Makes 12 6-ounce glasses)
- 5 1/2 cups prepared fruit
 - 7 cups sugar
 - 1 box powdered fruit pectin
- To prepare fruit, slip skins from three pounds fully ripe grapes. Add one cup water to the pulp, bring to a boil, and simmer, covered, for five minutes. Remove seeds with sieve. Grind skins and add to pulp. Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Place measured fruit into a five or six-quart saucepan, filling the last fraction of a cup with water, if necessary. Place over hottest fire and add fruit pectin; mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard one minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour into sterile glasses. Paraffin hot jam at once.

In making catsups, use a low heat and stir frequently to prevent the mixture from burning. Food choppers may be used for catsups, sauces and relishes for cutting vegetables and fruits easily.

How It Started...

BRIDEGROOM—There really isn't much mystery about the word "bridegroom." It began as the Anglo-Saxon "byrd-guma," which meant bride-man—that is, the "bride's man." In the course of time the spelling developed into the word form as we have it today.

TURNCOAT—Years ago when Spain and France were at war, one of the first Dukes of Savoy found himself in an uncomfortable position. His land was so close to both enemies that each side made use of it in attacking each other. The duke always had to be on the stronger side or be destroyed. So, he had a coat made which was blue on one side, white on the other, these being the respective colors of the warring nations. When the Spaniards were winning, the duke wore his coat blue side outward, and when the French were winning he "turned his coat" so the white side was out. Hence the term "turncoat."

SEVEN SEAS—The expression comes from an ancient belief that there were seven seas surrounding the seven great land masses of the world. Today, the seven seas are the Arctic, Antarctic, North and South Atlantic, Pacific and the Indian ocean.

Considerable Care Urged in Tree Moving
Considerable care should be exercised when young fruit trees are moved from the nursery to an orchard or yard where soil fertility and other conditions may be less favorable.

Dr. A. Lee Schrader of the horticulture department, University of Maryland, points out that when trees are dug for shipment, part of the root system inevitably is lost. After the trees have arrived, new roots — sufficient to supply water and minerals to the entire tree — must be grown in order to insure normal development. Lack of adequate root growth, Dr. Schrader warns, often results in death of the tree or, at best, a poor growth of new shoots, particularly where the soil is low in certain minerals.

duce "naturally homogenized" milk—the fat globules are so fine and tiny that they are integrated by nature with the rest of the milk. Ayrshire milk is in great demand by hospitals, and by doctors with on-diet patients.

De-Humidifier

Now the home-owner can protect property in his basement from mold, rust and mildew damage by moist summer air with any one of several simple and inexpensive de-humidifiers and a low-cost chemical—calcium chloride.

Scarce in supply during the war years, calcium chloride is now in plentiful supply. Low-cost de-humidifiers are available nationally through hardware and lumber dealers.

De-humidifiers designed to use the chemical have a container such as that shown here, for the flake which is exposed to air. Calcium chloride has the unique property of being able to absorb several times its own weight in moisture.

Montana Farm Families Assist County Agents
More than 6,500 rural men and women in 43 Montana counties gave freely of their time during 1948 to assist county extension agents in carrying forward programs aimed at bringing about improved farming and homemaking methods and better rural community living, according to the year's end report of R. records. From these annual figures, "herd" averages are then computed, and these are computed into the only "breed" averages extant.

Owners of the Ayrshire cattle are given duplicate copies of the production records compiled with the help of foolproof IBM machines. This system is of immeasurable help to Ayrshire farmers in operating their herds and disposing of surplus cattle.

But this painstaking "cows on test" project is only one of the many operations conducted by the A.B.A. staff. The birth of every Ayrshire calf is recorded and registered.

The operations of the A.B.A are helping to make Ayrshire cattle one of the most popular breeds of dairy cattle in the country. The Ayrshire is reported the highest producer of 4.0 per-cent milk of any breed. Only Ayrshires pro-

No Sand is Free

By W. T. PERSON

The Ives family, including Andy, Kate, Hope, Dave and Granny, face grave problems in their new home in the wilderness. The two men, with the help of neighbors, clear most of the land but are interrupted by heavy rains which flood the area and the women go to a refugee camp for flood victims. There, Mrs. Ives notes that the Websters, formerly very friendly neighbors, are distant toward her. Oreen Webster, a 16-year-old girl who had made life miserable for Dave, attaches herself to Hank Butler, a particularly obnoxious person to Hope. The refugees give a square dance to relieve the tensesness. At that time, Jerry Burke, young townsman, campaigns amongst them.

CHAPTER XXII

That evening she was leaving the building where the patients were isolated, when Hank Butler stepped out of the shadows and said, "Hey, there."

She started in surprise. "Hello. I wasn't expecting anybody to speak to me. That's why I jumped." Then she turned and started away, not wishing to be there in the poorly lighted area with Hank Butler, who must have been waiting for her.

"Wait, Miss Hope," he begged. "I'll walk along with you."

She stopped. "I was in a hurry," she told him vaguely, and tried hard to think of a reason for her hurry if he asked why she was so rushed. "Do you want to see me about something?"

He came up to her. Even in the poor light she could see his black eyes on her—or she fancied she could. "Pretty night, ain't it? They say we'll soon be gettin' back home."

"That's good," she started walking again. Hank was beside her.

"Don't hurry so," he begged. "I want to talk to you."

"About what?" She was walking even faster now, desperate to make the lighted area in front of the recreation building.

Hank's hard fingers closed about her arm. It was a quick, bold move, made with no warning. "Wait," he said sharply.

"Don't!" she gasped, trying to snatch away, but his grip was powerful. "Turn me loose. Don't ever touch me again!"

"Now, Miss Hope!" He was taking a new tack now, and there was no anger in his voice. "I got to talk with you. I'll turn you a-losee if you'll listen to me a minute."

"All right, I will. What do you want to talk about?"

Hank released her arm. "I don't care nothin' 'bout that li'l Oreen Webster," he said. "She's been pesterin' me an' swingin' onto me like I was her'n; but I ain't got nothin' fer her."

"Yes?" Hope said.

"Naw. She's plum' boy crazy, an' she's been after me till I didn't have a chance to talk to you. I don't want to make her ma mad; she's got a tongue like a black-snake whup!"

"You are a little old for Oreen," Hope said. She felt that Hank had paused for her to make a comment at that point.

He nodded. "I'm more yore age. She's crazy 'bout me 'cause I play the guitar. It's funny how bein' a good musician will make the gals flock after a feller!" Then he moved slightly nearer to Hope. "It's you that I'm crazy about!" he said hoarsely, and he caught her hand.

"You are a plum' fool about—"

"Yes, I— Then Hope saw that Oreen was staring at her, and she realized that she must be quite disheveled.

"Where's Hank?" Oreen asked with sharp suspicion. "You been out there in the dark with him!"

"Hush your silly mouth!" Hope ordered. "He's out there somewhere, now. Go find him. Keep him! Don't let him get near me again!"

"What's all this?" Mrs. Webster asked, appearing behind Oreen. She was studying Hope closely. "What you been doin'?"

"She was out there with Hank!" Oreen put in. "She just tol' me so. She tries to be so high an' mighty, but she sneaks out an' tries to take Hank away from me! She—"

"You're crazy!" Hope said, almost choking with rage. "He tried to—"

"Come on, 'Reen," Birdie Webster said. "They's some people we don't have to be saw with!"

And they turned back into the building.

Hope stood there, trembling. If she hadn't been so angry, she might have cried.

It was two days later that the refugee camp began breaking up, for the water was off the swamp, except in the lowest places, and the roads had dried out enough for wagons to travel them. Trucks and cars must be left on the gravel for a few days yet, before attempting the dirt stretches.

Dave and Andy went to work in the mud. Too much time had been lost already; they couldn't wait for things to be convenient and comfortable!

On Saturday Andy awoke with a headache, his first in ten years. He felt "aguey" and feverish, but said nothing to Kate. She would make him go to bed, but a fellow can't lie in bed and get land cleared!

At breakfast, nothing tasted good, but he forced himself to eat. Granny accused him of not feeling well, and he turned it off, he thought, with: "Oh, I'm getting lazy. That's all."

"Oh, I'm getting lazy. That's all."

sulphate and some five-grain capsules. "I al'us keep it aroun'," he said, proud of being able to help. "You never know when the malarial will strike."

"When can I be up and at work?" Andy wanted to know.

"Oh, in mebbe a week. Now, don't start fumin'. An' if you git too brash an' don't take keer of yourself, you may run into swamp fever; an' that's bad, I mean!"

"I'll be good," Andy promised.

"But a week! Poor Dave!"

He soon found that Mr. Flipp's predictions had been accurate. His head roared with strange noises and he dreamed in wild, confused pictures during short snatches of sleep.

The next day, Sunday, he was weak and shaky, but clear of fever. Granny said this was to be expected, and that if he had a severe case his fever would come back up tomorrow. "You may have another chill then too," she told him. "They usually come every other day."

Kate called from the window of the new room: "Come in, Hope. Big Halleck is riding up to see us."

A quick little gladness shot through Hope. She hurried in, by way of the back door. Before the rider had reached the house, she had time to straighten her hair and check on her make-up.

It was high time Big Halleck came! Hope hadn't seen him since the morning they had stood together, listening to Virgie Winslow's song.

She met him at the door and called, "Hey, stranger!"

"Hello," he said it with not much of a smile to relieve the gravity of his expression. "I hear Mr. Ives is sick."

Hope moved aside from the door, making way for him to enter. The look on his face and the quick reason he had given for his visit had driven the gladness out of her. She almost wished that he hadn't come, for she sensed that he was different now.

"Malaria," Hope said. "He'll be glad to see you." She knew her voice was tight, but she couldn't help it. "Go right on in."

"He's not bad, is he? I met Brother Cowann down the road a piece. He looked mighty concerned."

"No, I think it's just an ordinary case," Hope told him.

"Come in, Big," Kate called. "Andy is lonesome for some cheerful company. How did you know he was sick?"

"Mr. Flipp came by the house late yesterday afternoon and told me."

"Big Ignores Hope on a Visit"

He went into the new room, where Andy lay, and took a chair by the bed.

"Mr. Flipp fiddled on the radio last night," said Mr. Elliot. "He and Hank Butler were guest artists on a hillbilly program—if you'll forgive me for such a loose handling of the word 'artist'!"

Big stayed and talked farming and clearing and drainage with Andy for perhaps two hours. He had already done some breaking, and would put in a block of corn in early March. Late corn, he said, always stood a chance of being ruined by dry weather.

Kate came in as he was getting ready to leave. "We've missed you around here," she told him. "Mighty glad you could come today."

"I've been busy, but I'm caught up with my work pretty well now."

Hope was at the piano when he left. She wasn't playing. Mr. Elliot was sitting in a chair beside the stool, explaining the difference between Bach and Chopin as composers. In a moment he was going to show her something about major and minor chords.

Hope missed a few pertinent facts about Bach and Chopin as Big was leaving, but she appeared to be attentive. At least she kept her eyes on the keys before her as she listened for some word from him. She heard him go out the door, heard Dave talking with him outside, then heard his horse singlefooting along the woods road as he went away.

Dave came into the house. He was highly pleased about something, and he started on back to his father without a word to the women.

"What is it?" Kate asked. "You look like the cat that swallowed the canary."

"Two canaries!" Granny added. "Big said we might get somebody to swap work, clearing," Dave said. "He'll see if he can find us some help."

"What's that?" Andy called, pleased and surprised. "Who'll he ask to come and help us? Did he say?"

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Guilt Feeling Makes Duffers

By Lawrence Gould

Can a sense of guilt make you miss golf shots?

Answer: Yes, although you probably don't realize it. After struggling with the elusive game for forty years I am convinced that when you miss a two-foot putt, a guilty conscience is the explanation. For success at golf (or any other sport) implies you're doing two things, both of which are "wicked" from a childish standpoint: proving how "good" you are, and getting the better of someone else. The more you want to do either, the more childish memories of being told you mustn't tend to make you flinch and punish yourself by "missing."

in the true sense, in which happiness means more than egotistic pleasure. "Only the happy man is good." Educating children to serve the state rather than teaching them to live so as to realize their own best possibilities marks the difference between Nazism and democracy.

Is it sometimes good for you to be "shocked?"

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. Leland Bradford and Paul Sheats of the National Education Association in the magazine, Society. Training supervisors often fail because the trainee has a "vested interest" in certain types of behavior and does not know how to deal with any others. He should be "shocked out of his complacency" and made to realize that his standards are not universally accepted. Finding someone you respect has tastes or habits you were taught to disapprove of may help you to concentrate on things that really matter.

HAPPINESS

Should happiness be the goal of education?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. Herman Noll of Goettingen University, Germany. True education does not ask how useful the pupil will be to the job for which he is being trained, but how useful the training will be to him in helping him become a happy human being. For

Surgery Relieves Profound Grief

By Dr. James W. Barton

I WRITE FREQUENTLY about the operation lobotomy or leukotomy, used in cases of deep grief and depression. It certainly causes a great change in the individual's outlook on life and is of great comfort and relief to the family.

in some and not in others having the same symptoms and undergoing the same operation?

Dr. Garmany states that operation alone is not responsible for all the improvement obtained. Improvement also depends on the home environment or surroundings.

In depression a naturally good personality, never affected by fears, doubts, emotional disturbances, and of average intelligence, is absolutely necessary if good results are to be expected. Where the patient has always been affected with illusions, delusions, obsessions or other types of odd behavior, good results may be, but are usually not, obtained by leukotomy.

When this operation was first reported, all that was hoped for was the relief from the great depression of spirits. The fact that these patients, in losing their depression, often lost their sense of responsibility did not seem very important. When further reports showed that some of these patients who had undergone operation were able to return home and be of some use to themselves and to the household, it was more than had been expected.

In "Lancet," London, Dr. G. Garmany reports the results of leukotomy present in 59 patients, three years after operation. Leukotomy proved successful in half of the 22 patients with depression, and also in half of the 10 patients with double personality (the Dr. Jekyll-and-Mr. Hyde type.)

The thought here is that while leukotomy relieves grief and depression in most cases, restoring the mind and the emotions to normal depends to a great extent upon the personality of the individual during his lifetime and also upon his family and community surroundings.

New Mexico Notes

FROM A WHEEL CHAIR

Calvin Coolidge is quoted as having said: "We do not need more national development, we need more spiritual development. We do not need more intellectual power, we need more spiritual power. We do not need more law, we need more religion. We do not need more of the things that are seen, we need more of the things that are unseen."

As we think of the thousands of requests daily pouring into Washington and the many which flood our state capitols, we wonder whether anyone, any more, stops to think of how a little of the spiritual element would lift a depressed spirit or give comfort to a confused mind fighting its way out of the labyrinth of everyday living problems.

I would not say with Mr. Coolidge that "we do not need more national development," nor that we would not use more "intellectual development," but I do wonder whether we have not come to lay too much stress on the things of the world which are bringing us neither security in worldly goods, and pleasures, nor peace of mind.

I believe that more development in the material world, more expansion, with more and better opportunity for the average man and woman is desirable, but I also believe that some of the time we put in seeking these things from others could be better spent in conditioning our hearts and minds to enjoy the additional material things we so much want when and if they should come to us.

Faith in God, faith that will permit us to better weather the storms and disappointments of life as they must surely come, is something many overlook.

This simple prayer has come to me from one of my friends. I hope it has value for others, also:

Help me, in times like these,
 To braver be;
 Trusting, each trying day
 For strength from Thee.

Help me to keep my faith
 When funds are low;
 Guide me to wisely plan
 The way to go.

Help me to learn to smile
 Beneath the load,
 And lift some struggling one
 Along the road.

Help me to walk by faith,
 And not by sight,
 Knowing, in God's good time,
 All will come right.
