Reds Make New Advance in Korea; Living Costs Continue to Climb Truman Asks Mobilization Steps;

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Dulor's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

KOREA:

Reds Advance

For four weeks Americans had picked up their morning newspapers and read about the Communist advances in Korea. Now, as the fifth week of the conflict began, the Reds continued to make advances, but not with the ease of the early weeks of the invasion.

The military picture in Korea was not bright by any means, but at the same time, it was not so hopeless as it seemed a few days ago

The Communists had advanced into Yongdong, about 20 miles south of fallen Taejon, on the central front. Along the western coast, the Commies advanced south to Mokpo on the southern tip of Korea. On the porthern front that touches the east coast, Yongdok, captured by American forces, was retaken by Red

North Korean troops had captured two-thirds of South Korea and were continuing steady pressure upon American and South Korean troops. The line was slowly being pushed back toward the main American supply port of Pusan.

According to U. S. military experts, however, the picture had its brighter side. They pointed to the number of reinforcements that have reached Korea, the telling blows of the U.S. air force on supply lines and tanks, and the success of the new 34-inch bazooka against Red

FOOD SUPPLY:

More Than Enough

As prices continued to climb, the government began a campaign of telling the American people there is more than enough food in this country and that hoarding is selfish and unnecessary.

President Truman stressed that point in a recent speech and the department of agriculture repeated it with a statement that the nation's food supply is so plentiful that price increases are unwarranted.

The department's report stated fietly that with high production prospects and large storage stocks, supplies of food for civilians in this country are expected to continue at the same high level as in past

"There has apparently been some speculative buying and price increases in food in recent weeks substantially similar to those occurring in 1939, which receded as soon as consumers realized that food supplies are adequate," the report

But the increases in prices, despite the report, caused a number of repercussions on the home front. An immediate investigation into supply, demand and cost was indicated by some government sources. American housewives added their voice to the turmoil. More than one retailer found his displays ignored and demands for price controls and even rationing were being heard in some quarters.

The government reported commodities on which stocks were high included dairy products, eggs, poultry and potatoes. Fruits and vegetables were termed ample. Total mest output in 1850 probably will be slightly larger than last year, the report said.

Many believe any campaign the government might launch for voluntary rationing is doomed to fall-

AUTOMOBILES:

Production Drop

A spokesman for the automobile industry has predicted a sharp dip in the industry's production within the next five months.

Evidently many Americans have already figured the same way, because dealers throughout the country report a great jump in orders for new automobiles. In many lecalities waiting lists have already been formed.

The automobile industry does not need a hig volume of war orders to have his posts pressure treated with curtail its civilian car and truck creosote, along with ties and poles production. All that is needed is the diversion of large amounts of steel arms output. Building automobiles also takes a lot of critical farm fencing problem spread materials besides steel. Toy Guns Release Boy's Impulses

Does it hurt small boys to play with toy pistols?

when they're older, and not then if they are properly trained in the use If you can't "take" the way someof fire-arms. Every small boy has "aggressive" impulses which it's better for him to release in play than to "bottle up" altogether. Even "killing" in play means no more to a small boy than "eliminating" an opponent in a golf or tennis tournament (itself a symbolic battle) does to his father. Fighting is not all of afe, but a boy's fighting instincts

MANCHURIA 38th PARALLEL YELLOW TAEJON

Korea juts from Manchuria with one corner bordering the Soviet Union. Its total population is over 30 million people, with two-thirds of them living in South Korea below the 38th parallel.

LAND OF THE MORNING CALM

Korea Has Struggled for Unity And Independence for 50 Years

A great many people in the United States were very vague about the location of Korea until the recent outbreak of fighting in that little country that juts from Manchuria and the Soviet Union, not unlike Florida from the southern part of this country.

It is a rugged land of 30,000,000 people with mountain ranges comparable in height to the Appalachians covering virtually all the country. Granite hills up to 6,300 feet fold the terrains of the United States sponsored Republic of Korea -the Indiana-sized southern threeseventh of the peninsular land. They form a twisting network of valleys which invaders have always fol-

So completely do the rugged hills crease the country that rail and highway routes twist fantastically in connecting cities and towns.

Chief transportation artery of South Korea, for instance, is the double - tracked, standard - gauge railroad running diagonally from Haeju in the northwest on the violated 38th-parallel boundary through Seoul, Taejon, and Taegu to the southeastern port of Pusan. From Haeju to Pusan by way of the cities named is just about 290 air miles and 400 miles by rail.

Rice Main Crop

At some time in the past, nature's forces tilted the southward-pointing peninsula down on the west, or Yellow sea side, and up on the east, the coast of the Sea of Japan. As a result of this tilt, Korea, although it iges 150 miles in width, has its drainage divide only about 15 miles inland from the east coast.

The west coast has a partly submerged short line marked by countless fjordlike bays and islands. Yellow Sea tides, fluctuating 25 feet and more, have created broad tidal mud flats.

The east coast on the other hand, has almost no islands and a straight, steep shore line. Mountains slope into the sea or from narrow sand beaches washed by clear water.

South Korea is the agricultural part of the peninsula as divided arbitrarily at the 38th parallel in 1945 as a Russo-American military expedient for the disarming of Japanese troops. Rice is grown on every flat space where irrigation is possible. Thatched farm houses and green terraces snuggle in every narrow valley between the endless lines of folded hills. Sovbeans, hemp, wheat, barley, and vegetables are cultivated in dry fields.

Throughout its modern history the encient nation of Korea has been engaged in a tragic struggle for freedom, unity, and independence. Japan annexed the country in 1910 and proceeded to exploit its resources thoroughly until the end of World War II. But for years prior to the annexation, Korea had been pawn in the big power politics of Japan, China, and Russia.

Peace-seeking Korea ushered in its modern era by concluding an "open door" treaty with Japan in 1876. But Nipponese promises of independence were soon forgotten. The Sino-Japanese war of 1894-95 left Japan the dominant foreign power in Korea. This hold was consolidated by victory in the Russo-Japenese war a decade later, and the Koreans had no free government of their own until the elections held in 1948 under United Nations auspices.

Founded in 1122 B. C.

Old Korea's origins are obscured by time, but her people claim a history of more than 42 centuries. Korean legend celebrates a founder named Tan Gun, of superhuman origin, whose alleged tomb is still venerated. More credible are the historic references to a Chinese noble who emigrated to Korea in 1122 B. C., and founded a dynasty there that ruled the country for many centuries.

Much of what we now know as Korea had attained a degree of unity and enjoyed an old culture at the time the Roman Empire flourished. In the 14th century the relatively small peninsular country became known as the kingdom of "Chosen", a name often given Korea to this day.

Korea, after completing its treaty of 1876 with the Japanese, made similar "open door" agreements with a number of other powers, including the United States. But none served to protect Korea from aggression and exploitation.

Japan, after winning its war with Russia, made Korea a protectorate for a time until the annexation, when Korean properties were seized or expropriated.

Korean patriots penned their own declaration of independence in 1919. This touching and beautifully written document was presented to the Japanese with peaceful intent, but the signers were executed.

A provisional government in exile was formed. For many years this pewerless government, under Dr. Syngman Rhee, campaigned for independence. In 1948 the Rhee government at Seoul was recognized by the United Nations, though the northern half of the country was under Russian domination.

Strange Customs

The Koreans have a number of customs which people of this country find amusing.

For instance, by long established custom, the Korean bridegroom stays with his bride three days in his father-in-law's house before returning with her to his own parents' house. Official manhood begins for the Korean only after marriage. Even if he is 70, a bachelor's opinion has little influence.

White is the traditional color of mourning in Korea. Since it is worn for three years for close relatives, Korean families are in mourning white much of the time.

Potential barrier to an invader's progress is the population of South Korea. It is now 20 million, threefourths of them on farms. Despite the mountains that rule out cultivation of most of the area, that is more than twice the population of North Korea, and five times that of Indiana, comparatively a farming paradise.

Pain in the Neck Caused by Allergy

By Dr. James W. Barton

IN MANY CASES the cause of pain at back of neck, shoulder, and down the arm has been found to be rupture or hernia of the disk or cushion between two spinal bones in the neck. This rupture of a disk occurs most frequently in the lower end of the spine between the two large hip bones. In rupture of a disk at any part of the spinal column, operation to remove the disk is considered the best treatment, though some of the less severe cases are helped by a snugfitting belt which must be worn for months and, in some cases, for

However, that all pain in the neck is not caused by a rupture of a disk in spinal column at the neck is pointed out by Dr. T. G. Randolph in Archives of Ear and Throat. He states that allergy, being sensitive to various substances, is the cause of many cases of nuchal (neck) myalgia (pain in muscles), that is, pain in muscles of neck. It sometimes called posterior cervical myalgia. Certain foods and inhalants (house dust) were stated to be the cause of pain in back of neck in several cases. In many of these cases of pain in back of neck, physicians, because they can find no apparent cause for this pain-no ruptured disk or other injury, no arthritis due to infectionnaturally think that nervousness or emotional disturbances cause the pain because of the tenseness with which these individuals hold all their nerves and muscles, including muscles of back of neck.

"Pulling, drawing, tightness and aching of the neck muscles are some of the most usually encountered symptoms observed in the course of performing individual food tests for the diagnosis of food allergy," he writes. "Technicians are trained to observe whether the patient stretches his neck as if his collar were too tight, as telltale evidence of the onset of such neck symptoms. As the patient stretches the neck and turns his head from side to side, he generally starts to rub or massage the back of his

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

Carey learns or noward's plans to enter West Point and extends her congratulations. Ken, becoming increasingly aware of Carey's allure, begins to evidence signs of being jealous of Howard. Subconsciously seeking to ward off the threat of Howard as a rival, he tells Carey his brother "already has a girl." Ken invites Carey to go for a walk to Castle Rock and she accepts. Meantime, Nell chides Howard for trying to "cut out" Ken with Carey, something which he de-Nell is afraid of Cricket, the bull, and begs Rob to dispose of the animal. Ken is upset as Carey talks of her desire for bables after she is

CHAPTER XII

"I see what you mean. It's just kind of make-believe." He glanced at her questioningly, and she became serious and then nodded doubtfully. "Well, let me be in it, too. Wouldn't I do?" He laughed gaily and presently Carey laughed too, hesitatingly at first, then more hilariously as their emotion found an outlet. They roared together.

This caused more uproarious laughter, then Ken said, "I pass on both counts. Anything else?' Carey gaily counted the points on her fingers. "He'd have to be a good physical specimen-Ken flexed his arm and showed his muscle. "I'm the wiry kind.

I had pneumonia when I was ten, but I'm all over it."

Carey was giggling. "He'd have to be religious, but I know you

Ken asked, "How do you know?" They were beginning to forget that it was a game of pretend.

"Because your family is. Your father says grace and you all go to church. But," added Carey, "I don't know if you yourself are, are you?"

"I don't know."

"Why don't you know?" "Well, how can you tell?" "Do you say prayers?"
"Sure," said Ken.

"Then you're religious. Why did you say you didn't know?"

"Well, I thought you meant, sort of, if I was good.

"Oh, no! I don't think it's the same thing at all. Well-so you are religious. And healthy enough, I guess-"

She straightened up, the soft wind blew her hair back from her face. Clasping her hands she looked far off into the western horizon as if she could see several of the little ones sitting on the small clouds that were gathering around the sun. "I just hope one of them will look like Penny. I think she is the most beautiful baby I ever saw.'

"Well, if I am the father, maybe one of them will. She's my sister, you know.'

He said this so seriously that Carey was brought up short. She gave a little embarrassed laugh. "That was just pretending, you

"I know," said Ken. "Oh, Ken! Just think of giving them all their baths and putting them to bed!"

Ken gave an exclamation of annoyance "Those children of yours! You don't think of anything else! Your're just a little girl playing with dous! I really don't think it's exactly proper!"

"It certainly is," Carey defended herself. "It is a subject that is of the greatest importance to all young beople, especially girls, and one has to study and think about the things that are important."

"Let's go back," said Ken abruptly

Carey Exults Having Two Boys Seek Favors

One morning a message came from the Mexican shearers that they would arrive at the Goose Bar Ranch next day, and Rob went down to the corrals where the boys were working with their colts, and called out that one of them should ride up to Jeremy that afternoon and tell him that they would be moving down to the ranch the next morning early for the shearing.

The two boys looked at each other, then at Carey.

"Which of us?" asked Howard. "Ken can go." Rob walked back to the house. Ken looked at Carey. "Will you ride up with me, Carey?"

Howard said quickly, "I'm going fishing. Carey, you said you wanted to do some fishing."

Carey decided that she would prefer the fishing to the rile, and house, and a few moments later soon after the noon meal she and were at the supper table. So was Howard were out digging in the Carey. All three had high color.

saddled up.

He was coming home late in the afternoon when, without intending to spy, he saw a strange scene on the big flat rock which overlooked one of the best pools on Deercreek.

From where he was riding high up along the Saddle Back he got almost a bird's-eye view of it. First there were two figures, then there was one figure, then there was some sort of a scuffle.

A flame of anger poured all through Ken. He didn't want to spy. He unsaddled Flicka and walked down through the Gorge, going toward the back door. Then he heard them coming up from the stream. Howard said, "But, Carey, I didn't mean-"

Carey's voice interrupted him-it sounded as if she were half crying. Then they turned the corner and came into Ken's view. Carey was soaking wet and covered with mud. She was in a sobbing fury. "Don't you ever speak to me again as long as you live, Howard McLaughlin!' And she rushed in the back door.

Howard turned. The boys looked at each other.
"What did you do?" demanded

Ken. "You tried to kiss her!" "I did not," denied Howard. Then, angry at himself, he gave Ken an ugly look. "What's it to you if I did? Whose business is it, I'd like to know?" And he threw up his hands into boxing position and shuffled his feet threateningly. Boys Keep Eyes Peeled for Rob

The gesture was half in earnest, half in pretense, but it startled Ken and made him jump. He threw himself into a position of defense. Howard shuffled his feet again and began warily to circle Ken. Ken lit out, Howard countered, they began to spar.

After a moment or two Pearl came to the back door to see what was doing.

"Why, you two boys!" she ex-claimed. "You ought to be ashamed of yourselves!"

The make-believe fight was becoming a real fight. To Ken particularly it was an outlet for pentup feelings. He landed a stiff arm jolt in Howard's midriff.

Pearl danced with excitement. "Good for you, Ken! Give it to him." They did not need to be spurred on. They were fighting as hard as they could now but in deadly silence, their ears on the alert for the sound of their father's step or voice. The hot blood poured up into their faces. Their eyes blazed. "Where's Dad?" asked Howard as he landed one on Ken's eye. "Around on the front terrace," said Pearl in a stage whisper. "Watch him, will you?" grunted Ken, swinging as hard as he could. The sound of their father's voice came to them.

"Cheese it!" exclaimed Pearl. "Your father's coming!" "What's the matter with supper, Pearl?" called Rob and his steps came loudly along the terrace toward the back of the house. "Just goin' to ring the bell, Captain McLaughlin!" said Pearl. The boys vanished behind the flower beds for worms, while Ken | The boys' hair was plastered down in the fashion which meant a lightning session with head and comb under the water faucet. Carey's hair, too, was wet, and she said little and kept her face turned to Nell.

One of Ken's eyes was slowly closing and a purplish hue surrounded it.

Howard had a place on his lip to which he kept touching his napkine Rob glanced from one boy to the other but no questions were asked and all the talk was of the shearing which was to begin next day.

Laughlin's heavy team, blinked their eyes as they jogged along the top of Saddle Back, going up to the sheep camp to get Jeremy's wagon and bring it to the ranch for the

They trotted side by side, festooned with harness. The braces were looped up, the big collars were loose on their necks.

Astride of Tommy was Ken. Astride of Big Joe was Carey. Big Joe's trot was long and rough. Without a saddle, and unable to post or knee-grip, she bounced madly and often had to grab the hames.

The wind was cool, the sunrise filled their eyes, they were on the top of a wide and empty world and they should have been friends but Carey's face was turned away from Ken and his heart hurt him.

It was his own fault, he knew that. He had been mad at her ever since she had chosen to go fishing with Howard the day before.

But Carey had not played her part in this imagined scene at all. From the moment when they had kept their rendezvous, so early that it seemed practically in the night, she had been bright and sweet and oblivious to his mood and his attitude. This had made him scowl more fiercely, though, in the darkness, what use was it? She ought to be able to tell by his voice, by the short sharp sentences he spoke as he led her from the house up to the stable corral where Big Joe and Tommy were waiting.

Carey had made a few surprised, stumbling rejoinders at first, then had fallen silent, her face turned away from him. Finally she had given a little cold laugh. "Well, you don't own me, do you?"

They arrived at the wagon and before Ken had got to the side of her horse to help her she had slipped to the ground. They arrived at the ranch in time for breakfast. Already Garcia, the Mexican, and his men were there. Bunkhouse breakfast was over, the men were busy preparing the shearing pens.

Fishing Exhausts Rob's Patience

Rob heaved a deep sigh, shoved his hat farther back and scratched his head. Then, squinting, knotting the impatient lines which crisscrossed his forehead, he looked slowly over the heavens, the horizon, the far mountains.

Rob heaved another sigh, pulled his hat down over his eyes and concentrated on his fishing. He reeled the line in, frowning heavily, cast the bait to a likely spot downstream under the farther bank, watched a moment with intense determination, impatiently yanked it out, got to his feet, walked upstream, found himself another place, and sat down to fish again. His bait was gone. Cursing freely, he got the can out of his pocket, forced a worm on the hook and dropped it under the bank.

At some distance from him, Rodney Scott, his friend and doctor, leaned around a bush, wigwagging for silence. Rodney took his fishing with appropriate seriousness. No worms for him! Few were the Saturday afternoons that did not provide him with an outing and a creel full of trout.

But Rob's short patience was exhausted. He pulled in his line and walked up to Rodney.

"How the hell a grown man can waste his time in such foolishness!" exclaimed Rob.

"How do you expect me to catch anything if you come stamping and shouting around?" complained Rodney bitterly. At that moment he felt a strike, played his fish and drew out a shining ten-inch trout.

Rob watched him glumly as he tool it off the hook and dropped it in his creel. "What do you think I got you out here for?' Rodney looked at him suspiciously, 'Well, you said to come out and fish but I had an idea you had something else in the back of your head. If you want to consult me professionally why don't you come to my office when you're in town?"

KATHLEEN NORRIS How About You?

AT LEAST 300 WOMEN have written me in in answer to an article of mine on the "perfect wife," that they were the lucky companions of perfect husbands. Most of them admitted that-well, he wasn't exactly perfect to start with, but after the first year or two, when two young experienced persons had settled down to a certain amount of consideration and compromise, and appreciation of the fun of being together, then suddenly he began to take the first steps toward being perfect, and perhaps discovered in his turn that the wife he had was pretty near perfect, too. That's the way of it. Silence, pa-Big Joe and Tommy, Rob Mc- tience, confidence, compromise work their inevitable miracle. Letter after letter on this subject of the perfect mate begins with the story of early failure.

"We stuck together because we couldn't do anything else," writes one woman. Harry wasn't making any money regularly. When Shirley was two and another baby coming, he deserted me. The police found him, when I was in the city and county hospital with Beverly Ann; Harry came to see me, and he cried and I cried and we started all over, only with more didies and cribs and bottles added to the dishes and dust and beds I thought I couldn't handle before.

Had Long Talk

"Aren't we funny! We had a long talk, and moved into an establishment that was composed of a large room, a glassed porch with two gas-burners and a hopper with a faucet, and a porch closet. And were we happy! Now it's six rooms, front garden, back garden, washing machine, twin boys, radio, refrigerator and car-and now we're keeping our twelfth anniversary! And we'll write you again on our silver wedding."

That's the story, right straight through. Not marrying happiness, but making happiness out riage. The writer of this last letter certainly had pretty poor materials with which to work, but she made

"When we had been married 15 months," writes another woman, "we were so completely uncongenfal and miserable that we made a compact. I was to be as good a wife as I possibly could to Greg, until Manny, the man I really loved came back from war service. I had loved this second man all through high school and business college, but we had quarrelled, and I had married Greg in anger and resentment at Manny. This was in 1942, and Manfly didn't come back until 1946. So for four years Greg and I worked at making a temporary arrangement satisfactory. We had two children; I wanted children, and our compact included the disposition of any we might have; school terms with me, Christmas and long vacation with Greg's mother.

The Perfect Husband

"Of course, you know how it turned out," this letter concludes. "Manny came back, and dined as an old friend with one of the most harmonious and devoted families in all America. We tore up the compact and now when we speak of it we laugh. And I have the perfect husband."

Altogether, this report on perfect marriages has been very heartening to me. There are lots of them. A great many women tell me that playing fair with finances is one great secret; Dad being generous with mother, Mother not cheating Dad. Being able to maintain silence in domestic crisis is another clue. Letting Dad share the responsibility of the children is an important thing; if Mother stands between them and their father, fights their battles, sacrifices her own pocket money for them, tells lies to protect them, a man begins to feel that he does not count at all, and he wonders why on earth he's supporting this crowd of self-absorbed persons. God gave children two parents; not one all-wise parent and one completely unconcerned supporter. The father counts as much as the mother.

He Loved Teaching

Lesson for August 13, 1950

WHAT WOULD you do if you had a million dollars? Several thousand school teachers were asked that question a few years ago. Seventy-five per cent of them gave the same answer: "I'd resign." They weren't real teachers, they were only hired help. The other twenty - five per cent were the real teachers. great university teacher, Palmer of Harvard, wrote that he had the perfect job. Believe it or not, he said, "Har-

No Finished Product

THE REAL thing about teaching is that you are dealing with people, young people, growing people. In every other line of business, whatever you turn out begins to depreciate almost as soon as it leaves the factory.

It doesn't take long for butter to get rancid, or bread stale. A coldstorage egg is a feeble imitation of a fresh one. A car that has changed hands once, even if it has run less than 1,000 miles, is already "used" car on its way to the junk-pile.

But the products of the teacher's classroom are by no means "finished" products when they leave it, even if it is a finishing school. If the teacher's work has been done well, the product will go on improving for years, instead of running down.

Three Aims

PROFESSOR EZRA, of Babylon and Jerusalem, was one of history's most famous teachers. We note (Ezra 7:10) the same three aims in Ezra's life that you would expect to find in all good teachers.

First of all, he "prepared his heart" to do what he did. The "heart" is the Bible expression for character, for life as a whole. one can be a truly good teacher who has a bad character.

Now Ezra prepared his heart to do three things. The first was to "seek the law of the Lord." What a teacher teaches may be as important as who his pupils are; and Ezra's "subject" was the law which God had given his people-part of what we now call the Old Testament.

Second, Ezra prepared his heart to do the law. The old sneer, "He who can, does; he who cannot, teaches," is true of poor teachers, not of the good ones. Particularly not true of Bible teachers. The aim of Bible teaching, from Moses' time till now, is always practical. "Truth is in order to goodness." as the Presbyterians say.

And third, Ezra set out to "teach in Israel." Your research scholar may or may not make a good teacher. The good teacher is not bored by teaching as some researchers are. He loves it.

Take Yourself, for Example

NOW LET US see how this comes out in your own home Sunday school. If yours is like most Sunday schools, the main trouble with it is that they can't find enough good teachers, enough people who really want to know about God's word themselves, who live and love to help others know it.

The Rev. H. M. Lewis of Texas has said in his essay, The Dividends of Teaching:

"When you begin to teach you will realize that at last you have found a purpose for your religion Teaching gives a motive, the highest motive, for all acts of religion and for all pursuit of knowledge-'For their sakes.' Every Christian has the missionary obligation and is by virtue of his profession of faith, a missionary,-'Go, teach all nations.' Make your particular nation young America and your special opportunity systematic work in the Church school.

The Way it Happened ...

IN PETOSKEY, MICH. . . Curtis Kent, chairman of the safety board, after addressing the women's club on "Watch Your Step and Live Longer," tripped over an electric light cord upon leaving the stage, fell into the orchestra pit and broke three ribs and a bass drum. Three of his lectures had to be cancelled.

IN CAMDEN, N. J. . . . Two weeks before Christmas, an unemployed ship worker told his eight-year-old daughter, a shut-in, that they could not afford to celebrate the holiday. She sent the newspaper a letter asking for anybody's "extra Christmas card." She received 27,000 letters and 1,200 packages.

IN BUFFALO . . A bootblack was struck by a bus and received a brain concussion and five rib fractures. When his customers heard about it, they raised enough money to meet his hospital expenses.

IN SALIDA, COLO. American Legionairres, gleeful over the discovey of radioactive ore in the fireplace of their post, stopped crowing when they discovered they did not know where the rocks came from.

Both groups he described as "weak sisters" and charged that "they have so little faith in themselves, their country and their God that they are out to get theirs at any cost.'

Calling for "resolute citizens" to gird themselves for "any necessary sacrifice to defend their freedom," Collins reminded that artificial shortages and spiraling prices must inevitably result in rigid federal controls.

Many persons undoubtedly are acting innocently, he said, without realzing the harm done. In such cases he recommended that 't'heir friends and neighbors tell them and those who refuse to listen should be ostracized by decent citizens."
