Stay on The Safe Side

(Editorial)

"It pays to be on the safe side!" So goes a familiar old slogan. On streets and highways, where paint or other markings are liberally displayed to clearly designate the safe side for automobiles, this truth would seem difficult to ignore. Yet, more than 5000 deaths and over 100,000 injuries are caused each year by drivers who take chances on the wrong side of the road.

There is a growing tendency among drivers to disregard the "life lines of the highways" that is hard to understand, because every motorist with sense enough to drive should know and obey the safety rule that solid lines must never be crossed.

Last year 1600 more drivers lost their lives, or caused the death of others, by violating wrong-side-of-the-road rules—passing at the crest of a hill, on curves, on the open highway at high speeds and on the streets of cities, towns and villages—than the 3400 victims of this illegal habit that were counted in 1948. In the past three years, injuries from crossing the highway "life lines" increased about 15,000—from 94,000 in 1949 to 110,000 last year.

Nearly all head-on collisions, the worst crashes seen on the highways, result from driving on the wrong side of the road. About 250 lives were lost in 1951 in multiple-death traffic accidents causing five or more deaths each, virtually all of which were head-on collisions. These avoidable tragedies comprised about one-fourth of the nation's catastrophes of all kinds that year.

After speeding and drinking-and-driving, traveling on the wrong side of the road probably claims the greatest number of traffic accident victims each year. It accounts for about one of every six fatalities and more than one of every seven injuries. It is high time for the police and courts to remind motorists of the old fashioned slogan with which we began.

Entertain at Valentine Party

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Cauhape, Sr., were hosts at a Valentine dinner last Sunday. The occasion was in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Felix Cauhape, Jr.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Felix Cauhape, Jr. and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. George Cassabonne and son Michael, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Kincaid, Mr. and Mrs. Temper and little boy, (Mrs. Temper is a sister of the guest of honor), Mrs. H. M. Kincaid and sons of Hagerman, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cassabonne, Mrs. J. P. Cauhape and Miss Marie Louise Cauhape of Roswell, Valentine Cauhape, Jean Cantow and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Cauhape.

Brotherhood Means Happiness And Strength

By Eddie Cantor

Because I am in the entertainment field, it is my purpose to think of ways in which I can contribute to the sum total of human happiness. God never meant that anyone should be sad. Every normal person wants to get some fun out of life. We may differ in some respects on what yields the most enjoyment in living from day to day but we all agree that hatred of any individual or group simply because of religious or racial differences is a serious barrier to contentment and peace of mind. I always feel sorry for the man whose soul is poisoned with prejudice. He hurts himself more than he hurts anyone else.

If we are to continue to enjoy the blessings of brotherhood we must make every effort to protect our heritage from those who would divide and conquer us. A warm, understanding, and cooperative fellowship is not only a source of joy and happiness, it is also a source of strength. If, in the spirit of true brotherhood, we can guarantee "liberty and justice for all" we will continue to live in "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Brotherhood Week this year is celebrated from Feb. 17 to Feb. 24.

Central Valley Electric to Hold Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the members of the Central Valley Electric Cooperative will be held on the 16th day of February, 1952, at the high school auditorium at Artesia. Lunch will be served free to all members and their families at the high school cafeteria at 12 noon. The business meeting will start at 1:30 p. m.

The purpose of this meeting is to elect trustees for the Cottonwood, Hagerman and Hope areas and to take care of all other business which may come before the members. The following names have been presented by the nominating committee and will be voted on at this meeting: J. L. Taylor, Cottonwood; A. W. Lange-negger, Hagerman; George O. Teel, Hope. Any other nominations for trustees may be made from the floor at the meeting. The program which has been planned for this meeting will be interesting and entertaining.

An added feature this year, that should prove of interest to all, is the list of door prizes to be given away to members during the meeting. You must register at the business meeting and attend to be eligible for these prizes.

A list of the prizes follow:

Cattle Thefts Increasing

Widespread cattle theft in New Mexico has been more evident during the past three months than at any other similar period in the past six years, according to Roy Forehand, Carlsbad, president. "Persons charged with cattle theft have been apprehended in Santa Fe, Lea, San Miguel, Taos, Sandoval and Grant Counties in recent months and seven persons have been convicted of this type crime within the last 30 days," Forehand said.

Commending investigators for the Cattle Sanitary Board, State Police, FBI and county sheriff's, Forehand said there is more working cooperation between these law enforcement agencies in New Mexico today than ever before. "A standing reward of $300 is offered by the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association for information leading to the arrest, conviction and punishment of cattle thieves. We have four claims on hand at the present time which will be acted upon by our reward committee on March 24," Forehand said. "During the past five years the association has paid out more than ten thousand dollars in rewards for information of this kind."

"There does not appear to be any organized move on part of cow thieves in the southwest, but most stealing appears to be done by irresponsible individuals with no respect for the rancier's property," Forehand said. A recent law adopted by the New Mexico State Legislature provides a penalty of from one to 10 years in the state penitentiary and fines of from $500 to $5000 for cattle larceny.

An educational program among rural people, showing them methods of apprehending cattle thieves and describing a record system for them to keep on movement of suspicious people in the country is currently being considered by association officials. "Such a plan may be extremely helpful in supplementing work of authorized law enforcement officers," Forehand said.

Political Chatter And Comments

Two more candidates have their hats in the ring.

Bill Keys and Howard Whitson have announced themselves as candidates for state representative from Eddy County and county commissioner, respectively.

The announcement followed a meeting of a score of local citizens, at which Keys and Whitson were selected to run for the two offices.

Both candidates announced their candidacies as subject to the action of the Democratic primary of May 6. Keys, owner here of Keys Men's Wear, 116 West Main, has resided in Artesia six years, coming here in 1945. He was born in Huntington, W. Va., served three years as a bombardier in the Army Air Forces, stationed a part of that time at Roswell, was discharged with rank of first lieutenant.

Mr. and Mrs. Keys and their three children, Bill, 5 years, Marion June 3 and Jo Ann, 2, reside at 708 Catalina.

Keys is exalted grand ruler of the local lodge of Elks, a member of the Toastmasters Club, a Mason and Chamber of Commerce director.

Whitson is owner of Artesia Laundry & Cleaners, 115 North Fourth. He has lived in Artesia for 27 years, owned his present business 26½ years, resides at 919 South Roelawn.

The two candidates said they were chosen by a non political non-partisan group to bring sounder business ideas into government. Whitson defined the county commissioners as guardians of the people's tax money, said that the people should receive full value for each tax dollar.—The Artesia Advocate.

Former Sheriff Dwight Lee reportedly has taken out blank petitions and may run for sheriff against the incumbent Bill High. High defeated a candidate backed by Lee in the last election. Several of Lee's former deputies are reported to be getting in a few campaign licks in his behalf.—Current-Argus.

All the ones that we have talked to about Lee running for sheriff think that he would be foolish to do so. Lee made many mistakes while he was in office and also it is hard to beat a man for his second term. And another thing, Bill High has made a darn good sheriff. At least that's what we think about him up in Hope.

Dwight Lee form Eddy County sheriff is receiving considerable encouragement from Artesia politicians to run for sheriff against Bill High this year.—Current-Argus.

The only ones in Artesia that are objecting to Bill High are a few of the members of the Elks Club. They don't like that High raided their club rooms last year. High was just doing his duty, the order authorizing the raid was issued by officials at Carlsbad.

We (The Current-Argus) reported last week about a political rally being held in the First National Bank building at Artesia in an effort to decide on candidates to support for county office. Ross Sears, Artesia banker, was the leader of the meeting. It was this meeting, apparently, which led to the announcement of Bill Keys for state representative and Howard Whitson for county commissioner. Sears and Whitson were leaders in the move to split Eddy County at the last session of the Legislature.

It looks like to us that The Current-Argus wants to discredit Sears and Whitson for the part they took in attempting to split Eddy County. If they had been successful it would have been a wonderful thing for Artesia and north Eddy county. There was no harm in trying. Both Sears and Whitson are good business men and loyal to our part of Eddy County. Whitson as county commissioner would make the taxpayers a good official.

The Hope newspaper is not trying to pick a fight with The Current-

Who Will Be GOP Candidate?

One of the smallest of the states may play a dominant role in deciding the big question of who is to be the Republican standard bearer. The state of course, is New Hampshire, where the names of both Senator Taft and General Eisenhower will appear on the preferential primary ballot. Harold Stassen, who is an extremely dark horse, also will enter.

It is possible, but not yet definitely decided, that these three names along with that of Governor Warren will be placed on the Oregon primary ballot. Oregon, which is also on the small size so far as population is concerned, is considered by many to be something of a key state, on the theory that its residents are about as typical a cross-section of Americans as can be found in one place. Oregon, it will be remembered played a big role in 1948, when Stassen and Dewey campaigned the state with whistle-stop thoroughness. Climax of the race was a nationally-broadcast and nationally-publicized radio debate which, in the view of most listeners resulted in an overwhelming victory for the New York governor. Mr. Stassen's stock as a potential candidate went down hill fast thereafter and Mr. Dewey had it all his own way—until the following November!

Whether the New Hampshire vote will be an accurate measuring of any candidate's standing in the nation at large can and will be argued—with the backers of the loser, naturally, taking one side and the backers of the winner taking the opposite. But it will provide something that is purely in the realm of speculation right now—a formal verdict of many thousands of voters as to the respective merits of the General and the Senator. The head men in both the Taft and Eisenhower camps argue as long as there is anyone around to listen that their candidates are unbeatable, and can win anywhere against all comers. Obviously, one side is wrong. And both camps have shown a great wariness against taking a chance where the outcome is doubtful. That's what makes the entry of Taft and Eisenhower in New Hampshire so important and significant.

Senator Taft will undoubtedly stump the state thoroughly. That's what he did in the last Ohio senatorial race, with enormous success, especially in the industrial areas where he was supposed to be weak, due to the Taft-Hartley law controversy. The Eisenhower people will be at a very definite disadvantage if their man stays abroad and says nothing. Some of the best observers think that it is essential for Eisenhower to do something tangible on behalf of his own candidacy before the primary if his cause is not to run the risk of irretrievable ruin. All of which remains to be seen.

In the meantime, a great many people seem to think that the only question is whether the GOP candidate will be Taft or Eisenhower—that one of the two is a cinch. That is not so. There is a definite possibility that the strength of one will offset the strength of the other—a case of the irresistible force meeting the immovable object—and that neither one can get the needed 601 convention votes as a result. Then a more or less dark horse would be tapped by the weary delegates. It has happened before, when two strong candidates cancelled each other out. Such hopefuls as Warren and Stassen are doubtless hoping it will happen again.

Mrs. Harrison Entertains Group

Mrs. Tom Harrison entertained at a Stanley party Tuesday afternoon. Those present were Mesdames Bill Madron, Nelson Jones, Joe Fisher, Newt Tell, M. C. Newsom, Bill Jones, Floyd Cole, Lyle Hunter, Bert Weddige, W. E. Rood, Lincoln Cox, Edith Seely, Irving Miller, J. Cox of Hope, Mrs. E. Salman, Mrs. Joe T. Wood, Mrs. G. Ledbetter of Artesia, Mrs. Connie Walters of Roswell and Mrs. W. E. Proffit of Artesia.

Argus. The Current-Argus is a mighty good newspaper and they are out to boost for Carlsbad, south Eddy county and their candidates. And you can't blame them for that! And we're going to do our best to elect a few candidates from north Eddy county. We pay a good portion of state and county taxes so why should we not be represented.

School News

1st and 2nd Grade News—By but February is a full month. We get our Abraham Lincoln books finished and then work hard for two days getting ready for Valentine Day. Then we change things and start in on George Washington. We are really rushed these days. All of us are in school, but that doesn't mean that we are well. Karen Teel has been going to the doctor and must not play outside. Shirley and Pauline must not play outside. Several who should stay in out of the wind must be reminded frequently. They always hope for the time when they will be forgotten. Betty Stevens brought us a Mescal plant from the Seely ranch. Naturally everyone wants to touch it. And naturally, it sticks them. The fish have a new rug on their bowl—it's colored broken glass. Fish are queer, they never say "Thank You" or act very happy. Charles McElroy is so pleased when he gets to bring his lunch. And Lonnie and Spencer are more than happy when they can go home with Charles to play after school. Nita Tarrant, Katherine Hardin and Ann Parker had to take their small fox shots the second time.

3rd, 4th and 5th Grade News — Marta Hibbard reporting: We have received new history books called, "Stories of American Pioneers." It is very interesting and we are learning much about early American history. We received Valentines from Port Washington, N. Y. Then we made Valentines and sent to them. We also received many letters from them, which we enjoyed very much. The fifth grade girls made a Valentine box and it is very pretty. Betty and Christine Seely brought us a Mescal and cactus plant and we sent them to Port Washington. Floyd Jones had a birthday recently. He received a dime and a birthday card.

6th, 7th and 8th Grade News — Letha Newbill is suffering from muscle spasms in her right arm. Although she is able to come to school, she cannot write or use her arm in any way. Since Monday was such a windy day, the girls couldn't play softball. Instead, they went to the music room and played charades. We have started a "Tillie Club" in our room. This is kind of a mystery game in which each person must discover for himself who Tillie is. As each person solves the mystery, he becomes a member of the club. Our boys beat Lake Arthur in basketball Friday night by a score of 43-14. We were very proud of this victory as it was our last home game and it gives the boys more faith in the future of their team. Our room observed Abraham Lincoln's birthday by reading a play about Lincoln, the Gettysburg Address and some of Lincoln's jokes. Our room did not have a Valentine party this year, as we felt that we are getting a little "grown up" for too many parties.

Hoover Revives the 'Great Debate'; Association Reports on Farm Labor

GREAT DEBATE— Ex-President Herbert Hoover, in a major radio and television address, revived the "great debate" and possibly an important issue in the 1952 presidential campaign.

The 77-year-old former chief executive expressed alarm at the "dangerous overstraining of our economy by our gigantic expenditures" and urged reduction in our armies as a way to cut down on spending. Instead of armies, he would have the country concentrate on highly mobile air and sea forces for defense.

In explaining his viewpoint, he said: "The first purpose of this republic must be the defense of this final Gibraltar of freedom—that is, the Western hemisphere." Western Europe, he added, must be told that it must provide its own ground armies and that the United States will provide air and sea shields and munitions, all that the country can afford.

For the home towners, who have been gravely concerned about the possibilities of war, the former president had a reassuring comment. There is a lack of alarm in Europe because of a number of reasons. These included the fact the Russians could have conquered Europe before this if they wanted; that the Russians do not want to absorb any more nations now; that the Russians would be hard hurt in an atomic war, and that Stalin's first interests are in Asia at the moment.

Hoover's last major speech was December 20, 1950. In it he criticized the administration's foreign policy and the handling of the Far East conflict. In his latest address he again attacked the Korean situation by saying "we denied ourselves victory" by not bombing Red China and using Chiang Kai-shek's armies.

The "great debate" has been revived and it will become a growing issue as this presidential year progresses. And congress, now considering one of the greatest peacetime budgets in the nation's history, will watch closely for reaction to the former president's speech in the home towns of the nation.

EGYPT—King Farouk of Egypt, who is one of the most unpredictable rulers in the world, dismissed the nationalist government that had brought his country and Britain to the verge of war. The action came after Cairo was made the scene of rioting, looting, and destruction of property by anti-British mobs.

The new Premier, Maher Pasha, held the same position early in World War II and is believed to be a little less anti-British than the ousted Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha. But it was evident that Britain still faced a serious situation in Egypt and the Suez canal zone. The new Premier announced he would continue to press for the evacuation of British troops from Egypt and the unification of Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan under Egyptian rule.

Meanwhile, Cairo was put under strict military rule and martial law declared for all of Egypt. At least 35 buildings were destroyed by fire during the rioting and 100 persons killed. Martial law will remain in effect for at least two months, the government announced.

FARM WASTE—The National Planning Association, a nonprofit, non-political organization of leaders in industry, agriculture, labor and the professions, reports the productive effort of 2,000,000 farm families in the nation is being wasted.

The association said these families are not producing for a number of reasons, including insufficient land, lack of capital, unsuitable methods, low educational standards, isolation from markets, and "static" community standards.

As for underemployment, the association reported it most pronounced in the cotton South—excluding highly mechanized area, the southern Appalachian and Ozark mountains, the cut-over lands of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, the mountainous areas of northern New Mexico and Arizona, and the southern counties of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio.

CRISIS AHEAD— In a report on the government's year-old effort to hold prices and wages in line, government officials report moderate success, but warn of a crisis ahead. Charles E. Wilson, mobilization director, was the official who warned that there is a crisis ahead in the battle against inflation.

Michael V. DiSalle, director of the office of price stabilization, said: "It is gratifying to realize that after a full year the cost of living has been held to a very moderate increase."

And Nathan F. Feinsinger, chairman of the wage stabilization board, said: "I believe it can fairly be said that the control of the movement of wage rates since the establishment of our program is as good if not better than hoped for by experienced and objective observers."

The latest consumer's price index by the Bureau of Labor was 189.1—or 89.1 per cent higher than the average for the 1935-1939 years. That is an increase of 2.9 per cent since February, 1951, when the wage-price freeze was first reflected.

UMT FIGHT—One of the great fights shaping up in the present congress is universal military training. Congress has approved UMT in principle, but has not authorized machinery to get it into operation.

One round of that fight took place at a house armed services committee hearing. Chairman Carl Vinson, striking back at critics of the program, denied charges that the program is un-American, anti-Christian, immoral and would lead us to financial chaos.

Said Vinson: "If it is un-American and anti-Christian to defend the greatest Christian nation in the world through a fair, effective and less costly system of military training, then I plead guilty."

He said congress must approve UMT or defeat it and explain to the taxpayers that they must maintain an armed force of millions of men for the next 20 years through operation of the draft.

Many observers believe that Congress may enact a temporary measure this session, delaying action on a permanent measure until the 83rd congress meets.

ASIA— There seemed to be a general feeling in Washington and Korea that truce talks between the Communists and United Nations' delegates is on the verge of collapse. It was because of this feeling military leaders have been meeting to consider what steps should be taken in such an event.

Meanwhile, the United States, Britain and France served plain notice they would call for United Nations action to meet any new Communist attack in southeast Asia.

Russia recently charged that the West has been building up strength along the Burmese and Indochinese frontiers for an attack on Communist China. This, the three powers say, is to cover up for a possible Communist military move in that part of the world.

If nothing else, these charges and countercharges are an indication that trouble is building up in other parts of Asia.

A new experimental lightweight caliber .30 rifle has been developed by Army ordnance. Weighing about eight pounds, the new rifle is capable of selective semi or full automatic fire from its 20-round magazine. QUEEN . . . Pat Matthews, elected "Miss Wings" by Florida aviators.

FLYING CONGRESSMAN . . . Rep. Peter Mack (D., Ill.) landed in San Francisco to complete longest overwater hop on his round-the-world goodwill flight in a single-engine plane. He is standing on wing of plane shaking hands with airport official. He later completed the globe-circling hop in the aircraft without mishap. He described it as a goodwill mission to the places that he touched on the flight.

RIOTING CELEBRANTS . . . Police try to hold back eager crowds scrambling for candy dropped by a helicopter on the square outside the Abdin palace in Cairo during the celebration of the birth of a son to King Farouk and Queen Narriman. The prince was given the name Ahmed Fuad and given the title of Prince of Said. This occurred while other riots took place in different parts of Egypt in demonstrations for the departure of the British from the land.

LEE UNVEILED AT WEST POINT . . . Hanson Edward Ely III and Ann Carter Lee Ely, great-grandchildren of General Robert E. Lee, admire portrait of the general they have just unveiled at the United States military academy. The general wears the grey uniform of the Confederacy. It is the first portrait of a graduate of the academy in a Confederate uniform to be hung at West Point.

INSPIRATION
Live with God

TO MANY PEOPLE in this country, God would appear to be no more than an abstraction. They seldom, if ever, go to church. They may lead upright and decent lives, but they never pray. There is rarely a spiritual thought in their heads.

One of the reasons for this spiritual laxity is the multiple distractions of modern life that keep so many from fixing their minds, even briefly, on the eternal realities. Days crowded with work and nights given over to relaxation and recreation do not offer the best opportunity for the cultivation of spiritual living.

The above editorial and other material appearing in this column were prepared by Religious News Service.

Freethinkers Oppose Monument in Park

NEW YORK—State Supreme Court Justice Harold W. Walter reserved decision here on a motion to restrain the city of New York from approving the erection on city property of a proposed monument in memory of Jews killed by the Nazis.

Suit to block the project was initiated by Joseph Lewis, president of the Freethinkers of America. His attorney, Robert J. Phillips, told the court that such a monument would constitute "improper use of a city park" and was a violation of the American principle of separation of church and state.

"The city of New York cannot use park property for other than public purposes," he said. "The erection of the proposed memorial to Jews slain by the Nazis in Europe, being religious and private in design and motive, will violate the trust under which the city of New York holds the property comprising Riverside Park."

The proposed monument would contain an inscription of the Ten Commandments.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Anthony Currier, representing the city, cited instances of monuments honoring Joan of Arc, the Puritans and Moses on city property.

Niemoeller Retracts Newspaper Charges

BERLIN—Pastor Martin Niemoeller, head of the Evangelical Church of Hessen and Nassau, retracted charges that West German newspapers were politically dependent on American money. He made the allegations at the recent Women's Peace Congress held at St. Paul's church in Frankfurt.

Pastor Niemoeller's charges were in reference to loans of 15,000,000 Deutsche marks ($3,570,000) announced by the United States high commissioner's office last August to help West German newspapers achieve financial and editorial independence.

Taking part with Dr. Hugo Stenzel, chairman of the West German Newspaper Publishers Association, in a program broadcast by the Hesse Radio, Dr. Niemoeller said:

"After the enlightenment I have received, I am now convinced that the credit of 15,000,000 Deutsche marks was distributed to newspapers without any political conditions and in a way against which I cannot raise any objections."

Religion Question Box

Q: What is a Rood?

A: A cross or crucifix. The term is used especially in reference to the cross on the screen at the entrance of the chancel or choir.

THE STORY SO FAR:

Orphan Gay Gaynor hopes to enter nurse's training at Bessemer Memorial hospital, aided by her friend Dr. Borden, who is striving to remove the hospital board's prejudice against orphan girls with uncertain family backgrounds. Gay is fond of Dr. Borden, but makes every effort to avoid the doctor's son, Thad, whom she detests because he taunted her once and kissed her against her will. Gay and her friend and housekeeper, Myra, worry about Dr. Borden's falling health. They feel that he is bearing the whole burden of keeping the citizens of Bessemer in good health and should slow down and let some one else share the burden.

CHAPTER XI

"I'm perfectly all right, Myra," she assured her. Then she said, somewhat doubtfully, "I sent for an application, Myra."

"Application? What for?"

"I want to join the class that's entering Memorial in July."

"July!" Myra cried. "But Doc said you was to rest the whole summer. You ain't strong enough to do no hard work yet. Why'd you do it, Gay?"

Gay Begins Living A Normal Life

"Because I'm tired of doing nothing—of being idle and—and—useless," the girl replied passionately.

"Umph!" The older woman's voice was gruff. "You ain't useless, Gay. You never could be useless—even if you done nothing the rest of your life you'd be useful to me—just having you here with me makes everything all right—for me."

"You're sweet," the girl said softly. "But just the same, I want to get to work. I'm perfectly well. These two months have done wonders for me and—well—I'm getting uneasy—restless—and should be working."

"I don't know what Doc'll say," Myra demurred.

"I think he will give me a clean bill of health—when he understands, Myra," Gay assured her. "Anyway, I know how I feel better than anyone else, and I'm sure I was never in better condition in my life than I am right now."

"But what am I a-going to do without you?" Myra wailed.

"Just as you have been doing. I hope you will stay on with me—keep the house on Belfort Street so that I'll always have a home to come back to on my free periods."

"It's going to be awful lonesome—" the woman murmured.

"Nonsense!" Gay chided. "You've never been lonesome in your life and you know it. You have lots of friends—invite them to visit you—entertain them if you like. My home is yours, you know. It wouldn't be home without you."

Myra dashed a work-worn hand across her eyes. "They ain't never been nobody like you—ever, Frances Gaynor," she whimpered. "But just the same—"

"Forget it, darling," Gay said. "I haven't gone yet—I may not be accepted. Perhaps Bessemer Memorial will object to a product of Bethesda as a member of its nursing staff. Could be, you know."

"I'd like to know why," Myra cried belligerently.

"Oh, I don't know. The Board of Managers is pretty fussy, they tell me. Each applicant has to be thoroughly investigated as to background, scholarship, physical condition, moral and religious training—"

And on Wednesday Gay received the application blank and proceeded to fill it out pending consultation with the doctor. She and Myra drove over to Bessemer one morning and made a thorough inventory of her wardrobe, making a list of things to be purchased—uniforms, hose, shoes, etc. They made a visit to the rectory where Doctor Marvin gave her a letter of recommendation, gathered up two others, one from Mr. Wilkie, the druggist, and the other from Jerome Bailey. Doctor Borden shook his head when Gay first broached the subject to him, but after examination he changed his mind and pronounced her health perfect. Gay was jubilant and she drove back to the lake through the late afternoon sunshine with a feeling of peace in her heart. The first real peace she had known in many months.

She hadn't long to wait for the reply from the hospital. It came four days later. The letter of acceptance was cordial in the extreme and Gay and Myra prepared to move back to Belfort Street early the following week.

Gay took to training as a duck takes to water. She loved it. None of it seemed particularly strange or arduous to her. She had served a difficult apprenticeship in Bethesda and found that in many ways the work in Memorial was far easier.

At least there was no Mrs. Overton to contend with—no long diatribes in which she and every one in the institution was blamed, criticized and condemned unheard. The criticisms now were for the most part constructive.

For the first time since Miss Alden's death, Gay was completely happy. She had work to do—work that she loved—and for the first time she was living a normal life with girls of her own age. The probationary period was completed successfully and she received her cap. The class was unusually large for Bessemer Memorial—twelve girls passed the gruelling three month's test—five flunked out. Gay felt a great sympathy for those five.

During the first year of her training she was kept pretty much in the wards and made a fine record. Her free periods were spent at Number Seventeen Belfort Street with Myra. She had little outside social life, for she had few friends in Bessemer and since Miss Alden's death most of the intimates of Aunt Grace had given small indication they wished to continue their former cordial relations. If the girl felt their withdrawal she gave no sign. Larry Boothe continued to call on her from time to time and they went to the movies and on rare occasions to a dance. Gay was an excellent dancer and Larry found her a delightful companion. He was serious, rather reserved and although his position at the paper mills was exceptional and well paid, he had his mother and younger sister to support and hadn't too much money to spend. Gay liked him for his many fine traits but felt no least romantic thrill at his attentions.

Vivian Leaves Adrian, Visits Bessemer

Vivian Poole D'Archer was back in Bessemer. Gossip had it that she and her artist husband had separated—were to be divorced. She was more beautiful—more glamorous than ever and also far more arrogant. She had little to do with any of the townspeople but guests from New York, Boston and points east and south constantly filled the Poole mansion. Sara Poole boasted that the family was seldom alone any more. Vivian in her smart sports roadster could be seen speeding to and from the Country Club or along the quiet country roads to some distant beach or roadhouse, at all hours of the day or night—always with three or four guests crowded into it. She rode a tall black horse whose gleaming satin coat set off her white-clad blond beauty to perfection. Sometimes Thad Borden accompanied her and his father's friends shook their heads. Gay sometimes wondered if perhaps they would eventually marry. The house Sam Poole had built for her was long since completed and stood empty, except for a caretaker, on the hill not far from the Poole mansion. Vivian and her artist husband had never occu-pled it. People remembered that it had been planned when Vivian was engaged to marry Thad, and they talked and conjectured—even prophesied—but no one seemed to know. Gay had encountered them at the hospital bazaar only last spring. She had pretended not to see them but couldn't help hearing Vivian as she pointed her out to her escort. The word "Bethesda" was quite audible. Gay hoped she hadn't changed color. She should be inured to it by this time.

It was during that summer that Bill Graves came back to Bessemer for a week's vacation. He arrived at the Belfort Street house just as Gay and Myra were preparing to leave for Crescent Lake to be guests of the Spencers for two weeks of Gay's vacation. Jean and her mother had come into town in the Spencer station wagon. It stood before the side porch while Jean and Gay packed and Mrs. Spencer helped Myra close the house.

"O-oh, Bill!" Gay exclaimed in delight. "How perfectly splendid to see you again! You're grown! What brought you here?"

"Vacation—my first," the young man said. He eyed the suitcases in the hall for a moment and asked, "Are you going or coming?"

Jean Falls In Love With Bill Graves

"Going, Bill," Gay told him regretfully, then turning to Jean who was gazing at this tall attractive stranger with avid interest. "This is Bill Graves, Jean—Jean Spencer. Bill is one of my very best friends. Myra and I are on our way to Crescent Lake, Bill. The Spencers have a lovely home on the shore and I am to spend two weeks of my vacation with them there. Oh, I wish I had known you were planning to come home. I would have postponed our trip."

"Why don't you come, too, Bill?" Jean asked impulsively. "We have loads of room and I'm sure Mom—my mother—will welcome you with open arms. Here she is now."

Myra, who had followed Mrs. Spencer into the hall, gave a little squeal of delight when she saw the young man's two hands extended to her and swung them between them while she gazed up at him in fond admiration. "Bill Graves," she challenged, "you've grown!"

At her daughter's whispered insistence Mrs. Spencer urged Bill to accompany them to the lake and Bill was only too glad to accept. It would give him a chance to be with Gay and that's what he had hoped but didn't dare expect. They stopped at the hotel for Bill's luggage and drove on to the Spencer home in the warm summer twilight.

This was one of the happiest times Gay had ever experienced. She watched Jean fall headlong in love with Bill—watched the young man's struggle to maintain his old loyalties and at last, on the day he prepared to leave for New York, saw his defenses crumble and go down before the frank and open adoration of Jean Spencer. Jean drove him back to Bessemer in the early morning, refusing Gay's offer to accompany them, and returned stary-eyed to announce that she was really and truly in love for all time. Her mother looked worried at the announcement and Gay tried to set her mind at rest. Mrs. Spencer acknowledged she liked Bill, but who were his people—what about his background—his prospects—his habits, etc.

"He's an orphan, Mom, and—I'm going to marry him," Jean told her. "Like Gay, he was raised in Bethesda. He's an artist—an illustrator."

Mrs. Spencer was troubled. She shook her head. "He didn't say anything to me," she pointed out. "When did all this happen—his proposal, I mean?"

"Don't be dumb, darling," her daughter chided. "Why do you suppose I drove him to Bessemer this morning—alone? He didn't want to ask me—he's shy, sensitive, afraid we were snobs, but I knew he loved me and I—I made him tell me so. A girl has to use her head these days if she wants to get anywhere. Oh, he's coming out again when Pop's home, but I don't care what anyone says or does, I love him and I'm going to marry him." Her eyes sparkled and her cheeks flushed with excitement. She was very pretty.

"I don't know what your brother will say," her mother murmured. "He adores you, you know, and he worries about you. Dear me, I feel I have been very negligent."

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE

REMOVE WASTE -NOT GOOD FOOD

Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different!

Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes mostly waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, run-down feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "peppy," energetic self—full of life! Get your FEEN-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25c, 50c or only 10c.

Bird Migration Still Mystery

Q: How do birds know when to fly south?

A: This is still an unsolved problem, though one modern theory suggests that birds are sensitive to the changing amount of light and length of the day as autumn comes, and that similarly in the spring they can detect the increasing light, and length of the day, as the Sun climbs higher again. However, this theory has some defects. It does not explain, for example, how birds who winter near the equator, where the day and night are always equal, ever know when to start north.

Night Coughing Quickly Relieved by Home Mixture

Saves Big Dollars. No Cooking.

This splendid recipe is used by millions because it makes such an effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any drugist get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial irritations.

Then make a syrup with two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint of cough medicine, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

This cough syrup takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens phlegm, soothes irritated membranes, helps clear air passages. Money refunded if Pinex doesn't please.

Homes for Christ

Lesson for February 17, 1952

WHAT is a Christian home? It is no solemn place, for "solemn" is not another word for "Christian." It is not an "American" home, because while Christians can be Americans, and vice versa, the two words do not mean the same thing. Sending off the little ones to Sunday school every Sunday morning, or even piling the whole family into the car and going to church 52 times a year, will not quite do it. For church-going is only one part, and the easiest part, of being Christian. What about the rest of the week?

Dr. Foreman

Does Jesus Get Beyond the Front Door?

THE home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus, where Jesus often visited, we can think of as in many ways a Christian home. Jesus was welcome there; he dropped in any time, he felt at home.

Now Christ is most at home (as any one is) where people are congenial, where the attitude to the things men live by—work, play, love, worship—is the same as his attitude.

Also in the Bethany home they listened to Jesus. It is well to have a Bible in the house; but that alone will not make it Christian. Is it read?

How the Home Can Serve

THERE are three ways in which the home of today can serve Christ. One is in connection with the church. Except in rarest cases, every Christian home should be an actual part of some Christian church. A church which has no cooperation from the homes in its community will be a dying church.

The liveliest churches, on the other hand, are those where homes and church do the best team-work. To take only one example: Does your home work together with your church in the recruiting of ministers?

Ministers have to come from somewhere, and the best ministers don't all come from preachers' homes by any means. How about the boys in your home? If one of them felt an urge to be a minister or a missionary, would the rest of you laugh him out of it?

Another way for the home to serve Christ is in treatment of strangers. When strangers move into your community, or live there for a short time as school teachers sometimes do, is your home open to them? Is your house a "home away from home" for lonely people?

Serving the Children

A Christian home, moreover, will serve its own children in Christ's name. In it children will hear about Christ, not as a past figure in history but as a Living One. Parents will teach them Christian patterns of living.

This will not be merely something they hear about in Sunday school, it will be the pattern of life in which they are trained from day to day, beginning even before they can remember. This home, if it serves its children as it should, will show them how to help Christ. The children will know about the church ("His body," said Paul) and what it is doing in his name around the world. From their earliest years they will be helpers in this work.

And the children in a Christian home will be helped by Jesus far more than they help him. Even at the beginning of childhood they will learn to say "Dear Jesus, help me," when the mean word or the angry act are just almost exploding. Even as children they will learn something of what in older years will mean much more, the "practice of His presence."

But no one can learn from the ignorant. And children will never learn these things at home without help. A home does not begin to be Christian with the children, but with the parents. Whatever good the children learn, father and mother must learn it first.

Heritage Foundation Sponsors 'Get Out the Vote' Promotion

Within the next few weeks, and continuing until the November election, the American Heritage Foundation, in association with other national and community organizations, will launch a national "Get Out the Vote" campaign that should prove of interest to every community in the nation. And it is a campaign in which the home towns of America should participate.

The first national "Get Out the Vote" campaign was initiated by the foundation in the off year election of 1950. The purpose was to encourage by every means available, the largest possible vote across the nation, regardless of politics and political affiliations.

It was a successful campaign. A record breaking total of 42,324,232 voters went to the polls. This was an increase of five million over the previous record (1938) for a non-Presidential election.

The score on voting in this country has not been good in recent years. For example: In 1880, 78.4 per cent of the eligible voters of the country cast their ballots, in 1900 election, the vote dropped to 73.5 per cent. In the 1920 election, first vote by women, only 49.3 per cent voted, and in the 1950 election the total was down to 44 per cent.

The inescapable conclusion, therefore, is that the right to vote—an inherent right—and the first duty of citizenship, is being waived by millions of Americans. These figures are startling, but they are true down to the home town level. And that is the reason the small communities of the nation should find the "Get Out the Vote" promotion of first importance.

THE RIGHT TO VOTE IS AN INHERENT RIGHT—THE FIRST DUTY OF CITIZENSHIP!

The causes are many and complex, but the effect is clear and unmistakable. That something should be done about it is evident — that something can be done is clear, too. Not only the results of the 1950 program can be cited, but the demand made upon the American Heritage Foundation by hundreds of organizations and communities which participated in the last campaign has been overwhelming. As early as the spring of 1951 requests were received from many of the 800 community committees who worked in the 1950 campaign for another drive to stimulate voting in the presidential year election.

As a result, the American Heritage Foundation has devised a four point program for the 1952 campaign:

(1) To devise and maintain a canopy of national publicity and information that will keep the importance of registering and voting before the people from now until election time. This includes printed information materials, special kit of sample editorials for urban, rural and business papers, a variety of newspaper advertisements on the subject of voting, and a general kit containing publicity ads and promotion plans and ideas.

(2) This is to be done in concert with others in an effort to bring the people and the candidates together for clarification and better understanding of all the issues.

Most recent "citizen action" campaigns have been marked by an accusatory tone. So, in order to avoid these negative aspects of "finger pointing" and accusations, the "Register and Vote" campaign in 1952 will attempt to take a positive slant. It will attempt to develop a re-awakened sense of personal responsibility on the part of the citizen by use of television, motion pictures, radio, rallies, forums and debate which will give the individual a feeling of personal participation.

(3) A program to enlist the interest and participation of 200 national organizations and associations, and an undetermined number of community working committees behind a common program for registration and voting in 1952.

The American Heritage Foundation will serve as a source of information and as a coordinating agency. Also, it will make available to national organizations and the citizen committees kits of working tools and information material. One of these kits is an informational guide containing details of the organization and conduct of community registration and voting programs, and related activities. It would be an invaluable guide to the home town committee wishing to sponsor a "Register and Vote" campaign.

(4) A national program of awards that will give recognition to associations, communities, and working committees producing the best record of effort and result in support of the "Register and Vote" campaign.

To dramatize the importance of voting in the national elections of November, the foundation will offer a series of unique awards to communities, counties and organizations conducting outstanding non-partisan, community-wide campaigns to bring out the vote. The foundation will not make any awards directly to individuals, but suggests that it would be a good idea for communities and organizations to bestow special honors and recognition on those citizens who contribute most to the local voting effort.

This is the general pattern that the campaign will take on a national scale. What it will accomplish on the home town level, however, will depend on the local group or committee that sponsors the program.

The American Heritage Foundation is ready to help any community group that wishes to participate. The address is: American Heritage Foundation, 25 West 45th Street, New York 36, N.Y.

National 4-H Club Week March 3-11

The week of March 3-11 has been designated National 4-H Club Week. The annual event is the week during which 4-H members display handicraft work and publicize its activities and accomplishments.

There are almost 2,000,000 4-H members in the United States today. In addition there are 200,000 adult club leaders and about 12,000,000 former club members.

Here is another opportunity for the home town merchant to improve his community relations and render a valuable public service. His aid and suggestions are not soon forgotten by local club members. And the importance of taking an active interest in the guidance and welfare of the youth of the community cannot be over-emphasized. Neither should the rewards to be gained under-estimated.

This interest, however, should not be limited to 4-H, but should include Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Future Farmers, Boy Scouts, etc.

Other Promotions Listed for March

There are a number of other outstanding promotions for the month of March which the home towns of the nation should look for. The annual American Red Cross Fund Drive will be conducted during the month; March 2-8 has been designated as National Save Your Vision Week; Classified Brand Names Week is scheduled for March 11-17; and St. Patrick's Day is scheduled for March 17.

These and other special promotions will be discussed in future columns.

Experts Forecast Greater Cattle Slaughter in 1952

In the outlook for meat animals, 1952 may be a pivotal year when new or modified trends in meat production take place, experts report. The present low slaughter rate and large farm inventories are setting the stage for a substantial increase in slaughter in future years. The big question is how soon and what its price effect will be? In all probability cattle slaughter will increase in 1952 for the first time in five years.

Good Pasture Program Means More Profits

Over-Grazing Can Kill
Out Pasture Growth

Now is the time to plan a "complete pasture program" that will give your dairy cattle an abundance of high quality, low cost feed at all times next year, says the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

The Farmer who has an all-season supply of succulent forage, grass silage or hay is the farmer who will have bigger milk checks, lower feed costs and more overall profits, the committee points out.

Earl Jones, Ohio State University extension agronomist, says that a well-rounded pasture plan should include: (1) Seeding well adapted legume-grass mixtures; (2) The use of lime and commercial fertilizer; (3) Good grazing management.

Jones recommends alfalfa, ladino clover and grass for summer grazing. Where alfalfa does not thrive, ladino clover and grass will do a good job. Timothy, brome grass or orchard grass may also be used.

He cautions farmers to avoid killing out pasture growth by over-grazing and to provide palatable and nutritious pasture by avoiding under grazing. Jones suggests dividing pasture areas into lots. Cattle are allowed to graze down growth in one lot and then are moved to another.

Along with good legume-grass mixtures and managed grazing, Jones emphasizes the benefits from adding lime and fertilizers carrying nitrogen, phosphate and potash.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Linoleum
If you clean your linoleum floor with a long-handled sponge mop, you know how annoying it is to bend over to clean spots that the mop won't touch. Here's a easier way—dust baking soda on the spot. Soda can't scratch linoleum so you can be liberal. Then scrub with the damp mop and the spot is gone.

Canned Ham
Canned hams can come to the rescue when you plan to serve many guests. Although they cost more in the beginning there is less waste. And since they are pre-cooked, the baking time is cut to about one and one-half hours, depending upon the size.

Old Time Knife
Do you pamper a prize knife—one made not of stainless steel but of old-fashioned high carbon steel? If so, you know rusting is a problem—especially if you let your dishes "drain dry." Rust-removing baking soda cleans without a bit of scratching.

Use Skim Milk
Dried skim milk is not only the product of a new way of processing milk but it provides additional uses for skim milk.

Trick Petticoat
A crinoline ruffle added to a petticoat is the trick for making those full skirts stand out as teenage girls like them.

EAT ANYTHING WITH FALSE TEETH!

If you have trouble with plates that slip, rock, cause sore gums—try Brimms Plasti-Liner. Team Pancakes with Rosy Scrambled Eggs (See Recipes Below)

Serve Pancakes

STACK THEM FOR breakfast, luncheon, dinner or supper — pancakes, of course! These versatile cakes, made thick or thin according to your taste will go to any meal. Make them plain for the morning and serve with breakfast meats, plenty of syrup. Then, if you like pancakes as a main dish, add eggs or meat to the menu to serve as an accompaniment. With very sweet sauces, whipped cream, confectioners' sugar, berries or fruit or jelly, pancakes make a lovely but simple dessert.

Have your griddle so hot that drops of water will skip around on it. It takes only a few seconds to brown one side of the cake and have it puffy and full of bubbles when the griddle's properly heated. Before the bubbles break, turn the pancakes, if you want them light.

Pancakes are easily made thick or thin by adjusting the liquid in the batter. Have them to your taste!

Here's a dish that goes to breakfast, luncheon, supper or snack with equal ease:

Pancakes, Rosy Scrambled Eggs
(Serves 7-8)

- Pancakes
2 cups pancake ready-mix
2 cups milk
- Scrambled Eggs:
6 eggs
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter or substitute
- 1½ cups well drained, canned whole tomatoes
- Add milk to unsifted ready-mix all at once and stir lightly. Somewhat lumpy batter makes light, fluffy cakes. Pour ¼ cup batter for each pancake onto a hot, lightly-greased griddle. Bake to a golden brown, turning once. Keep pancakes hot in the oven while making scrambled eggs.
- To make scrambled eggs, beat eggs, salt and pepper with a rotary egg beater until foamy. Melt butter in frying pan; add eggs and cook over low heat until eggs are thickened but still moist. Cut tomatoes in wedges and fold into eggs.
- To serve, put two pancakes together sandwich fashion with scrambled eggs between and over the top

Here are pancakes that are served with sausage, but this is a bit unusual for the sausage is used for a spicy sauce which is spooned between the cakes:

- Spicy Meat-Filled Pancakes
(Makes 14-16 Pancakes)
- Sauce:
1 pound pork sausage meat
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup tomato juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon brown sugar
- Pancakes:
2 cups pancake ready-mix
2 cups milk
- To make sauce, brown pork sausage meat slowly; pour off fat. Add vegetables to meat and brown lightly. Stir in flour. Add remaining ingredients and combine thoroughly. Cover and cook slowly for one-half hour.

For pancakes, add milk to ready-mix all at once and stir lightly. Bake on lightly greased griddle, using ¼ cup batter for each cake, turning only once. Put two or three pancakes together with sauce between and over them.

Those who like old-fashioned buckwheat cakes for breakfast will enjoy these which can be set in the evening for rising overnight. Since the recipe makes a large quantity, all the batter need not be used at once, but may be kept in a cool place.

- Buckwheat Cakes
(Makes 24 cakes)
- 1 cake compressed or 1 package dry yeast
3 tablespoons molasses
2¼ cups lukewarm water
1 cup milk
1½ teaspoons salt
2 cups buckwheat flour
1 cup sifted white flour
- Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water; when thoroughly dissolved, add molasses. Scald milk, add salt and cool to lukewarm. Add yeast, then stir in buckwheat and white flour gradually. Beat until smooth. Cover and let rise in a warm place overnight. Stir down and bake on hot, greased griddle. If some batter is kept for later use, add to it ½ teaspoon soda before using.

Pancakes for dessert should be small and thin. You'll want to use several for each serving, of course. Here's a recipe that makes them thin, tender and delicious:

- "Dessert Pancakes"
(Makes 30 3-inch cakes)
- 1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
- Heat together milk and butter in a saucepan. When slightly cooled, beat in eggs, flour, baking powder and salt. Beat until smooth. Bake in a small skillet, pouring some batter in lightly greased pan and tilting to cover the bottom evenly. Cook for one minute, then turn and cook other side until lightly browned. These pancakes may have to be turned several times to brown them evenly.

- "Honey Sauce for Pancakes"
(Makes 1½ cups)
- 1 cup strained honey
½ cup maple syrup
1 teaspoon cinnamon
- Mix together honey and syrup in top of double boiler. When thoroughly heated, remove from fire and blend in cinnamon. Serve hot over dessert pancakes.

The Way it Happened...

IN NEW YORK ... Elizabeth Arden was imploring women who last year had cut off most of their hair because it looked bad long, to grow it back fast this year because it looked bad short.

IN BRITTON, OKLA. ... A schoolteacher found herself in trouble with the principal because she had played bookey with some students.

IN VANCOUVER, B. C. ... Searching for a missing 90-year-old woman, police finally caught up with her—en route to her honeymoon after eloping with an 86-year-old swain.

IN TORONTO ... Shortly after hauling away a bus rider clad only in his undershirt, police rushed out again to nab a nonchalant pedestrian who wore only his dress shirt.

IN PITTSBURGH ... A pioneering husband who bit his wife on the head with a rolling pin, got four months to a year in the workhouse and a stern warning from the judge: "This is revolutionary and will not be tolerated."

Another way to Save with CLABBER GIRL

Sliced Ham Roll

Here is a novel and economical way to stretch left-over ham into a lunch or dinner main dish... a real taste treat and so easy to prepare... Notice how Clabber Girl gives leavening that is 'just right' even when coarsening caraway seeds are used to spark up the flavor.

- Biscuit:
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2½ teaspoons Clabber Girl Baking Powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons caraway seed
6 tablespoons shortening
½ cup milk
- Ham Filling:
2 cups cooked, ground ham
1 cup pickle relish
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 cup gravy or brown cream sauce
- BISCUIT: Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Mix in caraway seed. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Add milk; stir to make a soft dough that can be handled and formed into a ball. Transfer ball of dough onto a lightly floured board; knead until smooth. Roll out into a 9x12-inch rectangle. Spread with ham filling. Starting with the narrow end, roll like a jelly roll. Place on a greased baking sheet. Brush lightly with milk. Slash roll into six pieces cutting almost through roll. Turn each piece cut-side up. Bake in a hot oven (450°F.) approximately 25 minutes or until well browned. Serve with mushroom sauce.
- HAM FILLING: Mix all ingredients together thoroughly. Serves six.

Pound for pound, more people use more Clabber Girl than any other Baking Powder.

Multiflora Rose Is Popular in Midwest

Natural Fence Protects Crops and Game Birds

In recent years the multiflora rose as a permanent, living fence has gained popularity in many areas of the west.

The fast growing multiflora rose was first championed by sportsmen who had watched natural cover for birds and small animals decreasing steadily through the years. Now, farmers in many sections of the country have found the multiflora rose the answer to a number of problems, the least of which is its use as a fence.

Farmers report multiflora rose acts as an ideal windbreak and reduces wind erosion and protects young crops. It does not grow tall enough to shade crops and does not sap strength from nearby crops as farmers first feared when it was introduced.

Although most often planted in straight rows in the midwest, there is no reason it can not be planted on contour to fit the individual farm conservation plan.

As first championed by the sportsmen, it provides cover for small animals and birds. In this respect, song birds thrive in this kind of cover and thereby reduces insect damage to crops.

Last Five Years Are Called "Golden Era"

Economists have labeled the past five years of prosperity enjoyed by the farmers of this country as "the Golden Age of American agriculture". According to authorities, there have been few, if any, eras which even approximate in prosperity that of the last five years.

It has not touched every farm family equally, but looking at the broader panorama, these years have brought opportunity, dignity, and a heightening self-respect to rural America.

This era has been characterized by rising prices, larger production per unit of labor, a phenomenal increase in crop yields, mechanization of farm operations, application of proved practices based on research, expansion of commercialization and specialization, and last but not least, the remarkable improvement in the farmer's physical plant and standard of living.

Economists maintain that never before has there been such a vast application of power to agriculture nor such a rapid advance in knowledge and its acceptance.

As for the future, increased application of new methods and more machinery will prolong the "golden age."
