Political Situation At Present Time

A person who makes a practice of reading the political commentators and prognosticators can find just about any forecast he is looking for. These publicists, like all the rest of us, have personal prejudices and hopes which cannot help but color their writings. Feeling is running very high now as the political campaigns gain momentum and the time for choosing the candidates draws near. But in reading the prophecies of things to come, there are certain areas in which there is more and more agreement on the part of writers of all schools of thought. Summed up briefly, these are:

First, Senator Taft will be the Republican candidate. It isn't in the bag by any means, but he is far ahead of the field. His organization is a model of determined, professional efficiency, and the Senator has drawn enthusiastic crowds and made an excellent impression during his extensive travels about the country. The General Eisenhower boom is in the political doldrums; it lacks both direction and momentum. Whether it is possible to breath new life into it is the big question. Some of the General's keenest supporters have warned that his chances are dead unless he acts decisively on his own behalf. He has shown no inclination to do that.

Second, President Truman will run again. There are various reasons why this idea is now current in most quarters. No other available Democrat, in the view of the Administration experts, has what it takes—the Ke-fauver candidacy, for instance, has aroused much less general enthusiasm. Thus, Administration insiders are in a mood than was hoped by his friends, a position to argue that it is the President's clear duty to run again and save the country from the GOP. On past occasions, Mr. Truman has intimated that there is no one he would rather run against than Senator Taft. Moreover, the President has a very strong sense of historical destiny, and seems totally convinced that his fair deal program, spurned as it has been by Congress, is what the people want and will vote for. He has a definite program and he will fight for it. Finally, he may feel that the disclosures of graft and corruption in administrative agencies make it necessary for him to seek personal justification from the voters.

Third, if it is a Taft-Truman contest, the decision will be a fairly close one. After 1948, no one with good sense discounts Mr. Truman's abilities as a vote-getter. And no one knows just how many Truman votes may have been lost because of the Korean war, the communists-in-scandals, high taxes, the conduct of the government, allegations, the battle over Secretary Acheson, the MacArthur dismissal, and so on. As past experience at the polls shows, there are more Democrats than Republicans in this country now, and the balance of power is held by "independent" voters who account for perhaps 30 per cent of the total. If a Republican is to win, he must swing that vote. The Democrats have been swinging it for years.

That is the consensus today, among the people who are considered political experts and who, for all the mistakes they make, are right more often than they are wrong. Before long we'll know how right or wrong they are this time.

County Split Backers Challenge McCollum

A strongly-worded protest against a statement by State Rep. Virgil O. McCollum of Carlsbad that north Eddy county people are actually against the county split was prepared this week by a group of Artesia area split backers.

In his statement announcing re-election, McCollum stated he had toured North Eddy county, speaking with people on the county split. He had found most of them against it, he said.

McCollum voted against the split the last legislature.

In its protest the Artesia area group offers to conduct a poll at their expense to get evidence of the people's sentiment.

But, if this is done, McCollum must agree to sponsor and fight for the split bill in the next legislature if he is re-elected, or else withdraw from the race.

The Artesia group tells McCollum they believe he is "pitifully misinformed" or else "have made a deliberate misstatement."

This is the letter prepared by the North Eddy county group and sent to McCollum as well as several Eddy county newspapers:

"We who are identified with the active campaign to organize Artesia county out of the north end of Eddy county have read your announcement for re-election as state representative in which you report that you had found most citizens in the north half of the county were opposed to splitting the county.

"We believe that you are pitifully uninformed or have deliberately made a misstatement. To substantiate this belief, we agree to conduct a poll of the people living within the area which we hope will constitute Artesia county, without expense to you, and if we fail to show a majority of the qualified voters living in that area as being in favor of organizing Artesia county, we agree to withdraw any effort we are expending toward the creation of that county, provided, however you agree now, publicly and in writing, that should we present you with undisputable evidence that a majority of the qualified voters of this area desire the creation of Artesia county, that you will either sponsor the bill and devote your utmost energy to its successful conclusion in the next meeting of the legislature if you are elected, or that you withdraw your name from the ballot for re-election.

"We are asking newspapers in this area to carry this letter in its full text, and we shall expect a reply from you."

The letter is signed by:
Jess Funk, J. L. Taylor, John J. Clarke, Jr., William M. Siegenthaier, Charles K. Johnson, Ames Kunyan, L. B. Feather, C. E. Mann, Ross Sears, Fred Brainard, D. D. Archer, J. W. Berry, Paul R. Dillard, Neil B. Watson, John E. Cochran, Jr., and J. J. Clarke.

In announcing his candidacy for re-election, McCollum had stated:

"I feel there is some justification for the complaints of the Artesia group in connection with certain economic and political questions.

"But in my opinion the creation of a new county is not the solution to the problem. A recent visit to the northern part of the county confirmed my conviction that most citizens do not want to divide the county and set up another expensive governmental unit."

McCollum called on business and civic leaders of Artesia and Carlsbad to "get together and settle any differences they may have." They should get together, McCollum said, "and iron out their differences through closer cooperation of interested citizens of both communities."—Artesia Advocate.

Lee to Run For Sheriff

Former Sheriff Dwight Lee has announced that he will seek election as sheriff at the primary election on May 6. He will run against Sheriff Bill High, who is seeking a return to office for a second term.

Mrs. Hubert LaRose of Corpus Christi, Texas, Henry Schmidt, of Philadelphia and Bern Schmidt of Faribault, Minn., arrived in Hope Tuesday for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Rood and Mr. and Mrs. John Hardin and family.

Funeral Services To Be Held for John A. Blakney

Funeral services for John Allen Blakney, 79, of Hope, will be held this afternoon in Hope Methodist church.

Services are scheduled for 3 p. m. with Rev. R. L. Willingham officiating. Bural will be in Lower Hope cemetery.

Mr. Blakney died Wednesday evening in a Roswell hospital after a lingering illness. He is survived by his wife, the former Levina Yarobach and six children.

Born in Yvalde, Texas, in 1873, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Blakney. He came to Hope in 1897 from Yvalde and was a pioneer settler in the Pecos Valley.

Bible Study

(By JANE PITT)

The other day I was listening to some music over the radio while I was ironing. The music was program of classical music by some of our great musical artists of by-gone days—Wagner, Strauss and others. Daddy turned the dial and brought in a western musical program. I lit into him for turning my program off and he said, "Who wants to listen to that old stuff? You don't call that music do you?" There ensued a friendly but energetic conversation about music. I, being a woman and wanting the last word said, "You just haven't enough music education to appreciate good music." Now don't get me wrong. I like western or folk music and listen to it, too, but I like a variety of music.

This seems like a long winded story to get to what I really want to say but it illustrates the feeling many of us have about the greatest book in the world, "The Bible." I've heard people say, "I don't read the Bible because I don't understand it." Now I have a proposition to make to you. Come to our Sunday school class at 10:00 a. m. each Sunday and help discover the truth in the Bible. I will guarantee you one thing, through study you will come to appreciate the variety of things it teaches you about living happily, fruitfully in this life and the beauty one can find in the eternity.

Maybe you've had some doubt about something you have found in the Bible. We have class discussions, voluntary, of course, to iron out your doubts, clarify and cement in your mind the true facts.

Just now we are studying a unit on "Following Christ Through the Church." Our Bible studies are taken from the books written by Paul and Luke, those great New Testament church men.

The lesson for Sunday, March 16, is "How Can We Guide Youth in the Church?" Now I know that every parent in this community wants their child to be a well and happy individual. We can only do this by giving that deep sense of security that a truly happy family life, a good school church gives. More people are men and the proper spiritual life the tally ill today than physically. I don't mean they are insane. They have erred and strayed from the divine ways like sheep. Today we say they are neurotic. Some of those neurotics are our present day alcoholics, our local gossips, the fellow who always makes the fish longer in his story, the person who can't acquire enough material possessions and last but not least those trying to keep up with the Joneses.

Back now to our children. Do we want them happy? If we do let's get back on the spiritual and ethical side. We are their example. Let's be a better example and become a churchman. Come every Sunday to our church school and stay for "preaching." Bring all the "kids" along. The more the merrier.

"Listen, Lana" . . . Although Lana Turner has fame, wealth and everything a girl dreams of, the things she wants most she doesn't have and can't buy. What is missing from her life? Read Dorothy Kilgallen's open letter to Lana. It's in The American Weekly, that great magazine distributed with next Sunday's Los Angeles Examiner.

Mrs. Lewis Weddige was shopping in Artesia Monday.

Unsung Heroes of The Highways

Not so long ago a survey disclosed that only eight persons in 100 knew what a traffic engineer does and how he works behind the scenes to prevent accidents on our streets and highways. His numbers are few, perhaps 500 more or less, but his achievements are many.

In a sense, the traffic engineer is an unsung hero. There is little doubt that his "know-how" saves hundreds of lives and prevents thousands of injuries annually. But even greater contributions will be made when his scientific approach to the automobile accident problem is better understood by all of the 150,000,000 people he serves.

Outstanding results at 80 danger spots in various parts of the country are cited by safety specialists in support of their advocacy of greater emphasis on good traffic engineering as a short cut to greater safety on streets and highways. Where traffic engineering was skillfully applied to "death corners" and hazardous stretches of highways, deaths and injuries were reduced nearly two-thirds and more than $3,000,000 in potential property damage losses was saved.

Most states and large cities now have a traffic engineer, and increasing numbers of smaller communities are rapidly learning that they can ill afford to be without one. Every community should obtain at least the part-time services of a trained traffic engineering consultant to solve problems of highway congestion as well as those involving fatalities and injuries. The opportunities for traffic engineering "know-how" are endless and they are not necessarily expensive.

School News

THIRD, FOURTH AND FIFTH GRADE NEWS

We received a package from Port Washington which contained several pictures, seashells, pussy willows, ivy and stories. We have received many interesting letters from the pupils there. Each class has a new reader now. The fourth grade completed their Spanish reader and have a new American history book now. The fifth grade pupils are reading a Spanish book entitled, "Juan y Maria en los Estados Unidos." (John and Mary in the United States.) It is interesting as it tells about Carlsbad Caverns in Spanish. The third grade pupils are making a large frieze on the wall of rank life in New Mexico. We saw an educational film, "Life in Africa," which was impressive since we had studied about Africa and the Negro people. We also saw a film on, "Prevent Forest Fires." Johnny Hidalgo, Ronnie Harris, and Jacky Alexander are absent due to illness. Mrs. Mark Fisher gave Bobby Joe Tarrant a real Easter rabbit with pink eyes. We are playing ball at school. Alex Cano has a birthday on Friday, March 14. He will be sore by the time all of us get through spanking him.

—Bobby Joe Tarrant and Floyd Jones, Reporters.

6th, 7th and 8th grade news—The boys have been playing baseball with the girls the past week. On windy days they play volley ball in the gym. The girls will play with them when we get tennis shoes. The school saw a picture show Tuesday. Some had seen it last year. The 8th grade is putting the articles in our new scrap book of New Mexico history that Miss Tyner got for us. Our room has missed June Blakney who has moved to Wimsatt's and will attend school at Cloudercroft.

Mike Sells Easter Seals

Opening the annual Easter Seal sale for Crippled Children, Gov. Edwin L. Mechem purchases the first Easter Seals from Mike McCreight. Mike knows what Easter Seals can do. He is attending the Cerebral Palsy Day School in Albuquerque. This treatment center is one of the five major projects of the New Mexico Society for Crippled Children, The Easter Seal Agency, The Cerebral Palsy Day School and Outpatient Clinic, area Speech and Hearing Clinics, an Epilepsy Clinic, Wheel Chair and Crutch Loan Service, and Summer camping for crippled children are supported entirely through the Easter Seal Sale.

Gov. Mechem has proclaimed the period of March 13 through April 13 as "Crippled Children's Month" and calls on the generous people of New Mexico to purchase Easter Seals to help many more youngsters like Mike to become useful, self-supporting citizens of this great state.

Gov. Mechem presented Mike with an autographed copy of the above picture to send to his father in Korea. This picture will mean a great deal to Major McCreight because with intensive treatment at the Cerebral Palsy Day School, Mike has learned to walk with the aid of crutches since his father last saw him.

Allies in Accord on United Army; Drug May Wipe Out Tuberculosis

EUROPEAN ARMY—The members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have reached agreement on four important points for the defense of Western Europe and the strengthening of the united army which may mean the salvation of the democratic form of government. Each of the points will involve great sacrifice on the part of every government, by soldiers, and by the taxpayers of the participating nations.

Most important, perhaps, was the agreement to provide about 50 combat-ready land divisions and 4,000 operations aircraft for European defense this year in addition to forces Greece and Turkey can make available.

Second, and possibly the most controversial, to approve the general outlines of a plan partially drafted by France, West Germany, Italy, and the Benelux nations to merge their armies into a European defense force. Under this plan the Allies of World War II propose to rearm Western Germany. The arming of West Germany, however, must be approved by the governing bodies of the countries involved in the treaty. Whether the French will ratify the proposal is still in doubt. If turned down by the French National Assembly it could mean the collapse of the unified army.

Third, the N.A.T.O. nations agreed to create a board to make a detailed study of the western world's needs for airfields, barracks, communications lines, and other army-supporting facilities, and recommend how to share the cost of building them.

And fourth, to streamline the N.A.T.O. itself and make it more efficient, on a pattern roughly like that of the United Nations secretariat, instead of the present overlapping boards and committees.

The plan for a 50-division army this year means that 20 more divisions will have to be recruited and armed in the next 10 months. One authority interpreted the plan in these words: "Right now the Reds could walk to France's westernmost Atlantic shore, but by the end of this year they would have to fight their way. By the end of 1954 we would be able to throw them back."

This picture of the big three foreign ministers and West Germany's Konrad Adenauer was made at conclusion of talks at which agreement was reached on outstanding issues for a united European army. Left to right: Dr. Konrad Adenauer of West Germany; Secretary of State Dean Acheson; Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary; and M. Robert Schumann, French foreign minister.

TAXES—The Public Affairs Institute, which describes itself as a nonpolitical organization, has issued a study of U.S. tax laws which points out six loopholes that are costing the Federal government $4,500,000,000 a year and benefits almost entirely those with annual incomes of more than $10,000.

They are outlined as: (1) Percentage depletion—$750,000,000; (2) Income splitting—$2,500,000,000; (3) Failure to include a provision for withholding of taxes on dividend and corporate-bond interest payments—$30,000,000; (4) Failure to increase estate and gift tax rate sharply and tighten up on this levy—$400,000,000; (5) Failure to increase the capital gains tax rate sharply and tighten up on this levy—$400,000,000; (6) Approval of a broadened family partnership provision in the 1951 law—$100,000,000.

More will be heard about this study in the next few weeks as congress gets into full debate over the proposed new tax bill.

RUSSIAN A-BOMBS—On the 34th anniversary of the Soviet army, Russian military leaders and newspapers warned the western world that Russia possessed "atom bombs of all calibers" and said that any aggressor would be met with "crushing, deadly blows." In addition, the same sources charged that "Anglo-American imperialists" are planning to unleash a third World War.

Most observers agreed that the speeches and articles were the usual line of Soviet propaganda that is necessary on an important occasion. But it was noted that the claim clearly implied that Russia has in her arsenal tactical atomic weapons to match those recently developed and tested in the United States.

COST OF LIVING—The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports the cost of living stood still in its latest 30 day survey as measured by the government's new consumers' new index.

Food prices rose about a tenth of a per cent, but clothing and house furnishings were down a little.

The new index stood at 189.1 per cent of the 1935-39 average in mid-January. This was 4.2 per cent above a year earlier and 11.1 per cent above the pre-Korean average. Wholesale prices were reported 5 per cent below a year ago.

ATOMIC SPY TEAM—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, convicted last spring of stealing atomic secrets for Russia and sentenced to die for treason, heard their sentences upheld by a Federal Appeals Court. Three appeal judges said in their decision: "It cannot be held that these sentences are unconstitutional." Only the United States Supreme Court can now save the Rosenbergs from the electric chair.

The Rosenbergs are the first Americans ever sentenced to death for treason outside a military court. At the time of their conviction, Judge Irving R. Kaufman called Rosenberg worse than a murderer. In his opinion, Judge Kaufman said, the Rosenbergs' treason led to the war in Korea, with its tens of thousands of American casualties.

TUBERCULOSIS—Dreaded Tuberculosis, once the great scourge of mankind, may within a few years be completely wiped out. This hope is centered on a new wonder drug which was used in recent months in treatment of nearly 200 persons in the advanced stages of the disease at Sea View hospital in Staten Island.

Slightly smaller than aspirin (see picture), it is expected to be on the market by summer under various trade names. The pills will cost a TB patient a fantastically low 25 to 50 cents a day.

In the tests at Sea View hospital doctors were amazed at results obtained by the drug. Within a few weeks, high temperatures went down to normal, lung cavities began to heal, patients recovered energy and appetite. Science, at last, may have found the answer in the battle against tuberculosis.

THE READER'S DATE BOOK National Boys' Club Week Will Be Observed March 31-April 6

National Boys' Club Week will be celebrated this year from March 31 to April 6 by some 335,000 Boys' Club members in cities and small towns across the nation.

The week's observance will be built around the theme, "Building . . . the citizens of tomorrow."

The Boys' Club movement was founded in New England 90 years ago. Since 1906 the Boys' Clubs have been federated into a national organization, Boys' Clubs of America.

Today, in club houses of their own, in a warm and friendly atmosphere, 335,000 Boys' Club members meet their friends away from the dangers of the street. With the encouragement of trained leaders, they develop strong bodies, acquire hand skills, desirable attitudes of behavior, fair play and an understanding of the rights of others. Boys' Clubs give 335,000 boys opportunity and guidance for self-development. They teach them that America is the land of opportunity for those who will work and learn and strive.

However, there is a need for more Boys' Clubs. At least three million boys still live in "shadowlands" in our cities and villages where the most fruitful soil is found for the growth of crime and subversive "isms". They live in crowded homes where there is little to do—where there are tensions, quarreling and bickering. They seek their companionship and play on the streets. These boys deserve the guidance and leadership of a Boys' Club.

This is a part of the story of Boys' Clubs that will be told during Boys' Club Week. It will be an effort to get civic-minded citizens in home towns across the nation and probation officers. What is more important, Boys' Clubs build good citizens with strong, healthy bodies . . . boys who are completely honest, who have a respect for all property and individual rights, and who have a deep and abiding faith in America and the fundamental principles upon which our strength as a nation has been built.

A Boys' Club in the local community might be the solution to many of its problems. National Boys' Club Week would be an opportune time to give it serious thought.

Seeds for Democracy Campaign Is Outlined

The Committee for Free Asia, a privately-organized, privately-operated effort to oppose communism throughout Asia started its 1952 Seeds for Democracy campaign March 3. It will continue through June 3.

This campaign is designed to ease a critical inadequacy in food production throughout the Philippine Republic. Vegetable seeds are not easily produced in the Philippines. They must be imported, a process normally too costly for the average Filipino family.

The campaign offers Americans an inexpensive and easy method of indicating, in a practical way, their interest in the problems of the people of other nations. It offers, also, a method of stimulating greater Filipino resistance to the blandishments of communism.

Last year this campaign resulted in 511,000 packages of seeds contributed from all parts of the United States.

Seeds desired are green string beans, Chinese cabbage, green pepper, mustard, egg plant, collards, cucumber, watermelon, kohlrabi and loose leaf lettuce. They may be mailed in any container which meets domestic mail regulations, and may be addressed: Seeds for Democracy, San Francisco, Calif. All contributions will be acknowledged, and contributors are invited to include with each seed package a personal message to a Filipino.

The seeds will go to Filipino farmers, school children and small land owners for planting in vegetable gardens that will produce food in the spring.

Each package of seed shipped to the Philippines will have attached a label containing the following text in both English and Tagalog, the national language of the Islands: "These vegetable seeds are offered to you, free, from the people of the United States who have formed the Committee for a Free Asia to help you in the speedy rebuilding and development of your great republic."

The home towner might remember the Seed for Democracy campaign as he buys his spring supply for his own garden.

to become interested in the idea for their community. Any community desiring to establish such a club can contact Boys' Club of America, 381 Fourth Avenue, New York 16, N.Y., for help and advice.

One of the most important things to remember about the Boys' Club movement is that there is very little delinquency among the 335,000 boys from eight to 20 who have their own clubhouses through the United States in which they find recreation and companionship in after-school and evening hours.

Boys' Clubs lessen delinquency wherever they are established. This is the testimony of judges, police

HUMAN NEEDS

Red Cross Seeks Funds to Carry On Year Around Relief Projects

Renewed hope for a disaster-stricken family through the rebuilding of its flood ruined home . . . blood for a wounded serviceman . . . a reassuring message for another serviceman, anxious over a problem back home . . . life-saving first aid for an accident victim.

These are typical of the hundreds of thousands of human services rendered by the American Red Cross last year and listed by E. Roland Harriman, national Red Cross president, as the organization's annual campaign for funds reaches full force. The national appeal will continue through March 31, with the slogan, "Answer the Call".

"Last year the American people did answer the call," Mr. Harriman declared, "and through their Red Cross helped millions of their fellow Americans with money and personal services. Our campaign theme this year is a summons to all Americans to give generous financial support again to the Red Cross so that it can continue to meet human needs."

High on the list were Red Cross

services to the expanded armed forces and to the families of men in uniform—counsel on personal and family problems, money in an emergency, toilet articles for men in combat or the wounded, emergency communication—personal help in time of trouble.

Nearly a third of the Red Cross budget last year was spent to supply this kind of service in an average of 316,000 cases and requests each month. And to keep pace with our growing military force there was an increase of 34 per cent in the Red Cross staff serving the armed forces. Red Cross personnel in the Far East more than doubled.

To help make the death rate in the Korean War the lowest in history, Americans donated 1,225,000 pints of blood for the armed forces through the Red Cross in the 18 months since the start of the conflict. In the same period, an additional 1,861,000 pints were collected by the Red Cross and made available without charge to civilian hospitals throughout the country. The blood program cost the Red Cross $13,985,113 last year.

DALE ROBERTSON, who suggests a combination of Clark Gable, Gary Cooper and Hopalong Cassidy, is so well thought of by 20th Century-Fox that he's been given top billing, for the first time, in "Lydia Bailey." He hails from Oklahoma, where his parents were friends of Will Rogers. Rogers wanted to take Dale to Hollywood, but his mother put "schooling" first. She did say she'd give the boy dramatic lessons. "Will grinned that way he had," said Dale, "Mrs. Robertson," he said, "Don't ever let him take a dramatic lesson. The drama coaches will put your voice in a dinner jacket, and most people like their grits and hominy in every-day clothes."

John Derek went on record as saying that he prefers modern pictures to historical ones. But Columbia liked his swashbuckling in "Mask of the Avenger" and "Rogues of Sherwood Forest" so much that his next starring vehicle will be "Prince of Pirates." Derek doesn't mind getting into costume; he just thinks those old-time stories are too apt to follow the same pattern.

Mort Abrahams, producer of the ABC-TV network show, "Tales of Tomorrow," has affected a liaison with the American rocket society to furnish research material, models and props for the science-fiction program. Remember Orson Welles' "Man from Mars" broadcast that created such excitement? Abrahams wants to recreate it, showing what havoc it wrought.

Search for a small town location for The Kramer Company's "The Library," starring Mary Pickford, has begun. The Pomona-Clermont area in California is being scouted; main factor of choice will be the town's public library.

Simon "Stuffy" Singer has a strange role in Columbia's "The First Time." He supplies the voice of the son of Robert Cummings and Barbara Hale before the baby's birth, making off-stage comments and telling of trials to come.

Harry Petro, prop-seeker for CBS-TV "Schlitz Playhouse of Stars," recently spent three hours in a stable, catching two dozen horse flies for the show. In one day he's likely to turn up scouring the Bowery for a weather-beaten "free lunch" sign and then dash to Tiffany's, in search of a tiara to adorn the head of Helen Hayes. Frank Buck has nothing on him!

Kay Armen's leaving "Stop the Music" on ABC radio was due to her having a number of offers that she wanted to accept; also she's due in Hollywood for an M-G-M picture. But she will return occasionally for guest appearances.

"Cavalcade of America," Tuesday nights on NBC radio, recently won top honors in the 1951 freedom foundation awards. Celebrating its 17th year, it is a non-profit, non-political, non-sectarian organization chartered for the purpose of annually honoring Americans who make outstanding contributions to a better understanding of freedom by things they write, do, or say.

Young people get more than enough urging to become alcoholics. One of the best things one can do for younger friends is to awaken them to the real facts and dangers of all alcoholic beverages.

There is a book, "Fruit of the Vine," by Grace H. Turnbull, (printed by the Lord Baltimore Press and published in 1950 at 223 Chancery Road, Baltimore 18, Md.) which is a mine of facts about liquor—the kind of information you will not get in the advertisements. Young people who learn these things the easy way (by reading such a book) may be saved the heartbreak of learning the hard way.

Youth Today

Lesson for March 16, 1952

YOUTH today has a hard time of it. With bad examples in high places, prevalence of gambling, liquor ads on every billboard and liquor on too many "smart" tables; with divorce almost as easy as marriage and both as easy as whims; educated in elementary schools where it is considered wrong for the teacher to "fail" or punish any one, in high schools that emphasize the body more than the mind, and in colleges where coaches make more than professors and where (as two leading universities recently learned) almost half the student body, it seems, admits to cheating; living in a country where success is measured in dollars and where the Christian church is still in a minority: what chance has a boy or girl to grow up straight and strong instead of weak and crooked?

Dr. Foreman

It Has Been Worse
THE best answer to this question is that youth has always had a hard time of it, yet always there have been some who have grown straight and strong.

If this 20th century is a bad one, what about the first? At that time there was certainly bad example in high places, considering that Nero was the emperor and that many persons actually worshipped that cruel scoundrel as a god. Gambling was done by the "best" people all over the Empire; liquor was even more a part of "high" society than it is today; as for divorce and marriage, the Roman record was worse than ours.

The Right Friends
YET it was in that bad century that some of the most famous Christian saints and heroes lived. Timothy, Paul's young understudy, was such a man. He had everything against him, but Paul thought well of him, and Paul's standards were extraordinarily high.

Let us look at two of the causes for this young man's high character. One was the quality of his friends. He seems to have been the sort of boy who might have gone down fast if he had taken up with the wrong crowd; but a list of his friends as we know them is a list of strong, original, true-blue Christians.

We have a hint, too, that his mother had something to do with this. She "steered" the boy to the right crowd, one suspects—and that was enough. One of the best things parents can do for their children is to see to it that they run into the right kind of people. This does not necessarily mean the richest or the best educated, but the people with the best kind of character.

Self Control
THE other reason for Timothy's character came from inside: self-discipline, self-control.

Followers of these lessons may wonder why "temperance" has to be dragged in every once in so often. It's not dragged in; we just dare not dodge it. Temperance just means self-control, in general. In particular, one of the drugs—by all odds the most popular drug—that tends to make the users lose self-control, is alcohol. As the proverb has it: First the man takes a drink, then the drink takes a drink, and then the drink takes the man.

Young people get more than enough urging to become alcoholics. One of the best things one can do for younger friends is to awaken them to the real facts and dangers of all alcoholic beverages.

Give Fish Dinners Tantalizing Taste With Zesty Seasoning

IF FISH DINNERS in your house are not received with wholehearted good spirit and eaten with relish, check on your fish cookery. Improvement is simple, the rewards are great. Fish served frequently can ease the budget and add zest to an otherwise humdrum string of menus. In addition to these reasons, homemakers appreciate the fact that fish is tender and requires but short cooking time. Meal preparation time can be cut considerably when fish appears frequently on the table.

Many fish varieties are available because they come fresh, canned and fresh-frozen. When you investigate the cookery methods as well as the many seasonings that can enhance their flavors, you enter a fascinating realm of cookery.

You've stuffed chops and roasts. Have you ever thought of stuffing a fish? Here's an excellent way to prepare fish with stuffing that's quick to make and wonderfully popular:

*Baked Stuffed Fish (Serves 6)

Select a fish weighing 3 to 4 pounds. Clean and rub salt inside and out. Fill cavity  $\frac{1}{2}$  full with mushroom stuffing. Lace fish with string to hold stuffing in place and to hold fish together. Brush fish with melted butter or substitute and place upright in a greased baking pan. Place paper brushed with butter over fish. Pour  $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{3}{4}$  cup water or fish stock into pan. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 40 to 60 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Baste frequently with drippings in pan. Remove string and serve immediately on a hot platter with liquid from pan, thickened with a mixture of 1 tablespoon butter and 1 teaspoon flour.

Mushroom Stuffing
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon onion, chopped
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup chopped mushrooms
2 cups fresh bread crumbs
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup cream
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
Salt and pepper

Melt butter in saucepan. Add onion and saute until onion is golden. Add chopped mushrooms and cook until water from mushrooms cooks away. Add bread crumbs, cream, eggs and parsley. Stir until well mixed. Cook over low heat until mixture is thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Broiling is an excellent method for cooking fish because it's so tender. Here are two ways to try:

Broiled Mackerel, Onion Slices (Serves 4)

4 1-pound mackerel or other small fish
3 onions, sliced
2 tablespoons butter

Small, whole fish like this mackerel, can be treated by cutting slits in the fish and inserting onion slices. The broiling method prepares the fish quickly and gives interesting variety to fish dinners.

Fish fillets cooked and flaked go into this ring mold to give an easily prepared main dish which the family will appreciate. Cooked vegetables, like the carrots used here, can be served in the center of the ring.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU
*Baked Stuffed Fish
Creamed Spinach with Hard-Cooked Egg
Baked Potatoes
Cabbage, Apple and Nut Slaw
Lemon Tarts
Beverage
*Recipe Given

Rub inside of fish with salt. Make several slits on each side of the fish. Slip a slice of onion and a dot of butter in each slit on the top side, pushing the slice of onion well into the slit.

Place fish under broiler, about 6 inches from the source of heat. Broil for 3 minutes, turn fish and insert onions and dots of butter on the other side. Broil 6 minutes longer, or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

Broiled Fish Steaks

Either fresh or frozen steaks may be used for this. With frozen steaks, let fish thaw on refrigerator shelf or at room temperature, just long enough to separate the steaks. Dip steaks in flour, season both sides with salt and pepper and brush both sides with salad oil. Place on a pre-heated, greased broiler pan about two or 3 inches from heat. Broil 5 to 8 minutes, turn carefully and broil 5 to 8 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork. If fish is very frozen, a slightly longer time for broiling may be required. Remove steaks to hot platter and serve with the following:

Mustard Sauce
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup hot milk
1 slice onion
Salt and pepper
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
Few drops lemon juice

Melt butter, add flour and cook until it turns golden. Add milk, onion, salt and pepper and cook, stirring constantly until mixture thickens, then continue cooking until reduced to about two-thirds of the original quantity. Add mustard and lemon juice. Strain sauce or just remove onion, and serve.

An easy way to serve fish that may be different to you, is by baking a nicely seasoned fish mixture in a ring mold:

Flaked Fish Ring (Serves 6)
2 pounds cooked fish filets
2 eggs
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup tomato juice
 $1\frac{1}{2}$  cups soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lemon juice
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cup parsley, minced
2 tablespoons chopped celery

Flake fish. Mix in remaining ingredients. Place mixture in buttered ring mold and bake in a hot (400°F.) oven for 30 minutes. Run a knife around the edges and turn out on platter. Fill center with sliced, cooked carrots. Garnish with chichory or other greens.

Broiled Whole Fish

Use any small fish such as trout, croakers, butterfish, porgies or smelt. Have fish drawn and heads and tails removed, if desired. Season with salt and pepper, then brush with butter or oil. Broil, 3 inches from heat about 8 to 10 minutes. (If fish are boned, broil 5 to 8 minutes). Remove to hot platter and spread with a mixture of 3 tablespoons sweet butter creamed with 1 teaspoon anchovy paste.

RESIDENT NURSE

A SERIAL STORY

BY LUCY AGNES HANCOCK

THE STORY SO FAR:

Nurse trainee, Gay Gaynor, Bethesda orphanage "product," is studying to become a children's nurse and aspires to be resident nurse at Bethesda. She has gained her position on the Bessemer hospital staff through intercession of Dr. Borden who quieted snobbish objection to employing orphans with "questionable family background." Gay dislikes Thad Borden, Dr. Borden's son, because of his insolence toward her at an orphan's picnic and because of his attentions to Vivian Poole D'Archer, "glamour queen" of Bessemer at the expense of his medical training. However, she hears at the hospital that Thad is aiding his father in surgery.

CHAPTER XV

"Oh, no, he doesn't have to, Myra," Gay said hotly. "Thad Borden's supposed to be a doctor. What's he doing chasing all over creation when he should be ministering to the sick? No, he goes around with her because he's still in love with her."

"I don't believe it," Myra said stubbornly. "But let's forget Thad for a minute. It's Doc I'm worried 'bout. He's in a bad way. Why don't you run over to his place and see him, Gay?"

Gay demurred for a moment, but when she discovered it was Doctor Borden's office hours and would still be for the next half hour, she consented. It wasn't far to the old Borden estate and Gay rang the bell and walked into the waiting room now only sparsely filled. She sat down and looked about. It had been a long time since she had been in this room and much had happened. She knew none of the patients seated there. A woman with two small children who looked anything but in need of medical attention; a boy with a bandaged hand; a man who kept jingling the coins in his pocket while staring at the ceiling; and a young girl who spent her time examining the face reflected in her compact, turning from side to side, perfectly oblivious of the others in the room with her. At last the inner door opened and Thad Borden came in, looked about and motioned to the boy.

Thad Is Worried About His Father

For a moment Gay knew a wild desire to leave and yet why should she let Thad Borden drive her away? He was probably pinch-hitting for Mrs. Potter who acted as office nurse during office hours. And after all, she came to see his father, not him. She picked up a magazine and tried to concentrate on its contents, but she was acutely aware every time the inner door opened and closed. At last she was alone in the office. She would be next. It was five minutes to three. Someone said, "You wish to see my father?"

Gay got to her feet. "Yes," she said. "May I go in?"

"Dad is resting," his son said evenly. "I am taking over his office hours for the next few days. Is there something I can do?"

The girl said nothing for a moment, then, "Is the doctor ill? Myra is worried about him and sent me to see for myself."

"Dad's been working too hard, but you know Dad. He never considers himself. Then you are not ill? I mean—"

"No, I am perfectly well. It was just that I wanted to talk to Doctor Borden—a personal matter." She turned to leave.

"It was kind of you to be concerned, Miss Gaynor," Thad said stiffly. "I'll tell him and—sure there is nothing I can do—"

"I'm sure," Gay said, her hand on the door. It was then the doctor reached the lower hall.

"This is a surprise, my dear," he said, taking her hand in both of his. "Surely you're not in need of a physician, Gay. You're blooming as a rose in spite of hard work, long hours and little time for recreation. Come into my office. I have a few minutes before I must drive over to Wayne Tyler's."

He led Gay into his office, still clinging to her hand. She sat down in the patient's chair across from the big shabby desk. Thad came in and busied himself at the filing cabinet and Gay remained silent.

"Thanks, Thad," his father said, no doubt surmising that Gay would be reluctant to talk with him in the room.

Thad turned. "I'll just take these cards into the study, Dad and go over them. Be seeing you." Without another glance at Gay, he left.

"Now, what's on your mind, Gay?" the doctor asked, settling back in his chair.

"You've been very kind to me, Doctor," the girl said. "I owe you a very great deal. Have—have you heard anything more about the Bethesda job, Doctor Borden?"

She saw his face cloud and went on hastily, "Don't answer. I know. Well, I can always do private work or I can stay on at Memorial. Both Doctor Cushing and Miss Smith want me to, but—well, you know Bethesda has been my goal, Doctor. I don't think I shall give up—not entirely."

"Of course not, my dear. After all, it's an innovation, you know, and the Board doesn't take kindly to innovations. We'll both keep plugging and—Thad, too. You know he is taking over that part of the work. He specialized in Pediatrics, or didn't you know that? The kids at Bethesda adore him. You would have worked well together, I know, but—Was that what you came to see me about, Gay?" he asked, quick to see the stiffening in the girl's attitude.

"Please don't be angry, Gay," he pleaded. "I—I meant no harm. We couldn't help seeing the ring—"

"Myra sent me," she said tersely. "Myra? And what ails Myra?"

"She's worried about you. She says you don't look well, and I can see that with my own eyes. What have you been doing to make you so hollow-eyed and—well—haggard?"

"Worrying, perhaps," he said softly. "And yet I warn my patients to avoid worry as they would the plague. I'm going to ask you something, Frances Gaynor, and don't you dare take offence. Why do you hate Thad?"

Gay was startled. "But—but I don't. I—I—"

"Oh, yes you do, my dear, or at least you manage to give a better than reasonable facsimile. It used to worry Grace—she loved the boy, and it worries me, too. After all, Gay, he is all I have. He's restless and unhappy and I think he feels your treatment of him keenly."

"My—my treatment of him? Why, I—I never see him—"

Dr. Borden Asks Gay Forgive Thad

"That's what I mean. He can be in the same room with you—as close as I am to you this minute and yet you never see him. He has never mentioned it to me, but I know it rankles. He never told me what happened years ago when you were both children—"

"He was no child, Doctor Borden," Gay said sharply.

"Oh, well, he was young and no doubt feeling his oats. I could never get it out of him, but he told Grace about it—"

"He did!" Gay cried.

"Yes, and she told me. She knew I was concerned. Of course I can quite see your point, and yet I'm sure he meant no harm. The boy hasn't a vicious thought in his head, my dear. I'm his father and I know. He was angry and it is obvious he took the quickest, easiest way to get even."

"Listen, my dear," the doctor continued. "This doesn't sound like you. Aren't you the girl who told me no one had the power to hurt you? Well, they haven't—not really. Annoy you, perhaps. Life is full of little annoyances. They are part of our training—they help build our characters. You're a strong, well-balanced, level-headed young woman today largely because of the very handicaps you have overcome and the annoyances you weathered in those old days. Today you are a poised, beautiful woman, my dear—one all of us privileged to know you can love and admire. Grace knew it—together we shared you—watched you grow into young womanhood, proud and happy in your development."

There was a light knock on the door and at the doctor's "Come in!" Thad thrust his head inside.

"Mrs. Perkins is— Oh, I'm sorry, I didn't know—"

"Come in, Thad," his father said, getting to his feet. "I'll just see Mrs. Perkins—I'll be back, Gay Don't go—"

Silence followed, heavy and disturbing. Gay fidgeted. After a moment Thad said tentatively, "Are we to congratulate in order to extend good wishes?"

"Thank you," Gay said, relaxing somewhat. "Of course I am happy about it. I never expected to be first. I thought there were others who stood higher. But I am proud and happy that I lead the class. It is a great satisfaction to me—a Bethesda girl." She added the last defiantly and was instantly ashamed.

Vivian Poole Returns To Adrian D'Archer

"I—I wasn't thinking of that," the young man said. "I referred to your engagement to young Boothe. It is an engagement, isn't it?"

"For your information and not because it is really any of your concern, it isn't," she said coldly, and got to her feet. "Tell your father I will see him again," she said and started for the door, but Thad was there before her.

"Please don't be angry, Gay," he pleaded. "I—I meant no harm. We couldn't help seeing the ring—"

"I'm quite aware that you saw it—and certainly misconstrued the entire picture," the girl said. "Please let me go."

"Dad wants to see you," he reminded her. "Won't you sit down again? He won't be long. I wish you could persuade him to take a vacation—go over to the cottage for a few weeks—fish and swim and just loaf."

"I doubt if I have that much influence with him," Gay said.

"He's extremely fond of you—"

"And I love him," the girl said quickly. "He's wonderful!"

"Wonderful and stubborn," his son said. "His patients would no doubt set up a howl, but after all, I'm a doctor, too, and no doubt they would get used to me. If they didn't—why, there are other doctors here."

"Is that what's worrying him?" Gay asked.

"I—I suppose it is," Thad said after a moment, his fine eyes searching her face. "What else could it be?"

Gay didn't answer. She had an idea he knew more than he was willing to admit. Well, it was none of her business.

Two days after her visit to the doctor's office, the morning paper printed an interesting item:

"Mrs. Adrian D'Archer left last evening for New York where she will join her husband, the well-known and popular painter."

Gay said nothing. So Vivian hadn't waited for Thad. She wondered what he thought about it.

"Do you know, Myra," she said one day, "I should like to have a sort of convalescent home for children right here in this house. Oh, I know we couldn't accommodate very many, but we could manage four or five, perhaps. I want to take care of children and it seems as if the Bethesda Board is set against having me there. It won't be long until Tom will graduate from his crutches and no longer need me. Do you think we could work it, Myra?"

"Sure," Myra replied. "Anything you plan'll be all right with me. I'd be kind of pleasant having a bunch of kids around again. Why don't you talk to Doc about it? Prob'ly he's got a lot of kids he'd be tickled to send to you."

"We couldn't take a 'lot,' Myra," Gay reminded her, "but perhaps he might like the idea. I'll call and make an appointment right now."

"What are you muttering about, Myra?" Gay asked, returning as quickly as she had left.

"Oh, just mutterin'. Well, what did Doc say?"

INSPIRATION Spiritual Vacuum

CONFRONTED with all the distractions of daily life, a man may too easily drift into a spiritual vacuum. But there is no reason why he must. The busiest man can learn to tear his mind occasionally from temporal preoccupations and raise his mind to the things of the spirit. No matter where he is or what he is doing, he can pause just a little to make some kind of prayer to God.

Ministers Criticize Catholic Hospital

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y.—A resolution rebuking a Roman Catholic hospital here for ordering seven non-Catholic doctors to quit its staff or resign from a birth control group was adopted by the Dutchess county ministerial association.

The association said the hospital order violated the doctors' "inalienable rights as American citizens."

While recognizing the right of a Catholic hospital to require staff physicians to conform to its regulations in their practice within the hospital, the association said the hospital "has no right to force non-Catholic physicians on its staff to bring their activities outside the hospital into line with Roman Catholic beliefs."

"We hold," the resolution said, "that a hospital that receives the support of the whole community owes an obligation beyond its own religious constituency."

Administrative officials of St. Francis hospital, operated by the nursing and teaching order of the Sisters of St. Francis, had given the ultimatum to staff physicians identified as members of the Dutchess county league of the planned parenthood association.

Supreme Court Reviews Movie 'Miracle' Ban

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The United States Supreme Court has agreed to review a decision by the New York state court of appeals upholding a ban on the movie, "The Miracle."

The Supreme Court is expected to hear arguments on the case in April and a decision may be handed down before the tribunal recesses for the summer in June.

Involved is the question of whether New York state censors acted properly in banning the film as sacrilegious on the basis of objections by church groups.

The New York State court of appeals in a 5-2 decision last October, affirmed lower court rulings backing the state board of regents which last February 16 withdrew a license for the film after it had been issued by the state board of motion picture review.

The secret of successful brooders for young chickens is uniform heat. For those housewives and farmers who may be receiving their hatchery chicks in the next few weeks, here is an idea that may fill their needs. The double socket (see above) directs heat outward and gives better coverage, preventing crowding in the center.

Most Farm Families Have a Home Garden

According to a United States Department of Agriculture survey last year, five million of the six million farm families in the nation raised gardens. Nearly all of the five million canned food, and about two and a half million stored garden produce away in freezers. The department reports this is one of the many reasons that there is plenty of food in the United States.

More Meat for Year— Is USDA Prediction

The average American may eat even more meat and poultry in 1952 than in 1951, if advance production figures are any indication.

According to a forecast of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, meat production this year may be large enough to provide an average of 144 pounds per person as compared with 141 pounds in 1951.

Most of the meat increase will be in beef and veal. Much of the step-up in beef will be in medium and lower grades, although some of it probably will be in the better grades from grain-fed cattle. Veal consumption per person in the country last year was a 19-year low of 6.7 pounds.

The amount of lamb and mutton eaten by the average American is expected to go up slightly, as is production. Last year consumption of lamb and mutton was the lowest on record—only slightly over 3 pounds per person.

A little more pork may be on the market in the first few months of 1952, but production for the last part of the year may be somewhat smaller.

Increased production may cause a slight price decline in some lines.

FOR SALE—1951 File of the Penasco Valley News.

Every swine producer knows that hogs need shade. How to provide it, however, is sometimes a problem. An upright frame, constructed on skids so it can be moved easily, may be the answer some producers are seeking. The top is covered with old wire fence and straw, weeds, etc., piled on top of that. It is inexpensive and can be made to dimensions to fill individual needs.

Well Managed Acre Will Support a Cow

An acre and a quarter of well-managed, well-fertilized pasture will provide good "board and room" for a dairy cow during the summer grazing season and keep that cow sleek and well-fed with high-protein grass silage through the winter. J. L. Haynes, agronomist at Ohio Experiment Station, says. To build high yielding pasture, he recommends seeding a legume grass mixture and adding plant nutrients to the soil.

Liberty Gardens Vital to Defense Good Kitchen Garden Can Cut Food Costs

The Department of Agriculture has approved a plan of the National Garden and Food Preservation Committee for a national Liberty Garden campaign in 1952.

The general plan is to encourage the cultivation of home gardens as insurance against shortages, to relieve transportation facilities, enlist labor in food production, and maintain health and moral values.

On the local level the all-out program provides for using all available means to arouse the whole population to the need for gardens, to teach novices how to make gardens, make suitable land available in city, town and suburban areas, plow the land and insure the availability of seed, plant food and equipment.

A good kitchen garden may also be the answer to many a family's high food costs. The program gains merit in the light of past experience, because it has been shown that a garden and a home food preservation program is essential to the success of any home defense program.

An average garden can mean as much as $200 to a family's food bill during one year with a reasonable amount of time and effort.

'Regular Habits'
And Creative Skill

By Lawrence Gould

Will "regular habits" make you creative?

Answer: No, writes Dr. Edith A. Weisskopf in the Journal of Educational Psychology. We tend to stifle intellectual creativeness by urging our students to be industrious, cultivate regular habits of study and develop a controlled, critical attitude toward life and themselves. We try to prevent their realizing that creation is essentially spontaneous and instinctive and may be most apt to take place when we relax our controls and "let ourselves go." True, study and preparation must come first, but the creative process itself is a release from controls and inhibitions. Discipline alone will not induce it.

Do some of us sleep too much?

Answer: Yes. The extreme case is a partly physical and partly mental illness known as narcolepsy—a condition akin to or a form of epilepsy—in which the person may drop off to sleep against his will at the most inconvenient times and places. But otherwise normal people may use prolonged sleep as an escape from facing painful situations like the prospect of a tough day at the office—you're much less apt to "oversleep" when you're anticipating something pleasant. No two people need exactly the same amount of sleep, but if you "can never get enough," you probably have problems which you want to put off trying to solve.

Is Russia making scientific progress?

Answer: In some fields, yes, various scholars told the American Association for the Advancement of Science. In the field of mathematics, Russian scientists have published more advanced texts than have those of the United States, though these are "shot through with nationalism." Sociology, however, is not even recognized as a science; it is nothing but a propaganda technique for furthering Soviet theories. And as for the new Soviet genetics—which denies the known facts of heredity—it has not produced "a single new or original idea, either right or wrong." Freedom is the very air that science breathes.

KEEPING HEALTHY

Thoughts on Artificial Dentures

By Dr. James W. Barton

MOST INDIVIDUALS, when they first use artificial dentures or plates, hesitate to chew down hard on them as they fear it will make the gums sore. In a news release from the American Dental Association, Navy Captain Frank M. Kyes of the U.S. naval dental school, Bethesda, Md., states that dental patients using artificial dentures for the first time will be helped by closing the mouth and teeth and swallowing frequently. Such action will make the denture fit firmly. Unfortunately many patients become impatient and discouraged because the dentures do not seem to fit perfectly the first time they are used. If they consult their dentist, he will, usually in a matter of a minute or two, smooth down the irritating part and give relief.

A questionnaire that was answered by thousands of dentists brought out the fact that patients wearing artificial dentures returned to their dentists an average of two and one-half times before their dentures were comfortable. Perhaps the further suggestions of Captain Kyes will be helpful and of interest to those wearing artificial dentures.

1. Push inward and upward when biting such foods as apples and raw carrots.
2. Try to chew with an up and down motion, avoiding side movements as much as possible.
3. Keep the tongue low and well forward in the mouth to steady and stabilize the lower denture. (The lower denture does not have the concave roof of the mouth to help hold it by suction as does the upper denture.)

Captain Kyes says that artificial dentures sometimes are unsuccessful because of physiologic changes in the patient. "One example of this is the effect of body weight loss upon the fit of dentures. When a patient loses 15 pounds of weight, he is not surprised when his clothes do not fit.

- Biscuit:
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 1/2 teaspoons Clabber Girl Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 teaspoons caraway seed
6 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup milk
- Ham Filling:
2 cups cooked, ground ham
1 cup pickle relish
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1/2 cup gravy or brown cream sauce

BISCUIT: Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Mix in caraway seed. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Add milk, stir to make a soft dough that can be handled and formed into a ball. Transfer ball of dough onto a lightly floured board; knead until smooth. Roll out into a 9x12-inch rectangle. Spread with ham filling. Starting with the narrow end, roll like a jelly roll. Place on a greased baking sheet. Brush lightly with milk. Slash roll into six pieces cutting almost through roll. Turn each piece cut-side up. Bake in a hot oven (450°F.) approximately 25 minutes or until well browned. Serve with mushroom sauce.

Need Effective Enforcement

Strong local enforcement measures are being urged as one of the main efforts in the nation's endeavor to reduce the toll of traffic accidents. This should and must include action against violations sometimes regarded as "trivial." Certainly no offense is "minor" when it costs a life or injures someone and in the course of a year these so-called "minor" violations of traffic laws costs hundreds of lives and injure thousands in street and highway accidents.

It makes sense to direct the greater part of our enforcement effort against the more flagrant offenders—the speeders and the drinking drivers who cause far more than half of the fatal and serious accidents. But other traffic law violators should not be overlooked by the police, because their contribution to the grisly records is higher than most people realize.

Consider, for instance, the driver who fails to observe a "stop" sign or to yield the right-of-way to another vehicle or a pedestrian. One death in every ten, and 27 of every 100 injuries, in traffic accidents are caused by this type of driver. Such offenses, regarded as "minor" by millions of motorists, cost 2,800 lives and injured 325,000 others last year. At rural intersections alone, the victims of such drivers have tripled and their toll of injured has multiplied 10 times in the last two decades.

"Cutting in" caused another 200 deaths and 30,000 injuries in 1950. Reckless driving cost more than 2,300 lives and injured over 100,000 persons, while drivers who passed cars on the wrong side killed nearly 1,000 more and injured over 100,000 persons. These losses are colossal rather than "trivial" and the police should treat the drivers who cause them accordingly. A marked reduction in highway casualties may be achieved if the police make examples of all drivers who ignore the rules of common courtesy and safety and let the courts decide how serious they were.

Waterers

One of the big headaches in the chicken house is the waterer. No matter how careful the producer, some is always spilled, keeping the floor and litter damp. This headache can be eliminated if the waterer is suspended over the droppings pit. Water when splashed over the sides drops into the pit.

Dairy Heifers Can Be Raised Economically

The University of Nebraska reports recent tests prove dairy heifers can be raised satisfactorily from birth to two years of age with as little as 500 pounds of grain. In the place of grain the animals were fed all the high quality alfalfa hay they could eat. The scientists emphasized, however, that the limited grain rations experiment was successful only because of the high quality forage fed.
