BRISCOE COUNTY TEACHERS MEET

Canyon, Texas, Sept. 5th
The West Texas Teachers Association, or Teachers Institute is now in session at the Normal College with a large attendance, composed of all the teachers from 21 Panhandle counties. At the meeting of the Briscoe county teachers this afternoon, the following officers were elected. C. A. Gross, Superintendent of the Silvertown schools, Chairman; O. R. Tipps, Superintendent of the Quitaque schools, Vice Chairman; Miss Simmons of Quitaque school, secretary; Miss Ruby Welch of Silvertown school, re-elected treasurer. After the election of officers the following plan of work for the Briscoe County Educational Association was agreed upon:

To establish a circulating library for the benefit of the teachers of the county, to publish a survey of the schools of the county, to make all meetings of the Association more educational by inviting prominent educators to speak at the meetings. —C. A. Gross.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Termin and little son, Ralph, of Dallas, visited Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Cantrell last week.

Laura Ella Coffey visited at the W. E. Redin home, in the Rock Creek community, this week.

It's toasted. This one extra process gives a delightful quality that can not be duplicated

SILVERTOWN SCHOOL BEGINS MONDAY

Silvertown Public School opens September 11th. Let every patron of the school be present. We want to revive the Parents Teachers Association as a part of the opening exercises.

Text books with covers will be issued to pupils in the afternoon. The Board is furnishing book covers to the pupils at cost which is a small sum. Be sure to see that your children have a few cents with which to purchase covers. The books must be covered at time of issue. No books will be issued without it.

The attention of parents is especially called to the following—We, the teachers, in taking control of your children, feel deeply the responsibility. We desire to work with you for the best interest of your children.

You are cordially invited and urged—

To visit school—
To acquaint yourself with the children and teacher—

To have your children enrolled the first day of the term—

To have them attend regularly—

To send them on time—

To know they are in school—

To furnish written excuses in case of necessary tardiness, an avoidable absence, or urgent demand to come home during the school hours—

To encourage the children to make preparation on some part of their work at home—

To see that they have time and a suitable place for home study—

To sign report cards and state definitely the amount of home study—

To confer freely with Superintendent regarding the interest of your children.

Suggestions made in kindness will be gladly received, for we want to be of service to you.

—The Faculty.

DR. BROWN, DENTIST,
Will leave Silvertown, positively, on Sept. 17th.

To my supporters and friends who so loyally helped me and gave me their support in the last election I wish to express my thanks. If I can ever return the favors I shall be only too glad to do so. You have my heart felt gratitude.

Your friend,
Miner Crawford.

Mrs. A. F. Van Meter, J. M. Honea, C. D. Wright and W. S. Gregg of Quitaque, were business visitors here Monday.

D. H. Alexander has been appointed City Marshall to fill the place made vacant by the resignation of W. T. Diviney.

E. Ray Knight has returned home, coming in Monday. He had taken his wife to Temple but she was unable to undergo an operation, and will remain at Goldthwaite with his people until she is better. Miss Ruby Welch came with him and went on to Canyon to attend the Teachers Institute.

Avoid the Coming Coal Shortage By Using Kerosene for Fuel

THE OIL-KING BURNER

The Oil Burner that makes you forget your heating troubles. It is so different from others—yet so simple that you wonder at it.

Four outstanding points of the King Oil Burner
EFFICIENCY, DURABILITY, SIMPLICITY,
E C O N O M Y

The Oil-King Burner

The only oil burner that has the combustion chamber on the outside of the stove.

Can be installed in any kind of stove or furnace.

The same temperature can be kept all day.

Fires can be instantly started and stove brought up to heating temperature quickly.

Why Use Oil?

It can be more easily handled than coal or wood.

It can be stored at a less cost, and does not deteriorate when stored.

It weighs one-half the amount of coal containing an equal amount of heat units and occupies one-third as much space.

Dirt, dust and ashes are eliminated when oil is burned.

You can buy oil any time you need it, in any quantity you want it.

There will be no shortage of oil.

The Oil-King Burner

The Oil-King Burner burns any kind of oil, convenient and clean, and will operate in any cook stove or heater. You do not have to generate the Oil-King Burner. It is impossible for it to explode or get out of order. It is impossible for the oil feed pipe to carbon as it does not come in contact with the heat.

Economical fuel consumption depends upon conditions—the Oil-King Burner meets them all.

Now is the time to install your Oil-King Burner, so that when the ice-laden winds sweep down from out of the north, you and your children may be protected.

The Guarantee

The Burner is guaranteed to be perfect as to workmanship and material, and that if properly installed it will give entire satisfaction.

You can always see the Oil-King Burner at the Star office, but we will keep it burning from 2 to 3 Saturday afternoon and want everybody to come and see for yourselves.

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Read the Result

Cincinnati, Ohio.—“I suffered for a year with nervous troubles and irregularities before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back pained all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out if I cooked a meal, and was unable to do my washing. My girl friends and my sister told me if I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle I felt better, and neglected it awhile, but found I could not do my work until I was stronger. So I took the Vegetable Compound again and now I am the mother of a 19 months old boy. He is fat and healthy and I am sure I could never have carried him if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend your medicine to all women although I am young to be advising some one older.”—Mrs. CHRIST. PETROFF, 318 W. Liberty St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains no harmful drugs and can be taken in safety by any woman.

PELICANS' WAYS
"I've been given permission to tell the story," said Master Brown Pelican.

"There's my cousin, Master White Pelican, and he'd like to tell it too, but the keeper said it was fair to let me tell it. I'm smaller and not quite so beautiful so I have been granted this favor."

"There have been so many silly rhymes made up about us. People don't half take us seriously enough. Now they're so apt to laugh the minute they see us," complained Master White Pelican.

"That is all very true," said Master Brown Pelican. "But still I would rather have rhymes made up about me even if they weren't very good than not to be noticed at all."

"And, dear me, I'd much rather people laughed when they saw me than to have them weep at the sight of me."

"Well," said Master White Pelican, "I suppose it is because of our great long bills or beaks that they laugh. They are very long."

"It is good to have them long," said Master Brown Pelican. "Besides it is well to be generous in things especially in our bills. That is well, indeed."

"Well, indeed," repeated Master White Pelican.

"Now, Master Brown Pelican," he added after a moment, "do tell your story of the ways of Pelicans."

"You know it all, Master White Pelican."

"Ah, yes," said Master White Pelican. "But I think the next best thing to talking about one's self is to listen to some one else talking about one. If I am not to talk about myself I look forward eagerly to hearing you talk about me—and about yourself, too," he added. "Do begin."

"Well, I will," said Master Brown Pelican. "And as you have allowed me to tell the story I will tell about you first."

"Kind of you, kind of you," said Master White Pelican.

"Well," said Master Brown Pelican, "I think it is fair that I should be allowed to tell the story because I'm smaller, but I don't believe in the smaller person always having everything their own way. The bigger creature has rights, too."

"You're a fair-minded pelican," said Master White Pelican.

"I'll begin this moment," said Master Brown Pelican. "In the first place my cousin, Master White Pelican, is one of the largest birds of this continent—and the continent has both South America and North America on it!"

"Master White Pelican has beautiful white feathers, as his name tells you—but he is not wrongly named—no, his name is excellent. It just describes him. He is as white as white can be and he is a pelican. His name, therefore, is perfect and fits him like a glove, as the saying goes."

"Or in other words, it's a name that just fits him! He has a golden-amber-colored beak or bill which is truly a magnificent one. You have a fine pouch as a pelican should have."

"They say that your family eats as much fish as the sea lions. In fact your family are even greater fish eaters than we are. We're good fish eaters, too. We're handsome, sociable, and enjoy zoo life immensely. It agrees with us and we like the care they take of us. We are at our best when we're full grown and then we're at the height of our good looks, too."

"Pelicans have fine pouches and we can hold the food there, too. It's like a private icebox of our own—only there is no ice in it, ha, ha. That's a good pelican joke."

"Yes," said Master White Pelican, "and all you have to say about pelicans is true. But let us continue talking another time, for here comes the keeper with our luncheon of fish."

STORIES from Here and There

Insane Man Under Siege for 13 Days

HINTON, W. VA.—John Fredeking, an insane man who barricaded himself in his house and for 13 days resisted the efforts of deputy sheriffs and state police to arrest him, after he had killed one man and wounded four others, appeared at the front door, threw up his hands, and asked for a drink of water.

Two troopers, who, with other officers, had resorted to every known means short of firing the house to dislodge Fredeking, stepped up to the door, got him the water he craved, and then led him to the county jail.

He refused to answer their questions and appeared to be dazed. Physicians were summoned from the Hinton hospital, where they had been treating the men wounded in the firing of the past days, and dressed a bullet wound in Fredeking's right arm and another injury in his right shoulder.

Exhaustion and wounds from the long siege caused Fredeking to surrender through relatives whom he summoned by telephone. After his wounds had been dressed he was taken to the county jail and preparations were made for returning him to the state hospital for the insane at Spencer.

City and county officials who sought to capture the young man were hampered by a ruling of the county judge that to kill him would bring about a charge of murder, and state police held themselves in reserve, but were in charge when the surrender was made.

At the time he killed the deputy who sought to take him to the hospital Fredeking also wounded his father, and since he retreated into the house he had wounded two of the men who attempted to capture him.

And Such Is the Life in Large Cities

CHICAGO.—Life in the big cities in the Twentieth century is getting pretty complicated. In proof, just listen to this tale—of which the end is not yet.

Evicted from a certain hotel by employees of the hostelry, M. Edward Simmons, well-known attorney, has filed suit for $25,000 damages against William J. Strohm, owner of the building. He alleges that as a result of the experience he "has become greatly agitated, nervous, low spirited, and ill, and has been unable to follow his profession."

According to the declaration in the suit, filed by Attorney Otto Baer, Simmons on July 3 was entertaining James R. Phillips, another attorney, and Mrs. Phillips in his rooms in the hotel.

Suddenly Strohm appeared in the doorway.

"What are you doing with that woman in here?" are the words attributed to Strohm. "Don't you know that we don't allow women in these rooms?"

Naturally Mr. Simmons was indignant. He explained that his visitors were man and wife. There certainly could be no objection to the presence of a woman accompanied by her husband, he maintained. But nothing he could say had any effect upon the irate Strohm.

Forced to precede Strohm into the crowded lobby and forcibly evicted from the hotel, Simmons declares that he "suffered greatly from humiliation, extreme chagrin, abasement and shame," not to speak of the inconvenience of seeking lodging with friends at a late hour of the night.

Woman Convict Makes Books for Blind

JOLIET, ILL.—Margaret Edwards, twenty-eight, known in Joliet penitentiary only by a prison number and serving an indeterminate sentence of from one to fourteen years for perjury, labors day after day in her spare hours, which are few, writing books in the Braille letter for the American Red Cross, so that ex-service men may glimpse the outside world which she once knew, but can now only visualize.

March 25, 1919, a bank at Edwardsville, Ill., was robbed of $18,000 by three safe-blowers. A car license led detectives to Margaret Edwards, in Chicago. She had fled and was arrested in Cleveland with Gus Zeidler and Robert McKeowan. They were identified, convicted and sentenced to Chester. Miss Edwards, though guiltless of participation in the robbery, swore at the trial that the men were in her apartment at the time.

The third man, Edward Clark, was not apprehended. His body, with the throat cut, was found floating down the Merrimac river near St. Louis. Miss Edwards collapsed when the body was found. She had been known as Mrs. Clark to all her friends.

Red Cross workers, visiting the penitentiary, found that Miss Edwards was an adept nurse. They taught her the rudiments of the Braille system, in which she soon surpassed, going immediately into more difficult work. Soon she had a book completed. This was recently bound by the Library of Congress and placed on its shelves, the officials until recently being unaware that the author was behind prison walls, her secret being kept by the Red Cross. Her book is now being used in the Evergreen hospital, Baltimore, the largest hospital for blind ex-service men in the East.

Efforts are being made to obtain a pardon for Margaret Edwards, according to Mrs. Lewis M. Brown, executive secretary of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross.

Another Business Woman Makes Good

NEW YORK.—Women are making good in business so often nowadays that their success is accepted as a matter of course. But Mrs. Edward Wyld is one of the most unusual big-business women in the country. Her business is the direction of the Elevator Supplies company of Hoboken, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis and San Francisco—surely a mammoth undertaking for even the most modern of women.

Mrs. Wyld assumed charge of the big corporation at her husband's death, and despite pessimistic predictions, she has not only maintained the plant up to former standards, but has increased business.

When asked how a woman suddenly left in charge of her husband's business could accomplish such results, Mrs. Wyld said:

"Some preparation for such a task is almost indispensable. There are few men who could go in and take charge of an active business and make an immediate success of it. I believe, however, that a woman of average intelligence who is given an opportunity of living in close harmony with an active man at the head of a large business can acquire, after long association with him, a familiarity and skill that will enable her to pick up the reins if suddenly called on.

"I would most strongly advise young girls who marry to go along with their husbands and try and advise them to start in their own business and be their own masters. The man who has his own business seizes the opportunities that good management and energy brings to him.

HE WHO SEEKS WILL FIND GOD'S TRUTH

"All TRUTH is God's truth whether its revelation comes to us through sacred writings or by the way of the Gospel, the test tube or the microscope." So declares the Rev. Stephens E. Fisher, president of the international convention of the Disciples of Christ. And the wires of the press associations carried the message to more people than ever heard the message of Christianity in its first thousand years.

That is a truth which deserves emphasis in this day and generation. All truth is God's truth and all that is not truth leads man away from God. There the line is drawn unmistakably. Truth is of God. Untruth denies Him and works against Him and His purpose.

Religiously, our fault is that we make God and His works and service things apart from our every day existence. We look upon the things of God as marvels unknown and unfathomable to the human mind. We make our religion an exercise for the Lord's day and fail to take it and make it permeate our daily lives.

We often declare we are not good enough to call ourselves followers of the Almighty and so we go our worldly way when we might contribute much from our lives to the bringing and the permanence of His kingdom on earth.

Religion is not an exercise for the Sabbath alone. It is not a cult of the pious or a thing impossible for the average man. It is life itself, lived more abundantly, life lived to a higher standard, life which is human but charged with the spirit of God. So it is well that we understand that the truths of God are not alone those which come from the thunders and lightnings of Sinai's peak and were graven upon the tables of stone by Moses. They are not alone those revealed through the Book of Books, made sacred from its holy origin, its noble content and the affection it has gained through generations of helpfulness. God has revealed His truth through the authors of those sacred books but His revelation did not begin and did not end there.

Before the first sacred writer put stylus or quill to tablet or parchment, before the Holy Books took form, God was, and His Revelation was in His creation—in earth and sea, and firmament of heaven, and in the hearts of the children of His love and care.

God's truth is in the Book, but it is in every stone that the Creator made from nothingness, made just as surely whether thru the process of an evolution or by fiat of His word.

God's truth is on the lips of holy men but it is just as truly in the tree and flower, in hill and valley and mountain and plain where He has set forth the eternity of His being, the steadfastness of His purposes, the love

He bears to every human creature and all the minutiae of His creation.

God's truth is in the profundity of philosophy the fathers of His church have set forth and it is also in the depth of His great oceans, rolling on endlessly thru time. It is in the hearts of devoted women and little children, and it is in the stars that shine through the vastness of illimitable space.

Either God is outside of His world and His universe or He is in it and revealing Himself in its wonders. It is unthinkable that God should set His world and His children adrift and that He ceased His interest in it millenniums ago.

God's truth is not dead, it did not cease with the last chapter of the book called Revelation. It is marching on with His world, touching and transforming the hearts of men. God's truth is a living truth.

Through the wise and holy men, through the sacred writings and the lore of the past, through the studies of modern men, carried on in His spirit, through the eyes of present day people, through test tube and microscope and the living book of the living world, God's truth is revealed today and will be revealed tomorrow and to the end to come.

This is God's world. The every day life of man should be guided by His spirit as much as the Sabbath life. God's truth is everywhere for him who wills to read and to live by. —Leonard Withington in Fort Worth Record.

YOUR FARM SHOULD CARRY FULL BLOODS

Full blood stock, raised in a practical way, taken care of in a common sense manner, is the salvation of Briscoe county.

Full blood stock eat no more than common stock or scrubs, and eat the same kind of feed.

Full blood stock costs very little more to raise than common stock.

Then why not raise full blood stock?

This country is adapted in a practical way for raising full blood stock. It is just cold enough in the winter to give them a strong constitution and a rugged nature. It is never hot enough in the summer to cause to languish and cease growing.

Because they bring much better prices than common stock, fewer need be raised, so better care can be taken of them.

A rooster that brings a dollar at three months of age is better to raise than a chicken that will bring only twenty-five cents.

A pig that brings $10.00 at weaning time is better to raise than one that brings only $3.50.

A calf that brings $60.00 fall delivery is better to raise than one that brings $20.00.

Then pray tell the Star why our farms are not stocked with thoroughbred, full blood stock?

BRISCOE COUNTY NEEDS MORE LIVE STOCK

More hogs, more cows, more poultry—that is what it is going to take in Briscoe County if the farmer is to get by.

This year has proved conclusively that the one-crop farmer is a failure.

There has been lots of wheat raised here, but nothing like in normal years, and not enough to sustain the county for a year.

Maize and kafir are being cut, but without live stock it will not bring the farmer wages.

Cotton will be gathered, but the haul to gin is going to take up much of the profit.

Money has been hard to lay hands on, but all over the county the farmers has a little cash that he has gotten from the sale of hogs, and he is buying the necessities of life with poultry, eggs, butter and cream.

Because of hogs and cows and poultry many families who would be almost in destitution if they were one crop farmers, are today getting along nicely, and the county is standing the dry spell wonderfully.

Furniture that is Necessary

It is my desire to keep on hand at all times a large assortment of Furniture of every kind and description.

But one thing I pride myself on is the fact that I keep Furniture that is an absolute necessity to the home.

Price Low

Quality High

In this line of Furniture I have carefully watched to get the highest quality possible. Fads of the hour have been overlooked, fancy designs that merely add to the looks and not to the durability have been discarded. But good, substantial Furniture that you will be proud of ten or fifteen years from now is what I have on my floors today

COMMENDATION

Happy, Texas,
8-29-22

Mr. Stanley Sigler,
Silverton, Texas.

Dear Mr. Sigler;

Inasmuch as two of the teachers, who are to teach in your school this coming school term, are two young people who are not only from our community but are members of my church. I feel that it is not only a duty but a privilege as well, to speak a few words to my friends at Silverton and to the patrons of the school, thru the columns of the Star, in their behalf. I refer to Mr. W. C. Woodburn and Miss Vollie Dison. I understand that Mr. Woodburn is to be your school principal. I shall be greatly surprised and even worse disappointed if he shall not measure up to your greatest expectations. I consider that he is equipped, physically, mentally and morally, for this responsible place. Mr. Woodburn is a good instructor. He is fine in athletics. He is not only a good man for the school but he is a valuable asset to any community. Socially he advocates worth-while things. He does good work with the people if given an opportunity. He will take his place in his part in the work of the school.

Miss Dison is one of the finest teachers I have ever known. She is well equipped. Her primary work a specialty. She is thoroughly devoted to her work and could not but succeed. She is a valuable asset to our community. Miss Dison will be found upholding the principles and opposing the wrongs of the community. She is a good church and Sunday school worker.

I do not allow me to say more than I would gladly say concerning these young people. I feel sure that I can recommend them to you to give you entire satisfaction as teachers. And not as teachers only but as valuable citizens in your community.

With best wishes to the people of Silverton High School, and wishing my young friends who are going there success, and with good will toward the Star,
I am
Yours truly,
B. W. Wilkins.

BIG BAPTIZING

Perhaps the largest baptizing ever witnessed in this community took place last Sunday, at Mrs. V. R. Bomar's place, when Revs. Fulgham and Dale baptized 43 converts, who proclaimed to the world that they have accepted Christ as a real, living personal Savior and expect to live the Christian life.

Quite a crowd was present but owing to the location of the tank and the determination of a few to crowd near, not many were able to witness the real act of baptizing.

You can get the celebrated Guaranteed Shumate Razor at Peoples Pharmacy.

He saw me. And, oh, how I did love the look that came to his face; it was so surprised and glad, and said, "Oh! You!" in such a perfectly lovely way that I choked all up and wanted to cry. (The idea—cry when I was so glad to see him!)

The next minute he had drawn me out of the line, and we were both talking at once, and telling each other how glad we were to see each other.

But he was looking for Mother—I know he was; for the next minute after he saw me, he looked right over my head at the woman back of me. And all the while he was talking with me, his eyes would look at me and then leap as swift as lightning first here, and then there, all over the hall. But he didn't see her, I knew he didn't see her, by the look on his face. And pretty quick I said I'd have to go. And then he said:

"Your mother—perhaps she didn't—did she come?" And his face grew all red and rosy as he asked the question. And I said yes, and she was waiting, and that was why I had to go back right away.

And he said, "Yes, yes, to be sure," and, "Go—by." But he still held my hand tight, and his eyes were still roving all over the house. And I had to tell him again that I really had to go; and I had to pull real determined at my hand, ere I could break away.

I went back to Mother then. The hall was almost empty, and she wasn't anywhere in sight at all; but I found her just outside the door. I knew then why Father's face showed that he hadn't found her. She wasn't there to find. I suspect she had looked out for that.

In the afternoon I went to walk with one of the girls; and when I came in I couldn't find Mother. She wasn't anywhere downstairs, nor in her room, nor mine, nor anywhere else on that floor. Aunt Hattie said no, she wasn't out, but that she was sure she didn't know where she was. She must be somewhere in the house.

I went upstairs then, another flight. There wasn't anywhere else to go, and Mother must be somewhere, of course. And it seemed suddenly to me as if I'd just got to find her. I wanted her so.

And I found her. In the little back room where Aunt Hattie keeps her trunks and mothball bags, Mother was on the floor in the corner crying. And when I exclaimed out and ran over to her, I found she was sitting beside an old trunk that was open; and across her lap was a perfectly lovely pale-blue satin dress all trimmed with silver lace that had grown black. And Mother was crying and crying as if her heart would break.

Of course, I tried and tried to stop her, and I begged her to tell me what was the matter. But I couldn't do a thing, not a thing, not for a long time. Then I happened to say what a lovely dress, only what a pity it was that the lace was all black.

She said yes, it was all black—tarnished; and that it was just like everything that she had had anything to do with—tarnished; her life and her marriage, and Father's life, and mine—everything was tarnished, just like that silver lace on that dress. And she had done it by her thoughtless selfishness and lack of self-discipline.

And when I tried and tried to tell her no, it wasn't, and that I didn't feel tarnished a bit, and that she wasn't, nor Father either, she only cried all the more, and shook her head and began again, all choked up.

She said this little dress was the one she wore at the big reception where she first met Father. And she was so proud and happy when Father—and he was fine and splendid and handsome then, too, she said—singled her out, and just couldn't seem to stay away from her a minute all the evening. And then four days later he asked her to marry him; and she was still more proud and happy.

And she said their married life, when they started out, was just like that beautiful dress, all shining and spotless and perfect; but that it wasn't two months before a little bit of tarnish appeared, and then another and another.

She said things went on worse and worse—and it was all her fault. She grew sour and cross and disagreeable.

She could see now that she did. But she didn't realize at all then what she was doing. She was just thinking of herself—always herself; her rights, her wrongs, her hurt feelings, her wants and wishes. She never once thought that he had rights and wrongs and hurt feelings, maybe.

She said a lot more—oh, ever so much more; but I can't remember it all. I know that she went on to say that by and by the tarnish began to dim the brightness of my life, too; and that was the worst of all, she said—that innocent children should suffer, and their young lives be spoiled by the kind of living I'd had to have, with this wretched makeshift of a divided home. She began to cry again then, and begged me to forgive her; and I cried and tried to tell her I didn't mind it; but, of course, I'm older now, and I know I do mind it, though I'm trying just as hard as I can not to be Mary when I ought to be Marie, or Marie when I ought to be Mary. Only I get all mixed up so, lately, and I said so, and I guess I cried some more.

Mother jumped up then, and said, "Tut, tut," what was she thinking of to talk like this when it couldn't do a bit of good, but only made matters worse. And she said that only went to prove how she was still keeping on tarnishing my happiness and bringing tears to my bright eyes, when certainly nothing of the whole wretched business was my fault.

She thrust the dress back into the trunk then, and shut the lid. And she began to talk and laugh and tell stories, and be gayer and jollier than I'd seen her for ever so long. And she was that way at dinner, too, until Grandfather happened to mention the reception tomorrow night, and ask if she was going.

She flushed up red then, oh, so red! and said, "Certainly not." Then she added quick, with a funny little drawing-in of her breath, that she should let Marie go, though, with her Aunt Hattie. It was the only chance Father would have to see me, and she didn't feel that she had any right to deprive him of that privilege, and she didn't think it would do me any harm to be out this once late in the evening. And she intended to let me go.

TWO DAYS LATER

Well, now I guess something's doing all right! And my hand is shaking so I can hardly write—it wants to get ahead so fast and tell. But I'm going to keep it sternly back and tell it just as it happened, and not begin at the ice cream instead of the soup.

At the reception I saw Father right away, but he didn't see me for a long time. He stood in a corner, and lots of folks came up and spoke to him and shook hands; and he bowed and smiled—but in between, when there wasn't anybody noticing, he looked so tired and bored. After a time he stirred and changed his position, and I think he was hunting for a chance to get away, when all of a sudden his eyes, roving around the room, lighted on me.

My! but just didn't I love the way he came through that crowd, straight toward me, without paying one bit of attention to the folks that tried to stop him on the way. And when he got to me, he looked so glad to see me, only there was the same quick searching with his eyes, beyond and around me, as if he was looking for somebody else, just as he had done the morning of the lecture. And I knew it was Mother, of course. So I said:

"No, she didn't come."
"So I see," he answered. And there was such a hurt, sorry look away back in his eyes. But right away he smiled, and said: "But you came! I've got you."

Then he began to talk and tell stories, just as if I was a young lady to be entertained. And he took me over to where they had things to eat, and just heaped my plate with chicken patties and sandwiches and olives and pink-and-white frosted cake and ice cream (not all at once, of course, but in order.) And I had a perfectly beautiful time. And Father seemed to like it pretty well. But after a while he grew sober again, and his eyes began to rove all around the room.

He took me to a little seat in the corner afterward, and we sat down and began to talk—only Father didn't talk much. He just listened to what I said, and his eyes grew deeper and darker and sadder, and they didn't rove around so much, after a time, but just stared fixedly at nothing, away out across the room. By and by he stirred and drew a long sigh, and said, almost under his breath:

"It was just such another night as this."

And of course, I asked what was—and then I knew, almost before he had told me.

"That I first saw your mother, my dear."

"Oh, yes, I know!" I cried, eager to tell him that I did know. "And she must have looked lovely in that perfectly beautiful blue silk dress all silver lace."

He turned and stared at me. "How did you know that?" he demanded.

"I saw it."

"You saw it?"

"Yesterday, yes—the dress," I nodded.

"But how could you?" he asked, frowning, and looking so surprised.

"Why, that dress must be—seventeen years old, or more."

I nodded again, and I suppose I did look pleased; it's such fun to have a secret, you know, and watch folks guess and wonder. And I kept him guessing and wondering for quite a while. Then, of course, I told him that it was upstairs in Grandfather's trunk room; that Mother had got it out, and I saw it.

"But, what—was your mother doing with that dress?" he asked then, looking even more puzzled and mystified.

And then suddenly I thought and remembered it at Mother was crying. And, of course, she wouldn't want Father to know she was crying over it—that dress she had worn when he first met her long ago! (I don't think women ever want men to know such things, do you? I know I shouldn't!) So I didn't tell. Father had begun to talk again, softly, as if to himself.

"I suppose tonight, seeing you, and all this, brought it back to me so vividly." Then he turned and looked at me. "You are very like your mother tonight, dear."

"I suppose I am, maybe, when I'm Marie," I nodded.

He laughed with his lips, but his eyes didn't laugh one bit as he said:

"What a quaint little fancy of yours that is, child—as if you were two in one."

"But I am two in one," I declared.

"That's why I'm a cross-current and a contradiction, you know," I explained.

"A what?" he demanded.

"A cross-current and a contradiction," I explained once more. "Children of unlikes, you know. Nurse Sarah told me that long ago. Didn't you ever hear that—that a child of unlikes was a cross-current and a contradiction?"

"Well, no—I—hadn't," answered Father. In a queer, half-smothered voice "I suppose, Mary, we were—unlikes your mother and I. That's just what we were; though I never thought of it before, in just that way."

He waited, then went on, still half to himself, his eyes on the dancers:

"She loved things like this—music laughter, gaiety. I abhorred them. I remember how bored I was that night here—till I saw her."

"And did you fall in love with her right away?" I just couldn't help asking that question. Oh, I do so adore love stories!

A queer little smile came to Father's lips.

"Well, yes, I think I did, Mary. I just looked at her once—and then kept on looking till it seemed as if I just couldn't take my eyes off her. And after a little her glance met mine—and the whole thing melted away and there wasn't another soul in the room but just us two. Then she looked away, and the throng came back. But I still looked at her."

FRUITS AND OTHER DISHES

Pears in Grape Juice.—Boil together two quarts of grape juice and two pounds of sugar until thick; it will be reduced by half by this time; add enough fine pears, pared, cored and cut in quarters to fill the kettle, and are barely covered with the sirup. Continue cooking until the pears are perfectly soft and the whole mixture is reduced in bulk. Fill into sterile jars, put on lids without clamping and place on paper on a rack in a baking pan. Allow them to remain in hot oven until the oven is cooled off. Then tighten the jars and store for winter use.

Orange and Raspberry Nectar.—Squeeze the juice from six oranges, mix with the pressed-out juice from a pint of canned raspberries. Add one cupful of sugar, dissolve over heat, but do not allow the mixture to become hot. Grate the yellow rind of one-half of the orange skins and cook in a pint of water, boiling for a few minutes. Strain, cool and add the fruit juice. When cold set into the ice chest. Dilute with equal volume of iced water. Fill tall glasses and add ginger ale to each. Garnish with a few fresh berries if at hand.

Hungarian Roast Beef.—Select a five-pound rib roast. Have the bones removed and the roast rolled. Wipe well with a damp cloth. Place a layer of suet in a baking pan with two slices of onion. Place the roast on these after dredging well with flour. Cover the top of the meat with sliced onion. Place three or four slices of bacon on top and place in the oven, adding a tablespoonful of hot water. Baste from the fat in the pan every 15 minutes. Roast 20 minutes to the pound.

Peach Sauce for Ice Cream.—Peel and crush very ripe peaches, put them through a sieve to be sure they are fine, then add an equal amount of sugar. Seal in cans and keep in a cool place.

"The person who spends most of his time grumbling is a self-confessed failure. If things are always wrong with you it is your fault. Don't waste time and energy in proclaiming the facts. Put them right."

A COLLECTION OF GOOD CAKES

A good cake of whatever kind is a culinary achievement. If a sponge cake, it should be light, tender of texture and fine of grain; if a butter cake, the grain is finer, the texture more tender and the whole well baked. Baking is as important as the mixing; a failure in either will ruin the best of materials.

Crumb Cake.—Take two and one-half cupfuls of flour, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Add one teaspoonful each of cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves; when well mixed take out a cupful of the flour mixture, and to the remainder add two well-beaten eggs, one cupful of sour milk and one teaspoonful of soda. Beat well and put into a deep tin to bake. Sprinkle the reserved cupful over the top and bake in a moderate oven.

Nut Cake.—Take a pound of butter, soften by beat until creamy but not melted, add one and one-half pounds of light brown sugar, ten whole eggs, one pound each of flour and raisins, one-fourth of a pound of citron cut in strips, one pound of nut meats, one grated nutmeg and one-half glass of orange juice. Mix and bake as usual.

Maple Nougat Filling.—Boil two cupfuls of maple sugar and one-half cupful of cream until waxy when dropped in water. Take at once from the heat, stir until cool, add a half cupful of chopped nuts and flavor to taste. This is delicious poured hot over ice cream.

Loaf Cake.—Take two and one-half cupfuls of powdered sugar, one cupful of butter, cream well; add the beaten yolks of five eggs and three-fourths of a cupful of milk and one-fourth of a cupful of water, added alternately with four cupfuls of flour sifted with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder; add a teaspoonful of vanilla and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a moderate oven.

Stomach Trouble Had Him Nearly Past Going, Declares Mowrer.

"Tanlac has helped me to gain ten pounds," said J. E. Mowrer, 157 Park St., Akron, O., well-known railroad man.

"My stomach was in such bad fix that for several days at a time I could hardly retain any food. I had no appetite and often the very sight of food made me sick. I was intensely nervous, too, could not rest at night, felt tired and worn out all the time, and lost weight and strength until I was almost a wreck.

"Tanlac has made me feel like a different man. My appetite is enormous and I haven't a sign of indigestion left. I never felt stronger. Tanlac certainly does the work."

Which Only Aggravate Constipation

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it. Try it today.

WONDERFUL MEETING AT QUITAQUE

We have just received a letter from Rev. J. O. Tidwell, pastor of the Baptist church at Quitaque, stating that they have just closed a wonderful eight day revival meeting. There were a great many conversions, 57 additions to the Baptist church, 34 by baptism, all in the water at once. All of the Quitaque community had a wonderful time.

We are glad to have news of any of the Quitaque churches at any time and all times.

We understand that Chas. C. Garrison, County Sheriff-elect gives the following inventory of his campaign:

"I lost four months and twenty-three days canvassing; lost one thousand and thirteen hours of sleep thinking about the election; lost 23 acres of corn and my entire sweet potato crop; donated $111 to church and Red Cross work; gave away 2 pairs of pants, 3 gingham dresses and 13 baby rattlers; kissed 123 babies; kindled 100 kitchen fires; helped take down 10 stoves; washed dishes nine times; carried a dozen buckets of coal; carried 24 buckets of water; headed 100 a cres of muzz; walked 920 miles; shook hands 9083 times; told 141 lies and talked enough to make in print 930 volumes as big as a patent office report; contributed $40 to foreign missions; made love to a couple of widows; got dog bit 29 times but won the race.

A CHANCE TO MAKE A CHANGE

How would you like to have a nice herd of cattle and land to run them on in a country where they go all winter without being fed, where the water is unlimited and the climate is ideal all the year?

I have a 1200 acre ranch in an Arizona valley that answers this description. There is a good 5-room house with verandas on each side and plastered inside. There is a big windmill and a concrete tank 3x70x70 feet. Good little orchard and garden. All the grass needed every month in the year. In a valley as smooth as the plains We want to trade it for farming land on the plains and will include the stock, about 200 head of good cattle. Adjoining land be leased from the state at almost nothing. If you are interested come in and let me tell you more about it. Will trade for section or half section.
