Silverton, Briscoe County, Texas, Friday, March 30 1923.

No. 18.

Fully one thousand people attended Silverton's first big Bargain and Trades Day which was held here last Saturday. Visitors regis tired of your job before it is all tered at a car parked conveniently and the actual number register. over with. There sin't nothin' ed as reported by Shot Allard was 976. This gives a very close there for you, check on the number who were in Silverton on that day for very few visitors failed to register for the free prizes.

The drawing was held about five o'clock, Miss Iris Crawford more neighbors than on the drawing the numbers from the hat. Mr. J. N. Smithee, of Floydada won the first prize of $15, Mrs. E. R. Knight, of Silverton the second prize of $10 and Miss Callie Metchem third prize of five dollars.

C. J. Witherspoon auctioned off quite a variety of goods at the southwest corner of the courthouse square at suprisingly good prices.

Every store in town was filled to overflowing and merchants report a record business and there seems to be no question but that Bargain and Sales day will be a regular monthly feature in Silverton.

BUBBLES, APRIL 5th.

A letter to Mr. Gross is self explanatory.

We are very happy to announce that our play company will appear for you on Thursday, April 5th.

You will note from the advertising we are sending that the players are playing "The Bubble" a New York success, rather than Peg O' My Heart, which we found had been played by another Lyceum bureau, through a part of the territory. "The Bubble" is a newer play than Peg O' My Heart, a three act comedy, one which makes good in the big city and the small town equally well. The players are professional people, and the performance will be exceptionally pleasing.

It's a great comedy and you will laugh until your sides acha. Cadmean Lyceum Assn.

DICKERSON-HEFNER

Norval T. Dickerson and Miss Opal E Hefner were married here at the Methodist parsonage l'hursday afternoon at six o'clock by the Rev. Jenkins. They will make their home in the Pete Patton house in the northeast part of town. Only a few relatives and friends were present at the ceremony. Among them, Mr. and Mrs. Wells McClendon, Mrs. E.C. Dickerson, Mrs. C. L. Dickerson, Floydada during the past few Mrs. H. A. Simmons and Messers Ernest and Rex Dickerson.

The groom has for sometime been in the employ of the Peoples Pharmacy but is now one of the of the Star force. The bride is a most estimable girl who has for sometime been employed in the postoffice here. It is announced that she will retain her position for the present.

The Star joins the host of friends of the happy young couple in extending to them the best of wishes for many years of matrimonial bliss.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Crawford left Monday for a few days visit with relatives at Matador.

EASTER SUNDAY

Sunday is Easter. The day which comemorates the Resurrection. The day in church history from which all other church festivals are dated, but a day which in recent years has degenerated into a display of Eas-ter bonnets and spring suits. The day which makes the milliners glad and the hearts of the Papa's with the pocketbook extremely sad.

Easter is a movable feast occurring on any date between March 21 and April 25. It is held about the same time as the Jewish Passover. In the Roman Catholic church it is a season of rejoicing on the removal of Lenten restrictions, The Councils of 314 and 325 decreed that Easter should fall on the 14th day of the March moon but the Gregorian calendar in 1582 fixed it on the first Sunday after the full moon immediately following the 21st of March.

In any event, whether actuated by religious sentiment, curiosity, a desire to display your new frills, feathers and furbelows or a desire to hear good music and excellent sermons, it will pay you to go to church Sunday.

Baby Woke Up Crying With Pain at Night

"When my last baby was five months old," writes Mrs. J. B. Lightner, Route 3, New Brockton, Ala., "I had to give her the bottle. The change brought on bowel trouble. One night she woke up crying piteously with pain, and I just couldn't quiet her. When morning came, I sent for Teethina and gave her some that day and the next, and in a short time she was all right and is doing fine now."

CHAPTER VI -10-The Vault in the Woods.

We found Currie waiting for us in one of his large cars, with his chauffeur. There were few cars on the road, and in a very short time we arrived in Saratoga. We left the car before one of the hotels and followed Bartley to the public library. Bartley spent several moments glancing through the card catalogue before he crossed to the loan desk, and asked the pretty young librarian for "Griffeth's Mysterles of Crimes." She returned in a moment with two volumes, bound in red cloth. Bartley opened one to the place where the date when a book is taken out is stamped. There was only one date on the white slip, and Bartley copied so suddenly out of the shadowy dark- ley. it in his notebook. Then, turning to ness ahead of us that we almost fell the librarian, he asked her how they had happened to buy the book, and if she knew who it was that had little darker than the night, we made and fastened securely by a large lock. taken it from the library the one time it had gone out.

As soon as we were again on the street, he told us that so far as he knew the only account of the Edling- driven that truck over it without ham burgiary, other than the one in lights. the rare pamphlet that he owned, had been published in the volumes he had been glancing at. Currie, of course, did not understand what he was talk- ly moving car. For the faintest part ing about; and Bartley gave him the details of the English crime, and ended by saying that, from the very first it had been his opinion that whoever had faked the burglary at Slyke's had read the account of the English crime. Then, with a little rueful smile, he added that the one person who had taken the book from the library was Slyke's chauffeur.

He might have said more had we not reached Currie's club just then. We sat and talked until about eleven o'clock; then we started to walk

As we were leaving the club, we met a young man whom Currie introduced to us as Captain Lowe, commander of the local branch of the state police. As he was going in our direction, we fell into step together; and he told us of his work and how the state troopers had reduced crime so much that farmers' wives now had a sense of security, even in the most remote country districts. The greatest trouble they had at present, he told us with a laugh, was with the smuggling of whisky, not only into Saratoga but even as far as Albany and Troy. Though they knew that a good deal of whisky was getting through, they could not discover who was running it. At the barracks he bade us goodnight.

As we passed the driveway that led into the Slyke grounds, Currie told us that it ran through nearly a mile of otherwise unburt.

"There is no license plate on the car. There's something wrong there. Come along!"

As the truck, lurching from side to side, was not going faster than three miles an hour, we had no difficulty in keeping up with it. We had followed it for perhaps five minutes when it came out suddenly onto the road that Currie said led to Slyke's house. Here it paused, the motor running softly. We crept closer and heard a voice say, "Well, Jim, here's to luck. We will make a run of it."

Just at this moment Currie tripped over a root. He tried to save himself, grabbed at my arm, missed, and went to the ground with a loud crash, As he fell, Bartley jerked me to one side and threw me on my face. The sound of Currie's fall was like a young earthquake, and did not escape those on the truck. As I went down I saw one of the men turn and fire. The next second, gaining speed with every foot, the truck shot down the road.

With the truck gone we no longer needed to hide; we rose and rushed to Currie to see if he were shot. As Bartley's light flashed over him, we. discovered that he was sitting up, and swearing to himself. His face was covered with dirt and one eye was beginning to turn black, but he was good thing they missed you. Those men on top of the boxes were there to protect them. I wonder what was in them."

Bartley was anxious to learn what that truck was doing in the woods, and why the men on it were so determined that no one should know what they were carrying, that they were willing to fire upon anyone who interfered. As we followed the tracks with the aid of Bartley's pocket torch, we saw that the wheels had sunk a they stretch for some miles without foot into the sod in places, and that more than one heavily loaded truck

Bartley examined the four sides of the clearing carefully before he came back to us and said, in a voice that sounded strange in the darkness, "The road ends here. I have an idea that this is where they got their load."

Currie had been peering through the darkness as the flashes of Bartley's light shot between the trees. "I ning a few feet, then stopping, as it have a fool idea, John," he said slow-

"You do?" came the eager response. "Yes. What do you say to going and Several years ago Slyke showed me the place. We had the devil of a time reaching it, for there was no path to it. All there is left of it is an old vault and haif a dozen stumbling tombstones."

I was unable to see Barticy's face, but his voice was eager.

"A vault! What kind?" he asked. "Why," replied Currie, "just a vault. One of those things dug into the side of a hill where dead bodies With a caution from Bartley not to are placed. If I am right, there is a make any noise, we left the road and small hill only a few yards from

With a thir piece of wire and a bit of steel. Bartley picked the lock, then flung the door open and turned his flashlight into the darkness within, I think that Currie and myself both held our breath as the light swept back and forth over the walls and floor. It disclosed nothing more startling than a number of boxes, similar to those we had seen on the truck, piled one on the other against the walls. It was plain enough where the load had been gotten. Bartley led the way in and closed the door behind us. Once more he swept the vault with his torch, and this time we noticed a lantern on a box and lit it, The vault was about twenty-five feet long and had been dug into the side of the hill, but the sides and roof were of stone. Along the walls were niches for coffins, and these were piled high, and the floor as well, with hundreds of small boxes. The flame of the lantern flickered in a draft and queer shadows danced on the walls, while a musty, earthy smell rose half chokingly. It was not the most pleasant place to be in.

But Bartley did not seem .o mind it. He stood in the center of the floor, glancing around the vault with such an amused smile that I new that something had pleased him particularly. Suddenly he went to the nearest box, ripped off the cover, and drew out a bottle. We crowded around him as he removed the paper and dis-closed the label of a well-known brand of imported whisky.

"Plat's what I expected," Bartley commented. "We know now what was on that truck. Captain Lowe won't have to hunt any longer for the place where they hide smuggled whisky,"

Currie cried, "Why, it's Slyke's chauffeur!"

AFTER THE FLU

If the Flu Left You Weak, or You're in Need of a Tonic to Build You Up, Take This Advice

Houston, Texas-"I was in a terribly run-down condition of health after a siege of ptomaine poisoning, and then the influenza. I could not seem to regain my strength and was really not able to do my housework. I knew I needed a good tonic and builder and remembered how my folks used to regard Dr. Pierce's remediin my girlhood days, and then I decided to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. After taking the second bottle I found it was doing me a world of good, strength returned rapidly and I felt better in every way. I am glad indeed to recommend the medicine that did me so much good and do not hesitate to give this statement."—Mrs. Gertrude Sell, 1236 Rutland St.

LOOK OUT GIRLS

That the Star was somewhat mistaken in a recent editorial which stated that there was no ill felling in Quitaque for the cour. ty seat is evidenced by the following communication and Silverton eligables among the gentler sex are warned that their affections must be confined to the plains or they will be deemed disloyal and the boys are advised to throw out a line of Sentries toward Q aque. That city lost two of it's most beautiful and attractive girls recently when Hattie Thurmond and Avis Saunders married Silverton boys and the following communication indicates that reprisals are threatened.

The Star. Gentlemen: Having read with interest your rece editorial concerning the feleing existing between the sister cities of Briscoe county, we are moved to say that the good feeling Silverton expresses for us is reciprocated BUT, we have something yet against you; Your youths make bold to visit our fair city, woe, win and carry away our fair daughters, our population is threatened and our citizens alarmed and incensed. This matter was fully discussed at a recent mass meeting and ways and means considered Many of the younger men were in favor of building a stone wall around the city in order to safeguard our population from the de signs of the youths from the city of the Staked Plains. FOR SUMMER WEAR

With Large Figures.

Cotton Crepes Available in Many Weaves and Weights in Wonderful Range of Shades.

If you would choose your summer frocks early this is the way the wind of fashion blows.

Ratine is the fabric is the word that goes forth in regard to the frocks of spring, that is, of course, in the way of cotton fabrics. Ratine was immensely popular last year, but it scarce dreamed how many frocks it should make this season. The new patterns are fascinating. There are solid colors, with large block figures interspersed at intervals, all-over check and corded patterns, ratines with a border in checkerboard effect, and, new this season, ratines with a drop-stitch or openwork check and stripe.

And next to ratine, says fashlon, there are the cotton crepes. Nor is the cotton crepe which goes by the name at present anything like it used to be. There are as many weights and weaves as there are of silk crepes, which come in a wonderful range of solid colors. One of the smartest of these heavier crepes is of English weave, with an open-work lace stripe about three-quarters of an inch wide at fourinch intervals. Another rather heavy new crepe has a weave almost like

A silk and cotton pebbly crepe, with an almost invisible stripe weave would make very smart tailored cotton frocks. Then there is a cotton canton crepe which is very popular. It is shown in a big range of solid colors. A rather coarsely woven pebbly crepe, almost as heavy as ratine is 40 inches wide,

As for the sheer imported crepes in delicate pastel colorings-well, volle, it is said, has a wonderfully big season after several years of comparative unpopularity-but it has a dangerous rival in those sheer crepes with shadow check and cross-bar and stripe designs, but one may buy imported voiles and cotton crepes strewn all over with embroldered designs,

The popularity of the printed fabric is absolute for spring, a fact borne out by reviews of lines of all descriptions. Blouses, dresses and three-piece costumes all take advantage of the many possibilities offered by the printed surfaces and employ them to the best advantage.

The plain fabrics are not neglected, however, for in many instances they are brought into play through combinations with the printed numbers. Three-piece suits for summer wear show blouses of a plain material, while the jacket and skirt choose a printed crepe. In some instances the order is reversed, but in any event the utmost that the fabrics offer is appreciated.

Beads in Small Sizes.

China beads in the smallest sizes are favored in the embroideries chosen to decorate the printed fabric frocks of more elaborate design. Both the flower and other decorative outlines that are modish in the prints show evidence of bead enhancement. while the use of borders consisting of a series of straight lines in vari-colored effects is also noteworthy.

Vogue for Egyptian,

The vogue for Egyptian ornaments, though widely spread all winter, has been given a new impetus by the excavations along the Nile. A headdress designed from that found in the tomb of an Egyptian princess is now being worn with draped evening gowns. The headdress covers the whole head and has long tassels over the ears.

COMMUNIST INSULTS PREMIER OF FRANCE

WILD DISORDER IN FRENCH CHAMBER OVER ALLEGA-TION AGAINST HIM

PREMIER PASSES THE LIE

Accuse the Premier of Being the Tool of Deputy Leon Daubet, a Royalist.

Paris,-Insults were hurled and fist fights narrowly avertel when Premier Rayfond Poincaire and Deputy Andre Berthon, a Communist, clashed in the Chamber of Deputies concerning credits for the Ruhr occupation.

Shouting "Liar!", "Traitor!" and "Blackguard!" the Premier and the radical Deputy surged toward one another, faces white with anger and fists clenched.

While they were closely engaged Poincare and several of his friends declared they overheard Berthon accuse the Premier of being the Royalist, and the owner of the newspaper L'Action Française.

"You're Daubet's prisoner." care said Berthon told him. "I do not know what blackmail he exercises over you. Deputy Daudet prepared documents against you and your family.

Most of the Deputies were close enough to Poincare and Berthon to hear what the latter was reported as having said, but the Premier shouted.

"He dared to say he had against me abominable evidence which feared would be published. He lied."

Friends of Poincare sprang to their feet, moving menacingly against the Communists in the chamber who kept their seats. Amid tumult, Berthon shrieked,

"I did not say it!" "You lie!" yelled M. Maginot, the Minister of War. Previous to this, turier, another Communist, made the charge that Poincare was responsible for the assassination of French officers in the Ruhr. Poincare in reply declared he was preparing to prosecute the Communists for their traitorous action in the Ruhr.
