Obituary.

Lair—Sister Bettie Lair, wife of Judge J. C. Lair, was born in Grayson Co., Texas, April 13, 1854, died at her home in Canyon City, August 13, 1901, professed faith in Christ at the age of 16 while attending school at Landonia, Texas and soon after united with the Baptist church in which she remained a faithful member up to her death. She was married to brother Lair February 4, 1875. They moved to this county in 1892 and have resided here ever since. To them were born eleven children eight of whom are still living. She died fully trusting the Lord Jesus, the One to whom she had given her heart years ago, and had served with joy. Her only regret was that she had not served him better. A few hours before her death she was uttering words to her family that will never be forgotten.

As a wife she was affectionate and true; as a mother, tender, thoughtful and kind; as a friend, all that one could ask; as a worker for her master, it can be truthfully said that "She hath done what she could." She leaves a broken-hearted husband, eight children, a mother, one sister, four brothers and a host of friends to mourn her loss.

Let me say to the bereaved ones, weep not as those who have no hope, for though she is gone from us, we know that she yet liveth. She is with the Lord she loved so well, waiting for our coming. Let us strive to be ready to meet her and pray that she may have an undivided family in Heaven. Her Pastor,

They are "a thing of beauty" and "would be a joy forever" to any cultured friend in the East, as even imitations are now being extensively used in art decorations for fine rugs, wall covers and lounge robes. It is not generally known that Smith, Walker & Company buy their stock direct from the Navajoe Indian agent, consequently handle none but the genuine hand made blankets. 23

A good town is known by the character of its schools and churches. A good live school with the hearty support of the people and well-filled churches on Sunday speak in thunder tones of the character of the people. We have a good school building and one of the ablest instructors in the west for a principal, with tried assistants, to make our school rank with the first, anywhere, three resident ministers and one coming once a month, each earnest, devoted and zealous in upbuilding the moral and spiritual side of the community and a set of officials who are determined to keep a clean town, all combine to make Canyon City an ideal home for people who have children to educate.

It is said that Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is the hot stuff, but what has that to do with Harter, the blacksmith, doing that job of blacksmithing you have been needing done so long. He is the hot stuff, himself on all kinds of blacksmith work. 23

Remember the Texas Fair Association at Quanah, Sept. 3, 4, 5 and 6. $5,000 in premiums. Four days races and four races daily. A sham battle between red men, cow boys and soldiers. Fine stock show, public sale of fine cattle, gentlemen and ladies riding contest. This town knows how to do such things right. Reduced rates on all railroads.

Mr. Joe Sherman and wife, of Lubbock, passed through town this week enroute to their home after a visit east. Mrs. Sherman says she was delighted to get back on the Plains and saw no home she would trade hers for.

School Notes.

The Canyon City public school will open Sep. 2nd at 9 o'clock. As many of the pupils as can should enroll the first day and commence with the first lesson. Some think it does not pay to start into school the first day or the first week. Every day or week missed from school is so much lost. It is true, a pupil can enter school at any date and accomplish something, but not what he would should be present all the time.

As some will not have their books and not know what to buy before entering, we thought it would be best for the school to have a forenoon session only, on Monday. Students should be careful and not buy the wrong books. Those that do not know what grade they are in should wait till they are properly classified. A whole year's work may be lost by not being in the right grade. The forenoon will be spent mostly in organizing and in assigning lessons. The afternoon will be reserved for examining and classifying such students as were not classified in the forenoon.

Those that were promoted last year at the close of school, will commence in the grade to which they were assigned without any further examination. All others should wait to be examined before entering a grade.

Kansas City Stock Market

During the past week Eugene Rust, traffic manager for the Kansas City Stock Yards company, made a sort county canvas of the corn growing portion of Kansas and returned highly elated with the wonderfully improved conditions of the country through which he passed. Mr. Rust is a close observer and made, not merely a precursory examination of corn and forage fields, but went into them and was surprised and delighted to find what were supposed to be nubbins to be developing into full ears of corn; such forage stands as not even the most sanguine and optimistic observers anticipated a few weeks ago, and such unlivened and growing pastures as to seem almost beyond belief. "All effects of the recent drouth have been eradicated," said Mr. Rust, "and the Kansas farmer is cheerful and confident that the immediate future has nothing but good in store for him."

The story of the week's cattle trade is soon told as fluctuations were slight and left closing prices about where they were at the close of the preceding week. Fat cattle declined during the first half of the week but a diminished supply beginning with stimulated prices sufficiently to about regain their lost prestige. There were some good cattle offered but nothing of sufficient weight and quality to realize over 5.75. The difference, however, between that price and the 5.90 and 6.00 sales of the week before does not indicate shrinkage in value to that extent. Fed cows and heifers sold well all week, choice cows having sold at 3.50 to 4.25; fair to good at 2.50 to 2.90 and canners at 1.50 to 2.40. Prime heifers sold up to 5.05 and mixed steers and heifers up to 5.35 while fair to good lots brought 3.50 to 4.50.

The stocker and feeder movement was active at steady prices and about 12,000 head went to the country. Receipts were lighter than during the previous week but about sufficient for the demands at prevailing prices. Aside from some 400 or 500 bound calves that sold up to 4.25, nothing sold above 4.00, the general range having been confined between the 3.00 and 4.00 points.

Southern cattle receipts amounted to about 9000 cattle and 2700 calves against 12,000 cattle and 2,400 calves for the preceding week. There was no noticeable change in the range of prices as compared with the week before but the undertone to the market was better and sales were made with a less show of prostration and humility upon the part of the salesmen, some of them even daring to be familiar with the autocratic buyers. The general run of steers were of the $3.25 to $3.75 quality though there was a "right smart" sprinkling of 700 to 800 pound lots that sold at $2.75 to $3.25. Cows changed hands at $2.40 to $2.90, about the same as during the week before. The best top for some months was realized on Southern fed cattle when a load of 18 months old baby beeves averaging 1089 pounds were taken at $5.20. The consignment consisted of 27 steers and 2 heifers which had been raised and fed by John McGrath of Stevens, I. T. They had run as calves with their mothers until last fall when Mr. McGrath put them on a diet of shelled corn and oats, and kept them on that ration until marketed.

Hog receipts were light during the past week and the average weight of hogs showed a gain of ten pounds as compared with four weeks ago. The 6.27½ top that was paid on Thursday was the highest August price since 1888 and a full dollar higher than a year ago. The advance for the week was 10¢ to 15¢ with the bulk of the heavy, mixed and medium hogs closing at 5.85 to 6.20, light hogs at 5.50 to 6.10 and disirable pigs at 4.50 5.45.

Utah furnished a large portion of the sheep during the week but receipts were light enough that breaks at other points did not effect the local market. Mutton sheep were quoted steady every day with Utah wethers seeing at 3.10 to 3.50; Utah lambs up to 4.90 Arizona lambs up to 5.00; native muttons at 3.25 to 3.60 and ewes at 2.75 to 3.15. Choice yearlings are quotable up to 3.75 and many more sheep than are coming would find ready sale at satisfactory prices. Stock sheep strengthened up about a quarter of a dollar, fair grades of open-woolen breeding stock from Missouri having brought 2.25 and a lot of good black-face ewes 2.75.

Receipts of live stock for the past week were:

Cattle.....	43,500
Hogs.....	42,000
Sheep.....	12,000
For the preceding week:
Cattle.....	45,000
Hogs.....	38,300
Sheep.....	19,000
Corresponding week last year:
Cattle.....	53,700
Hogs.....	44,800
Sheep.....	18,600

If it's "WHITE SWAN" flour its made by BULTE. Beware of Imitations. Missouri Soft Red Winter Wheat only enters "White Swan" flour.

This week's letter under the head of "Kansas City Stock Market" shows, that while the great bulk of steers were 700 to 800 pounds and sold from 2.75 to 3.25 or from $19.25 to 26.00 each, that a consignment of baby beef, consisting of 27 steers and 2 heifers that averaged 1089 at 18 months old and sold at 5.20 or $56.63 each. This is a strong argument in favor of feeding Plains cattle at home. We realize that this country is not adapted to growing Indian corn and oats but there are many other things on which cattle can be fed and we shall pay some attention to this matter hereafter. Dwarf Essex rape is grown in Canada for the purpose of fattening show sheep and hog and beef steers. This we know grows well on the Plains for we have seen it growing and later we will give definite information on this plant. Again, alfalfa can be produced in much larger quantities by paying close attention to its habits and needs. We have given several articles recently on this plant from the Kansas Experiment Station where it is pretty thoroughly understood. Kaffir corn is an excellent feed and grows well here.

Blackleg

(Concluded from July 15th.)
MORTALITY.

The mortality or death rate among young cattle that take blackleg is quite high. Probably more than four out of every five that contract blackleg die from this disease.

TREATMENT.

The most satisfactory treatment for blackleg, as with most other disease, is preventive treatment. The best preventive treatment for it is vaccination of susceptible animals with a weakened virus prepared after the method of Arloing, Cornévin, and Thomas. This virus is prepared as follows: The "bruised-looking flesh" from an animal that has died from blackleg is cut from the affected quarter, cut into small bits, dried at a temperature of about 100 deg. F., pulverised and the coarser particles separated. This powder is divided into equal parts and attenuated or weakened by heating it. The weaker vaccine which is used first is heated for six or seven hours at a temperature of about 200 deg. F. The other is heated about the same length of time but at a lower temperature, about 180 deg. F., and furnishes the stronger virus which is used last. Three or four grains of virus are dissolved (?) in water, allow to stand several hours and injected beneath the skin of the animal. The second injection is made in the same manner; about one week after the first injection. Virus prepared in this manner has been used quite extensively in this state and in Missouri and Nebraska, appears to give excellent results. If a case of blackleg has occurred in a vaccinated animal it has never been reported, and no bad results have followed the vaccination in any way so far as I am able to learn.

Blackleg virus prepared as above described, can be purchased on the market at a cost of about 20 cents per animal inoculated. Other remedies are also used to prevent blackleg, with varying degrees of success. A remedy which has been used by Colonel Harris, has given good results, is composed of the following ingredients:

Sulphur 10 lbs
Saltpeter (nitrate of potash)..... 3 "
Copperas (sulphate of iron)..... 6 "
Air-slacked lime..... 3 "
Pulverize these ingredients and mix them thoroughly, and use one pound of the above remedy mixed with one gallon of common salt, and place where cattle can lick it in the place of common salt.

Another remedy which is also used consists of a mixture as follows:

Common salt, Sulphur, Hyposulphite of soda. Equal parts of each by weight, pulverized and mixed. Cattle are "salted with this remedy in the place of common salt. Both of these remedies are intended to be used during the season of the year when blackleg is apt to occur.

The treatment of animals already sick with blackleg is not satisfactory, as most of the animals attacked by this disease die. A very few recover, sometimes without treatment.

The treatment generally adopted is what is technically known as "depletive." A purgative of Epsom salts, from one-half to one pound dose, varying with the age and size of the animal, dissolved in water and given as a drench. Raw linseed oil is also given as a purgative, in doses of from one to two pints, given as a drench through the mouth. Enemas (injections) of warm water, to empty the bowels. Bleeding from the jugular vein in early stages is also practised, from one to four quarts of blood being drawn from the animal. In some cases bleeding appears to give relief, and in other hastens death. Stockmen who have had considerable experience with blackleg think that exercising an animal violently when the first symptoms are observed gives good results. A man with horse or dog runs the sick animal about as long as it can go without suffering; and after the violent exercise the animal should be kept moving gently until it is "cooled off." It seems to be the opinion of those with experience in this form of treatment that the violent exercise keeps the blood from settling in any part of the body.

CONCLUSIONS.

Blackleg is a "germ disease" of young cattle, caused by a facultative bacterium.

Young cattle acquire the disease by getting the "germs" on the food or in drinking water.

It prevails in this state during fall, winter and spring.

Altitude and rainfall seem to have no effect upon its prevalence.

Treatment of sick animals is not satisfactory.

The best method of prevention is by vaccination.

In another column will be found the announcement of Prof. Ernsberger in regard to the opening of the public school. We trust his call will be heeded by every patron of the school. Proper effort on the part of parents and pupils will go far toward making this term of school not only successful but productive of much lasting good. No teacher can do his or her best unless pupils are taught some things at home. One of the most important of these things is respect for teachers, another fact should be impressed on their minds and that is, children are not sent to school merely to get them out of parent's way, or to afford employment to men and women as teachers; but to be educated, not only in the three R's but many other things as well. Many parents never take the trouble to see that their children prepare their lessons at home or during school hours either, and when they make no progress, are ready to say, "Johnnie or Susie don't learn a thing at school, those teachers are no account or they would teach them faster," when the trouble lies with pupil and parent, entirely. Just try your hand on them a few minutes each day and see how they apply themselves toward learning. Now let us all put forth our best efforts to aid the teachers in their work and earn our reward in having the very best school on the Plains.
