Harvest To Start Here Next Week

With harvest getting under way, south in Floyd and Hale counties, this week and with the wheat in this section ripening rapidly under the blast of the hot winds, farmers here will probably start, their wheat cutting the middle of the coming week.

Opinions vary as to the yield of wheat in and around Silverton, but harring too much heat, and with no hail, the wheat should average from five to twelve bushels with some of the fields making even more. Had the recent rains come two weeks earlier, the wheat would have made a bumper crop. Even as it is Briscoe county will raise more wheat than the counties to the west and north, and more too, than has been raised in this section for many long years.

Combines and tractors are being repaired, elevators are being given the once-over and in a few days the farmers will be in the harvest field. Farmers have been a very scarce article on Silverton streets this week—a few of them have been discovered back of the machine shops hard at work on combine or tractor. The ones with their machinery ready to go are sitting with their fingers crossed, hoping no hail comes to spoil their first chance for a half-year decent crop—the first in several years.

Local elevators are offering premiums for the first load of wheat over their scales. Several elevator and grain ads are in this issue of the News. Look them up. A new subscription to the Briscoe County News, will be given to the owners of the first loads weighed in over the scales of our advertisers this week.

BEAUTY SALON TO OPEN SOON AT KING BARBER SHOP

Work has been going forward this week at the Ben O. King Barber Shop, which when completed, will be the Silverton one of the most complete Barber and Beauty Shops in this section of the county.

Jess Brannon has been busy improving the front end—painting and decorating. The back part of the building will house the new Beauty Salon, which will be in charge of Miss Sylvia Hodges of Matador, assisted by Mrs. Hodges, also of Matador. Brand new, latest style permanent wave machines, and other beauty equipment, will be installed in the new Beauty Parlor. Mr. King thinks that the new place will be open for business by the first of the month at the latest. Announcement of the formal opening of the King Beauty Salon will be made next week in the Briscoe County News. Watch for it.

Greatest Sales for Chevrolet

Chevrolet dealers rounded out the greatest three months in the history of the Chevrolet Motor Company by delivering 129,816 new cars and trucks in May. W. E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager, announced today. May sales were the highest on record, exceeding those for the highest previous May, that of 1928, by 7,379 units.

The company's sales in April established a new all-time high for that month of the year, and the totals for March and May approached that high point so closely as to compare within the past 90 days all time of Chevrolet's biggest months. Total sales for that period were 389,431 units, bringing the total for the year, to date, from January 1, to 1,634,000.

Many used car sales by Chevrolet dealers set an all-time high of 229,000 units, Mr. Holler announced, resulting in a substantial decline in the stocks, and contributing to the outlook for heavy new unit volume.

Johnny Quillen celebrated his thirtieth birthday Monday. It is reported that Johnny and three of his friends, John Ed Bain, Bernard Brown and Nosland Havron did almost entirely away with a large Angel Food Birthday Cake, and almost a gallon of home made ice cream.

THIRD SCOUT CAMP PERIOD SET FOR JUNE 21-27

Present indications point to a large attendance of scouts and leaders at the third camp period at Camp Post June 21-27. Over fifty scouts have already made advanced registrations for this period. Approximately thirty to forty more scouts and their leaders are expected to enroll this week.

A number of troops from the six counties recently added to the South Plains Council are expected to attend this camp period. The following troops from the new territory have indicated that they plan to have scouts in camp: Plainview, Lockney, Matador, Silverton and Tulia.

Any scout who has missed any previous camps can still enroll for this camp. Troops already registered for the camp are: Muleshoe, Olton, Sudan, Circleback, Littlefield, Lamessa, O'Donnell, and Silverton.

BRISCOE COUNTY INVITED TO TULIA JULY 17 AND 18

On July 17th, Swisher County celebrates her 46th birthday; and we mean it will be fitted in a fitting manner. The three features of the occasion will be: the Rodeo, the Auto Races, and the Parade.

$1,500.00 in cash prizes will go to the winners in the Rodeo events. Our committee has just returned from Old Mexico with two car loads of real outlaw animals. We now have entries including the world's champion performers in bull dogging, roping and riding. We invite any contestant from anywhere. $1,500 will go to the winners in the automobile races. If there is any driver in Briscoe County who thinks his tub will run, we invite him over. The parade will be featured by the floats designating the progress of 46 years in transportation, including the high wheeled bicycle, the ox cart, the buck board, the chuck wagon, etc. We invite floats from our neighboring counties—the prize won in the parade contest, will more than reimburse you for the investment.

In all seriousness, we realize that the pioneers of our county and your county are of the same stuff; that they have much in common; that they have been inter-related for half a century, and we do want to beg you to come over and join us in this gigantic effort to honor these great founders of the Plains country. —Tulia Committee on Invitations

$87,000 in R. F. C. Loans

Loans for refinancing purposes authorized by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for Briscoe County have amounted to $87,000. It has been announced by H. Drought state director of the National Emergency Council for Texas.

Disbursements for this county have aggregated $74,273. Drought added. Total authorizations for RFC loans in Texas amounted to $118,175,221.29 and total disbursements were over $96,736,000. These loans were distributed through more than two hundred Texas counties.

Grand total of RFC loans throughout the nation amounted to authorizations of $7,652,038,202.30 and disbursements of $5,916,482,390.77 according to information from Washington officials.

Singing Meet at Lubbock June 20-21 Saturday and Sunday, June 20 and 21, the Panhandle-Plains Singing Association will hold its annual convention-Centennial Session-in Lubbock, Texas, at the Sled Allen Auditorium.

Anticipated attendance of between 10 and 15 thousand people will include some of the outstanding leaders and singers in Texas and adjoining states.

V. O. Stamps, president of the Stamps-Baxter Music Company of Dallas in charge of the Centennial singing in Dallas, will conduct the program here.

A $10.00 cash prize is in store for the best amateur quartet, Saturday afternoon.

S. B. Summers, president and Earl Raper, vice president, together with the City of Lubbock extend their cordial invitation to all singers and music company representatives to be here for the program which starts promptly at two o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Auditorium.

Sunday School Attendance in Silverton, Sunday, June 14th

First Methodist	88
Calvary Baptist	83
Presbyterian	42
First Baptist	104

The above information is furnished you by the Briscoe County Ministerial Alliance with the hope that every student in our schools may be inspired to do more to enlist more people in one of our Sunday schools. Less than one-half of our population goes to any Sunday school. This is truly a mission point.

Ice Skating in Texas in June

BELIEVE IT OR NOT—but there's ice skating in Texas this summer; and here's the proof of it. It's on the ice floor of the Black Forest, many-featured Midway attraction of the $25,000,000 Texas Centennial Exposition which opened in Dallas June 6.

Pioneer Experiences of M. C. Potter

Just imagine Briscoe County with only one house in the whole county. With all the remainder of the country a broad desolate prairie with only a few herds of antelope and mustang ponies to break the monotony of the vast stretches of dry brown prairie. And moreover, that house was only a cabin made of cedar logs and located 150 to 200 yards of the county line in the J. A. Canyon, northeast of where Silverton is now located.

This is a rather dull looking picture compared with what Briscoe County is now, but that is the scene that M. C. Potter met when he came to Floyd County in 1886.

Mr. Potter made the trip from San Saba County in the year 1886. He came through in a wagon, the trip requiring twelve days and being full of hardships. On the trip he saw very few houses after he left Abilene, and he got to Floyd County there were only four houses in the County. In the adjoining counties there were in most instances even fewer houses, there being only one in Briscoe, as has been mentioned. This cabin was the home of Mr. Hickman and family.

Mr. Potter lived in Floyd County for about seven years. He moved from there to Briscoe County and settled at Quitaque. Since that time, Mr. Potter has lived in Briscoe County. Mr. Potter was in business at Quitaque, having bought out the Jago estate when A. F. Jago died. He was also postmaster at Quitaque for a number of years. After quitting business in Quitaque Mr. Potter went back to the farm for about six years.

Ten years ago Mr. Potter ran for County Tax Assessor in Briscoe County and got the office. He held the office until a few years ago when he was elected to the office of City Marshall which he held for a number of years.

Mr. Potter tells of several amusing anecdotes of the early days on the Plains. One of these is the story of the first sign that was put up in Plainview. Mr. Potter states that the first store there was a small tent in which a man by the name of Bill Jones carried a stock of groceries. There was a sign written on the side of the tent with charcoal. It read "Go to Jones for Groceries—Go to Kaiser's for Jones". The key to the story was that Bill Jones was a single man. Mr. Kaiser had two very good looking daughters and it was not all unusual to find Mr. Jones at the Kaiser home entertaining the girls while his store took care of itself. Any time anyone came to the store for groceries and did not find Jones they got what they wanted and paid for it if they could make the change, and if not left a bill stating what they had taken. It seems that it was a very hard matter for Jones to keep his mind on the groceries.

Water was hauled from his camp to dig the first well in Floyd County. Up to this time all the water they had used at the camps had to be hauled from some other place. During the time that Mr. Potter had lived at this place in Floyd County, he had to ride 25 miles to get his mail, and he says that his nearest neighbor was at Plainview which was eighteen miles from his camp. There was only one family there.

Some people think we have severe winters on the Plains now, but the winters are mild compared to those he went through when he first came to the county. He gives details of the winter of 1887-88 which he says was one of the most severe that he remembers. He was camped with a ranch outfit south of Lubbock on January 14, 1888 when a big storm blew up. The only house they knew of was a store on the head of the Yellowhouse Canyon, 12 miles from where they were camped. The snow was blowing and they could not see more than one hundred yards ahead of them. There was one man in the party who said he could lead them to the store and after traveling against the blowing storm almost all day they saw the store which came into view when they were not more than one hundred yards from it. Mr. Potter says that the Mill Iron Ranch had somewhere between 25,000 and 30,000 head of cattle in the Dixie pasture that winter and that in the spring they rounded up only about 2,000.

In the early days, Colorado City, on the T and P., 200 miles south, was the nearest railway station and fifteen days were required for the trip. Big Springs was the center of the cattle industry and many herds were made up there. In 1888, Mr. Potter was put in charge of a herd of 7,000 head to bring north. This is said to have been the largest single herd ever driven into this country.

Mr. Potter is the only man living who was employed on the X Bar L ranch, with the possible exception of the manager of the ranch, who was an Irishman and who went back to Ireland several years ago. Practically all of the men were Irishmen and had come directly from Ireland to Texas. Very few of the men who lived in this section of the country, at the time when Mr. Potter came, are still living. One of the old settlers, J. E. (Frank) Leonard, was here and visited with Mr. Potter a short time ago. — This article was taken from the History of Briscoe County, compiled by the Senior class of the high school here. It was written several years ago.

HALEY BEAUTY SHOP ENLARGED & REMODELED

The Weta Haley Beauty Shop, in the Bomar Drug Store, has been improved and remodeled to accommodate more easily the summer business. Miss Haley has made her working quarters much larger, new furniture is installed and with electric fans cooling the entire place, the salon is a very attractive and comfortable place.

The painting and remodeling of the place does not end with the Beauty Parlor, but continues through out the entire Drug Store as well.

Weta has some attractive special prices on permanent waves listed in this issue of the News. Look for her ad. It will save you money.

HARLAN--NABORS

Robert L. Nabors and Johnnie Lucille Harlan were united in marriage Saturday night at Turkey.

Lucille attended school in Silverton during the term of 1931 and '32. She has many friends here to wish her the greatest of happiness.

Bob has been employed as State Surveyor on Highway 86 for the past few months and has made many friends in Silverton.

The young couple will make their home at Tulia.

$75,000 PREMIUMS TO BE GIVEN AT FT. WORTH

Premiums totaling $75,000 are being offered to exhibitors of livestock at the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial Livestock Show, October 3-11. This is the largest amount of premium money ever offered at a livestock show in the Southwest and almost all of the classes are open to nation wide competition.

This premium money will be distributed among owners of registered Herefords, Shorthorn and Aberdeen Angus breeding cattle, car loads of fat steers and carloads of feeder cattle, sheep and Angora goats, dairy cattle, three breeds, Percherons and Belgian draft horses, jacks, mules, swine, poultry pigeons and rabbits and grain and hay.

Since this is to be the official livestock show for the celebration commemorating the founding of Texas 100 years ago, General Manager Jno. B. Davis and livestock manager D. G. Talbot, were able to induce the breed organizations for the three major beef breeds of cattle, Herefords, Shorthorns and Aberdeen Angus, to hold their national shows for 1936 as part of the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial.

The liberal premium money classifications and the added honors of winning at the official livestock show for the Centennial celebration, is certain to bring the best individuals from the most important breeding establishments throughout the United States to participate in this show when it opens October 3.

This part of the show will be housed in new buildings and a separate unit from the Fort Worth Centennial Celebration, scheduled to open July 1 which will include the horse show and the World Championship rodeo.

The auction sales will be an added attraction. Present plans, call for the sale of at least 50 carloads of feeder selected from the best herds in the Southwest. The feeder cattle sale is coming at a time when Corn Belt buyers are putting in a supply for the winter feeding which should prove attractive to ranchmen and feeders alike.

Premium lists may be had by addressing the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial or D. G. Talbot, livestock manager. The premium list gives full information about the classification, entries, etc.

Federal Payroll Increases

The federal payroll last month reached 806,035, an increase of more than 7,000 over the previous month.

The Civil Service Commission's announcement said that 5,126 of these were rated as permanent employees, of whom 5,114 were given jobs outside of Washington.

Winners of Rural Beautification Contest Announced Saturday

Rock Creek Service Station, was chosen Saturday as the most attractive Service Station on the Highway 86 in Briscoe County, by the local committee in charge of the Beautification Contest sponsored by the State of Texas.

The owner of the most beautiful rural home along this highway was found to be Mr. Hamilton, who lives a mile this side of Quitaque.

Practically no notice was given the county committee this year and consequently the winners are those who have improved their roadside property, not as contestants, but from their own pride, and natural love of beauty. The contest, however, is to be an annual event, with the winners receiving large attractive plaques from the state, to be displayed on the highway, calling attention to the fact that the place has been chosen as the winner of the contest.

Finley White's Agricultural Briefs

Closing date for filling out work-sheets has already passed in Briscoe County. A preliminary check of all work sheets filled out so far shows that about 99 per cent of all farmers in this county have signed up. Of course we didn't expect a 100 per cent sign-up so we are not at all disappointed. We believe that the only fellow who will be disappointed will be that fellow who failed to sign his work sheet.

Harvest Time
Our days are numbered that we'll have to watch and pray that there will be no hail, for it won't be long until the combines will begin their search for ripe wheat. In some fields they won't have to look so close to find a little wheat but in others they will have to cut awfully close over a wide range of territory in order to find enough to re-seed with. The crop this season is estimated at from 0 to 25 bushels. Most estimates however, call for from five to seven bushels.

New Program Points
A bird's-eye view of the things to be remembered in the new farm program are given here for you to think about.

The new program calls for a minimum of 20 per cent of your cotton land to be taken out of cotton production. It allows (and will pay for) a maximum of 35 per cent of your cotton land taken out. It calls for a flat 15 per cent of your general soil depleting base left out of production. The general soil depleting crops include corn, grain sorghums, melons, potatoes, garden truck, broom corn, pop corn, wheat, barley, oats, and mixtures of these.

The acres removed from soil depleting crops may be planted to sudan and harvested or grazed. It may be summer fallowed or it may be planted to any of the beans and pea family—not for harvest.

A. and M. Short Course
Its only a month now until we'll be packing our bags and baggage to take off for the short course down at College Station. Plans are now underway to take a group of 4-H Club boys down to short course and visit the Centennial at Dallas on the way down. That means that July 16 will see us load out for Dallas in order to make the stop over and still get to A. and M. by Monday morning. Watch your local community advertising mediums for the 4-H Clubs to do some advertising about the Short Course and the Centennial—I'm sure they are going to advertise it some.

SAVE ON TAXES BY PAYING ON OR BEFORE JUNE 30TH

According to Sheriff Jake Honea, the last half of the 1935 taxes are due on or before June 30th, 1936. During the month of June, you may pay your delinquent 1935 taxes at a considerable saving. The penalty of five per cent, now, will be increased to eight per cent on July 1st, and in addition, interest of 6 per cent will be added after July 1st, as well as $1.00 costs.

It will be to your advantage to make arrangements to pay your '35 taxes on or before the thirtieth of this month. Mr. Honea says that he will be glad to furnish statements to taxes due to all property owners.

QUITAQUE FOLKS GIVE PLAY AT DALLAS

Sixteen members of the cast of Quitaque's Centennial Folk Play, "After Supper at the Old F Ranch", with their director, Mrs. E. C. Price, left Tuesday for Dallas, where the play was to be presented as a part of the National Folk Festival at the Texas Centennial Exposition Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Joe Graham, author of the play, was unable to accompany the cast, due to illness.

The local folk drama will be presented on the same day with entries from Crowell and Childress, forming a complete program from this district, according to announcement by Sarah Gertrude Knott, Festival Director. Crowell, Childress and Quitaque were joint winners in the Regional Folk Festival at Memphis in May—all three plays receiving invitations to take part in the national event at Dallas.

Two replacements in the cast were announced last week by Mrs. Price. Virgil Gregg will replace George Owens in the cowboy chorus, while Isabel Price has been selected to relieve Mrs. Paul Hamilton as Reader. Mrs. Hamilton and Mr. Owens were unable to make the trip to Dallas at this time.

Expenses of the trip are being partially covered by proceeds from presented here, at Turkey, and at Flo-mot last month.—Quitaque Post.

RODEO HERE SUNDAY

A Rodeo will be held here on this coming Sunday. Plenty of excitement is promised at this Rodeo. Wild horses from all parts of the country will be there.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

One Big Shot Convicted The Many Laugh Roman Triumph, New Style Storms, Floods, Twisters

The kind of "justice" supposed to "terrify" crime in this country is very amusing: justice; confined to the national government.

Arthur Brisbane

A change from this program is due to Special Prosecutor Dewey, who, before Supreme Court Justice McCook, in New York city, has convicted a "topnotch racketeer," as Mr. Dewey calls him—Charles ("Lucky") Luciano.

This is an actual conviction for crime, not for tax dodging.

In this world, many laugh and a few do things. Fulton said he would run a boat up the Hudson river by steam; crowds gathered to laugh.

Had it been suggested that an army officer would cross the continent "flying blind" in a hooded cabin, seeing nothing, guided by a scientific "radio beam," the laughs would have been louder; but that is what Major Eaker, of the army air corps, has just done.

When it was suggested early in this century that men would soon fly, successfully, millions laughed.

General Badoglio, who was sent by Mussolini to take over Ethiopia, and did so, celebrated his triumph in Rome, Mussolini and the Italian king, now emperor of Ethiopia, assisting.

The triumphant general, named viceroy of Ethiopia by Mussolini, who surprised the world with the swiftness of his conquest, led his troops, burned by the tropical sun, under the victory arch of Constantine to the tomb of the unknown soldier of the big war.

"Storms kill nine in Oklahoma and Kansas; tornadoes, floods and lightning cause havoc," so runs the headline, and so other headlines have been running for months past. Hall ruins crops; lightning bolts kill three; "twisters," those powerful, revolving windstorms, lift up and knock down little houses.

The sultan of Sulu is dead on the island of Jolo, now only sultan in name. Once, as spiritual and temporal head, he ruled all the Mohammedans of the Sulu archipelago.

The death of this former ruler, Jamalul Kiram, recalls an interesting incident following the Spanish war. Jamalul, good Mohammedan, did not think he should deal with this nation, on account of its religion. He was soothed by an official statement that the United States had no official religion whatever.

The Black Legion, latest secret murder organization, tells candidates: "You cannot join unless you are a native-born, white, Protestant gentleman willing to proceed against negroes, Catholics and Jews." To "proceed against" means to murder.

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, a Protestant organization, says it is shameful for the Black Legion to use the word "Protestant," and blasphemous to use the name "God Almighty."

Sir Samuel Hoare had to leave the British cabinet because he opposed the foolishness of sending a great British fleet into the Mediterranean to protect Haile Selassie, not protecting him in the least.

Now, Sir Samuel Hoare is back in the British cabinet, "the king pleased to appoint him." This means, probably, that the futile League of Nations "sanctions" effort to coerce Mussolini will be dropped. Many things are easier than coercing Mussolini.

Why do Americans swallow eagerly anything in the way of foreign made goods, especially if they come from the friendly British islands?

British merchants advertise proudly "Made in Great Britain." Every Englishman urges "Buy British." Americans seem proud if they can advertise "Made in England" or "Made in France." Perhaps our goods are inferior but every American makes his money here—why not back our own people?

New French Premier Helps Labor Win All Demands

STRIKING workers who paralyzed the industrial life of France at the moment when the "popular front" socialist majority was taking over the reins of the government, won complete victory with the aid of Leon Blum, new premier, as the general strike was settled, a disquieting note was added by a walkout of 150,000 coal miners and textile workers in northern France.

- 1. Wage increases from 7 to 15 per cent. 2. Recognition of workers' rights to organize in unions. 3. A forty-hour work week. 4. Vacations with pay. 5. Collective bargaining contracts.

Settling of the strike marked a significant victory for the new government which assumed extraordinary powers to devise measures to bolster France's financial system and revitalize national defenses. "White collar" workers were the only group excluded from the general agreement which was signed by employers at the best of the government, but the premier promised relief for them.

Premier Blum gained support from conservative forces with his announcement that "The People's Front is and will remain hostile to devaluation of the currency." The end of the strike restored a measure of confidence to a panic-stricken nation faced with possible famine due to the tie-up of its transportation, processing and distribution systems by 1,000,000 striking workers.

Texas Opens Its Great Centennial Exposition

TEXAS celebrated the one-hundredth anniversary of its independence by opening a $25,000,000 centennial exposition in Dallas. Foremost among distinguished visitors attending the world's fair the first week was President Roosevelt. To obtain the centennial exposition Dallas made available more than $9,000,000 in cash and property. The exposition will be open until November 29. Numerous other celebrations marking the state's 100 years of freedom have been held in various cities and towns of Texas. The exposition presents educational, historic and recreational features associated with a major world's fair.

Largest building on the exposition ground is the $1,000,000 Texas Hall of State, which cost an additional $200,000 to equip. The building was erected as a memorial to the patriots and pioneers of Texas, and is the largest historical museum on the North American continent. Other buildings and their erection cost include: United States building, $325,000, largest federal building ever erected at a world's fair; Negro Life building, $100,000, also erected by government funds; Exposition Farm Center, consisting of five great buildings, erected at a cost of $1,000,000; Travel and Transportation building, $365,000; Varied Industries, $440,000; National History museum, $250,000; aquarium, $180,000.

Speaker Byrns of House Is Taken by Death

DEATH, sudden and unexpected, came to Joseph Wellington Byrns, speaker of the house of representatives, and put an end to a notable career. The veteran Tennessee congressman suffered a heart attack, followed by a cerebral hemorrhage, and passed away within a few hours in his apartment in the Mayflower hotel, Washington. For 27 years Mr. Byrns had represented the "Hermitage district" of Tennessee in the house, and he was elected speaker when the Seventy-fourth congress convened in January, 1935. He was a master of parliamentary strategy and so fair-minded a presiding officer that all, even his political opponents, praised and admired him. Before becoming speaker, he served long years on the appropriations committee, as member and chairman, and he also was leader of the Democratic majority and chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee.

Grief for Mr. Byrns' death was general and sincere in Washington officialdom. "I am shocked beyond all imagination," said Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, the minority leader. "It is a terrible thing. It is an almost irreparable loss."

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the majority leader, after expressing his own sense of loss, added: "His work during the session has been very difficult and trying. He was a great speaker."

President Roosevelt in a statement from the White House expressed well the high esteem in which Mr. Byrns was held. Said he:

"Fearless, incorruptible, unselfish with a high sense of justice, wise in counsel, broad of vision, calm in adversity, and modest in victory, he served his state and the nation with fidelity, honor, and great usefulness. I personally mourn the passing of a steadfast friend of many years."

Impressive funeral services were held in the chamber of the house, the president, members of the cabinet and numerous diplomats being present in addition to all members of congress.

Senate Passes Its Own Tax Revenue Measure

THE senate passed the $829,000,000 compromise revenue measure by a vote of 28 to 24. The bill then went to conference with the house of representatives which had enacted a revenue measure carrying out tax proposals made by President Roosevelt. The senate measure called for a 15 1/2 to 15 per cent tax on net corporate incomes as compared with the present 12 1/2 to 15 per cent levy; a new type of 7 per cent tax on undistributed profits; repeal of the existing exemption of dividends from the 4 per cent normal income tax; an increase of 1 per cent in the individual income surtax on surtax brackets between $0,000 and $50,000. The house measure called for a tax on corporate net income scaling up to 42 1/2 per cent, depending upon the amount of undistributed profits.

Chester Davis Appointed to Reserve Board

AGRICULTURE was given representation on the federal reserve board through the appointment by President Roosevelt of Chester C. Davis, administrator of the AAA to that body.

In discussing his appointment, Mr. Davis said: "The fiscal policy of the federal government has never been tied in closely enough with agricultural problems." Mr. Davis has spent most of his life in agricultural activities. He was born on a farm in Iowa, was graduated from Grinnell college and later owned and operated a farm. For some years he was a newspaper publisher and then became editor of the Montana Farmer.

Mr. Davis was succeeded as AAA administrator by Dr. Howard R. Tolley. Nationally known as a soil expert, Doctor Tolley helped Mr. Davis draft the soil conservation plan, enacted after the United States Supreme court decision invalidated the AAA. He has been carrying on this program during the absence of Mr. Davis in Europe.

Filene Plan Urges Ban on Unfair Trade Practices

IN A report just made public the business advisory council proposes a simplified basis for industrial self-regulation through the medium of voluntary joint agreements on unfair trade practices enforceable by the federal trade commission. The report was prepared by the council's committee on unfair trade practices of which Lincoln Filene of Boston is chairman.

Outstanding among the committee's proposals were suggestions that each branch of an industry, such as wholesale, retail, and manufacturing, police the activities of each other through confidential reports to the federal trade commission and that no attempt be made to include trade practice and labor provisions in the same agreements.

Sir Samuel Hoare Back in British Cabinet

CALLED back to the British cabinet, which he left some months ago as a political scapegoat, Sir Samuel Hoare was made first lord of the admiralty, to succeed Viscount Monsell. Sir Samuel, who bodily faced a hostile house of commons last December to defend his part in the Anglo-French peace plan which would have given Mussolini only a part of Ethiopia, will face the task of solving problems arising out of British-Italian fleet difficulties in the Mediterranean. The biggest task facing Hoare, however, is restoration of the British navy to an undisputed position of supremacy on the seas.

Industrial Mobilization Plan Is Condemned

THE so-called industrial mobilization plan of the War department, providing for a military dictatorship over labor, capital and industry, as well as censorship of the press in wartime, was severely condemned in a report to the senate by the munitions committee. The committee objected particularly to the proposed conscription of labor as being dangerous to democracy.

Thomas Held Responsible for British Budget Leak

J. H. THOMAS, until recently British colonial secretary, was found responsible by a special government tribunal for the leak in budget secrets which enabled some of his friends to profit largely through insurance against tax raises. Final disposition of the case was left to the house of commons. Thomas, once an engine wiper and later a powerful figure in organized labor and politics, termed the tribunal's verdict "cruel." He said: "My own conscience is clear. I repeat what I previously stated upon oath: that I made no disclosures of budget secrets to anybody."

South China Declares War on Japanese

WITH a declaration of war against Japan by the Canton (south) Chinese government, first steps were taken in what may become a nationally concerted effort to resist further encroachment by Nippon on China's territory.

Sec. Ickes Complains of Wallace's Encroachments

THE Department of Agriculture recommended to the senate that the administration of the Taylor grazing act, affecting 80,000,000 acres of range land, be transferred to its control from that of the Department of the Interior. Secretary Ickes retorted with the accusation that the Agricultural department had hindered his program to rehabilitate western grazing lands. He said Secretary Wallace's department has insisted upon having so many CCC camps for the forestry service that the Interior department could not get enough CCC help to administer efficiently the Taylor act.

Is Father Once More at the Age of 96

GEORGE ISAAC HUGHES, ninety-six-year-old Confederate veteran, amazed the medical world by becoming a father again. This time a girl was born to Hughes' twenty-eight-year-old wife, Libby Hill Hughes. The Hughes' first born is now a lusty lad of seventeen months. Surprisingly vigorous for his age, Hughes was the only veteran in his area to attend recent Confederate memorial exercises. The veteran's mental faculties are clear. He is able to do considerable physical work including caring for a garden, chopping wood and doing odd jobs.

Marshal Badoglio Is Given Roman Triumph

MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO, conqueror of Ethiopia and now viceroy of that part of the reconstituted "Roman empire," returned to the Eternal City in triumph and was vociferously welcomed as a hero. Sixty thousand Romans welcomed him as he stepped from his train, and Premier Mussolini modestly waited in the background until they had shouted their greetings to the veteran warrior. Then Il Duce came forward and kissed the viceroy on both cheeks, and the high ranking Fascist military leaders paid homage. With the premier and the picked troops forming the escort of honor were the entire cabinet. Several days later a great military review was held.

The other side of the picture was seen in London, where Haile Selassie, the deposed emperor of Ethiopia, arrived in tears and sadness, though he was given an ovation by the cheering thousands that had seldom been accorded to visitors to England. Many of the Londoners carried Ethiopian flags or scarlet banners reading "Welcome to the Emperor." With the white sympathizers were many African chiefs in native robes, Somalis, negroes, Hindus, Chinese, and colored people from all parts of the world.

There was an outburst of wild cheering when Selassie, bareheaded and wearing a long black cape, stepped from his private sleeping car and was greeted by many notables, including O. C. Harvey, private secretary of Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary. Harvey was the lone representative of the British government.

Red Cross Mourns Death of Clara Dutton Noyes

MISS CLARA DUTTON NOYES, sixty-six, director of the American Red Cross nursing service, died in Washington a few minutes after she was stricken while driving to work in her car. Miss Noyes was assistant director of the American Red Cross nursing service during the World War. She also had been superintendent of nurses at the Bellevue and allied hospitals in New York. Cyrus Hall McCormick, whose father developed the farm reaper and who himself helped organize the International Harvester company and was its president for 33 years, died at his home in Lake Forest, Ill., at the age of seventy-seven years.

Hate Campaign Is Spreading

Vengeful Feeling Prevails in High Social Circles; Slander First Lady

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON—I am going to tell you this week of a single episode of the spreading campaign to hate Roosevelt out of office.

This hatred campaign is something new in American politics. It appears to me to be the royalist type of distrust of an administration which tries to slice a little off the top and hand it out on the bottom—to do something for the less fortunate. I find this hatred being breathed with a venomous and vengeful feeling in the high social circles; among the Duponts of the munitions trust and their friends this anti-Roosevelt hatred is as thick as a London fog.

The bitterest of these haters have reached the low point where they do not hesitate to slander Mrs. Roosevelt, first lady of the land, who has been active in the matter of pointing out bad social conditions and suggesting a way to improve them. But there is a certain area of high social activity in which it is looked upon as some sort of a crime to make wide plans for underprivileged folks—if it costs anything to the country. The Liberty league and all of its allies feel that way. Personally, the Duponts and all their kind are fine, pleasant people who do a great deal of charity work; who make life pleasant and profitable for many others in a grand seigniorial manner. As long as they can control the thing they are strong for doing something for the underdog—but they've got to boss the job. Just let a beneficent government take over the idea of improving the entire national family and then these royalists exhibit the symptoms of having swallowed the season's output of Mexican jumping beans.

The episode of which I speak of was the startling discourtesy offered Mrs. Roosevelt by Senator Daniel Hastings of Delaware, who has been a great Dupont spokesman and who is about to retire from public life. I cannot understand how the senate permitted Hastings' words to go without some sharp action. Time was when such things would have been met with something more effective than words. Hastings, unmindful of the miseries of women in America under the depression, unleashed that bitter tongue of his in ridicule of relief money spent for "women's projects." These are something to uplift women; give them work to do and restore their morale. Hastings' argument against these projects was worthy of the madcap Zion-check. He spoke slightly of Mrs. Roosevelt in her efforts to improve the social conditions of America; then he argued that a woman's project must be something that comes from a woman's mind—that if it did not, it came from her husband's mind first—and that in such a case it should not be within the law. If the woman happened to be Mrs. Roosevelt, bellowed Mr. Hastings, it would be a dangerous socialist experiment and ought to be thrown out. The whole relief program of the administration is unconstitutional, he roared, and should be discarded. If it is constitutional, he said, "We ought to tear up the Constitution."

There you have it. Hastings adequately expressed the feeling of the Bourbons of the Liberty league and the Anti-Roosevelt hatred cult. If we can't do it our way let's destroy the government. Never, since the days of the rule or ruin dynasty of pre-revolutionary France has there been a more telling expression of the aristocracy of big business.

THE "QUODDY" PROJECT

Passamoquoddy dam, a long, mouth-filling phrase which is shortened into the blunt term "Quoddy," stands, an incomplete project in the far northeastern corner of the United States of America, while politicians and engineers engage in an ear splitting contest of noise to see who can yell the loudest in an effort either to stop or continue this dam—depending upon whether or not they are on the side of the power trust. Down in the south eastern corner of the United States, a similar loud-mouthed screaming is going on over the merits and demerits of the Florida ship canal—a proposed $20,000,000 ship carrying ditch from the Atlantic to the gulf across Florida. In the Northwest the engineers are building on Grand Coulee and Bonneville dams which will, it is alleged, produce more power than the entire Northwest can use in years to come; while the southwest corner is marked by the enormous Boulder dam which will turn that desert into green farms, ship water hither and yon over an area of empire size. I have not mentioned the Tennessee valley project, which is another empire in itself, and for this week's letter I will try to clarify the situation surrounding these northeast and southeast projects in Maine and Florida, which can have either important or tragic results. A great deal depends upon the right decision in the case of these two tremendous dams—for either one or both may be a nightmare or a vision of a much greater day.

"Quoddy" is the result of the determined effort of an engineer named Cooper, who says the tremendous rise and fall of the tides in the Bay of Fundy can be made to turn wheels that will generate enough power to fill the state of Maine and some of the rest of New England with new enterprises. These tides rush in and out of narrow gorges, and there is a 27-foot rise and fall; certainly enough power for great purposes if it can be harnessed. The problem lies in the engineering difficulties to be overcome. All sorts of things have to be considered. One is the fact that ordinary dams have to withstand pressure from one side, whereas the "Quoddy" dam would have to take it going and coming. Ebb and flood tides will hammer the dam ceaselessly. Then, there is a question of the action of salt water on a lot of the metal work and fine machinery, also the possible effect of freezing salt water in the long, cold northeasterly winters. There are engineers who say the thing just will not work—that power generated by these tides will be too expensive to be practicable. But the other crowd points out that short-sighted engineers made fun of the idea of the Panama canal, snored at the Boulder dam project; and even the greatest scientists of their day declared that a steam-driven ship could not be built to traverse the Atlantic!

Roosevelt, forward-looking, made relief projects out of both Quoddy and the Florida ship canal. To me, the idea that we can turn the action of the ocean's waves and tides into power is fascinating, and I believe it will be accomplished some time. However, there was so much fuss about it that Roosevelt put it up to congress, and that eccentric body turned down the long step ahead possible by the Quoddy enterprise, thus stopping the work. But congress OK'd the Florida ship canal. Meanwhile there is a large faction in Florida bitterly opposed to the canal, though everybody in Maine (excepting the power trust crowd and its friends whose motive is easily understandable) is for Quoddy.

The Florida anti-canal crowd says the salt water will kill the fruit and that there is every danger that the artesian well system of that state will be completely ruined by cutting through the rock. If ships traverse the peninsula of Florida at the expense of the oranges and other fruit grown there, and also at the expense of that God-given watering system, it may mean the economic extinction of the southeastern part of the United States, just as failure to stimulate Maine with new power for new enterprises may mean the gradual death of industries in that corner.

WAR FOR FARM VOTE

There will be a desperate battle for the farm vote. In the glamorous presentation of the G. O. P. bid for support I fear that many farmers will lose sight of the facts; and one of the main facts is that the much-vaunted foreign market for American farm produce is still in the glimmering distance. It was ruined, devastated—knocked flat as a pancake by the Smoot-Hawley tariff. The Democrats, I take it, will again proffer strong federal control of agricultural products, with benefit checks for compelling farm owners; an artificial and temporary measure, but it seems to be the only present plan which guarantees anything to rural America.

That is all there is to it. By every test agriculture has come back and is still coming back. Gross farm income has increased from that low point in 1932 when farming was as flat as the prairies to more than eight billion dollars. It has stepped up more than five billions in four years. The farm real estate market improves all the time. This administration's friendly policies with respect to farm finance have helped a lot. The increase in farm commodity prices has stepped along with a reduction of interest rates on farm mortgage loans. Not only has the farm price of corn tripled since 1932, but interest rates on federal land bank loans are at an all time low point. It is impossible in a brief space to review the whole work of the Farm Credit administration. It would take us into contact with 2,300,000 mortgaged farm homes. . . . and three years ago half of them were in danger of foreclosure.

That was a desperate situation. Farmers were losing their homes, their farms, their morale. But in the main the country was saved from the debacle of millions of farm families working like peasants on land they no longer owned. In money and in figures the story is told by the fact that the Farm Credit administration received applications from half the mortgaged farms in the country, and as a result loaned two million dollars to 750,000 farmers.

SPEAKERS WORK TOO HARD

The sudden death of Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, speaker of the house, is further evidence that speakers work too hard. The job is a man killer. Twelve speakers have died—three recently—and Byrns was the only one to die during a session of congress.

Byrns made the speakership of the house of representatives a constructive party job. He had more to do than sit there and keep the house in order with a gavel. With his two party aides, Bayh of Alabama, floor leader, (elected speaker immediately after Byrns' death) and O'Connor of New York, rules committee chairman, Byrns drove through the administration's program in this session of congress, and it was no easy task with every other interest pulling and tugging in opposite directions. He worked night and day. He kept the members from straying off into strange paths that would lead to defeat. He was a father to the young members, and a guide to older ones. And none knows better than President Roosevelt just how much strength there was in Byrns' leadership.

SYNOPSIS

Jeb Braddon, young and fantastically successful broker of Chicago, is infatuated with Agnes Gleneith, beautiful daughter of a retired manufacturer. Rodney, a doctor, is in love with Agnes, and tells her of his great desire, but realizes it can never be fulfilled. Agnes' mother is attempting to regain her husband's love. Bob Gleneith arrives from New York. Agnes has disturbing doubts as to what attracts her father there.

There was no mark of deterioration upon him. It was plain that his impulses and his needs for closest, emotional contacts had not fled or even retreated. Plain too, it had been for some time, that they had failed him here. What was he "doing"? What had he done?

"Tell Me What You Want, Little Light One."

"Don't think about it," instincts warned her. He swung about to her. "When I was in New York, I got out of something I got into awhile ago; and I made half a million. . . . Tell me what you want, Little Light One."

"I don't want anything, Father," she answered before she realized how much she was disappointing him; for she was thinking once more of her mother. He would offer to buy her, too, anything she liked; but it was nothing that he need buy which Mother wanted from him. And this half-million additional in his hands would get help her. No; it would not help Mother at all.

"Bob?" they both heard her voice. "Bob? Are you home?" She had come to the top of the stairs and was calling down. Agnes saw him start slightly. "Hello, Tricie," he called back. "Wait up there. Coming!"

They screened their first meetings, these days, from their daughter. "Anybody for dinner tonight?" he inquired of Agnes, as he turned. "Jeb, I guess, Father," and she added: "Rod was here this afternoon."

"The Deep Sea!" her father said, and suspected aloud. "Why was he taking off the afternoon?" "He was going away. He's gone."

"I see," said her father, satisfied with that, and he did not inquire whither. "Good fellow. But his brother—how that young man does know his way about!" And he started, at last, for the stairs.

Headlights played on the windows and swung away as a car skidded to a stop. Jeb came in, cold and stamping and all alive. She was his goal, this girl who braved her bare arms and shoulders to the chill from the door to meet him. She, above all others and all else in the world tonight, was the sole object he sought, and nothing could keep him from her. That was how Jeb made you feel when you faced him.

ceased to turn when she passed. She had lovely hands, beautifully-shaped fingers with almond-like nails, which Agnes had inherited. Her skin, though not dark, was less fair than her husband's, and it needed color now.

They had gone out together, Simmons driving them. The leaping blaze in the drawing-room had burnt down to red-glowing charred logs that lay lazily on the andirons.

Jeb gathered Agnes against him. "Don't fight it," he said. "It's no use. It's over for them. That's all."

"Why's it over, Jeb?" His arm about her also claimed her right hand with his. He fitted her slender fingers in between his, as he liked to do, and clasped palm to palm.

"Because it's over; that's all any one can ever say. . . . There's just so much in the cup, sometimes, I think, Glen. You can sip it all your life, afraid ever really to taste it; or you can dare to drink it down. That's what they did, I figure from what I've heard from you. They had it all; they took it all, tipped it empty together. If he'd died, or she, ten years ago, it'd been a break for the poets; true love for a lifetime. But why bother about such a thing, Glen? You want it?"

"What?" Agnes said. "Love for a lifetime. Tepid, tasteless stuff you can bear to sip and never need to gulp down. Do you want it? By God, you'll never get it from me. I've had girls, Glen, but never one like you. What we'll give each other will be beyond telling. I don't know how long it will last; and neither do you. And I don't care; nor do you. We'll have it—we'll have it all while we're young. We'll tip up the cup—won't we?—and drink the whole damn thing down while we're living."

"Do you dream your mother today would trade what she'd had for anything else she ever heard of? . . ."

He thrust his free arm under her knees and claimed her close. He arose with her in his arms and took a step or two, carrying her; then he lifted her higher, bringing her face so near to his that he could, by bending an inch more, kiss her. But he did not. Instead, with his lips over hers, he whispered.

like a little Japanese room, with softly padded straw mats fitted together to form the floor, and with a slightly raised section, laid with thicker and softer mats, for lounging upon and sunning.

Here, in the soothing sun, you could play with your boys' round, strong little bodies, and imagine them men—great men, splendid men, inspiring, important and thrilling. When you did this, you omitted imagining them like their father. They must be more than Davis ever would be. Davy, your husband, who was only thirty but for whom you no longer held illusions of greatness or of real importance, though you loved him. Of course you loved him.

He lacked something that, for one, Jeb Braddon had. Jeb, who had been at "the house" last night, as Beatrice had learned when she phoned her father after dinner, to say hello. How much further had Agnes and Jeb "gone" last evening?

Be wished that Agnes would hurry over. There she was! They faced each other in the sun, but Agnes immediately bent to the babies, rubbing her hands briskly to be sure of their warmth before she touched the brown little bodies. Bobbie kissed back on her cool cheek after she kissed him; she swept with her lips the soles of Davy's chubby little feet, one after the other.

"How's Jeb?" asked her sister, seating herself before her. Agnes held to one of Davy's feet. "All right, Bee," she answered.

"Did you go anywhere last night?" "Not us. Father and Mother went to the Stinsons'; but we stayed home," said Agnes a bit breathlessly.

"What'd you do?" demanded Bee. "Bee, I guess Jeb and I got sort of engaged."

Beatrice's gaze jerked up. "Don't you know?" "I know he said we were, Bee."

Agnes leaned over and resorted to clasping both of Davy's feet, and pulling him gently along the mat. Beatrice quickly touched a bell behind her. "They've been long enough in the sun," she decided suddenly, and bundled her babies into robes. When the nurse knocked, she handed the children out and secured the door again.

"All right now," said Bee, dropping to the mat. "I liked him a lot last night, Bee. I let him know it."

"How about this morning?" Beatrice demanded. "I'm going downtown to have lunch with him today."

"But are you engaged? Did you say you'd marry him?" "I didn't; for I didn't know I would. I don't know now."

"You mean you don't know whether you want to?" "I guess I want to marry him, Bee."

"Then what in heaven is it you don't know?" "What it will be like to be married to Jeb," said Agnes. "I didn't want to talk to Mother about it, at all. She's too unhappy. You aren't?"

"No," said Bee quickly. "How was Father when he got home?" "No different. He made a lot more money in New York."

"I gathered that. . . . But you and Jeb?" "He thinks we ought to get married as quick as we can arrange it. Oh, Bee, I never, never had such a day. Rod came in the afternoon."

"Rod?" "I can't tell you about that. I can never tell anyone about that! . . . Then Father came home; and Mother was making ready for him. . . . Bee, they'll separate when I get married, I know."

"Then I should think you'd hardly rush off and marry." "But that makes me want to, don't you see? Oh, if you were in the house, you would."

Lesson for June 21

JESUS EXALTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:36-53. GOLDEN TEXT—Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name.—Philippians 2:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Goes Home to Heaven. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Goes Home to Heaven. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Lord We Worship. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Exalted Christ and the Unfinished Task.

In order properly to view the ascension of Christ into heaven, it would be well to study his ministry during the forty days prior to his ascension.

I. The Walk of the Two Discouraged Disciples (vv. 13-15). Emmaus was seven and a half miles northwest of Jerusalem. Just why these disciples were walking this way we do not surely know.

1. Who he was (v. 15). While they reasoned together on the wonderful events of the last few days, Jesus joined them. When he questioned them concerning their sadness they did not recognize him. How often we are so engrossed with our sorrows and disappointments that we fail to recognize Jesus, even though he is walking by our side.

2. His question (v. 17). Perceiving their sadness and perplexities, he sought to help by calling forth a statement of their grief.

3. Their answer (v. 18). His questions so surprised them that they jumped to the conclusion that he was a stranger in Jerusalem. The condemnation and crucifixion of the great prophet of Nazareth were so recent and notorious that no one who had lived in Jerusalem could be ignorant of them.

III. The Scriptures Opened (vv. 25-31). 1. His rebuke (vv. 25-30). He did not rebuke them for not believing the strange stories that they had heard, but for ignorance of and lack of confidence in the Old Testament Scriptures. They had only accepted such parts of the Old Testament as suited their notions. The very center and heart of the Old Testament Scriptures set forth the death and resurrection of Christ. Ignorance of the Scriptures and unbelief as to the wonders and complete redemption wrought by Christ rob us of many joys and deprives us of power as workers for Christ.

2. Jesus Recognized (vv. 31-35). While sitting at meat with the disciples, their eyes were opened as they saw him bless the bread and distribute it to them. We too can see the Lord on such common occasions as eating a meal if we have open eyes. Indeed, we ought to see him when eating, buying, selling, and in our recreations, for he has promised his abiding presence. They were so filled with joy over this revelation of the Savior that they hastened back to Jerusalem to tell the other disciples of his resurrection.

IV. Jesus Stands in the Midst of the Eleven (vv. 36-47). 1. He said, "Peace be unto you" (vv. 36, 37). However, they were terrified and frightened. Sinful man in the presence of a holy God is ill at ease.

2. He showed them his hands and his feet (vv. 38-40). In order to convince them of his personal identity, he gave them tangible evidence that he was not a mere spirit.

3. He ate before them (vv. 41-45). 4. He commissioned them to evangelize the world (vv. 46-49). They were to testify concerning his shed blood and resurrection, and on this ground they were to preach repentance and remission of sins to all nations.

5. Jesus ascends into heaven (vv. 50-53). Having given them the parting message to evangelize the world he ascended into heaven. From his place in heaven he continues to carry on his work through his disciples as they are energized by the Holy Ghost. "Just as we treasure the last words of our departed loved ones so we should ponder this farewell message of our Lord.

Magnet of Thankfulness The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and as the magnet finds the iron, so will it find in every hour some heavenly blessings, only the iron in God's sand is gold.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Growth to Perfection Earth holds heaven in the bud; our perfection there has to be developed out of our imperfection here.—C. Rossettli.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service

And step by step since time began I see the steady growth of man.

Whittier was a kindly old Quaker gentleman, with a devout belief in Providence, and a cheery optimism regarding his fellow creatures. Moreover, he was right.

That is not so easy to believe in these days of racketeers, but we have advanced since the times of the iron creeds of the older days.

Naturally, human nature hasn't changed much.

The phase of it which is being exhibited in central Europe just now is not pleasant to behold.

But Whittier lived in a time when men still talked of the old days—when men and women were burned as witches and when religious prejudices were rampant.

Throughout the country today religious tolerance is to be found. Education, which in old New England was confined chiefly to the village schools, was often in the hands of poorly educated men, filled with prejudices.

All the great systems of hospitals, schools and opportunities for advancement have been built up chiefly since the time when the educational center of the country was confined largely to the states along the Atlantic seaboard.

There was little ease, and more hard work than was good for the men and women of the time.

But through it all the people lived and learned. By the time when Emerson, Whittier, Thoreau and many other really able and broad minded men had begun their work of building and teaching, the West was still "wild" in the sense that parts of it were populated by savages, and the greater areas were still forest and prairie.

How astonished would the men and women of that time be if they could come back and look at the industrial development of the country!

Today there are few "backwoods" districts. The schools are everywhere; old prejudices and superstitions have been forgotten.

There are havens for the afflicted poor. It is possible for any boy who has purpose and grit to get an education.

And even in the black days through which we just have passed there has been practically no absolute destitution.

I do not quite agree with the late Doctor Cone that "every day in every way we are growing better and better."

But in most ways we are growing better, and are learning all the time. And the longer we live and think the more intelligent we become and the greater grip we get on the fact that only by mutual helpfulness can we acquire real civilization.

Cool Frock for All-Around Wear

Being a Bridesman Is No Sinecure by a Long Shot

Mate Halasz, an inhabitant of Szeged, holds the world's record as "bridesman"—as distinct from best man—which function he has performed at 1,574 weddings.

The position of "bridesman" at Hungarian peasant weddings is no easy one. Wearing a beribboned hat and carrying a stick decorated with streamers, he goes round delivering the invitations by word of mouth. At the wedding feast he is expected to compose and recite a poem for every dish set on the table and to direct the dances.—London Sunday Observers.

Entered as second-class mail matter at the post office at Silverton, Texas in accordance with an act of Congress March 3, 1879.

EVERY FARMER IS HOLDING his breath at every cloud. Silverton has had several wheat crops knocked out by hail and just now the theme song is "Hail Storm, Stay Way from my door".

JACK ALFRED, manager of the "Jack and June's Comedians," says that he used to advertise rain proof tent—last spring he had to claim "dust proof" to get results. His show will be here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

MAURICE FOUST, THAT dapper young attendant at the Magnolia has found another patch of orange blossoms down at Childress. And he sure likes his flowers too.

THE BURSON MARKET, Troy Burson, proprietor, will have their formal opening a week from Saturday. 12 baskets of groceries, valued at $3.00 each, will be given away, 1 every half hour during the afternoon. No strings attached—just plain "gives 'em away".

W. H. CASH HAS BEEN steppin' out on his wife. She says that she steps out of the store so much that she has most of the clerking to do by herself.

TEXAS CLAIMS TO have everything. And it has—everything but Republicans.

THAT DENTIST EZZELL, down at Quitaque has a scheme that should go over big with the barbers. Here's hoping they never find out about it. He lines your mouth with cotton, puts a clamp on your tongue, and then he's got you. You can't say a word, all you can do is sit, squirm and listen. But he doesn't know, his own power apparently, for he doesn't try to sell you a thing. That's due to his being a dentist instead of a barber. Now, if the barbers could get one of those doo-dads in your mouth, I reckon they'd give you the works.

KELTZ GARRISON SAYS that he doesn't believe in having marriage announcements printed. Let them find out for themselves, he says. There's a good opening for some amateur detective work, methinks.

I ONCE INTERCEPTED Mr. Calvin Coolidge taking a nap in the middle of a presidential executive day. When he opened his eyes, he grinned and asked, "Is the country still here?"—Jewell County (Kans.) Republican.—Personally I always have thought that it was Mr. Hoover who went to sleep on the job.

THE PROBLEM SOLVER

Whether we like it or not, nature often is much better at solving our basic problems than is man. What we have in mind is child labor.

In the 30 years ending with 1929 child labor was reduced 75 percent. And of the total still working 70 per cent were on farms and 14 per cent in personal and domestic service. Of the others, how many jobs would we create by kicking out of the federal service the 2,346 soldiers, sailors and marines who are under 18? Or by keeping 28,456 newsboys from selling their papers outside of school hours? Or by keeping 2,040 juvenile actors and actresses off the stage and out of the movies?

The 75 per cent reduction in 30 years was not brought about by any restriction legislation. Nature did it as part of its long term plan for lifting up mankind. If we don't look out, Nature might leave the whole job up to us.

H.O.L.C. ENDS ACTIVITIES—

SAVED 1,016,142 HOMES

In accordance with the provisions of the Home Owners Loan Act of 1933, the refunding of distress mortgages of the HOLC ended at midnight, June 12, three years from the date the act was signed by President Roosevelt. No more loans will be made by the organization.

Up to May 28, HOLC had closed 1,016,142 loans on urban homes throughout the country to a total of $3,081,893,559 and practically every eligible application for relief received, was completed as a loan. The original past-due mortgages of the borrowers were taken up by the Corporation through exchange of its bonds with the former mortgage holders.

Except for the first 290,000 borrowers whose loans cover a period of 12 years, the remaining 726,000 loans, under the act as amended, extend over a 15 year term, repayable at the rate of $7.91 monthly per thousand dollars, including principal and interest at 5 per cent. This amount to $24 per month on the average loan which was $3,023. The long term and low rate make these loans the most liberal and convenient ever granted to the home owners up to the time the HOLC began its activity. HOLC mortgages give the borrowers an annual saving of 60 million dollars in the reduction from the interest rates they had paid on the loans taken over and in the elimination of renewal charges.

Under the pressure of acute need HOLC stopped the wave of home foreclosures which had reached the record of 1,000 daily when the Roosevelt administration took over the situation.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
L. E. Kent, Pastor

Permit us to use this method of extending to each and every one of you, who is not affiliated with another church, to attend our Sunday School and Preaching services next Lord's Day. Our Sunday School will start at 10:00 A. M. Morning Preaching hour at Eleven, subject, "Going Deeper With God". At the evening hour the pastor will speak on "Look at Your Hands".

Our hearts are made to break when we look around on Sunday morning and see the large number of small children who are not enrolled in our Sunday school. Certainly this ought to stir the hearts of all our teachers and officers to do a greater work. Parents — may I beseech you with all the earnestness of my soul to come and bring those little ones to Sunday School. Don't deprive them of the greatest guide to future happiness they can enjoy, and have. Their lives are just now in the moulding stage.

We need you and them in our Church Service, and you, and they, need us. Bring them Sunday.

DOUGLASS OPENS CAMPAIGN

Curtis Douglass opened his campaign for State Senator for the 31st District in the North Panhandle on Saturday when he spoke to an interested crowd at Spearman at two o'clock in his first address and at 4 o'clock he was greeted by a like gathering at Perryton. Mr. Douglas was accompanied by 42 of his friends and supporters from his home county, all of whom were boosting his candidacy and urging his support.

His talk was devoted largely to an outline of the issues of his campaign and documentary references to the record of Clint Small, the present incumbent, and a candidate for re-election. The almost universal backing of his home county people and the interest with which his talk was received by the voters indicates that his campaign is off to a good start and his supporters and confident of his decisive selection at the July primary.

Douglass declared in his address, launching his campaign that Senator Clint Small his opponent, represented gas stripping corporations in an effort to attack the validity and constitutionality of his own conservation measure.

A schedule of speaking dates has been arranged that will enable Mr. Douglass to reach every part of the district during the remaining days of the campaign.

TYPHOID VACCINATION PROTECTS INDIVIDUAL

Parents of Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and other young people going to camps of any kind, are urged by Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, to have the family physician to vaccinate each individual against typhoid fever. Some of the danger points for spread of typhoid, it was said, are creek swimming holes and flowing springs. Even though the water at these places may appear clear and sparkling, there is danger that it is contaminated.

"Typhoid fever is an unnecessary disease", Dr. Brown said. "Every case is due either to community negligence or to the carelessness or ignorance of some individual. Eternal vigilance in maintaining sanitary surroundings and a pure water supply is necessary."

"Three shots of typhoid, a week apart, will put your child in the protected class. As it takes several weeks for the protective treatment to establish itself in the body, have it done now."

"Typhoid fever is an intestinal complaint caused by the typhoid bacillus. The digestive tract of a patient is consequently infected with typhoid germs. Anything that may be contaminated by the body discharges is apt to be infectious and dangerous.

"The prevention of typhoid fever is peculiarly a matter of community responsibility. In cities large and small, most urgent control measures are those providing for (1) proper disposal of human excreta through sewage disposal plants and toilets of sanitary type; (2) safe public and well water supplies; (3) extermination of flies; (4) healthy food handlers; (5) supervision of disease carriers; and (6) public milk supplies of high quality with the added safeguard of careful pasteurization.

"Prevention of single cases or of epidemics of typhoid fever is dependent upon cooperation of individuals with public health officials in endeavoring to stamp out typhoid entirely"

Marriage license was issued to Robert L. Nabors and Johnnie Lucille Harlan on June 13.

Mrs. M. K. Summers is in Crosbyton this week visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. R. Dobbs.

I am never without Anti-Pain Pills. I think they are much better than anything else I have ever used. Sometimes when I am tired and nervous, and feel like I would go under, I take two Anti-Pain Pills and in a sort time I feel like a different person. Mrs. S. Tidabach, Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania
Your Anti-Pain Pills have been used in my home with wonderful results. I recommend them. Maggie Belle Dudley, Vanceboro, N. C.
Your Anti-Pain Pills helped me a great deal. I have used them for years. I carry them everywhere in my purse and always keep them in the house. They have saved me a great many sick headaches. Mrs. Jennie Neill, Coronado, Calif.

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP IMPORTANT TO LIFE

Sleep is a necessity of life and of health, and habitual loss of sleep will tend to retard the body's recovery from the fatigue of the day's activities, advises Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer.

"The average healthy adult", he said, "spends about one-third of his life in sleep. Far from being a waste of time, this one-third of your life spent in restful sleep will make a happier, healthier, and longer life."

"We may be able to go without sleep for a night or two, but too little sleep for a prolonged length of time, will undermine the health of a rugged person and turn a cheerful individual into a cross, irritable one. When good health can be maintained to such a large degree by merely sleeping and thus allowing overtaxed bodies and minds to regain a proper balance, it is hard to understand why so many persons are heedless of this necessary requirement of a balanced program of life.

"Some individuals require more sleep than others, and the most valuable experiments in this line are the ones each person makes on himself. We must each take into consideration in this experiment however, that how well we sleep is as important as how long we sleep. A "good night's rest" means a sufficient number of hours spent in sleep to enable each individual to feel well, do efficient work and to keep in a cheerful humor the next day."

"Some exercise out of doors each day will help us to sleep soundly at night. We must also have some air in our sleeping quarters. Give as much consideration as possible to the comfort of your bed and bedclothes. Do not mull over your problems and ideas after you have gone to bed. Make your plans early in the evening for a good night's rest by slowing down from the physical and mental work of your daily life."

POULTRY

HOPE TO END HIGH PULLET MORTALITY

Massachusetts College and Poultrymen Study.

By G. O. Olsson, Extension Editor, Massachusetts State College.—WNU Service.

Massachusetts poultrymen and the poultry department of the Massachusetts State college are entering into a partnership to study the problem of reducing mortality of laying pullets. The high death rate of pullets in the laying house is the major problem confronting poultrymen.

The State college poultrymen are launching the second phase of a three-part program to obtain more information concerning the causes of high mortality and to take measures to correct the trouble. The first part of the program was started last winter and spring when 400 poultrymen united in a campaign to grow healthier chicks.

Applications are being received from poultrymen who desire to co-operate in the project of keeping pullets healthy in the laying house. A third part of the program, dealing with breeding, will be started this winter. The co-operating poultrymen are provided with a pamphlet giving a summary of some of the essentials for keeping birds in good condition. In addition, an educational program to meet the needs of the poultrymen will be carried on.

In return for the educational assistance received, the poultrymen will keep records of their management practices and the death rate of their birds. This information will be assembled by the college poultrymen and studied to see what relationship there may be between the various practices of poultry management and the resulting mortality of the laying flock.

The time has come when the poultryman no longer wants to be hand fed on elementary information on poultry keeping, but rather, he wants to bear his share of responsibility in carrying forward every type of educational work which will help make the poultry industry more stable and profitable.

Christian Endeavor News

The following program was given at the Presbyterian church by the Christian Endeavorers last Sunday at six o'clock

- Song
- Scripture reading, Roy Thomas.
- Discussions of Topic, "Christian Purpose," by the Leader.
- Prayer, Agnes White.
- Bible Verses, Jack Burleson.
- "Some Clear Purposes", Phyllis Mae Allred.
- "Paul's Purpose", Dean Griffith.
- Scripture Reading, Johnny Dawson.
- "A Boy's Purpose", Margaret Thomas.
- "Everyone's Purpose", Kathleen Northcutt.
- "Some Special Examples," Perry Thomas.

Talk on "Purpose", Rev. Thorns. Bible Contest: Captains, Wilma Joyce Smythee and Phyllis Mae Allred.

Dismissal Prayer, John White. The leader was John Ed Bain and the program was well given.

The next meeting will be a debate with the devotionals led by Roy Thomas. All young people are invited to be there.

The Endeavorers were pleased with the result of their ice cream and food sale and rummage department Saturday. They now have enough money raised to pay their apportionate expenses for the Presbyterian Conference at Ceta Canyon on the last week in July.

Attend the Rodeo at the Silvertown race track Sunday. 15c.

A FARMER'S LIFE
"AS HE LIVES IT"
By Ed Holmes
(Station C.E.H. Farm)

I talked one week too soon. Along came a rain and hail that "busted" some of my terraces. Burst may be proper English but "busted" explains better, the way those new terraces went out. All I have to do is build them higher and more of them. Just a simple matter of moving some "dirt". There might be dirt other than on farms that it might help to move.

Many farmers through here had their wheat and cotton hailed out completely. Only about fifty percent on this 140 acre farm. You sure better put your ducks in the barn when everybody starts planting cotton. They are liable to get drowned.

Arthur Womack, along with others, says this is the last "big" wheat crop failure they will ever make.

Saturday I questioned ten farmers and found that they owed loan companies in round numbers, about $66,000. Every one of them had heard of the Frazier-Lemke farm refinancing bill and all were in favor of it. In round numbers, if this bill had passed last month these ten farmers would have saved annually, an average of $198.00 each. Probably the difference in success and failure.

Here is the pitiable thing! When I asked them personally if they knew how our representative voted on the bill, only one out of the ten knew. Good for L. A. Williams.

I walked right straight and asked the first ten business men of Floydada that I came to, this same question. Only one of them knew—Walter Collins. Five of them didn't even know what the bill was about. No wonder this farming section can be exploited. Do you know what the bill was about or how Mahon voted? Sure Mahon voted "FOR" the bill even though it was defeated. Good for George Mahon.

Marvin Jones voted "against" it. I reserve the right to change my mind when the facts are presented to me, but at the present time I believe that there are just two sides to this interest rate business: The producer pays and the non-producer receives. When the interest rate goes down, the producer is helped. When the interest rate goes up the non-producer is helped.

The only consolation I get out of it is: "It is more blessed to give than to receive".

You can tell which side your representative is on by his actions and voting, not his oratory just before election time.

If you don't keep up with how your representatives vote, how can you elect them intelligently?

You business men—if you are for the farmer and know that you prosper when we do, why don't you help us lower that terrible drain on this producing section through the interest rate route?

This bill will come up again. Get a copy of the bill and "know" what it is. If you favor it or don't favor it write your representative and know how he stands, then write the candidates and find how they stand. You can then vote intelligently.

You will admit that present conditions warrant intelligent voting.

JOHN DEERE MODEL D TRACTOR

In speed, in performance, in all-round dependability, this is the greatest of all John Deere Model D Tractors—a tractor that for more than twelve years has been outstanding in all those things you look for in a heavy-duty tractor.

It is simplicity itself—there are only two cylinders. This means fewer operating parts—fewer parts to wear—fewer adjustments to make—less upkeep.

This two-cylinder construction means more. It insures the ability to burn low-cost fuels successfully—fuels that save money every working day.

Here is smooth operation, too, on belt and drawbar jobs of all kinds. Here is power—the ability to handle four bottoms in many soils, three bottoms in practically any condition, and similar drawbar and belt jobs. Greater speed, too—a high of 4-1/2 miles per hour with a low of 2-1/2, and an intermediate of 3-1/2 miles per hour.

Investigate this greatest of all John Deere Model D's. Come in.

Only the Fence

A stranger addressed the farmer's boy across the fence.

"Young man, your corn looks kind o' yellow."

"Yes, that's the kind we planted."

"Don't look as if you would get more than half a crop."

"Don't expect to. The landlord gets the other half."

Then, after a pause, the man said: "Boy, there isn't much difference between you and a fool."

"No," replied the boy, "only the fence."—Hoard's Dairyman.

This Makes Laxative Pleasant to Take

People who know Feen-a-mint don't have to "talk themselves" into taking a laxative when they know they need it. They like Feen-a-mint, the delightful chewing gum laxative. For just as soon as you start chewing Feen-a-mint, its stomach-settling mint brings a clean, fresh taste to the mouth. As you chew out the laxative ingredient which is absolutely tasteless, the flow of digestive juices is increased. The laxative is mixed with them and carried into the system gently. Feen-a-mint doesn't gripe, nauseate or cause upset, and it is non-habit-forming. It passes through the stomach and into the bowels so scientifically that your action is wonderfully easy and thorough. Try the pleasant, refreshing Feen-a-mint way the next time you need a laxative. Doctors prescribe its laxative ingredient for both children and adults. Sold on money-back guarantee. Generous family size package 15c and 25c.

Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club Hello Everybody!

"A Man-Eating Barracuda" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

NEXT time you're out to Jones Beach State park and see a big husky blond Adonis in a life guard's suit, give him the high sign. He is Capt. William Johns of Jones Beach State park, Long Island, and he has had more adventures than you can shake a stick at.

Cap makes the club with a story of a fight he had with a giant barracuda. The barracuda, which is known as "the tiger of the seas," is just about the toughest and most dangerous fish in American waters. Those babies make a full grown shark look like a gold fish when it comes to downright ferocity.

Did you ever see a barracuda? They've got mouths on them like alligators with a double row of needle-sharp teeth that can cut a man's leg like a hot knife cuts butter. They don't come as big as sharks but are much more feared by fishermen who know.

Why, by golly, when you hook a small barracuda you've got to kill him before you pull him in the boat or it's just too bad. They can put up an awful fight even out of water and you'd better be sure he's dead before you try removing the hook or you're apt to lose a finger or a hand, depending on the size of the fish.

Cap Was No Munchausen About His Adventures.

Cap has been a seal hunter in the Baltic; a lumberjack in Canada; a soldier of fortune in Mexico; a sailor under many flags; a boxer and wrestler; a swimming instructor; life guard; a big game hunter and shark fisherman and a lot of other adventurous things but he says he never had a closer call than he had with that barracuda.

Cap, by the way, is the fellow who caught a seagull on the wing, down in Florida a few years ago. That trick was an accident but it's worth telling. Cap was fishing for sailfish and using live bait. He threw his line, baited with a small fish, into the air and the seagull swooped down and snatched the hook and bait before it touched the water.

I call catching a bird going fishing. Don't you? Cap let the seagull go, of course, and I'll bet that gull flew away a wiser but sadder bird.

Sea Tiger "Picks" on Life Guard.

The barracuda was something else again. Cap was acting as a lifeguard at the Roman Pools—a swimming club in Miami—when he decided to spear himself some breakfast. He waded into the water up to his neck and looked around for some nice luscious mullet. He didn't see any mullet that morning but he did see a big sand shark and drove his spear into its tough hide. Now a sand shark isn't dangerous like his man-eating cousin but the blood from the wounded sand shark attracted a passing sea bandit who was plenty dangerous.

That sea bandit was a hungry barracuda and he came straight for Cap. Cap knew what he was up against at a glance. He was glad he had his feet on the bottom. Expert swimmer as he is, Cap knew he wouldn't have a chance in deep water against the tiger of the seas. He knew too that he couldn't run away without taking a chance on losing a limb or two—perhaps his life.

The fish was nearly six feet long—the largest Cap had ever seen—and six foot of hungry barracuda is just about one hundred pounds of dynamite. Cap had two small spears with him and as he saw the flash of those terrible teeth he drove one home.

Cap Just Missed Being a Fish Dinner.

The spear broke off in the tough hide of the fish but didn't seem to phase him. He leaped several feet out of the water and turning in the air opened that big alligator mouth of his and Cap says he thought it was the end.

Zowie! That foot-long mouth lined with dagger-like teeth snapped shut in Cap's face with a sound like a steel trap. Cap says he'd sooner hear Mauser shells singing around his head any day. He knew that on whatever part of his anatomy those teeth closed that part would come away.

The streak of silver shot at him again and Cap grabbed his second spear and, stepping aside, drove it with all his force into his enemy's body. A thrust like that would kill a man-eating shark or cause him to give up the battle but not a barracuda. Those babies just don't know the meaning of the word quit. They quit when they are dead and no sooner.

A Harpoon Finished Old Man Barracuda.

Well, sir, the second spear broke off the way the first one had and Cap found himself with only the wooden handle for a weapon. He started yelling for assistance, hoping that someone would have the nerve to bring him out a harpoon. But, he says, he wouldn't blame anyone for hesitating. The barracuda enjoys such a bad reputation along the Florida coast that most of the natives stay far away from his dental array. And I don't blame them.

But Cap Johns got a break. One of his life saving crew saved their captain. He saw Cap fighting for his life and grabbing a harpoon ran out in the water. The battle had been going on for over ten minutes when he got there. And he arrived just in time. Cap was just about exhausted and those snapping teeth were coming closer and closer.

Cap figured he couldn't hold out until the lifeguard got to him and he yelled for the other man to throw him the harpoon. The lifeguard threw the sharp weapon. The harpoon flashed in the sun and Cap grabbed it like a juggler and in one quick movement drove knife point into the jaws that were wide open to grab him!

And that was the end of Cap's barracuda as well as the end of Cap's adventure. And, if you don't think it was a close-call, just take a peep at a barracuda's upper and lower plates the next time you get a chance. But don't get too close to him.

Old Name of Korea Was Restored After Treaty

Chosen became the official name of the country after the treaty of 1910 which made Korea part of the Japanese empire. But the change of name is one of the least of the odds between the Koreans and Japan. For Chosen was the ancient name of the country, and one it is reputed to have borne for most of 3,000 years, according to a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Korean traditions have it that the nation was founded by one Ki-tze, a Chinese counselor of state who entered the peninsula in 1122 B. C., with several thousand Chinese emigrants, and became king over them and over

Bedspreads Welcome Delicate Lilac Motif

Dark and light lilacs, tied with a flourish into the loveliest of floral sprays, is far and away the nicest—and easiest—flowery touch one can give a bedroom. Even an amateur will find the large spray easy to embroider on a bedspread with four smaller sprays on the bolster, or scarf ends. The flowers are entirely formed of lazy-daisy stitch and French knots, the leaves of blanket stitch—the rest is in outline. With cotton or rayon floss the designs are seemingly done in no time, in shades of lilac, orchid, or palest yellow.

Ways of Giving

SOME men give so that you are angry every time you ask them to contribute; they give so that their gold and silver shoot you like a bullet. Other persons give with such beauty that you may remember it as long as you live; and say, "It is a pleasure to go to such men." There are some that give as springs do; whether you go to them or not, they are always full; and your part is merely to put your dish under the overflowing stream. Others give just as a pump does when the well is dry, and the pump leaks.—Henry Ward Beecher

Quick Method for Increasing Egg Production

Average Egg Yield More Than Doubled by Proven Plan

Yolk and white—that's the whole story of the interior of every egg. In the production of an egg there must be enough white to go with the yolk or the egg cannot be laid. That's common knowledge—universally accepted knowledge—yet it is so frequently disregarded in the handling of poultry that many flocks today are producing far below their normal capacity, according to C. S. Johnson, manager of the Purina poultry department.

"The fact that one hen or a group of hens has a better production record than another bird or group of birds does not mean, necessarily, that the former have better inherent laying ability than the latter," Johnson says. "It means far more often that the poorer group just hasn't been given equal opportunity to show what they could do in the way of fully sustained production.

"In every hen, for example, there's an 'egg nest' containing hundreds of small yolks—some no larger than a pinhead, others as large as a marble. These yolks were put in the hen by nature and are developed by the yolk making feed that the hen eats. Grain alone will develop these yolks. But they can't be turned out as yolks alone. There must be a white and there must be a shell.

"There's a small amount of white and shell material in grain, but not much," says Johnson. "That's why hens fed on grain alone lay so few eggs. It is estimated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture that the average farm hen in the United States lays only 72 eggs a year and most of these are produced in the spring months when eggs are cheap. That's what straight grain feeding or unbalanced feeding does. When one stops to realize that it takes 80 eggs from a hen in a year to pay her feed cost it is easily observed that the average farm hen hardly pays her way.

"But she can be made to pay by giving her enough material for whites and shells that will enable her to complete the eggs with the yolks she has in her body so that more eggs can be laid. It takes laying mash to make these whites and shells. Grain alone just can't do it. Neither will just any random untested, ordinary laying mash. What's required is a mash that has been developed, tested, balanced, and blended especially to give hens what they need for making whites and shells.

"It is entirely possible to produce such a mash. At our Experimental Farm, for instance, we have definitely and repeatedly been able to step up egg production from a yearly average of 72 eggs per bird when fed on grain alone to an average of 178 eggs."

Tulia Girls Drown

Tragedy entered the homes of two Tulia families last Friday afternoon when Oma Lee White, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loy White; and Geraldine, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Ragan, lost their lives while wading in the lake just north of the Tulia school building.

It was a well known lake to the children of the town and has been considered a safe place for wading, but within the past few months a highway has been built through this lake, near its center. In bringing the soil up for a grade for this highway ditches were made some twelve or fourteen feet deep.

Seemingly, these girls, unaware of the danger, stepped off into one of these ditches and were drowned before help could be summoned. Other children attracted the attention of Dub Simmons who was passing in his truck. He rescued one of the girls and with the assistance of others who had arrived by that time, the other girl was found, but both were dead.

Their bodies were taken, one to the hospital, the other to a physicians office and all available means were used to try to bring them back to life but without avail.—Tulia Herald.

The FARMALL 4-Row Cultivator

Capacity 40 to 60 Acres a Day

IT CULTIVATES FASTER

—and gives you more time to do seasonable work

WHEN the McCormick-Deering Farmall 4-Row Cultivating outfit goes to work on your farm you think of cultivating in terms of hours required instead of days. Extra help and expenses go down. The 40 to 60 acre-a-day capacity of this outfit more than doubles your effectiveness. You get through cultivating quicker. You can cultivate oftener when conditions require it without neglecting other important work.

In first cultivations you can clear 35 to 50 acres a day; later 50 to 60 acres a day. Another big advantage is that you don't have to groom and feed horses after a hard day in the field. When you're through you simply shut off the ignition. The Farmall never gets tired—it doesn't lag. Flies don't bother it.

We will quote you on a McCormick-Deering 4-Row outfit, on request. Come in and let's talk it over.
