Grid Season Opens Friday

The 1936 Football Season will open Friday, September 19, at 3:00 P. M. when Silverton meets the W. S. T. C. high school in a non-league game.

Football candidates at Silverton this year are rather scarce, but according to the boys themselves, and W. Wilson, coach, quality will make up for quantity. The boys are expected to be winners. They will play a game with the old players around town, the boys showed that they are out for some victories, and are to start with a win over the training school boys this Friday afternoon.

The players who will see action Friday are:

Edis Martin	Halfback
Robert Smith	Fullback
W. B. Smith	Halfback
Frank Brown	Halfback
Frank Shaffer	Quarterback
Charles Dunn	Quarterback
Bert White	Center
Harvin Montague	R. Guard
Jan Lee	L. Guard
Jack Haines	R. Tackle
Bill Gregg	L. Tackle
Bill Norrid	R. End
Edo Walling	L. End
R. Steele	L. End
Walter Allard	Halfback

Other players who are out for this season are: A. J. Rowell, Glenn Williamson, Grady Martin, Alfred Hunt, Raymond Hunt.

The game is called for 3:00 P. M. Let's get out there and back these kids. Nobody can play football without support—it just isn't human. The boys will be out there doing their best. Let's wrap a quarter in handkerchiefs and see them off to a good start this season.

MRS. HAHN HAS MANY PUPILS FOR MUSIC

Private music lessons are being given by Mrs. Roy Hahn at the school house, Mondays and Thursdays. Instruction will be given in piano, orchestra or band instruments, or in voice. At present she has fifteen pupils.

Those enrolling for piano lessons are Miss Rachel Campbell, Lucile Kirk, Geraldine Montague, Lora Fern Faust, Dean Griffith, Patricia Bomar, Faye Tice Bomar, Mary Cowart, Clynell Hutsell, Jane White, Roy Norrid, Louwen Williamson, Gene Divinye, Freda Wimberly and Samita Bob Carter.

W. S. T. C., Canyon Well Represented by Silverton

Probably more Silverton students have entered West Texas State Teachers College, at Canyon, this year than any other school. The following students will attend that school this year and registered there on September 15:

Wilma Dickerson,
Jim Haynes
Sarah Frances Smith
Anis Fowler
Gaynelle Douglas
Dorothy Dickenson
Garland Brown
Altha Brown.

Haylake Wins Over Francis

The Haylake baseball team won over Francis 8-4 Friday in an inter-school game.

These schools are playing almost every Friday and considerable interest has been shown in the games in those communities.

Next Friday, Antelope Flat plays Haylake at Haylake.

FIRE AT AUSTIN HOME

The home of Mrs. Alva Austin in the east part of town was partially destroyed by fire Saturday evening about six o'clock.

As Mrs. Austin was getting supper the kerosene range exploded and within a few minutes the entire kitchen was ablaze. The Fire Boys did quick work in extinguishing it, but considerable damage was done. The kitchen will have to be refinished. Much of their clothing was damaged by the flames. Little water damage was done.

No insurance was carried by Mrs. Austin, either on the house or its furnishings.

Boy Scout Circus

The South Plains Council plans to have a Boy Scout Circus November 26 and 27 to be held at Lubbock. Plans for this huge event were approved by the Council Executive Board Thursday evening, September 10. A program chairman is to be selected in the next few days and a program outlined.

Approximately 1200 boys and four hundred leaders are expected to participate in this huge demonstration of Scouting activity.

Each troop will be mailed definite assignments of their parts in the Circus within the next two weeks and will start immediately in preparation for them.

MRS. GERTRUDE LUSK OPENS CAFE HERE

The Edwards Cafe, north of the Palace Theater, has been purchased by Mrs. Gertrude Lusk and will formally open for business Saturday.

The place has been cleaned, and redecorated and Mrs. Lusk promises that it will be a model little cafe.

While the cafe is now open for business, Saturday is the formal opening, and Mrs. Lusk is giving free coffee to everyone that day.

Mrs. O. F. Kolb, well known here, will be in charge of the kitchen and Vontella Gresham will be there to serve you in the lunch room.

It is planned to keep the place open day and night, with James Patton working the night shift.

More Rain and Better Gardens

Now that rain has at last come our way after waiting patiently (?) for it so long, surely there is no reason why there will not be fall gardens in abundance to fill those garden pantry budgets for the family instead of griping about the lack of rain.

Try garden stuff for that tired feeling. Vegetables and fruits in the proper quantity and variety together with milk and eggs, furnish important substances which are sure to be lacking in a diet which contains largely meats, breadstuffs, sweets, and fats. Children grow better and have more resistance to infection. And Adults keep in better health when the diet contains an abundance of vegetables, fruit and milk.

Don't limit a garden to mustard greens and beans, but include such a variety of good garden crops as to make the job interesting and afford the family the greatest measure of health. Onions, lettuce, corn, radishes are good, but asparagus, New Zealand Spinach and broccoli, also are. Asparagus is easy to grow and care for, yet few gardeners are attempting to grow it. Let's get started with some new, or at least some different vegetables and lend a little variety to the diet. The same old things every day soon grow tiresome and are not tempting to a lagging appetite. Just to start in with something different, try serving beets to your family, using the following recipe and see if they don't like them:

- ### Harvard Beets
- 3 cups cooked beets
 - Half cup sugar
 - Half tsp. cornstarch or tsp. flour
 - Third cup vinegar
 - Two-thirds cup water
 - 1 tsp. salt
 - 2 or 3 cloves (optional)
 - 2 tsp. butter.
- Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt, thoroughly in saucepan. Measure vinegar and fill cup with water, add to first mixture and stir over heat until thickened. Add cloves. Add small whole beets or beets cut in uniform size, and let stand in warm place for one hour. Remove cloves and add butter just before serving. Vinegar may be poured over the cooked beets and a sauce made of the remaining ingredients and added to the marinated beets shortly before serving. The amount of salt used will depend upon the saltiness of the beets.

BRANDING DANGEROUS CARS

In a European country, the cars of motorist convicted of flagrant violation of traffic laws are painted with an emblem, as a warning to other drivers. It is said that this practice, newly started, has caused an appreciable decline in dangerous driving, as motorists naturally want to avoid the embarrassment and publicity the emblem gives them.

A great many thousand American motorists should have their cars so branded.

The worst class of offenders consists of those who push the throttle to the floor board as soon as they get out of sight of a traffic officer. Excessive speed—and there are times when 15 miles per hour is excessive—is responsible for more deaths than any other driving violation.

Passing on hills and curves and "meandering" through traffic are also potent causes of death, injury and destruction. On a myriad tragic occasions a driver has tried to save a needless minute—at the cost of a life.

Driving on the wrong side of the road, jumping traffic lights, passing at intersections—are practices dear to the heart of the Dark Angel. They help keep our morgues and hospitals full to capacity.

Yes, it might be a good idea to adopt the branding practice in this country. A suitable emblem would be a skull and cross bones.

THANKS, FRIENDS

We wish to thank all those who aided in saving our home from fire; also we thank all for your assistance and kindness since.

Two-Inch Rain Drizzles at Silverton

Texas skies opened up with a slow rain, Wednesday morning at 2:00 A. M. and at Thursday noon, something over two inches of rain has been received here.

The rain has been falling, and is still falling, in an ideal manner—slowly, and with every bit of it being soaked up by the thirsty earth. Late feed, pastures and farm crops in general will take a new lease on life and as for the fall wheat, some of which has been sown, nothing could be finer.

As usual, transportation, is lagging somewhat, but no one seems to mind. Cars and trucks have been stuck and grinding about here for two days. Two of the school buses, were stalled on their route yesterday morning.

The effect on the opening cotton bales remains to be seen. Some say it is disastrous, and some maintain that with sunny weather reasonably soon, no harm will be done.

At noon Thursday, the rain is still spitting a little and although weather reports are for sunshine and warmer weather, it looks like more rain.

Mail service has been hampered but it is thought that the rain is general over the Panhandle.

Funds Allocated To Develop Health Units

One of the outstanding benefits of the allocation of Social Security funds to the State Department of Health, as pointed out recently by Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, is the possibility of broadening the program of County Health Units. Although there had previously been established and maintained only seven county units within the State, the result of their work has proved the value of the organization and disclosed the need for health units in other Texas counties.

The first county health unit in the nation was established in 1911 in Yakima County, Washington, following an epidemic of typhoid fever that attracted the attention of the United States Public Health Service. Recommendations were made for the establishment of a health organization, with a full physician in charge and with a public health nurse, and a sanitary inspector. The Rockefeller Sanitary Commission, in its campaign for hookworm control at the same time that permanent county organizations that permanent county organization were needed to carry on the work. The Commission made temporary grants to certain counties for development of county health units, and later the Public Health Service to counties.

Under the plan of the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation funds were allotted to Texas in 1917, combined with State funds and a program administered through the State Department of Health. Five field units were formed at that time and they have done excellent work in promoting community health, says Dr. John Brown.

Under the provisions of the Social Security Act it is possible to form new health units in Texas through the State Department of Health with counties furnishing a portion of funds necessary, and State and Federal governments completing the amount.

English Club Organizes

The eighth grade English Club organized September 11 and elected officers. The following officers were elected: Bruce Burleson, Jr., chairman; John Earl Simpson, secretary-treasurer.

The name selected for the club was the "Junior Activity Club". It will meet each Friday.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT CHURCH OF CHRIST SUNDAY

Sunday at the Church of Christ, there will be preaching morning and evening. The subject for the night service will be "Will Jesus Come Back to Earth to Rule and Reign?" Mr. Clyde E. Riley of Wellington, Texas, will do the preaching.

Mr. B. R. Bassel of Plainview, will have a quartette here Sunday for 45 minutes of specials.

Old Settlers Day At Tri-State Fair

On Wednesday, September 23, more than 2,000 members of the Panhandle Old Settlers Association will gather on the grounds of the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo. The program will begin promptly at 10 a. m.

W. H. Fuqua pioneer cattleman and banker, who is president of the Association, will deliver the president's address and have charge of the program.

J. C. Estlack, publisher of the Donley County leader and president of the Panhandle Press Association, will deliver the principle address at the president's request. His subject will be, "Early Newspapers of the Panhandle." Estlack resided in Tascosa in 1883, and later became a rider of the range with such celebrities as Will Rogers. His knowledge of the Panhandle over this period of 53 years will enter into his address.

Group singing, and musical numbers that were popular in the old days will be on the program.

Roll call by dates will be an interesting feature.

Each year the program is dedicated to some group, industry, or individual. The newspaper fraternity will be in the spotlight this year.

Keep Kids Out Of Courthouse At Night

Where is your wandering boy tonight?

The Commissioners have been receiving complaints recently of the youngsters playing in the courthouse at night. Halls become littered up, walls marked, and various other little things happen as a result of these thoughtless kids.

And so, the County Commissioners are asking you to keep a little closer watch over your flock. Otherwise, more drastic steps will be taken.

Eighth Grade Organizes

The Eighth Grade organized for the year with the following officers: Bruce Burleson, President; Vivian Burleson, V-President; Faye Blocker, Sec.-Treasurer; John Earl Simpson, Reporter.

The class is sponsored this year by Miss Cross.

SCHOOL BUSES

Three new buses have been purchased by the Silverton Schools and are running daily routes in bringing in the children from the outlying areas around Silverton. There are three routes which these buses travel. The north route is definitely established. This bus makes two trips and carries sixty-five children. Miss Luella Graham is the driver for this bus.

The southwest route brings in fifty-two children and Mr. Dutch Tidwell is the driver for this bus. The southeast route also brings in fifty-two children and Mr. Bill Hardin is the driver.

These two routes are still temporary and will probably be broken into two shorter routes each. Mr. Kelsav asks the corporation of the school patrons in working out this school bus schedule. Rules and regulations for the use of the buses will appear in next weeks issue of this paper.

MRS. JOHN ARNOLD OVER STATION KGNC

Mrs. John Arnold of Silverton, is the composer of many poems and songs. Several of these have been arranged with musical scores, and she has received considerable favorable comment from producers.

Her song, "Bluebirds and Bluebonnets" was featured in a broadcast from Amarillo Station KGNC, Sunday at 1:15. Mrs. Arnold and Miss Helen Paxton sang the song as a vocal duet.

Next Sunday at the same hour another of her compositions, "Baby Dreams", will be sung by a member of the Beacon Male Quartette.

LAKE HOME VIEW DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Lakeview Home Demonstration Club met September 10 with fourteen members present and two visitors.

A very interesting demonstration on Sunday night suppers was given by Mrs. Andrew Sanders. The next meeting will be September 24 with Mrs. Lewis Frances as hostess.

W. A. BOONE DIES AT ARP, TEX.

Word was received here by the Silverton Masons, of the death of W. A. Boone, the last of the charter members of the Silverton Masonic Lodge. He died at Arp, Texas Saturday, September 12, at past eighty years of age.

Mr. Boone came here over forty years ago and is listed among the earliest of Briscoe County pioneers. He moved to Arp in 1932, where he has since made his home.

Mr. Boone was buried at Arp with Masonic honors, which were authorized by the local lodge.

Finley White's Agricultural Briefs

Time waits for no man—neither does the rain. Many wheat farmers who waited for a rain to break their stubble will now have to wait for a rain to bring up volunteer wheat and they may have to wait a long time for rain enough to sow on. The farmers who broke their stubble early though have already got their volunteer up and many of them have enough moisture to sow.

New Development

Many problems presented themselves at the General Meeting in Plainview last week. Some of these problems may have to be referred to Amos an Andy for solution—County Agents aren't smart enough and it looks like the State and Washington Officers can not help us out a whole lot.

The Washington Office requires that all the CROP land on every farm under worksheet be measured. In making this requirement they failed to make sufficient "financial" arrangements to get the job done. The Washington Offices tells us they haven't any more money to let us have to do this job with. This means only one thing—that every farmer will be required to measure and plot his field before he can get paid.

After the farmer measures and maps his farm the Committeemen will visit the farm and check 15 to 20% of the measurements. If these are found to be correct, then the committeemen will certify the farm for payment. If measurements are found to be in error by the Committeemen, they will notify the farmer to re-measure and will then re-check his figures. This seems to be the only way possible for us to get the job done with the amount of money which has been allotted to the county.

Before measuring and plotting your farm, wait for this meeting in your community to explain the hows and whys of measuring. There will be community meetings held all over the county this week to explain this little job we're going to have to get done.

Amarillo Fair

Preparations are being made to put on a Briscoe Booth at Amarillo this year. The show stuff that we expect to display will be carried to Amarillo this Saturday. It has to be in place by 9:00 A. M. Monday, September 21st. The response to my call for Agricultural Products has been anything but pleasing. Remember, if we make a "Bu. Show" at Amarillo, you will be partially to blame. This isn't a one-man booth, it's a COUNTY BOOTH. How about putting your shoulder to the wheel and helping us out with this show? We need you!

Trench Silo — Again

Too much emphasis cannot be put on the importance of trench silos. It now looks like we will have some feed to put into a silo. It keeps better in a silo than anyplace else. Feed will keep indefinitely in a trench silo. The proof of how good and how practical trench silos are may be found in the fact that every man who has one is sold on its use. He continues to fill it, and quite often digs others to be filled.

Briscoe County farmers have been quite backward when it comes to taking advantage of this means of preserving feed for rainless days.

Turkey Hints

Now is the time to begin putting the finish on your turkeys. The Thanksgiving market will be opening up now almost before you know it. A little extra feed just now will finish those turkeys up to where they will all grade No. 1, and bring a better price. Don't overlook this bet, for you'll be sorry pay day.

PIE SUPPER AT THE SAN JACINTO SCHOOL

The San Jacinto School is sponsoring a Pie Supper Friday, September 25, at 8:00 o'clock. Everybody come and bring a pie. Gents please bring a pocketful of money.

The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the school and for playground equipment. Don't forget, Friday, September 25 at the San Jacinto school.

Mrs. Letha Green arrived from East Vine, New Mexico Tuesday and is visiting the Northcutts and Mrs. Henderson.

Dave Miller Passes Away

Funeral services for Dave M. Miller were held from the First Baptist Church here, Monday, September 14.

Mr. Miller, one of Briscoe County's leading farmer-ranchmen, passed away at the Lubbock Sanitarium Sunday, September 13, of complications arising from a throat infection.

Dave M. Miller was born at Ellajay, Georgia, November 22, 1864. He made his home in that section until early manhood and on March 11, 1890, he was united in marriage to Miss Alice Whittaker. Twelve children were born to this union, seven girls and five boys. Four boys and four girls survive their father.

At the age of 22 Mr. Miller united with the Baptist Church and through out his whole life, was an active Christian worker. His neighbors speak of the many ways in which he lived his religion in every day life—always helpful and kindly to all.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller were among the Briscoe County pioneers, and moved to the County over thirty years ago, and have made their home here ever since.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife, Mrs. Alice Miller, and eight children, besides many friends and other relatives. The surviving children are:

- Mrs. Doc Thomas, Quitaque, Texas
 - Mrs. Briscoe Honea, Leevinning, Cal.
 - Mrs. Olen Ward, Silverton, Texas
 - Mrs. J. L. Garner, Quitaque, Texas
 - Bob Miller, Silverton, Texas
 - Clair Miller, Silverton, Texas
 - Charley Miller, Quitaque, Texas
 - Frank Miller, Quitaque, Texas
- The Briscoe County News joins the entire community in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

APPRECIATION

We take this means of sincerely thanking our many friends for their kindness and words of sympathy during the illness and death of our dear husband and father. Your deeds helped us to bear our greatest burden. May God bless each one of you.

HAYLAKE H. D. CLUB HAS ALL DAY MEETING

Several members and visitors met at the home of Mrs. Walter Brannon last Wednesday for an all day meeting of the Haylake H. D. Club. A quilt was quilted and 25 Dutch doll blocks were finished. At noon a plentiful luncheon was served. At three o'clock Miss Meadows gave a very interesting talk on "Our Pantry" record sheets were handed out and meeting places were decided on. The next meeting place will be at Mrs. A. Bingham Sept. 23. Mrs. Talley will give the demonstration. Much interest is shown by this Club in the exhibit that will be at Silverton in October. Members present: Mesdams: Talley, London, Mollie London, Crow Welch, Aury Yancy, John Vaughn, E. Vaughn, Hutsell, Bingham, T. C. Ruby and Misses Meadows and Myrtle Nolan. Visitors present were Mrs. R. M. Hill, Baily Henderson, Mother Brannon and Mrs. Jess Brannon.

Members don't forget our next Club day Wed. 23rd at Mrs. A. Bingham.

BOY SCOUT MEETING

A Boy Scout Meeting will be held Tuesday evening, September 22 at the Scout Hall. All Scouts be present.

HIGH SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

The record of those attending school in Silverton was almost complete according to A. L. Kelsav, Superintendent of Schools.

In the High School we find 34 pupils in the eighth grade; 30 in the ninth grade; 35 in the tenth grade, and 34 in the eleventh grade. This makes a total of 132 students in the high school and is practically the same as last year.

In the grade school we find the enrollment a little under what it has been in previous years. This is probably due to some families moving from this vicinity. The first grade has twenty-nine pupils; second grade thirty-six; third grade, twenty-five; fourth grade, twenty-eight; fifth grade, thirty-two; sixth grade, thirty-two; and the seventh grade, forty-six. The count shows a total of 228 students for the grade school.

World's Chemists Busy The New Hell-Broth Our Huge Gold Pile

The great fighters in Asia and Europe in the days of Frederick the Great and Napoleon had little idea of war's future.

Arthur Brisbane

The wholesale killers of the old days prepared their killings by marching men up and down, drilling them, encouraging them with titles, brass bands to lead them, fancy uniforms. All that means little now.

About 100 miles from Berlin there is a station called Leuna. There most useful work is done, in theory and through study of the manufacture of synthetic petroleum; and there most important, learned men with big heads, spectacles and an amount of education that would make you dizzy if you could imagine it, concentrate their brains on the preparation of better, more efficient poison gases and high explosives.

Every country has its similar death laboratory; men perhaps as efficient as those of Germany, though Germany is the kingdom of chemistry, the teacher of other nations.

Henry Irving, on the stage of his theater in London, prepared an impressive presentation of the witches in "Macbeth," old, toothless hags, preparing their hell-broth, with powder to summon spirits from the dead and make them foretell the future.

Far more efficient are those solemn German chemists, physicists and other professors, preparing the real hell-broth of poison gas, upon which the future of civilization and the domination of the earth may depend for many centuries.

We had our periods of universal barbarism and cannibalism, our ages of flint, bronze and iron, our many interesting forms of rulership, planned to give one of a few control over all the others. We had the age of military feudalism, and many think that we are now seeing the end of "industrial feudalism."

There are a good many things we haven't seen and many to which we devote too little thought, including perhaps the fact that it is dangerous to be too rich if you are not prepared to defend yourself against burglars.

Those thousands of millions in gold that we are hiding away in a hole in the ground, as ingeniously as any squirrel hiding his hickory nuts, may bring us trouble some day.

The thought of those ten thousand millions' worth of gold bars and dollars, hidden not very far below the surface, might cause some ingenious Asiatic or European to say to himself:

"For one or two billions I could prepare the necessary machinery, flying ships and poison gas included, to conquer the necessary areas of the United States and frighten the others into submission. Having laid down my layer of gas, I would descend and take the ten thousand millions and go home with a clean profit of eight billions in gold."

Mussolini races his big Italian built automobile, the engine burning alcohol, made of Italian farm products—no gasoline. Some lawmakers in America suggest compelling the use of 10 per cent alcohol in all fuel for American automobiles. Fuel alcohol can be made from corn, and the law, it is said, would give work to 2,000,000 men on 30,000,000 acres of farm land.

It seems impossible to believe the hideous accounts of the maltreatment and cruel deaths inflicted upon women in the civil war now raging in Spain.

That men should fight and murder each other is to be expected, since they are at best "half tiger, half monkey," and often the monkey gives way to the tiger. But that they should inflict shameful ill treatment and hideous death on defenseless women seems utterly unbelievable, even when you know what men are, in a mob.

Current Events IN REVIEW by Edward W. Pickard

Split in Labor Ranks Is Now in Effect

LABOR DAY, for organized labor, was considerably marred by the fact that the suspension of the ten unions which followed John Lewis had just become effective. However, the holiday was celebrated as much as usual all over the country and the workers were addressed by many notables. President William Green of the A. F. of L., speaking at Knoxville, Tenn., declared that only labor's enemies would profit from the schism. He made a plea for a higher wage level, shorter working hours, freedom to organize, additional social security legislation and adoption of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution.

He also assailed the idea of an independent labor party and pledged the federation to a non-partisan policy in the present presidential campaign.

John L. Lewis made a radio address at Washington but did not mention the split. He maintained that American industry could "easily pay a minimum income to unskilled labor of $2,500 a year." Urging labor to organize to better its condition, Lewis said that "able economists have already shown that the entire scope of American life—social, economic, physical, and spiritual—may be vastly improved."

Secretary of Labor Perkins, also speaking over the radio, ignored the civil war within labor's ranks and painted labor's future as rosy. "Some 1,000,000 men and women who were jobless at this time last year have been added to the ranks of workers in private industry and the amount of money in pay envelopes has been increased nearly 42 million dollars in weekly wages," said Miss Perkins.

None of the noted speakers seemed to wish to comment on the situation in Minneapolis, where strikes have resulted in the shutting down of that city's immense milling industry. It is expected this strike will be extended next to Buffalo, second American milling center, and later to Chicago. The issue is the closed shop; the milling industry never has been unionized.

Irun Falls to the Rebels; San Sebastian Next

FIERCE attacks by the Spanish rebels resulted in the capture of Irun, on the French border, and the defenders were mercilessly slaughtered save for those who were able to take refuge in France. The town was reduced to smoking ruins, and the victors promptly started an advance westward against San Sebastian, their main objective in the north. Recognizing the fact that this large resort city could not long be defended, the government administration there offered to surrender the place if full amnesty were promised; but declared if this were refused the city would be burned to the ground and the 625 fascist prisoners held there would be shot. There was great discord among the defenders, the anarchists insisting on destroying the city anyhow.

South of Madrid the government forces were said to have made progress and there were claims that Talavera had been taken and that the Alcazar in Toledo was practically battered to pieces by loyalist artillery. The rebels' advance on Madrid from the south and west was supposed to have been halted.

The Madrid government was reorganized and Francisco Largo Caballero, left wing Socialist, was made premier. French workers in Paris in a great demonstration insisted that the government abandon its non-intervention policy and give active aid to the Spanish government. Premier Blum, while not concealing his sympathy with the Madrid crowd, declared that if France dropped neutrality, Italy and Germany would be able to give the Spanish rebels much speedier and more effective aid than the French could give to the loyalists.

Representatives of twenty-four powers were scheduled to confer in London on plans for the establishment of a nonintervention control committee. Portugal, however, was still holding out.

Mrs. Markham Flies Atlantic, Landing in Nova Scotia

MRS. BERYL MARKHAM of England put her name on the roll of fame as the first woman to make a solo flight across the north Atlantic from east to west. She started from London for New York, but her fuel gave out and she was forced to land her small monoplane at Balaine cove near Louisburg, Nova Scotia. Except for a few scratches she was unhurt, but the plane was badly damaged.

Another woman, Louise Thaden of the United States, gained fame by winning the $15,000 Bendix trophy race, a transcontinental dash from New York to Los Angeles; and yet another woman, Laura Ingalls, took second place. In the Los Angeles air meet Michael Detroyat, French race and stunt pilot, won high honors.

Nine persons were killed when a sight-seeing plane crashed near Pittsburgh.

France to Spend Vast Sum for Military Defense

FRANCE'S government has decided that conditions in Europe are so threatening that it must spend a huge sum for national defense. So it adopted a program for increasing the efficiency of the army which will cost $300,000,000 in the next four years. The proposal was made by Edouard Daladier, minister of defense. The first installment of $200,000,000 will be disbursed in 1937.

The program calls for an intensive increase of mechanized units and also for rearmament. Furthermore, it provides an increase in the size of the professional army and the creation of a specialized group of long service noncommissioned officers such as already exist in the French navy.

The program also provides for strengthening the frontier fortifications. But the chief improvement will be made in the air force which will be increased by 2,000 planes.

Roosevelt and Landon Confer on Drouth

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT and Alf M. Landon, rival candidates for the Presidency, met in somewhat dramatic fashion in Des Moines, Iowa; but they met as chief executives of the United States and of Kansas respectively for the purpose of discussing plans for the relief of drouth-stricken farmers. The conference, held at Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion and including the governors of the other states that had suffered especially from the drouth, began in the state house in Des Moines, where Governor Herring entertained the distinguished visitors at a luncheon. The President and Mr. Landon, it was said, did most of the talking at this repast and exchanged a lot of joking remarks. Then the conference was started in earnest, each state being taken up in turn.

Early in the evening Mr. Roosevelt entertained the governors at dinner aboard his special train. On that occasion he and Mr. Landon had their most intimate talk. Results of the conference, if any, were not made public at once, the President reserving announcement of his plans for a radio address.

Gov. Landon

We are working up trade agreements that are showing up the old selfish high tariff policies; we have certainly gained a great foothold in Canada that way; also in several other countries. We are about to stage a great western-world conference in South America which ought to lead to the establishment of a solid North American bloc of countries to stand together, mind their own business, and resist European and Asiatic influences. It may be the new world against the old world sometime in the future, and we can start right now to get ready.

Relief Work Will Be Continued for Farmers

IN HIS radio talk the President asserted every governor with whom he had talked on his trip to the drouth area gave approval to his policy of providing federal work relief for the distressed farmers on projects that will protect their crops in the future. This policy, he said, would be continued. He did not give specific details of the drouth relief plan, which will be based on the report of the President's drouth study committee.

Mr. Roosevelt asserted that work relief for the unemployed in the cities has restored consumer purchasing power, sustained every merchant in the community, and provided a backlog for heavy industry.

Declaring re-employment in private industry is proceeding rapidly, the President announced allocation of an additional $2,500,000 to the United States employment service.

Japan Will Build Big Submarine Fleet

JAPAN proposes to build up a submarine fleet approximately 30 per cent larger than that of either Great Britain or the United States. Such was the substance of a note delivered by the Japanese embassy in London to the British foreign office. The decision replaces the submarine parity among the three powers established by the 1930 London naval treaty.

Japan notified Great Britain that it was determined to keep afloat 11,059 tons of destroyers and 15,598 tons of submarines above the 1930 London treaty quotas. This tonnage, if the treaty's provisions were carried out, would be scrapped at the end of this year.

The United States, like Great Britain, has decided it must keep in service after the end of the year 40,000 tons of over age destroyers in excess of the total permitted by the 1930 treaty.

Thinking Men Oppose Change Prefer Security of Roosevelt's Sound Foreign Policy; Seeking Farm Vote

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON. — We ought to be proud of the fact that the diplomats and rulers of the world look on Franklin Roosevelt as a master hand in the art of minding America's business in such a way that we are now about as free from entangling foreign alliances as we have ever been. This is important to the people of America because there is no doubt that in the eventual next world war the powers will endeavor to bring us into the scrap—as before.

Because of Roosevelt's strong position and his keen grasp of international affairs, plus the grave danger of the wrong man in the White House in a time of international stress, thinking men are talking against any idea of a change of administration. Landon has not, at this writing, given any inkling of what his views may be on these international matters; and for all I know he hasn't any—but it is well to remember that the series of little wars we inflicted on our small southern neighbors for years were the outcome of the so-called "dollar diplomacy" of the Wall Street investors who used to run the state department.

We had an idea once that there was a manifest destiny which sent this country into every South American and West Indian cane brake and jungle to see whether or not we couldn't make a little money in some of these foreign enterprises. Then, to back up the American enterprises in these regions, we used to have a part of our navy and marine corps down there acting as policemen. This used to irritate these South American and West Indian countries beyond description and was the reason for the eternal ill feeling those folks used to bear toward us. There never was any reason for us to be backing up this type of dollar diplomacy which kept us on the verge of small warfare in Cuba, Nicaragua, Mexico and other neighboring lands. There may have been reason for us now and then to act the part of an armed arbiter in some hot-headed island where the natives were running wild—but by and large the wisest thing this country ever did was to drop all ideas of the big stick in other people's countries and start on the Roosevelt idea of being a good neighbor to everybody.

We are working up trade agreements that are showing up the old selfish high tariff policies; we have certainly gained a great foothold in Canada that way; also in several other countries. We are about to stage a great western-world conference in South America which ought to lead to the establishment of a solid North American bloc of countries to stand together, mind their own business, and resist European and Asiatic influences. It may be the new world against the old world sometime in the future, and we can start right now to get ready.

Roosevelt sees a long way ahead in these world matters; it would be a shameful thing to sidetrack him now just as he is getting the United States in a leading international position as a peace maker. Roosevelt has been keeping his weather eye open on European affairs for a long time past; and the country should realize that it has been far seeing statesmanship which has placed us right now in a strong neutral position with respect to every one of the European snarls—including the Spanish horror. Otherwise you would have seen us gradually edging our way into a European war through the device of moneys loaned or munitions sold to one side or the other. But Roosevelt's neutrality policies, backed up by congress, have made it clear to the world that we will have none of Europe's dirty mess.

COURTING FARM VOTES.

The farm vote is the exciting prize in this campaign; and it is interesting to know that the Roosevelt campaign in the Middle West farm belt is to be conducted educationally by a non partisan, or possible omni-partisan committee of farm leaders who have been hammering on New Deal principles for years past. Headed by William Settle of the Indiana farm bureau federation, this committee is now being organized throughout several states and has some well known names connected with it at this writing. There is Frank Murphy of Minneapolis, attorney for several large farm organizations, and remembered for the fact that although he was a delegate to the G. O. P. convention which nominated Hoover, he bolted that outfit and led 5,000 farmers to Houston demanding a farm plank that meant something.

Another well known Mid-West farm leader on this committee is Homer Hush of Iowa, who makes the plain statement that "the farmer who deserts Roosevelt is a sucker." Others are Paul Weis of Wisconsin, a Progressive; Sam Fishman, Kansas Republican read out of that party by Chairman John Hamilton of the G. O. P national committee of the founders of the nonpartisan league.

This committee will have its headquarters in Chicago; you will see the result of its efforts in the way of educational matter in the form of booklets, pamphlets, cartoons and exhibits. One of the Republican efforts it is now engaged in combating is the G. O. P. hatred of the reciprocal trade treaties. As I have told you in this column, there is a grave danger in farmers being beguiled into believing the reciprocal trade treaties are a menace to agriculture—and vote for the Landon administration without realizing they are voting to build a tariff wall which will bring back all the old evils that pestered and ruined them before. A Republican tariff has always worked wonders for the industrialists who put up the prices of everything they sold to farmers—while the farmers got nothing at all out of it.

NO WASTE HERE.

It is a sad commentary on the selfish political tactics of the New Deal's enemies that they continually refer to the "waste" of the Public Works program and never yet have given credit for such enormously helpful things as the 4,115 schools which have been built this past two and a half years with Public Works money. Thus providing facilities for 1,200,000 children who otherwise would have either not been provided for or who would have been crowded into completely inadequate rooms or buildings.

There is no wastefulness in such a program. It was an employment creating drive, which not only gave jobs, spread millions of dollars where they were needed, but provided a great investment in American citizenship. These schools, which range from one-room buildings to whole new high schools, are scattered over half the 3,071 American counties in all the states. These buildings represent 70 per cent of all the new school buildings in the country in the past two and a half years. This 70 per cent cost $462,000,000, of which the federal government gives more than half. Some of the money, about $90,000,000, was loaned to the communities by the government and will be repaid. The rest was raised by the taxpayers in the communities benefited. There is no waste and no local kick; why then does a man who knows as much as Frank Knox go roaring around the country belaboring Roosevelt for a program that has done as much as this PWA school building program? It reflects on a man's intellectual honor to make charges like Knox makes.

The figures I have reported here have just come from Secretary Ickes; they do not include $30,000,000 spent by the federal government on federal schools among the Indians and at the military and naval academies.

In addition, the government has loaned nearly $60,000,000 to universities which have built new gymnasiums, cafeteria for students, much needed dormitories, etc. The actual expenditures so far (there being a lot yet to come) total $200,000,000 and have provided 800,000 months of work for laboring men at the local sites, and 4,000,000 months of labor per man at various factories PWA, thus far, has done a tremendous job in resuscitating the school-world from the low level it had fallen into during the depression years, especially the period 1930 to 1933.

ANOTHER QUESTION.

That old question "what is the Constitution between friends" gives way now to the question "what is the Supreme Court among the governors of drouth-stricken states." That is a local matter, and as the result of this there was a great deal of political hot air blown this way and that by various gentlemen seeking to oust Mr. Roosevelt from the White House. They declared he was violating states' rights and what not—but I notice that the minute he and the responsible officials of the drouth-stricken communities got down to brass tacks, they had no other idea about solving agriculture's drouth problem than on a national basis; not a state basis; and mainly with federal and not with state funds.

In that way of course the President has injected the Constitution into the campaign. He did not do so in any political argument on his trip through the drouth area; and his trip was entirely official and not political. Yet the consequences must have a bearing on politics and on the campaign. It strikes me the situation is a complete practical answer to the legalistic and I think the erroneous conclusions of the Supreme Court.

The President's general program for agriculture and federal spending to aid the distressed millions, therefore, seems to have everybody's approval; and that means Gov. Alf Landon, too. I don't see how the Republicans can make an issue of federal spending, or how anyone can split hairs on whether or not agriculture is a local or a national matter.

Curiously enough, the Landon managers are hoping to make a great vote getting impression among the crowded millions of the eastern cities; and one of their arguments with the city folks is that the New Deal's agricultural policies have raised food prices and thus increased the living costs of the city dwellers.

The Man Who-o-o Tales and Traditions from American Political History by FRANK E. HAGIN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

CROWN OF THORNS

DOUBTS of the identity of the leading presidential candidates, so thoroughly dispelled early in 1936, sometimes have held on to the mist of the conventions.

So it was that the Democratic gathering of 1896 provided a tremendous upset, giving the party William Jennings Bryan, a leader who literally was to wear a "crown of thorns" through three unsuccessful campaigns.

No less than 13 candidates for the Democratic nomination were regarded seriously in 1896 and the usual stable of dark horses was present.

"Pitchfork Ben" Tillman of South Carolina, whose hat was definitely in the ring, prodded the delegates unmercifully and the weary battles from the platform spread to one fist fight after another on the floor. Then Bryan was recognized. "We are fighting in defense of our homes, our families, and posterity," he declared. "We have petitioned and our petitions have been scorned. We have entreated and our entreaties have been disregarded. We have begged and they have mocked us when our calamity came. We beg no more, we entreat no longer, we petition no more—we defy them!"

His remarks were on the financial plank of the Democratic platform and Bryan fired them directly at the delegation from New York. Then he closed with the defiance which still rings down the corridors of time: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."

He "stopped the show." The delegates went wild. When the business of the convention could be resumed the day following, Bryan was nominated.

His defeat by McKinley, two succeeding failures for the presidency, in truth settled a crown of thorns upon the brow of Bryan which he was doomed to wear until the last public act of his life—participation in the famous "monkey" trial down in Dayton, Tennessee. He held, and he swayed, multitudes with the power of his oratory, but on election day he could not mark their ballots for them.

THE FIRST PLATFORM

ONE of the essentials of a modern political convention is the adoption of a "platform" upon which the Presidential nominee is to "take his stand" during the campaign. Whether or not he stays on it is quite another matter but few candidates would think of going before the "peepul" without one.

The first platform appeared during the campaign of 1840. In that year the Democrats, holding their convention in Baltimore, set forth what they considered the fundamental principles of their party. Asserting that the federal government was one of strictly limited powers and that all grants not expressly made to it were reserved to the states, this platform

Declared against the assumption of state debts, contracted for local improvements, by the federal government.

Denied the power of the federal government to foster one industry, or section, to the detriment of another.

Asserted that the federal government exceeded its authority when it raised more revenue than was required to defray the ordinary expenses of administration.

Denied the power of congress to interfere with or control the institution of slavery.

Declared against the handling of public funds by private banks. Denounced restrictions upon the privileges of citizenship and of ownership of land with respect to foreign immigrants.

They then unanimously renominated Martin Van Buren for the presidency and got ready to fight the battle of ballots along the lines of policy they had laid down. But if they expected their opponents to meet them on that ground they were grievously disappointed. The Whigs not only failed to adopt a platform but they failed to put forth any statement of principles for the very good reason that they didn't have any. They disregarded issues entirely and launched their whirlwind "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!" campaign.

The bewildered Democrats stood firm on their platform and watched the procession go past—a triumphal procession for the Whigs!

Secretary of the Treasury

In 1789 congress enacted a law providing that the secretary of the treasury may not engage in trade or business, own steamships or otherwise be active in profit-making enterprises during his incumbency. He is liable, on conviction, to a $3,000 fine, dismissal and may never thereafter hold office under the federal government. The same provisions apply to the treasurer of the United States and the register of the treasury.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

Dr. James W. Barton TALKS ABOUT Underweight Versus Youth.

I WRITE so often about the danger to health and physical fitness of overweight that it is possible that some may be of the opinion that overweight is harmful at any age.

As a matter of fact your physician and life insurance companies would rather have you overweight than underweight in childhood, youth, and in the young adult (under 30) age.

Fat Persons Efficient.

The relationship between the body build and the strength and ability of the body to do its work shows that the more efficient men are found amongst those that are overweight in comparison with the average for the age and height.

We can thus see that while overweight is a liability in those past thirty years of age, so also is underweight a liability before thirty.

While there are some thin individuals—the strong, wiry type—who seem able to do their part as well as those of average weight or overweight, the average underweight has a poor build or physique, round shoulders, narrow chest, soft muscles, protruding abdomen and tires easily.

Some of the causes of the underweight are poor food, rapid eating, faulty position standing or sitting thus interfering with action of heart, lungs and digestion, infected teeth or tonsils which sap energy, not enough sleep, eating between meals, eating food with low fuel or food value.

The thought then in trying to build up a youngster, youth, or young adult is not to think of nourishing food only but of all the above or other causes for the underweight.

Cultivate Health Habits. A thorough examination by doctor and dentist, the establishing of good habits of rest, sleep and intestinal habit, outdoor exercise to develop a natural appetite, must all be considered in the treatment.

Naturally as the amount or kind of food that has been eaten has not been sufficient to build up the body even to an average weight, rich nourishing foods must now be eaten.

The amount of increase should be at least one-quarter to one-third more than at present. This may often does mean eating more food than the individual feels he can eat, but must be eaten even if it gives him a feeling of being overfull.

The type or kind of food to eat must be of high fuel or food value such as eggs, meats, cream, salads, bread, potatoes, butter, cheese, jam, cocoa, sugar, peas, beans, custards, puddings, chocolate, honey, salmon, sardines, nuts, dried fruits (dates, figs, currants), bananas, oranges.

Naturally any of the above foods which the individual dislikes should be left out of the diet to avoid indigestion and also the dislike for any increased amount of food. Foods that he likes such as butter, cream, or salad, might be taken in extra amounts or double portions.

DRAGONS DRIVE YOU

By EDWIN BALMER

"You? . . . What more do you want, Mr. O'Mara? And at this time in the evening?" "It had to be tonight," said Cathal. "What had to be tonight?" "Is she—has she retired, Mrs. Glenelgh?" "Yes."

"Then he heard her voice from above. 'I've not, Mother. Tell him I'm coming down.'" "No," her mother said; and to Cathal: "Please, please go away."

"Both of you come in," her mother invited unwillingly. Agnes turned. "We'll go through the house," she yielded, "and out the other side."

Cathal followed her, thus, through the house; and there was the water before them. They went to the edge of the sand, and were alone with the lake and Deneb. Over the water, heat-lightning was flashing almost incessantly, and giving them strange, garish glimpses of each other and the shore. The distant thunder became constant.

"Why did you come tonight?" Agnes asked Cathal. "Now," said Cathal, "I don't know. A while ago, I thought I did. I deceived myself I might do something for you. Of course it was for myself, solely, I came—and wouldn't go away."

"I'm glad you came. There was no one here I could talk to." His pulses leaped at that. "I'm leaving tomorrow with Mother." "Where to?" "New York; Father's getting us the first sailing for France. It's true I'm all through in the court?" "That's true," Cathal said. "Can't you believe it?"

"And—she'll be cleared?" "Cleared," said Cathal, "by tomorrow night, I think. I put her on tomorrow morning; we ought to reach our arguments by noon. By night it'll be over. She'll be cleared."

Agnes caught her breath. He heard it. "By me?" she gasped in her breath's expiration. "By you," said Cathal. "You turned the case. She, tomorrow, and I—we haven't got to win it; we simply have not to lose it now. We'll do that."

"I know you will." "And now," he said, "you don't want us to." "It's not that—quite," Agnes gazed up at him, and the lightning lit their faces. "I want her free. I'm sure I want her not killed, not electrocuted or even jailed for life. But I don't want her paid."

you forever as you were on the witness-stand; and then I thought it would be as you were when I held you for a moment. Did you know, for a moment I held you?" "Yes."

"Do you suppose after this,—when it lightnings,—I can see your face? All my life, when it lightnings? It's my last time to see you. I came tonight while it was still somewhere within—within my right. . . . God bless that lightning! You're still looking up at me. I'll always see you so! Have you heard what I've said—through the thunder?" "I've heard."

"I've lived in this world near to thirty years; and nothing ever happened to me like that when I lifted my phone and heard your voice; and you asked me to come where you were. From then, I've been counting the times I might be near you. I'd go to you to review your evidence; twice I could do that. And then the trial—twice more I'd be with you. And now my times are spent; there's nothing of yet left for me in all the future. Thirty years more or longer I may live in this world answering my phone, going to them that call me; but I'll never find again the like of you. We'll be in the world, both of us, but I may never again speak to you or see your face."

"That needn't be true." "Do you mean that?" "Yes." "Oh, God, let me see you! Where's the lightning?" "No," said Agnes, and lowered her head. "I must go in."

"No," he forbade, and seized her wrist. "How much did you mean?" How firmly yet gently he held her! Not like Jeb, not like Rod; not like any other man who ever had touched her. She quivered in the first cool gust of the breaking storm. "I've got to go in."

Indeed, for moments they had been calling her; her mother and the servants: "Agnes! Agnes! . . . Miss Agnes! Miss Glenelgh!" "Let them call," said Cathal fiercely. "Do you care?"

"No! I've taken your word on right and wrong against Jeb and my father and mother. Maybe I'll be thirty years

Over the Water, Heat-Lighting Was Flashing Almost Incessantly.

In the world too. Can you never come to any one, Mr. O'Mara, unless she calls you?" "Oh, God!" said Cathal, and let her go.

"Agnes! Agnes!" her mother was calling; and the rain was coming down. In great drenching drops it struck. Cathal whipped off his coat to cover her; but they were wet through before they gained the shelter of the house.

"Are you mad, Agnes? Mad?" demanded her mother. "I guess so," Agnes told her. Never as upon this night had Agnes needed her room for sanctuary. After he had gone, discussion of him with any one or the presence of any one—even of her mother—was unbearable.

She shut herself in her room, and strangely for her, she locked her door. She lay upon her bed, undried, but in August he came up only for week-ends. Jeb had appeared several times in his big boat, and always had stopped. She—and Davis—had gone up with Jeb, and several more people, into Superior for a week.

"It's wet ye are!" Winnie's thin hand had found his coat-sleeve and moved up to his shoulder. "Did she give ye no shelter?" "Shelter?" said Cathal. He seized Winnie's hand gently and put her off; and for once she misunderstood him. "She didn't have ye in! Thank God for that, Cathal! . . . Any other—any other, Cathal; 'twould have been the cruel ruin of ye."

CHAPTER X Agnes and her mother—and Rogna—left Chicago for New York on the Century the next day. It was Saturday, and throughout the morning, Myrtle Lorrie was on the witness-stand; the noon papers were full of her defense of herself.

Bee and Davis went to the railroad station, but Jeb did not appear. The ignominious testimony in regard to him, which Agnes had given on the previous day, had been printed fully not only in Friday's late editions, but was prominent in the morning papers.

"You got complete coverage, darling," Bee assured Agnes. Bee was the only one able to assume any levity over it. "Not only in the news but in the chatty little social columns. Some one has commented that if there is an absolute zero in ways to announce a broken engagement, possibly you hit on it."

At Albany next morning, Agnes read, at last, that the jury late in the evening had acquitted Myrtle Lorrie on the fourth ballot. They sailed—Agnes and her mother, Beatrice Glenelgh and Rogna, their maid—on Wednesday, Bob and several friends seeing them off. The three days in New York with her husband had proved even more difficult for Tricie than she had anticipated. They stayed at the same hotel, of course; they preserved, outwardly, all appearances.

Tricie mentioned "Cash" but once; and then not even by the name of "Cash." Tricie asked—and this was not until Tuesday: "Boh, is she in town?" "No," Bob told his wife. "Not since before you came." For he had sent her away on Saturday.

Cash had not wanted to go without him; but he had told her she must. No; he wouldn't like it, he assured her; but they both must do it. Thus he would keep his conscience clear; such temporary abstinence was enough for virtue in these days. Prosperity, power, and impunity! They strutted on the ship, with their wives or the women whom they preferred to their wives—these men of America new to the millions which they believed and they boasted they had "made."

There was no escape, on the ship, from those people; and none, that summer, in Paris; for Americans, as never before, possessed the city. Beatrice Glenelgh had never intended to linger in Paris. She fled to a little quiet village of the Hautes Pyrenees; and she and Agnes settled, at last, in a tiny inn a few kilometers from the border of Spain, where no man was in the least like Bob—and the noon sunlight shone sharp and warm, but always there was a breeze down from Maladetta or the snowy summits of Mt. Perdu.

There, week after week, mother and daughter waited. Waited for what? For human nature to change? For years to reroll themselves? For the world to fit its ways again, as once happily it had, to the complete fulfillment of an individual's decent desires?

Tricie did not deal with such matters through her mind; her emotions always controlled her. She wanted what she had had—her husband's desire and devotion, which she had done nothing to lose. If she had "done" anything which deservedly would have alienated him, she might have seen the "justice" of what had occurred; but she had not. Day and night, Tricie relived her married life in review.

A letter arrived, once a week regularly, from the husband; and always, on the day one came, Tricie answered it. Bee wrote her mother and her sister once a week, but alternately; and she always assumed that they shared her letters, as indeed they did. She had moved her household to Mackinac Island for July and August. Davis had been with her most of July, but in August he came up only for week-ends. Jeb had appeared several times in his big boat, and always had stopped. She—and Davis—had gone up with Jeb, and several more people, into Superior for a week.

Agnes lowered the letter and lay back in her gayly painted chair gazing toward Maladetta but regarding, really, her own life on the Illinois shore four thousand miles away. Plainly she saw herself and them all in perspective; her home and the city below it, and the long level sweep of the lake. Back and forth upon it, Jeb journeyed in his splendid luxurious ship, picking up people, dining them, winning them, setting them at little tables for bridge or to dancing on the deck while the ship sailed; when it stopped, swimming and diving. Jeb paying for it all, never tired of it until he returned to Chicago to make more money, and more and more. She might be with him; but she had no wish to be. Here was no one, but her mother, whom she well knew. Here were hours with the sun, and the wind from the mountain passes; with the tinkle of bells of cattle on the hillsides; the herder's whistle, and sometimes his song. . . . But Agnes did not dream of Jeb's big new boat. (TO BE CONTINUED)

IMPROVED SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for September 20 CHRISTIAN LIVING

LESSON TEXT—Romans 12:1-3, 9-12. GOLDEN TEXT—Christ liveth in me. GALATIANS 2:20. PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus Wants His Friends to Act. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Explains How to Act. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is Christian Living? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Live as a Christian.

As a fitting conclusion to a three-month study of the Spread of Christianity to the gentle peoples of Western Asia, we consider the teaching of the great apostle to the Gentiles concerning "Christian-Living."

The early chapters of Paul's epistle to the Romans present the greatest exposition of profound Christian doctrine ever written. But even as it is true that the fruit of Christian living can grow only on the tree of Christian doctrine, it is equally true that the knowledge of Christian truth should result in Christian living. "Faith without works is dead."

Our lesson pointedly presents the true Christian life as being I. A Life Yielded to God (Rom. 12:1-3). A recognition and deep appreciation of the mercies of God leads to a yielding of body and mind in living sacrifice to God. If we are Christians our bodies are the temples of the Holy Spirit. We must not lend our bodies to activities which destroy their usefulness or hinder our service for God but rather yield the body with all its abilities to God!

But after all "it is the inside of a man that counts." The presenting of the body in living sacrifice is possible only when there has been the inner transformation by the renewing of the mind. One cannot live physically without being born; it is equally impossible to live a Christian life without having been born again. The Christian life is yielded to God not only for its own peace and satisfaction, but it is to be II. A Life of Service (vv. 9-15). We are not saved by serving but we are saved to serve.

In the first place the Christian serves the Lord. He abhors evil, but his life is not merely negative, for he cleaves to that which is good. He is not lazy, but diligent. His spirit is aglow with zeal for God and his cause. He is full of joy and hope, patient under trials, a man of steadfastness in prayer. Such a man will not fail to serve his fellow-man. He will really love the brethren, not merely make a hypocritical show of loving them. He will seek the honor of others rather than his own glory. He will be given to the almost lost art of hospitality. He will be ready to stand by his brother, in the day of joy or of sorrow. He will go even further, for he will bless those that persecute him. The measure is not yet full for we note next that the Christian lives—

III. A Life of Humility (v. 16). In these days when we are urged to assert ourselves, to demand our rights, to "succeed" at any cost, and when men are measured by their worldly achievements, it sounds rather old-fashioned to talk about humility, about condescending to lowly things, of not being "wise in our own conceits." But humility is still the crowning grace of a truly Christian life. Those who follow the lowly Jesus, in fact as well as in profession, are still strongest when they are weak, and mightiest for God when they are humble. Note also that we follow a victorious Christ who calls us to

IV. A Life of Victory (vv. 17-21). It is possible to talk much about the victorious life—to discuss it at length as a theological question—and have little real victory. Paul speaks plainly. The Christian is honorable in all things. He meets every obligation. He is a man of peace. He is not concerned with avenging himself upon one who has done him wrong. Spite fences, boundary disputes, family quarrels, are not for him. Evil is not to overcome him. God gives the victory. A great lesson, and one that we cannot study without some disquieting thought, Christian, how does your life and mine appear as they are held up to the mirror of God's Word? Let us make a covenant that by God's grace and power we shall go forward in real "Christian living."

A Human Being There cannot be a more glorious object in creation than a human being, replete with benevolence, meditating in what manner he might render himself more acceptable to his Creator by doing most good to his creatures.—Fielding.

Visions of Better Life It is well to have visions of a better life than that of every day, but it is the life of every day from which elements of a better life must come.—Maeterlinck.

Carrie Nation For years in the 1900's Carrie Nation not only demolished saloons with her hatchets, but publicly knocked cigars from men's mouths and berated women for wearing evening gowns. Nothing daunted her until the night she did her "hatchet act"—for $300—on the stage of Miner's Burlesque on the New York Bowery, when she was almost drowned in the heaviest barrage of eggs ever laid down by an American audience.—Collier's Weekly.

FRECKLES DISAPPEAR IN 5 TO 10 DAYS WONDER CREAM WIPES AWAY BLACKHEADS—DULL, DINGY SKIN All you do is this: (1) At bedtime spread a thin film of NADINOLA Cream over your face—no massaging, no rubbing. (2) Leave on while you sleep. (3) Watch daily improvement—usually in 5 to 10 days you will see a marvelous transformation. Freckles, blackheads disappear; dull coarsened skin becomes creamy-white, satiny-smooth, lovely! Fine results positively guaranteed with NADINOLA—tested and trusted for nearly two generations. Yours Truly (?)

A 4 LETTER WORD meaning life-giving moisture. Begins with R and ends with N. Maybe you can't guess it's RAIN, rain, rain, rain, RAIN, RAIN, RAIN, rain, R-a-i-n, R-A-I-N, R-A-I-N! Anyway you spell it or write it, it's all the same. Enough of it and the wheat farmers are sitting pretty. O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave, long may it RAIN.

SHADES OF THE Greek Gods of Beauty. I was catching up on a little visiting at H. Roy Browns' and in walked the Big Sir, himself, and with his hair curled. Claimed it was the rain curling it up. After having been put under pressure by Durward, W. Coffee, and Yours Truly, he admitted that he had been to the King Beauty Salon and had his hair washed. And then he had it waved. And then in came Ned Baird who presides over the network of rails in the eastern end of Silvertown. And man, did he like that wave on Mr. Brown. Wanted to know where he got it, how much it cost, et cetera, and so forth. With the net result that they left arm in arm. And when I went into King's a little later, there he was (Ned) on the operating table, with the pins, curlers and all the trimmers on. And it was nice, too—if I was Ned I wouldn't worry too much about those streaks of gray at the temple.

FRESH MEAT, ULTRA fresh — at Burson Food Store. — Choicest thumb meat. Mrs. Yours Truly overheard a lady tell Troy that he had his thumb on the scales. "Yes ma'am, I have, but I don't believe it's enough to hurt anything."

THE INCREASE IN the gasoline tax will enable the state to undertake some badly needed highway construction that has been delayed because of lack of funds. A major portion of the funds for the past few years has been needed to match federal aid, maintain existing highways and provide for other expenses with a consequent slowing down of construction from purely state funds. It is HOPED that Highway 86 will be one of these "needed" construction projects.

PAINTERS, DE LUXE, that's Tull Implement Company. They were painting a tractor there Tuesday and had a little wood block fastened up on the gas tank. Champ Blackwell said that Tull left that there so that after it was painted, he could tell it from a new one. You see he wouldn't want to sell a customer a used machine for a new one by mistake.

BLIND FLYING IS certainly a wonderful accomplishment. The airplane pilots are able to make a whole flight, without seeing the ground, or getting off the course.—Give Briscoe County an inch of rain however, and every driver performs just as impossible a feat, navigating Highway 86.

DON'T FORGET THAT the first football game of the season will be played here on the Silvertown field. Friday when the local boys go up against the training school boys from W. T. S. T. C., at Canyon. From the looks of some of the local "once-weres" who played the high school the other night, we might have a pretty tough little team here.

THE YOUNGER GENERATION have a lot of advantages over those born twenty-five or thirty years ago. A baby then didn't have much chance. It was either be a farmer, storekeeper, lawyer or president.

"What kind of a dog is that?" said the friendly lady to the little boy with a mongrel puppy. "He's a police dog," said the boy. "Why, he doesn't look like a police dog," said the lady. "No, Mum," replied the lad. "He is in the secret service."

Why "They Hate Roosevelt"

Woodrow Willson once said that no one could hate a man he knew. Real hatred, he added, could be felt only for the unknown. If this be true, it is difficult to understand the gospel of hatred that has been spread over the land by President Roosevelt's opponents. Surely, the American people know him and his human qualities.

Discussing the psychology of those who proclaim that they "hate Roosevelt," the editor of the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times wrote recently that it is probably far from the truth to describe the character of the political assaults on Pres. Roosevelt as expressions of "hatred". They are, in his opinion, rather, expressions of resentment.

"It would be quite impossible for reasoning people," he wrote, "to hate a man of President Roosevelt's kindly character and unquestionably high American and humanitarian ideals. But nothing could be more certain than that any such man in the White House, who would undertake to translate the highest humanitarian ideals into legislative and administrative policies, would incur the bitterest resentment of all specially privileged interests, and that is exactly what President Roosevelt has earned and is now being subjected to."

"Of course, no one 'hates' Franklin D. Roosevelt, but many persons high in business, financial and political realms so desperately resent his success in placing the country back on the road to economic recovery, in spite of them that the effect upon their actions is not materially different from actual hatred.

"Undeniably, certain manufacturers who have seen their earnings and profits grow by leaps and bounds under the stimulus of the Roosevelt New Deal, resent his success to a degree almost indistinguishable from hatred.

"Certainly some bankers, who have lost the fear of runs under the protection of the deposit guarantee system, are now in a mood of resentment. So are capitalists the New Deal has enabled to earn sure dividends on guaranteed mortgages. Corporation executives, who have seen their dividends rise to substantial levels from the deficits of a few years ago, now have it in for him and would destroy him politically if they could. That applies to many of them.

"Who can explain this paradox? Why do those benefited most by the New Deal of President Roosevelt assume the nearest to an attitude of hatred toward him? Why would they apparently rather lose money under an archaic system than make money under new conditions, based on equal rights and opportunities to all?"

"But, isn't that the answer?—the fact that President denies the proprietary rights of special interests and stands militantly for equal rights and opportunities for all. Is there anything really mysterious about the psychology of the political 'hatred' the political reactionaries so copiously entertain for President Roosevelt?"

Maybe it was with evil intent that Magis Valley patriots proposed a grapefruit dance this year, at the Centennial, while the fruit is only egg sized.

Owing to the roads hampering the mail service, several of our rural correspondents' news articles did not arrive in time for publication.

Nocturne—B Sharp or B Flat

The curtain never drops on that great American tragedy known as "Death on the Highways." Night falls and the stage is darkened, but Death stalks on. Indeed, the drama quickens, for under cover of darkness the grim villain of the piece exacts his heaviest toll. Danger looms too suddenly out of the shadows. There often isn't time to avert it. Careless pedestrians fall under speeding wheels.

Bright lights glare. Drivers crash into fixed objects and into each other. Statistics prepared by the Travelers Insurance Company show that deaths after dark last year numbered 21,480, while deaths during the normal hours of daylight, when traffic was much heavier, numbered but 14,620. The moral is clear: When the sun goes down, slow down.

T. C. Ruby has returned from a business trip into Oklahoma.

Mrs. Jake McClendon has returned from a visit in Denver Colorado.

UNIVERSALLY POPULAR

The "Sunday School Lesson" published each week in this newspaper has been adopted by thousands of church instructors throughout the United States as a regular part of their weekly work.

It is a review and exposition of the international lesson for each week, prepared by Dean Harold L. Lundquist of the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago, a recognized leader in the nation's church work. Dean Lundquist has been active in teaching youthful groups for years, thereby acquiring an insight into the needs of these people for understandable explanations of Bible passages.

In view of his accomplishments in church work, it is not surprising that Dean Lundquist's exposition of the weekly Sunday School lesson is being used in almost every community of the nation. As teacher or student you will find it extremely helpful.

Birthday Dinner For Mrs. Sarah McDonnell

From Mrs. Sarah McDonnell at Texhoma, Oklahoma comes the following account of a surprise birthday dinner:

A number of my neighbors and friends came to my home in Texhoma, Oklahoma on my 88th birthday, August 27, bringing good things to eat, and gave a very enjoyable surprise dinner.

We had a bountiful dinner and I shall long remember their friendly kindness in remembering me. I hope my friends and neighbors who were with me on my birthday may have many, happy birthdays.

Shower Tea Honoring Mrs. Herbert Sims

Wednesday afternoon, September 9th, from four until six, Miss Geraldine Biffle and her mother, Mrs. Fort, honored Mrs. Herbert Sims with a tea shower. The Biffle home was most tastefully decorated. Mrs. Biffle Fort presided most graciously at the punch bowl and was assisted in serving by Mrs. Marvin Tull and Miss Gwendolyn Cloyd.

The receiving line consisted of Miss Geraldine Biffle, Mrs. Claude Sims of Floydada, Mrs. Homer Sanders and Mrs. Boots Bryant. Miss Carolyn Schott escorted the guests to view the many beautiful gifts and to congratulate the Bride.

The invited guests were: Mesdames, Leon Middleton, b. R. Eziel, J. M. Tunnell, E. W. Sheid, E.

G. Rice, C. R. Badgett, Lon Patterson, A. L. Patterson, Archie Alexander, P. C. Hamilton, and Clement McDonald; Misses Amelia Tunnell, Ila Steele Patterson, Wanda King, Lucille Persons, and Mary Ollie Persons of Quitaque.

Mesdames: Troy Burson, Tony Burson, True Burson, W. E. Schott Jr. Bland Burson, O. T. Bundy, Woodson Coffee, Ben O. King, Allen Peacock, Bert Douglas, T. R. Whiteside, Fred Lemons, Clyde Wright, W. W. Martin, John Fisher, T. M. Nichols, A. L. Kelsay, Theron Crass, Ernest Tibbits, Johnnie Arnold, Edd Thomas, Durward Brown, Minyard and Mrs. Emma Frieze. Misses Bertha Thomas, Anna Lee Anderson, Caroylin Schott, Josephine Daniels, Gwendolyn Cloyd.

ENTERTAIN CLUB

The Floral Club meeting for September was greatly enjoyed by every member who was able to be present in the home of Mrs. T. L. Anderson last Friday afternoon, when Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Lee Bomar as joint hostesses, dispensed hospitality, making each one feel welcome.

In the business meeting, Mrs. Anderson, club chairman, presided. For the library work, Mrs. Albert Dickenson was appointed chairman of the selecting and buying committee; Mrs. Miner Crawford represents the Floral Club on the publicity committee and Mrs. C. L. Dickerson on the membership committee.

The lesson leader was absent and Mrs. Clyde Wright gave a substitute paper on the day's subject, "Indians". The Indian's worship of Nature was explained in an old legend and explanations of their dances to interpret planting, cultivating, growing and harvesting of grains, flowers and foods were given, as well as descriptions of the snake dance and other religious ceremonies.

The hostesses, assisted by Miss Anna Lee Anderson served delicious refreshments with exquisite roses as plate favors.

The presence of a former member, Mrs. R. N. Sheid, now of Sagerton, Haskell County, Texas, made the social period exceptionally pleasant for her old friends, Mesdames: A. P. Dickenson, Campbell, Jno. Burson, G. Garrison, Ed Thomas, Clyde Wright, Lee Bomar and Anderson.

The next meeting will be October 2nd, with Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Peacock hostesses, and Mrs. Steven Coffee and Mrs. Sweat in charge of the lesson. The hour will be 2:30 instead of 3:00 P. M.

SILVERTON H. D. CLUB AT MRS. LEE BOMAR'S

On Tuesday, at 2:30 P. M., in the home of Mrs. Lee Bomar, an interested group of women of the Silverton Home Demonstration Club began their lesson on "Pantry Arrangement and Food Storage", with Mrs. R. M. Hill instructing. We enjoyed having a visitor, Mrs. Lloyd Meeker of Hollywood, California.

"Keep the pantry attractive and orderly" said Mrs. Hill, following with detailed suggestions. "Use top shelves for relishes and pickles; with fruit, tomatoes and citrus just beneath; next leafy and green vegetables; canned meats on the lowest coolest shelf; dried foods and long-lasting vegetables, such as potatoes, onions, and pumpkins, should be stored at the bottom of the pantry. Let the storage room be clean, dark, dry, well-ventilated and free from odors; and label every can."

The members were given outlines for the year's work. The next two meetings on "Bed-room Improvement", will include instructions in making candlewick spreads, rugs, etc.

Mrs. T. L. Anderson's home is scheduled for the next meeting place on October 6.

Hectic Days Sleepless Nights

IF YOU are nervous today, you probably will not sleep well tonight. If you don't sleep well tonight, you will probably be nervous tomorrow.

Don't allow yourself to become nervous. Take Dr. Miles Nervine. It will relax your tense nerves and let you get a good night's sleep.

Irritability, Restlessness, Sleeplessness, often lead to Nervous Headache, Nervous Indigestion, Hysteria—sometimes to a nervous breakdown and organic trouble.

Some of the people, whose letters are printed below, were as nervous as you are—possibly more so—yet they have found relief.

Three years ago I was so nervous I could not bear to go out in company and could not sleep nights. A friend recommended Dr. Miles Nervine. I now enjoy myself thoroughly and sleep every night. Miss Juliette Currier, New Market, N. H.

I have used Dr. Miles Nervine in liquid form and find it the best medicine for the nerves I have ever used. Christene Lanier, Middleton, Tennessee

Whenever I have over-indulged and feel restless I take one or two Nervine Tablets just before I retire. In the morning when I awake I feel like a new person and can go about my work as usual. Dr. Miles Nervine Tablets quiet your nerves, brace you up and are the simplest, most convenient tablets to take I have ever found. Miss Grace Redmann, St. James, Minn.

Before using your Nervine I was very nervous and irritable. Since I have started to take it I feel so much better that my family notice the difference. I still take it from time to time and the good result is wonderful. J. H. Redding, 1027 18th Ave., Rock Island, Ill.

The Curse of Progress

Caveman style
A woman who was having a house built detected one of the bricklayers halving the bricks with his trowel. With a triumphant gleam in her eyes she approached him swiftly and said: "Isn't that rather a primitive way of cutting a brick in half?"
The man looked up, smiled and said: "Lor' bless yer dear heart, lidy, there's a far more primitive way than this, believe me."
"Really, and what's that?" she inquired.
"Biting it, lidy, biting it."
Useless Clock
Pat always was late for work, and the foreman advised him to buy an alarm clock. The Irishman did so, but still he continued to put in a belated appearance at his job.
"Why can't you turn up at the right time, Pat, now you've got an alarm clock?" asked the foreman.
"Bedad," replied Pat, "it's no good; it goes off when I'm asleep."

A Rural Scene in Pleasing Stitchery

The "Duck Pond"—a quiet, shady nook where graceful ducks float to and fro, is a charming subject indeed for a wall-hanging, the detail will prove fascinating to embroider. It's no time before it is done in wool or rope silk.
In pattern 5602 you will find a transfer pattern of a wall hanging 15 by 20 inches; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed; color suggestions.
To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y.

Poorly Nourished Women— They Just Can't Hold Up

Are you getting proper nourishment from your food, and restful sleep? A poorly nourished body just can't hold up. And as for that run-down feeling, that nervous fatigue,—don't neglect it!
Cardul for lack of appetite, poor digestion and nervous fatigue, has been recommended by mothers to daughters—women to women—for over fifty years.
Try it! Thousands of women testify Cardul helped them. Of course, if it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Poor Substitute

Substituting philosophy for an unpleasant fact is poor business.

Don't Sleep on Left Side, Affects Heart

Gas Pressure May Cause Discomfort Right Side Best
If you toss in bed and can't sleep on right side, try Adierika. Just ONE dose relieves stomach GAS pressing on heart so you sleep soundly all night.
Adierika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness. "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."
Mrs. Jas. Filler: "Gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart hurt. The first dose of Adierika brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."
Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleaning with Adierika and see how good you feel. Just ONE dose relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

HENRY FONDA'S marriage to Frances Seymour Brokaw will increase the little circle of smart society women who, married to motion picture actors, reside in Hollywood.

Incidentally, Mrs. Brokaw's life story is rather like that of a movie. Born in a small town in Massachusetts, she was the poor cousin of the wealthy Rogers family.

She met George T. Brokaw, who had both wealth and social position, fell in love with him, married him, in 1931. Mr. Brokaw died nearly two years ago, leaving his widow and their small daughter well provided for.

Bette Davis may seem to be a temperamental star when it comes to battling over stories and salary, but away from the studio she is most decidedly just another human being.

Not long ago she and her husband were traveling through the Canadian Rockies, on the first part of that vacation trip she's taking. She did rather startle the other guests at the hotel in Lake Louise by wearing a very low-cut evening gown—but she startled them still more by taking the bus to Banff the next day, instead of being exclusive and going in a private car.

Here's a new way to break into the movies. Marjorie Gage, a young society girl, likes to fly. She entered her own plane for the Ruth Chatterton Flying Cup race—and first thing she knew, had been entered for a picture "The Flying Hostess".

Simone Simon does so well in "Girls Dormitory" that she is being pushed right ahead. An American girl who, just for fun, acted in a French film made in Salzburg summer before last, declared when she came back that Simone was the cutest thing she ever saw.

A short story which has attracted much attention, "Beyond the Sound of a Machine Gun," has been purchased by a leading studio, and in it will appear George Raft, Cary Grant, Randolph Scott and Fred MacMurray.

We're to have still more Dickens on the screen. "Pickwick Papers" will be the next Dickens picture. Paramount intended to make it with W. C. Fields, but that plan has been abandoned, and Metro has taken it on.

Jean Muir decided recently that she'd like her hair better if it were brown, instead of blonde. Also, she cut off her bangs. Then she made some tests for Warner Brothers. They objected to the changes. And as a result of a lot of argument, the hair stayed brown but the bangs returned.

Jean Muir

The cycle of war pictures is well under way. Twentieth Century-Fox launched it with "The Road to Glory," and continues it with the forthcoming "King of the Kyber Rifles" and "The Splinter Fleet."

ODDS AND ENDS... The young Dianas are learning some English words for "Reunion," their next picture. Eleanor Powell plans to drive East in October, see some new plays in New York, pick up her grandfather and grandmother and drive back to the coast. Pretty good for a girl who learned to drive so recently. William S. Hart may return to the screen. Did you know that the John D. M. Hamilton who is so prominent in the Republican party is a brother of Hale Hamilton, who once was a movie star? Ruth Chatterton plans to return to the stage this fall, no matter how many motion picture companies want her to work for them.

FLOYD GIBBONS CLUB

Hello Everybody

"The Thing in the Dark"

By FLOYD GIBBONS

ARE you all set for the housewarming party? Well, let me warn you in advance that this is going to be about the loneliest housewarming party you ever saw.

As a matter of fact, it's a one-man housewarming or maybe I should say a one-boy housewarming. The boy was Arland L. Gray, of Trenton, N. J. I say "was" because Arland has grown up in the meantime. This one-boy party I'm going to tell you about was thrown on the night of January 19, 1912.

As a housewarming, it was a terrible flop. It not only didn't warm the house any, but it cooled the boy off considerably by the chills-up-and-down-the-spine system. As an adventure, though, it was a whooping success—and well worth that check for ten bucks that I'm sending Arland right now.

In the spring of 1910 Arland's mother and dad moved from Catskill, N. Y., to Orlando, Fla. That was in the days before the Florida boom, and Orlando was just a sleepy little country town.

Arland Decides to Do a Solo House Warming Act.

Arland's dad bought a piece of partly cleared ground about three miles out of town and started to build a house on it. That's where the housewarming part of it came in.

Arland was just eight years old then—and you know how kids sometimes get funny ideas. Arland somehow or other got it into his head that he wanted to be the first one to sleep in the new home. The house wasn't finished yet. The sides were up and the roof was on, but there were no sashes in the windows, and none of the floors had been laid. But just the same young Arland began pestering his folks to let him go out there and spend the night.

His ma didn't like the idea. She said an eight-year-old boy had no business sleeping in an unfinished house half a mile away from the nearest neighbor. But his dad said it wouldn't hurt him to spend a night alone, and finally his mother gave her consent, too. Arland took a blanket, his .22 rifle and his dog, and off he went, headed for the house on the outskirts of the town.

Strange Animal Terrifies Lonesome Boy.

Darkness had fallen before he got there. It was a warm, tropical night, and the late moon had not yet risen. Arland crept into the building, walking carefully on the uncovered beams of the ground floor. He gathered together some loose boards and lay them across the beams under a low window. Then he spread his blanket and lay down with his rifle beside him.

The bare boards were hard. Arland's makeshift bed was uncomfortable. It was a long time before he managed to get to sleep, and when he did he slept fitfully. He awoke again, hours later, with the strange feeling that something was wrong.

The moon had risen but it was behind a cloud bank. But what was that queer, crunching noise that sounded so close to his ear? As he came wider awake he realized with a sickening feeling in the pit of his stomach that some sort of an animal was standing over him.

Dog Whines With Terror Over Strange Visitation.

Arland lay still. He didn't dare move—couldn't if he'd wanted to, for his whole body had gone stiff with fear. Over in a corner he could hear his dog growling and whimpering. The dog had crawled away as far as he could—was covering on the far side of the room, whining with a terror that was as great as Arland's own.

"I have no idea how long I lay there," Arland says. "It seemed like hours, but it might have been only a few minutes. The beast—the thing—whatever it was—seemed to be standing right over me. I could feel its hot, fetid breath on my face—hear the regular crunch—crunch—crunch of its moving jaws."

Every now and then a splotch of slimy froth would fall on me. I had a wild impulse to get up—to run out of that house as fast as I could go. Then I remembered that I couldn't run—that if I moved at all I would have to go slowly, picking my way over the bare joists. I didn't even have a floor under me."

Intruder Turns Out to Be Broken-Down Nag.

Thought of the uncovered floor gave Arland another idea. If he could roll from the boards on which he was lying he could fall through between the joists and land safely on the ground only a couple feet below. He had just about decided on that course of action when he remembered something else. His .22 rifle! He began moving his hand cautiously toward it. Inch by inch his hand crept toward that rifle.

His groping fingers found it at last. With his thumb he cocked the hammer. It gave out a resounding click and that startled the beast. In the dim light he could see its huge, blurry head raised—stayed poised—motionless—as if it were listening. Arland raised the gun around silently. At length he had its muzzle pointed at the beast's head. His finger tightened on the trigger. And then, suddenly, the moon came out from behind the clouds. Bright yellow light streamed into the house, and in its glow Arland saw, thrust through the window above him the pointed ears and the long narrow head of—an old horse!

The rifle was never fired. The moon had come out just in time to save that poor old nag's life. "And just in time, too," says Arland, "to save me from heart failure. I spent the rest of the night in the middle of the floor far from any window, and it was a very sleepy and very chastened little boy who trailed along home the next morning as soon as it was light."

Schubert's Serenade

Whatever his inspiration, Schubert wrote the "Serenade" to suit the words of a poem by Ludwig Rellstab. A number of Rellstab's poems were originally sent by their author to Beethoven, who declined to do anything with them because of the state of his health, but who recommended that they be turned over to Schubert. This was done after Beethoven's death. In 1828 Schubert wrote a number of fine songs, which were brought out after his death under the title of "Swan Songs." "Serenade" is No. 4 of the Swan Songs, which include six others written to Rellstab's words. Schubert was born January 31, 1797, and died November 19, 1828.

Cruelty to Animals

Lawmakers all go to bat to suppress cruelty in any form to man or beast. All the states seem to retain the criminal offense of docking a horse's tail, although evil consequences may be avoided in Michigan by obtaining from a veterinary surgeon a certificate stating that it was necessary for the "health and safety of such horse." Many of these statutes are longer and more detailed than the murder statutes in the same books. Often, of course, a companion law is found making it a similar offense to crop a dog's ears "except where performed by a registered veterinary surgeon while the dog is under an anesthetic."

Shirtwaister for School Girl

Here is the frock for juniors to make for school days. A combination of rhythm in its hemline, rhyme in its color scheme and racy in its style. For late summer wear, try tub silk, linen, cotton or shantung with long or short sleeves. For autumn and winter—"weedy" silk crepe or broadcloth.

The waist, gathered slightly to the shoulder yoke front and back, has a center pleat and pockets for trimming. Buttons—a matter of choice. A small collar, tie, and belt complete this most effective frock. By way of suggestion, make the collar and cuffs in contrast, and detachable to be readily removed for laundering.

Supreme Court Justices

Congress may, by statute, change the number of Justices on the Supreme Court and if that number is enlarged the President could appoint new members, with the consent of the Senate. But without such authority the President has no power to appoint members unless there is a vacancy caused by death, resignation, or retirement of one of the present members of the Court.

War Against Un-Licensed Beauty Work

A drive against bootlegged beauty work will open in the next few days according to Mrs. Sam McAdams, inspector of this district, who has been investigating conditions in and around Silverton.

The board of Cosmetologists was created a year ago when the legislature enacted a law requiring beauty salons and beauticians to obtain licenses to operate.

Mrs. McAdams said she has found a few girls operating without license and some shops employing girls without licenses. When doing this they take a chance in having a license revoked and also become subject to a fine.

Shops must pay $10 a year for a license, operators $3 a year. The minimum penalty for violation of the statute is a fine of $100 or a ninety day jail imprisonment.

"We have given everyone time enough to obtain their shop and operators license," Mrs. McAdams said. "We are gathering evidence on which to base charges."

Vocational Ag Boys Hard At Work

Some of the Agriculture boys have been setting lines for terraces for the farmers of Briscoe County. The boys have run about 12 miles of lines so far. They repaired a farm level and are now using it. The following boys have been helping Mr. Weaver terrace: John E. Simpson, Jack O'Neal Roy McWalker, Merle T. Montague, J. B. Smith, Vinson Smith, and W. C. Donald.

Mr. Weaver has about 50 boys in his Agriculture class. There is one class of Agriculture II Boys and two classes of Agriculture I. They have been determining possibilities of making money on certain projects. So far they have worked on hogs and cotton as projects. Some of the boys are writing essays in a contest. The winner of this contest in this district gets to go to the Frontier Celebration at Fort Worth.

South Plains Fair At Lubock Soon

Fair time is rolling around again on the South Plains and preparation are in full swing for the greatest exposition ever staged in this section when the gates of the annual Panhandle-South Plains Fair opens on Sept. 28 at Lubock.

Combined with a Centennial Celebration and offering a full six day horse racing program, this year's "Show Window of the South Plains" promises to be one of the premier attractions of Texas birthday celebrations. Space has been reserved for the greatest array of agricultural and livestock exhibits ever offered and the midway attraction features the United Shows of America, "America's Newest and Largest Midway."

But officials of the fair this year are stressing the educational benefits to be derived from the exposition and arranged the program accordingly. Besides the annual exhibits, this year's fair will offer the most extensive vocational agricultural display ever shown in Texas, including a complete range of soil conservation, crop production and livestock feeding demonstrations.

Workmen are rushing to and fro at the fair grounds preparing for the grand opening and officials of the fair preparing for the opening have opening and officials of the fair have laid special plans for the Centennial Day when a gigantic pageant depicting the history of Texas is to be presented in front of the new steel grand stand fronting the race track.

All-Steel Hoppers on M'CORMICK-DEERING Grain Drills Make Them Better Than Ever

NOW you can get all-steel hoppers on McCormick-Deering plain grain drills. This new feature combines with the steel, bridge-type main frame to hold the feeding mechanism in proper alignment, assuring unusual drilling accuracy and long drill life. These hoppers of rust-resisting, heavy-gauge steel containing copper will not sag, warp, split, or rot.

The divided hopper lids are water tight and grain tight. A one-piece steel hinge extends the full length of the lid. Springs hold the lid wide open or tightly shut. The lids provide a grain-tight surface against which the seed can be poured without spilling on the ground.

The fluted force feed and double-run feed have been improved also, and roller bearings in the fully enclosed end boxes provide light draft.

We can supply your drill needs, whatever they may be, from the complete McCormick-Deering line. Stop in and see us the next time you are passing.
