Talking It Over With Home Demo

The rain has temporarily halted our work, but when it gets dry enough to get about again, we hope to enter into our program with renewed vim, vigor and vitality through the new hopes given us by the rain, which we might truthfully call, showers of blessings". The girls will begin their work as soon as the roads become passable and from the interest and enthusiasm already shown by the girls, the women are going to have to get a move on to keep up with them. And girls, there is to be a state wide contest in the next year which we are going to participate in, and it is going to be a lot of fun having style shows, and then we are going to have some girls from our county next year. If you want to know how much fun that will be ask some of the women who attended Short Course from Briscoe County this summer. But never mind, you will be able to tell about it yourselves after the next Short Course.

Council Meeting

The County Home Demonstration Council is scheduled to meet Saturday, September 26, their regular meeting date. The Council is the business end of the whole organization and it is very important that all club members keep in touch with the council and participate in these monthly business sessions by sending in their council members.

"If we can get to Lubbock on Friday, September 25, the exhibit committee of the County Home Demonstration Council will have an interesting exhibit for you. Although we are the baby county, we are growing by leaps and bounds, and by the first of the year we hope to have dropped that title and be able to have others say, 'And last but far from the least is Briscoe County.'"

More Pantries

"Anybody can have pantry shelves for their canned foods", says Mrs. R. C. Chappel, Farm Food Supply Demonstrator for the Rock Creek Home Demonstration Club, as she proudly displays her pantry which cost her the total sum of 90c. Mrs. Chappel's new pantry is made from scraps of lumber which she already had. The shelves are painted which gives her an attractive and useful pantry that provides her with an adequate amount of shelf space for storing the food which she already has, and which she will yet can, in filling her food budget. She has approximately half her food budget filled now and expects to can still more. With the meat canning she will do later this fall, the vegetables she will store and can. Mrs. Chappel expects to supply her family with an adequate diet from a nutritional standpoint through the entire winter months.

Storing Onions and Potatoes

A new feature, and one which she is hoping will afford only a slight possibility for loss with her potatoes and onions, has been added to Mrs. John Kitchen's cellar. With 4 posts driven into the ground on the inside of the cellar to form an oblong space, Mrs. Kitchen has stretched half screen and fastened it to resemble shelves. On these wire shelves she has stored onions and potatoes which provides air circulation under and above the onions and potatoes. This will lessen the possibility of rotting.

Almost Million Dollars Loaned In Briscoe County

In Briscoe County 308 loans were closed in the amount of $871,000 by the Federal Land Bank Commissioner, from May 1, 1933 through June 30, 1936, according to information received by H. P. Drought, National Commissioner for Texas.

Of the loans closed in this county 124 for $516,300 were made by the Federal Land Bank and 184 totaling $354,700 by the Land Bank Commissioner.

Through the agency of the Farm Credit Administration in Texas $196,139, 976 has been loaned during the same period. These loans included 18,363 of Federal Land Bank Loans for $89,429,400; 31,213 Land Bank Commissioner loans in the amount of $58,151,000; 27,593 Production Credit association totaling $27,780, 258; 123,286 emergency crop loans amounting to $13, 808, 994 and 42, 834 drought relief loans for $6,970, 224.

In addition to refinancing loans through the Farm Credit Administration, the farmer in Texas were benefited also by a reduction of mortgage principal which amounted to $6,228,500. Further saving resulting from lowered interest rates are estimated at $3,550,000 annually.

In the period May 1, 1933 through June 30, 1936, 765,674 mortgage loans totaling $2,056,156,826 were made and $1,391,373,603 was advanced in loans to cooperatives, while $381, 878,072 was loaned to cooperatives by the agencies of the Farm Credit Administration in the United States.

More About That Early Day Fence

Mrs. Delise McGuire and Miss Dess Key were in Silverton last week in the search for interesting material for a history of Early Texas that is being assembled. They visited with old timers around town, at the court house, and at the News office and among other things, they have written about the

DRIFT FENCE BETWEEN

F. and J. A. RANCHES
Tom Latimer built the drift fence between the F. and J. A. Ranches in 1883, according to information given by W. E. Schott, still a resident of Briscoe County. This fence served as a division line between the two ranches and also stopped the cattle from drifting during a norther or severe snow storm, hence the name, "drift fence". Before this fence was built the cowboys would spend weeks getting their cows back on their own ranch. After drifting for miles they would get mixed with cattle from other ranches and it would take days to round them up and separate them from other herds.

Wire for this fence was shipped from England to Galveston and from there it went by freight to Gainesville. Freighters brought the wire from Gainesville by ox teams. The wire was very strong and the fence was well built, parts of it are in use today, where it did not interfere with later day surveys. Parts of it may be seen today on the G. B. Mayfield farm. It was a five wire fence with three iron stays between every post.

It began on the west at the Caprock, crossed the county in an east and west direction, coming within four miles on the south of Silverton, and then ran due west 25 miles into Swisher county.

Mrs. McGuire and Miss Key interviewed for this story, R. F. Stevenson, W. E. Schott, and R. E. Douglas.

Solid Week of Rain Soaks Briscoe County

Wednesday morning came bright and clear, marking the end of a solid week of intermittent rain, with Silverton and immediate vicinity receiving three and a half inches. The rain has been quite general over the Panhandle, although it was much lighter north of Happy.

Reports from Francis and other outlying districts report as much as eight inches. To the east more rain has been received and many Eastern Rivers are at flood stage with bridges washed out and homes destroyed. Briscoe County's rain fell in an ideal manner, most of it penetrating the ground, soaking it deep into the subsoil.

Volunteer wheat has already made a startling growth and what is not turned under will soon be under pasture. Row feed crops will make good where a few weeks ago it looked like a feed shortage.

Not too much fall wheat has been planted but with the ground in the condition that it is now, wheat farmers will be hard at work as soon as they can get in their fields.

Thursday morning the skies are overcast again and we may get more rain again today and tonight.

Quite a Change

This fur parka, once worn by Admiral Richard E. Byrd at the South Pole, and which Corrine, sensational "Apple Dancer" in the Streets of All Nations at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas, wears above, is quite, quite different from her dancing costume.

Lion and Lamb Share Fair Cage

The lion and the lamb sleep together in peace in the Hollywood show of the Texas Centennial Exposition. The lion, it happens, is only three months old and that is the reason the lamb and little Doris Lou Bell are so carefree in its cage, just inside the Midway gate.

ROCK CREEK H. D. CLUB WITH MRS. JOHNSON

The Rock Creek Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. C. A. Johnson at the home of Mrs. C. M. Chappell. The day was spent quilting. Three quilts were quilted.

Miss Meadows met with us at 3:30 and gave an interesting talk on pantries and how they should be ventilated. We had 19 regular members present and 10 visitors: Mrs. Eral Robinson and daughters Earline and Hazel D., Miss Ruby McDaniel, Mrs. Bill Dunn, Mrs. W. W. Martin Mrs. John McCloud, Mrs. C. M. Chappell, Mrs. Sallie Smith, and Mrs. R. M. Guffie.

Methodist Missionary Society Begins New Year's Study

The Methodist Missionary Society met on Monday the 21st, with Mrs. Arnold Turner. They started their fall year book, which is "The Preface to Racial Understanding".

Resettlement Loans Have Prevented 19 Foreclosure or Forced Sales

The treasury of Briscoe County has received $3,176 during the past year as a result of voluntary debt adjustments reach through aid of the Resettlement Administration.

Adjustments have been made for 19 farmers of this county to prevent foreclosures or forced sales. A total of 5,856 acres of land, as well as other property, was involved. Debts amounting to $70,900 before adjustment, were reduced by $4,450.

"One long-time purpose of the Resettlement Administration is to help farmers toward ownership of the land which they operate", said Q. E. Brown, chairman of the county debt adjustment committee. "It is just as important to keep them from losing land which they already own as to help them buy new land". He said that the debt adjustment work is largely with small farmers whose financial needs are so small that other agencies find no profit in handling them, or where the debt is so large in proportion to the value of the property, that other financing agencies consider it unsafe. The Resettlement Administration makes no loans for paying delinquent taxes, interest or principal, but through committees of local volunteer workers brings about agreements between the debtor and creditors for reducing or extending the debt to such an extent that the debtor has a reasonable opportunity of paying it off. Assistance is rendered in refinancing the debt through the Farm Credit Administration or other public or private lending agencies.

Although it can make no loans for purchase of land or payment of taxes, the Resettlement Administration is authorized to make loans for the purchase of teams, tools and supplies. Such loans were made in many of the cases adjusted during the year. The were six unsettled cases pending September 1.

Members of the debt adjustment committee for Briscoe County are: Q. E. Brown, Silverton; Clarence Anderson, Silverton; and Emmett Brookshier, Silverton.

Amarillo Bound

Coleman Garrison and J. W. Foust attended the Amarillo Fair Thursday. The expect to return home about Sunday. Look out Amarillo!

STUDENTS FROM SILVERTON RECEIVE N. Y. A. AID

Wilma Dickerson and Sarah Francis Smith of Silverton have been chosen by the West Texas State Teachers College to receive aid in attending school under provisions of the National Youths Administration. The college has been granted aid for 102 students and President J. A. Hill is requesting further aid because of the serious drought conditions which prevail over most of Texas. The fall semester opened September 15, and both N. Y. A. students reported on that date.

Mrs. McClendon Has Bad Fall

Mrs. Jake McClendon was a victim of the bad streets Friday, when she fell on the crossing between the M System Store and the Lusk Cafe. Her hip was broken in the fall and she was taken to the Plainview Sanitarium. Her hip will have to be in a plaster cast for at least two months and perhaps longer.

Her friends are indeed sorry to hear of her accident and wish her the speediest recovery possible.

LOCKNEY WOMAN DIES IN PLAINVIEW HOSPITAL

PLAINVIEW, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Ed. Foster, 60, who lived north of Lockney for the past 35 years, died at a Plainview hospital this afternoon. Funeral services will be held at 3:00 P. M., Wednesday at Lockney Methodist church.

Survivors are a son, Joe Foster, Albuquerque, N. M.; and three daughters, Mrs. Cy Davis, Lockney; Mrs. Roy Perry, Plainview; and another daughter of Lockney.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Mrs. Foster was a sister of Mrs. W. E. Schott, Sr., living northeast of Silverton.

Panhandle South Plains Fair Offers Many Entertainments

With the resources of a vast agricultural empire on display, six afternoons of horse racing and the greatest array of midway entertainments features, gates of the twenty-third annual Panhandle South Plains Fair will open Monday, September 28, on one of the largest regional expositions ever held in West Texas.

Combined with the fair this year is a Centennial Celebration and a full week of horse racing, the first ever staged on the South Plains. A gigantic parade is to be staged in downtown Lubbock in connection with the Centennial program and a pageant depicting the march of Texas history, will feature an evening's performance.

The fair grounds east of Lubbock is a proverbial behive of activity as the fair approaches. Preparations were made to care for the greatest attendance the exposition has ever had.

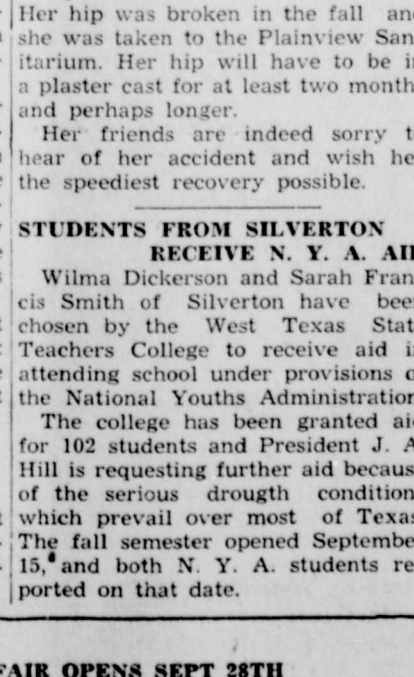

Workmen are laboring around the erection of a new-5,000-seat grandstand on the fair grounds race track and everywhere final touches are being made for the opening on the 28th.

HEADS WORLD FAIR

Harry Olmsted, for quarter of a century prominent in southwestern business and civic affairs, is the new head of the Texas Centennial Exposition. He succeeds to the leadership of the $25,000,000 world's fair following the recent death of William A. Webb, general manager. Mr. Olmsted was for twenty years a director and for five years president of the State Fair of Texas.

District Court Has Light Docket Here

District Court met in regular session Monday of this week. Officers of the court are: A. J. Folley, District Judge; Alton Chapman, District Attorney; Richard F. Stovall, Court Reporter; Joe H. Smith, Foreman of Grand Jury; and Will Smithee, Secretary.

Grand Jury was in session until Tuesday evening. Out of the original sixteen men called for jury service, only four were able to report. New Jurors were called and the Grand Jury this session consisted of:

- | | |
|------------------|---------------|
| Arthur Arnold | Fred Lemons |
| Will Smithee | H. S. Sanders |
| J. R. Guest | G. C. Patton |
| G. W. Sweatt | Joe H. Smith |
| J. M. Thompson | H. P. Howard |
| Luther McClimsey | David Hill |

One indictment for felony was returned by the jury; however no arrest had been made.

Elmer Staples was given a two-year sentence for forgery in a case that has been riding since 1934. On account of his being district attorney at the time of the forgery, Judge Folley was disqualified to preside in this particular case and Ernest Tibbets was appointed as special judge to hear the case.

Staples was arrested upon complaint of E. G. Rice who cashed the forged check. Staples is also wanted for forgery at Amarillo and Hereford and officers will remove him for trial to Amarillo as soon as road conditions are better.

Three divorce cases were heard and divorces were granted to Virgie Anderson, from Dave Anderson; and H. B. Gibson from Beatrice Gibson.

Court will be in session again next week. Petit jurors have been notified not to appear for duty until the week after next.

Silverton Wins Over Canyon, Score 6-0

The Silverton Owls opened their 1936 grid season with a win over the training school boys from West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon, with a score of 6-0.

The game was played on a slow, muddy field and was hotly contested throughout the whole game. Early in the second quarter Canyon resorted to a passing game two of which were successful. The third landed in the arms of Vinson Smith, Silverton full back, on about the Silverton five yard line. When the smoke cleared away, Smith had navigated the entire length of the field for the only counter of the game. He was aided by good interference.

Silverton, under W. W. Wilson has a likely looking squad. Allard one of the best backs, was unable to be in the game except for a few minutes on account of a bad ankle. His return will strengthen the team a lot.

The boys seem to be a little better on defense than offense but that is natural in this stage of the season. There's a bunch of hard tacklers out there. Few times was it necessary for the secondary defense to stop a man.

The lineup for the Canyon game was as follows:

| Walling, LE |
| Haynes, LT |
| Montague, LG |
| White, C |
| Lee, RG |
| Gregg, RT |

Finley White's Agricultural Briefs

Although Briscoe County is a "fur piece" from where they manufacture Morton's Salt, we still know that when it rains it pours. We have had 5 to 8 inches of rain since this last spell started in—and it's still raining. This rain has stopped everything except rent, taxes and whittling—and the whittlers are scarce on the streets of Silverton. With the Grand Jury in session this week, we don't anticipate many visitors in the Capitol city.

The highways have been all but impassable all over Briscoe County. If the Hon. Harry Hines could drive around a bit in Briscoe county this week, I'm sure he'd start some paving work here within 30 days.

Fair News

For the first time in ,we don't know how many hundred years, it rained too much for Briscoe County to put on a display at Amarillo Fair. The roads were so nearly impassable during the latter part of last week that it was impossible to collect up the exhibits for the Fair. The Lubbock Fair comes off next week—September 28 to October 3. We won't be out done—we'll just get our wares together and show at Lubbock—that is if the roads dry up so we can.

We have some awfully good looking things to show, but we still need a lot of help from the farmers. If you have any Soy beans, Peanuts, Pop Corn, Cushaws, Cantaloupes, Millet, or anything good—or "sorty" good we want and need it. Arrangements will be made to pick up show material in Quitaque, Kent, Gasoline, Antelope, or any place else where there is anything to pick up.

Work Sheet Compliance

We hear lots of talk about compliance on this 1936 farm program. Some of the stuff that has been heard may be true but our bet would be that most of it isn't so.

Every farmer is expected to measure and map his farm (if no work sheet was signed you do not have to measure). It is highly important that each farmer show exactly what use was made of each piece of tillable land on his farm in 1936. By that I mean show where you have cotton, peas, maize, wheat or what you have planted. Also show where your leave out ground is and what you are going to do with it. If you plowed up wheat as green manure, be sure to designate that field as such. Give the measurements in feet, yards or chains and we will do the figuring here in the office. If the farmers have no preference as to what unit of measurements to use, then my suggestion would be that you use a 66-foot wire. Sixty-six feet is the length of a common Surveyor's chain and it simplifies our figuring in the office—however, we will take measurements in any unit, feet, yards, rods, or what not.

Our first shipment of Compliance papers are scheduled to leave here Saturday. All fields measured and turned in by 8:00 A. M. Saturday, will get off in the first shipment. (Hint—this may make 30 to 60 days difference in your check coming in).

Trench Silos Again

Looks like with all this rain we're having that we'll either have to rent some land to stack our feed on or dig a trench silo to store it in. Digging a trench silo would be lots cheaper, and too, it's a better way to keep feed.

Surely the ground is soft enough now to dig a silo pretty easily. Another thing in our favor is the fact that this trench can be dug while it's too wet to work in the field. Let's play safe now and not feel sorry later. Let's dig a nice trench silo and store away several tons of this feed so we can use it when it's not raining any more.

From the sidelines, the game was a good one. And Friday of this week the home boys will try to add another scalp when they meet the Lubbock Cowhands. The Lubbock team is heavy, well drilled and will give the Silverton lads a tough tussle. The game is called at three o'clock on the Silverton field.

Let's close our business houses and see that game. The boys need our support and win or lose they will give you a big quarter's worth of fun. Joe Mercer showed his appreciation of the team last Friday when he gave them comps to the show. Make your motto, "I'll see you at the game Friday."

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

For the Pacific States
A Good Example
It Sold for $700

The Pacific states should interest themselves in air defense, apart from the national government.

Arthur Brisbane

When a committee of rich men from New York called on Abraham Lincoln, told him how much money they had, and urged that he send a good battleship to do nothing but protect New York city, his reply was that if he had as much money as they said they had, he would build a battleship for himself.

The west coast states, California, Oregon, Washington, co-operating perhaps with their vigorous neighbors of Vancouver, and other points above the Canadian border, might well have a few flying ships of their own, a sort of air militia.

San Francisco, where they combine patriotism with plenty of money, and great civic pride and energy, might well start the idea of a Pacific coast flying force. That need not be very expensive. A hundred machines to begin with, a hundred plucky young fliers, practicing the gentle art of flying at night, and dropping bombs, practicing especially mimic warfare against other flying machines, would constitute an admirable object lesson to the rest of the country.

And if California, in San Francisco for instance, should start a little flock of one hundred machines, Los Angeles could be relied upon to hurry in with two hundred, Seattle and other coast cities also.

Such machines need not be a total loss.

In the first place, many young gentlemen with rich fathers, not knowing exactly what to do with themselves, extremely anxious to find work worth while, and preferably dangerous, would delight in each equipping his individual machine, for the service of the Pacific coast and of Uncle Sam, as the nobles in the old days delighted in equipping each his regiment, or his fighting ship, for the service of the king.

Two hundred or three hundred high-powered, swift flying machines, directed by quick and courageous American brains, would be worth more to the safety of the Pacific coast than a hundred battleships. For the fighters that come, if they do come, will fly miles above the battleships.

They would come less gaily, less confidently, if they knew that trained fliers awaited them.

Hideyo Noguchi, who gave his life to fight yellow fever in Africa, will inspire many men. He was born of a proud, warlike race, intensely self-centered, for 2,000 years a hermit people. The loyalty of a Japanese was to family, clan, above all to the emperor representing his race. The rest of the world was nothing to him.

Born one generation after Japan opened her doors to the world, Noguchi felt the new spirit of the times. He was loyal to family, clan, emperor, race; but he was devoted chiefly to all human kind.

From boyhood to the last, through poverty and many perils, he studied how to wipe out disease. He discovered the germ of yellow fever, developed serums to prevent the fever or cure it, led in the work that has driven it out of America and will soon put an end to it throughout the world.

Yellow fever killed countless millions of all peoples. Noguchi's skill and devotion have saved the lives of millions, too many to estimate, most of them foreigners to whom his forefathers would have paid no attention, calling them hein-ino, or no-folks.

Noguchi's self-sacrifice to human welfare sets an example that is sure to be followed. Perhaps, in time, most men will see that it is better to help one another than to kill or even rob one another.

It is said the Hackensack Indians sold to the white men for so many bars of lead, and some finery, worth altogether $700, land on which now stands the entire city of Newark, N. J., and a great deal of land beyond.

The poor Hackensack chief, with his $700, couldn't buy today enough land for a tight grave at the corner of Broad and Market streets in Newark. Land goes up wonderfully.

Doctors at Kansas City report that birth control information so much discussed does little good to the poor, and has caused an "alarming slump in child bearing among educated families."

That is how reform works, usually. But since 90 per cent of human beings worth while come from poor families, providence may be working in its usual mysterious way.

Current Events in Review

Maine Is Captured by the Republicans

MAINE, the "barometer" state, is back in the Republican column at least so far as its state ticket is concerned. The G. O. P. captured the United States senatorship, the governorship and three congressional seats. Senator Wallace H. White, Republican, defeated Gov. Louis J. Brann, who sought to unseat him. Lewis O. Barrows, Republican, won the governorship by a substantial majority over F. Harold Dubord, Democrat.

The vote cast broke all records for size and interest in the election was intense. The state had been visited by both President Roosevelt, as he returned from his vacation cruise, and Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican Presidential nominee, who made speeches there only a few days ago. Colonel Knox, vice presidential candidate on the Republican ticket, also had canvassed the state. Brann, who was elected governor in 1932 and re-elected two years later, was the first Democrat to hold that office in Maine and was personally popular. White was elected senator in 1930 after ten years in the house of representatives.

Communism Is Denounced by Pope Pius XI

POPE PIUS XI may be physically weak, as recent reports say, but age and illness have not lessened the vigor of his opinions and his way of expressing them. In greeting and blessing some five hundred Spanish refugees who were received at Castel Gandolfo, the holy father, took occasion to denounce strongly the "mad" forces of Communism which, he declared, menaced, in Spain and elsewhere, "the very foundations of all order, all culture and all civilization." He urged the constituted authorities of all nations to oppose "these great evils with every remedy and barrier that is possible" and prophesied that there will be utter chaos if "those who have a duty in the matter do not hasten to repair the breach—if, indeed, it is not already too late."

Pope Pius XI

The pope spoke especially of the situation in Spain, but said the crisis there is "a school in which the most serious lesson is being taught to Europe and to the whole world—to a world now at last wholly steeped, ensnared and threatened by subversive propaganda, and more especially to a Europe battered and shaken to its very foundations."

For forty minutes the pontiff spoke passionately, his voice at times broken with emotion, and his address was transmitted by radio to all the civilized world. Reichsfuehrer Hitler, too, took another hard whack at the Communists at a ceremonial tribute to the World War dead in Nuremberg. Before 120,000 uniformed Nazis and 50,000 others he boasted of Germany's armed strength and shouted:

"Our old enemy, bolshevism, is vanquished within Germany, but still active around her borders. But let no one be deceived. We are ready at any hour. We all have one wish—to maintain peace—but with it goes one firm decision: Never to surrender Germany to that enemy we have come to know so well."

If Hitler, as some think, tries to lead the coming five-power Locarno conference into forming an anti-Soviet alliance, he will be firmly opposed by France. Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos says so, and declares France will under no circumstances abandon her military pact with Soviet Russia.

According to Pravda, authoritative newspaper of Moscow, Hitler plans to attack and partition Czechoslovakia before he embarks on a war against the Soviet Union.

Benito Mussolini and his cabinet appropriated large sums to build up Italy's army, navy and air forces to greater strength and planned to carry on vigorously the campaign for self-sufficiency in raw materials. It looked as if the dove of peace was preparing to leave Europe, and as relations between Japan and China grew more strained every day, she probably will have to take refuge on the western continent.

British Workers Reject Alliance With Reds

BRITISH organized labor will have no truck with the Communists. The trades union congress at Plymouth rejected, by overwhelming votes, three resolutions favoring the formation of a "popular front" alliance with the reds, similar to the combinations that captured the governments of France and Spain.

In this action the workers were largely influenced by the fiery words of Sir Walter Citrine, international labor leader, who has just returned from a visit to Russia. Said he: "After years of derision of the principles of the Socialist movement, after abuse of unions as the pillars of capitalism, we now have the curiously incongruous spectacle of Communist organizations wanting to come into our midst and be a part of the movement they have so derided."

"I do not know whether you are so credulous as really to believe that there is a sincere conversion to the principles of organized labor. However, for myself and the national council of labor I say without hesitation that the single, simple explanation of the tactics of the Communist movement today is the obvious, abject failure that has accompanied attempts to capture the Socialist movement for Communist principles."

San Sebastian Captured by Spanish Rebels

THE Spanish rebels scored their greatest victory to date when they captured San Sebastian, capital of Guipuzcoa province and famous Bay of Biscay resort. Santa Barbara fort, dominating the city, was first taken and the city's war council then decided to abandon the place, despite the opposition of the anarchists. The more conservative Basque nationalists prevented the rebels from burning the city, only a paper factory and two residences being destroyed, and the defending forces retreated toward Bilbao, accompanied by thousands of civilians and foreigners.

The municipal governor, Antonio Ortega, and his staff boarded a yacht to go to new headquarters at Zumaya, about 15 miles west of San Sebastian. The new line of defense was established at Orrio.

Farmers Will Meet to Plan Conservation

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE is arranging a series of community meetings of farmers for the purpose of laying out the "agricultural conservation program" for next year. He said the AAA planned the meetings in the farm areas in order to discuss crop insurance and possible maximum limits of benefit payments to each farm. He explained the program aimed at providing "greater abundance for the average American home," and should "help to check soil erosion, improve fertility, encourage better land use and maintain farm income."

Fleet Will Maneuver in North Pacific Waters

BACK at his desk after an illness of six months, Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson immediately made an announcement that will be of deep interest to Japan. The annual fleet maneuvers, which last May were shifted to the Canal Zone as a conciliatory gesture to Japan, will be held next year in North Pacific and Hawaiian waters, and probably the Tokio press will yelp again.

With the announcement Secretary Swanson asserted Japanese plans to retain over submarine and destroyers involve a "violation" of the London and Washington naval treaties, which are to expire December 31 by Japanese abrogation. He followed up his charge with the statement that the United States has completed plans for two new battleships and is prepared to begin construction "at a moment's notice."

The fleet maneuvers, officially designated as "fleet problem No. 18," will be held during late May and early June. The area of operation, it was indicated, will be the triangle between the Aleutian Islands, Hawaii, and Seattle, where the fleet problem of 1935 was conducted. Vessels and plane probably will work as far west as the Wake Islands.

Armament of the new battleships is at present limited to 14 inch guns, but Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, said frankly that if Japan does not agree to this limitation by next April, "the sky is the limit."

Sabotage on American Warship Revealed

OUR navy's intelligence department has discovered that a recent small fire on the cruiser Indianapolis while she was being overhauled in the New York navy yard was caused by the driving of a phonograph needle and nails into an electric cable; and other suspected sabotage on war vessels is being investigated. The work on the cruiser was being done by civilian employees and Capt. Charles A. Dunn, industrial manager of the yard, said the placing of the nails in the cables was "undoubtedly" a deliberate attempt to damage the cruiser.

REVIEW: THE SPREAD OF CHRISTIANITY IN WESTERN ASIA

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:24-35. GOLDEN TEXT—They rebuked all that God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.—Acts 14:27. PRIMARY TOPIC—How the Good News Spread. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christianity Reaching Out. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Spread of Christianity in Western Asia.

Review Sunday provides a needed opportunity to determine not only whether the class members have learned and retained the truth taught, but, what is of equal importance, whether the teacher has accomplished the purpose in mind at the beginning of the series.

What was the aim set before us for the three months? "To lead the student to an understanding of New Testament Christianity, and to beget in him the desire and purpose to live the Christian life and to win others to faith in the Lord Jesus."

The test which we apply as the twelve lessons of the past quarter pass in review is:

As a student, have I seen in the spread of Christianity the operation of a gospel of salvation which is the power of God for my salvation? Or, if I am saved, have I been stirred to a more earnest Christian life and a real passion for the salvation of others?

As a teacher, have I really used my opportunity to win the members of my class to faith in the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ? Have I brought to bear on the lives of those in my class who are Christians the Word of God, stirring them to holiness of life and zeal for God's cause on earth?

If we cannot reply in the affirmative, should we not ask whether our efforts to teach have been largely fruitless? But let us not be discouraged, for even as we now review the lessons we have studied together the Holy Spirit is ready to do His work and apply the truth to hearts and lives.

To many teachers the preparation and presentation of the review lesson is the most difficult of any during the quarter. To the student who has given little or nothing to the preparation of weekly lessons it is often a rather disconnected and uninteresting recapitulation of twelve lessons.

A suggested method of gathering up the essential teachings of these lessons is to group them around the following seven points:

The spread of Christianity after our Lord's departure into the glory was distinguished by the fact that

1. It was by the preaching of a faith that began and continued in the power and demonstration of the Holy Spirit. God honors such preaching and teaching in our day.

2. It was a spiritual movement that demonstrated its God-given power by thriving on persecution. One wonders whether much of the activity of the church in our day has not fallen into the doldrums of pious respectability. Perhaps we need a little persecution.

3. It was not the propagation of theological theory or of a religious sect or party. It was a movement of the Spirit of God which saved men, and saved them to win and serve their fellow-men. True Christian service is nobler and more sacrificial than any non-Christian social service.

4. It was a movement in which laymen as well as religious workers had a place. Philip the layman served with Paul the apostle. Lay men and women let us be awake to our responsibilities and privileges.

5. Difference of opinion was not permitted to hinder God's work. Do we know enough to let God work among us, even if he does not work just as we think he should?

6. The missionary spirit of the preacher was carried over to the convert. This is a succession which God has continued to our day. Are we co-operating and helping it forward?

7. The gospel is for all men, Gentile as well as Jew, whether yellow, red, black, or white. The great commission is still our command and our authority to pray, give, and go, that all men may hear the gospel of the Grace of God.

It Doesn't Pay—

Doing Favors for Others With Thought of Return Disappoints

"THE older I grow the more I am appalled by the ingratitude, the complete lack of a sense of obligation on the part of our fellow human beings.

"With me the people who come first are always those to whom I have any obligation whatsoever. Anything that is done for me is constantly on my mind and I am on the lookout to repay. But look about you and you will observe the most inconceivable indifference on the part of most otherwise decent people to what they owe to others. Indeed the code seems to be to cultivate those from whom some advantage may be forthcoming and neglect those to whom we are indebted. The answer to it all is to put yourself out for nobody; it doesn't pay."

The above lament was received by an international writer of note, who answers as follows: "It must have been an unusually unfortunate chain of experiences that gave this woman such an unhappy slant on human nature. But certain it is that favors done with thought of return are bound to bring disappointment. In this busy, hectic world, people are likely to be rather casual about give and take. That does not necessarily mean that they are unappreciative. They are just not punctilious. Frequently a kindness makes its mark but time passes before occasion presents itself to show appreciation, or to reciprocate. After all, if we think enough of people to put ourselves out for them, as our reader says, there must be a certain amount of faith. If we do things for others only because we want to do them and find a certain satisfaction, in it, we have nothing to lose. But the expected reward is something like the watched pot—very disappointing. In fact, it doesn't pay.

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

FRANK E. HAGEN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

KICKING TEDDY UP-HILL

IT IS certain that Theodore Roosevelt would never have become President in the manner he did if it hadn't been for Sen. Thomas Platt, then the political boss of New York state.

Roosevelt was elected and showed immediately that he could not be controlled by Platt or any boss. Platt's embarrassment was only that of a politician.

The solution, finally arrived at by a devious route, appeared before the primaries of 1900. The Republican party in New York was to name a candidate for governor—perhaps Roosevelt again—in September.

Platt decided that Teddy would be the vice-presidential candidate. He would kick Roosevelt up-hill, and out of New York state.

Roosevelt himself realized the move had been launched to shelve him, for so he regarded the vice-presidency. Moreover, neither Mark Hanna of Ohio, a president-maker in a big way in those days, nor McKinley wanted Roosevelt on the national ticket.

But Platt persisted. He was aided by Roosevelt's growing popularity, particularly in the West.

These Westerners carried their Roosevelt enthusiasm to the convention with them. The boom reached proportions that Hanna could not ignore and in a conference with Platt the night before the nominations the president-maker capitulated.

Hanna issued a statement advocating Roosevelt for the vice-presidency and told the newspapermen: "Boys, you can't stop it any more than you could stop Niagara."

Soon to become President at the unfortunate death of McKinley, Roosevelt won the election. And when the gleeful Senator Platt was asked if he would attend the inauguration he replied: "Yes, I am going down to see Theodore Roosevelt take the veil."

NOTICE TO A NOMINEE

A LOT of folks today believe that when political parties are convening, the favored candidates, wherever they may be, have one ear to a keyhole, a wetted finger uplifted to test direction of the political winds, and have set their radio dials the proper wave length to listen in on convention hall.

But it wasn't always like that. We had ten Presidents before the man who was destined to become the eleventh, James K. Polk of Tennessee, was informed of his candidacy by telegraph.

The dots and dashes that spelled out Polk's surprising overthrow of Martin Van Buren in the Democratic convention of 1844 were impulses over a newly-built line of telegraph between Baltimore, scene of the convention, and Washington. Polk, who was waiting in Washington, was the first man who received the news in what is today a commonplace fashion.

Van Buren, seeking to succeed himself, was easily the favorite. But he had steadily lost ground at the Baltimore meeting after being placed "on the spot" by the question of the annexation of Texas. Southern delegates began to forsake his candidacy in large numbers. His managers attempted to change the party's new two-thirds rule to a majority ukase, but were unsuccessful.

A steady drift to Polk began on the ninth ballot of the convention. Strangely enough, a letter from Jackson, Van Buren's mentor, which pleaded for harmony, helped complete the rout in Polk's favor. The telegraph wire served for one more purpose on this momentous occasion. Sen. Silas Wright was in Washington and had been tendered second place on the ticket with Polk. He was angry over the shelving of Van Buren, so the dots and dashes which came back over the wire carried his indignant refusal of this chance to become the vice-president of the United States.

Gray Uniforms

Research among the archives of Fort Monroe, Va., reveals that the high-powered rifle was responsible for the change in color of uniforms of the United States Army from blue to olive drab. Blue, it was discovered, is visible at a longer distance than any other color, and makes an easy target for sharpshooters. Until after the Spanish-American war there were no guns accurate or high-powered enough to make any difference.

She lifted her hand with the letter. "Jeb has not, sister, quit his claim on you," Bee's handwriting assured. "That is not J. E. Braddon. He does not speak about you much; but he does a lot of listening, when you're mentioned. . . . He's giving you time to get yourself straightened out."

Suppose she married Cathal O'Mara? What did it mean that, as she lay in the late afternoon shadow, she so much as played with the fancy?

"And now my times with you are spent; there's nothing of you left for me in all the future. We'll be in the world, both of us, but I may never again speak to you or see your face!"

Agnes stirred, and twisted a little. She wanted to be in the world with Cathal O'Mara.

They traveled slowly through Provence, into northern Italy in the autumn, on to Interlaken below the Jungfrau, and reached Paris, at last, in November; and there they were when the crash came, and the cafes and the counting-houses alike—the Cafe de la Paix and the American branch banks on the Place de la Concorde and Boulevard Hausmann—became places of panic.

To the crowded hotels of the Rue de Rivoli and about the Etoile the cables carried to Americans only messages of catastrophe. "Millionaires" overnight became penniless, or worse. Little slips of paper told them: "All you had is gone; and you owe more."

A few words on a cablegram slip—less than a score of syllables, sometimes—and a man who last week strutted and boasted that he was worth six millions shut himself alone in his ten-room suite at the hotel and shot himself.

What had changed? What curse caused this incredible calamity that spared no one?

The Gleneths, mother and daughter, moved among groups utterly confused. Beatrice had a cable from her husband in Chicago: "All right enough with us. Don't worry."

She was not dependent, as many about her were, upon monthly remittances from home, or upon renewals of a letter of credit. Bob had provided generously in advance.

Some wives, in her situation, were however cashing their letters of credit and cabling the proceeds home. So astonishingly had the situation reversed itself!

Then the second big "drop" came. It had come much closer to the Gleneths than merely to people they knew; but the two of the family in Paris had not yet received a letter written that day. They had only Bob's second cable to his wife: "Some temporary losses of course, but nothing serious; no necessity whatever to alter any of your plans."

Bee's letter arrived the next week: Six o'clock, Tuesday, just before I go to meet Davis. Well, Agnes—for it's your turn—we got it. Today at noon Collitt, Ayreforth and Remble admitted inability to meet obligations. The afternoon papers have it in headlines; also our phone has been busy. It appears to have surprised many friends.

Nobody knows—or tells—how much we're short; but it's a few hundred thousand, not counting what's owed to Father when he threw in a lot of money last week to try to save Davis. Father shouldn't have done it. He's been taking losses on his own that would sink anybody else.

Why did I let Davis in for this? But I never dreamed he could get in so deep. I didn't know that men could lose more money than they ever had. It seems they can.

Of course I never figured that it might happen at a time when it would make so much difference to Father. And there are others besides ourselves to consider. Davis seems to have done his bit, you see, dear, in making paupers of many trusting people.

Every one is grateful to Jeb in these days, Agnes—everybody lucky enough to have taken his advice. He's been insisting on the utilities, and especially the insul properties, you know. Of course, they're down; but in comparison with other things, they're just Gibraltar. A lot of people are thanking God tonight or J. E. Braddon.

I'm going to the train, now, to meet my husband.

Both boys perfectly fine, Mother. Bee had mailed it, her sister realized, on the way to the train; but what a place to stop a letter—before she met Davis on the day he had failed completely!

Had he come on that train? And how was he? Agnes put herself beside Bee on the platform awaiting him for that meeting yet to occur in her mind, though her sister had accomplished it eight days ago. She could see him stepping from the car slowly but unwaveringly, with lips pressed tight and white; with his eyes looking at his wife, who could not help contrasting him on this day of his public failure with Jeb Braddon, whom all people more than ever praised and admired.

Bee would be—Agnes knew that she had been—"good" to Davis that night. Never would she have blamed or reproached him; she would have been sorry for him, and shown it. But that was what, last of all, Davis desired; he could have borne reproach better than pity. Agnes wished she could have been there to prevent Bee's pitying him; to show him something like admiration.

She did not believe that she could have felt for him admiration; but she could have feigned something to satisfy him; she knew how Davis had needed some word of praise that night.

Agnes waited for her mother to finish the letter.

"We ought to be home, Mother."

"Yes. But how can I go?"

"Why not?"

"I will return, I told your father," her mother said, "when he asks me to. I must wait until he does so."

CHAPTER XI

Bee gave up her home the week before Christmas.

"Not before Christmas!" Davis protested to her.

"What would Christmas be to us in the house, under the circumstances?" Bee retorted. "And the boys are too little to know. Let's get it off our hands."

"Oh, God!" breathed Davis, and held her to him.

Technically, Bee could have kept the house; it was in her name, and her father offered her a monthly allowance large enough to pay grocery and furnace-bills, light, telephone and wages for one servant; but Bee spared Davis even discussion of this. She dismissed all her maids and turned title of the house over to the bank which held Davis' biggest note; and she sold everything she possessed that would fetch a price—except her engagement and wedding-rings.

So the girl whom her father had always called Dark One returned "home," to his house, with her babies and her husband.

"Bee Ayreforth is perfectly wonderful with her husband," the neighborhood said. "This will make them much closer together." For the neighbors knew that Davis and Bee needed to be brought "closer"—whatever that meant. The neighbors did not yet know—though Davis and Bee did—that she was bearing him another child. Yet Davis could not feel that his wife "loved" him; and he longed as never before for love to reassure him and give him boldness.

He became more sensitive to comparison of himself before her with who continued to succeed, and so he avoided the homes of many of Bee's friends. By himself in the day, he looked up mere acquaintances and even strangers who were suggested as possibly having a job open. He put down his pride mercilessly, except that he refused to take the position which his father-in-law patently made for him in his office.

Jeb was still doing splendidly. The Insul "equities" were still quoted high. Jeb had proved himself much, much wiser than other men; he prospered in the panic; and Davis could not bear the thought of him. Yet he had to see Jeb at the house.

Bob Gleneth was the one who, usually, invited him. Gleneth had liked him best of Agnes' friends, and now he was doing business with Jeb; for Bob badly needed some new financing which Jeb had proved able to arrange. Jeb liked to come to the house.

Not infrequently, therefore, four sat down at the dinner-table—Father in his own place, the Dark One in her mother's place, Davis on one side, Jeb on the other.

Cravath still served the table; but the house staff had been cut in two. So there sat Davis at the table silently between his wife whom he no longer supported, and her father who lodged and boarded them both, and who paid even the nursemaid; and opposite sat Jeb Braddon, whose opinions constantly were asked, and given, when expressed, the respect and authority of success.

Davis, sometimes, could scarcely eat. At night, after Jeb had gone, Davis did not sleep. He lay alone in a room which had been a guest-chamber next to the room which had been and now again was Bee's, and wherein she slept once more in her own bed.

Some nights he never got up to disturb her; but often he could not keep himself from entering her room and waking her.

"Or did he wake her? Had she at ways been asleep?"

"Bee."

"Oh! You! . . . What is it?"

"Do you love me?"

"Love you? . . . What more can I do to show it?"

"By God, Bee, I'm going to support you. At least support you! . . ."

In March, Davis got his job; and as before, he acted without consulting either his father-in-law or Jeb about it. He borrowed ten thousand dollars on his life-insurance, and formed a new partnership with Ken Remble.

Business was looking up for a while; many leaders believed and proclaimed that the worst was past and prosperity restored. But within two months more some of them who had backed their beliefs had shot themselves while "cleaning" revolvers, died of monoxide gas poisoning in their garages, or had leaped—or "fallen"—from their office windows.

Arthur Linsdale, a neighbor of the Gleneths, rose from dinner-table and went to the lake shore alone and put a bullet through his head. He was important enough so that cables carried the news that night to European papers; and Beatrice Gleneth read it in her room at her hotel in Florence.

She sent Rogna for her daughter. "Agnes, we're leaving for home. . . . No; your father has not cabled for me; and I've had no letter today. It's this: Arthur Linsdale's shot himself. He's just your father's age. I've often thought of them as alike. . . . We're leaving at once."

When Bee's mother, and sister were on the water, she met, driving to market, a neighbor of hers whom she had often seen when she had lived in her own house. It was Joyce Meredith, whose husband, though out of a job since January, had held on to their home, though it was well known that the grocer and the butcher had not been paid for months. The garage men would not carry slow accounts, and so Gene had got rid of his car. Joy was walking from the market. She had had no servant since Christmas.

Bee asked her to lunch; and Joy got into the car casually enough, and as they drove, she referred easily to her children, who were being sent to the public school; they took their lunch with them to save the two-mile walk two extra times a day. Joy was older than Bee, and her girl was ten, and the boy eight.

It was when Bee and her guest were at the luncheon-table, with Bobby and Davy between them, that Joy suddenly broke down.

Cravath had just served her and Bee, and he had laid before the little boys exactly what they ought to have, when Joy dropped her fork, which she had lifted to her lips.

"I can't eat! How can I eat? How can I put this food in my mouth when my children—my children are hungry?"

Bee jumped up and caught her in her arms.

"No! No!" Joy cried. "I can't eat! . . . I sent my girl and boy to school again with bread with a little butter spread on it! All I had in the house! That's all they've had for days in their lunch-boxes! . . . And oatmeal at home. That's a box of oatmeal I left in your car; all we'll have tonight and tomorrow. . . . And my Sally said to me this morning: 'Don't mind. . . . don't mind, Mother. Nobody knows.' You see, Bee, they go off by themselves to eat,—Sally and Gene,—so nobody does know, from them. And they eat the oatmeal morning and night at home! They're such little sports!"

Bee made the mistake, that night, of letting Davis learn of this. She would not have told him, but she had to explain two circumstances—Bobby's report to his father that a big lady cried at lunch-time, and the further fact that Bee was without ten dollars, which was to have served her for the rest of the week; for she had made Joy take it.

Bee herself did not sleep too well that night. She heard Davis walking about; he came into her room and bent over her.

"Hello," said Bee, and put up a hand which he clasped so tight he hurt her; but she let him.

"I've been looking at our boys," he said.

"And they will be. Nothing—nothing will ever rob them of their opportunity!"

"Of course not."

"And by God, I'll take care of you—and the little you that's coming."

"Of course you will."

"Kiss me, Bee."

She put both arms about his neck and found his lips.

"That's like—old times—almost, Bee. Oh, God, how I want you to love me!"

The huge ship, upon which Agnes and her mother crossed, was almost without passengers in the first class. It carried, actually, more stewards and attendants for that class than travelers.

Topics of discussion between the homebound passengers were seldom cheerful; they felt themselves favored and protected people on their way to hear, at home, the full facts of disasters which had been withheld or glossed over in cables and letters.

"Why," said Beatrice Gleneth again and again to Agnes, "why did Mc Linsdale do it?"

STAR DUST Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

AT LAST something long predicted has happened. A real battle has been described over the air while it was going on. And never has there been a more exciting broadcast. H. V. Kaltenborn, the news commentator, stood on the roof of a hotel in Hendaye, France, and described the fighting going on just across the bay in Spain; his words and the rumbling of the big guns were clearly heard in this country.

They're building a new movie theater in New York, and equipping it for television, though we're told that television won't really be practical for some time to come.

Would you trade Warner Baxter for Dick Powell, or vice versa?

Twentieth Century-Fox think it's a good deal. The former will get the latter for "On With the Dance," for which elaborate plans are being made. This is only the second time Powell has been allowed to stray from the home lot; the first time it was for "Thanks a Million."

And in return Warner Brothers will use the very popular Mr. Baxter as co-star with Kay Francis. Warner Baxter still remembers the time when things weren't going too well for him, and as a result of playing the role of a theatrical producer in "Forty-second Street" for Warner Brothers his star rose again.

Funny, isn't it, the way a star's popularity ebbs for a while and then, if he's lucky, the tide turns and he becomes a box-office name once more. There's the case of George Bancroft, who was at the top for so long. Then, apparently, he slipped. If you saw "Mr. Deeds Comes to Town" you'll recall him in a small part which he played superbly. As a result of that Columbia will star him again, this time in "Racketeer in Exile."

When you see "Swing Time" you'll see Victor Moore, once one of the best comedians on the stage. In fact, that's what he was till he worked in "Swing Time." For some years he has had Broadway in the palm of his hand. And he was content to have it that way; had no yearnings for Hollywood. Years ago he made pictures—about fifteen years ago, to be exact. About forty short comedies and several feature length pictures were chalked up to his credit, before he declared that he'd never make another movie unless something revolutionary came along. Apparently the Rogers-Astaire picture was that something, for he has signed a long-term contract with RKO.

Helen Hayes has chosen the story for her series of broadcasts. It is "Bambi," a novel by Marjorie Benton Cooke, which tells of the adventures of a small-town girl who comes to New York to go on the stage. It was published about twenty years ago—if you can remember that far back you may recall it.

Rudy Vallee will go to work in Hollywood again in October—the picture being entitled "Mr. Melody." And gossip folk are renewing the talk about a romance between him and Alice Faye.

In "Sing, Baby, Sing" Adolphe Menjou gives one of the best performances of his career. Alice Faye, the heroine of the picture, has improved greatly. The story is obviously based on the romance of Elaine Barrie and John Barrymore—there's the pursuit across the country and all the rest of it; no wonder John objected!

If you want to get in touch with Kate Smith, who'll be back on the air waves soon, write to Kated, Incorporated; the address is 1819 Broadway, New York city. That's her business name, and she employs no less than 55 persons. Some attend to charities, some to the professional basketball team which she owns, three give their time to her fan mail, others look after her radio and theatrical affairs and there's a special department devoted to helping young artists.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Joe E. Brown, back from his London triumphs, will make a picture that Douglas Fairbanks made years ago, "Flirting With Fate" . . . Harry Horlick, of the air waves, has a collection of autographs which includes those of many of the Russian nobility who perished in the revolution . . . Phil Baker's favorite broadcasts are private ones; he loves to talk about his two-year-old son . . . "The Gorgeous Hussy" is a grand picture, with Joan Crawford doing fine work, but it certainly mangles the historical facts on which it's supposed to be based . . . Paramount's "The General Died at Dawn" is one of the most thrilling of current pictures . . . And you certainly don't want to miss "The Texas Rangers." © Western Newspaper Union.

Hang It! Perkins Wants a Softer Berth "Oh, John, I forgot to tell you. We'll have to do something about the mutler's battress. He's been complaining. He wants a new one." "The what? Who?" "How silly of me! Of course I mean the mutler's battress." "I still don't get it. What?" "We'll have to get the battler a new mutress. He's been complaining about what?" "The mutrer has been complaining about the battless. I mean the batrer has been complaining about the mutless. . . . It's Perkins; he wants a softer bed!"

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

Do you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong? Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

Yours Truly (?)

AS A TOWN WE ARE to be congratulated upon our streets. They are perfectly perfect. Very conducive to business—for if a customer from out of town ever gets in, he's here to stay. Makes steady customers out of 'em.

TAKE A LOOK at the new feature, "The Shoppers' Guide" at the top of opposite page. A lot of little bargains listed there, something from almost every business house in Silverton. It will appear every week, with new items each time. Be sure to look it over.

IF ALL THE RUBBER that has been ground off tires here in the past week could have been used for hard topping the streets and roads we'd have had that job done. I've wasted a half block or so of paving myself, and the Missus—whew!

A BOOK AGENT knocked at a door and the lady told her little girl to tell him that she was lying down and did not wish to be disturbed. A moment she heard, "Mamma is undressed and thinks it would disturb you to see her."

"I'VE BROKEN MY Glasses," said the attractive young lady to the eye doctor. "Will I have to be examined all over again?" "Oh, no," replied the optometrist, "Only your eyes."

I OVERHEARD Joe Mercer telling Neil, "I made $5.00 in thirty seconds this morning." How do you do it?" asks Neil. "Aw, I just refused to take a check for five bucks."

AMOS 'N ANLY have lost their open air taxicab. Porter Campbell has been driving it. Says it's a real mudder.

THAT FOOTBALL GAME was worth a quarter of anybody's money. The boys were in there fighting all through the game for all they were worth. There was a time in the last quarter when they kinda slowed up almost too much—but they did some nice tackling and when you get a team of hard tacklers, you have a team that won't get beat very bad.

Bill Norrid gets that old sleepy look off his face out there on end and gets right down to business. The other ends, Walling, I think, and Steele, were right in there too. And Monty and Lee, guards took a lot of punishment and dealt it out too. In fact the whole team has the spirit. And when Smith took out with that intercepted pass for a 95 yard run and a touchdown, he made himself the hero of the game. But right behind him came two Silverton boys and brought down a couple of would-be tacklers that otherwise might have brought him down.

THE BOYS PLAYING did right well for themselves and the school. But the rest of the student body were either too busy or else forgot that they had a game. It was the poorest school support I have ever seen in a good many years of following football. There were probably twenty loyal students out. What team can play their best when apparently their own classmates don't care whether they win or lose. Something ought to be done about the morale in the school. Herd that bunch of kids out to the game next week—if they don't have the dime—charge it.

THERE'S A LOT of different reports as to the amount of rain that has fallen. Some say eight, some say 3. Finley White says that he had a double barrel shotgun once and left it standing in the yard. A rain blew up and filled one barrel clear full, and never put a drop in the other. That's what they call spotted showers.

MONDAY AT NOON Whiteside had sold 22 pairs of rubbers for the day. Not bad for a town that is in the drouth area.

GETTING IN THE HAIR As a means of boosting beer consumption, a national publicity bureau for the brewers has just sent out a news release recommending the amber fluid as useful in setting the wave in milady's coiffure. Some people think that the darn stuff has been getting in the womens hair too much as it is, without pouring it on their skulls.

About that job printing—Let us show you that our work is on par with city shops.

NUTS AND DOLTS

"Boyl! Will I Be a Hit!"
Insurance Company statisticians show that 4,500 pedestrians met death while crossing between intersections last year. Nearly 75,000 others were injured. This phase of jay-walking alone accounted for more than 25 per cent of all pedestrian deaths and injuries in 1935. If you would live out your allotted span, cross at intersections only, and wait for the signal.

A FARMER'S LIFE "As He Lives It"

By ED HOLMES STATION C.E.H. FARM

A wise man once said, in effect, what you amount to in this world is how you spend your spare time. You farmers during this past rainy weather, did you get your binder and drill repaired and your gates and fences partly rebuilt or did you try to catch up with your sleep? I'll admit that one or two of these days of slow drizzle was sure fine for sleeping, for I tried it.

Mr. Dixon of the Spur Experiment station has convinced me that a dry land farmer needs some growing alfalfa and a trench silo. For a trial last week just before these late rains set in, I planted three acres of alfalfa and now I have a perfect stand.

I terraced a 20 acre pasture just above the alfalfa so that all the water in dashing rains from the pasture is caught on the alfalfa. The irony of it all is, in this known desert, I have been forced to out my terraces and drain the excess dry land water off the alfalfa.

This country is a perfect salt advertisement. "When it rains it pours". The rest of this will be mostly about politics. If you are not interested you better turn a page. What shall I do? Three of my most trusted friends that are each friendly with each other, are each positive that the man he personally supports for the next President of this U. S. must be elected as either of the other two is liable to bring the great nation to ruin. The funny thing about it is each of them ask for a different man. Namely Lemke, Roosevelt and Landon. All three of my friends are very sincere and get plenty of nerve to back their conviction and I am convinced that each of them honestly believe that he is looking at the facts that makes his personal contention correct.

Which of them are correct? Maybe all three of them are as there is a little good in everyman but who must I follow? Do just like you will of course, suit yourself. The fact is I shouldn't fall out with either of the three as this is a free country and your politics and your religion is your own business. You shouldn't fall out with me or your neighbor if you can't under-

Passengers in the smoking compartment on my train were arguing about why railroad business is picking up.
A factory owner said it was because of this new Free pick-up-and-delivery of less than carload freight. This is door-to-door service with no extra charge added to the freight bill.
A traveling salesman said it was because so many passenger and freight trains now run on faster schedules.

There was a school principal in the group and he said it was because train travel is so much cheaper for passengers. He said passenger fares are at the lowest point in history, with substantial reductions if you buy a round-trip ticket—and no more surcharge for riding in sleeping cars.

One man, a farmer, said he liked something he could depend on, that's why he was traveling by train.

Another man, a newspaper reporter, said people were in favor of railroad travel because it is by far the safest. He quoted a lot of statistics from a book called, "Live and Let Live."

A banker we all know by name said railroad tax payments means lot in this state.

We are proud of railroad achievements, appreciate the public's good will and increased patronage, and pledge continued progress.

stand the way we vote.

Pretty soon I will plainly state to say, we will all have the same who I am for and why. Vote your way for your reason and of course we will still be friends, and as C. R. Dickey used to say, we will all have the same President. I reserve the right to change my mind as I have done it lots of times and of course I gladly concede you the same privilege.

It doesn't pay to be too practical as we might misplace credit for the good things as one time we crossed Red River in a wagon when the quick sand was terrible and we barely got across. We were all scared to death and so happy to get across that Mother said, "Let us all thank the Lord". Owen Crockett, a neighbor boy that whipped the mules and forced them to keep moving in the tight places, looked at the mules with their sides heaving and the sweat dripping off them and said, "You better thank them old mules".

Just because you are right in your beliefs, if you are right, doesn't all ways make the other fellow wrong.

Jeffersonian Democrats Declare Stand They Will Make In Coming Presidential Election Texas Democrats Will Support Landon At The Polls In November

With a full realization that our country faces a political crisis transcending all partisan interests, we Democrats of Texas now pledge our best services to the Nation upon a non-partisan basis. We reassert our belief in the Constitution, in the rights of the States, and in the Jeffersonian principle. Believing this, we must condemn the Roosevelt Administration.

The issue before the American people today is not Roosevelt versus Landon; nor is it the Republican Party versus the Democratic Party. The issue here is the same as that which rocks the rest of the world, and that issue is regimentation versus freedom and democracy. We are confronted with a change in our form of government from a Democracy, in which the government is the servant of the people, to a Socialistic and Communistic state in which the individual becomes the servant of the state and loses all personal freedom and all property rights.

WE CHARGE that Mr. Roosevelt is not a Democrat and never has been in sympathy with the principles of the Democratic party.

WE CHARGE that Mr. Roosevelt has aided and abetted the aims of the Socialists and Communists, and has set up a board of advisors known as the "brain trust" which is largely made up of red radicals not in sympathy with our form of government.

WE CHARGE that few members of this "brain trust" have ever been connected with the Democratic party prior to the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt for President.

WE CHARGE that the key positions in the numerous bureaus set up by Mr. Roosevelt are now held by radical appointees selected for the most part by Felix Frankfurter, known throughout the country for his red radical activities.

WE CHARGE that the radicals, whether they call themselves socialists or communists, now have the nation by the throat, thanks being due to Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Perkins (a married woman following the Russian custom of not taking her husband's name), Felix Frankfurter, Rex Tugwell, and others.

WE CHARGE that all New Deal acts such as NRA, AAA, and others in which business, farmers and the rest of us were to be regimented and directed by some bureaucrat are the brain children of radicals, one of whom is Tugwell. We will prove to you before November 3rd, by quoting Mr. Tugwell himself, that he is as red or redder than Stalin, the Russian Dictator.

WE CHARGE that Mr. Roosevelt has shown no interest in the 1932 platform of the Democratic party, except to repeal prohibition.

WE CHARGE that most of the New Deal bills he forced through Congress were specifically called for in the 1932 Communist and Socialist platforms. We will prove this to you before November 3rd by showing you word for word the platforms of these parties and showing you how the New Deal met the demand of these platforms.

WE CHARGE that when Mr. Roosevelt insisted on having all relief and PWA money give into him to use at his discretion it was for the purpose of getting control of Congress, by denying any Congressman money-spending projects in his district if he voted against the President's bills.

WE CHARGE that Jim Farley, the Tammany politician and ex-prize fight commissioner, expended this money in building up a political machine to Tammanize the United States, and has succeeded in doing so to such an extent that it is as vicious as in New York City.

WE CHARGE that the Nation cannot survive the continuation of the present flagrant, wasteful spending far beyond its income. Mr. Roosevelt expects to continue it. Our national debt is now $35,000,000,000, or approximately $1,500 for the average family. The interest charges of 2 1/2 per cent upon this debt amount to $880,000,000.

The President's program of soaking the rich by increasing the taxes on all income above $50,000 does not provide enough money to pay even the interest charges on this debt. If the entire income of this group were confiscated, it would just pay the interest charges, which as shown by the United States Treasury Department figures for 1934, was $890,936,207. The New Dealers have put the mill-stone of debt around the necks of our children and grand children. We believe these debts are being piled up for the purpose of bankrupting the nation to forward the plan of Communist and socialist.

WE CHARGE that the most active bureau in Washington today is that of propaganda, through which millions of dollars of taxpayers' money is spent to misinform him and sing praises of the New Deal.

WE CHARGE that Mr. Roosevelt is wholly undependable. His record is one of broken promises. The Nation and business cannot go forward when it cannot rely on the statements of the President.

WE CLAIM that Landon and Knox are the only national nominees defending the time-honored principles of Democracy. The most important plank in their platform is that in defense of State's rights to prevent the centralization of power in Washington, where some organized minority can seize control of our government.

WE CLAIM that we are going to carry this state against Roosevelt. The normal Republican vote is about 150,000. Add to this 50,000 Republicans who ordinarily do not vote because they feel that it is useless. Add to this 150,000 Democrats who will not vote for Roosevelt under any circumstances. You know your own community is full of this kind of Democrats. Add to this 150,000 Democrats who will gladly join us if they think there is any use to vote against him. This alone will mean the election against Roosevelt, but add to this thousands more who will vote against Roosevelt when they are shown the fallacies and frauds of the New Deal. We Democrats are not going to let the New Dealers and Tammany Jim put any collars around our necks. A Texas voter is never a yellow dog unless he is a politician.

We want you to step out on the firing line with us. Are you willing to help us in the distribution of our literature, or in getting money to forward this work? We have a large number of organizations throughout Texas. We want one in every town.

CITY LOCALS

Mrs. S. E. Long has returned from California where she has been visiting for some time with her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Woods of northeast of Silverton are the proud parents of a baby — born Sunday night.

Chas. M. Bell, who was one of the original ones called for Grand Jury service Monday, left home at seven o'clock that day and arrived in Silverton about four in the afternoon. The Judge told him that no fine would be assessed but that really he should be fined, or given a medal, for venturing out on such roads.

Charley Dickerson was in Canyon last week visiting with his daughter, Wilma, and other Silverton young folks who are attending college at West Texas Teachers. He stopped at the Tulia Hospital to see his sister, Mrs. J. E. Daniel who is very ill there.

George Kirk and Earl Simpson were in O'Donnell Wednesday on business.

J. R. Foust ventured forth to Amarillo today on business.

A recent report from Mrs. Jake McClendon, who was injured here Friday in a fall on the slippery street crossing, is that she is doing nicely.

Mrs. Evelyn Chappel has been ill at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. N. Dunn the last week.

Mrs. R. A. Chappell of Amarillo is visiting at the home of her son, A. H. Chappell.

Mrs. Kate Fowler has been suffering for the past few days with rheumatism.

Mrs. W. L. Jewett is in Dallas with her sister.

Mrs. R. L. Buchanan is visiting in Brown and Waco, Texas. She went there with her son who has been visiting at her home. Mrs. Buchanan will return home this week.

Curtis King was unable to go to Dumas to work Monday on account of roads. Curtis received several broken ribs a short while ago in a tangle with Rock Creek bridge but is recovering nicely.

The Buckleys who have been visiting at the C. W. Norrid home here, have returned to their home in California.

Mr. Ned Baird had dinner with Homer Sanders Sunday.

Mrs. O. T. Bundy left last Thursday for Dallas where she will visit with her daughter, Mrs. Virgil Ballard. She plans to be gone for about ten days.

S. P. Brown from a mile north of town, was in the office of the News, Wednesday, visiting and renewing his subscription. Mr. Brown is planning on farming less land this coming season and has some extra farming equipment to sell. See the want-ads.

Bento Beans' trucks have been stuck on the Quitaque road four days this week.

Dr. Stewart and family of Tulia, were forced to spend Sunday night on Highway 86 on account of car trouble.

Mrs. W. H. Cash went to Tulia on Friday to see her brother, who is in the hospital there.

Manley Wood returned Monday night from Dallas. He had intended to go on to Milford in Ellis county, to visit his mother, but returned on account of roads. He reports that bridges are washed and things are in quite a mess at Chillicothe and thereabouts. It took him three hours to drive from Quitaque.

Mrs. Roy Brown who has been employed at the Wood Grocery is leaving the store, and they will leave in a short time for California with the Jim Bomar family.

Hugh Lusk who carries bread and grocery supplies from Plainview, has been having plenty of trouble on his route. Tuesday, he didn't make it at all, and Monday was forced to return by way of Tulia.

J. D. O'Daniel made a trip to Amarillo Monday in search of mud chains. He returned Monday night with the chains.

Mrs. C. L. Cowart is able to be down to the store again after her recent illness.

Mrs. R. N. Sheid returned to her home Sunday after a few weeks visit here at the Manley Wood home. Mr. and Mrs. Wood took her as far as Chillicothe and she went by train from there to her home in Sagerton, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo Deavenport of Wellington are visiting in Silverton. Mrs. Deavenport is a cousin of Edna Fowler's.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Sanders visited their daughter, Mrs. Herbert

State Salaries Low According To Walter F. Woodul

In 1876 Texas wrote into its Constitution a salary of Four Thousand Dollars for the Governor, Four Thousand Dollars for the Attorney-General and Twenty-five Hundred Dollars each for the Land Commissioner, Comptroller, Treasurer and Secretary of State. In those days this might have been an adequate salary but today those holding these high offices are not as well paid as they were in '76 and no man can carry the burden of his office and justly care for his family during his incumbency. Being constitutional provisions these salaries have remained the same and I am sure that if the thinking people have this called to their attention they will vote for one proposed Constitutional Amendment in the November Election of this year raising the salary of the Governor to $12,000 a year, the Attorney General to $10,000 and the other four Constitutional officers to $6,000 each. This will cost Mr. John Citizen less than half a cent each to do justice by these leading officials of our Great State government. Texas is the fastest growing state in the Union, the largest state and

Time Lost is Money Lost

It costs money to be sick. You see it directly if your pay envelope is short. You lose out on some important work if you live on a farm or if you are one of the few who are not docked for lost time. You can't afford to show up on the job unless you are feeling fit. The boss wants results—not excuses.

How many times do Gas on Stomach, Headache, Sour Stomach, "That Tired Feeling," That "Morning After" Feeling, Neuralgia, Rheumatic, Sciatic, Muscular or Periodic Pains keep you at home or interfere with your doing a full day's work?

All these troubles are caused or made worse by too much acid in your body. To correct this condition take

ALKA-SELTZER

The New Pain Relieving, Alkalinizing, Effervescent Tablet.

It is called Alka-Seltzer because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink, and as it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid. Alka-Seltzer is pleasant to take, harmless, non-laxative.

Why don't you try it? Get a drink at your drug store soda fountain for a nickel. Buy a package for home use.

Golden Anniversary

According to an insurance company, the chances of celebrating a golden anniversary depend entirely upon one's age and that of the consort at the time of the marriage.

Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club Hello Everybody!

"No Dice" By FLOYD GIBBONS, Famous Headline Hunter

NOW the moral of this story, boys and girls, is that gambling doesn't pay. Not that I need any story to convince me of it. I once bet two bucks on a horse I thought would come in first at Saratoga, and the next time I saw him was two years later, pulling the steam calliope in a circus parade in Denver.

Yep, it's risky business letting a horse invest your money for you, but not half as risky as the chances Lieutenant Tommy Griffin, of the Eighteenth infantry, Fort Wadsworth, N. Y., took when he started wooing Lady Luck that fateful July night back in 1922.

Lieutenant Tommy has gone a long way in the army since 1922. Then he was just plain Private Tommy, of the One-Hundred and Seventeenth field artillery, a national guard outfit of Goldsboro, N. C. The One-Hundred and Seventeenth was doing its regular two weeks' field work at Fort Bragg.

It was a hot night, and some of the boys were holding cavalry maneuvers on a blanket in one of the tents. For horses they were using little white, spotted cubes, and those "horses" were galloping back and forth across the blanket in a way that would have scared an enemy army out of at least six weeks' pay.

Tommy and Pal Are Attracted by Galloping Ivories.

Of course, an unsympathetic officer of the day might have suspected that those fellows were shooting craps, but I'm going to take Tommy's word for it that those shouts of "Come on, seven!" that came from the tent, were just the cries of excited rooters who wanted to see the Seventh regiment win.

Tommy and a friend were coming back from an evening in a nearby town when they heard the boys cheering the Seventh regiment on. There was also a lot of encouragement being given to Big Dick, who, I presume, was the captain of the Seventh regiment, and Little Joe, who must have been the first lieutenant. The rooting attracted Tommy and his pal, and they dropped into the tent to see what was going on.

There were three men in the tent—a sergeant named Joe and two privates, Bill and John. The sergeant had been drinking, and he rolled out the ivories with a sort of grim determination. He had lost several dollars, and Tommy could see that he wasn't taking it any too well.

Losing Sergeant Returns to Make Trouble.

The other two lads were in a jovial mood, though neither one of them had imbibed any alcohol. John had the dice and Tommy watched him while he set a point, made it, and picked up his winnings. And it was right there that the friendly game began to take on a serious aspect.

Joe, the sergeant, claimed that John hadn't won the money and told him to put it down. There was an argument that got pretty hot for a minute, but in the end John put the dough back just to humor him, and the play was resumed. A couple more throws and Joe left, weaving his way unsteadily out of the door. But a few minutes later he was back again, a .45 revolver in his hand and an ugly scowl on his face.

Joe was looking for trouble. That much was plain to everybody. He began to accuse John of talking about him behind his back. His finger was tight against the trigger, and looking over, Tommy could see the yellow of cartridge rims in the chamber of the gun. There was no joke about it. That gat was loaded.

Drunken Maniac's Bullet Wakes John Up.

Tommy didn't wait for any more. He made a leap for Joe and grabbed the gun. But Joe kept his grip on the revolver, too, and the pair of them rolled over on the tent floor, fighting desperately for possession of the weapon.

Says Tommy: "I wasn't sure I could hold him long, and I yelled to John to go away. He just sat there looking at me. Then suddenly Joe pulled the trigger. There was a sharp crack that deafened me for a minute, and a bullet whizzed by my head and ripped on through the top of the tent. I should have been scared then, but I wasn't. At that moment I was too excited to feel the effects of fear."

And still John sat calmly on his cot, watching Tommy wrestle with the drunken maniac. Whether he was dazed or scared stiff or just thought it was all a joke, Tommy never learned. But he sat there until another shot rang out, and this time the Bullet hit John in the hip. That broke the spell. John leaped to his feet and streaked out of the tent. Tommy says he's never seen a man run so fast in his life.

Tommy Stares Into the Muzzle of a .45.

Tommy was tired by that time—dead tired. Joe was strong as a bull, and he knew he'd never be able to get that gun away from him. "John was gone," he says, "and I didn't think Joe would shoot me. I took a chance and let him go. He got up, drunk and furious, and for a full minute I lay on the ground staring into the muzzle of the .45. That's when I did get scared. I have never seen a gun muzzle grow to look so large. I expected every second to be my last, and I began wishing he would shoot and get it over with. But no! He just stood there, fingers convulsing on the trigger, face purple with rage. Then all of a sudden he seemed to realize that John had gone, and he ran out of the tent after him."

That was the beginning of the end. In another ten seconds the whole camp was in an uproar. They caught Joe and took him to the guardhouse, and later they found Johnny and sent him to a hospital, where he spent several weeks getting over that wound in the hip.

And Tommy says that just about the time John got out of the hospital was when his nerves quieted down and his hair stopped standing on end.

Pygmy Hippopotamus The pygmy hippopotamus is found only in a few lakes and rivers of Liberia, the Negro republic of Western Africa, although his ancestors in prehistoric times inhabited southern Europe, northern Africa, and the islands of the Mediterranean. The pygmy is not so well equipped for swimming as the giant hippo. His eyes are set in the side of his head, instead of on top, and his legs and tail are longer. He has a larger brain and spends more of his time on shore in dense jungle than in the water.

Colonial Dutch Ovens The early Colonial American Dutch ovens were round, square, or oblong, with an open front. The round variety was often fitted with a spit turned by a handle on the outside, to roast meat. Otherwise the ovens were used for baking. The open side was set close to the fire, to receive the full heat. Usually they were constructed of tin which gave them the name of "tin kitchen" or "Dutch kitchen." The bake kettle, a covered receptacle on high legs to set over the fire, was sometimes called a Dutch oven.

Wrap-Around Apron Frock

1961-B.

Here's the style of apron-frock you've been wanting, a wrap-around that affords unhampered freedom of movement whether you're scrubbing the floor, or hanging drapes.

The wide contrasting ruff collar is feminine and trim while three bright buttons do their share for the bodice closing. Short puff sleeves are cleverly styled, simple, and comfortable and there's a conveniently large pocket to hold what nots. A narrow adjustable belt supplies that refinement known as "center poise" and helps "coverall." Truly it fits like the proverbial glove.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1961-B is available for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material plus 1/2 yard of contrast.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents for your copy.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

Household Questions

If you have no individual molds, jellies may be molded in muffin tins. Turn the pan upside-down, place hot, wet towel over pan and jellies will slip out easily.

Old hardwood floors do not require refilling when being done over. Apply two coats of thin shellac, re wax whole surface and polish. Floors should be treated in this way twice a year.

Be careful to wash all garden furniture before storing away. Nests built by insects in crevices in furniture are often overlooked. It is in this way insects often get into the house.

When making bread and butter pudding, sprinkle each slice of bread and butter with desiccated coconut instead of currants, and stre w some on the top. This will make a change from the ordinary pudding and will be found very tasty.

Japanned articles should never be washed in hot water, as the Japan is likely to wash off. Use lukewarm water and soap.

Steaming is a good way to cook vegetables, as it reduces the loss of minerals and vitamins. It is also economical, because you can cook several different vegetables at a time.

Lemon slices served with tea are more attractive when sprinkled with paprika or chopped parsley.

Women Poor Spies

Although women did some of the most important spy work during the late World war, they did not make good spies, declares Major G. O. T. Bagley, former British secret service agent.

"There were some very clever women spies," he said, "but women just don't make good secret service agents. Their reports, especially on military matters, are usually inaccurate and exaggerated. They wear out quickly with fatigue and nervous strain, and, last, and worst of all, they fall in love."

"The war records abound in accounts of successful missions carried out by men, but there were only three women who turned in good jobs of spying. Mata Hari was perhaps the greatest. Then come Louis de Bettignies, whose nom de guerre was Alice Dubois. She was a brilliantly successful with the British. Annemarie Dresser, known throughout Europe as Fraulein Doktor, is the third. She was the head of Germany's big spy school in Antwerp."

The Rank And File
Are For Roosevelt

That the rank and file of the American people, regardless of party affiliation, will stick by President Roosevelt in his fight to correct abuses brought upon the country by years of misrule, is the prediction of the Cicero (Ill.) News in a first-page, powerful editorial printed last week.

The NEWS declares that when the President began to correct the evils of government he found it necessary to take away special privileges, "in order to give us of the rank and file a fair chance to enjoy our heritage as free Americans. That is why those powerful people and interests are fighting Roosevelt today. That is why they are trying to block his progress by unfair and dishonest attacks that appear daily in a hostile press that is roped and hog-tied with the vicious dollars of the same powerful individuals and interests. That is why we, American Citizens of the rank and file, should stick with the President.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include, among others, the bank depositors, who can today deposit their money in the bank without any fear because Franklin D. Roosevelt has provided them with depositors insurance.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include the small banker, because he is no longer at the mercy of the powerful banking institutions and the same insurance which protects his depositors protects him against raids on his bank.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include the business man, who again sees his business paying a profit and who no longer faces commercial destruction, because a reasonable monetary policy has given the people one more dollar to spend.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include the laborer, who again faces a period of steady employment, because of Roosevelt policies which started up again the wheels of industry, providing jobs for the multitudes.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include honest people generally of all political parties, who are willing to give credit where credit is due; to the man, whose wisdom, determination and patriotic endeavor have ended the greatest depression in the nation's history."

STATE HEALTH NOTES

Great Strides have been made in mass control of public health in the past twenty-five years by public health officials and the use of scientific methods in the control of disease. The job of the individual in getting fit and remaining in good health, however, is a personal rather than public matter, according to Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. "While the ravages of diphtheria, small pox, typhoid fever, and other devastating diseases have been definitely checked by public health measures," he said, "there are left many health enemies whose onslaught is stealthy, and whose approach is definitely individual. Heart disease, cerebral hemorrhage, nephritis, and cancer continue to stand high in the list of major killers.

"As these degenerating diseases cannot be controlled by quarantine and immunization, each individual should see to his own protection against these diseases if they exist, while they are in a state where control may be effective. The annual physical health examination is the major defensive weapon against such diseases.

"The annual physical examination has two definite objectives in the life of an individual; namely, to establish the fact that is or is not present a disease which calls for prompt control measures, and to determine the margins of safety in health habits. When the family physician has established the facts brought to light in a physical examination, he is in a position to advise the individual as to procedure which must be adhered to in order that a proper balance may be maintained.
