Talking It Over With Home Demo

Bed Spreads
Here's something new in inexpensive bed spreads. Mrs. C. M. Hill, cooperator for the Silverton Home Demonstration Club is making a candlewick bed spread from sugar sacks. There are two rows of candle wicks, where the seams are joined together, which hides the seams. A sign is candle wicker in each sack. Only cost is the thread, which will be approximately 70c.

Pantry News
Mrs. Grady Wimberly, cooperator of the Lakeview Home Demonstration Club is moving her canned food into her ventilated cellar and is organizing her food in the 4-H pantry. She will plan a week in advance of foods I will need and bring each up at one time to last a week. This way I will be able to eliminate a lot of extra steps," Mrs. Wimberly says.

Home Food Supervisor
Mrs. Den Rogers, Home Food Supervisor for the San Jacinto Home Demonstration Club, is making over her storage cellar, improving the ventilating system and adding new shelves. The cellar now has one row of shelves, which are across the back and are about two feet deep. Mr. Rogers is replacing the shelves with more narrow ones and is adding new shelves to the sides. With this new arrangement Mrs. Rogers will have less trouble locating her foods and with the new ventilating system she will be able to maintain a higher standard in her canned and stored foods.

Although the San Jacinto Club is the youngest in the county, they are no means the least club. Mrs. Rogers is still canning and although November Day is close at hand, she hopes to have her budget almost filled and with the meat canning demonstration, she will likely have it filled.

Panhandle Refining Co. Moves to Highway

The Panhandle Refining Company Silverton has completed the moving of their Wholesale station, from their former location near the tracks to the Depot, to Highway 86 north and east of the courthouse square.

A two pump service station will be located in connection with the wholesale business, and it too, will be open for business the last part of the week, according to O. W. Chapman, Panhandle Agent. A more modern, attractive and convenient service station is being planned for the near future.

Workmen from the Panhandle office at Wichita Falls have been busy the past week, moving tanks, installing pumps and painting the new tanks, and seeing in general that the place is up to snuff, before the local company moves in.

Mr. Chapman invites his customers and friends to visit him at his new station.

AMENDMENT CONCERNING SALARIES OF STATE OFFICERS

Proposal No. 5 to the State Constitution known as S. J. R. No. 14 proposes to raise the salaries of certain Constitutional Officers, namely, Governor, Attorney General, Comptroller of Public Accounts, Treasurer, Commissioner of General Land Office, and Secretary of State. This amendment provides that the Governor shall receive as compensation for his services an annual salary of Twelve Thousand ($12,000) dollars, as compared to the Four Thousand ($4,000) he now receives, and shall have the use and occupation of the Governor's Mansion, fixtures and furniture.

The salary of the Attorney General will be fixed at Ten Thousand ($10,000) Dollars as compared to the Four Thousand ($4,000) he now receives. The Comptroller of public accounts, Treasurer, and the Commissioner of the General Land Office each will receive a salary of Six Thousand ($6,000) dollars for a term of two years, and shall receive a salary of Twenty-five hundred ($2,500) dollars and now receive a salary of Twenty-five hundred ($2,500) dollars to Six Thousand ($6,000) dollars annually.

The Secretary of State is appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, and holds office during the term of the service of the Governor. The present salary of the Secretary of State is Two Thousand ($2,000) Dollars per year. This Amendment would provide a salary of Six Thousand ($6,000) annually.

The Frank Havron family returned from the Dallas Centennial Wednesday evening.

State Money Here For Rural Schools

The first state money for rural school districts of the county was received here this week, according to W. W. Martin, county superintendent. The amount was $1,153.65 for the first allotment. The apportionment is $3.00 per pupil. The cost of administration will be taken from the first two allotments.

The entire amount for each pupil is the same as last year, $19.00 and is used for the payment of teachers' salaries. School needs in each district and the balance of the teachers' salary must be raised from local taxation.

Besides this money there is a sum of money set aside by the state for "special aid" to districts who are able to meet certain requirements as to, need, taxes levied, and the rating of the school. Briscoe county last year received $2,000 from special aid.

Mrs. B. V. Lowrey Is Claimed by Death

Mrs. Fannie Mary Etta Lowrey was born at Hoboken, Alabama on July 27th, 1864. She passed away at her home in the Haylake community October 24th, 1936, at 11:00 P. She was thereafter married to B. V. Lowrey in July, 1896, and she and Mr. Lowrey moved to the Haylake Community in Briscoe County in January, 1927.

She was united with the Church of Christ in July, 1907.

She is survived by the following children, as well as a host of friends who mourn her passing: J. B. Lowrey, B. V. Lowrey, Jr., Mrs. Ella Bennett, and E. M. Phillips of Waxahatchie, Texas; Mrs. Earl Lowrey, Vickery, Texas; Mrs. Mamie Freeman and Miss Minnie Mae Phillips of Silverton, Texas.

One child died in its infancy and a son, Raymond Lowrey, died October 19th, 1935 in Briscoe County.

Funeral services were held from the First Baptist Church Sunday afternoon and interment was made in the Silverton cemetery.

Mrs. Lowrey will be greatly missed by all who knew her and the bereaved family has the sympathy of the entire community.

Silverton 4-H Club Meets

The Silverton 4-H Club girls of the Grammar and High School Departments met Wednesday, October 28, 1936 from 8:45 to 9:45 in the high school auditorium.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Nora Mae Thompson, then turned over to Miss Meadows, who gave a brief talk and then turned the program back to the president. A new reporter, Freda Lee Elliston, was elected.

The 4-H Club girls have finished one project and some have finished the second project. At the next meeting, which will be November 11, Miss Meadows will tell of the different ways to keep a good Personal Appearance.

There were 43 members of the club, and Miss Meadows, and Mrs. Bruce Womack, sponsor, present at the meeting.

Christian Endeavor Meeting

The Christian Endeavorers met Sunday at six o'clock. Vice-president Bobbie Allred opened the meeting. Kathleen Northcutt read the Scripture, and Rev. Thorns said a prayer. Mr. W. E. Sherman made a talk on Christians Living, which was very good. Mrs. Wright taught the first lesson in Christians' Test, in the new Endeavor lessons. We discussed the Indian play which will be given the Sunday before Thanksgiving Day. The lesson will be led by Billy Joe Womack next Sunday. The meeting begins Sunday evening at six o'clock.

High School Sells All Coins

The high school was given charge of the selling of 'lucky coins' last week, taking a commission as their work and sending the major portion of the money raised to the Democrat Roosevelt headquarters as donations for the campaign.

Reservations For Special Train To Centennial Must Be Made By November 2

Taking advantage of the $3.15 special fare, over two hundred Briscoe County students and adults are expected to leave Quitaque November 6th, at 12:00 noon, for the Dallas Texas Centennial. The reduced rate was originally intended for students only, but has been expanded to include anyone who wishes to go. The special train will arrive in Dallas about nine o'clock Friday evening, and will return Sunday, giving Friday night and Saturday for seeing the sights.

Those who wish to go should make reservations on or before Monday, November 2, and should be on hand at the Quitaque depot some time before noon of the sixth. Make your reservations with Ned Baird, A. L. Kelsay, of Silverton, or C. B. McDonald at Quitaque. Remember, November 2nd, is the deadline.

Students making the trip will be able to get room, board and admission tickets while in Dallas for $2.85 or less. Special accommodations will also be made for adults, but rates are not known definitely. $6.00 will cover the entire trip for the school kids.

Both Silverton and Quitaque people are enthused over this half-cent a mile offer—and the more the merrier. It is thought perhaps that the school busses will be available for the trip to Quitaque.

Join in folks—there won't be another Centennial for a hundred years.

COLLEGE STATION SAYS FARM INCOME HIGHER

Cash income from farm production in 1935 in Texas was $461,030,000, an increase of 5 per cent over the 1932 figure of $294,358,000. Cash receipts for sales of principal Texas farm products constitute about 94 per cent of that. During the first seven months of 1936 these cash receipts were 19 per cent greater than during the same period in 1933, thus indicating a continued rise in Texas farm income for 1936, according to figures just released from Washington.

The extent to which the economic situation of Texas farmers has improved since 1932 is indicated in part by comparing the 1932 and 1935 production volume of certain commodities, together with the cash income from those commodities.

Texas farmers produce approximately 4,500,000 bales of cotton and 2,006,000 tons of seed in 1932 for which they received a cash return of $152,463,000. For their 1935 cotton crop, smaller than that of 1932 by about 1,544,000 bales and 690,000 tons of seed, they realized a cash income of $238,492,000, including about $9,617,000 in price adjustment payments and $47,411,000 in rental and benefit payments. The 1935 income was, therefore, larger than the 1932 income by $86,029,000 or 56 per cent.

Beef producers in this State likewise saw a substantial rise in their cash income from 1932 to 1935, in spite of a marked decrease in production. In 1932, their net production of cattle and calves amounted to about 1,235,930,000 pounds, their income therefore totaling $34,363,000. Their net production in 1935 approximated 901,625,000 pounds, or about 334,305,000 less than their 1932 production; yet their 1935 cash returns totaled $51,627,000, or $17,264,000 more than their 1932 returns. Government cattle purchases from Texas ranchmen account for $2,785,000 of this 1935 income.

Dairy men in Texas profited by marked income increases, along with stockmen and cotton farmers among others. Net milk productions in this state was only 1 per cent greater in 1935 than in 1932 but cash income was 52 per cent, or $13,620,000 greater.

The position of Texas Corn-hog farmers in 1935 as measured by the increased cash returns from production, is much improved over what it was three years earlier. Their 1932 cash income was $8,939,000 for a corn crop of about 102,726,000 bushels and a net hog production of approximately 434,290,000 pounds. Their '35 income was $20,749,000 including $2,731,000 in benefit payments, for a corn crop of about 89,368,000 bushels and a net hog production of 324,260,000 pounds. The 1935 income of corn-hog producers in Texas was $11,810,000 or 132 per cent more than in 1932.

The 1932 wheat crop in this state amounted to approximately 28,293,000 bushels, for which producers received a cash return of 1932 crop, brought them $6,265,000 at the market and $12,503,000 with the rental and benefit payments included. All told, wheat producers in 1935 received 80 per cent more cash than they did in 1932 when the crop was more than double the 1935 crop.

Cash income from many other important farm products of Texas also showed encouraging upturns from 1932 to 1935. Income of rice producers more than doubled, rising from $3,874,000 to $7,905,000, including $1,903,000 in benefits on 1935 production. Income from oats rose 137 per cent, or from $1,763,000 to $4,179,000.

Silverton Owls Win Over Local Outlaws

The Silverton Owls played the Silverton Outlaws Monday afternoon. The Owls won the game with a score of 18 to 7.

The Owls made a slow start but when they got their stride, the Outlaws could not hold them.

If the high school boys get the same spirit and play ball with the Flomot gang the same way, they'll win their first conference game.

The game with Flomot is this Friday. Lockney, who failed to appear for the game last Friday on account of bad roads, will come here November 5th or 6th.

Bishop Seaman Here

Bishop E. Cecil Seaman of Amarillo, will be at the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon, November 1st. He will hold communion service at 5:30 and preach at 7:30 in the evening.

General Election Here Promises Light Vote

The general election for all elective officers from Township officers to President of the United States, will be held in the various voting precincts Tuesday, November 3. The voting according to the absentee ballots sent out, will be rather light this year. Only twenty-some ballots had been sent out early this week.

Besides the regular voting this year, six amendments are up for your consideration. These have been in full by the Briscoe County News and the Quitaque Post, and the News has carried in addition, short, concise explanation of the amendments. Probably the most important of these is being explained in another part of this paper and concerns the representatives of this State. The passage of this amendment will give this section of the State a more liberal representation in comparison with the more populous eastern parts of the State.

Everyone should vote in the general election. If not only is a duty of every citizen, but should be considered an honor to vote for the President of the United States. Vote November 3rd.

WILLIAMSON - WEAVER

Miss Velera Williamson, of Childress and Mr. Lem Weaver, of Silverton were united in marriage Saturday night, October 24, at 7:30. The ceremony was performed at the Baptist parsonage in Childress, with the Rev. Hankins of that church officiating. The wedding was attended by only close friends and relatives.

Mrs. Weaver is a former Childress girl, and popular with all who know her. Silverton women will be glad to have her as one of them.

The young couple will make their home in an apartment at the Jewett residence here. Best wishes to them.

LIMITING REPRESENTATIVES OF LARGER CITIES (H.J.R. 9)

Limiting the representation of the larger cities is the clear intent of H. J. R. No. 9 relating to the apportionment of State Representatives for the counties of this State whose population exceeds seven hundred thousand (700,000) people, B. P. Matocha, Secretary of State, declares.

It is provided by this Amendment that no county in this State shall be entitled to or have under any apportionment more than seven (7) Representatives in the State Legislature unless the population of such county shall exceed seven hundred thousand (700,000) people as ascertained by the most recent U. S. census.

In the event a county shall have a population in excess of seven hundred thousand (700,000) people, then such county shall be entitled to one additional Representative for each one hundred thousand (100,000) population in excess of seven hundred thousand (700,000) population as shown by the latest United States Census.

This Amendment also provides that no district shall be created which would permit any county to have more than seven (7) Representatives except under the above conditions.

Simply speaking, H. J. R. No. 9 would limit the number of Representatives in the State Legislature to not more than seven (7) from any county unless that county had a population of more than seven hundred thousand (700,000). In that case, one more would be allowed for every one hundred thousand (100,000) above the seven hundred thousand (700,000).

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Foust had as their guests Saturday and Sunday: Mrs. Harry Martin, Sunray; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hazelwood Sr., Amarillo; Mrs. Warner Lee and daughters, Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wood, South Plains; and Mrs. Jack McCowan and children; South Plains.

Finley White's Agricultural Briefs

We are rapidly winding up our figures on the maps that have been turned in for the farms in this county. There are a few maps missing yet and we urge that every farmer who has not turned in a map, hurry the thing along so that we can finish up the job of figuring.

We expect to begin the re-check of measurements Monday, November 2. All the supervisors who took the examination for re-checking will begin work Monday if they still want the job. There will be a meeting of the 'Hill' supervisors in the District Court Room Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. There will be a meeting of the 'Flats' supervisors at the City Hall in Quitaque, Monday forenoon, November 2, at 8:00 o'clock. Be sure to be present at one of these meetings if you expect to measure any land. Instructions on how to measure and what to measure and what to look for will be given at these meetings.

Last Cotton Tag Checks

We still have on hand a good many cotton tag checks. If you pooled any tags in 1934 or 1935 and haven't already received a check for a part of these tags, then you have a check coming. The Quitaque, Kent, and Gasoline checks are at the Bank in Quitaque and all other checks are in the County Agent's office. Come and get 'em.

Turkeys

If you aren't giving your turkeys a finishing ration just now, then you are missing a good bet. Turkeys have been all this time growing a frame on which to put some flesh—if you aren't giving them something to make flesh just now, you are going to have a big feathered frame to sell pretty soon—but not much turkey. Turkeys should be getting a good mash now with wheat and barley grain as a supplement—and plenty of milk, too, if you have it. The Thanksgiving market will soon be open, but if the turkeys aren't finished and ready for the market, it will pay you to hold them over for the Christmas market—if you'll FEED them.

Progress

As time marches on we have more and more farmers putting in trench silos. This little feed will keep better in a trench than in a stack—and it makes a more palatable feed. Try it sometime.

New Insurance Map Of City Being Made

Mr. Teers, from the State Fire Insurance Department, has been here for several days at the court house with headquarters in the District Courtroom. He is inspecting the city for fire hazards and making a revision of the Town Map made in 1929, showing the construction of each building, and the changes that have been made. It is probable that Silverton will be granted a lower insurance rate.

Only two or three fires, all of which were quickly under control by the fire boys, have occurred here the past year. By each resident making an effort to reduce hazards, Silverton should be given a lower fire rate.

W. W. Martin was in Amarillo Wednesday attending a meeting of County Superintendents, for discussion of school problems. The meeting was called by and was under the supervision of J. W. Gunstream, deputy state superintendent for this district.

If you are planning on going to the Centennial see Ned Baird for special reduced rates.

THIS WEEK

24,720 Miles in 18 Days
Some Ladies' Hats
Gen. Butler's Peace Plan
12 Ladies Good and True

H. R. Ekins, first-class newspaper man, has gone around the globe by airplane, covering 24,720 miles in 18 days, 14 hours, 56 minutes.

Arthur Brisbane

Some day some woman, let us hope, will balance her fashion budget, decide just what she wants to wear, and then wear it, as men have done, but the day is far away.

Hats shaped like East Indian war shields; hats heavy in gold embroidery; flat pillbox turbans, gold braided; Russian style hats off the face, with tall tiara fronts; hats of Persian lamb and embroidered felt; small toques, dipped down front and back, covered with soft feathers, "the military touch predominating."

Why, do you suppose, do women take so much trouble to spoil faces and heads naturally beautiful? It cannot all be the fault of hat-makers.

Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired fighting major general of the United States marines, asks the Women's Christian Temperance union to start a campaign against drunken automobile drivers, and also help peace by working for a constitutional amendment forbidding the President or congress to send troops out of the country.

You cannot change men by legislation, as was discovered in our prohibition mistake; you must change the men from the inside.

For the first time in history, New Jersey, selecting a jury all women, has surprised some, annoyed others. Why? For ages women have been judged and sentenced by individual men or groups of men. They have been ducked, branded with hot irons, put in the stocks, beheaded, hanged, burned alive.

Is there injustice in turning the thing around for a change; at least no twelve women would burn or duck anybody.

Lloyd's, British insurance concern, will insure you against anything happening, if it "guesses" that it will not happen; it usually guesses correctly. It refuses to insure against war striking England, although until lately the charge for that insurance was only one-fifth of one per cent; 200 pounds for 100,000 pounds insurance.

Somebody in Lloyd's possesses intelligence. That big organization does not like to think of war with airplanes added.

News from the East interests Americans; they might have to pay the bill. Japan and Russia, supposed recently to be on the verge of war, are said to have an understanding about things in the east that would involve depriving the British of profitable locations and rights. This does not please Britain, but that is the business of Japan, Russia and England.

Interesting flying item: Russia orders in Baltimore a passenger "clipper" plane, to cost $1,000,000 and carry forty-four passengers, besides a crew of six.

The plane, very fast, can go 4,000 miles without taking on fuel, a range that would bring it across the Atlantic nicely, if it ever wanted to come back with a load of explosives instead of passengers.

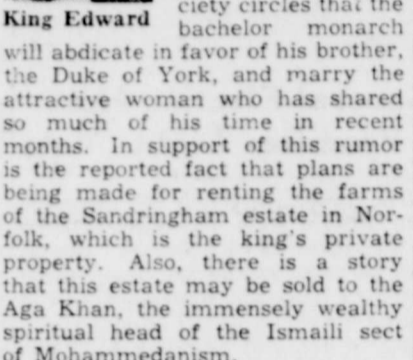

The Irish Catholic hierarchy, sitting at Maynooth College, Cardinal Macrory presiding, denounces communism and persecution of the Catholic church in Spain. "Mindful of Spain's kindness to our ancestors." On October 25 all Catholic churches in Ireland will take up collections "for the relief of Spanish Catholics." Mexico, once a "Catholic" as Ireland or any nation, sends, from its Chamber of Deputies, a message of sympathy to the Spanish government at Madrid.

England and France no longer guarantee any protection for Belgium in case of war, so the new King, Leopold, says all alliances are off, with France, England and everybody else.

Current Events IN REVIEW by Edward W. Pickard

Edward May Abdicate to Marry Mrs. Simpson

MERE scandal and gossip have no proper place in this department, but the "affaire Simpson," as the French would term it, has progressed until it assumes world importance.

King Edward

Should Edward give up the throne, it would eventually be occupied by Princess Elizabeth, eldest daughter of the Duke of York, and this succession would be decidedly popular with the people of England.

English newspapers imposed on themselves a voluntary censorship in this affair, but it has been broken by the Sunday Referee which prints an article declaring the king "may marry by spring," that this would result in postponement of the coronation, and that tradesmen have been insuring themselves against such a delay.

Japan "Not Fortifying" Isles Under Mandate

FOR some time there have appeared in print stories about how Japan was establishing air and submarine bases in the former German islands of the South Pacific over which she holds a League of Nations mandate.

No More Army Chaplains, Say Disciples of Christ

THE Disciples of Christ, in annual international convention in Kansas City, voted to send no more of the church's ministers to serve as chaplains in the United States army.

NINETEEN men and one woman perished in the waters of Lake Erie when the Canadian ship Sand Merchant foundered off Cleveland during a gale.

Blum Warns Socialists of Republic's Danger

RADICAL Socialists are threatening to quit the "Popular Front" government of France because of discord with Communists, and they have been warned by Premier Leon Blum that the one condition whereunder the life of the republic can be prolonged is that the Popular Front "remain united."

address to the radical leaders, Blum said a split in the coalition government would force his immediate resignation, and that dissolution of the parliament and new elections would result.

Monarchists of Austria, who would like to make Archduke Otto emperor, were encouraged by a speech delivered by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg in which, defying the little entente, he shouted: "No outsider, but only Austrians will decide whether the monarchy shall be restored!"

"New Gold Standard" Tried by Uncle Sam

"IT IS a new gold standard, a way of doing business which has never been tried before," was Secretary Morgenthau's characterization of the agreement just entered into by the United States, Great Britain and France, whereby, subject to 24-hour cancellation, they will exchange gold for each other's currencies.

Secretary Morgenthau

The new plan, Mr. Morgenthau said, differs from the old gold standard in that it will permit the export or earmarking of gold only to and between governments instead of private business institutions and traders.

"The door is wide open," said Mr. Morgenthau. "We're not going out drumming up business, but we'll welcome all other countries which want to participate."

According to the Treasury department, the United States alone will announce a selling price for gold. France and England will keep their selling prices secret, though there will be a free flow of gold between the stabilization funds of the three nations.

Five Groups Accused by Trade Commission

CHARGES filed in Washington by the federal trade commission accuse five trade associations of attempting to corner the automobile parts and accessories business.

Finish Repairs on White House

Mansion Put Into First Class Shape; Main Attraction for Sightseers

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Several months ago President Roosevelt determined that no matter who lived in the White House for the next four years he was going to see to it that the old mansion was put into first class shape, and just about now the painters, electricians and carpenters are leaving a repair job that has taken them all summer and part of the fall.

The Presidents and their families have lived in the upper floors of the "White House proper"; and the President with his secretaries and clerks have done their work (since the Theodore Roosevelt administration) in the wing of the house which is known as the executive offices.

COPIED IRISH MANSION.

The White House was designed by an Irishman who took first prize in a contest nearly a century and a half ago, who modeled the building after the Irish mansion of a well-known Irish peer, the Duke of Leinster.

HOUSEHOLD STAFF.

Few people realize that the staff of assistants at the White House remains as Presidents come and go. Only the Presidents' immediate secretaries are appointed by him and leave with him.

Wind Affects Telephone

Standing near a telephone line in the open and hearing its singing vibrations, you may have wondered whether they could be heard in the telephone receiver, says Popular Mechanics.

House by the National W. C. T. U. whose president was then the famous Frances Willard. At the time of the presentation it was stated that the portrait would hang in the East Room — but if it ever was hung there no one now recalls it and the only portraits in that famous room are those of George and Martha Washington.

RATS CHASED OUT.

President Roosevelt and former President Hoover together are responsible for bringing the home and the office sections of the executive mansion into full efficiency. Once upon a time the living quarters were so run down that a man known as "the government rat catcher" took a box of weasels into the cellar and chased out several hundred big gray rodents.

BEAUTIFUL GROUNDS.

The White House grounds cover seventeen acres on which a fine carpet of lawn is kept in shape by a corps of gardeners under a head man named "Bill" Reeve, said to know more about grass than anyone else in the city.

INGENUOUS NATURE.

Nature is of boundless ingenuity. She never makes two men exactly alike.

POORLY NOURISHED WOMEN— THEY JUST CAN'T HOLD UP.

Are you getting proper nourishment from your food, and restful sleep? A poorly nourished body just can't hold up. And as for that run-down feeling, that nervous fatigue,—don't neglect it!

ONCE LIABILITIES, LUDWIG'S CASTLES ARE NOW ASSETS

The three great castles which Ludwig II of Bavaria exhausted his country's resources to build are today supplying the state with a tidy income, and hundreds of German and foreign visitors wander through the magnificent buildings, paying a small admission charge for viewing the eccentric king's old properties.

First of the castles Ludwig built is Neuschwanstein, a replica of a medieval stronghold. The king had it decorated with scenes from Wagner's operas, and nearby he constructed a lodge with a large tree in the main room, representing the scene in the first act of "Die Walkure."

Linderhof, a replica of the Trianon palace at Versailles, is sumptuously carried out in French style. Even it did not satisfy Ludwig's ambitions, however, so that he next attempted to rival Versailles itself with the Schloss Herrenchiemsee, on an island of the Chiemsee.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS.

CHAPTER I

The events to be related began upon a certain afternoon and early evening when Doctor Greeding became for almost the first time in his life furiously angry. Call these events coincidence; yet it is permissible to suggest that if human passions be supposed sometimes to have a force of their own, so that a violent emotion in one individual may without any physical action on his part project itself and impact upon other individuals, then these occurrences will fall into an ordered pattern.

Doctor Greeding's own experience had persuaded him that incidents do occur, and conditions do arise, for which there can be no natural explanation. Certain episodes in his life, certain unique traits which he recognized in himself had long since convinced him of this.

Thus his sense of smell was far more acute than normal. If he came into an empty room, he knew instantly who had last passed through that room. In the same way, perhaps from a peculiarity of structure which his oculist early remarked, he could see with some precision in the dark. Incidentally, his eyes sometimes shone like those of an animal; and Mrs. Greeding might be startled, when they both awoke at night, to see her husband's eyes thus gleaming.

Doctor Greeding cultivated these unusual capacities—taking care, for instance, not to smoke, lest he blur his sense of smell; but this was a matter as much of inclination as of choice, for he had a dog's distaste for tobacco. Mrs. Greeding, and his daughter Nancy, respected this feeling on his part. Mrs. Greeding never smoked at all, Nancy never when she was near him.

But he had other gifts not so definitely physical. For instance, he sometimes knew what a person was about to say before the word was uttered. Or when he approached a street-corner, or a closed door, he might find himself perfectly sure that when he turned the corner, or opened the door, he would discover a certain person or scene.

Also, he had had occasionally the experience of wishing very much that something entirely out of the ordinary run of expectation would happen—and having the wished-for event occur. But this he attributed to his luck. Doctor Greeding was in fact a child of good fortune. Life ran well for him. He had married, with the deliberate intention of furthering his career, the girl he chose; and their life together had been all that he had hoped. He had desired one child, a daughter; Nancy was their only child. He had sought material and professional success, and found it.

And in other ways, in the small incidents of daily life, luck was likely to break in his direction. His mother—she was a simple woman—once told him that he had been born under a caul. "So you'll always be lucky," she explained.

The thing began with Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business man near Doctor Greeding's own age, whose life the Doctor had saved by a difficult operation. From that day, as a not unnatural consequence, their friendship had steadily deepened.

Today Jerrell had telephoned Dr. Greeding and made an appointment to lunch with him, at their club. During the luncheon they spoke of casual matters. Afterward, Jerrell started to light a cigar, then hesitated.

"Light it, Ira," the Doctor bade him, smiling. "The window's open; and if any tobacco can be tolerated to a sensitive nose, it is yours."

So Jerrell scratched a match. He was a man physically fit, lean and hard. His thick hair contributed to the youthfulness of his appearance; but there were betraying lines at the corners of his mouth. He said, after a moment, quietly:

"I want to have a talk with you, Ned—about Nancy." There was a slow color in his cheeks.

The Doctor nodded. "Yes, I know."

Jerrell looked at him curiously. "How can you know?" he asked. Doctor Greeding only smiled, and Jerrell said: "Ned, I always have a feeling, in talking with you, that you know what I'm going to say. You're a curiously understanding man." He chuckled. "I should not like to try to keep a business secret from you."

"If I could read your mind, I'd have been able to retire long ago," Doctor Greeding remarked.

"You don't—speculate, do you?" Jerrell inquired. He had never invited the other to participate in any business affair.

Greeding shook his head. "No. At least, I never have. I'm naturally cautious, and—it hasn't been necessary. I've been lucky in my investments. I was born under a caul, you know." His tone suggested that he was laughing at his own words.

Jerrell finally spoke again. "Well, you're right, Ned," he said. "It is about Nancy. . . . She's a beautiful, a lovely girl."

"Why, yes," Doctor Greeding smilingly assented, rather amused at the other's indirection. "I think so."

After a moment Jerrell came to the point.

"Ned," he said, "here it is, in words of one syllable: If—well, I should like to marry Nancy."

Doctor Greeding's heart quickened its beat; but he held his tongue. Jerrell went on, hurriedly.

"Of course, I haven't spoken to her," Jerrell explained. "It seemed to me that under the circumstances I ought first to come to you—my old friend, and Nancy's father."

And he continued: "I see quite clearly the difficulties in the way. I am twenty years older than she is, twenty-two or -three years older. That is an obstacle. Then I have known her, as a child and as a young woman, for years; but she has thought of me as an old man—who grew older—for as long. That is another obstacle. There may be still others. It may be that she is—in love with some one her own age; and it may be that even if she were not, you and Mrs. Greeding would object to her marrying me, either because I'm so much older, or for some other reason."

He hesitated, and when Doctor Greeding still held silent, he went on:

"I don't want to—distress her, if she—already loves some one else, some youngster her own age. And I don't want to embarrass you or Mrs. Greeding, by putting you in the position of opposing her marriage to me."

He hesitated, said then: "That's the situation, Ned. What do you think?"

After a moment Doctor Greeding chuckled. "Well, Ira," he said, "I can't pretend to be—surprised. I've not been blind to your new interest in Nancy in these recent months. Mrs. Greeding has told me some things about your visit with them in Georgia." He added calmly: "And Nancy's fine. I should have been more surprised if you had failed to discover the fact."

He went on, thoughtfully: "Nancy has friends, of course—boys her own age. A girl of twenty-two is very much a young woman, but a boy of that age is still a boy. She has a troop of these youngsters at her heels most of the time; but no one of them more often than the others." He smiled. "I feel sure the field is open," he said.

"How about you? And Mrs. Greeding?" Jerrell asked bluntly.

The Doctor hesitated, then went on: "The difference in your ages may seem to her an obstacle, as you say. She may feel it a barrier too great to be surmounted. At that point, I cannot speak. That is for Nancy to decide."

Jerrell said simply: "Of course, in the last analysis, it would be you and Mrs. Greeding."

The Doctor met the other man's eyes straightforwardly. "I know you pretty well, Ira," he replied. "If Nancy loved you and wished to marry you, Mrs. Greeding and I would be gratified."

Jerrell chuckled with a quick, youthful pleasure; but he sobered then, and he said gratefully:

"Thanks, Ned. I appreciate your attitude." And after a moment he added: "I—love Nancy, Ned. And I'm not as old as my years. I've lived decently, taken care of myself. I believe—if she came to love me—I could make her happy."

Doctor Greeding nodded. "I know as much about you—physically—as you know yourself." He was proud of his tone. It was dispassionate and calm, with no hint in it of the excitement he felt.

Jerrell colored. There was always in him something deeply likable. He said awkwardly:

"I know that this is—an old-fashioned proceeding, my speaking first to you. . . . And I don't want to be rebuffed. Are you sure she is—free?"

"Perfectly sure," Doctor Greeding promised. "I have her confidence. If there were anyone, I would surely know."

Jerrell smiled, and his eyes lighted. "Thanks, Ned," he said. "I shall bank on what you say."

Doctor Greeding drove back up town in a complacent triumph. He had no least misgiving of what was to come. . . . Edward Greeding was the only son of a Maine farmer, even as a boy on the farm, er. Even as a boy on the farm, er. Even as a boy on the farm, er. Even as a boy on the farm, er.

—that of Doctor Bendon—he was a welcomed visitor; and he shrewdly decided that if Myra Bendon were his wife, his career would begin under good auspices. He wooed the girl—she was a little taller than he, plain and awkward, not beset by suitors—and won her. Later, when Doctor Bendon died, Doctor and Mrs. Greeding came to live in the old house that had been built by her great-grandfather, a hundred years before.

Mrs. Greeding would have preferred more modern surroundings; but her husband insisted. There were in the old house many things—furniture, silverware and the like—which had been old and fine when the house was new; and Doctor Greeding had a keen appreciation of these possessions. He took pride in them, took pride in having achieved them. But Mrs. Greeding kept the old things from a sense of duty. There were a few things—a vase, a modern painting or the like—which she had bought and against the Doctor's protests insisted on keeping; and her own dressing-room, her particular domain, was decorated and furnished in a modernistic vein.

The house stood on half an acre of well-landscaped grounds, with a fine bay hedge in front, and flowers, and a pool where goldfish swam, and a tennis court. The tennis court was at one side, and the wire screen designed to catch stray balls was itself overgrown by vines, so that the court was hidden from the eye of anyone not actually within the enclosure.

This afternoon—it was a day in May, when spring was already full —Dan himself was no work of art. He was taller than Nancy, but so broad of shoulder and heavy of leg that he seemed short and almost chunky. He moved about the court with a robust zest and a reckless waste of energy. His stroke seemed awkward, but had a surprising efficiency and power. Nancy had learned her tennis in a good school, and played easily and well; and she did in fact win that first set from him, though by sheer stubborn persistence he carried it thrice to deuce.

But in the second set his superior pace began to tell; the balls he hit had a steam behind them which when they struck her racket communicated the shock to her hand, to her wrist and arm. Little by little, her returns began to drift faintly to the right of the spot where she aimed them; she made errors. He broke her serve. . . .

"Golly, Nancy," he protested, "you're blazing! Too hot?"

"Of course not!" She laughed at him. "You're no iceberg, yourself," she retorted. "You're red as beef! It makes me hot just to look at you."

"Want to call it off?" he urged. "No sense killing ourselves."

"Of course not." She insisted stubbornly, and they came back to the court again.

She coasted through the remaining games of that set, husbanding her strength, making him run when she could, placing the ball rather than driving it. He took the set at six-four.

"There," he suggested. "That makes it even—Stephen. Let's call it a draw!"

"Of course, if you're tired," she said derisively.

He grinned. "You're a glutton for punishment."

"I've just begun to fight," she warned him.

"All right, have it your way," he assented. "It's my serve. Let's go."

And without pause, they began again; but Dan's game now had softened. She won his serve, then her own, and the first three points of the next game. On the third point he served a double fault; and she picked up the balls and walked toward the net.

"Dan, you beast, you're letting up," she said in angry accusation.

"Not a bit of it," he insisted.

"Liar," she retorted, and her eyes were hot. "Don't you suppose I know? And if there's anything I hate, it's to be babied."

"Why listen, Nance," he protested. "I—Well, as a matter of fact," he confessed honestly, "I thought you were pretty hot and tired. We're not playing for blood, you know!"

"I'm going to beat you if I can," she said furiously. "And you're to beat me if you can. Is that clear?"

He hesitated, himself angry now. "Perfectly," he retorted then. "You asked for it. I'll give it to you!"

And he turned and stalked back to the service-line. She took her place to receive. "Ready?" he barked.

She nodded, and the ball came blazing at her. Her whole arm tingled from the shock of it. Her return caught the net cord, dropped for an error.

His jaw was set, his face bleak. "Ready?" He took the game. The next. The next. He won five games in a row; and with the score two-five against her, she prepared to serve.

Driving herself to the limit, she served and came in. His return was hot; she met it weakly, could no more than pop the ball feebly into the air. She saw his body bend backward for the smash, heard the explosion of the shot; and then something struck her bare leg just above the right knee.

She felt a pang like flame, a sickening agony. She heard his low cry of dismay, and heard her own voice in a keen fine wail of pain; and the world swam and dissolved, and she was on hands and knees, on the ground, dizzy, almost fainting.

Then he was holding her in his arms, and crying out regrets and self-reproaches, and trying to lift her; and the sandy surface of the court abraded her bare knees; and then she was being carried, and abruptly she was being kissed, and so forgot her hurts. Chaos resolved itself into order again, glorious and beautiful. She lay on turf, cradled in his arms, clinging to him.

"I didn't mean to, Nance?" he cried desperately.

"Please mean to, Dan," she whispered, drawing him nearer.

"I don't mean—this," he confessed confusedly. "Oh, I've meant this, always, I think. Only I never had the nerve. But—hitting you. . . . Was it awful? I'd rather break my arm."

Palindrome Reads Same Backwards as Forwards:

Whenever you find a word, verse, or sentence that reads the same backwards as forwards, there you have a palindrome. Single-word examples of this peculiarity are "repaper" and "deified." The touch of wit in many classic palindromic sentences is unmistakable. Thus Napoleon, mourning over his exile, might well exclaim, "Able was I ere I saw Elba," and Adam could hardly have found more appropriate words to introduce himself to Eve than simply, "Madam, I'm Adam!"

A shrewd take-off of the tooth-extracting frenzy of Sir Richard Paget and old Irish pathologist, is contained in the palindrome, "Paget saw an Irish tooth sir, in a waste gap." Other long palindromes are "dog as a devi deified lived as a god" and "lewd I did live and evil did I dwell;" while every Etonian can trip out a further example in "now note Eton won."

The ancient Greeks and Romans went so far as to coin sentences with a different and sometimes more sinister meaning when interpreted backwards.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

WE TOOK A jaunt up to West Kansas over the week end. Crops and crop prospects are much better here than there. In places from Liberal to Dodge City they say they haven't had enough moisture yet to bring up what wheat is sown. They are raising a good crop of cane up there though, over the election. Latest reports are that the State will go for Roosevelt. Some of them are backing their opinions with money, and a few have resorted to their fists. Its a good policy anywhere up there, if you have anything to say either way, to say it very quietly and follow it up with a smile.

I'M A CANDIDATE for religion again. What I had was lost Thursday evening about four miles east of Tulia when a tire went flat, on the highly advertised Highway 86. The ground was so soft that the jack just screwed into the ground and wouldn't raise the car. After digging out under the wheel, tearing a pair of pants and various other operations the wheel came off—and the spare was flat. After that discovery, it took twenty minutes for the air to get clear enough to drive—the wife threatened divorce, and I threatened to accommodate her. Curses. Let's get that road paved before something terrible happens.

FIFTY YEARS AGO, the fifteenth of November, M. C. Potter came to Briscoe County. That's quite a while ago. His nearest neighbor was 18 miles away. Silverton nor Quitaque were in existence at all. He says that the first few years, he spent in digging the canyons through the country. I think Bob Stevenson helped him a little with the project. All the buffaloes were still little calves and the Indians were all papooses at that time. Anyway, it was a long time ago and anyone who will stick with a place that long deserves a lot of credit.

IF TED ROUSSIN wasn't one of the regular advertisers, I wouldn't telling this on him. But a fellow who stopped here at the station several months ago, and who lives 300 miles away, asked Saturday if Ted was still here. He said that Ted greased his car, and hit more of the hard spots, and got rid of more squeaks than any station man he had ever had work on his car. Take a bow Mr. Roussin.

LEM WEAVER LEFT a trail of broken hearts behind him when he left the rank of single blessedness Saturday evening. Here he has been slipping around town with that self satisfied look, apparently never a worry, and at peace with the world, fooling everyone into thinking that he was a confirmed bachelor, but now alas, he has gone the way of all flesh and taken unto himself a wife, the hypocrite. Too bad gals, but he's gone, and that's all there is to it.

You will find most of the emphasis these days, on oil that flows freely.

Well and good. You SHOULD use your correct Winter grade, but... You can see that the more freely any oil flows, the more freely it FLOWS DOWN OFF the pistons, cylinders, and other parts when you stop.

Then in starting up cold, where is mere free-flowing oil?

It is waiting to be pumped up on the job. And even in much warmer weather than this—according to engineering opinion—those oil-starved waits can cost you more engine wear than all the rest of your driving!

But this Winter with free-flowing Germ Processed oil, you can have your engine Oil-Plated! ... much more than a change to OUR Conoco Germ Processed oil... really a change to unbroken Winter lubrication for YOUR engine. It may stand cold for hours—days—weeks. Yet the slippery Oil-Plating formed only by patented Germ Processed oil, will always be UP IN ADVANCE. Pistons slip easy. Starter spins. ## Non-Stop

After an hour and a half of preaching, a clergyman who was given to both long-windedness and fanciful flights of oratory was just getting warmed up to his sermon on immortality.

"I looked up to the mountains," he shouted, "and I said, 'Mighty as you are, you will be destroyed; but my soul will not.' I gazed at the ocean and cried, 'Vast as you are, you will eventually dry up, but not I.' And then he wondered why his hearers smiled. —Tit-Bits Magazine.

How it Happened

Blinks looked a wreck. His face was covered with sticking-plaster; both eyes were black; and his left arm was in a sling. "What happened?" a friend asked. "A motor accident?" "No; a loose floorboard." "Tripped over it?" "No; trod on it, as I was sneaking in the other night and woke the missus up."

Boeuf Bourignon

Half dozen slices of bacon are diced and fried in butter and to this is added a dozen little onions. When they are browned, there is added to them about two pounds of beef that has been cut in cubes. The whole is seasoned and when the meat is browned, two tablespoonfuls of flour are shaken over the pan and mixed in with the rest. After this is cooked for a minute a small bottle of red wine is added a cup of bouillon. A bouquet garni is thrown in and the pan is well covered and allowed to cook slowly by the side of the fire for three hours.

NOT ALL AMERICAN WIVES ARE GOOD SPORTS

George grinned affectionately at her tantrum and conceded that it would be pretty hard on her, and that was the end of that.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS
AS A class, American wives are poor sports. Studying them and their problems, year after year, one is forced to the depressing conclusion that most of them are but half-developed as human beings, and that in any change or crisis they are notably poor sports.

There are exceptions, of course. The exceptions are the fine mothers and wives who live out their lives in big cities or country towns or lonely farms, solve their difficulties with courage and imagination, and never trouble anyone for advice or sympathy.

There are, thank God, millions of these. One hears little of them, but they exist in their legions. They are the heart and soul and sinew of tomorrow's America, the hope of the nation.

But there are millions of the others, too, women who try to make life fit their own petty ideas of comfort and vanity and pleasure, and who turn slacker the instant life refuses to fall into the pattern. They want it to be one way, they expect it to be just this or that. Times change, unexpected circumstances arise, trouble comes, and they collapse. They become helpless burdens upon the nearest shoulder; or gets nothing but complaint and protest from them for all the rest of their days.

For example, there is Jean. Pretty, affectionate, happy when Oliver Jones married her, she settled down into a bird-cage of a new cottage charmingly and competently; she could direct a maid, drive a car, give little bridge dinners, buy clothes and have her hair set as efficiently as any girl in her group. Oliver was a successful junior member of his father's real estate firm; everything went well with the young Joneses.

Jean didn't want a baby, but Nature trapped her presently into motherhood and when he arrived she dearly loved her little boy. She had a nurse, and expenses rose alarmingly, but Jean would make no concessions and no changes because of bad times. Bills waited unpaid, Oliver worried and nagged, little Sidney was neglected and sick, but Jean rode serenely over the wreckage, charging purchases, borrowing money, and losing no opportunity to compare Oliver's failing fortunes to those of his cleverer friends.

Six years ago the whole thing went on the rocks. After the failure of his father's firm, Oliver, after months of anxious searching, finally obtained a job; but it was a humble job, checking shipments for a cannery, and he was paid only $22.50 a week. He had to live in a town Jean didn't know, she said she hated it; he had to give up his club and his car. Jean refused to share these fallen fortunes. She went to her mother. Her mother secretly admires and likes Oliver, and didn't want Jean, but that didn't matter. Jean wanted a home in which she would still be waited upon, in which she could still lie late in bed and have her room kept clean and her dishes washed. She has not divorced Oliver, but she resents his unsuccess and despises him, and he knows it.

A Frenchwoman in her place would be living down near the cannery in one of the rentless cottages attached to the place, making her man good soups and stews, struggling to see that her child was well educated. An Italian woman would accept the change in fortunes philosophically, even gaily; it would be all in the day's work to her, the main thing would be that her man needed her. An Englishwoman usually sticks to her partner through thick and thin; the husband is the important thing, not what happens to the bank account. But not Jean!

Then there is Lucia. Lucia and I were friends when we were quite small girls and we have followed each other's fortunes ever since. Lucia married young, married a rich man ten years older than herself. They built a handsome colonial home and lived in some elegance; Lucia, furred and spoiled and love-ly was the happiest young wife imaginable.

Presently the firm that employed George underwent some serious set-backs, and George was asked to take a lesser salary and invest in the business what capital he had left. Lucia was indignant at the idea, and easily persuaded him that he was being badly treated. Why should they give up their lovely house and their three servants just because old Mr. Smith didn't know how to run his business? George resigned and began to look about for better prospects.

The best of these was a partnership with an old friend who wanted George with him in the medical-supply business. Harry had brains and energy and experience; he wanted George to lend dignity and social value to the venture. It meant moving from Philadelphia to a small manufacturing town, it meant living on a minimum income until the business was well-established; it meant, in short, doing exactly what every successful person in the world has to do at the start.

Lucia refused point-blank to consider it. She said that she hadn't been ten years married, hadn't gotten herself into the nicest set, hadn't taken her part in club and social events and learned to play bridge and golf to be banished now to a place like Millville! George grinned affectionately at her tantrum and conceded that it would be pretty hard on her, and that was the end of that. That was the end of everything. He never had another such chance, he slipped down and down and down. They have two dark rooms in a dark crowded street now, a dreadful street of pretenses and disappointments and shabby gentilities. Lucia is a bitterly thwarted woman; she feels that life has dealt cruelly with her.

"Of all the men I knew twenty-five years ago," she says over and over again, "I had to choose a failure!"

And so it goes with hundreds and hundreds of wives. They bargain for marriage on certain terms, and when those terms are not met they will make no changes, no adjustments whatever. They want to live in a certain street, and to have and do certain things; under these circumstances they will be reasonably affectionate and amiable, and contribute something, if not much, to the comfort of those about them. But threaten to disturb them, and they show themselves for the soft little cats they are, wanting idleness and petting and a warm corner, and not caring particularly who supplies them, and whining and crying when they are taken away.

Such women never see that changes, even painful and humiliating changes, are often the gateway to great adventures and successes. They may have heard some such theory in school days, they may have written, "Sweet are the uses of adversity," in their copy books, and learned, "Then welcome each rebuff that turns each earth's smoothness rough," in English class, but nothing of it really penetrated to their minds, nothing changed the selfish tight little boundaries of their souls.

Some years ago I met such a wife at a dinner. Her husband was talking to us of China, and the opportunity had been offered to go and help with some research work there. The woman smiled blandly, indulgently, as he enlarged upon this glorious opening, but presently she said firmly: "You may as well give up the idea now, Tom. I simply will not go one step. You'll stay right here; this is where our friends are, and this is the only place in the world where I can be happy!"

So they stayed at home, and bad times came, and the whole world went to pieces, and there were no more adventures at all for the unimaginative wife and her Tom. They moved into a boarding house, where the wife mopes and complains and stagnates to this day; Tom meanwhile trying to sell fire insurance from door to door.

On the other hand there are women left, and perhaps plenty of them, who see life for what it is, a brief period in which change is growth, and the thing that does not move does not live.

Women have more power than men in marriage. A timid, lazy, selfish husband is not often able to destroy his wife's life; she rises above him and carves out her own way. But men are more helpless; the attitude of American men is indulgent and admiring toward their women; they are in the habit of obeying. Which makes it all the more of a tragedy that so few women are sports!

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for November 1

LAW, LOVE, AND TEMPERANCE (International Temperance Sunday)

LESSON TEXT—Romans 13:1-14. GOLDEN TEXT—It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth. Rom. 14:21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Why We Keep Rules. JUNIOR TOPIC—Junior Citizens. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Shall We Do About Drinking? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Law, Love, and Temperance.

Revolution, political disorder, anarchy—these are words which characterize much of the world's news of our day. What should be our attitude toward government? Should a Christian participate in revolts against government? These are questions that stir the hearts of men.

The Bible has an answer, and it is found in our lesson for today. Let us study it with care and seek God's message for us and for our nation in these utterly confusing days.

We consider together a portion of Paul's epistle to the Romans in which, having laid his superb doctrinal foundation, he turns to a practical application. Let us ever remember that while right doctrine is necessary to right living, it is never sufficient to hold the doctrine and fail to permit it to control our daily walk.

Good citizenship of the true type is the result of staunch Christian character. Much of the weakness in our political and social life can be traced to the neglect of the things of God in the home, the school, and the church.

Paul presents the Christian as one who has the right attitude toward his neighbors, and toward his own daily walk. The Christian is

I. Politically-Intelligent and Loyal (vv. 1-7).

Lectures on political economy are well worth while. School children should learn to love and honor their country. But for real intelligent citizenship we must have a study of God's Word. For all governmental authority is dependent on a God-given power. No man has any right to rule over any other man except as God delegates that right to him.

No "divine right of kings" is justified by this passage, but clearly it does teach that government is ordained of God and functions by His providence. To resist such authority is to resist God.

Must we always obey the government? Yes; until it commands us to do that which is clearly contrary to the laws of God. We do not resist or question the authority of any properly appointed governmental agency, no matter how weak, or even wicked the agent may be, as long as he acts as "a minister of God . . . for good." Any government is better than anarchy. But no government has the right to command any man to disobey God.

In our land we have a powerful agency for the correction of governmental weakness and error—the ballot box. Let every Christiana use it discreetly and in the fear of God.

Before leaving the passage, note that the Christian does not dodge, "fix," or leave unpaid the taxes which support the government under whose benefits he lives and works. There is too much dishonesty at this point, and we need to correct it.

II. Socially-Honest and Loving (vv. 8-10).

"Love thy neighbor as thyself" and there will be no social dishonesty, strife, and ill-will. Remember the lesson of last week on love—I Corinthians 13.

III. Personally-Clean and Spiritual (vv. 11-14).

The time when our redemption is to be fully completed—that is, when the Lord himself returns—is at hand. We therefore will not live as those who walk in darkness, but as children of the light, clean in life and thought. We will "put on the Lord Jesus Christ."

In these days when almost every wayside store and hundreds of thousands of city buildings have been converted into drinking places far worse than the old-time saloon, when men and women are making drunken sots of themselves, it is indeed time for Christians to raise their voices in protest and to act to protect the boys and girls of America.

But above all—let us win them to Christ, for if they "put on Christ" they will "make no provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof."

Respect for Parents
 Honor your parents in your hearts; bear them not only awe and respect, but kindness and affection; love their persons, and fear to do anything that may justly provoke them.—Rev. W. Craddock.

Good Neighbors
 It is a small thing to a man whether or not his neighbor be merciful to him; it is life or death to him whether or not he be merciful to his neighbor.
