Details Released on Crop Insurance

AGGIE BRIEFS

By Finley R. White

Full details of signing up the all-risk wheat insurance policies on the 1938 wheat crop were brought back to Briscoe county by county committeemen Hutless, Wilson, and County Agent White, who attended the regional meeting held at Plainview, Texas, Tuesday, May 17th.

"While the policies will be underwritten by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation the local office will use, as far as possible, the already existing county Triple A set-up of county and community committeemen. Clyde Hutless was appointed Crop Insurance Supervisor for Briscoe County.

"If you want one of these policies" according to Mr. Hutless, "just as soon as the county office advises, through the local paper, that it has the application blanks, all you have to do is to get one and fill it out and turn it in to the county office or see the committeeman with whom you are working."

Mr. Hutless further advised, during the interview, that the principal information you will need in filling the blank is very simple & will be (1) Record of wheat harvested for grain, production and yields on your farm for 1930 thru 1935. For those years you have been in Triple A programs this will be obtainable in the county office.

(2) You need the legal description of your farm. (3) Make up your mind whether you want a policy that will guarantee you 50 percent yield or 75 percent yield. These policies guarantee you either of these amounts. They can be assigned only for two purposes, namely to secure money for getting the policy and for caring for the crop. (4) Tell how the crop is divided. Separate policies must be taken out by the landlord and by the tenant. Either can take out a policy on his own share whether the other does or not. (5) Tell the total area to be seeded for harvest as grain and the total to be seeded following summer fallow.

After the application is filled, signed and turned in, the county committee will approve or disapprove it. If approved the local county office will complete it and forward it to the branch office. As soon as the application can be checked there, you will be advised of the amount of the premium, which can be paid at the county office. This amount can be paid (See "Crop Insurance" on Page 8).

Planting Time
If we can't get "het up" on wheat prospects just now, surely we can't complain about row crop planting moisture. The time is right and for once nature is right for cotton and sugarcane. The next 10 days we may need put into the ground. Remember it pays to plant early. If you don't have good seed it's high time you getting them.

Government Engineers To Survey Proposed Site Three Miles Above Present Bridge On Clarendon Road

According to the accounts of those who attended the War Department's public hearing at Childers Monday, concerning the building of a huge dam on Red River for flood control, it seems fairly certain that the dam will be built.

Engineers were conducted to the proposed site, which is in this county, about three miles above the bridge across Red River on the Clarendon highway. They seemed very favorable, and a survey will be started which is necessary before ascertaining the specifications of the dam.

The cost of the huge structure will be in the neighborhood of three million dollars, it is said. The dam will be about one hundred and fifty feet high, and six thousand feet long and will control flood waters west as far as Canyon.

More definite information will be forthcoming from the government in the near future.

All the churches in Silverton are uniting again this year in a Daily Vacation Bible School, which will be held in the Methodist Church, beginning May 30th at 8:30 a. m. The Rev. A. A. Peacock will be the Superintendent, and a good staff of teachers will have charge. Students will have an opportunity to study religion in its bearing upon life. During the term of this school the children will give more time and thought to a great moral question than the average child receives in a whole year of Sunday School attendance.

The hand work will be in charge of Mr. Thorns, and we hope to introduce wood-burning as an art to the children. Be sure and plan for your children to be present, whether in Sunday School or not. All the local ministers will have a part in this worthy work.

Near Three Inches Of Rain Here This Week

COURT ADJOURNED FRIDAY AFTER BUSY SESSION

District Court adjourned Friday of last week after disposing of 23 suits during the three weeks. There were seven criminal suits, seven tax suits, five civil suits, and four divorce cases on the docket that were finished off.

The case arousing the most interest was the case of the State of Texas vs. Mary Adams, who was charged with "theft from person". Mrs. Adams, a gypsy, was defended by Clyde Wright, Silverton attorney, and the jury late Thursday afternoon returned a "not guilty" verdict.

The State's evidence was purely circumstantial, and there was even considerable doubt whether or not the gypsy was the same that was supposed to have robbed Mr. Jones of $70. While held here in the jail Mrs. Adams gave birth to a baby girl, and it was one of the strong points of the defense that she was not out of the car and that they were on their way to a doctor at Clovis.

Before adjourning the court, Judge Chapman called a special session of court for June 1st, at which the case of Tony Burson vs. S. C. Kitchens will be heard before jury. A divorce case and some other minor cases will probably be heard.

2.82 Inches of Rainfall Shown By Silverton Gauge

Silverton and vicinity have received heavy rains during the past week, wetting the ground to a nice depth, and even putting a little water in the lakes. Roads and streets have been in bad shape off and on since last Thursday.

The first rain came last Thursday night about 8:30 P. M. (after the paper was out, of course) and continued heavily for an hour and a half. It was accompanied by wind and hail. 1.17 inches fell in the short time.

Monday night, at about the same hour, came a similar downfall of 1.20 inches. Wind, and a terrific thunder storm accompanied the rain. Electric light service was broken and the Silverton plant was put into operation.

Wednesday afternoon about 4:00 Silverton was again visited by a hail and rain storm. Hail stones as large as hen eggs were picked up on the street, which however fell with very little wind and did little damage. The rainfall amounted to .40 of an inch. During the late evening light showers brought the day's total of moisture to .45, and the week's grand total to 2.82 inches.

Had the rain been a week or so earlier it would have saved much of the wheat that has already gone under the plow. Some fields here look terrible, and others good. The most optimistic of the farmers claim that they will make a fifteen bushel crop, which, however, cannot be taken as anything like the general condition.

The rain this week brought the 1938 total of rainfall to 5.90 inches, plus several traces too light to record accurately.

BAKING CONTEST CALLED SUCCESS BY PLAINS MILL

The baking contest Saturday, sponsored by the Plains Mill and Elevator, was well attended, and plenty of fun was enjoyed by all who were there. There were 36 entries in the various events, which were auctioned off by Mr. Dunn after the judging. The proceeds of the auction went to the Garden Club for use in care of the cemetery and amounted to $17.90.

The winners of the contests were:

Mrs. Dean Allard, 1st on Angel Food Cake, 48-lb Flour; Mrs. W. N. Dunn, 1st on pies, 24-lb Flour; Mrs. Lena Northcutt, 1st on Ice Box Rolls, 24-lb Flour; Mrs. Noel Landers, 1st on Sweet Rolls, 12-lb Flour; Mrs. Will Smith, 1st on biscuits, 12-lb Flour.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

By Carter Field

Washington.—Perhaps the most important effect that the Progressive conference in Madison, Wis., will have on President Roosevelt's star is that it will start a lot of admirers of the La Follette brothers wondering if Roosevelt is really sound in his New Dealism and in his economics.

One indication of what may happen to Roosevelt, due to the La Follette defection, has already happened. Had it not been for the five La Follette Progressives in the house who so unexpectedly voted against the reorganization bill that measure would have become law. So that the Progressives have already prevented the President from having a good deal more power—power which might have been extremely effective, from time to time, during the next two years.

But the disturbing phase of the La Follette movement to the New Deal lies in the fact that on so many counts the La Follette agrees, not with the extremists who want to go a lot further than Roosevelt, but with the conservatives who think some of his economic theories and practices unsound.

This is notably true so far as the doctrine of scarcity is concerned. For a long time, for example, Sen. William E. Borah has been almost a lone voice crying in the wilderness in attacking the idea of curtailing production when so many people are in need of more—more food, more shelter, more clothing, more everything.

"During the six years of the Roosevelt administration," said Gov. Philip F. La Follette, "we have transferred red ink from the books of private enterprise to the book-keeping of our local, state and federal governments.

"We have tried to give the farmers high prices by restricting agricultural production. We have tried to give industry high prices by restricting the production of the factory and the shop. We have tried to give labor high wages by restricting the output of the worker.

Hits at Roosevelt

"On top of all this, we have even kept millions of able-bodied men and women from productive tasks by relief and various forms of made work. A little simple arithmetic gives the answer: Less from agriculture, less from industry and business, and less from labor can only equal less for all, instead of more for all."

The sentences just quoted might reasonably have been expected in the monthly letter of the National City Bank. They would have surprised no one in particular if they had been uttered by Alf M. Landon. Or printed in an editorial in the New York Times or the Baltimore Sun.

All of which is not taken to mean that the La Follette may be found backing a regular Republican in the next election. Nor that they would support the kind of Democratic candidate who might be approved editorially in the pre-convention campaign by the New York Times or the Baltimore Sun.

But they do hit Mr. Roosevelt in a very vulnerable spot, a spot made sore by much pounding from the La Follette as the Liberty league!

"Baked Potato Story"

The "baked potato story" is still bothering Sen. Vic Donahey of Ohio. Since the Ohio senator was named chairman of the congressional committee which will investigate the Tennessee Valley Authority, the story has been brought up again.

Briefly, the story goes like this. Vic Donahey was state auditor of Ohio while James M. Cox was governor, and incidentally while Cox was a candidate for President on the Democratic ticket in 1920. Donahey attracted a lot of attention to his auditing. On one occasion he forced a state judge to itemize a bill for a dinner, and then disallowed a 35-cent charge for potatoes. "Not while the farmers of Ohio are getting only 65 cents a bushel," he told the newspaper men. This was promptly printed all over Ohio.

The story was printed recently, by this writer, with an addition to which Senator Donahey takes exception. The addition incorrectly stated that later on, with no publicity, this item was allowed. "I want you to know," the senator writes, "that I did not pass the controversial voucher for payment, and it was not approved until a succeeding auditor issued a voucher in payment of this account. I do not think it meant to be unfair, but I do believe you were misinformed, and a erroneous statement to the public should be corrected."

As a matter of fact, the true part of the story—that the 35-cent potato item was disallowed by Mr. Donahey—made a great hit at the time in Ohio. So did other actions of the auditor. He was elected governor in 1922—a Republican had been elected in the Harding landslide of 1920—and then came up for re-election in 1924.

Ohio Liked Donahey

It has often been stated that the voters of Ohio had come to regard Vic Donahey very much as they did Calvin Coolidge, being enthusiastic about Coolidge's New England thrift when applied to spending the people's money.

At any rate, Donahey was running on the Democratic ticket, and Coolidge was running on the Republican ticket, that November day in 1924, and the Ohio voters gave Donahey a majority of 176,842 and Coolidge a majority of 698,242 which means that Donahey ran no less than 875,084 ahead of his ticket!

Most New Yorkers, and most people outside of Ohio for that matter, will tell you that the most spectacular run any candidate ever made ahead of his ticket was made by Al Smith, running for governor of New York in 1920, when he ran slightly more than a million votes ahead of Cox.

But if the fact that there were slightly less than half as many voters in Ohio as there were in New York is taken into consideration, the Donahey run is obviously far more spectacular.

All of which is also interesting in that Donahey was appointed to this committee by Vice President Garner because he is an auditor. "So few senators are apt to understand the figures," Garner commented afterwards to a friend who inquired why such an independent senator, a man who had refused to make a seconding speech for Roosevelt at the Philadelphia convention, should have been appointed.

F. D. R. Likes This One

One of the two points made by the 16 big financial leaders in pledging co-operation between business and government really appeals strongly to President Roosevelt, if it can be arranged according to his own formula. The other is absolutely at variance with his philosophy, and has no chance of adoption.

The point he approves is, in effect, a short-circuit of the anti-trust laws. It would permit the interests engaged in a particular line of business to agree on production schedules, even prices, and other details calculated to prevent the humps and valleys of normal business curves—if government experts, representing the people, sat in on the conferences and had the veto power on any important decisions.

Applying the principle, if Henry Ford would agree to sit down with General Motors, Chrysler, and the other motor makers, and agree on how many cars each would produce, what the prices would be, and to eliminate the possibility of forcing sales so hard this year that next year the result would be lay-offs of workers, the President would think that was getting somewhere. But he would want to have his own appointees refereeing the decisions, with the right to say "no," effectually, at any stage. As, for instance, if he thought the prices agreed on were too high, or if there were any attempt to squeeze the small producers.

This is a particularly good illustration of the theory because no one believes it is possible. Everyone who knows anything about Henry Ford thinks he would close his factories down before agreeing to anything so violently in conflict with his whole concept of what is good for the automobile industry in particular, and the country in general. General Motors and Chrysler would like the theory very much, providing that part about the government expert having the veto power could be stricken out, or at least made innocuous.

Please Other Lines

There are other lines of business which would welcome the idea. It is essentially what was proposed in the original recovery program, under NRA. Also, it is essentially what was in the understandings between the oil operators which so recently resulted in their being convicted in an anti-trust suit.

It is positively not the idea of Sen. William E. Borah, nor of Robert H. Jackson, nor of Thurman W. Arnold.

The other obvious proposal of the "Big Sixteen" is simply absurd, from the White House standpoint. The idea of President Roosevelt giving up his economic and social objectives is so fanciful that it is sincerely doubted by some friends of several individuals on the "Big Sixteen" whether they did not have their tongues in their cheeks when they signed the document.

The President had just reiterated his insistence that a bill providing for federal regulation of wages and hours must be passed before Congress adjourns. He was in the midst of the preparation of his anti-trust message. He had on his desk the speech to be delivered by Trust-buster Arnold. But more than that, every friend he has knows that he has a whole truckful of new ideas for legislation intended, through the imposition of the power of the government on business, to better the lot of the downtrodden.

But meanwhile he would like the approval of business for his spending program!

Picture Parade

In colleges throughout America, academic careers are closing for thousands of seniors. Now come ceremonies traditionally connected with spring and graduation. At Wellesley (upper left), winner of the annual "hoop" contest will be the first to marry. Below is a typical college alumni festival as old grads reunite for commencement activities.

Class day at Harvard each spring means cascades of confetti, a traditional joust with paper between seniors and alumni.

On commencement day graduating seniors will file past their college presidents to receive the "sheepskin" that marks a close to college days. It also marks "finis" to campus friendships, or the end of a schoolyard romance. Other young men and women graduates will march direct to the altar, to start a new career under auspices of Professor Dan Cupid himself. As the 1938 crop of college graduates faces its new life, America hopes the going may be smooth, and that each may find his niche in the world of business.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

STRIPES are popular for slip covers this season. Don't forget to center a striped pattern in the back and the seat of a chair. The crosswise use of stripes may also have possibilities as for the bottom of the chair shown here. Generally the main pieces of a slip cover are fitted and cut right on the piece of furniture with a generous allowance for seams and a tuck in around spring seats. For small shaped sections, such as the fronts of some chair arms and parts of some wing chairs, paper patterns may be made to use in cutting the fabric.

Pin the paper to the part of which you wish to make a pattern, as shown here at A, then mark the outline on the paper feeling your way along the edge line with the side rather than the tip of the pencil point. Cut the pattern 1/4-inch outside the outline as shown at B. This allows for a seam and slight ease in the slip cover which should never be taut at any point. When gathers are needed to shape the fabric over rounded parts, gather the edge and arrange the gathers with the cover piece pinned in place as shown at C.

Directions for making various types of slip covers are given in my book, SEWING for the Home Decorator; also many types of dressing table covers, seventeen different types of curtains, bedspreads, and numerous other useful and decorative things for the home. I shall be glad to send you a copy upon receipt of 25 cents (coins preferred). Address Mrs. Spears at 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Impossible Conditions

What would happen if an irresistible force hit an immovable object? The only answer to this old question is that it presupposes impossible conditions, the two terms being mutually exclusive. You cannot conceive of a force that is irresistible being stopped by any object, nor can an immovable object be moved by any force. As the existence of the two conditions at the same time is impossible, it is also impossible to say what would happen if they did exist.

course regardless. My notion is that if a fellow lets a lady (?) poke around on his frame long enough to get his bill fold, he should just chuck it up to purely personal experience.

I CARRIED A loaded cigarette this week for three days especially for Finley White. I couldn't find him, and Ware Fogerson embarrassed me very much by actually taking it away from me. I told him, and I told him that he hadn't got to take the last one in a package.

FOUR ROSES IS a highly advertised brand, but I know a lady in town here that has been finding a bottle on her desk of mornings with three roses in it. She wants me to write to Dorothy Dix and find out if there is any way to get the gentleman to raise the ante.

STOP, LOOK, AND then look again at the Panhandle Refining ad this week. Del McKinney picked out the picture, Snooks wrote the music, and Keith wrote the words. Try it on your piano some time.

THE STRIP OF paving eight miles east from Silverton seems about to come to pass. This humble writer is again wondering what we are to do with our city streets. With a nice broad strip of paving through here, can you imagine yourself, or anyone else, turning into our complicated system of canals and swamps in muddy weather? There is no doubt but what we must have a few blocks of hard surfacing. If you'd like to see it, you might ask the councilmen, and Mayor about it.

IT LOOKS LIKELY that this job could be done very economically, if its done by the same contractor that surfaces the road, and while his men and equipment are here.

MARY INEZ COWART writes that things in Chicago are very high. Also reminds her mother that last year when she went to San Antonio, she didn't spend all the money they gave her—and wonders if they could send it to her now. Mary Inez, you know, accompanied her grandmother to Chicago, and I guess that she is having the time of her life—except that things are awful high.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK always arouses plenty of memories. That for Yours Truly was fourteen springtime ago. Boy, oh boy, was I the hot stuff! Seventeen years old, and a full fledged school teacher at eighty bucks a month! Age thirty (had I considered it) would have seemed like a grandfather. But, here am I, 31 years old—and don't feel half as important, nor as prosperous, as I did at seventeen—and I'm not going to be old now until I'm fifty—and then I'll raise the ante to 70.

WHITESIDE HAS SOME keen little Levy overalls for kids two years and up. He has a little electric branding iron to brand the kid's name on a strip of leather on the back of the pants.—And he brands a pair for young Pat Northcutt who is a very observing little chap. He absorbs Whiteside's lessons in branding very well indeed. So well that he gets in the car, takes the cigar lighter, and brands the upholstery in seven different places. Old rough ridin', smokem-up Pat!

BARBY SHOULD BE a good baseball player—she sure handles the big stick at home—or at least I let her think she does.

Bumper Crop Makes These and Acreage Reductions Probable . . . Wage-Hour Bill to Be Passed

Wheat Loan Program

ONLY a major crop disaster like a nation-wide drought can prevent the United States from having the largest supply of wheat this summer in the country's history.

At the same time Secretary Wallace, as head of the AAA, was contemplating the prospect of asking the wheat growers of America to make the heaviest reduction in plantings ever proposed.

Added to this will be a carry-over of 150,000,000 bushels or more from last year's crop of 874,000,000 bushels.

In addition to the loan program, Secretary Wallace will move to bolster the market through the new government crop insurance program.

The insurance program is expected to remove about 50,000,000 bushels of wheat from the market through farmer payments of premiums on 1939 wheat insurance.

Officials of the AAA expect that reduction of acreage will stir up protests from wheat growers similar to the current revolt in the corn belt.

When and if wheat acreage allotments are made, farmers can comply with or ignore them, but only those who comply will be eligible for maximum federal benefit payments and wheat loans.

ON THE day it issued its May crop report, the Department of Agriculture celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of the government reporting service.

Wage-Hour Bill to Pass

WHEN 218 members of the house of representatives signed the petition to discharge the rules committee from consideration of the administration's wage-hour bill it became virtually certain the measure would be passed by the house on May 23.

The 218 signers were divided by parties as follows: 182 Democrats, 23 Republicans, 8 Progressives, and 5 Farmer-Laborites.

In its present form the bill provides for minimum wages of 25 cents an hour to be raised to 40 cents an hour over a three-year period and maximum hours of 44 a week to be reduced to 40 hours in two years.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"No Fear of Bullets" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: There's an old saying that a man who is born to be hanged will never be drowned, and Pete Lovett of Brooklyn, N. Y., has a hunch that something of the sort is true in his own case.

Pete went through two years of the World war without getting killed, but that only helped make him all the more sure that he was bullet proof.

Pete was brought up over in Brooklyn, and as a kid he spent most of his time playing around the waterfront.

A regular dock rat, Pete was in those days—a youngster who loved to be in, or on, or anywhere near the water.

He and a couple of other lads used to go down to the docks together, and one of those boys had a brother-in-law who was captain of a lighter-charge barge tied up at the foot of Columbia street in the Red Hook section.

It was a day in August, and the three kids went down to the barge, at the captain's invitation, to spend the day aboard it.

That left the three kids alone with the captain. He was a heavy drinker, Pete says, and this day was no exception.

They did pretty well hunting crabs. One after another they scooped in with a net, until they had a peach basket full of them.

Only the captain didn't drink any tea. He had a bottle of whisky alongside of him and he took frequent nips out of that.

The captain's wife hadn't returned, and the bottle was almost empty. He asked the boys if they would go out and get him some beer, and two of them went, but Pete stayed behind. Pete says the Captain was acting normally, and he didn't notice anything strange about him.

After the other two boys had gone he told Pete his wife would be back shortly and he thought he'd start getting supper ready.

"In the meantime," says Pete, "he must have gone stark mad. Most barge captains keep pistols aboard for protection against harbor thieves, and he had two loaded ones somewhere about the boat.

I was down below, standing just to one side of the hatchway, when all of a sudden he appeared overhead and began blazing away at me!"

I was dark down there in the hold of the barge, and Pete was thankful for that. The captain couldn't see him and he was standing to one side, out of range of the fire.

"Now I heard him open the hatch cover and descend two or three steps down the ladder. I began creeping slowly away from the hatch. I moved along on a string piece barely wide enough to walk on.

Pete was right alongside of the hatch stairway now. The captain's legs were within a few inches of his hands. In a sudden desperation he made a grab for those legs.

"All the time," says Pete, "I was pounding on the hatch cover and calling for help. Altogether I was down there about an hour before they came and let me out, but in that hour I passed through a century of horror. Now, all fear of bullets has been erased from my mind. After that experience, I don't think I'll ever be killed by one."

At an assembly of bird fanciers in London phonograph records were played by Ludwig Koch of the songs of birds common to Britain and the Continent.

The origin of charivaris stretched back to the early Fourteenth century, so historians say. In those far distant days, a charivari was carried out in precisely the same way, except that it was meant to express disapproval rather than the approval that it carries today.

Charivaris went masked in those days, and harassed people whose marriages didn't quite meet the laws of custom. Second marriages and marriages of people whose ages were far apart were the particular butts of the charivari.

Shows Birds Have Dialects At an assembly of bird fanciers in London phonograph records were played by Ludwig Koch of the songs of birds common to Britain and the Continent.

The surprising discovery that the Continental birds, differing in no physical respect from the British, sing differently. No one at the gathering with an ear for music could fail to detect that the magical descending cadence of the English nightingale was never used by other nightingales.

It was argued that birds, like human beings, have dialects peculiar to certain areas.

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses the NEED FOR IODINE

Key Substance of the Thyroid Gland--Tells How to Avoid Iodine Starvation

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS 6 East 39th St., New York City

THE discovery of our vital need for iodine is one of the most thrilling chapters in the long history of scientific research.

Many investigators contributed to our understanding of iodine hunger, but special credit is due to Dr. David Marine and his co-workers; and to Dr. E. C. Kendall of the Mayo Clinics at Rochester, Minn.

Today we know that although it constitutes only about one part in three million parts of the body weight, iodine is so essential that its absence from the diet may have the gravest consequences.

Thyroid—The Gland of Glands Iodine is necessary for the normal functioning of the thyroid gland, situated in the front part of the neck. The thyroid is so important that it is often regarded as the throttle which governs the human locomotive, and when it fails to function normally, the body machinery may be thrown out of balance.

Thyroid disturbance during childhood may affect mental and physical development, and many children have been accused of laziness who are suffering from thyroid deficiency.

Disfiguring Goiter Simple goiter is a common disorder of the thyroid gland. At one time the very mention of this disease terrified girls and women, who feared the unsightly lump in the neck which disfigures the victim.

Animal Experiments Point the Way In 1916, it was estimated that a million young pigs died annually in Wisconsin. Investigation disclosed that their thyroid glands were abnormally large and abnormally low in iodine.

Danger Periods This demonstration aroused the interest of the scientific world and the water and soil, and the iodine content being at a minimum in the autumn and spring.

In general, it may be said the leaves of plants contain more iodine than the roots, and leafy vegetables and legumes store more than fruits, with the exception of cranberries, which are a good source. When the soil is rich in iodine, water comes a fine source of this substance.

iodized Salt One of the most satisfactory methods for adding iodine to the diet, especially in goiterous regions, is through the use of iodized salt. In Detroit, a city-wide survey of iodized salt reduced the prevalence of simple goiter from 10 percent to 2 percent.

Some investigators also claim that one way to enhance the action of the glands after middle life, and so prolong youth, is to include in the daily diet some foods with a high iodine content.

Nature's Storehouse of Iodine It is the duty of every homemaker to learn where the necessary iodine can be obtained and to include iodine-rich foods in the daily diet, but it is especially important that those living in "the goiter belt" stretch along the Appalachian mountains, as far north as Vermont, westward through the basin of the Great Lakes to the state of Washington, and southward over the Rocky Mountain and Pacific states.

Iodine-Rich Foods The sea is the great storehouse of iodine and hence, the most abundant sources are sea food, including salmon, cod, crabmeat and oysters; cod liver oil; and salt.

Fruits and vegetables grown near the sea contain varying amounts of iodine, depending upon

Several communities have given consideration to the prevention of goiter by the addition of iodine to the water supply. This measure is commendable, but it must be borne in mind that wherever iodine is taken in forms other than food, careful supervision by a physician or the public health authorities is necessary.

To those homemakers interested in planning the best possible diet for their families, I shall send lists showing which foods are rich in iodine and which are poor in this substance.

Questions Answered

Miss C. T.—Agar-agar is a non-irritating, indigestible carbohydrate. As it is not digested, caloric value is zero, and it is not possibly fattening.

Mrs. B. R. S.—The average meal leaves the stomach with four hours, though a large meal may stay for five hours. However, the length of time food remains in the stomach is only a fraction of that required for entire digestive process, which takes 47 hours. Carbohydrates are the stomach most quickly, proteins are next, and fats require the longest period.

Miss S. G.—There is no justification for serving toast at breakfast instead of bread. It is not that proper toasting changes any of the starch to dextrine which is quickly and easily digested. Laboratory experiments reveal that the proteins of toasted bread and crusts have a lower digestibility, and animals gain less weight when fed on them than the untoasted bread and the side crumbs of the loaf.

"He can't be all bad," Ruth broke in, her eyes shining like stars.

"That's all very well, daughter," Lee assented. "I'll grant you he isn't a villain like that killer Morg Norris.

"No, if we get a chance we might arrest him and send him back to Texas," Ruth suggested scornfully.

"Now—now! No use getting highly-tighty, Miss. He can come and stay at the L C long as he wants.

Ruth nodded. She knew her father would pay the family debt if he were given a chance.

She desperately wanted to believe in Jeff Gray, to get assurance at least that he was not mean and treacherous.

Jeff Gray fitted himself easily into the life of Tail Holt.

He showed no curiosity about those he met. When they came and went, where they lived, what their ostensible occupations were, held no visible interest for him.

Sensitive to atmosphere, Gray deduced one day that something unusual was in the air.

"What about that lame sorrel, Sid?" asked Reynolds. "You be back tonight?"

"You look after it, Jim," Hunt said. "Don't look for us till you see our dust coming up the road."

"Each of the men had a rifle strapped beside his saddle. Gray watched them ride out of town.

Darkness was falling when Jeff Gray rode out of town. He had never been in Live Oak canyon, but he knew from Pat Sorley that it was on the L C range, not more than three or four miles southwest of the line-cabin.

Were the night riders out to make a raid on L C cattle? That was possible. But why cross 20 miles of Chiswick's range into hill country when plenty of stock could be picked up in the Sweet Spring valley with a much shorter drive to safety?

As he rode through the darkness, mind focused on the problem, another likelihood flashed upon Gray. Occasionally smugglers from Sonora brought silver to Tough Nut to buy goods for consumption in Mexico, thus escaping the Mexican export duty on silver and the import duty on merchandise.

The longer he thought of it the more convinced he was that the raid was against smugglers.

From chance remarks Gray had gathered that Curly was the leader of the rustler group.

"Did you hear me tell you to rustle some grub, Ruth?" her father asked harshly.

"I don't know how to take you," Lee complained. "You certainly came through for Frank when he needed a friend.

"You're a detective for the Cattlemen's association. That what you mean?"

"You can do your own guessing. Right now I'm giving no information."

Chiswick threw out a hand in a gesture of defeat. "All right. Have it your own way.

"There was a moment of silence. "What you want with him?" Bob Chiswick asked.

"I'll tell him that when I see him," Gray said dryly. "You run along and tell him I'm here."

"Wait a minute." The head was withdrawn. Five minutes later Lee Chiswick stepped out on the porch.

"First off, Mr. Jeff Gray, if that's your name, let's get it clear where you stand. I'll ask you to come clean, sir. Are you one of Sherman Howard's men?"

"I'm not asking for a Yankee answer, sir," Lee said impatiently. "I'm not giving you one."

"There's a story in Tail Holt that you are Clint Duke, the fellow who robbed the Texas and Southern," persisted Lee.

"Not much time for gossip right now if we aim to head off those scallawags," Gray said.

Sherman Howard's men. Look what he did for Frank.

"Now you know, you can go back to bed," Lee told her crustily.

"Not just yet, please," Gray smiled blandly. "I'm gaut as a pided steer after a long drive.

Lee said: "Go ahead, girl. Fix him up some food." He added to his son: "Rout Frank and Dan Brand and Buck Conrad out of their beds.

"You are innocent, aren't you?" "I never blocked a brand or ran one over. I never bought or sold a wet horse."

"He didn't check up well enough. I went up the gulch after the thieves, not with them. They passed close to the line-camp in the night.

"You're a detective for the Cattlemen's association. That what you mean?" "You can do your own guessing.

Chiswick threw out a hand in a gesture of defeat. "All right. Have it your own way.

and saddled. "Tony Flores stayed at the bunk-house last night. Do you want him to go?" the young man asked.

"I reckon so. How many rifles all told?" "Four, counting the buffalo gun."

"The other men trooped into the house for breakfast. They ate by the light of lamps, Ruth and Nelly waiting on them.

"Maybe we're figuring this thing out wrong," he said. "Maybe when Kansas let slip Live Oak canyon, that was just bait for me.

"Canyon Diablo," he said. "That was the Spanish name. We call it Live Oak now."

Chiswick left the rest of his party in a mesquite draw while he and Gray rode forward to reconnoiter.

"Neither of them saw any sign of another party. Finally they drew rein and dismounted.

"They're ahead of us," Gray pointed to fresh tracks.

They examined the footprints, striking matches as they stooped to make out the impressions.

"I've seen both of those tracks before," Chiswick said.

"The horses that made them belong to Morg Norris and Mile High," Gray replied. "Where do we go from here? My idea is to follow them into the canyon or along the rim."

Chiswick called to the rest of his posse and the others joined them. Brand recovered his rifle from the red-headed man.

"Norris and his crowd are in the canyon, boys," Lee said. "We are going in after them. But get this right. We have no evidence as to why they are here.

"How many of them are there?" asked Buck Conrad, chewing tobacco stolidly. He was a short, thick, bowlegged man with an imperturbable face.

"Back in 1900 Belgium offered an odd service. It was a 10-centime stamp. The detachable tag on the bottom reads in French and Flemish: "Do not deliver on Sunday."

Dresses for Street and Home Wear!

TWO dresses, as practical as they are pretty—one for shopping and general street wear, the other ideal for round the house, and made on slenderizing lines.

Frock With Girdled Waistline. Fashion says everything must have a certain amount of soft detailing this season, and this charming tailored dress obeys with draping at the neckline, the girdled waist, and bust fullness beneath smooth shoulders.

After breakfast Gray drew Lee Chiswick aside. "Maybe we're figuring this thing out wrong," he said.

"Neither of them saw any sign of another party. Finally they drew rein and dismounted. "They're ahead of us," Gray pointed to fresh tracks.

They examined the footprints, striking matches as they stooped to make out the impressions. One horse had a broken front hoof. Another wore very large shoes and stepped a long way.

"I've seen both of those tracks before," Chiswick said. "The horses that made them belong to Morg Norris and Mile High," Gray replied.
