Wheat Estimated At Half Last Year's Yield

Crop Gussed at 420,000 bushels; Compared to 800,000 Last Year

With harvest in Briscoe County getting under way this week, the comparison must be made between this year's prospective crop and that of last year, which was one of the best yields in late years. Last year there were more acres seeded to wheat than last. However, with the late freeze, the green bugs, and so forth, many acres have already been turned under the plow, and probably there will be less than 60,000 acres harvested. What is thought to be a rather conservative estimate from the county agent's office, sets the yield at about seven bushels per acre. Counting the acreage as 60,000, Briscoe County is due to harvest about 420,000 bushels of wheat this year.

A month ago a man would have been tried for insanity who would have predicted a hundred thousand bushels. Timely rains have helped the wheat more than it looked possible. A seven bushel wheat crop lacks a lot being a bumper crop. However it's a fair yield. The worst feature of the harvest will be the price, which like the yield, is just half what it was last harvest. Wheat has steadily lost ground since the peak price of $1.15 last harvest. The past few days the market has been a little stronger, Tuesday up 3 cents, Wednesday down a half, and Thursday morning up a cent. Local elevators are offering 60c this morning.

Details of the government loan on wheat are not available, but will be released late this afternoon. The plan is a loan on the order of the cotton loan, with rumor placing the loan value of a bushel of wheat as high as 86c—which however, is a rumor.

The first 1938 wheat is expected in Silverton the last of this week or the first of next week. Local elevator men are urging farmers to wait until the wheat is perfectly dry before cutting to avoid a moisture dock.

LIBRARY NOTES

'Idiots Delight', Pulitzer Prize Play By Robert Emmet Sherwood

"Idiots Delight" is a well chosen synonym for war! So appropriate a title could have been selected only by war-hating playwright Sherwood in a most serious poetic mood. The prose meaning of this he fully expounds in an added postscript to the printed edition of the play. Here he declares: "If decent people will continue to be intoxicated by the synthetic spirit of patriotism, and will continue to have faith in the 'security' provided by those lethal weapons sold to them by the armaments industry then war is inevitable."

Mr. Sherwood's views on world politics approximate those of a great body of contemporary writing men who habitually seek from their hearts instead of their heads the answers to present questions arising outside their profession.

The lesson contained in "Idiots Delight" is that "by refusing to imitate the Fascists in their hysterical self-worship and psychopathic hatred of others, we may achieve the enjoyment of peaceful life on earth rather than degraded death in the cellar."

When "Idiots Delight" had its opening night in Washington D. C., virtually every influential man on Capitol Hill was there to see this play written about a war—the war that hangs over Europe daily in the headlines, with a scathing denunciation that evoked burst after burst of applause from the audience.

The playwright who has given us so many ironically delightful evenings in the theater has a more serious purpose than ever this time for his withering wit and buoyant gaiety."

Some new books lately received at the library are: "Secrets of the Caves" by Dixon; "Tarzan and the Jewels of Opar" by Edgar Rice Burroughs; "Bamba the Jungle Boy on Terror Trail"; "Anne of Green Gables" by L. M. Montgomery; "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and "New Chronicles of Rebecca" and "Mother Carey's Chickens" by Kate Douglas Wiggin; "Man's Wings and How to Fly" by Richardson.

EYES THAT SEE

The story of Helen Keller is the story of a modern miracle more thrilling than fiction. In her eternal prison house of silence and darkness, she tells of the unutterable loneliness of her soul. Unable to speak, hear, see, or dream, she dwelled as an alien amid scenes pulsating with life. Then into her drab and desert existence came a Christ-sent emancipator, Miss Sullivan, who for years wrought with infinite patience and unceasing love, until the girl could read and talk and "see". And, we are told, on one occasion, while in a Southern city when her instructor was looking spell-bound at a beautiful sunset, Helen began to weep, and to spell with marvelous rapidity into Miss Sullivan's fingers, at the same time articulating in words which she had previously learned, like one in ecstatic joy, saying over and over again with fingers and dancing lips and eyes, "you have made me see: you have made me see: I see sunsets, I smell perfumes, I see roses, I see you, I see—God. Eyes that see will be our thought in the Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning. What do we see: do we see all that is worth while. Come to Church next Sunday morning. Vesper service at 5:00 p. m.

FEAR STOPPING PRIVATE FUNDS SAYS GIRDLER

At least one industry is ready to expand operations, spending millions of dollars to create work, when and if private capital is permitted to flow in its normal course.

T. M. Girdler, speaking in behalf of the National Iron and Steel Institute that the flow of private capital now is dried up "because of uncertainty or fear on the part of millions of large and small investors."

He proposed restoration of confidence by:

- 1—Development of a sound National fiscal policy.
- 2—Adoption of a predictable government attitude toward industry.
- 3—Such government regulation of industry as is in the public interest, but which does not compete with industry or put it in a straight jacket.
- 4—The laying of a foundation for industrial peace by sound amendments of the Wagner Labor Act, making it fair to employees and employers alike.

BREWER - WHELOCK

At the home of her mother in Olton, Sunday, June the fifth, Miss Moira Myrl Brewer became the bride of Mr. R. D. Wheelock. The prenuptial music was played on violins by W. C. Teague, great uncle of the bride, solemnized the rites with the beautiful and impressive ring ceremony.

The bride was attired in a street dress of powder blue marquisette over taffeta and pink and white accessories.

Mrs. Wheelock is the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mrs. Marjorie Brewer of Olton. She was valedictorian of Olton High School when she graduated in '33 and again attained highest honors when she graduated from Wayland Baptist College in 1935. She is an excellent pianist and violinist.

HEALTH NOTES

"The State Health Department's three-month old campaign against filthy rest rooms over the state has been marked by splendid cooperation from the retail business establishments involved, the public at large, and the press. Our department is so firmly convinced that filthy rest rooms are a major public health hazard that the department's sanitary inspectors are checking rest rooms as carefully as they do other violations of sanitary regulations," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"We have served notice on all retail establishments in Texas that they must clean up their rest rooms and continue to keep them clean under penalty of violating the State Food and Drug Law, Article 695, which carries a fine of not less nor more than one hundred dollars."

"Our sanitary inspectors have been notified to assess this fine whenever they find rest rooms maintained without adequate sanitation. The public and business establishments have been adequately warned. Any subsequent violations will be dealt with through legal channels."

"We want the public to cooperate with us in this campaign. Such filthy conditions as heretofore have been prevalent over the state will never again be tolerated. When the public finds a rest room that is unsanitary, whether it be in a cafe, tavern, filling station, retail establishment or bus station, they will be doing their community a favor if they transmit this information directly to the State Health Department, Austin, so that necessary steps can be taken."

"Disease breeds in unsanitary rest rooms and is spread from one person to another, indiscriminately, under such conditions. Facilities should be available for washing the hands, toilets must be sanitary and kept that way. The rest room that does not meet these minimum requirements is a reflection on the establishment it serves and should be so interpreted."

PAYMENTS AVERAGE $29.73

Lump-sum payments under the Federal old-age insurance program to claimants in Texas during the month of April averaged $29.73, according to Dewey Reed, manager of the Amarillo office of the Social Security Board.

TAX BILL NOT SIGNED

President Lets It Become Law, Calling Attention to "Unwise" Modification of Profits and Gains Levies

Tax Bill Unsigned But Law

FOR the first time since he entered the White House, President Roosevelt permitted an act of congress to become law without his signature. He took this course with the tax revision bill in order to emphasize his objection to "those unwise parts of the bill" which removed all but the skeleton of the undistributed profits tax and drastically modified the levies upon capital gains.

The President announced his action in a speech delivered to 148 mountain families of the New Deal-sponsored rehabilitation community of Arthurdale, W. Va., at the graduation exercises of 13 high school students. His words, however, were carried to the nation by radio networks.

"I call the definite attention of the American people," said Mr. Roosevelt, "to those unwise parts of the bill I have talked to you about today—one of them which may restore in the future certain forms of tax avoidance, and of concentrated investment power, which we had begun to end, and the other a definite abandonment of a principle of tax policy long ago accepted as part of our American system."

Strike Back at Morgan

TESTIFYING before the joint congressional committee of investigation, David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan, directors of the Tennessee Valley authority, accused Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, their ousted colleague, with trying to sabotage the TVA's legal defense in a court case involving the constitutionality of the authority. They said, too, that he had engaged in a campaign of dissent and obstruction.

David E. Lilienthal

These charges, together with a general denial of Arthur Morgan's accusations against themselves, constituted in the main their defense statements. Referring to the trial last winter of the suit of 18 private utility concerns against the TVA, Lilienthal said: "It is a record which suggests that he was seeking to find a way to obtain a judicial decision against his own agency. It is a record of tampering with prospective witnesses for the government and of obstructing and harassing counsel and witnesses in the very heat of the trial of a crucial constitutional case."

Former Chairman Morgan told his side of the long, bitter controversy on the first day of the inquiry, charging his fellow directors with dishonest management. He explained he did not mean David Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan took bribes or stole money, but that they deceived the President, congress, and the public; that they covered up important facts tending to throw doubt on the advisability of the government's huge social experiment; reported a false electric power yardstick, and were subservient to political and other special interests. Concerning the Berry marble claims, Lilienthal said: "Any assertion that we (Harcourt Morgan and himself) by word or attitude encouraged any one to pull punches on Berry's claims is an outright falsehood. There was absolutely no evidence upon which any charge of fraud could have been based; there were only rumors and suspicions."

Oil Group to Pay Fines

IT WAS announced by the Department of Justice in Washington that 14 oil companies and 11 executives awaiting trial at Madison, Wis., on anti-trust charges, plan to enter nolo contendere pleas and pay maximum fines and costs totaling $400,000.

The department said that the pleas, "amounting virtually to pleas of guilty," had been accepted by the department and recommended to the Madison court.

The defendants comprise the second group to be brought before the Madison court, where 46 defendants were convicted on similar charges last winter. These cases have been appealed.

The present indictments charge the oil companies and their executives on three counts with violation of the Sherman anti-trust act by a series of unlawful agreements between 1931 and December, 1936.

War Pensions Boosted PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT signed a bill to increase the pensions of certain soldiers, sailors and nurses who served in the Spanish war, Philippine insurrection or China relief expedition.

The act provides a $60 monthly pension for veterans sixty-five years old who served at least 90 days and to those who served less than 90 days and were discharged for disability incurred in service. Air raids also were made on Sagunto and other cities. Government troops started an ambitious offensive on the Catalan front but were checked by hastily reinforced insurgent forces.

Nazi Inquiry Voted

THE house voted for an investigation of un-American propaganda activities in the United States following a charge by Representative Martin Dies of Texas that a member of the German-American bund had advocated the assassination of President Roosevelt. Dies, who presented the resolution for an inquiry, said he based his statement on affidavits which he had seen. The suggestion that the President be slain was made, he said, in a speech at a Nazi camp.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Fingers of Flame"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Arthur A. Guinan of Brooklyn, N. Y., is today's Distinguished Adventurer. Art says that although he is a veteran of the World War and saw plenty of service in France, he had to come back home to get in a mess of trouble.

And that, boys and girls, is the way a lot of these adventure yarns start out. They start with a peaceful family scene like the one Art describes in his own home on an evening early in November, 1923. It was a cold, rainy Friday night outside, but indoors, in the Guinan dining room, it was cheerful and bright.

It was a little early to be lighting the furnace. That's why the Guinans were all gathered in the dining room. They had a kerosene oil stove burning in there to—well—to sort of take the edge off the dampness.

Art's mother and dad and brother were there. His dad, who had recently been discharged from the hospital where he'd spent ten months with a badly broken leg, was sitting in an easy chair with his bum leg stretched out stiffly in front of him. He couldn't walk on that leg yet, and was practically an invalid.

Their Oil Stove Exploded.

Mother was peeling potatoes. Art's brother had stirred up a mess of plaster and was patching a crack in the ceiling. Art had gone out to the kitchen to grab a bite to eat. He was just finishing up when his dad said he didn't like the way the oil stove smelled. Mother said she'd noticed it too. It was warm enough in the room by that time, anyway. She looked up and saw Art, who had just finished eating and returned to the dining room, and asked him to put the stove out.

Art says he had a special way of putting out that stove. "We used to turn it down as low as it would go," he says, "and then pick it up by the handle and give it a jerk to put out the last flicker of flame." But nowadays, Art realizes that that's no way to put out an oil stove.

On this particular night, though, he didn't realize it. He turned the wick down to the bottom, picked the stove up and gave it a jerk. It didn't go out, so Art gave it another jerk—harder, this time, than the first. The next thing he knew, he was holding onto something that looked and sounded like Vesuvius on a rampage.

That stove gave out a roar that could be heard a block away. A burst of flame six feet long shot across the room. Art's mother was sitting right in the path of it. In a split second she was flaming like a HUMAN TORCH!

Saved Mother but Forgot About Dad.

Art dropped the stove and ran to her. Her clothes were blazing in a dozen places. With his bare hands, he started tearing at her dress. "I was pulling that flame apart," he says. "Lord only knows how, but I kept pulling handfuls of burning cloth from her body. My brother started coming down from the ladder he was standing on. In the meantime my mother and I had worked our way into the kitchen and my brother joined me there."

Art and his brother were both pulling at those flames now, and they were making headway. At length they had torn away the last bit of burning cloth—beaten out the last spark. Then, suddenly, they thought of their dad!

Art says that right there he got the worst fright of his life. They had forgotten about dad in the rush to take care of mother, but now they realized that he was the one who really needed their assistance most. Dad was helpless—practically an invalid. He couldn't move out of his chair, and back there in the dining room, the whole place was blazing.

Art turned to run into the dining room. The door leading to it was a raging furnace. A curtain of flame covered its whole length and breadth. Art hesitated just a fraction of a second. Then he plunged right through the door, flames and all.

Flames Couldn't Stop Art.

There was a smoke-filled space in the center of the room where the flames had not yet spread. His dad was over at the other side of it. Art plunged across that space in nothing flat and gathered his father in his arms.

"His right shoe," Art says, "was almost burned from his foot. I started to carry him toward the back door, but about half way across the room I stumbled. Dad fell on top of me and knocked the wind out of me. I thought I'd never get it back again. Before I did, the flames had crept up on us."

It was about that time that Art felt a terrible pain in his right leg. When he looked at it he saw that the legs of his trousers were afire. But there was no time to lose. They had to get out of that room right away. Art picked his dad up again and dragged him toward the door with one arm while he was beating out the flames in his pants legs with the other.

It was a hectic five minutes. At last he was through the door. He set his dad down in a chair in the yard back of the house and ran to turn in the fire alarm. "It wasn't until I reached for the alarm box," he says, "that I realized how badly I was burnt. My hands looked like a couple of beefsteaks, and my legs were worse. That peaceful little home of ours looked like a hospital for the next six months."

Tracing the White Indians

Definite indications that the mysterious "White Indians" of Panama are descendants of white men who came to America before Columbus are reported by an archeologist. Many scientists have held these people were albinos. But albinos usually are childless, and when they do have children they also are always albinos. But there were instances where the "White Indians" gave birth to brown-skinned children.

Birds Plague City

Bird of good luck to many native tribes, the hammerkop, has become an ill omen to people of Johannesburg, South Africa, who have goldfish ponds. Many ponds have been denuded of fish by the feathered fishermen. Haunting small creeks, they feed on frogs. Recently a Johannesburg resident put a frog pond near his pools of goldfish. Both frogs and goldfish began disappearing and soon all were gone.

Strange Facts

Tiny Sailfish Puzzles Beebe

DR. WILLIAM BEEBE returned recently from a tropical expedition. He had collected 20,000 different specimens of marine life. He brought back a fish not as long as his little finger. This was his most valuable specimen, a sailfish 1 1/2 inches long.

The familiar sailfish caught by anglers in California or Florida weighs from 30 to more than 100 pounds. Their length measures the height of a man or a giant. Some are even ten feet long. The "baby" sailfish measuring 1 1/2 inches may not be a "baby" at all. The tiny fish exactly like the ten foot sailfish puzzles Doctor Beebe. In an interview on landing, the well known scientist says the tiny sailfish might be the first young sailfish ever captured, or may be a new miniature species. There is much doubt of the 1 1/2 inch sailfish being the young of the ordinary sailfish because the little fish seems fully formed.

The sailfish derives its name from the huge dorsal fin that extends a foot or two above the body and resembles a sail. These fish feed on the surface of the water and they are caught by trolling in the daytime. The miniature sailfish secured by Doctor Beebe was caught at night under search lights, on a voyage that took Doctor Beebe and his companions 2,000 miles down the west coast from Cape Lucas to Panama.

Early Trial

In Panama, a man indicted for a crime, even though he may be a fugitive from justice, undergoes trial at once, while the witnesses for the state are alive, present and of sound memory. Recently a safebreaker was captured and began his six-year sentence a few hours later, his trial having taken place in 1935.—Collier's Weekly.

"I quit Sunday school a right long time ago," Norris sneered. "Likely you'd say I was headed for damnation."

Ruth guessed he was proud of his reputation for evil. "They say there is honor among thieves," she said. "You would stand by a friend, wouldn't you?"

"How do you know a friend?" he wanted to know, with a curl of the lip. "I know mine," she answered.

"What about the sapheads you've flirted with off and on for the past two years? Would you call them friends, when you were making them think they were ace high with you and they only stacked up as deuces?"

She shook her head, smiling at him faintly. "Don't quote Ruth Chiswick to me. I don't set her up as an example. But I do think I have more sense now than I had then."

"Lemme see. How long is it since you ran off with Lou Howard and then jilted him?" "I'm a reformed character," she told him lightly.

"Don't you get too reformed and we'll get along fine. Understand one thing. Where I'm at I rule the roost. That's all you got to remember. I know yore kind. You have to be treated like a bronc with hell in his neck. Soon as he finds out who is boss, there's no more trouble. Until then I keep my quirt hot."

"What's eatin' you, Morg?" asked Kansas unhappily. "I didn't aim to say a thing to annoy you." With the sleeve of his shirt he brushed away tiny beads of perspiration from his forehead. For the moment the heart of the man died under his ribs. The look in the eyes of the killer had been venomous. Could he have discovered in any possible way that Kansas had told Nelly where they would camp?

Norris watched the wretched man. And Ruth watched first one and then the other. "No, you wouldn't annoy me, Kansas," said Norris, low and soft. "You'd be for me every way from the ace, wouldn't you?"

"Yes," Kansas pleaded, his voice parched and dry. "I sure would, Morg."

"You wouldn't want me to stay here where nobody could find us in a thousand years, would you?" grinned the killer.

"Not if you didn't want to stay." "Good old Kansas, faithful as Old Dog Tray," jeered the other.

"You—you got me wrong, Morg," burst out Kansas. "Maybe so," Norris continued to smile, the mocking grin on his face something dreadful to see. "Well, I'm going to the spring to fix up this scratch on my arm while you unsaddle and picket."

Ruth offered timidly to dress and tie up the wound. She did not want to do it, for there was something everything went hazy. . . . She saw Norris moving forward, the rifle in his hands. He padded toward the prone figure, his supple body crouched and wary as that of a cat stalking its prey. The face of the man was demonic. Upon it was stamped the horrid sadistic lust that comes to the habitual killer who has made his kill.

"You . . . you've killed him," Ruth cried, covering her eyes. He laughed, triumphantly. "Surest thing you know, He was aiming to run out on me, to sell me for a peace offering to Chiswick."

Callously he pushed the body over with his toe to make sure his victim was lifeless. "Dead as a stuck shot," he pronounced cheerfully. "When yore Uncle Morg cuts loose they don't even squeal."

His Satanic good humor appalled Ruth. He was immensely pleased with himself. The thing he had done no more distressed him than if he had shot a rattlesnake. The girl looked down at the huddled body which had been quick with life only a moment since, and a sick tremor ran through her. She felt panic rising to her throat—had to shut her mouth tight to keep from screaming.

The killer began to laugh. "I told him we might agree for him to stay here and for us to go on. It will be that way. I'll saddle yore bronc and be off."

As Ruth watched him resaddle, she pulled herself out of the hopeless conviction that she was lost. It would never do to give up. In what way could she help herself? There must be something she could do. She held her quirt tight in both hands twisting it, while her thoughts darted here and there. If she could leave a message—

The man's back was toward her as he cinched her mount. She slipped the quirt from her wrist and wrote on the ground with the heavy end of it, making sure he did not see. The leather dragged through the dust.

"Wild Horse." Abruptly she stopped, flicking the whip idly. He was bringing the horse to her. "Hold this while I get ginger." He gave her a mocking word of warning. "And see you don't try to make a getaway like he did."

"Hell to pay," he said. "What's wrong?" asked Howard. His opaque eyes fixed on the man. "Lee Chiswick bushwhacked us." "When? Where?" "In Live Oak canyon, right after we held up the smugglers." "Spill it." "Mile High told all he knew, which was not much. "You don't know whether the other boys got away," Howard said. "Didn't see any of them down? Didn't notice Lou?"

"No, sir. I saw two fellows on one horse. They were coming lickety-split behind me. But I lost track of them later. They didn't show up at the other end of the canyon. Maybe Lee's men got them. I wouldn't know. It sure was every man for himself."

"It seems to have been Mile High for himself," Howard said bitterly. Howard drummed with the tips of his pudgy fingers on the table. "Someone else ought to be in soon with news," he said. "Some of the boys must have got away."

"I reckon, but I wouldn't bet none on it," Mile High replied. "It's sure a mess." "How did Lee find out what the boys meant to do?" Howard demanded, frowning at the cards in front of him. "Did you tell anyone, Mile High?"

"Not a soul. I don't believe any of the boys did. Kansas made a crack down at the corral about us going to Live Oak canyon. I heard Sid blowing him up about it." "Do you know who heard him?" "No, I don't."

"Go down and ask Jim Reynolds to come see me. He might know." Mile High uncoiled his long legs and rose. As he turned toward the door there came another knock. "Who's there?" snapped Howard. "Dan Brand," a voice answered. "Anyone with you?" "No."

Howard told Mile High to open the door. When Brand walked in, he faced two men with drawn revolvers. The foreman said tranquilly, "Put 'em up boys. I didn't come a-smokin'."

Cool, Smart, Easy-to-Tub

DRESSES with v-necks and short sleeves, easy to put on, and with no ruffles or fussy details to keep you long at the ironing board! That's the main and most important fashion for summer time, and here are two particularly smart styles that you can quickly and easily make at home, even if you haven't had much experience in sewing. A detailed sew chart comes with each pattern. Slenderizing Shirtwaist Dress. If you take a woman's size, choose this smart tailored type with notched collar, short kimona sleeves, and action pleats in the skirt. It's cool and unhampering for housework, and tailored enough so that you can drive to the station and go shopping in it, too. Gingham, percale, seersucker or tub silk are smart materials for it.

Basque Frock With Dainty Frills. This charming dress is extremely becoming to slim, youthful figures, with its snug bodice, puff sleeves and wide revers. A fashion you'll enjoy for home wear and afternoon parties all summer long. This design will be lovely in any dainty cotton that you like—dotted Swiss, dimity, lawn and linen, light or dark, with white cuffs and revers to make it look so cool and fresh.

The Patterns. 1462 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material. 1453 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material, plus 3/4 yard contrasting for collar and cuffs.

Beauty, Thrift in Crocheted Linens

Cross-stitched bouquets in crocheted baskets can be a needlewoman's pride. Try these on your linens and be delighted with the decorative result for they'll transform towels, pillowcases, and scarfs. Other cross-stitch motifs that may be used alone are given. The crochet is done in No. 50 cotton; the cross-stitch worked in lovely colors. In pattern 6038 you will find a transfer pattern of two motifs 3 1/2 by 12 inches; two motifs 4 by 10 1/2 inches; two motifs 4 1/2 by 7 inches; two motifs 4 by 12 inches; a chart and directions for crocheted edgings 4 1/4 by 15 inches; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches used. To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th Street, New York, N. Y.

Bird's Song Apparatus. The bird's song apparatus is unique. Unlike sound in other vertebrates, birdsong does not originate in the larynx at the upper end of the trachea or windpipe, but in a special organ, the syrinx, peculiar to birds. This is situated considerably farther down in the body, at the lower end of the trachea. The larynx is present, but lacks vocal cords.

BRISCOE COUNTY NEWS

"Official City and County News"

ROY W. HAHN

Editor and Publisher

Cranberry Allred, Sports Editor

Entered as second-class mail matter at the post office at Silvertown, Texas in accordance with an act of Congress on March 3, 1879.

The moving finger writes and, having writ, Moves on: nor all thy piety nor wit Shall lure it back to cancel half a line, Nor all thy tears wash out a word of it.

THE QUITAQUE POST tells of new fixtures being installed by the First National Bank of that city.—In preparation for the annual influx of Silvertown money at harvest time, I take it. If I had another half dollar to go with the one I have, I'd start me a bank of my own.

OF COURSE IT'S really no business of my own, but I wonder what the monthly income of our bank is, from checks turned down at two bits a whack?

KIRK'S CAFE IS installing a complete air conditioning plant in their cafe this week. I think that this is the first in Silvertown. The plant is being installed at a cost of something less than a hundred dollars. George is figuring on establishing a little community line and sell a little damp air around to other places. The Briscoe County News will probably be the first to join on the line. The air will be piped to various parts of the town the same as gas, and in our case the natural gas lines will be used, as they are being used very little these days. The new company will be called the Kirk-Hahn Air Conditioning Utilities Company, Inc. I get in on the ground floor because I thought of the idea.

THE ONLY FLAW in the crop insurance plan as I see it is this: It will create more town farmers than ever before. It is taking the gamble out of farming. It will provide a greater than ever incentive for a fellow to sit in town, and make his profits in the country.

THE SECTIONS we have in wheat that do not have a tenant on them, hurts these small communities. But there is no use having a tenant if a fellow can hire the place put out to wheat, take government insurance for three-fourths of a crop, and be assured of a couple of thousand dollars profit. This way a town farmer can get all the gravy—why split with a tenant. To hell with the tenants, we're going to raise our wheat by remote control.

THERE SHOULD BE something in the crop insurance set up which would make only occupied farms eligible to be insured. But I don't think that there is—I may be wrong. I sometimes am.

J. H. BURSON HAS been improving his horses again. He just bought a high bred, dun stallion of the quarter horse type from G. B. Mathis of Stinnett. Mr. Burson has been raising Thoroughbred horses for the past eleven years and has some of the finest and best bred horses in the country. He will cross the dun horse with his Thoroughbreds and expects to raise better horses than he now has.

A FEW MORE HORSES, and a few more "whitefaces" would help the country in general.

A LETTER FROM CHAS. McEwin at Powderly tells that Mrs. McEwin is homesick. Every time she sweeps, he says, she is reminded of West Texas and home. Even old Chas. himself says that he feels the urge. They'll be back one of these days.

A LOT OF US have a little trouble making up our minds. An example, from the Jewell County Republican of last week: "A high school girl was starting out with her date, and as she went out the door, her kindly old mother said, 'Well, now be a nice girl, and have a good time'. 'Make up your mind now, mother, make up your mind', returned the snip "

IN MY WEARY wanderings during the past week or so I've found out that two new business houses are to be built. A filling station and a new modern garage to be exact—where? and who? Well I'll tell you later. But it won't be long.

ANOTHER LITTLE report on local business—it's quite likely that the Palace Theatre and Silvertown Drug Store will be open by July 1st. The sooner the better. We are a pretty big little town, but not near big enough to have a bunch of vacant buildings.

I HEREBY RESOLVE—that this line shall remain in the Briscoe County News until our city managers start a little constructive work toward surfacing our streets, or at least until the death of Yours True'ly. Dated this 9th day of June, 1938. (I've been wanting to know for a long time, how long a linotype slug will last.)

"ROUGHING" GROWING PULLETS CUTS DOWN FALL EGG PROFITS

"There's a lot of truth in the old saying that a poultryman makes or breaks himself by the way he manages and feeds his pullets from the sixth to the twentieth week," says J. H. Burrell, poultry specialist at Purina Mills. "But most poultrymen don't discover their loss until late fall when egg prices shoot upward and they find their pullets not ready for laying."

Most poultrymen give their chicks proper care the first six weeks. But unfortunately many poultrymen feel that after the first six weeks a chick should be able to take care of itself. The lot of the six weeks' old chick is too often cast in poor range, straight grain feeding, and among the bugs it can pick up. "A let-up in chick care and feeding at this time is costly," Burrell comments, "since the let-up retards growth, impairs development, and frequently lowers resistance to a point where pullets are subject to costly diseases. Pullets drag on into the fall—not laying—not paying."

Any poultryman who "roughs" his birds during the growing period must expect them to "rough" him in return when time comes for pullets to go into the laying house. Every egg produced in September, October, November, December, or January is worth two eggs produced in any of the other seven months—but it takes well grown out, strong pullets to keep up production and pay back feed costs when egg prices are high.

At the Purina Experimental Farm where thousands of birds are raised each year three definite periods in the pullet cycle are recognized. The first is the pullet development period from March through August. The second period is the high price egg season from September through January, and the third period is the February through July season of declining egg prices.

50% Production Profitable
"In the second period lies the secret of profitable poultry raising," Burrell says. "The poultry raiser who hits the high egg price period with big well-developed pullets, turning in 50 percent production or better has birds that not only pay for the cost of their care and feed but pay a big margin of profit above all costs. The poultryman who finds himself with a flock of knotty, scrawny, under-developed birds in 30 percent production or less is bound to lose money and regret the fact that he roughed his pullets during the growing period."

To build big money-making pullets with strong bodies and well-developed egg-making organs is the job of a complete, well-balanced growing mash. All the things pullets need for building bones, blood, muscles, feathers, and egg-making organs must be scientifically blended into it. Keeping birds off unclean or contaminated range; providing airy roosts; shade during the day; ample, clean housing; an abundance of clean drinking water; and plenty of nutritious growing feed are prime requisites for growing money-making pullets.

Complete Feed Needed
A complete, balanced growing feed that provides growing pullets with all the ingredients they need for a quick sturdy growth in just the proportion pullets require, is one of the many developments at the Purina Experimental Farm. "Big sturdy pullets at 20 weeks don't 'just happen,'" Burrell points out. "By starting with well-bred chicks, feeding them well during the first six weeks, and then giving them the best of care and feeding during the growing period, the poultryman gets the best insurance he can buy for having money-making pullets when it comes time to fill his laying house in the fall. Pullets grown out properly always stand up better under the strain of production, maintain a higher rate of production, and are better able to withstand seasonal let-downs."

Ohio Experiment Station figures on chicks hatched April 7 and grown out properly from the sixth to the twentieth week show a flock average of 160 eggs per bird. Late maturing pullets laid only 113 eggs during the same period.

TEXAS FAIR IN FIRST-QUARTER BUSINESS TABLE

Showing neither spectacular gains nor relatively severe losses, the Texas table in the state-by-state business record for the first quarter of 1938 compared to the same period of 1937 reveals four "plus" and four "minus" ratings in the eight key business indices covered by the tabulation, says a report of the All South Development Council.

On the whole, compared to the national figures on "percentage of gain or loss," the Texas showing was favorable, since only in the "heavy construction" table did the nation as a whole show a gain, and the Texas declines were less severe than the national averages. Bolstered by gains of more than a hundred per cent by several states, "heavy construction" advanced in the nation-wide picture by 27 per cent, with Texas up 32. Louisiana, whose intensive drive for new industries helped make it the nation's leader in this field in 1937, carried on with a 205 per cent gain in 1938's first quarter. Oklahoma was up 155 per cent.

Electric power output was up 10 per cent in Texas, against a national decline of 6 per cent; farm income in this state rose 10 per cent while dropping 14 per cent nationally, and life insurance sales gained five per cent, against a national drop of 18.

On the minus side, Texas dropped 16 per cent in passenger car and 12 in commercial car sales the nation-wide declines being 41 and 35, respectively. In household refrigerator sales, a good standard-of-living gauge, the Texas drop was 18 per cent, more than Louisiana's (-7), but well under the national score of -45. In "value of checks drawn" the Lone Star State slumped 4 per cent against the national drop of 22 per cent.

TAXES UP
Taxes paid in 1937 by a large radio manufacturing company were more than double the amount paid to holders of common stock in the firm.

CHILDREN'S HOME BECOMES TEMPORARY HOSPITAL

In line with the plans of the Children's Home health and safety program, 25 children were taken to the North-West Texas Hospital for Tonsillectomy operations this week; after the operations, they will be returned to the Home where they will be cared for during convalescence.

According to W. A. Zischang, Superintendent of the Presbyterian Home for Children at Amarillo, there will be 13 boys (nine of whom will also have circumcision operations) and 12 girls. The children range in age from 4 to 14 years. Drs. E. A. Rowley, Howard Puckett, B. M. Puckett, W. F. Flamm, and Dr. Frank Duncan will be the attending physicians.

The Children's Home is adequately equipped and prepared to give the children the best of care and attention during their convalescence. Mr. and Mrs. Zischang are both qualified through first aid and general health experiences in working with children for many years in directing both summer and winter camps and children's institutional work in Houston, Dallas, and Amarillo. They will be assisted by Mrs. M. M. Richardson, who formerly was a nurse in hospitals at El Dorado, Plainview and Hereford, Texas, and also by other employees of the Home. Dr. E. A. Rowley said the children will have the best of care that the medical profession can provide and that these children were very fortunate to be in the Children's Home where they are given such care and attention as they would receive if they were in the very best homes in Silvertown instead of coming from broken homes, some of them absolute orphans, some abandoned, some are dependent because of unworthy parents and some are dependent because of the depression of the destitution of the parents or parents.

The Children's Home Board of Trustees is very careful not to take into the Home any children that are diseased or abnormal physically or mentally, nor do they accept incorrigible types. The Home is now responsible for the care and supervision of 42 children and the management is concerned in giving them every advantage that will help to develop them into good and useful citizens. It seeks to remove anything that might handicap or retard their physical or mental development and in the case of present operations, the physicians have recognized in these particular children an opportunity to safeguard their future health and aid in their general physical development.

During this vacation season, the plans are to continue in a general clinical examination of the children of the Home, and to give dental and optical attention, etc., where needed.

The Home is entirely dependent upon free will contributions for its maintenance and support, but has a small endowment fund which provides for the salaries of its employees. The citizens who supervise and serve as its Board of Trustees are: W. E. Hardin, President; J. H. Paul, Treasurer; E. L. Robert, Secretary; Gene Howe, Dr. R. Thomsen, Guy Saunders, W. A. Barlow, Frank B. Donegan, and Mrs. John Copp. Rev. John Thorns is the Advisory Representative in Briscoe County. W. A. Zischang is the employed Superintendent and Mrs. Zischang is the Matron in charge. The Home serves the Panhandle and Plains area in caring for dependent, neglected, abandoned, orphaned, or children of destitute parents, regardless of religious faith, class or creed.

vice of Texas A and M. College, has warned Texas ranchmen.

The Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has forecast a severe infestation, probably worse than that of 1935, in many parts of the Southwest, especially Texas and Arizona.

The screwworm fly has started earlier than ever before. The infestation in extreme Southwest Texas had been held down by dry weather during the first part of the season, but the weather in other parts of the state has favored the rapid development of the insect.

The best way to protect livestock from screwworms, Reppert points out is to examine animals frequently so that wounds may be treated before they are seriously infested. Many ranchmen report that they have found it advisable to hold wounded or infested animals in small hospital traps, located on a high, open part of the range where flies are less abundant.

Reppert endorses the Bureau's recommendation for killing the maggots. The procedure is to treat the infested wound with 10 per cent commercial benzol. The benzol is then plugged with clean cotton saturated with benzol. Evidently the area around the plug with dehydrated pine-tar oil 1.065 specific gravity.

The advantage of the over most patented medicines in its low cost and in the fact that it does not cause shock to the tissue. It does not determine age but is highly inflammable and will evaporate readily. It is available in screwworm control maggots are killed not by the benzol but by the fumes.

Reppert also emphasizes the common pine-tar oil will burn the animal while dehydrated form will not.

WISE DAIRYMEN ADJUST AMOUNT OF GRAIN RATION TO TAKE EVERY POSSIBLE ADVANTAGE OF PASTURE

When dairy cows were still more or less in their "original" state, and gave only enough milk to feed their calves, pasture met their entire needs. Not much was expected of them so little feed or care was required.

"While not considered sufficient feed for the modern cow, grasses and good pasture still play an important part in our present-day plan of dairy feeding," says W. R. Arends of the Dairy Department of Purina Mills, in giving his recommendations for handling cows on pasture. "Nature has put important vitamins and health-giving materials into grasses and no dairyman can afford to overlook the advantages and benefits of good pasture."

Modern Cows Highly Bred

"The cow has come a long way since the time she gave only enough milk to raise her own calf. Man has taken the original dairy cow and, through breeding, management, and feeding, has developed her natural instinct to produce milk to a level where grasses alone cannot give her all the nourishment she needs for making milk and keeping up body condition. If forced to exist on a ration of various grasses such as her ancestors did the modern dairy cow with a 12,000-pound milk record bred into her would break down completely," Arends says.

Loss of Weight Costly

"At the Purina Experimental Farm, every advantage is taken of grass in season. Green grass, as every dairyman knows, stimulates a heavy flow of milk. But the bulk, palatability, and juicy freshness of green grass causes the heavy milking cow to over-work. This invariably leads to a falling off in flesh and milk flow later in the season," Arends points out. "Loss of weight means the dairyman must spend extra money in the fall to build her back to normal weight for winter production."

"Loss of weight on a grass diet is easy enough to understand," Arends explains, "because over stimulation takes more out of the cow than it puts back in. Additional feed along with pasture is an absolute necessity if cows are to come through the summer in healthy condition and give a full flow of milk through the cold months."

Pasture Must Be Supplemented

"Our experiments at the Purina Experimental Farm show the necessity of supplementing pasture to keep cows in good condition. It seems that little attention need be paid to milk production when cows are first turned out on grass. The chief concern is keeping up the herd's body weight. Feeds for supplementing pasture should be high in body building materials, very palatable, and bulky."

"On flush pasture the regular winter grain ration should be cut in half," Arends recommends. "Holsteins and Ayrshires should get about one pound of grain ration for every seven pounds of milk when pasture is good. Guernseys and Jerseys should be fed one pound of grain ration for every six pounds of milk."

Grasses Become Like Hay

"Chemical analysis of pasture samples shows that early season grasses contain more moisture, and nearly twice as much protein as those cut later in the season. Crude fiber content increases as the season advances, and there is more calcium present. These are the chemical causes of the milk stimulating properties of early spring pastures," says the Purina dairyman, "and explains why milking cows do well on half the usual amount of winter grain ration when first turned out. As the pasture season advances grasses become more like hay. Gradually the amount of grain ration should be increased until the herd is back on the regular winter feeding schedule."

Grain Increase Necessary

"Start working back on to the winter feeding schedule as soon as milk begins to fall off," Arends advises. "When pastures become burned and dried up the regular winter grain ration should be supplemented with one gallon of Bulky Las to each cow, morning and evening. This feed is palatable, laxative, and supplies the nutrients that dried-up pastures lack."

"Planning pasture programs to get increased grazing yields is a problem to which state experiment stations and county agents have given a great deal of attention. Dairymen should contact these dairy specialists and secure their help in building profitable pasture improvement programs."

WATCH FOR OUR DOLLAR BARGAIN OFFER

—Briscoe County News

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington. — Most congressmen and government officials who have studied the situation, and practically all bankers, will tell you privately that government ownership of the railroads is inevitable. The financial situation of the railroads grows worse by the month. More and more government money, via the RFC, is being poured into the doomed financial structures. Which merely means that they are tied over the immediate emergency, whatever it may be in each individual case, and therefore will have a harder row than ever to hoe from now on. For there will be interest, not to mention sinking fund, for the additional debt so kindly advanced by the government.

Politics being what it is, no one can think of any solution, not even President Roosevelt, who is more willing to be fooled by the railroads than to any other industry. Yet the apparent fate of the railroad companies is actually bad news for nearly everybody.

It is very bad for the stock and bondholders, of course. And in turn it is bad for the people with whom these investors have been spending their money, for obviously they will spend less when the "day" comes.

It is very bad for the treasuries, and therefore for the politicians and taxpayers of every state in the Union. For at present the railroads are paying staggering amounts of taxes to state, county and city governments.

It is very bad for the federal Treasury, for not only do the railroads pay a huge load of federal taxes direct to the Treasury, but their officers, high-ranking employees and security holders sweeten their own individual income taxes no little because of the fact that the railroads are privately owned.

Bad All Around

It is bad for the federal Treasury, and therefore every living person (for everyone contributes heavily to the federal Treasury, directly or indirectly, to an extent which very few realize) for another reason. Scarcely a single government official or member of congress believes that federal operation of the railroads will be as economical as private management. Hence the prospect is that when the day comes the railroads will quickly become a burden on the government.

Politics being what it is, no really drastic plan to avoid this approaching catastrophe seems likely of adoption. As a matter of fact, none is being proposed.

No man running for office, for example, would be likely to propose that the railroads be liberated from all regulation, to follow their own judgment or that of their individual officers, with a view to seeing if they could not work out their own salvation. On the contrary, there has been very little criticism of the interstate commerce commission for refusing recently to permit the railroads to increase certain rates, despite the fact that the I. C. C. made its decision not because it did not think the roads entitled to the additional money, but because it did not believe the proposed increases would result in additional earnings! Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman dissented violently from the right of the commission to substitute its own judgment for that of railroad managers, though personally he admitted he did not think the increases would provide more revenue.

Every traffic man, and most farmers, know that if roads were permitted to juggle rates as they pleased, they could often turn a pretty penny by cutting rates on perishable crops, providing they did not have to maintain the cut rates afterwards. But the feeling that this would be against public interest has prevented this ever being tried, though every store in the land can have a bargain Tuesday if it likes.

Problem for Farley

The problem confronting James A. Farley in Pennsylvania this summer and fall is plainly shown in the figures of the Democratic and Republican primaries. New Dealers, of course, are hoping that many of the voters in the Republican primary who cast their ballots for Gifford Pinchot will swing over to Charles Alvin Jones in the election.

There was no such bitterness against Jones at any stage of the campaign as was manifested against his running mate, Gov. George H. Earle, who is now the Democratic nominee for senator. In fact if John L. Lewis had not been so dictatorial, if he and Sen. Joseph P. Guffey had been willing to take a beating with a smile and accept half a loaf—they had their candidate for senator all selected—the whole story might now be very different.

Lewis, at least, could then have concentrated on Gifford Pinchot in the Republican primary. No one can tell what would have happened in that case, of course. With hindsight it would seem doubtful that the Lewis strength would have been enough to save Pinchot. But there are a good many shrewd Pennsylvania politicians who believe that the reason Pinchot was beaten so badly was that Lewis moved heaven and earth to get his Republican miners to change their affiliations so as to vote for Tom Kennedy in the Democratic primary, and obviously almost every vote so changed was a loss for Pinchot. Not only because of Lewis' friendship for Pinchot, but because Pinchot as governor made warm friends of the miners.

This may or may not be true, but it would not explain why Lewis made such a poor showing in the mining regions. The vote in these ran just as strongly against Kennedy as it did elsewhere.

Want to Beat Davis

The chief problem of the New Dealers, however, is to beat Puddler Jim Davis, and this looks like an uphill job indeed. For instance nearly 171,000 votes were piled up for former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti. Margiotti had denounced Governor Earle during the primary campaign, accusing him of taking money from the brewers.

It must be remembered that the total Republican vote for senator was about 8,000 in excess of the total Democratic vote for senator. This would be insignificant, normally, but it must be considered that most of the votes cast against Senator Davis were organization votes, which normally can be expected to swing to the winner on election day.

Out of the total Democratic votes in the senatorial race, however, S. Davis Wilson, mayor of Philadelphia, piled up about 328,000. During the campaign Wilson attacked Earle bitterly, although he had been a former ally, charging that Earle had borrowed money from a state contractor.

Conceivably something might be done which would bring Wilson into the Democratic camp. Conceivably Wilson may even be making speeches for Earle before election day. But the fight was so bitter that it is very difficult to imagine all of Wilson's supporters voting for Earle in November. Some of them may have believed the plain intimation of the man they were supporting that Earle's actions in borrowing this money were not ethical, to put it mildly.

Zero in Marching

There has been a tremendous lot of marching up the hill and down again since last month, when the opinion was ventured that "Follow the Leader" was no longer a political necessity for senators and representatives in voting on measures affecting business.

But the net result of all the marching is pretty nearly zero. Pennsylvania, where the New Deal lost not only its shirt, but its reputation for infallible political prediction, just about offsets Florida, where a strongly pro-New Deal senator triumphed in his primary over a New Deal critic seeking his toga.

A good many more cards will be played, in various states, before the picture is complete, and it would be dangerous now to predict that New Deal ideals will not be slavishly followed by a chastened congress after the primaries and the November election have recorded their mandates. But—present conviction in Washington is that the results will be mixed, with administration victories and defeats so counterbalancing that the net result will be, next session, that individual senators and representatives who want to be independent will be.

Regardless of what may happen to the Roosevelt prestige, however, it would seem next to impossible for John L. Lewis again to inspire the political fear in congressional hearts which has dwelt there for the last few years. By the same token William Green, and the American Federation of Labor, have regained the prestige and political power which they enjoyed until Lewis and his C. I. O. moved in on Roosevelt.

Political Loser

Important now, however, is the fact that the labor outfit which has been dominating the New Deal policies and appointments turns up as a political loser. Since the Pennsylvania primaries congress is paying more attention to William Green's attack on the national labor relations board.

Shrinking of the Lewis political menace in the minds of our national legislators has also resulted in many members of the house and senate paying more attention to the flood of protests from manufacturers and other employers of labor as to the high-handed, arbitrary and discouraging methods of the NLRB.

Now congress is being told very emphatically that the labor policy of the government is also a wet blanket on enterprise, and particularly on any contemplated expansion. In short that it is one of the big contributing causes of unemployment. Up to now it has not been a question of disbelieving this contention. But individual congressmen, with their eyes on the primaries and election this year, were timid about making any move which might bring a strongly organized group out against them in their districts or states.
