AGGIE BRIEFS By Finley R. White

If Sunday night's whizzer wasn't enough to satisfy anyone along that line may be they had better go up to Alaska. The little snow that came along with that hard freeze will serve to keep this struggling erve to keep this struggling wheat alive for a few more days. From the present prospects we should make about 40 bushels of wheat per acre next year. When our prospects are A-plus we us-ally turn out 6 or 7 bushels, but when they are zero, we double that amount. Now that our prospects zero minus, there's no telling nuch wheat we might make.

Over one hundred men are at work on the project recently set up to cut down the grade on the north slope, of the Tule Canyon, to make it more passable for loaded trucks. The grade will be cut to approximately seven percent slope. The grade as it has been is about 30 percent.

The men, working in two shifts, are now cutting down, and dynamiting the steep slope and bringing the dirt to the bottom where a grade or fill will be built, that in the highest place will be about 32 feet high.

The work is rather temporary employment. Men working on the project are those who have been employed on the Cap Rock job on Highway 86. It is thought that as soon as the State authorizes it work will go ahead on the Cap Rock and will extend the caliche base west four miles.

Panthers Hand Owls 7-0 De In Annual Grid Battle

With the Quitaque boys playing all the football and the Silverton boys doing all the watching, the Quitaque Panthers defeated the Silverton Owls Thursday afternoon 7-0 in one of the biggest upsets of the season.

With the wind to their backs the Panthers mixed an aerial and running attack to push over for a touchdown in the first four minutes and then hung grimly to a 7 point lead the remainder of the

First Quarter

The Panthers recovered a fumble on their own 47 and picked up a first on their own 31. A pass, Rhoderick to Powell, for 25 yards, placed the ball on the 6 yard line. On the next play Rhoderick crossed the line standing up for the lone score of the game. The try for extra point was good. Score: Quitaque 7; Silverton 0.

The Panthers chalked up another first down and passed incomplete from the Owls 30 as the quarter ended.

Second Quarter

Silverton got possession of the ball early in the second quarter but were forced to punt, Hank Brown got off the best punt of the game, 70 yards. The Owls got possession of the ball again on their own 25 after blocking a Quitaque punt. On plunges and end runs the Owls drove within 11 yards of a score but a fumble killed the scoring chance. The half ended with the Owls in possession of the ball on their own 46. Third Quarter

The half opened with Quitaque receiving the ball. The Owls forced them to punt. The Owls opened with a running attack that netted them two first downs but they bogged down after reaching the 17 yard line. The Owls got possession of the ball again before the end of the third quarter and traveled within 18 yards of pay dirt but they lacked that necessary punch that was needed to score.

Fourth Quarter The fourth quarter opened as a punting and passing duel with neither team making much of a showing.

With 55 second of time left, the Owls took possession of the ball on their own 24. A pass, Brown to-Rampley, was good for 30 yards. Another pass, Brown to Walker, picked up ten yards as the game ended, first and ten for the Owls on the Panthers 36 yard line.

Rail Reorganization Predicted Floyd Gibbons Following Denial of Wage Cut By Joseph W. La Bine-

COMMITTEEMEN LANDIS, STACY AND MILLIS A cut would be ineffective, detrimental. (See TRANSPORTATION).

Transportation

In the opinion of three experts, American railroads have no right to cut 15 per cent from pay checks of 930,000 employees because: (1) it would be a stop-gap measure at best, only reducing the standard of living at a time when business in general is coming back; (2) the railroads' financial problem is still of short term aspect, having been critical less than a year; (3) although railway wages have not fluctuated so badly as wages in other industries, they have not been advancing proportionately so fast as in other industries; (4) a flat 15 per cent wage cut would not be equitable, since smaller roads-which are in worse shape-would derive less benefit than the larger, more prosperous

This was the gist of a 40,000-word opinion handed down by President Roosevelt's emergency fact-finding commission after three weeks of deliberation. Board members: Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme court; Dean James M. Landis of Harvard law school, once chairman of the securities and exchange commission; Professor Harry A. Millis, University of Chicago economist and former member of the national labor relations board.

Though offering a well-considered opinion, the commission gave no help to sorely pressed railroads. Only tangible result is that some solution of America's entire rail prices and creating an unfriendly a program which the interstate commerce commission must approve, and which would probably decrease railroad labor employment; (2) agreement with labor for a temporary, smaller pay cut; (3) federal financial assistance, which would only pile higher the already high interest charges and would offer only temporary relief.

Reorganization is the most likely solution. Already pending before the I. C. C. when the fact-finding commission reported were proposals for such plans. In the Northwest, stockholders of Chicago & North Western railroad wanted merger with the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific line. In the Southwest, an I. C. C. examiner recommended reorganization of the Missouri Pacific and consolidation of all properties now operated as the Missouri Pacific system. In the deep South, the Gulf, Mobile & Northern line wanted merger with the Mobile & Ohio road.

Domestic

Opponents of the administration's foreign policy have long criticized Secretary of State Cordell Hull for censuring Japanese encroachment on U. S. affairs in the Orient, meanwhile allowing Mexico to expropriate U. S.-owned oil lands. Secretary Hull's answer has been that Mexico's problem may best be settled by arbitration, not through a hostile attitude that may destroy Western hemisphere peace. The latest Mexican step has been seizure of a headquarters building occupied by Standard Oil subsidiaries, an act which brought only feeble protest from U. S. Ambassador Josephus Daniels ("I made representations

"). But if the U. S. hopes to stalemate Fascism in the Western hemisphere by its kid-glove policy toward Mexico, it may be doomed to disappointment. Although President Lazaro Cardenas once said his country would sell oil only to democratic nations, he has just announced consummation of a contract to sell several million dollars' worth in Rome. This, marking the birth of friendly trade relations between Italy and Mexico, gives Fascism another wedge into the New

tion - which he denied - France would never again capitulate. But Premier Daladier's promise is not borne out in fact. At the Marseille convention of his Radical-Socialist party he outlawed communists from the government, plainly a move to curry favor with communist-hating Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini. Many observers believe this decision shows Premier Daladier is frantically grasping for a straw, since by repudiating the communist party he throws away a large part of his Popular Front support. Not only will the premier lose his next election, but France will probably break off her treaty with communistic Russia and thereby become isolated prey for Italy and Germany.

. Rumania's complete shift to Nazification marks another step in Germany's economic invasion of southeastern Europe. Acting under orders from King Carol, the Rumanian government has proclaimed 100 per cent totalitarian principles in the hope that Germany will respect its territorial integrity in Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's "drive to the east." Since Czechoslovakia and Hungary are already pro-Nazi, Germany's economic orbit is extending itself with little difficulty.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Off Kinsale Head"

HELLO EVERYBODY:

II If you go to see Patrick J. Hanley at his home at Richmond Hill, N. Y., he might show you an old life preserver that he acquired at sea, on the afternoon of Friday, May 7, 1915, off the Old Head of Kinsale on the coast of Ireland. And maybe Pat will even tell you the story of that tale. Pat wouldn't part with that old contraption of cork and canvas for half the wealth of the Indies, for it carried him safely through his life's greatest adventure. And how great a danger it was you will easily realize when I tell you that although Pat lived, eleven hundred and ninety-eight others lost their lives before it was over.

Maybe you've already got a hunch what this story is going to be about. Maybe that mention of Kinsale Head has struck a responsive chord in your memory. Then again, maybe it hasn't. It's been more than 20 years now, and few people remember that the Old Head of Kinsale was the scene of the greatest of marine disasters, the sinking of the Lusitania

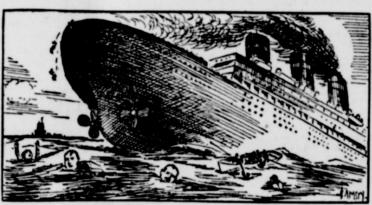

Was Passenger on the Lusitania.

Yes-Pat Hanley was on the Lusitania when a German submarine shot a torpedo into its innards and sent it plunging to the bottom. The big ship had successfully dodged the U-boats all the way across the Atlantic. She was racing down the home stretch, and the passengers had forgotten their fears and were beginning to have a good time when suddenly, at two o'clock in the afternoon there came a loud report.

Pat Hanley had shaved and come up on deck about 15 minutes before, and he saw it all, right from the first. A panic started immediately. People ran wildly about the ship searching for their friends and children. Then-in less than a minute-the ship began to list. "Right there," says Pat, "was where people started drowning. They got on the incline and started sliding. The deck rail was broken away to starboard and they fell wholesale into the water. An officer bellowed through a megaphone that everyone must get on a life preserver, but two-thirds of the passengers were in such a state of collapse that you couldn't get them to stand still to get a life preserver on them.'

Pat found a life preserver and started stripping off his outer clothing. woman ran into him, and down he went on the slippery deck. With difficulty he managed to keep from sliding overboard like many others had done. But he got to his feet again and began working his way aft.

Only five life-boats got clear of the ship with passengers. A sixth got fouled in the davits and the people in it were dumped into the water. "They fell like a load of sand," says Pat, "and I noticed that not one of them seemed to survive that upset. I saw two more boats hurriedly pushed off so that people in the water could cling to them. After that there was no chance to launch any more on either side as the ship was under water to the second deck on the starboard side.

Pat arrived safely at the stern of the ship and, with about 40 other men, made ready to jump. "We couldn't take a chance jumping from the side," he says, "for it looked as though the ship might turn over on top of us if we did. Already the water was full of bobbing heads. Suddenly a shower of water and soot shot up from the second and third funnels of the ship, drenching the after-deck and turning us all black as ink spots. The ship was going down steadily now, and we all realized that if we didn't jump soon the suction would carry us down when she went under. Overboard we went."

Fishing Trawler Came to Rescue.

By that time an Irish fishing trawler-the first craft to come to the rescue-was just arriving at the scene of disaster. Pat, held up by his life preserver, began swimming toward it. Says he: "It was a sailing vessel equipped with four big oars which the crew pulled like Trojans. Already they were picking people out of the water by the dozen. Lifeboats were rowing out to it, unloading their passengers and going back to pick up more. The small boats made several trips back and forth, but they only picked up those who showed signs of life. By the time we reached the trawler there were 500 others already on it.' The time Pat spent on that trawler was an adventure all in itself. The cockpit-the deck-the hold-all of them were literally jammed with people. Up on deck the passengers had to stand close together and hang onto one another, for they were packed right to the edge of the deck and there was no railing to keep them from going overboard. When the last hit of available space was occupied with the task of saving a human life, the little craft took in tow three lifeboats filled with more of the rescued, and started away from the scene.

Less Than 800 Were Saved.

Pat clung for his life to the man next to him. Now the waters were full of other craft steaming-rowing-sailing to the rescue. A large boat hove to and took the crowd off the trawler. While the trawler went back to pick up more survivors, the big boat, with Pat aboard it, steamed toward Queenstown harbor.

But the trawler didn't pick up another load like her first, for the records show that less than 800 people were saved out of a total of nearly 2.000. Pat says they met several patrol boats coming to the rescue, but they were too late to do anything but pick

The boat Pat was on landed him in Queenstown at about nine o'clock that night. The next morning he was asked to go down to the Cunard pier, which had been converted into a temporary morgue, to see if he could identify any of the poor souls who had lost their lives.

Pat still has the life preserver he wore when he jumped over the stern of the ill-fated Lusitania-a souvenir of a remarkable adventure. He'll get it out and show it to you and tell you the story of it when you drop over there of an evening. But for the sake of the people who don't know Pat well enough to be dropping in on him, I'm glad he's given us a chance to spin that yarn here in this column. Copyright .- WNU Service.

school paper, "The Owlet". The paper will provide an portunity for students to vei themselves. It is the expression of democratic principles and the bodiment of all that is fine and beautiful in the heart and mind of every student.

Most of the students are terested in writing and this pages may help some student to find his place in society instead of society finding him. Some student students may find a career as a result of their experiences. Many great writers have had their birth in a high school paper. Then, can anyone dispute the benefits of "The

Every living young thing is very energetic; this, because of the birth of nature by the hand of God. God built them that way and any effort to curb that energy is contrary to the laws of God and nature. You need not think of a young boy or girl to realize this, just observe any young animal timely block of the season en- and take a lesson in nature. Again, we should not curb that energycherish every ounce of it and lead it down the pathway of success. Therefore, it is the duty of every person to guide the energies of young people into the most desirable channels. Supervised work and play, sympathy and understanding are the keynotes. Curbing energy in young people is comparable to storing powder in a boiler room.

If you agree with this article. you will appreciate our efforts to have a school page in this paper.

Since announcing that we would sponsor a school paper, pracically every student is beaming with spirit. It is comparable to entrance of a perfumed queen into a room reeking with pungent odors; the odor of a dead spirit had been noticeable. Then, we say: "Forward, March!"

TREMBLING when frightened is caused by the spasmodic working of the nerve force which flows between brain and muscle. There is a series of repeated tiny spasms throughout the nerves of the body causing an attendant reaction in the muscles which results in what we call trembling. Intense anger, joy and certain nerve illnesses will have the same effect.

- ★ Greta Suits Garbo

- * Good, Hard Advice

By Virginia Vale -

DITY Greta Garbo! She has been criticized in the past for practically everything that she did, and when, on arriving in New York from Europe a short time ago, she did some of the things that she had been criticized for not doing, she promptly walked into more criticism.

People had jumped on her because she didn't go out more. So she went everywhere-to night clubs, theaters, restaurants. She walked down Fifth avenue and looked into windows. She had fun. And she dressed as she likes to dress-in a tailored suit, flat heeled shoes, a classic felt hat. She wore her hair in a long, straight bob. And what a storm of criticism broke

She ought to dress up, said her critics. She ought to wear the kind of clothes that the department stores want to sell to other women, said they, (only not in so many words!). And her hair! Here was all this controversy going on, about wearing the hair up instead of down, and all over town women were breaking down and having their hair done high - which delighted the hairdressers - and then along came Garbo with hers down, and uncurled! She ought to wear her hair high! She ought to wear clotheshorse clothes! She ought to be ashamed of herself!

And Garbo went right on wearing her hair down and wearing her comfortable old clothes, and looking beautiful and glamorous!

If you are in New York and go to the big movie houses on or near Broadway, the chances are that the other people in the audience will also be visitors from out of town. New Yorkers, most of whom used to live in smaller places, flock to their neighborhood movie houses, the kind they'd find in smaller cities, Much pleasanter!

"Sing in the shower if you are learning how to be a singer," says Felix Knight, who's become one of our most popular young tenors of "The tile walls of a bathroom lend resonance and size to the voice and this makes it easier to hear yourseif sing." Neighbors who live on the same road in the Connecticut countryside with Felix report that they always know when he's taking a shower, so apparently he practices what he preaches.

According to Billy House, the CBS comedian, if you want to get on the air and stay on, all you have to do is be funny. Just as simple as that! He's been at the business of amusing people for more than 25 yearscircus, vaudeville, musical comedy, motion picture and radio audiences have laughed at him. He admits that it's quite a trick to land on the air (complete with sponsor) in the first place, and that you have to work like a dog to keep the popularity that you've won, but he points out to various headliners to prove that his advice is good.

There's Fred Allen, who's had the same sponsor since 1934. So has Jack Benny. Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor-any number of them have climbed to success on a ladder of laughs. And Bob Burns' record shows how fast you can shinny up that ladder, after years of trying, if you can just find the formula that makes people chuckle. Two others who have made a fortune by being funny are George Burns and Gracie ODDS AND ENDS-It's a specially built microphone with an electric filter that makes "The Shadow's" laugh sound so creepy . . . When you see champagne in a movie it's really vine gar and bicarbonate of soda; if the actors drink it, it's soda pop . Horace Heidt is always looking for new voices, acts and faces; he's the only band leader who operates a complete stage show in connection with his band . . . If you'd like to have your favorite hymn sung on the air, crite to Joe Emerson of NBC's "Hymns of All the Churches" program; it's broadcast every Thursday.

The charm of his conversation cramped young Nash's carefree driving and made the journey an affair of fifteen minutes instead of six. But Hale was satisfied. The next instant he had closed and relocked the door behind him and was standing in the middle of the laboratory.

Craig's laboratory was a small but admirably fitted workshop. Its gleaming whiteness, its immaculate neatness, its shining glass shelves and bottles, above all the completeness of its equipment, surprised the

At right angles to the extra window was a long work-table, with a chair that could be adjusted to any angle of convenience. Another table with a porcelain top stood near some locked metal containers. These probably held the grewsome specimens Doctor Craig was able to procure from his hospital. A row of book-shelves filled one wall space. A white porcelain sink filled a corner. The desk table revealed a little heap of pen and ink drawings. One of these Hale promptly picked up with his pincers and put in an envelope he had brought with him.

Hale had no desire to look into the vats. He knew the sort of thing they contained. He opened the door to the room's one bookcase and made a rough inventory of its contents. Aside from the sketches, and the titles and book notes, his visit had not yielded very much. Nevertheless he was making rapid progress, and he knew it.

He returned to his room and for a few minutes stood before one of its windows, hands in his pockets, eyes Joung Kneeland, and he was on the sea, thinking out his procedure. The Kneeland group was still on the beach, but he hardly saw it. He finally turned toward his bathroom, with the intention of changing his travel-stained clothes and generally freshening up before luncheon. It was on the short jaunt across his bedroom that he had his second encounter with Daisy. This took place at about the point where he had seen her before. It was a more startling encounter, for now Daisy was no longer a beautiful, black, silky creature, weaving around his legs and purring up at him in friendship. Daisy would never weave around any legs again. Daisy was dead, and she had died in agony. Hale stared down at her. A rage out of all proportion to its cause surged up in him, almost blinding him by its strength. For an instant he hardly saw the pathetic thing at his feet. Then he bent and touched it. It had been dead me a lift?" Hale asked for many hours. He sat on the other man's body, gasping for breath. Simultaneously he released his grip of Craig's throat.

"That was a damned silly per formance," he gasped out when he could speak. He had expected another outburst, possibly another struggle. But Craig lay still, to an accompaniment of unpleasant sounds, as he tried to get air into his lungs. Hale took pity on him and said no more. He also moved from his victim's stomach to his legs, but watched him warily.

"Damn you, get off me," Craig brought out at last.

"With pleasure, when you promise that you won't start another rough-house." "All right," Craig muttered.

Contaminated Food

I have pointed out many times that in my opinion, a mother's foremost responsibility is to feed her children a diet that takes into account all the recent amazing discoveries of nutritional science. Only by so doing can she hope to straight bones, strong responsive muscles, a good circulation and sound healthy nerves.

But the parent who permits her offspring to eat with unwashed hands and thus take countless germs into his body with every mouthful of food is scarcely giving in the dialogue. He was handi- ing that food a chance to build the kind of body and brain every mother desires for her child. On the contrary, she is risking the danger of grave illness. For the micro-organisms which cause 92 out of every 100 deaths from communicable diseases enter or leave the body through the mouth or

Keeping Everlastingly at It

Most babies are kept clean by their mothers because mothers know that they cannot keep their babies well if they do not keep them clean. If the same careful policy were followed in later childhood, it is almost certain that as we sometimes there would be less illness among children.

Unfortunately, many mothers relax their vigilance the moment their child is ready for school. In some cases, they believe that the child has had sufficient training and can be relied upon; in other instances, they believe, or hope, that further training will be supplied by the school!

Mothers must increase, not decrease their vigilance. They must assume responsibility for the observance of all the habits that safeguard health. These include the daily bath; the daily change into clean clothing; the frequent washing of the hands, and always before eating; the twice-daily brushing of the teeth; regular elimination; regular hours for meals; and the necessary hours for outdoor play and for sleep.

What About the School?

Mothers must remember-and must emphasize to their children -that diseases may often be traced to unclean hands, and to
