Sun Down, Accidents Up

When the sun goes down, traffic accidents go up. More than 60 per cent of all fatal traffic accidents occur at night.

In the past seven years, night accidents have increased 60 per cent in rural districts, the report says, and only 17 per cent in cities.

Weekly News Analysis Sharp Foreign Policy Shifts Follow Rome Parley Collapse

By Joseph W. La Bine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

International

Why, they did not know, but from every nook and cranny of the world came statesmen bound for Geneva where under leaden skies opened the 104th session of the League of Nations.

When British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain went to Rome for consultation with Premier Benito Mussolini, he knew his political future hung in the balance.

When, after two days of conversations, Mr. Chamberlain left for home without an announcement, the world knew what had happened.

BUDAPEST

Almost unnoticed the day Mr. Chamberlain arrived in Rome was the announcement that Hungary had recognized Japan's puppet state of Manchukuo.

To strengthen the Rome-Berlin axis even more, Italian Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's foreign minister, is making a tour of the Balkans with special emphasis on Jugoslavia, Hungary and Poland.

HUNGARY'S CSAKY

He chose to follow dictators, slavia, Hungary and Poland. At the same time German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop left for Warsaw to talk with Polish Foreign Minister Joseph Beck.

BARCELONA

French sympathies in the Spanish civil war lie with Loyalists; Italy's sympathies—and support—lie with Rebels. This animosity has widened the Rome-Paris breach over Italian territorial demands in Tunisia, Corsica, Djibouti and other French points.

in settling Europe's problems until the insurgents won the Spanish war. As if to hasten this outcome, the "Chamberlain offensive" swept into Catalonia and drew near Barcelona.

VISCOUNT HALIFAX England will come to the rescue.

ment intervention to prevent a Rebel victory in Spain, arguing that such an outcome would threaten France's Mediterranean communications.

PARIS

There no longer remains doubt that the French-Italian argument will supply Europe with its next crisis. Prior to the Chamberlain-Mussolini conversations it looked like France might have to face this dictator threat alone.

Halifax and Bonnet obviously held their meeting in Geneva—just as the League sessions opened—to bolster League prestige and give some semblance of international support to the Anglo-French position.

TOKYO

When London heard that Chamberlain had abandoned his appeasement policy, the foreign office immediately emboldened itself like a youngster with a new slingshot.

For some time there have been hints of U. S.-British "parallel action" against Japan for violation of the 1922 nine-power pact which guaranteed China's "open door."

"His majesty's government is at a loss to understand how (former Japanese premier) Prince Kono's assurance that Japan seeks no territory and respects the sovereignty of China can be reconciled with the declared intention of the Japanese government to compel the Chinese people . . . to accept conditions involving surrender of their political, economic and cultural life to Japanese control."

SIGNIFICANCE

Behind the Mussolini-Chamberlain impasse which precipitated these events was the unspoken hand of U. S. disgust over London's vacillating foreign policy.

How Many of These Agencies Can We Get Along Without? Hence, the Rice survey calls attention to something much deeper than just the burden that government places on its citizens.

Federal Government So Huge Few Can Grasp Its Magnitude

Multiplicity of Bureaus and Agencies Demanding Reports of All Kinds Places Tremendous Burden on Business; Many Agencies Covering Same Lines.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Many times in these columns I have written expressions of fear about the size of this thing we call the federal government. It is so huge that few persons grasp the magnitude of the machinery.

As of July 1, 1938, the director of the census estimated there were 130,215,000 persons living within the continental United States.

During the year 1938, citizens and corporations within the United States were compelled by law or regulation or special orders to file with federal government agencies a total of 135,000,000 reports, information forms, questionnaires, statistical forms and other required statements.

That total is the official calculation by Chairman Stuart A. Rice, of the central statistical board, who had made a survey of all federal agencies upon orders of President Roosevelt. The President wanted to know whether there was a real basis for the thousands of complaints and editorial criticisms about the tremendous burden that has been placed upon every kind of business.

Then Began an Expansion Of the Federal Government

Shortly after the World war ended and the federal government got back to normal in the matter of size and the functions it was performing, there was a time when the populace raised loud shouts because their government was spending a billion dollars a year.

In this way, there began an expansion of the federal government that has carried on with an ever-accelerating pace until the New Deal took over, six years ago. Then, we really went to town in expanding the number of arms and legs and eyes and ears of the federal government.

Why So Many Different Agencies Doing Same Work? From the standpoint of effective administration—assuming that many of the government activities are proper—why is it necessary for the government to have 11 different agencies interested in housing?

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Analyzes the Food Values of Nuts Discusses Their Place in the Menu

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THERE is one food that can lay claim to being almost universal. It is eaten with relish by people in almost every quarter of the globe.

Nuts, of course, are seeds. But unlike most other seeds used for food by man, they grow in a hard shell that does not open naturally when ripe.

A Concentrated Food Nuts are a highly concentrated food and provide a large amount of food value in a small, convenient form.

There are many different kinds of nuts, and they vary in composition. Some of them contain large amounts of both protein and fat.

Comparison With Grains Because they are somewhat similar in nutritional character, nuts have been compared to various grains.

Too Much Burden Placed On Every Kind of Business Surely, Mr. Rice has corroborated the contention that government is placing too much of a burden on every kind of business by demanding and obtaining all of these reports—daily, weekly, monthly, annually.

Mineral and Vitamin Values The amount of mineral salts in nuts varies with the type. Generally speaking, however, nuts are considered a rich source of phosphorus and a good source of manganese and of copper and iron.

Why So Many Different Agencies Doing Same Work? From the standpoint of effective administration—assuming that many of the government activities are proper—why is it necessary for the government to have 11 different agencies interested in housing?

COMES THE bankers with an announcement of a change in banking hours. Shorter of course. And it's all right too. Anybody who can't get their money in the bank in five hours must have a lot of it. On the other hand what about a loan—that takes a lot of time, thought, and promoting in these days. I don't believe that it can be done in five hours.

H. ROY BROWN has a new tractor on display and I heard Doc Minyard and him talking it over. (Doc is the Alice of Allis Chalmers you know). Brown said that it was a late model and Doc said that it wasn't "Why," sez he, "Compared to our Allis Chalmers, that tractor is practically obsolete."—Well, maybe Doc is wrong—he often is.

publicity stunt. There's nothing like a little publicity to put an event over in a big way.

THE BRISCOE COUNTY News erred last week, believe it or not. We stated that Mrs. R. G. Alexander was working in the Sheriff's Office. And lo, it is the mister. I want to correct the item. Any time I can catch that bird working I want to give it the headlines.

JOE BLOCKER has been made manager of the Texas Utilities Company at Dimmitt, according to authentic word, if Lander's word can be such. Dimmitt doesn't know what she is in for. Fill up the old kerosene lamps out there folks. There's liable to be a drought on electric lights.

FROM THE DONLEY County Leader: "On page seven of this issue of the Leader appears the annual financial statement of Donley county. This report is made according to law for the information of the taxpayers, every one of whom is a partner in the county affairs.

I WONDER WHY our telephone company doesn't cooperate more with rural people to establish phones. I hear that there are calls very often for rural phones but that they have to build their own lines and that makes the cost awfully high. I believe that if our company was willing to do their part on stringing a wire or two, they'd double the number of subscribers in thirty days. It a punk situation when three towns (Turkey, Quitaque, and Silvertown) can list their customers on THREE pages of the phone book.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT—Ben Martin claims that he has a capon that lays eggs. Says that he has caught him (or her) on the nest several times and that the eggs are very long and very slim. . . . Maybe I don't know what a capon is but if he (or she) is what I think he (or she) is, that's news for Ripley.

LEON MARTIN IS busily engaged in preparing the south block for his spring garden. He has plowed deep and well. He has irrigated. He should reap a harvest. The City Council has leased him this street and they are going half and half on the crop. The city's share will go to pay the Mayor's salary and all over that will go into a fund for our grandchildren to use as the nucleus of a street paving fund.

YOU BOYS WHO have been dodging the taxes have something to scratch your heads about. That darn Yankee Tax Commissioner might make you pay off. In another year or two, when conditions are a little better, I'm going to start bragging about coming from Kansas, instead of just admitting it.

COTTON SURPLUS MUST BE REDUCED

United States Senator Tom Connally of Texas gave immediate attention on his arrival in Washington for the opening of Congress to a plan for reduction of the cotton surplus.

"The accumulation of the vast cotton surplus on account of government loans is a constant load that is keeping down the price of cotton," Senator Connally asserted, adding: "This surplus must be reduced. The government now has on hand more than eleven million bales of loan cotton and by August first will possibly have two additional million bales".

Continuing, Senator Connally said: "I propose that the government turn over to the Commodity Credit Corporation and the WPA 3 million bales of this cotton with direction that the same shall be manufactured into cotton mattresses and other cotton articles for home consumption and be distributed to families on relief and indigent persons who can make a showing as to need for same."

Stressing this feature of the plan, Senator Connally observed: Encourages Cotton Use

"Many persons who spend their lives raising cotton are in need of many simple home necessities, which could be supplied by the utilization of cotton. Of course, the WPA or other distributing agent would establish a standard as to applicants who may be worthy so as not to disturb the market now supplied by manufacturers and dealers. To give a mattress to one who is not able to purchase one would not in any wise interfere with such market. The tremendous cotton surplus must be reduced. The government already has on hand this cotton for which it has paid. We are spending many hundreds of millions for relief purpose. Why not spend some of this cotton and serve the double purpose of affording relief and also reduce the cotton surplus.

"The surplus must be reduced if we are to have any success with the cotton program," Senator Connally concluded.

Senator Connally's action was based on information and advice received from many sources while spending the last several months in Texas giving attention to various problems coming before Congress with especial reference to agriculture. He travelled over 14,000 miles, going into every section of the state.

464 MOTORISTS' LIVES SAVED IN TEXAS

State police closed their 1938 death book today and showed a gain of 23 percent in the encounter between man and vehicle.

As a result there are 464 motorists and pedestrians alive in Texas today who—had the previous year's record been continued—would be dead. The 1938 death count rose to 1,579 persons, but remained far under the 1937 all-time high mark of 2,433 dead.

Strict supervision over reckless and speeding drivers, educational work, engineering and public opinion performed the feat, said Homer Garrison, Jr., public safety director, who had ordered Texas highway patrolmen concentrated at points where death had successfully stalked most of its victims in 1937.
