"Looks like quite a fiesta," the Senator observed, halting beside Breck.

The party moved down and was at once engulfed by the fiesta. Eating had already begun, with Temple himself, red-faced, beaming behind his gray beard, master of ceremonies at the barbecue pit. He wielded a long knife over quarters of beef, raked potatoes from the coals, poured coffee from five-gallon pots, and all the while kept up a running banter with those who passed around him.

"Howdy, ranger folks!" he called, brandishing his knife, "grub's up; set in!"

Sutherland waved to him. Irene nodded, though her eyes were sweeping over the throng. Breck, too, scanned the faces, looking for Louise. Presently he saw her sitting on a log near her cabin, a cowboy on either side and two standing in front. All were thoroughly enjoying themselves and the sight brought a sudden stab of jealousy. But Breck's duty was with the Senator, and so while Cook rode off with the horses, he found places where they might sit, then, with the Senator, began to bring food.

Irene shrieked at the slabs of meat he brought. "My dear, a whole cow! Please give me just the leg."

As men passed with steaks in their hands, or gnawing a roasted rib, she stared in amazement. "I never saw anything like it!"

Friendships started easily. In time the Senator had launched an argument with a storekeeper from Lone Tree, and Mrs. Sutherland and Irene had found another party of tourists. Immediately Breck took advantage of that to go on a quest of his own. But in crossing the grounds he came upon J. G. Jackson and some of the cowboys he had not seen since the fight on Black Mountain. And then by the time he could get away, the riding had started.

A gun-shot drew men swarming to the corral fence. Inside, horses were being roped and saddled. He saw Louise come from her cabin and vanish through the gate.

He stood watching from a distance, his eyes running over lines of men upon the fence and others lounging back in the trees, and it came to him that there was not a Tillson among them. Nor had Sierra appeared yet.

He stood watching from a distance, his eyes running over lines of men upon the fence and others lounging back in the trees, and it came to him that there was not a Tillson among them. Nor had Sierra appeared yet.

The ranger was still there, having a sociable bite with Temple. Breck motioned to him. Cook approached.

"What is it, young fellow?"

"What about Slim?"

"Ought to be here any minute. He's late, but might have been held in town for some reason."

Breck nodded. "And the Tillsons?"

Cook scowled. "That's different. I was asking Tom if he'd seen 'em. They haven't been around, and I can't figure it out."

"You don't think it looks bad for Sierra?"

"No, not that. They're up to some other kind of a deal."

"Yes, and it's going to be from the bottom of the stack!" Breck asserted. "Anything you want me to do?"

"Just go on with the show, young fellow."

But Breck lost interest in the show as the afternoon passed and Sierra did not appear. Cook was right, Slim could take care of himself, and they could do no better than wait; yet inaction became unbearable. Breck watched the rodeo with sightless eyes, knowing vaguely that wild horses were being ridden and men thrown, but his thoughts could not be centered there.

At dusk he sought Cook again, having worked himself into a fine turbulence.

The ranger checked him with a look. "Unstring yourself," he said. "No need to worry about Sierra, and you're missing a lot of fun around here. God knows you may need it. Have you seen Lou?"

He had not.

Cook grinned. "There's going to be a dance, you know."

Relieved by the old ranger's unperturbed manner, Breck went at once in search of Louise. Temple said she was in her cabin, fixing up. Breck knocked on the door.

"Just a minute," she called out; then womanlike took half an hour. When she appeared, she had changed into a dress of something pink, and, as once before, he felt he was gazing at a new girl, almost a stranger.

"Do you see a ghost?" she teased.

"No; an angel."

"Now, now!"

Breck smiled and took her hand. "You're real enough. I've come to fill my dance card. Every other number, Louise."

"What?"

"I mean it; I'm that selfish. Will you save them?"

She hesitated. "You don't want every other dance with me. That wouldn't be fair—to your guest."

"I think my guest understands," Louise shook her head. "No; I can't promise you."

"Then the first and third," he demanded. "We can see about the rest later."

A fire of logs in a clearing beyond the cabins lighted the whole camp, bringing fences, tree trunks, people into red relief against the blackness outside. Three cowboys with a saxophone, a fiddle, and guitar marched toward the fire and sat on stumps nearby. Men and girls surged onto a square of hard-packed ground and, with partners chosen, waited for the music to begin.

Breck turned, laughing, as he drew Louise to him. At the same moment he saw Irene watching from a distance. A cowboy stood at her side. She held back a minute, looking across, then stiffly took his arm.

The music was all but lost in the shuffling and babble of voices. Yet the guitar strummed out its rhythm, and there was plenty of space about the blazing logs. Breck found himself moving with Louise as if in some firelight promenade.

They danced in silence. Tonight there was that sweet, yielding quality about Louise which made conversation needless. She seemed content held close in his arms as they slowly circled. Breck felt a quick, new thrill sweeping his thoughts clear of all troubles.

The music stopped. Louise drew away. Breck came back to reality at the sound of his own voice. "That was an awfully short dance."

She smiled up in complete understanding. "Wasn't it, though?"

The second began at once and a jovial-faced cowhand from Jackson's outfit rushed up to claim her. "Remember," Breck called in parting, "we're next again."

He strode away to where he had last seen Irene, wondering how she would meet him, being prepared for petulance, or disdain, or even flat cutting.

Yet she turned from her first partner with a gay laugh, sent the boy off grinning and held out her two hands.

"Gordon; isn't this wild! Don't you adore it? I'm having simply a grand time!" She slipped into his arms readily. "Don't let's miss anything!"

Surprised, though concealing it, Breck tried to enter her talkative mood. How different from the last dance where nothing need be said. He made conversation to continue Irene's frivolous banter.

She closed her eyes dreamily and when they passed Louise the first time was apparently unaware of it. Then other couples swept about them and for several minutes they were among strangers.

Irene clung close to him. Once she looked into his face, half explaining. "The ground is getting rough."

When Louise again approached from beyond the fire, Breck unconsciously moved from Irene's grasp. She glanced up. "Is the dance ended, Gordon?" She was tall, and now, tilting her head, brought her lips almost to his.

"No," he answered, "but . . ."

Swiftly she silenced him with a kiss, long, warm, full upon his mouth.

He threw his head back, halting. Cowhands grinned. Louise, passing near his shoulder, stared once and turned away.

He pushed out to the throng's edge, and releasing Irene, save for his hand clenched about one wrist, he whirled her savagely into the shadows of the pines. Fury choked him. Words burst uncontrolled.

"That was cheap, Irene! Cheapens me and makes you low in the eyes of everyone here! Not a girl out there would do it. Not like that!"

Irene faced him defiantly. "Oh good Lord! Since when have you turned Puritan? Of course you have never kissed at a dance before!"

"These people are different," Breck flared. "They take things in a different way. And you knew it."

Breck stared at her. "We know each other pretty well, Irene. But I never thought you would try to make me a fool among my friends."

"No, Gordon, someone else has done that." Her hand reached toward him.

He avoided it. "So you're saving me?"

Irene shrugged. "Thanks," Breck finished. "You might have taken a better time and place."

"Run along!" Irene retorted, with head up, lips in a sarcastic smile.

Breck pushed her into the shadows. Then he faced young Tillson. "Art," he snapped, "you're drunk. Put away that gun and get out of here!"

"Wha-a-a-?" Art leered in mock wonder, leaning far over until his face came close to Breck's. "You tellin' me to get out? So's you can go back to the dance? Nice, all right. You with two women—an' me with none. I'm nothin' but a mountain fool—that it?"

Suddenly his mood changed. His face turned to that of a fiend, set with a cold, bloodless look. Breck heard the gun's hammer click; then a gasp of terror from behind him. "I'm going to kill you!" The words gritted out from clenched teeth. The gun moved.

CHAPTER XXII

If Breck had not seen the flash, he would have thought the report came from Tillson's pistol. But the flare was from one side. Then he saw Art grip his saddle horn with both hands and slump forward.

"Grab that horse!"

Breck leaped, obeying the voice. He drew the animal down. Art was falling. Then it was Sierra Slim's long arms that reached up, supporting him before he struck the ground.

"Mighty close, pardner," the slow voice drawled. "You shouldn't a come out like this."

"Slim! Where . . . ?"

"Can't say now. Here, help me pack him."

Louise ran from the shadows. "Take him to Dad's cabin," she cried. "Quick!"

With Art lying unconscious between them, Breck and Sierra turned into the back trail. The gun-shot had either gone unheard or was accepted without interest by the dance crowd, for no one had moved from the clearing. But before the party reached Temple's cabin, Cook stepped from a fringe of trees.

"What's up?" he began, then his eyes fell upon the form they carried, and he strode ahead with no further question. As soon as they had Tillson on a bunk, he closed the door, saying, "No need to have anyone find out if we can help it."

His thick brown fingers went with unexpected skill over the boy's body, stripping off his shirt, exposing a gash through his right arm and across his chest. Abruptly he turned to Louise. "Go get Joe Scott. He's a horse doctor, but he'll do."

The girl ran out. Breck poured a basin of water and gave it to Cook. Behind him, Sierra rolled a cigarette and looked on unperturbed.

"I been following Art since afternoon," he offered. "Found him bustin' around up on the ridge, ridin' like he was loco. He'd come down here, sit lookin' on for awhile, then beat that poor critter of his back up the slope. Drunk, sure. Then about dark I saw him start spottin' you, pardner. Maybe you've got an idea what bit him."

Tommy Also Discovered Appeasement Is Difficult

Tommy Jones came home from school with tousled hair, rumpled clothes and a black eye.

"What have you been up to?" his mother demanded.

"I've been fighting Johnny Briggs," Tommy confessed.

"Well, take him this cake and make friends."

Tommy did so, but in the afternoon he came home with another black eye.

"Good gracious!" his mother exclaimed. "What on earth has happened now?"

"He did it again," Tommy said, sadly. "And he wants more cake tomorrow—or else!"

COOKERY, YESTERDAY AND TODAY

By Ruth J. Cooper

meat roast of yesterday was quite dry and tasteless. That day is juicy, tasty and has more slices than the other. It is less trouble to prepare, superior flavor, and besides further, saves time and fuel bargain. Yes, today's roasting methods are truly revolution-continued too long, the roast becomes dry and tasteless. The change in pan styles is significant. Yesterday the pan was of the double variety and quite expensive. Today the pan is shallow and has no lid. It is inexpensive and often does double duty, sharing the honors with biscuits. Formerly the roast was placed in the roaster, enough water added to start the steam and often roast frequently basted until done. This method was not roasting in the true sense of the term. Today the roast is placed in the shallow roaster, fat side up. This roast is not basted as the melting fat does its own basting much more effectively.

roast of yesterday was salted overnight, so as to be "salty." It was then rolled in temperature either in a hot oven or over flame. This was thought to retain the juices. Today, we know that juices do not penetrate very well they do draw out the meat. It makes very little difference when the roast is salted, so it is usually salted at the beginning and not to forget it. This may be some of the juices but into the gravy so this is immaterial. This modern method is not floured because the meat is more liable to burn and stick. If a rich, brown gravy is desired, it is a matter to brown the flour in a hot oven.

Meat thermometers are available at household furnishing and hardware stores. They are not essential but do take the guess work out of roasting. Insert the thermometer bulb in the center of the meat muscle, being careful not to touch bone nor fat; roast the meat until the thermometer registers the required internal temperature—rare, medium or well-done. This is approximately thirty minutes per pound for a well-done roast. While longer cooking time must be allowed for this low temperature or roasting, superior results are assured. Regardless of type of stove or fuel, lower oven temperatures produce tastier roasts.

ASPHALT SPREADER BURST ON JOB THURSDAY NIGHT

Fire almost completely destroyed the asphalt spreader while at work two miles east of town last Thursday night. No explanation was found for the fire as the tank burst into flames when the asphalt was turned on the road. Silvertown firemen made a run out to the truck but no alarm was turned in until the fire was well under way. The run was made out of courtesy as the boys are not expected to make runs out of the city limits.

CHAMPION TIRES

FIRESTONE WINS 20th Consecutive Victory In Indianapolis 500-Mile Race

WILBUR SHAW, the 1939 winner

On May 30th, Wilbur Shaw drove to his second victory in the 500-mile Indianapolis Race on Firestone Champion Tires at an average speed of 115.03 miles an hour. Champion race drivers, whose lives and chances of victory depend on tire safety, know tire construction. That is why they select and buy Firestone Tires for their racing cars.

Never before in all the history of the motor car have tires been put to such a torturous test. And never before has any tire so firmly established itself as a Champion in construction and performance, as well as in name. Here is dramatic proof of the extra strength which the revolutionary new Safety-Lock cord body provides in Firestone Champion Tires—of the extra protection against blowouts assured by the new and advanced Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process—of the extra mileage resulting from the tougher, wear-resisting rubber compounds in the sensational new Gear-Grip tread.

No longer can there be any question of which tire is safest. One tire—and only one—provides these exclusive safety construction features. One tire—and only one—has been on the winning cars at Indianapolis for 20 consecutive years. Motor car manufacturers enthusiastically adopted the Firestone Champion Tire for their 1939 models. Order your new car equipped with this amazing tire. Or drive in and let us equip your present car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires, the one tire—and only one that is safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

ROY W. HAHN
Editor and Publisher

James L. Allred Sports Editor

In the dust of defeat, as well as in the laurels of victory, there is glory to be found, if one has done his best.

THE DROUTH IS broken. Now all we need is a lot more rain, and a big feed crop. It looks like today (Thursday) that more may be forthcoming. (This is not a prediction.)

THE NEXT BIGGEST item of the week is that Durward Brown is now a father. Having served the usual term of apprenticeship, he was officially initiated into the Union of American Fathers last Thursday evening, June 15, when his wife presented him with a baby girl. He was issued his Union card by Dr. O. T. Bundy, and he is now entitled to all the special privileges of a father, including the right to "rock, walk, and change."

THE HAHN FAMILY breaks into the limelight again this week with another new tooth. The new and unusual thing about it is that it belongs to the Missus. I thought that she was acting a little more kiddish than the rest of us, so I got her real sore (when they get sore enough, you know, they snap at you) and when she snapped extra big I looked, and sure enough there it was... A brand new tooth looming up on the back end of her jaw... and the law of averages is a wonderful thing... I'm going to Tullia right away and have one jerked.

HERE'S SOMETHING... maybe you should be in Hollywood. Next Wednesday and Thursday the Palace Theatre is showing in addition to the regular show "Home Town Movies". Real moving pictures of Silverton folks that will be snapped at random between now and then. The old boys that are taking the pictures are pretty good at the business and you better be a good boy the rest of the week or you may get shown up on the screen. Anyway there'll be plenty of fun.

AND WHILE I'M on the movie subject, are you still looking for your names in the ads? There are 20 tickets hidden in the ads each week, so be sure to use them. They are good only until the next issue of the paper too.

YOURS TRULY REALLY got the "big britches put to him" one day last week. I walked in the Wood Drug and started to kid that pretty blond (Burleson, I think her name is). Sez I, "Hi beautiful Burleson..." sez she, "Hi glamour pants"... and me with a brand new pair of slacks on. I was squelched. I've thrown the pants away. I've quit kidding women, I'm through, washed up, a has-been, you might say, and now grudgingly admit it. Only, please don't call me glamour pants again.

IRVIN ALLEN IS a typical dry land farmer and is pretty mixed up down at Dallas. He said that they had been having too much rain there and all the natives were wishing it would stop. And Irvin said, "Everytime it started to rain it made me feel so good, and I just couldn't help it."

IRA SHAFFER IS my nomination for "born thirty years too soon." I caught him buying a horse collar at Brown's the other day.

And it had been so long since H. Roy had sold anything but tractor parts that he asked if it was for a John Deere.

ADD THIS TO your stories about the "meanest man"... "He was so mean that they had to hire his pall bearers."

I'VE UNCROSSED my fingers now, and the street work will start in about a week. And when they start things will be in a mess for a few days so far. Let's cooperate with Mr. Bradshaw for once, and stay out of the places he tells us to, and drive in the ones we are supposed to.

I GUESS YOU'VE heard haven't you, what an overbearing woman the Quint's mother is !!!(???)$:??*!!

I HAD A BUNCH of smart cracks to spring on the Commissioners Court this week for staying in session for so long. But I won't. My taxes are too darn high anyway, so I'll wait and do my kidding somewhere farther away from my pocketbook. I do think though that they are patterning after the Legislature. I even think that Coffee is beginning to look like W. Lee O'Daniel, and I know L. E. Graham looks like Clint Small.

tainty," pretending that they pay no taxes because they own no property and pay no income tax.

Actually, though, about the only individuals who have escaped that second "certainty" are those who have run afoul of the first—death. And it seems strange indeed that, in the face of all facts to the contrary, any American is able to deceive himself into thinking he avoids taxes, for everywhere the individual citizen goes, an invisible tax collector is as close on his heels as his own shadow. In fact, out of every dollar gathered in by government, almost 60 cents is in the form of hidden taxes, mainly paid by people with small incomes.

Mr. Average Citizen pays the money out a few cents at a time, as an added charge on virtually everything he buys, seldom realizing how rapidly the total mounts up into dollars and keeps him from buying more of the good things of life that he would like to.

Since taxes are mostly invisible today, it is hard to make them a burning issue in public affairs. But with their burden constantly mounting, the average American is beginning to reach the stage where he wishes devoutly that not only would the collector become a little more "invisible," but some of the taxes themselves would also "do the vanishing act."

HOW TO SAVE A LIFE

"No elaborate equipment is needed to save a life from drowning," is the opinion of State Health Department officials. "In fact, actual harm has been done by the misuse of so-called lung motors. Modern resuscitation apparatus has been perfected so that oxygen and carbon dioxide can be used without inflicting more damage to cases of asphyxiation and drowning. It is tragic enough to have a drowning accident, but it is far more tragic if no one present at the time knows how to save a life by artificial respiration.

"The prompt application of artificial respiration is of primary importance, and for this purpose the prone pressure method is the easiest, simplest and most effective. This should begin at once and continue rhythmically until natural breathing is established—"

this may take four or more hours. Procedure:

First: Kneel, and straddle the patient below the hips placing hands on small of the back with fingers over the lowest ribs, tips of fingers just out of sight.

Second: With arms straight, while counting one, two, swing forward bearing weight on body firmly but not violently.

Third: Swing backward while counting one, straightening up and thus relieving pressure—this allows air to be drawn into the lungs.

Fourth: Rest in this position for two counts.

Fifth: Repeat these movements rhythmically, forward and backward, without interruption, about twelve to fifteen a minute, until natural breathing is restored.

Sixth: Meanwhile, if assistance is at hand, a physician should be sent for, the patient's tight clothing should be loosened at neck, chest, waist and he should be kept warm.

The patient should not be moved until he is breathing normally and then should not be allowed to get up but should be carried in a lying position to a place where he can be kept warm and receive medical attention.

IT'S STEADY COLD that makes HUMIDITY SAFE!

Protect your foods with the new TRUE-TEMP Cold Control
Only Westinghouse has it!

Cold alone is not enough to keep all foods at their best. Humidity also is needed—especially for meats, fresh fruits and vegetables. But, with humidity, it is more important than ever that you HOLD the right degree of cold in your refrigerator—otherwise mold and bacteria may form rapidly in the moisture laden air.

With the new TRUE-TEMP Cold Control, Westinghouse protects you against the hazard of food temperature fluctuations. It holds temperatures CONSTANT in all parts of the refrigerator, makes possible the new Food Protection "QUIN-TEMP-LETS"—5 zones of cold providing complete protection for all your foods. SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PAUL REVIEWS HIS LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Philippians 1:12-14, 21-24; 3:12-14; II Timothy 4:7, 8.

GOLDEN TEXT—I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.—II Timothy 4:7.

Self-examination may be a most profitable experience if carried out in the right spirit and for a good purpose. It may be very humbling to look at one's experiences and accomplishments in honest appraisal, but the very humility which is thus brought about may be the first step toward better things and may prove to be a real means of blessing.

Paul, whose life we have been studying together for the last three months, made a review of his own life and experience in various places in his epistles. We cannot study them all, but in the brief portions before us we find that the apostle had laid hold of those certainties without which life is largely meaningless and useless. He had found victory over both himself and his circumstances. He was perfectly clear about his eternal destiny. He had a goal toward which his life was directed in earnest endeavor, and he had in view the reward which was to be his when he met his God. What an excellent opportunity we have to bring out the truth as related to ourselves on this coming Lord's Day.

I. Living Above Circumstances (Phil. 1:12-14). Paul had been imprisoned for the gospel's sake. Did that stop him? No, for he made the very guards who were assigned to watch him at his house the objects of his ministry and they, in turn, became missionaries of the cross. He sought to win each one as he took his designated period of guard service and then sent him out as a testimony to "the whole Praetorian guard and to all the rest" (v. 13, R. V.). What a consistent and glowing Christian life Paul must have lived day by day.

Not only were some of his Christian brethren encouraged by his example to preach the gospel, but we note in verse 15 that others, taking advantage of the fact that Paul was in prison, went out to preach just to show that they were as good as he, making their very preaching an expression of their envy of his popularity. Paul showed victory over circumstances by thanking God that the gospel was preached, even though it was done in a wrong spirit.

II. Facing Eternity With Joy (Phil. 1:21, 24). To Paul, departure from this life would mean his entering into perfect fellowship with Christ and unlimited service for Him. He therefore had a strong desire to depart and to be with the Lord. He would not, however, turn away from his present privilege and duty. If it was God's will that he should abide in the flesh, he purposed that it should be literally true of him that to live is Christ. If that be true in a man's life, then it must necessarily follow that to die is gain. The reason men fear death is that in place of saying "to live is Christ," they say "to live is money," "position," "pleasure," or even "sin."

III. Pressing Toward the Goal (Phil. 3:12-14). These are the words of the man who possibly was the greatest Christian and Christian worker of all time. We are satisfied with himself? No, the Spirit of Christ in him and the vision of the goal which he had not yet attained made him press on.

The spiritually minded Christian has no word of commendation for past success, he gives Christ the glory. He does not permit past failures to hold him back, for they have been put under the blood. He is not content merely to hold his own, for he knows that to stand still is to go back. Christian friends, let us by God's blessing and grace take a forward step today, and tomorrow, and the day after, and tomorrow, and the day after, toward the goal of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Scripture speaks frequently of the reward which shall come to the faithful Christian at the close of a life of holiness and service for Christ. It is no doubt commendable that Christians do not often speak of their reward, for it should be true of every servant of Christ that the love of Christ should constrain him. On the other hand, it is important that we keep before us the fact that at the end of the road there is recognition by "the Lord, the righteous Judge," and that we may properly look forward to the receiving of the crown of righteousness from His hand. The life of the Christian has glorious meaning from beginning to end, yes, and on through all eternity!

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Zealous Czechs Plan Rebellion Against German Domination; Nazis Puzzle Combat Strategy

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA: Rebellion

Last March Adolf Hitler marched into Prague while stolid Czechs lined the streets and booted hatefully. Unnoticed were thousands of Bohemians and Moravians who slipped silently across the borders.

Another significant feature: The construction industry, which has suffered severely since 1929, showed very little decline in 1938, indicating that U. S. housing requirements have reached so critical a stage that not even recession can stop new building.

AGRICULTURE: New Uses

One major reason for today's U. S. crop surpluses was the World War. Then, and before, both the agriculture department and farmers bent their energies to establishing a production level that would accommodate an export market.

Star Dust

- A Second Abe Lincoln
Kenny Wins Protesters
Bob Burns' Make-Ready

By Virginia Vale

EVEN after the many portrayals of Abraham Lincoln that we have had on stage and screen, Henry Fonda has given us, in "Young Mr. Lincoln," one that is different.

But he gives such a superb performance that he seems really to be Lincoln as a young man; he is shrewd and tender and kind, not yet marked for greatness and for tragedy.

There are other excellent performances in the picture, notably those contributed by Alice Brady, Donald Meek and Richard Cromwell. Put "Young Mr. Lincoln" high on your list of the pictures that you must be sure to see.

Kenny Baker, of radio fame, has won new laurels for himself on the screen. When it was announced that he would play "Nanki Poo" in the screen version of "The Mikado" there were loud protests from the dyed-in-the-wool Gilbert and Sullivan fans.

What, they demanded, would a crooner do with the role? He'd be horrible, they declared, in contrast with Martyne Green, Sydney Granville, and the other members of the celebrated O'Flynn Cartier Opera company, who have concentrated for years on Gilbert and Sullivan products.

Now they're acclaiming him. It's no surprise to the rest of the cast. After he sang his first selection, "Wandering Minstrel," they realized how good he was. Elizabeth Bergner, who was working on a neighboring set, behind screens, promptly gave orders that the screens were to come down and work on her set was to stop every time that Baker sang. And those who protested that he was a crooner now agree with Victor Schertzinger, the director who insisted on having Baker, that the lad's not a crooner at all, but a lyric tenor.

David Niven may have lost out in private life, when Merle Oberon became Mrs. Alexander Korda, but he's doing all right in his professional career. Assigned to appear in "Whose Wife?" opposite Loretta Young, it's stated by the producers that he has the most important characterization of his screen career. "Whose Wife?" is an original screen play by Gene Towne and Graham Baker, and Tay Garnett will direct it—with those three top-notchers involved it's got to be good.

Bob Burns has a method all his own for preparing his material for those Thursday night broadcasts. He doesn't have a word ready at rehearsal time—just runs through the "spots" with the guest stars and Bing Crosby and rehearses his bazooka solo.

After the rehearsal he goes to a dressing room, armed with his pipe and tobacco pouch. Two hours later he's ready. His script consists of a few key words jotted down on the back of an envelope or a scrap of paper—things like "Aunt Boo's mousetrap" or "Snazzy's automobile," to remind him of what he wants to say. Probably that's the reason for at least part of the informality of that program—something that a great many people are striving to inject into other broadcasts, without marked success so far.

ODDS AND ENDS—In "The Sun Never Sets" Douglas Fairbanks Jr. shows an astonishing resemblance to Clark Gable. . . . John Garfield objected so strenuously to making any more prison pictures that George Raft will replace him in "20,000 Years in Sing Sing". . . . Joan Crawford hasn't given up the idea of doing a musical given up the idea of doing a musical given up the idea of doing a musical.

HOW TO SEW by Ruth Wyeth Spears

The Plumber's Hack Saw Did This Trick.

BETSY was all agog to have a bed with no foot piece and a padded head to match her spread. Ingenuity would have to substitute for money, and she was seriously considering this and that when the plumber was called to fix a leaky pipe.

As a tiny tot Betsy always said, "Let me watch," when workmen were coming and at 16 she hadn't grown up much. The plumber took a fine saw out of his tool bag and sawed a pipe in two just as if it were wood. Right then something clicked for Betsy. That old iron bed in the attic! It could be cut down. It was cut down, as shown in the sketch.

The top of this bed is padded with cotton basted to muslin. Betsy used an old comforter for padding. Her mind seems to jump with the greatest of ease from water pipes to iron beds and from padding to old comforters.

KOOL-AID CREAM SHERBET

(Made in Mechanical Refrigerator)

- 1 package Kool-Aid, 2 cups milk any flavor 1 cup heavy cream 1 cup sugar

1—Dissolve Kool-Aid and sugar in milk; turn into freezing tray and freeze 3/4 to 1 hour (until slushy).

2—Whip cream (well chilled) until stiff.

3—Add partly frozen Kool-Aid mixture to whipped cream and whip just enough to mix well, but keep cold as possible.

4—Return quickly to freezing tray and freeze at coldest point. Requires no more stirring. When frozen, set control back to normal. Makes over one quart. If desired lighter, beat 2 egg whites fluffy with 2 tablespoons sugar and fold into above mixture before final freezing.—Adv.

WEATHER BILIOUSNESS

Did you notice that in hot weather digestion and elimination become torpid or lazy? Stomach, forms gas, causes heartburn, and a feeling of nausea and irritability. Your bowels are constipated, your bowels are sluggish or insufficient.

Some of the symptoms are so-called "lurid" or "bilious" in hot climates. It is calomel, or better still, the maulous calomel tablets that make calomel a pleasure.

Calomel tablets combined with the effects of Calomel, helping to expel the sour, stagnant acid washing it out of the system or Calomel tablets at bedtime with a glass of water—that's your system feeling refreshed, your head is clear and your spirit bright, and you are in the mood for anything you wish.

Calomel tablets are sold only in packages of Calomel tablets. Calomel tablets are sold only in packages of Calomel tablets. Calomel tablets are sold only in packages of Calomel tablets.

DOMESTIC: Income President Roosevelt's goal for total U. S. income is $80,000,000,000 a year, which critics say would not necessarily guarantee prosperity.

Best explanation of the drop, said Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins, was declining prices, coupled with reduced volume of production. More significant, however, were 1938's results of 1937's capital-labor battle, during which John Lewis' C. I. O. squeezed out higher salaries and expanded unionism. Net result: Labor gained and capital lost.

One index was the fact that compensation to employees for 1938 was off only 7 per cent from the previous year, while dividend payments to stockholders in corporations dropped approximately one-third—from the $5,400,000,000 level of 1937. An even better index, however, was that income distribution in wages set a new high mark of 7.3 per cent in 1938.

Wheat Insurance
All producers who have their wheat insured MUST present their elevator receipts to this office and if any wheat is stored on the farm, it must be stored where it can be measured. As soon as you have completed harvest, make your report to the county office and the wheat insurance supervisor will check and if it is found that you have not made your insured production, we will submit claims at once.

All wheat farmers, including those who do not have insurance as well as those who do have insurance, should keep their elevator receipts and make a report to this office of the bushels produced on the farm as soon as they have completed harvest. This will enable the county office to keep their 1939 records and get the acreage and allotments established for 1940.

The County Office is anxious to assist the farmers in the county in keeping as accurate a record as possible on the farms. If these yields for the farms are turned in at the time of harvest, we are of the opinion that it will be much easier than to wait until the farmer has lost his receipts before getting these reports.

W. N. West of south of town, purchased a new McCormick Deering Farm Implement week from Tull Implement

This New McCormick-Deering Field Cultivator Is a Sure Winner

Built in 6 Sizes for: Preparing Seedbeds, Killing Weeds, Renovating Alfalfa, Orchard Work, Summer Fallowing, and Conserving Moisture.

Few farm implements can be used for such a wide variety of work. The new "No. 8" can be equipped with stiff teeth or heavy spring teeth for use in many types of unplowed land, or for deep cultivation. Or it can be equipped with light spring teeth for shallow cultivation in plowed ground. The change from stiff teeth to heavy spring teeth can be quickly made in the field. The "No. 8" is built in 5 1/2, 7, 8 1/2, 10, and 12-foot sizes for horse or tractor operation, and is available in sizes for tractor use only. All are built with hand lift and are some of the hardest work in use on any farm. It is built with strength and durability in mind, yet it is known for its lightness under even the most severe conditions. Ask us to show you the McCormick-Deering No. 8 Field Cultivator next time you are in town.
