SOUGHT TO AVOID BOTTLE NECK IN ISSUING TITLE CERTIFICATES

HELP OF CAR OWNERS IS

Due to the defense emergency and the necessity for maintaining defense and civilian highway travel, the Texas Highway commission has accepted procedures to avoid a serious bottleneck in registering motor vehicles for 19-42 caused by the requirement that all motor vehicle owners must have a certificte of title to the vehicle before the tax assessor-collector may issue new plates.

The commission requested county tax collectors to accept applications for 1942 registrations and issue plates where the applicant can show he has previously applied for a certificate of title but which has not been received because of delays encountered in their issuance. Tax collectors also were requested to issue plates if the applicant for registration presents a certificate of title which has been properly assigned to him, surrenders the assigned title and simutaneously makes application for a new title in his own name.

Swamped With Applications The law requires motor vehicle owners to have had a Texas certificate of title to their vehicle prior to January 1, 1942. Since the passage thousands of persons have come to Texas to work in defense industries and are not familiar with the requirements of the state certificate of title law. DEATH CLAIMS ANOTHER OLD TIME CITIZEN

Another of Silverton's real old timers, Robert Lee Campbell, passed away suddenly Friday, March 13 at his home in Silverton at the age of 77 years. Death came after a sudden heart attack. Funeral services were conducted Sunday by Earl Cantwell and interment was made in the Silverton cemetery.

Mr. Campbell came to Silverton in 1897 and was very well known the county over. He organized the first band in Silverton-one that gained fame over the entire Panhandle of Texas. Robert Lee Campbell 'was born in Marion, Virginia, June 30, 1865. A brief history of his life shows that he attended Military Academy at Blacksburg, Virginia, where he was a member of both the school and home town band. for he was a great lover of music.

He was married to Miss Margaret Melinda Cooper, May 12, 1901 and to them were born three daughters, Roberta of Hereford; Othel (Mrs. Ernest Jones) of Busland, Texas; and Margaret (Mrs. Glenn Burnett of Benjamin, Texas. He is also survived by his wife; one sister, Mrs. Edgar Jones of Louisville, Kentucky; and four grandchildren, Bobby Libb, Jeardis, and Linda Burnett; and Cliff Earl Jones.

In 1900, Uncle Bob was converted to the Christian faith and remained a true member all of his

All of Silverton and community are bereaved at the sudden passing and huge crowd paid their respects at the funeral services Sunday at the Church of Christ and followed the body to its last resting place in the Silverton Cemetery.

BURMA: And India

With the British moving slowly but surely backward on the Burma front, and with many believing that the fall of Java might be a signal for heavier pressure against India, the puzzle of how the people of India would react to the necessity of defense was worrying Britain.

Many in England favored giving the Hindus dominion status, with Nehru as their head. Others thought the defense angle should be cleared before concessions were made. It had been conceded that General Wavell could hold India if he could get full co-operation. But reports from Burma had been disquieting. It seemed that largely the people were divided into two groups, those who were turning against the whites, and those who were going over to the Japs. Some light on this situation had been thrown by India's agent in Washington, Sir Girja Bajpai, who though he declined to comment on Nehru's demands, or on the recent visit to Nehru and Gandhi by Chiang Kai-shek, he said this:

"I am positive the Indian army is loyal to the Crown.'

How much this meant was open to much speculation. But British circles felt, apparently, that more than this would be necessary.

MAC ARTHUR:

Loyal Natives

That there had been an extended period of quiet reported on Bataan d not mean that General MacAr thur's men were unmindful that the fall of Java might well mean additional troops for them to face, and additional air force for them to com-

Meanwhile the war department announced that the Japanese have assigned Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuke Yamashita to oppose MacArthur. Yamashita, conqueror of Malaya and Singapore, succeeds Lieut. Gen. Masaharu Homma, who is thought to have committed hara-kiri because of his failure to wipe out MacArthur's men.

Occasional dispatches had been filed quoting some members of the MacArthur forces as wanting to know "when the planes were coming" but the general himself was too busy thinking up ways of combating the Japs and keeping them guessing to have himself quoted as demanding anything in the way of reinforcements.

Yet he was constantly in touch, apparently, with what the enemy were doing, and this was taken in military circles as a hopeful sign, showing that the natives were remaining loyal.

One bit of information had come to Washington from Bataan that the Japs had landed men and tanks on Mindoro island, and this was taken as a sure indication that serious resistance to the invader had developed there. As jungle fighters the Filipino was an excellent man, and his ability with the native knife, the nine-pound | the bolo, was such as to make him a terror to the Japs. MacArthur al- states," but they were fearful when ready had told Washington of the Japanese demand that the natives give up all such knives, further proof that even on occupied Luzon, the guerrillas were busy lopping pect." down the numbers of the enemy.

MacArthur's great stand on Bataan caused many American newspaper writers to demand that we drop the slogan "Remember Pearl Harbor" and change it to "Remember MacArthur and Corregidor."

CHURCHILL:

Many American newspapers had been printing stories about the possibility that Churchill's tenure of office was by a relatively slender thread, and some went so far as to give him three months more, and others to state that Sir Stafford Cripps would succeed him.

To these stories London newspapers had been giving the raised eyerow. One British writer said most British circles had been surprised to read of these reports, and that there was little or no truth in them. Thank Sponsor of Double-Pay Measure

Farm Bloc in Congress Threatens Wickard's Policy

'Highly Insistent' Group Fights to Prevent Surplus Commodities Corporation From Selling Farm Products Below Parity.

By BAUKHAGE

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W,

Washington, D. C. It is the equal of five long blocks from where Secretary Wickard's windows look out on the wide sweep of lawn in front of the Department of Agriculture building, along the winding roads to the White House. But Mr. Wickard, except for cabinet meetings, doesn't take that trip very frequently. It is not because he isn't won't be fired. That can be said (and is said) in spite of the fact that he is probably the only member of the cabinet whom the President ever told a large group of listeners that he could fire.

That was at a White House press and radio conference when the President was being questioned concerning what seemed to be a conflict between the secretary of agriculture and Price Control Administrator Henderson as to who was going to regulate farm prices. He said if they didn't agree he could fire them both. The controversy has been for gotten and Secretary Wickard, who can talk only half as fast as Price

Secretary of Agriculture, Wickard He is being annoyed

Administrator Henderson and isn't even a quarter as glib, didn't lose any of his price controlling power. But the past weeks have seen those prerogatives attacked from another source-the ever-constant source of annoyance for the department of agriculture-the farm bloc

Today it is the farm bloc which is again annoying Mr. Wickard.

This highly consistent and highly insistent group in congress decided it just wasn't going to let Mr. Wickard's Surplus Commodity corporation sell farm products below parity. First, they induced the senate to pass a law agin' it. Then when the President said he'd veto the measure they decided to tack it on to the war appropriation bill as a rider. Then the President said it was reprehensible to make an amendment to an important bill when it wasn't germane to the bill. Then the bloc decided to tack it onto the appropriation bill without which the department of agriculture cannot pay its bills. The department, however, seemed willing to face that calami-They were willing to let the President veto the bill so long as they were able to carry out their policy of selling commodities below parity if they wanted to. (They knew they could get another appropria-

"The farmers of the country understand better what we are trying do than some members of congress," said one official to me. This is his explanation:

"All we want to do is to sell grain low enough so that it will make it more advantageous for the farmer to raise livestock. We don't need the wheat and corn. We have plenty. We do need the meat. So does England. If we decrease the price of feed the farmer will automatically raise more livestock and let nature turn the starches we don't need into protein. And also into fats. We need fats and oil more than ever since the vegetable oils of the Netherlands Indies have been cut off." That is the way the department isn't going to lose anything. If we sell our grain at 15 per cent below parity he knows that he can get that 15 per cent back, through bene-fit payments for soil conservation."

That is the explanation of the case which sounds simple even to the layman. But that isn't the way the President explained it. He said that if the department of agriculture did not have its way the cost of eating would be raised a billion dollars a

But the fact remains that the President is satisfied that Mr. Wickard knows what he is doing and that he is doing what the President thinks is right.

Of course this doesn't make it right, or if it did, it wouldn't make it necessary that the people accept it, if they prefer some other program. If the farm bloc has enough of a following among the voters it can write its own ticket. We are still a democracy. It is a lot shorter from the ballot box to the congress than it is from the department of agriculture to the oval office in the executive wing of the White

The Basic Rule Behind War Censorship

In Washington we have a censorship for press and radio and also several propaganda organizations which are censorship in reverse.

A great many letters which I receive from listeners to my radio program say: "Of course we realize you are not allowed to say (this or that)," or "we realize you have to say (that or this)." But the surprising thing is how seldom the "this or that" which the listeners mention are the things the censorship forbids us to say, or the "that or this" is ever even suggested by the propaganda organizations.

As a matter of fact I have had only one direct contact with either the so-called propaganda bureaus or the censorship. A man whom I know personally who is connected with the Office of Facts and Figures once called me up and said that he would be able to give me some in teresting information from time to time. He never has. As to the censorship, the radio chains drew up their own code before the censorship organization was founded. It is based largely on con mon sense and except for certain specific details this code differs very little from the rules which the o sor expects us to follow. Be go on the air a member of the ne staff of the Blue network reads over my script. So far nothing has been changed so far as I can recall. Until we have official confirms tion from the army or navy we at not allowed to reveal any troop movements, or any ship movements. Ship movements include vertical movements downwards (sinkings). When we repeat information contained in enemy statements we have to say they are enbalance them with some statemen from a friendly source.

Behind all censorship, behind al government regulation of spee and action in wartime is one rule do not give aid and comfort to be enemy. Specific information of a military nature gives aid and com-fort to the enemy. We may set positive that the enemy can get of has already obtained that informs tion from some other source but that does not excuse us for repeting it publicly. "Where is your real home?" Joan asked curiously.
"Brooklyn," Paul laughed. "I was born and raised there. Technically I work in Washington but I'm usually off on an assignment." "Was Eric really Karl's partner?" Joan inquired.

Paul shrugged. "Probably just a title. I don't know who actually put up the money but I am certain that Eric worked under Karl. "And Karl works under some othand Paul exchanged glances.

"I don't think so," he said, going to the door.

A middle - aged woman, welldressed, rather heavy-set, with dyed black hair and expressionless black eyes, stood waiting.

"May I see Miss Leland?" she inquired. "I am Mrs. Murdock." Joan rose quickly from her place

The three of them sat down by the fire. "I was so sorry to hear of your sister's-unfortunate acci-

Joan looked at Paul. These had been Karl's words, "unfortunate ac-cident." But Paul seemed not to

"I feel it my duty," Mrs. Murdock continued tonelessly, "to tell you certain facts. First, that I discharged Sybil two days ago."

"Discharged?" Joan repeated in astonishment." But Sybil didn't tell me anything about it." The older woman looked uncomfortable. "Her work was not entirely satisfactory. I was sorry but I had to let her go." "Sybil was one of the best beauty operators in this city," Joan flared. "Sybil," Mrs. Murdock went on, "was very upset. She told me she needed the money desperately."

"That isn't true!" Joan snapped. Mrs. Murdock shrugged. "That is what she told me. When I told her that I was letting her go she became hysterical and threatened to do away with herself. I told this to the police when they called on me an hour ago."

'Very kind of you to come to see Miss Leland. She is upset naturally, but it's always better to know the truth." Paul's voice was smooth. Joan did not look up. Better to let Paul handle this. He went to the door with Mrs. Murdock and watched her disappear down the hall. Then he said, "Well, what do you think?"

"The whole thing's a lie," Joan

"It fits together too well," Paul admitted. "The truth is seldom that logical. This Murdock woman is undoubtedly involved with Karl."

"How can we prove it? Paul, we've got to do something! Sybil may be alive and in danger."

"We must have patience," Paul told her. "These things don't work out overnight and we can't afford to rush it."

"I'd like to break his rotten neck," Paul said but Joan did not hear him. She was comforted by his sympathetic shoulder. She needed someone to talk to so much, now that Sybil was gone.

December days dragged to a close. Christmas passed. Paul spent the day with Joan, taking her to dinner at a quiet restaurant. They spoke little. Paul attempted to cheer her but his efforts produced little "Karl said we wouldn't be needed at the Club New Year's Eve. Would you like to go out?"

Joan glanced about the brilliantly decorated restaurant, the shining Christmas tree and light bedecked wreaths in the windows. "It doesn't seem fair for us to celebrate while we don't know what's happened to

"I don't think Sybil would want you to worry. Let's try it anyway. Shall we, Joan?" " she promised.

"We'll try . New Year's Eve arrived, clear and cold. Joan wore a green satin dress to match her eyes.

Paul bought her gardenias, waxy pale and fragrant. "You look very lovely, Joan," he told her and she was glad that he had not said "beautiful" . . . Karl always said

She made a valiant attempt to enjoy herself, and though the evening proved not particularly gay, Joan found Paul entertaining. "I've been watching Mrs. Murdock's beauty shop," he reported, "and I'm convinced there's something funny about it. Once I thought

I saw Karl with her." 'How can you get proof?"

"You are going to have your hair fixed there next week," Paul informed her. "Look the place over and if you see anything suspicious, tell me. You might even try to see Mrs. Murdock in her private office. If there's anything going on, you may find evidence there. Try to be pleasant with her. You probably put her on her guard the last time you saw her.'

Joan leaned closer to hear him. The laughing, screaming crowd all around them made conversation difficult. A spray of confetti fell across Joan's shoulder. The blare of trumpets droned in their ears.

Paul smiled, "Let's dance." Holding her close, he guided her through the mob. It was hard to dance in the crowd but Joan found the happiness of others infectious. "Any resolutions?" Paul asked, smiling. "Not one, except maybe never to fall in love again."

"So long as you don't give up your friends." She smiled at him. "You're the best friend I have, Paul. In fact, you are the only one I have right They laughed and suddenly the lights were dimmed, the bells pealed. "Happy New Year!" Paul cried. "The same to you, Paul."

"It's good-bye to the past," Joan thought, "Good-bye to Karl and all the things that such a little while ago were important . . .

And then she saw Karl Miller, handsome, smiling Karl. And he was not alone. A girl clung to his arm, a girl so freshly lovely, so heartbreakingly young that sympathy swept through Joan's heart. "Look!" she said to Paul. "Karl has a new girl . . ."

As Paul's eyes followed hers, his face grew white.

"What is the matter, Paul?" Joan asked as they stared at Karl Miller and the girl at his side.

"Let's get out of here," Paul said grimly, "I don't want them to see CURDS thickening up milk don't half give you a picture of the blobs of muck that can foul your oil-and your engine. For mush and "stickum" from oil that fails under present-day strain can't improve lubrication, nor add to safe mileage per quart. But now that you must change oil for Spring-really a law in every Car Instruction Bookyou can easily switch to Conoco Nth motor oil. And in patented Conoco Nth oil you get Thialkene inhibitor ... man-made . . . the modern synthetic invented to restrain stickiness-sluggishness-"simmering down thick."

Conoco Nth gets every chance to stay smoothly fluid; full of life. And still another great Conoco syntheticsame as ever-makes Conoco Nth give you an OIL-PLATED engine, with lubricant "plated" you'd say-or seemingly "magnetized"-direct to inner engine parts. Then OIL-PLATING isn't all draining down fast during parking-or even overnight. Instead, OIL-PLATING can stay up high, to help out your engine at every start, before any oil-pump raises up its full stream.

That's how to foil a lot of wear, and not have your engine soon over-eating oil.

Talk about a strict economy diet! ... Down in Death Valley's record high heat, battling five other big-name oils -impartially-this same Conoco Nth oil was still up above half when all others tested had burned up their engines and their full 5-quart fills!

That's a certified sample. It makes you realize why you can change to Conoco Nth and keep away from adding quart after quart. Get rid of hazardous Winter oil now, at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Get economy to the Nth degree. Continental Oil Company

Last of the 'Boomers'

WHEN recent press dispatches chronicled the death of 81-yearold Maj. Gordon W. Lillie at his home in Oklahoma, the words "Pawnee Bill" and 'Wild West Showman" and "partner of Buffalo Bill" were featured prominently in the headlines. But the passing of this frontiersman had more significance than those words imply.

For Gordon W. Lillie was the last of the "Boomers," that race of stubborn, courageous men who, in the late eighties, were determined to establish homes for themselves and their people on the "last frontier"the Indian lands in Indian territory -and when they won their fight, the frontier era in American history was definitely over.

Lillie was born near Bloomington, Ill., on February 14, 1860. His father was a miller who had no great desire to move West but when his mill was burned in the early seventies he decided to seek his fortune in a new country. Starting west in a covered wagon he eventually arrived at Wellington, Kan., and there young Gordon Lillie grew up. Meanwhile he had managed to secure a high school education and this resulted in his being asked in 1882 to conduct a school at the Pawnee agency in Oklahoma. He learned language of those Indians, the gained the friendship of influential chiefs and eventually was made an honorary member of the tribe.

In 1883 "Buffalo Bill" Cody, who had just started his Wild West show, engaged a band of Pawnees to accompany it and he wanted a man to take the time to spell out the letthe job and remained with the show for two years. During this time he met May Manning, a Philadelphia girl, and they were married in 1886. With her husband as her tutor, Mrs. Lillie became one of the best riders and rifle-shots in the show business.

A disagreement with Cody resulted in Lillie's withdrawing from his West show of his own. It prospered oring and hot coffee into a smooth for a time and even made a two- paste, stir into mixture. Sift flour, year tour of Europe. Then came measure, then sift again with soda Territory for homesteading.

The leader of the "Boomers" had minutes. Ice with the following: been Capt. D. L. Payne, the "Scout of the Cimarron," but he had failed to win his objective. After his death the "Boomers" were looking for a new leader and Lillie was asked by the Wichita Board of Trade to take charge of the thousands of prospective settlers who had gathered near there and who were a menace to the peace of the community. "Pawnee Bill" accepted the task, organized the settlers into an orderly body and by the time of the famous "run" on April 22, 1889, he had won national recognition. Curiously enough, "Pawnee Bill" failed to take any land himself, nor did he profit by another, but small- be made with melted chocolate user, "Boomer" movement which re- ing a water-color paint brush. sulted in the opening of the Cherokee Strip in northern Oklahoma in 1893. With Oklahoma well settled, Lillie turned again to the show business. Within a short time he was the only serious rival of "Buffalo Bill" Cody in this type of enterprise and in 1907 a merger of the two shows was arranged. The two men worked together until 1910 when Cody retired.

Although Lillie made a fortune in the show business, he lost most of it, as the popularity of that kind of entertainment waned. He recouped much of it in the oil business and by 1919 he was able to retire to a big ranch which he had bought near Pawnee, Okla. He built a 14-room red stone ranch house on Blue Hawk peak, overlooking the town, and devoted himself to raising huffalo until he had one of the largest private herds in the world. In 1936 Lillie and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at Taos, N. M., with a renewal of their marriage vows and a public reception at which they were pre-sented with a gold-painted automo-bile by their friends. Two weeks later, while returning in this "golden chariot" to their Oklahoma ranch ome, they were involved in a collision in which both were seriously injured. Soon after reaching their ome Mrs. Lillie died and after her death "Pawnee Bill" seemed to lose his interest in life. But death did not summon him until this year.

A Birthday Cake With Candles-Goody! (See Recipes Below)

Happy Returns

Birthdays the children have are the ones which they usually cherish most even though they may have bigger cakes and more candles in later years. So with this in mind, I'm including a few suggestions. Cake 'n' ice cream are tops, and a bit of candy to sweeten the tooth dictate the party.

spell out the letters, you can buy these for a nominal sum, and have a professional looking cake right out of your own kitchen. Have the children send out their own invitations, even make them up if they like-this will be grand fun for them. Twirling crepe paper for decorations and getting the chairs in place will please them no end, for these, though small, will give them a wonderful sense of "doing something."

For the cake I've chosen an inexpensive but fascinatingly red

Devil's Food Cake. (Makes 2 8-inch layers)

A birthday party's a real party with birthday games to play. Let the children play their favorite ones, and if they run out of ideas, try some of these:

Lynn Says:

Take the words, Greeting and Birthday, and give each of the guests paper and pencil. Ask players to fill in as many words as possible between each of the two letters. First words begin with B and end with G. Second words begin with R and end with I. Third words begin with R and end with E, and so forth, Allow 10 to 15 minutes for the game, and give prizes to those with longest lists.

Have children sit in a circle to play this game called Birthday Gifts. First player starts with letter A, and makes a sentence giving the name of the place he is going and the gift he is bringing. For example, he might say, "I am going to Appleton to get him an Anchovy, or to Bermuda to get him a Bon Bon," and so forth down the alphabet. No words should be repeated.

Guests can also make a scrapbook together, cutting out magazines and papers to make an autobiography for the guest of honor. Include place of birth, pictures of mother and dad, school, vacation trips, etc.

1/2 hour. Drain. Cover again with water. Boil 1/2 hour longer or until tender. Drain. Cut peel in strips with scissors. Cover with honey (2 to 3 cups). Simmer gently until Spread on waxed paper to dry for several days. Roll in granulated sugar if desired.

JESUS THE MESSIAH FORETELLS HIS DEATH

LESSON TEXT-Mark 8:27-37 GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 8:27-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.—Mark 8:35.

Jesus came into the world as the Redeemer of men-and that means He came to die. The prophets who wrote centuries before His coming presented Him as both the suffering and the reigning Messiah. However, to the minds of the Jewish people only the idea of His glory and kingship was acceptable, not of His suffering and death.

Apparently His own disciples had this same impression and it therefore became necessary for Jesus as He came to the last months of His earthly ministry to speak plainly to them about these matters.

I. Recognition of Christ by Faith (vv. 27-30).

As a foundation for right thinking on any spiritual question there must be recognition of Christ's deity. He drew forth such a confession from the disciples by asking who men said that He was. Notice that while there was difference of opinion, all had a high opinion of Him, calling Him John the Baptist, Elijah, or one of the prophets. They knew that a great man was in their midst, and had to admit it, even though they hated and opposed Him. But it is not enough to accept Christ as a great man, as a teacher, a prophet, or an example. Nor is it enough to tell what others think of Him. The question quickly becomes: "Whom say ye that I am?" Have you answered that question? What will you do with Jesus Christ? Peter responded with a straightforward, heaven-born confession of Christ as the Son of the living God (cf. Matt. 16:16-18) upon which Christ established His church.

II. Rejection and Crucifixion Prophesied (vv. 31, 32.).

The foundation of faith in Him having been laid. Christ plainly laid before the disciples the fact of His coming rejection and death. Notice the word "must" in verse 31. "There was an imperative necessity for these things. But why must He elsewhere in the Bible (John 3:14; Heb. 9:22: Isa. 53:4-6: II Cor. 5:21: Gal. 3:13: I Pet. 2:24). There could have been no salvation for any sin-(John W. Bradbury).

Note also that He "must rise again" (v. 31). He died for our sins, but "was raised again for our

III. Rebuke of Unbelief (vv. 32,

Peter, quick to accept Jesus as the Son of God, permitted Satan to blind his mind to the necessity of the cross, and thus became a stumbling block of unbelief, calling forth a severe rebuke from Jesus.

It is a striking and humbling thought that the very one who a moment before spoke such acceptable words of recognition of Christ's deity could by unbelief so quickly become the tool of Satan. "My soul, be on thy guard" lest such temptation overtake thee!

May we also learn from this incident that we do well to weigh the words of even good men lest in a moment of weakness or unbelief they say that which may lead us astray. God's Word alone is sure!

IV. Requirements of Discipleship (vv. 34-37).

Following the Christ of Calvary calls for a willingness to say "no" to self (literally, to deny any connection with self-life) and to follow through with Him on the path of shame and crucifixion. No self-will and no compromise are permissible to Christ's disciples.

Foolishly to attempt to hold one's life for self is to lose it. That painful loss has left brokenhearted, wrecked lives all along the path of man's history. But why should any one do it? Equally foolish is the one who supposes that this world has anything to satisfy the human soul. Assuming the possibility of the impossible-that is, attaining the whole world as one's own possession-to do so at the cost of one's soul would be an indescribably poor bargain.

What then shall we say of those who barter their eternal souls for a mess of pottage, a moment of sensual satisfaction, or for a few paltry dollars? "What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" It is the unanswerable question.
