We have been out in the woods for two weeks and firing up for the 3rd week. The Captain said he hoped we enjoyed our Thanksgiving out here, so that means that we will have a good while. Last night sure cold but I slept warm and really slept. I didn't sleep the night before as we were pulling a team. I wish I could tell you about it but they have stopped us from writing anything like that. I believe you would enjoy hearing about it. We really had a fun when we were attacked by some infantry. Those fellows really run but we out run them. They tried to capture our tank but we whipped them off. That's about all I can write real soon."

J. T. HAYNES writes to Mr. Mrs. Clarence Anderson "Dear Mr. Anderson. Since it has been quite a while since I have heard from you, I thought I would drop you a few lines and let you hear from me. Everything is O. K. with me and we have been enjoying myself a great deal here at my present station. The only thing is that the weather is too cold. However the men are very beautiful and very interesting and "they'll get you don't watch out." So far we are very lucky.

WALTER ALLARD JR. writes to his parents "So you wish I would stay in school longer. I would as well be a 4 F as stay in school, neither one is helping the army any. I may not be doing a very good job in the division but at least you feel that you may be doing something and there isn't anyone who wishes this war over more than I do, so I want to get out and help. More than likely I will be in some ones way so he will do anything but lets get it with in a hurry, I want to get home.

FIRESTREAMING

Army Ordnance's armored vehicles now in production are based on exhaustive studies of the turtle 'Myrtle the Turtle' taught Ordnance engineers the essential lesson of firestreaming.

Lt. Col. R. M. Bacher, commanding Pantex Ordnance Plant, near Amarillo, Texas, said to-day that "we want our tanks, tank destroyers and motorized artillery to shed enemy projectiles as easily as the horny shell of the turtle sheds a horse's hoof. That's firestreaming."

"We remember the early automobiles with their vertical windshields," Col. Bacher explained, "and we have seen how these have given way to profiles offering a minimum of wind resistance. So also our earlier tanks presented their upright armored surfaces to direct impact. Now the silhouettes are lower and the armor slopes in such a way that hard-hitting armor-piercing projectiles tend to bounce from their sides like hail from a sloping roof. Firestreaming thus sheds missiles as effectively as streamlining, applied to the family automobile, sheds the invisible but very real barrier of air."

Remarkable as they were, our earlier models of armored vehicles are today no more than a gleam in the dark when compared to the powerful new firestreamed weapons of terrifying firepower which are now blasting the Axis in Europe and the Southwest Pacific.

The exposed surfaces of the new vehicles present a minimum area to direct fire. The slope of the armor at all points provides a maximum area to direct fire. The slope of the armor at all points provides a maximum turtle-like slant or curve so that enemy shells will bounce off harmlessly or with a minimum of damage.

"Automobile streamlining facilitates smooth air flow," Col. Bacher concluded, "while Ordnance firestreaming, borrowed from the turtle, produces projectile ricochet. 'Myrtle the Turtle' is now wearing an Army Ordnance service ribbon."

Mr. Frank Shaffer returned last Thursday from Dallas where he has been four weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Paige. Mr. Paige has undergone an operation and is recovering.

Miss Jean Northcutt of Lubbock spent the week end with her parents.

Letter of Sympathy For Mrs. Beavers

In spite of the fact the Marines are about the busiest bunch of fellows in the world right now, they still have time to express their sympathy to a grieving mother, as is shown by this letter, received by Mrs. Dewey Beavers, shortly after the death of her son, Aubrey, who was killed in tank maneuvers early in the summer. The letter:

"My Dear Mrs. Beavers: Please allow me to join that host of sympathetic friends who share with you the sense of shock caused by the untimely death of your son, Aubrey Beavers. I pray that these feeble words of mine may in some small way help supply you with the solace, comfort, and peace for which even now you hunger.

Nothing any of us can say or do can compensate for your loss nor fill that chasm created by his being suddenly snatched from you and us. But perhaps the pain can be somewhat mitigated by the knowledge that he was held in highest esteem by all who associated with him. His quiet unswerving honesty, and unpretentious dependability made him trusted and desired by both his officers and his mates.

HE GAVE HIS LIFE FOR HIS COUNTRY

PVT. AUBREY BEAVERS

He gave his life in the performance of his duty. We all depise this war, and we deplore the price which must be paid in human lives to turn back the forces which now threaten our very existence. Many of us know that we too shall join our lives with his in this determined effort to abolish greed and treachery and insure peace, brotherhood, and good will for those who shall follow us. Those of us who knew your son can hope for nothing more than that we may leave a memory as tender, as wholesome, as clean as his.

The Divine Service attended by his mates last Sunday morning was dedicated to your son. During the hour, I read this prayer which was written some months ago by Sgt. Hugh Brodie of the Royal Australian Air Force, now reported, "missing in action". He wrote:

"Almighty and all present Power, Short is the prayer I make to Thee I do not ask in battle hour For any shield to cover me.

The vast unalterable way, From which the stars do not depart May not be aside to stay The bullet flying to my heart.

I ask no help to strike my foe, I seek no petty victory here, The enemy I hate, I know, To Thee is also dear.

But this I pray, be at my side When death is drawing through the sky, Almighty God who also died Teach me the way that I should die.

I pray that our heavenly Father who also saw His Son die, and who knows the meaning of bitter suffering, may comfort you in these dark hours.

Sincerely Yours,
Howard S. Congdon

The new farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Burson on the J. H. Burson ranch, was totally destroyed by fire last Friday night. All contents of the house, which included all new furniture was destroyed.

A few guests were enjoying a party at the Burson home and it is thought that perhaps a match was dropped that did not go out immediately. The fire started in a clothes closet. The family and guests were in another part of the house and the fire was not discovered until the room was breaking into flames.

The Burson's baby had a very narrow escape when his bedroom was cut off from the rest of the house by the fast-spreading flames. Arnold Brown, one of the guests, discovered the little one's plight and rushed through the flames and brought the baby to safety.

The house, which was recently built, carried no insurance. The furniture was partly covered by insurance.

The fire is the second costly fire that has visited the Burson Ranch in the past few weeks. A grass fire in September destroyed several hundred acres of valuable grass land.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM FOR SOCIAL DISEASES

In a statement issued this week by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, it was disclosed that in the near future an intensified state-wide educational campaign will be instituted for the control of venereal disease.

"The venereal disease situation in Texas has been receiving the close attention of the State Health Department," Dr. Cox said, "and it has become apparent with the heavy concentration of military forces now within the borders of this state, the scope of the control program must be broadened. One of the most essential measures in this respect is the education of the public to the danger involved."

Every possible means for informing the public will be used, with emphasis placed on newspaper publicity, radio lectures, posters, pamphlets, leaflets, and personal information disseminated at venereal disease clinics throughout the state. Although there are now 138 treatment centers and clinics operating in the state, Dr. Cox indicated that if additional facilities are needed for the treatment of infected persons, more clinics will be established when the need is ascertained.

Special educators, doctors, and case investigators from the State Department of Health will be available for consultation and assistance to those cities and communities in the state most urgently needing such help.

she thinks I ought to stand back there and feed that darn press. No coffee. No stories. No nuthin but work. No money even. I was too busy to take out any statements the first. Sometimes I wonder why I married that woman. One thing I am sure of, it was not for a linotype operator. I hate to admit it but she can set just as much type as I can. There is only one thing that I am A-1 on and that is at wiping dishes. No matter how hard she tries I can always beat her through—cause I quit where the pots and pans start.

IN THE paragraph above I said A-1, not 1-A.

AND NOW I am going to look out the window awhile. Nope, there's no news out there. Guess I'll go to work on Bill McCracken's scale books. The way I do Bill is to print a few extras. Then when he reorders I can just ignore him for a week or two. He bounces in and out after those books like a hummingbird in front of a honey suckle. The first two calls I tell him that I have the type set. The next two times I tell him that they are printed but not booked. And then finally I go back and pull a book off the pile and give it to him. But no foolin I've given him the last one and now I am going to have to print some.

I AM BEGINNING to like my new location for sure. The first two weeks I was a little dumfounded. I really didn't know the advantages of being uptown. The first Saturday an old boy came staggering in and succeeded in dropping a pint of Formula X on the floor. It smelled like a brewery all day. The next press night we got too fast a pulley on the newspaper press and she was kicking off about 1900 an hour and sup-

AVIATION-ORDNANCE AMMUNITION

Two types of the bombs with which Army Ordnance supplies our Air Forces are being loaded at Pantex Ordnance Plant, Amarillo, Texas. They are the heavy general purpose demolition bomb, and the 23-pound parachute fragmentation bomb which the plant began producing last week.

Moreover, Army Ordnance is supplying Army Air Forces in continental United States with more small arms ammunition a day than is consumed in all global theatres of operation in a 24 hour period.

Captain R. M. Smith, commanding Pantex Ordnance Plant, said that at least 135,000 rounds of caliber .30 and caliber .50 ammunition are used daily in such mammoth training establishments as the Harlinger Flexible Gunnery School in Texas. Still other thousands of rounds are used in other centers which are training hundreds of thousands of future American aces.

This is more than is used in an average day's combat by Army Air Forces in Europe and the Southwest Pacific.

In addition, the Ordnance Department furnishes our Air Forces with million of clay pigeons and other target material every month. In similar fashion the Ordnance Department, Army Service Forces also supplies our Air Forces with many types of ammunition. In the small arms field, the principal categories are ball, armor-piercing, tracer and incendiary. Their employment depends upon the particular type of raiding mission.

In the early stages of training, various economy substitutes are training, nothing can take the place of live ammunition. The unused, such as plastic pellets, and beams of light. But in advanced penditure of such ammunition in the United States to improve combat accuracy will unquestionably save the lives of many American sky fighters in Europe and the Southwest Pacific where "misses don't take."

The present deadly combat accuracy of our fighter pilots and the gun crews of our Flying Fortresses is attributed to the excellence of Army Ordnance machine guns and ammunition, plus the careful marksmanship training given all Air Forces cadets.

The value of excellent battle equipment and superb training is demonstrated by the fact that, according to an Associated Press dispatch from London, at least 500 Nazi fighter planes were shot down during the eight-day American and United Nations offensive early in October. Estimated Nazi fighter plane production is 600 to 700 a month.

Mrs. C. C. Garrison received word this week that her son Blanton has joined the Merchant Marine.

Mr. and Mrs. Keltz Garrison and son of Crosbyton spent Sunday with C. C. Garrisons.

L. C. Kirgan's Fairfield Recorder I note, a local man said yesterday, that we now have to guess on what our income will be and if we miss it, we will be fined an extra assessment. This makes the whole thing a matter of guesswork. Congress has had us guessing about everything else for the past 10 years and now we must guess about what our income will be. . . If I had been a member of Congress that passed the present pay-as-you-go income tax law, I would have been afraid to come home on a vacation and face my constituents.

Kellerville Times: We have held to the view, and still have that opinion, that those in charge of affairs at Washington are in far better position to be informed as to the real situation in the global war in which we are engaged than outsiders could possibly be. Our war leaders not only have inside information far surpassing that of the ordinary citizen but upon their shoulders rests the responsibility of waging war so as to win a complete victory. The man on the street does not have the responsibility of making decisions vital to the war effort. To our way of thinking, that fact makes a vast difference between him and our leaders, who almost sweat blood over difficult problems that confront them.

A. J. Stricklin Sr., in Terry Co. Herald: When and if we pipe all our oil and natural gas out of Texas, East Texans will have nothing else to do except squirrel hunt and West Texans can get caught up with their coyote hunting. All our big reserves will be used to further industrialize the East.

A good old preacher who was visiting in a home dropped his set of false teeth through a grating on the porch. Neither he nor his hosts could devise any way to get them out as the bars were too close together to reach through and too firmly embedded to be removed. But the small boy of the family said: "Wait a minute." He returned in a little while with a string, with a chicken bone tied on one end. He lowered the bone through the grating and the teeth, through force of habit, clamped down on the chicken bone and he drew them out.

DON'T USE GASOLINE IN THE HOME

A flash of flame, an agonized shriek, a crash of glass, and an outburst of fire and smoke from a broken window. The shrill wail of a fire siren and the clanging of an ambulance. A white-walled hospital room, the odor of anesthetic, and a nurse bending over an unconscious bandage-swathed patient who moans and tosses about in a delirium of pain.

What has happened? An hour ago, this sufferer a woman, was in the kitchen of her home, cleaning some garments with gasoline. An unstopped jug of gasoline was standing on the floor and a tea kettle was boiling on the gas stove near by. The gasoline fumes spread about the room and were ignited by the burning gas. The flame traveled back to the jug and an explosion followed with the results described.

Gasoline should never be used for cleaning in the home. It is easy to understand the danger when one considers the fact that explosions of gasoline vapor mixed with air, supply the power for driving our automobiles, trucks and motor boats; and everybody knows that gasoline ignites readily and burns fiercely.

But someone is likely to say, in effect, "I never use gasoline in a room where a gas flame or any other open flame is present, so it CAN'T take fire or explode." Such a statement indicates that the person who makes it has much to learn about the dangerously inflammable properties of gasoline.

A gasoline explosion or fire (or both) may occur when there is no open flame or other apparent source of ignition in the room or even in the building where the gasoline is being used. This strange phenomenon is explained as follows: At ordinary room temperature (65 degrees Fahrenheit and above) gasoline exposed to the air gives off an invisible vapor which is heavier than air and which may be, and often is, carried to a considerable distance from its point of origin, buy air currents. This is in effect, like a fuse or a train of powder leading from a charge of explosive to the point where it is to be ignited. When the vapor comes in contact with a source of ignition - it may be 100 feet or more distance - it bursts into a flame which travels back, almost as rapidly as the eye can follow it, to the liquid-gasoline container, and an explosion or fire occurs. The source of ignition may be a bonfire outdoors, for example, or the fire in a heater in the basement, if the doors are open so that there is nothing to obstruct the flow of the vapor.

Army Ordnance plants producing binoculars protect the eyes of employees who are responsible for spotting tiny defects. To eliminate eye fatigue, workers receive Vitamin A therapy.

The Army term "motor transport" applies to Army Ordnance motor vehicles used in transporting military personnel, weapons, equipment and supplies, excluding such essential combat vehicles as tanks, scout cars and armored cars

Economy and conservation suggestions of employees in one typical Army Ordnance arsenal have resulted in a saving to taxpayers of $1,150,000. A shop foreman's suggestion for example, resulted in the substitution of a pressed wood part in the manufacture of flares, thereby saving $465,000 in labor and releasing 900 tons of steel and 9,500 pounds of cadmium test. Should get a rate but won't. They will find a way to mark it down. They did before when I was in school at New London so I guess they will do it here. But if I keep on I'll finally make it. This makes the third time I have taken it. Made 2.9 the first time, 3.44 the second and 3.91 this time, can't go much higher so they will have to find some other excuse.

I see where the County dropped way low in the Third War Loan Drive. We have exceeded ours by large numbers each time. I get Billy a $50.00 Bond every three months, if I get a rate will take one for myself and you."

DREW WILKERSON, who visited his mother Mrs. R. Wilkerson several weeks ago, writes of his trip back to Boise, Idaho. "We arrived in Dalhart Sunday afternoon. We packed our stuff that night and Monday morning. I spent most of the afternoon at the ration board, but finally got enough coupons to drive back.

We left Monday afternoon late and drove to Raton. Stayed all night and then on the next morning. We turned off at Pueblo and came via Gunnison, Salida, Salt Lake City etc. It was a new route for us, and we enjoyed it after a fashion. It had snowed in the mountains and Monarch Pass between Salida and Gunnison was covered. They were running snow plows over it. We enjoyed the scenery. Then the Royal Gorge was only 8 miles off our road, so we drove by to see it. Virginia had seen it before, and since heights bother her, she didn't go out on the bridge, but I did. It was quite a sight and sensation.

The country around Gunnison is quite noted for it's big game, and I believe all stories I've heard of it. Most every car we met had a deer or two or three on it. I could hardly "stay hitched."

Just out of Grand Junction we broke a spring on the car. A mechanic at some little town patched it up and we "crippled" on to Salt Lake City that night, arriving about 5 a. m. It sure was cold too. We nearly froze all night, besides most running out of gas.

We found our spring repairs and a garage to fix it. It was supposed to be fixed by noon but it was 6 before the mechanic got thru. I wired in for one day extension to my furlough, but after 4 hours received no answer, so we started on.

We did visit the Mormon Tabernacle etc. while in Salt Lake. Our guide gave us a very enlightening lecture on their beliefs. The buildings were very pretty and live up to their reputation. But since it was dark when we started on we didn't get to see the Lake or any surrounding country.

We drove all night, and arrived in Boise about 6 a. m., dead tired. There were no hotel rooms or vacant tourist courts, and I had to come on to the base, so I left Virginia sitting on the street. She did finally get a hotel room about 9. When I got to the base, I found I had a 2 day extension, so I went back to town. We looked for apartments that afternoon with no avail. All Friday afternoon was spent looking for apartments. I wore my finger off punching door bells, but we still didn't find any. This morning we found a room in a private home. It isn't bad, but we are still looking for an apartment.

CLOTHING

Guess you'll have to go in and see for yourself — T. R. didn't have time to fix ad copy. He goes out for six hours each day and pulls bolts and then by the time he sells a couple dollars worth of stuff, it's quitting time. And that's the way it is folks.

I should write him a nice ad but if I did he wouldn't like it, wouldn't pay for it and I haven't got any ads "for free". So, I'm leaving it blank as you can see and by heck we're going to press.
