MEMBER PANHANDLE PRESS ASSOCIATION

THIS IS ONE of those weeks that I haven't much to write about—haven't even anything to gripe about. When I get in that condition I am pretty weak.

WAS TALKING TO Sergeant Garner Guest yesterday. Garner is here after months and months of the heaviest fighting in the South Pacific. He is looking just OK, in spite of the fact that he was seriously wounded on Siapan. Garner is a pretty quiet fellow and has seen more action I think, than any man from this county. None of this air corps for him—his is the old slow, inch at a time going of the Marines. He has seen so much that truly, I am abashed to ask him questions. I believe that the fellows from the battle zones are entitled to the privacy of their thoughts if they so desire.

ONE THING HE said: "I think that it is going to take longer to whip the Japs than most folks think. I have heard that they were not fighting so desperately now as at the first part of the war—I never noticed it myself. It will take a year and a half after Germany quits, and if you could just see how tiny those islands are, that we've been fighting for, you'd see what I mean. The Japs are not whipped yet, by a long way."

THAT IS THE opinion of a man who is not an arm chair strategist. He's been in the worst of it. It might be well for us folks here at home to quit patting ourselves on the back.

THERE WAS ANOTHER thing that Garner wanted to get ironed out—the question of how much practice it takes to dig a fox hole. "It takes no practice at all, and very little time, he said. "All it takes is an incentive—and the Japs furnish that." He said that the first one he dug really looked funny to him the next morning. Whole bunch of little curleques and fancy piecework around the edges—kinda artistic like. He said he finally figured it out—it was where he had used his teeth, and toe nails to help out his hands in digging.

THERE WAS ANOTHER thing he told me that wasn't funny. I asked him if he reckoned that the Marine News Release (on the front page) was written by the same Marine correspondent that wrote for us before. "I don't think so. Murphy was killed on Siapan."

PRINTZ BROWN sure has a bad eye. A sty I think he said.

A man of his age and mental ability, should really be more careful of where he stands.

"BUTCH" (THAT is Barbara's niece's baby) has had to quit going to church. He lives at the preacher's house and so knows him very well. Consequently he thinks he (the preacher) is talking to him personally and so he coos and grunts and talks right back at him. . . . How much different that is from most of us grown-ups. We go to church and take it for granted that the sermon is meant for the OTHER fellow.

HAVE YOU MADE your contribution yet for the Veteran's Building Fund? If you don't know what to think about the deal, ask some fellow who is in service.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS
By Boyce House

Just about the biggest bargain a man can buy, when you consider the trivial sum involved, is a dime package of smoking tobacco. You cram a little into your pipe and your thoughts are wafted away on the puffs of fragrant smoke. At least the smoke is fragrant to you, because you're doing the puffing.

If you're smoking in a group of friends, the deliberate draws cause you to mature your thoughts before uttering them and maybe the result will be something ripe in wisdom and rich in homey philosophy. At any rate, a pipe requires enough effort to use and it occupies a man's mouth to an extent that it keeps a fellow from saying so many foolish things.

All of us can utter philosophic wisdom as long as the trouble is not our own. Kipling coined a great simile when he wrote, "As cheerful as a man watching another's house burn down." Which reminds me of the story of the individual who called on a friend in jail and, trying to cheer him up, said: "Remember what the poet declared, 'Stone walls do not a prison make nor iron bars a cage.'" The man behind the bars said, "Well, they make a pretty good substitute."

It's Major Tom King now. The former State Auditor recently was advanced from the rank of captain. He is in the Air Corps.

Major King is a Texan who came from Tennessee. Some of the finest Texans came from the old and David Crockett, for example. There comes to mind an experience that King had a good many years ago when he was auditing the financial affairs of a town in West Texas that was in pretty bad shape. The auditor questioned the man who had handled the sale of the municipality's bond issues. It seems that when the town couldn't pay the interest on the outstanding bonds, it issued another set of bonds to pay the interest on the first—and, when it couldn't meet the interest payment on the second set, another set of bonds was issued.

Reddy!

School days again remind us that readin', ritin', rithmetic could hardly get across so well without another "R" necessary to modern education—Reddy Kilowatt.

From the moment their electric clock gets the youngsters up, Reddy is busy all day for them. The breakfast-table toaster, the corner traffic light, often even the school bell itself, depend on modern electric service. You can think of many more ways Reddy helps.

Lighting is the most important. All study needs it, in school or out. With the coming of shorter days, children will spend more time indoors, more time studying after dark. Here's where Reddy can do his best for students. Good home lighting is inexpensive. It takes little time or effort. It will pay dividends in easier seeing.

Make sure your light is right! Sight is priceless—light is cheap.

PARENTS—Most electrical dealers now have light bulbs in all common home sizes. Fill your empty sockets and follow these few simple rules to secure more light from your bulbs:

- Wipe all light bulbs frequently. Keep reflector bowls and shades clean. Dust and dirt rob you of light!
- Use the RIGHT SIZE bulb in each lamp or fixture.
- A white-lined shade will reflect more light for use. A dark lining absorbs it.
- Move lamps closer to points of use, so they shed light directly on the work.

A Switch in Time saved Mine...

My wife wasn't all joking.

She said that a real new car improvement would be to go easing sideways, right into a cramped parking space at the curb. I said yes—maybe in 1960. There's one swell improvement though, that's here already!—an OIL-PLATED engine! You get that immediately by switching to Conoco Nth motor oil. I don't say it's the only oil; they're not hiring me. But I had this engine OIL-PLATED around 1941. It's still running like a darby, using Conoco Nth oil all the while, to cut down damage from engine acids. If I know what I've read all through this War, the acids made by every engine are liable to cause corrosion inside. That's bad. But acids don't like OIL-PLATING—can't gnaw right through it. It's fastened real close or sort of plated onto working parts that you've got to protect till your new car comes. And even then you'll want the engine OIL-PLATED with Conoco Nth oil, the same as in the car you've got right now.

Both are Phillips Research Laboratories

tory . . . a flying laboratory for a Phillips pioneering research project. Phillips recently was first to conduct a flight test program to determine the anti-knock performance of aviation gasolines . . . not in earth-bound test motors . . . but in combat-type engines under actual flying conditions.

PHILLIPS HIGH PLACE in the war production of butadiene for synthetic rubber, 100-octane aviation gasoline, and other petroleum chemicals, is the result of Phillips long years of peacetime research to extend the frontiers of knowledge concerning hydro-carbon chemistry.

Who can predict what great new benefits will flow to motorists after victory, as the result of Phillips wartime exploration of the limitless possibilities of the chemical production of new and better things from petroleum gases as well as from petroleum!

This much can be predicted with confidence: With the coming of peace, car-owners will be offered a vastly improved postwar Phillips 66 Gasoline. In the meantime, whenever you see the Phillips 66 Shield, let it remind you that Phillips great refineries are gigantic chemical plants pouring out weapons for victory.

MELONS

There must be something to the idea that age breeds quality, and that some of our best foods are the oldest. Take for instance the melon family whose members right now are enjoying a favored spot on most American tables.

The muskmelon family was known and cultivated by the Israelites in Southern Asia. When Columbus discovered America, America discovered melons, and by 1683 melons were growing on the island of California. The Honeydew melon is a French variety of muskmelon and was introduced into the United States in Colorado in 1913 from South America. The watermelon was brought from Egypt to Europe before the first Century and like other melons has spread throughout the world.

Despite this fancy and romantic background there is really more to the melon family than a high-value food.

Cantaloupes are high in vitamin A so essential to the well-being of the eyes. They are also good sources of vitamin C. Half a cantaloupe if its meat is deeply colored, can carry as much as two-fifths of the daily requirement of vitamin A for an adult man and about one-fourth of his vitamin C requirement. Honeydew has about the same amount of vitamin C but scarcely any vitamin A.

But all the goodness of the melon family will not be yours if you don't know how to select them. Ways of telling when cantaloupes are in top condition are: Look at the stem end, and if picked when ripe enough there will be a clean scar where the stem was. If picked too green, it will have part of the stem still attached or a rough deep scar where it was pulled out. Hold the melon in your hands and look it over, if good for serving it will be firm and well netted. The blossom end opposite the stem will be firm and show no paleness, and a slight golden color will be seen through the netting which covers the melon. Sometimes you will find little globules of red-brown sugar about the stem scar.

Cantaloupes that aren't ripe usually are poorly netted and the surface color under the netting is green. The meat is usually hard, tough, and flavorless. Overripe cantaloupes are generally soft, watery and do not have a pleasing flavor.

It isn't easy to pick a good watermelon. The best ones are bright green with a creamy yellow underside. They are heavy for their size and have a deep sound when thumped.

Mrs. W. B. Peugh, received the following tribute from her oldest daughter Mrs. C. J. Smith of La Cruces, N. M. We believe that it could be dedicated to all Mothers who have boys in service.

JUDD DONNELL

I had heard her say, (yes I know She was thinking it now)
"How bitter the fate of youth who must reap what the older sow!"

And then—
And now and then again,
I am sure there has been a prayer in every tear-drop for him.

She had tried to be a
A soldier too—
Until at least
He was out of sight.

I knew that here too was a soldier
That would also march,
and suffer and fight.
In a long endless chain of anxiety for him by day and by night.

So with courage and grim determination
In the hearts of each—
Both joined hand in hand, heart to heart
Courageous without speech.

Thus they parted, facing the truth. ONE
A golden monument of love and age : The other—
A magestic statue of MAN and youth.

And now-as he might say under that heavy pack, (and it would be just like him to make some wise crack.)
"Now listen Mom, did you know That great oaks from little acorns grow?"

"Promise me please—don't worry How about it, we're looking beyond all sorrow, aren't we?"
"And say, we're playing a swell part. In the golden peace for the world of to-morrow—Agree?"

And so—if we were with him over there now—
We would probably know that in his heart he is saying something like this:
"Brave Soldier, did you say?"
"Well, I'm here to tell you brother There's another soldier too
Come on let's give a toast to her
Up here in the air!"

And as an Englishman would say, (and the doughboys had already guessed.)
He would reply:
"There's none like her—none other
"Bravo! you said it fellows—
MY MOTHER

So heres to you mon, a sort of song
Out of the air—

ELBERT DICKERSON
President of Holt School Board

There's peace and purity and beauty up here—
You deserve a wondrous share—
Believe me, I'll try my "darndest" to wrap up some of it
And drop it down there!

"Can't I help to? —did you say? Well, now I'll be—isn't that just like you?
You would surely give your heart
No, thanks mom—for already you have done your part.
Now, if something should happen to me—
(You and God won't let it.)
Won't you please be content—
Just you remember, please realize
That you are—and will always be
MY MONUMENT"
