Lions Club Community Auction Sale Dec. 8

Lions Club to Sponsor Community Auction Sale; Stock Show

The Silverton Lions Club is endeavoring to be of service to the community by sponsoring an auction sale and livestock show next Saturday, December 8th.

Activities will begin at 10:00 a. m. with the showing of 4-H and FFA feeder steers and breeding heifers. The judging of the three classes of beef cattle will be done by Mr. R. B. Dawson, Vocational Agriculture Teacher, of Tulia. He will place a class of dry lot feeder steers, a class of nurse feed calves and a class of beef heifers. These beef calves are the animals on feed by the youth of the community and the same animals that will be exhibited in the Briscoe County Junior Fat Stock Show next Spring.

The Lions feel that this show of feeder animals will give the youngsters an opportunity to compare their animal with all the others in the community and perhaps it will cause them to do a better job of getting the animals finished and in shape for the spring show. Ribbons will be given the winners who place tenth or higher in each class. Leo White and Glynn Bunch report that twenty five steers and eight or ten heifers will be on exhibition during the day.

The fourth class of livestock is a class of colts born in 1951. Anyone who has a colt or filly born since last January first is invited to bring it in and enter it in the colt show. Mr. Williams, the Vocational Agriculture Teacher from Hart, will judge the colts. Several farmers and ranchers have indicated that they will bring colts to the show and there will probably be some animals entered in this class from Quitaque, Floydada and Tulia. Ribbons will be awarded to the first ten places.

Auction Sale Will Begin at 1:30 O'clock

The auction sale will begin at 1:30 p. m. and auctioneer Clarence (Hank) Matthews selling anything that the people of the community bring in for sale. The Lions feel that a sale in December should give many farmers an opportunity to dispose of some of their farming equipment, livestock and other items that they wish to sell.

In case any item does not bring the desired price, the owner has the privilege of passing up the bid at no charge. A five percent commission will be charged on all items selling for $10.00 or more. A ten percent commission will be charged on all items selling for less than $10.00. The proceeds from the commission will go to the Silverton Lions Club Community improvement program. At the present time the Lions are concentrating on improving the City Park. A wading pool and some park tables were added to the park last summer and the Lions want to put some additional playground equipment on the park. If any one wishes to donate articles for this cause, the Lions will be glad to accept anything of value and enter it in the sale.

The local machinery dealers have been invited to display some of their farm machinery during the show and sale. All machinery and livestock will be located on the vacant lots east of the Court House. The items for sale will be on the pavement on the east side of the square.

Silverton "Pioneer Party" Becomes an Area Festival!

Nov. 29—Story unavoidably delayed for publication in the News.

The day of the covered wagon and the sidesaddle, the hand powered butter churn and the blueback speller, flourished again here last week. The occasion was a "pioneer party" at the farm home of Mrs. J. H. Burson, and the ages of the 18 guests of honor totaled rather more than 1,200 years. By the time the session of dining, visiting, and remembering was over, these members of the Good Samaritan Adult Sunday School Class and some 250 other guests agreed the celebration ought to become an annual item on the community calendar.

The idea of the party occurred several weeks ago. Mrs. Burson, 75 years old and a resident of Briscoe county since 1907, decided she would invite her fellow members of the First Baptist Church Sunday school class to a pre-Thanksgiving dinner. Turkey would be served on a red-checked tablecloth, and the Burson home, some 7 miles east of Silverton, would be decorated with Mrs. Burson's fine collection of old-time furniture and utensils.

Then something happened. Word of the "pioneer party" got around. Members of the class were delighted by the notion of putting the antiques on display. They rummaged in attics and sheds and brought to light their own stores of old possessions. They sorted out the best of these and carried them to the Burson home.

Other members of the congregation asked to be allowed to do the same. Finally, townfolk-at-large heard rumors of the party. Why not, they suggested, put the display on a community basis? Mrs. Burson agreed. When the festive day arrived, the Burson home had become a museum of the treasured possessions of families for miles around.

Rev. G. A. Elrod, pastor of First Baptist Church, pitched in and pushed the program along. Mrs. Burson's neighbors helped with the dinner. Her son Johnnie Burson of Silverton looked to supplies and arrangements, and her daughter, Mrs. Clifford Davis and Mrs. Glenn Allen, both of Amarillo, and Luree Burson of Silverton, were on hand to help with the reception and refreshments.

Then Mrs. Burson's brother, J. W. Young of Lubbock, arrived on the scene. He brought with him a replica of the wagon that won the West. The canvas-topped freighter was parked in the yard. Near the wagon, a live, snorting longhorn steer was pegged out to complete the illusion of a South Plains landscape of '96.

Mr. Young dispensed coffee and doughnuts from the freighter, while visitors crowded around to examine a stock of old-time farm tools, iron-mongery, churns, butter moulds, coffee mills, and wooden bowls.

Entering the Burson home, visitors stepped into the world of the pioneer. At one side was displayed a representative collection of guns and powderhorns. After it came a display of the straight razors—some of fine Sheffield steel—that cropped pioneer beards. Then a sidesaddle and riding habit—the standard equipment of the fashionable but modest lady—awoke nostalgic

People are Urged to Drive and Park Right in Silverton

A few weeks ago the City of Silverton went to considerable time and expense to clean the streets and plainly mark them so that everyone could drive and park correctly. For sometime there was a noticeable difference in the driving and parking on the street. The people as a whole were very cooperative, and since the rain the marking has become dim, and people are inclined to drop back in the old habit of 'just driving any way in Silverton.'

The City Council has asked that the News call everyone's attention to the importance of their driving and parking according to the marking, and the City Ordinance recently passed. As soon as the city can get back to this work they will clean and remark the street in order to make it more easily for the driver to read.

Since the City has gone to considerable expense and trouble to mark the streets, every driver is urged to observe all driving regulations and park right.

Reverend Elrod contributed a 200-year-old violin and obliged by compelling a couple of tunes from it.

In the book and arts section, visitors stared with mixed emotions at a complete set of Me-Guffey's Readers and the familiar old blueback spellers. Then they fingered handloomed and hand-woven coverlets colored with home-made vegetable dyes and they examined an apron some 105 years old. They saw a Quaker collar estimated to be all of a couple of centuries old.

For the ladies, the center of interest was a tailor's chart and patterns of a couple of generations ago. Experts noted the similarity of "cut" among the various patterns, remarking that distinction in women's dress was achieved by trim rather than style.

Some 40 special guests were served at the class' dinner.

Besides Mrs. Burson, members included Mrs. Mattie Perry, Mrs. A. A. Dunagan, Mrs. W. A. Rowell, Mrs. M. E. Bragg, Mrs. Ben Gervin, Mrs. Mollie London, Mrs. Cora Donnell, Mrs. F. M. Autry, Mrs. W. A. Army Offers Aliens Citizenship Plus Career in New Plan

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The old sergeant's admonition—"You've found a home in the Army"—literally may come true for 12,500 alien youths. They may volunteer to serve five years in the Army and qualify for an enlistment "bonus" of United States citizenship under provisions of a new, history-making program.

Training of 2,500 men in the first phase of the Alien Enlistment Program will begin this month. Most of these prospective soldiers are Europeans—many of them "stateless" citizens of countries behind the Iron Curtain. Young men from other areas of the world may be enlisted during a later phase of the program if it is determined that their services would be desirable.

The foreign nationals are expected to furnish valuable, specialist talents which the Army needs but is unable to obtain in sufficient quantity from its native-born troops. As linguists and skilled craftsmen, they will be available for world-wide assignment after basic and advanced military training is completed.

The six-month-old program enabling these men—many of them with past military experience and a command of several languages—to enter the Army was established nearly a year ago by the 81st Congress. The law is the first in history to make non-resident, foreign-born nationals acceptable for the Army.

The Army plans to treat and train the foreign soldiers on an equal basis with other members of the service. Its aim is that "they will lose their identity as aliens as fast as possible."

While more than enough applications were received to fill the initial phase of AEP (2,500 quota) screening of the candidates for security and other qualifications will eliminate some of them. A strict background investigation is used to throw out applications of undesirable aliens, regardless of their nationality.

Volunteers for the career-citizenship enlistment plan can be accepted from any country other than Germany or nations participating either in the European Recovery Plan or North Atlantic Treaty, according to Department of Army policy.

Sailor Demoted in Rank After One-Man Crusade

BAINBRIDGE, Md.—Squaking about Army and Navy chow is old stuff to service veterans, but it got Bruce Hopping, a sailor, into trouble.

Hopping, a yeoman third class, was restricted to quarters after he admitted passing out mimeographed handbills suggesting that other sailors write their congressmen about conditions at the base.

There was talk of a court-martial, but Rear Admiral R. O. Davis, 5th Naval District Commander, suggested "appropriate disciplinary action short of judicial action."

Yeoman Hopping is now Seaman Hopping.

"I suppose Ed will be over here pretty soon," Pfc. William J. Menchen said. "We all followed Dave into the Corps and I guess Ed will follow him over here like Lon and I did."

The four Marines' foster parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Barron, 965 Park Street, Alameda.

Attorney Denies Mussolini's Body Returned to Family

ROME, Italy—The body of Benito Mussolini has not been returned to his family, the attorney for his widow has declared, because "the living are afraid of the dead."

The attorney, Italo Formicella, a friend of Il Duce during the last two years of the Fascist regime, denied that the body was to be returned for burial in the hometown cemetery at Predappio.

The whereabouts of the body is still unknown. After he was slain by partisans, Mussolini's body was buried in a Milan cemetery, but was later stolen and taken to Pavia. The government recovered it, however, and buried it in a secret place to prevent another theft.

Shooting Laws Are Varied In Different Districts

Restrictive shooting laws will not entirely eliminate hunting accidents, but some measures directed toward that end have undoubtedly made substantial contributions to the safety of hunters, individual and collective.

Many state game and fish departments now annually sponsor safe gun handling campaigns, with the wardens conducting classes among adult and junior sportsmen alike. These efforts are making very definite headway in the decrease of hunting accidents in these particular states. Shooting laws are not uniform throughout the country and sportsmen will do well to carefully study those of their home states and any states they expect to visit. These are some of the variations as contained in a recent article in "South Dakota Conservation Digest":

Six states prohibit hunting from or shooting over a highway. In Maryland you cannot shoot within 100 yards of a highway. In Delaware and Mississippi it is illegal to hunt game when the ground is covered with snow. Three states make it unlawful to shoot from a boat. Several states prohibit the carrying of firearms in an automobile unless they are unloaded and taken down or securely cased.

At least four states make it unlawful to hunt on Sundays and in Massachusetts and New Jersey, it is illegal to use a rifle in hunting deer. In Louisiana you cannot hunt from a deer camp for more than three days. In several states it is unlawful to carry a shotgun afield between July 1 and the opening of the hunting season. At least five states provide penalties for hunting while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Scotch Tin Peddler Became Idol of Colombian Indians

From remote areas of the Colombian jungles the Smithsonian Institution is receiving from travelers Indian "medicine staffs," canes with carved human effigy heads. Among them is a staff with a figurine head of a man wearing a visored Scotch cap and a Scotch vest of the late seventeenth century. His features can be recognized from portraits still extant. It is this man's strange fate to have become the "latest of the gods" with a cult which, during two and a half centuries, has spread far among the Indian tribes of tropical South America.

The man was James Patterson, founder of the Bank of England. Before that he was a Scotch tin peddler who walked through the English northern counties with a pack of tinware on his back. During the last years of the seventeenth century he promoted a scheme to establish Scotch colonies on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of Panama. These would act as clearinghouses for all trade with the Orient and Europe through the Isthmus. One colony was established in 1698 at Caledonia Bay on the Caribbean coast of Darien, but it failed at the end of two years. Only a few of Patterson's followers escaped alive after disease struck the settlement. But apparently he had made a tremendous impression on the Panama Indians, for they believed that he possessed supernatural powers; and after he left he was elevated to the status of spirit advisor, and his likeness appeared on the staffs of medicine men far beyond Darien where he first made his appearance.

Dermatitis One of Hazards Physicians Often Encounter

A physician is subject to more hazards than the industrial worker. Dr. Ervin H. Epstein, a dermatologist of Oakland, Calif., reported at a meeting of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Epstein spoke before the Section on Preventive and Industrial Medicine and Public Health at the association's annual meeting. His opinion was based on a questionnaire sent to leading dermatologists in the United States, Canada and Hawaii.

The returns showed that physicians are exposed to many irritating chemicals and infections in their professional routine. Dermatitis through contact is the most common type of injury suffered. Among the common causes were prolonged scrubbing of hands preparatory to surgery, rubber gloves, local anesthetics, antiseptics and antibiotics.

He reported that apparently infections are comparatively uncommon but may be acquired accidentally from patients.

"The practicing physician is exposed constantly to organisms that have proved their virulence by producing a patient," said Dr. Epstein. "Virus diseases may be acquired also from infected patients."

Among the most unusual infections reported, he said, were three cases of tuberculosis of the skin from autopsies.

"Phui" Is International

When the wind blows down the Shatt al 'Arab, skullcapped Iranian fishermen are apt to grimace, jerk a thumb upstream, and say: "Naft . . . phui!" "Naft" is Persian for petroleum. "Phui" is the world-wide reaction of the human nose for an upwind oil refinery. And on the Shatt al 'Arab at the head of the Persian Gulf is Abadan, world's largest single processing plant for crude petroleum and storm center of current Iranian proposals to nationalize the country's British operated oil industry.

Atomic Thunderclaps

The thunderclap of the atom is coming to a silent land where only the long-dead echoes of forty-niner wagon trains keep the jackrabbits company. In dry desolation and bitter dust, ringed by sun-bleached ghost towns of the southern Nevada basin, the Atomic Energy Commission has marked off its newest testing ground. Progress reports on new atomic weapons will be written in fire and blast over a 5,000-square mile reservation which the National Geographic Society describes as one of the emptiest areas of the United States. Here even sagebrush gives way.

Noise and Music

Noise, as well as music, is a series of sound waves in the air. In general it can be said that the musical note lasts for a relatively long time, and that its intensity and frequency (the number of vibrations per second) are rather uniform. A noise, on the other hand, is a series of waves that is either very brief, or very irregular in frequency and intensity, so that it does not mean anything to us when we hear it! However, the exact dividing line between music and noise is a psychological one, and depends largely on one's training. Years ago, when first written, much of Wagner's music seemed very unmusical to many people, but now that we are used to it, it sounds very beautiful. Similarly, to many of us, the work of some modern composers is only noise, while trained musicians consider it to be musical.

Meteorology Popular Course With Penn State Students

Weather plays a part in the life of everyone, yet few know very much about it.

With this in mind, the Pennsylvania State College six years ago introduced a survey course in meteorology which covers the non-technical aspects of the weather.

John Sherrod, Jr., who conducts the course, reported to the American Meteorology Society meeting at Penn State that about 3,000 students have enrolled for the program during the past six years.

The students came from practically all of the 59 curricula offered at Penn State, covered a wide age group, and women as well as men were enrolled.

A survey of the students revealed that while many of them read the daily weather forecast when they enrolled for the course, all of them followed it closely after completing the survey course.

Sherrod also learned that when the students enrolled, many of them had no clear understanding of terms used in the forecast, particularly as concerned degrees of cloudiness.

"Possibly that is why many people read the forecast and then accuse the weatherman of doing a poor job," Sherrod says.

Current Conductors

With direct current, the flow steadily in one direction, electricity is conducted through the center of a wire as well as the surface layers. This is true of alternating current, which flows first one direction, then the other, when the rate of change is relatively low. But with higher frequencies, of millions of times per second, there is the "skin effect." Magnetic forces, cause a repulsion between the unit charges. They try to get as far away from each other as possible, thus going along the surface. For such high frequencies, therefore, a tube is as good a conductor as a solid wire.

Double Insomnia

If insomnia could be likened to hotel guests, it would fall into two categories—the transient and the permanent. Although the two can be compared in this respect, the goal of the hotel management and the insomniac is entirely different. While the hotel man likes to take care of every whim of the transient guest so that he will return often, the permanent guest is of first importance and causes him the most concern. In the same way, one may try various soporifics or just not worry about transient insomnia, but permanent or chronic sleepless nights are of much greater significance. While occasional sleepless nights are annoying, they are not a serious affliction.

Savings Bonds

Three years of detective work have reduced undelivered U.S. savings bonds purchased by United States Army men and women from 38,356 to 8,228. Bond Allotment Division investigators of the Army Finance Center at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, have located the owners of 60,131 savings bonds since February of 1948. Meanwhile, investigators hope to place the remaining 8,228 bonds, worth $167,575, in the hands of their owners. The Post Office has had to return the bonds to the Army Finance Center because of incorrect addresses. More than $5,000,000 in undelivered bonds was on hand at one time.

How to Broil a Small Turkey

Use a young turkey weighing 2 to 4 pounds. Have turkey split in half lengthwise for broiling. Break drumstick, hip and wing joints to keep bird flat during broiling. Flatten halves—skewer leg to body. Fold wing tip back under wing. Skewer wing flat against cut edge of backbone.

Season each half turkey with about 1/4 teaspoon salt and a sprinkling of pepper.

Place turkey in broiler pan (not on rack). Brush with melted fat and then place skin side down.

Broil slowly—place in broiler 5 to 7 inches under heat source. Regulate heat or pan position so that turkey just begins to brown lightly in 10 minutes. Cook slowly.

Turn and brush with fat two or three times during broiling to brown and cook evenly. Total cooking time, 50 to 60 minutes for 2 1/2 pound ready-to-cook turkey.

Test for doneness—the turkey is done when meat on the thickest part of the drumstick cuts easily and there is no pink color visible.

Serve on warm platter with pan drippings poured over turkey.

If giblets are served with broiled turkey, coat the liver and precooked heart and gizzard with fat, season and broil just long enough to brown.

How to Roast a Small Turkey

Young turkeys of any size may be roasted. Stuff turkey just before roasting. Stuffing prepared in advance must be refrigerated. Allow 1 cup of stuffing per pound ready-to-cook weight.

Stuffing and trussing—rub cavity of bird with 1/2 to 1 teaspoon salt. Stuff body and wishbone cavities lightly.

Close by placing skewers across the body opening and lacing shut with cord.

The drumsticks securely to tail. Fasten neck skin to back with skewer. Shape wings "akimbo" style, bringing tips onto back.

Roasting technique—brush skin with melted fat. Poultry seasoning or other herbs may be sprinkled over the surface.

Place trussed bird, breast down, on a rack at least 1/2 inch high in a shallow open pan.

Lay fat-moistened thin cloth (large enough to drape down the sides) over top of turkey.

Slow roasting—roast at low temperature. See timetable below. Do not sear. Do not add water. Do not cover.

Turn bird breast up when about 3/4 done. Roast until tender. See timetable.

If cloth dries during cooking, moisten cloth with fat from bottom of pan.

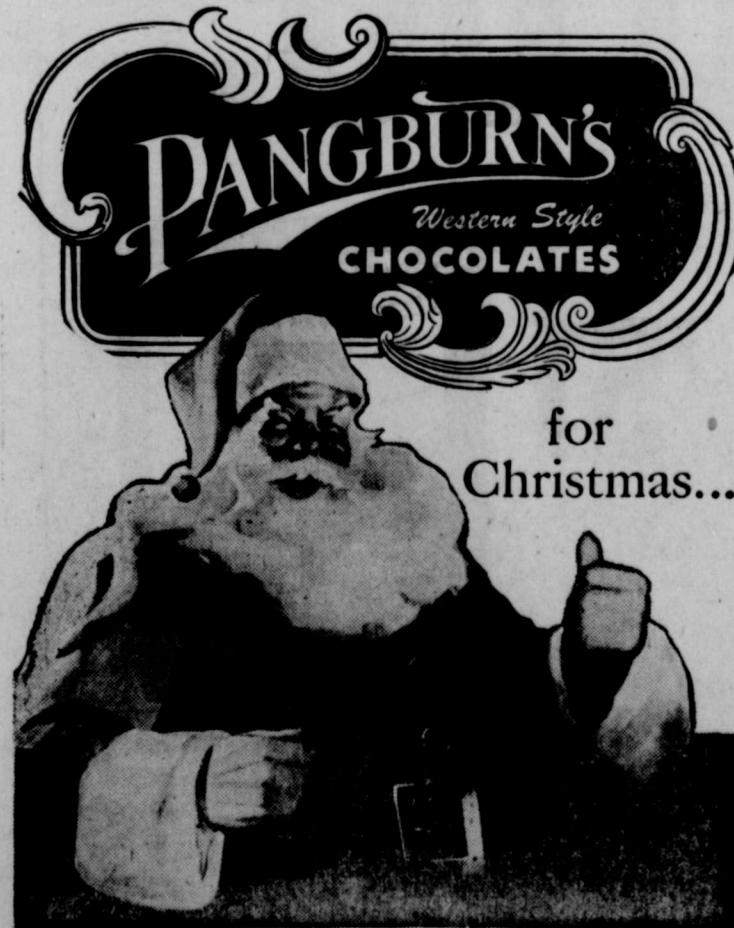

Test for doneness—move leg by grasping end of the bone. The drumstick-high joint breaks or moves easily. Or, press drumstick meat between fingers. Meat should be very soft when done. Do not pierce meat with fork.

Timetable for Roasting

Ready-to-Cook Weight (pounds)	Oven Temperature (F.)	Total Cooking Time—Hours
2 to 4	350	2 1/2 to 3
4 to 6	325	3 to 3 1/2
6 to 8	325	3 1/2 to 4

(These times are approximate. Roasting time will vary slightly with individual birds.)

Are some of your Series E Government Bonds maturing this month?

Now they can earn more money for you!

New law provides 10 more interest-earning years for your Series E Bonds . . . and you need not do a thing!

Are you one of those smart and patriotic Americans who began an automatic saving program with Series E Government Bonds in 1941? Then you're one of the lucky people who can profit by a new law now!

A bill recently passed by Congress now makes it possible for your United States Defense Bonds to continue earning interest ten years longer than was originally planned.

For example, a Series E Bond which cost you $18.75 in 1941 will pay you $25 in 1951. But if you hold that bond ten extra years, until 1961, it will pay you $33.33, an average interest of 2.9% compounded annually. You get similar increases on Series E Bonds of every denomination.

And there is nothing for you, as a bond holder, to do. You need not exchange the bonds you have. You need not sign any paper, fill out any form. You simply keep your bonds as you have been keeping them.

You may still redeem any Series E Bond at any time after you've owned it for sixty days. But unless you really need the cash you're much better off to hold your bonds. For United States Defense Bonds are as safe as America itself.

When you buy your bonds regularly and hold them, they are steadily building a sum big enough to buy something really worth while—a home, a business, a retirement fund, an education for your children.

And bonds are safer than cash! If you lose or accidentally destroy cash it's gone for good. But when you have your cash in United States Defense Bonds, the U. S. Treasury will replace lost or destroyed bonds at no cost or loss to you.

So if some of your bonds are coming due, take advantage of this new offer of your government—just sit back and let them go on making money. Meanwhile keep adding to your savings by buying more U. S. Defense Bonds regularly—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank.

If you want to be paid your interest as current income—

The new law also allows you to exchange your Series E Bonds, in blocks of $500 or more, for Special Series G Bonds which pay interest semiannually at the rate of 2½% per year. For full details, ask at any Federal Reserve Bank.

Look how your maturing bonds go on earning under the new law!
(This table shows $25, $50, and $100 bonds as examples of how All Series E Bonds grow.)

Leghorn Suited Geographically For U. S. Base

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The new U. S. supply base at Leghorn, Italy, which recently handled 1,200 debar-king troops, is picking up a story where it ended four years ago.

At that time the port was marked "exit" for the last of the home-ward-bound American forces station- ed in Italy during and after World War II.

Today, as then, geography helped dictate the use of Leghorn—Livorno in Italian—as a convenient distribu- tion point.

With one of the best harbors of the peninsula, this seaport is more than 300 sailing miles closer to New York than are Germany's Bremen and Hamburg. It is also somewhat nearer than the northern ports to the American occupation zone in Austria, for which most of the lately landed troops were destined.

In addition, Leghorn has the strategic advantage of offering a southern route into central Europe in case of northern blockade. Its position on Italy's open west coast especially favors it over eastern possibilities on the Adriatic, where the relatively narrow entrance at Otranto Strait presents a potential enemy bottleneck.

Wartime Prize Leghorn was considered a valuable prize when it was captured by the Allies in July, 1944. The port had ranked after Naples and Genoa, with a daily shipping capacity of 17,500 tons.

In the struggle, Allied bombs and demolition by retreating Germans virtually wrecked the city and all its port facilities. So complete was the devastation that incoming American engineers found it simpler to build a new port near by than to repair the old one. Only an estimated 20,000 of Leghorn's 125,000 inhabitants then remained in the gutted town.

By 1949, the city's population had passed the old mark and reached nearly 145,000. Although returning GI's find the town still battered, and American base officers complain that its silt-laden channel needs dredging to accommodate large ships, port activities are booming.

Extensive shipbuilding has been resumed, and the Italian Naval Academy (Italy's Annapolis) is giving instruction despite treaty limitations on the size of Italy's navy.

Old Commercial Center Ancient, canal-laced Leghorn through the centuries has been preeminently a commercial center. First mentioned in the 8th century, this Tuscany town came into prominence and prosperity in late medieval times as a free port for Mediterranean trade.

Under the Medici, who built it up and fortified it, the city gained a still-persisting international flavor when it invited there "men of East and West, Spaniards and Portuguese, Greeks, Germans, Italians, Hebrews, Turks, Moors, Armenians, and Persians."

Among the numerous and varied industries of Leghorn, the visitor looks in vain for the expected Leghorn hat manufacture. This fine-woven Tuscany straw is produced in Fiesole, a suburb of Florence. Like "Panama" hats, made elsewhere, Leghorns took their name from the port from which they were shipped.

Farm Folk Prefer to Buy Feed Sold in Cotton Bags

MEMPHIS—Farm folk prefer to buy feed in cotton bags. Surveys at four state fairs show this to be true. Cotton bags, because of their re-use value, appeal to farm wives. Almost 2,000 women were interviewed at state fairs in Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, and California.

More than 60 per cent of these women prefer that their husbands buy the 50 lb. dress print bag. They stood by this preference even when told that the cotton bag costs 15 per cent more than other type bags.

More than 90 per cent of the women consider the dress print bag worth 20 cents to them. They set the value of the bleached cotton bag at 17 cents, and the unbleached bag at 15 cents.

Large Mustache, Biggest In Egypt to Bristle Again

CAIRO, Egypt — Traffic policeman Mohammed Ibrahim Sayed Ahmed can grow back his magnificent mustache.

His superiors had ordered it clipped because it distracted drivers and snarled traffic in Alexandria. Ahmed was then sent to an isolated village.

The policeman was vindicated after a year long legal battle over the thick black mustache. He was awarded one piastre (3 cents) for "moral damage." The judgment permits him to sue for "real damages" later if he wants to.

Before he was clipped and exiled, Ahmed had the finest mustache in all Egypt. It jutted upward in twin tapering spikes.

New 1952 Pontiac Features Performance

First of the General Motors divisions to announce 1952 models, Pontiac is currently displaying what's new for '52 in dealer showrooms here and throughout the country. Shown above is the popular Super DeLuxe Catalina. Higher standards of performance and fuel economy are achieved by a newly designed "power train".

1952 Pontiac on Display at Bomar One-Stop Pontiac

Pontiac, Mich. Dec. 6.—Pontiac Division of General Motors today lifted the curtain on its models for 1952 which feature an entirely new power train consisting of a new dual-range Hydra-Matic transmission, higher compression engines and the lowest rear axle gear ratio (3.08 to 1) yet to appear on American passenger cars.

The combination, according to engineers responsible for the development, results in new standards of performance and economy for the 1952 cars, at the same time providing two separate driving ranges, a flexibility in driving that meets extreme conditions of heavy city traffic or safe, smooth travel on the open highway.

In addition to the new power train, the 1952 Pontiac models, now on display in dealer showrooms throughout the country, feature a number of important styling changes and refinements. There are new colors available both for interiors and exteriors of all models. Interior colors are provided in a choice of grey, blue or green to match or harmonize with the color selected for the body. These interiors combine solid colors with matching tritone check patterns used for seat upholstery. Window mouldings and instrument panels are similarly styled according to body color.

The newest Silver Streak models are offered with six and eight cylinder high compression engines, each series having five standard and five deluxe models, and one super deluxe, the Catalina.

Throughout the entire line a number of innovations have been made in ornamentation which quickly distinguish the models from their predecessors. This is a revised edition of the characteristic Pontiac hood ornament, modified the radiator grill, and changes in the belt trunk handles and moldings.

While these and other appearance changes combine to distinguish the new models, the light among new Pontiacs is the Dual-Range Hydra-Drive. The owner of the 1952 model is provided with completely optional ranges, each having characteristics which are suitable for two different of driving conditions.

One of these systems is the usual first, second, third and fourth gear speed range, giving smooth, economical performance for country and highway driving. The second is particularly adapted for congested traffic or mountain territory.

To see and understand about this new car see it on display at Bomar One-Stop Pontiac here in Silvertown.

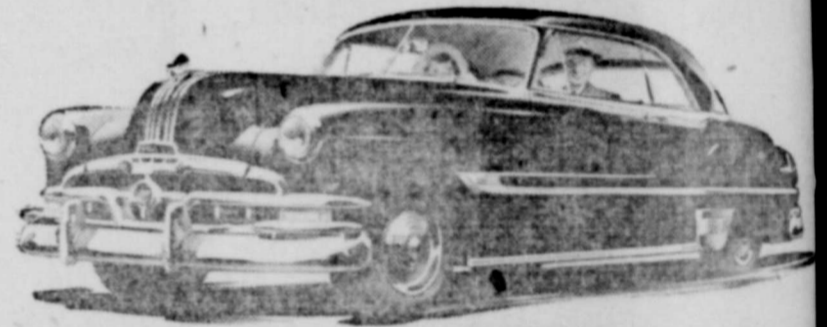

Allen and Buster Dickerson, Lubbock, visited their parents, Mrs. W. A. Dickerson and Mr. P. D. Jasper and daughter, Dawn, visited her mother, Mrs. Pool, in Colorado.
