Pay and allowances upon commissioning range from $355.75 to $430.75 a month.

Hd. Third Air Reserve District, Austin, Texas

It is possible for a basic airman to up his monthly pay from $80 to $415 within a year in the U. S. Air Force today.

"A 19-year old youth with no college education is not likely to find such an opportunity often," pointed out Major Wiley S. Adams, project officer for 3rd Air Reserve District's drive to interest young men in pilot and observer training.

Aviation Cadet training is now open to qualified airmen high school graduates, Major Adams said. The previous two-year college requirement has been dropped. Also the minimum age limit has been lowered from 20 to 19 years.

While in training, cadets receive food, uniforms, flight clothes, equipment, housing, medical and dental care, monthly allowances of $105, and free $10,000 life insurance policies.

Upon graduation, they receive commissions, their wings, uniform allowances, a 30 day leave with pay, and begin drawing salaries starting at $415 a month.

Airmen have a choice of the 13-month pilot training course, 12 month single observer course, which trains them to be navigator-bombardier-radar officers, and the six month radar observer course.

As soon as an airman's eligibility for acceptance is established, he will be frozen from over seas service, Major Adams said. "Another feature," added Major Adams, "is the omission of all unnecessary delays. Eligibility is expected to be established within five days after the application has been received, with assignment of successful airmen to classes within three months. Accepted applicants may state a geographical preference for schools giving their particular type of training.

Further information is available at 3rd Air Reserve District Headquarters, 1414 Lavaca in Austin, or any Army and Air Force Recruiting Station.

Archeologists Find Temple To Love, War

CHICAGO—A 4,000-year-old temple for Inanna, the Goddess of Love and War, was unearthed by archeologists of the University of Chicago and the University of Pennsylvania at their joint dig at Nippur, Iraq, Donald E. McCown, field director and associate professor of archeology at the University of Chicago Oriental Institute, has reported.

One of the most monumental discoveries made by a postwar archeological expedition, the temple was one of three "finds" made in one week by the university scientists at the site some 100 miles south of modern Baghdad.

Stacked Like Books

The temple was discovered on a Tuesday. On Monday hundreds of tablets of the oldest-known language—Sumerian—were unearthed in the scribal quarters adjacent to the temple site. Stacked like books against the wall of a scribe's home, the tablets are expected to increase vastly the scholars' knowledge of Sumerian life and religion.

A third discovery, three large Sumerian statues from the early Dynasty (2300 B.C.), one with a royal inscription, was reported to the Oriental Institute by cable just after the announcement of the temple and tablet finds was made.

Described by Director McCown as "a rich haul," the discoveries were made when the scientists were just getting ready to close down for the season. Oriental Institute and the university museum have just authorized an extension of the expedition.

Complete Surprise

The discovery of Inanna's temple came as a complete surprise to the archeologists, who were looking instead for the temples of the family of the paramount god, Enlil. Enlil's temples, dating back to 2200 B.C., were excavated at five different levels by the University of Chicago and the University of Pennsylvania in 1948 and '50.

This 'Boston Tea Party' Staged To Aid England

STAMFORD, Conn.—A week's tea binge was held by 75,000 citizens recently in honor of Winston Churchill. It was part of an international drive to increase tea drinking in the United States and to help the tea-producing Sterling areas of the British Commonwealth and Republic of Indonesia to earn more dollars.

The event got under way in a very un-tea-party-like way, with a rollicking, noisy two-and-one-half mile-long parade led by the Mayor and the "Hot Tea Queen" of 1952. Behind them came Connecticut's Sen. William Benton, the consul-general of Indonesia, the vice consul of the British consulate, personal representatives of the Ambassadors of India, Ceylon and Pakistan, the President of the tea association of the United States, and the President of the tea bureau.

As the king-sized procession waded through the town, tea-sipping Stamfordites saw floats laden with beautiful girls, antiquated cars, jazz bands, clowns, animals, marching bands, celebrities and cowboys. The parade was as hot and hearty as tea itself and for Stamford it was the greatest thing since P. T. Barnum.

Bride Accuses Her Mama Of Stealing New Hubby

CLEVELAND—The pretty wife of an air force private said that her husband wanted to marry her mother, 42.

Pfc. Kevin McDonald, 30, dated his mother-in-law when he was home on leave from an Air Force base in Phoenix, Ariz. Mrs. Rosemary McDonald, 22, told Judge Joseph A. Artl.

The bride introduced a letter her husband allegedly wrote to her mother, Mrs. Mary Jane Nye.

"My every thought is for you Love is such a wonderful thing, and I want to confess I love you so very much . . . How I need you and wish you were here so I could bundle you into my arms and hug and kiss you."

Mrs. McDonald, who lives with her mother, charged gross neglect and extreme cruelty in the divorce action she filed last summer.

D.P.'s Charge They Were Deprived of Liberty

ALBANY—Two displaced persons, Mr. and Mrs. August Pliskatis of Newark, initiated action in supreme court against John Smigel of Preston Hollow, N.Y., for denying them their liberty for more than 40 days.

The Pliskatis, natives of Lithuania, were brought to this country in 1949 from a D.P. camp in the British zone of Germany at the request of Mr. Smigel, according to the complaint.

They also asked $1,134 for 63 days of labor on the farm, and contended they had been detained so Mr. Smigel could continue to obtain their services.

Mr. Smigel denied the charges. He said they had received $80 a month and room and board for services and had been brought to the United States at their own request.

Korean War Caused a Rapid Rise in Child Labor Force

The war in Korea has caused a rapid rise in the number of school-age children in the national labor force, the National Child Labor Committee says in its annual report. The committee warns that the development calls for vigilance and often for action by citizen groups concerned with the health and welfare of young people.

The number of employed children (14-17 years old) rose sharply after the outbreak of hostilities in Korea. In October of 1951, according to a study by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, 2,344,000 children in the 14-17 age group were employed.

"It is the general experience of schools that few children who leave school for employment ever return to the classroom."

The major child labor problem today, the committee reports, "is the elimination of child exploitation on farms. 'Factories in the Fields' is more than the title of a book—it is a reality for thousands of children. Even 7 and 8 year olds are employed when they should be in school or at play, and many work under conditions similar to factory employment in the early days of the century.

Average Automobile Rider Is 40; Earns About $4,000

No one will admit being the average anything but you might want to know how close you come to being the "average automobile rider."

A survey shows the average automobile rider is a man just over 40 years old with an income of $4,371 a year. He's in the "sales and insurance" occupational group and 68.9 per cent of his car trips are for business. Second most important use of his car is shopping.

He rides in a 7-year-old car bought on the installment plan. He takes 2.57 rides on an average winter day at an average of 8.05 miles a trip. The car in which he rides makes 3.9 trips a day with a daily total mileage of 32 miles and carries 1.8 per tons a trip.

Sunday mornings, "Mr. Average" shines up the car, loads in the family after dinner and spends the afternoon fuming at other average automobile riders he insists hog the road.

Car Sickness Cure

Summer is on the way and many families will be wanting to take their dog on Sunday afternoon or week-end motor trips. But, as many dog owners have sadly discovered, a large proportion of dogs don't enjoy motor tours because they become car-sick. Many veterinarians believe that in most cases dogs suffer car-sickness merely because they are frightened. The dog is too often introduced to automobiles by being unceremoniously dragged to a car and thrust resistingly through a door. The dog reacts exactly as many humans would do to a similar experience. The cure is to place the dog in the car while it is parked in the home driveway. At first, leave one door open. Sit beside the dog and pet him. Let him leave after only three or four minutes. Repeat the routine two or three times a week, extending the time in the car. As soon as the dog ceases to show signs of nervousness or distaste for the car, take him for a very short ride. Drive slowly and without jerks. Even a long-standing tendency to car-sickness can be cured by patient use of this method.

Farm Fire Dangers

One of the most important factors in the changing operation of farm and the farm home is electricity, which has replaced much manual labor and made living conditions more pleasant. But, at the same time, electricity has contributed greatly to the danger of fire, because it is so little understood and so much abused through misuse of electrical equipment. Among the most common ideas is the false notion that it is a "nuisance" when a fuse blows out. Instead of realizing that a fuse in an electrical circuit is a safety device or valve, the average farm-dweller becomes irritated because it is necessary to change the fuse. He forgets that there is a serious reason for the fuse "blowing", and the cause should be located and corrected before the overloaded circuit causes a disastrous fire.

Fine Wood Finishes

It is frequently possible for amateurs to produce finer wood finishes than many large-scale furniture manufacturers because they have the time to spare and are willing to give the personal care necessary. By properly applying fundamentals and turn out fine wood finishes which would be uneconomical to produce in popular-priced furniture. Preparation of the wood is a vital part of the work. Sanding thoroughly, dusting and wiping carefully afterwards are important factors. To seal the wood, to prevent resin from bleeding through and to bring out the natural beauty of the wood, shellac is widely recommended.

Mobilgas Economy Run

New Ford Mileage Maker SIX Thriftiest in its Field!

Again this year! . . . Ford was first in gas economy over all cars in its price class in the Mobilgas Economy Run. In this toughest test, a Ford Six with Overdrive (optional at extra cost) averaged 53.855 ton-miles per gallon and 25.463 actual miles per gallon. A very important contributing factor is Ford's Automatic Power Pilot which squeezes the last ounce of power out of every drop of gas. Pounded for pound, Ford's All-New Mileage Maker Six is definitely the most economical low-priced car to run!

*The AAA Contest Board determines the winner by a "ton-mile per gallon" formula to insure equal chance for all cars in each class regardless of size and weight. Ton-miles per gallon equals the car weight (including passengers) in tons, multiplied by number of miles traveled, divided by number of gallons consumed.

Farm Worker Won't Accept Higher Wages

ROCK GAP, W. Va.—Joe Miller will accept no higher wages than one dollar a day. He believes "a man isn't worth more than that."

Joe has worked on farms in Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia as butcher, blacksmith, veterinarian, machinist, farmer, carpenter for a dollar per day plus meals.

His services are in demand—not because of the low wages but because of his skill.

Is he carrying on a one man battle against inflation? No. He's fighting to keep his integrity. He thinks $1 per day is all he's worth.

"Most people have only one job and that's all they do or can do. Left to themselves most would starve to death," he says.

He builds barns and houses, operates and repairs threshing machines, tractors and wagons, sharpens saws and scythes, treats sick cows, horses, hogs and chickens, shears sheep, tans and cures hides, and blacksmiths.

He adds to these earning skills by shooting hawks for the bounty and raising a garden and chickens, hunting and bartering with farmers.

"And remember," he explains, "I seldom eat at home."

Miller lives in a ramshackle four room house far out in the country. He helped build the place 40 years ago.

Most people work just to make money and more money," says the Morgan county bachelor.

"Then they take the money and use it to clutter up their lives with pleasure stuff. They buy and buy; prices rise higher and higher; and nobody enjoys one-tenth of what he has.

"A man ought to work first for pleasure and pride in a job well done—not just for money, money, money."

"Living is a matter of government. And good government begins with self-government. If men would try to govern themselves, the country would be on its feet in right smart time," Miller says.

Farmers hire the versatile farm hand as much as six months in advance. And though he does not record the dates, he never forgets a promised day's work.

"There's nothing marvelous about it," Miller says. "I don't clutter up my mind with worry and wants and such junk."

He does make a concession for married men.

"He'll need more than a dollar per day. I'd say another 50c a day for his wife and for every child under 12. Though that may be a bit high. Because, remember, a man can also sell timber, honey, milk, chickens and eggs to make money—if he needs it."

Son Follows Directions And Is Saved by Mother

PITTSBURGH—George Eckert, two, and father, James, were walking their dog near their home. The boy vanished.

"I looked through the brush and weeds and saw a hole," the father said. "I couldn't see George but I could hear him calling me. I yelled for help."

The hole was an 18 inch wide, 25 foot deep abandoned gas well shaft.

The boy's mother responded, learned what had happened and ran back home for her clothes line.

The parents couldn't pull George out. When they got him up a few feet the rope would slip from the boy's tiny hands. The father made a noose. Mrs. Eckert lowered it down the hole, talking softly to George:

"Put it over your head, darling. Drop it under your arms. Now hold up your arms."

A moment later, George called up:

"Okay, mommy. I'm all ready. Pull me up."

And up he came.

Trans-Continental Trip Costs Scots Only $20

FRESNO—Two Scottish teachers discovered they could travel across the U.S. for less than $20.

The two instructors, Robert Donald and John Cross of Motherwell, Scotland, came here to study American physical education methods. British currency regulations limited the amount of money to be taken from the country to $28 each for the travelers.

After crossing the Atlantic, with their fare paid in advance, the visitors hitch-hiked 4,413 miles from New York to Fresno, Calif., including several side trips, for a total expense of $19.50.

City Council Meetings Good As A Show Now

BENTON, Ill.—The council chamber's acoustics were so poor that spectators couldn't hear what was being discussed. It was a poor show. There were so many empty seats that the council operated almost in privacy.

A public address system was installed. The first night spectators liked it so well they applauded at the end as they would a good show. Mayor C. E. Hair predicts good attendance from now on.

1925 Study Club Met With Mrs. T. R. Whiteside

The Womans 1925 Study Club met April 15, in the home of Mrs. T. R. Whiteside with Mrs. Ben O. King, as co-hostess. After the business session five girls of the F. H. A. class modeled their dress under the supervision of Miss Gunn, their instructor. They also gave a demonstration in textile painting and wood chipping. The girls were Janet Turner, Faith Smith, Millie Marshall, Patsy Crass and Janice Turner.

Mrs. Wimberly had ask each member of the club to bring a piece of hand work. These were displayed and each woman told interesting facts about her work. The display included an appliqued quilt, hooked rug, felt rug, drawn work, paintings, crochet, embroidery and ceramics.

Refreshments of punch and cake squares were served to fourteen members and six guests.

1951 APPLICATIONS FOR PAYMENT

All except two 1951 applications for payment have been submitted to the state office for Agricultural Conservation Practices carried out in Briscoe County. Some of the producers have received their checks, but if you are one that has not it should be in the near future. Farmers are again urged to participate in the agricultural conservation program for 1952. Check with the PMA office on approved practices and complete your Farm Plan Designation Sheet covering the conservation work you plan to carry out during the 1952 year.

DID YOU KNOW

That PMA distributed over 620 million pounds of commodities to nonprofit school lunch programs, welfare agencies, and charitable institutions located in this country and its territories during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951? Recipients of these commodities included some 11 million school children, welfare groups, needy institutional inmates, and needy Indians. Other recipients of these commodities were victims of disasters, such as the floods in Kansas and Missouri last summer, and the recent tornado in Arkansas. In disaster situations, PMA's food distribution branch, in cooperation with Red Cross officials, State PMA committees, and local officials, has been able to furnish much-needed food within a matter of hours after the disaster has occurred.

The commodities distributed are acquired by the department under its price support and surplus removal programs, and by purchases made specifically for school lunch programs. In addition, over 200 million pounds of food acquired by the department through its price support operations were donated to private welfare organizations in the United States for the assistance of needy persons in 51 foreign countries.

For the current fiscal year, distribution of foods bought specifically for the school lunch program has been completed with the purchase of approximately 98 million pounds compared with 65 million in the 1950-51 school year. Distribution of price support and surplus removal foods, however, are still in progress, but will run considerably less than last year.

For a BETTER COTTON CROP

PROPER SEED TREATMENT MAY MAKE THIS DIFFERENCE

The photo above shows ten good cotton seedlings, well on the way to the kind of growth which can produce a good crop of cotton. This is the result you may expect when properly treated cottonseed is planted... seed that has been treated with a recommended seed disinfectant. Below, the effects of seed decay, sore-shin, and both pre-emergence and post-emergence damping-off are illustrated. This seed was not treated and this is one reason why it is often necessary to replant. Treated seed can be planted 3 to 5 days earlier—can get off to a good start even in cool weather. Once a good stand is established and growing well your chance for a better cotton crop increases.

ON BITING WIND AND COLD AND SNOW... his numb fingers bent around an M-1 rifle...this soldier is living with the same hardships suffered by General Washington's troops at Valley Forge 174 years ago.

His equipment is immeasurably better than any those first Yankees could have dreamed of. His chances of survival are equally improved. But, like them, he is doing a grim, hard job for the defense of his country.

Defense is your job, too. It is your job to maintain and support America's economic strength as this soldier is supporting her military strength.

It's an easy job...and one of the best ways to do it is by buying United States Defense Bonds regularly. For with bonds and other forms of savings you are making yourself and your country stable and strong. And America must be kept strong—economically as well as militarily. For we must always remember... in this cold-warring world, peace is only for the strong!

The U. S. Defense Bonds you buy give you personal financial independence

Don't forget that bonds are now a better buy than ever. Because now every Series E Bond you own can automatically go on earning interest every year for 20 years from date of purchase instead of 10 as before! This means that the bond you bought for $18.75 can return you not just $25—but as much as $33.33! A $37.50 bond pays $66.66. And so on. For your security, and your country's too, buy U. S. Defense Bonds now! Bankers recommend them as one of the safest forms of investment.

Peace is for the strong... Buy U.S. Defense Bonds now!

REAL ESTATE AND INSURANCE SILVERTON, TEXAS

Are some of your Series E Government Bonds maturing this month?

Now they can earn more money for you!

New law provides 10 more interest-earning years for your Series E Bonds . . . and you need not do a thing!

Are you one of those smart and patriotic Americans who began an automatic saving program with Series E Government Bonds in 1941? Then you're one of the lucky people who can profit by a new law now!

A bill recently passed by Congress now makes it possible for your United States Defense Bonds to continue earning interest ten years longer than was originally planned.

For example, a Series E Bond which cost you $18.75 in 1941 will pay you $25 in 1951. But if you hold that bond ten extra years, until 1961, it will pay you $33.33, an average interest of 2.9% compounded annually. You get similar increases on Series E Bonds of every denomination.

And there is nothing for you, as a bond holder, to do. You need not exchange the bonds you have. You need not sign any paper, fill out any form. You simply keep your bonds as you have been keeping them.

You may still redeem any Series E Bond at any time after you've owned it for sixty days. But unless you really need the cash you're much better off to hold your bonds. For United States Defense Bonds are as safe as America itself.

When you buy your bonds regularly and hold them, they are steadily building a sum big enough to buy something really worth while—a home, a business, a retirement fund, an education for your children.

And bonds are safer than cash! If you lose or accidentally destroy cash it's gone for good. But when you have your cash in United States Defense Bonds, the U. S. Treasury will replace lost or destroyed bonds at no cost or loss to you.

So if some of your bonds are coming due, take advantage of this new offer of your government—just sit back and let them go on making money. Meanwhile keep adding to your savings by buying more U. S. Defense Bonds regularly—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank.

If you want to be paid your interest as current income—

The new law also allows you to exchange your Series E Bonds, in blocks of $500 or more, for Special Series G Bonds which pay interest semiannually at the rate of 2½% per year. For full details, ask at any Federal Reserve Bank.

Look how your maturing bonds go on earning under the new law!
(This table shows $25, $50, and $100 bonds as examples of how All Series E Bonds grow.)

Elizabeth's Crown Tame Compared With Older Crowns

Crowns that look like crystal chandeliers, palace domes, and wonderful birds of prey have been worn by various rulers of great empires down through the ages.

Their awe-inspiring appearance would make the Jewel-studded crown that will grace the head of Elizabeth England's lovely, new queen, seem almost modest by comparison.

History research experts describe the "chandelier" crown that belonged to the Visigothic King Recarimund (649-672 A.D.) as "studded with jewels the size of robins' eggs and surrounded with long pendants with precious stones." The magnificent superstructure was suspended on a long chain which connected it with the main body of the crown and provided further opportunity for the imaginative flight of a royal jeweler's fancy.

When he married Princess Anna 888 A.D., the crown given Vladimir the Great of Russia by the Byzantine Emperor looked like a face dome that had been finely engraved and set with precious stones the size of fat plums. At the top was a circle of perfect pearls big as purple grapes, and out of the top there rose a jewel-encrusted cross.

The fabulous Cleopatra, who ruled Egypt during the days of the Roman Republic, wore the vulture-crown of Egyptian queens, topped by the horns and moons of Isis, the goddess of the land. What the crown lacked in beauty, it made up for in formidable appearance.

Check For One-Cent Goes To Detroit's Museum

DETROIT—The Detroit historical museum has received a copy of a one-cent check written by Henry Ford to a man who would not take anything else in payment.

It was E. A. Heubener of Dorchester, Mass., who owned the sign that once hung in front of the Wayside Inn at Sudbury, Mass., immortalized by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's poem.

Ford had bought the inn for his Greenfield village museum but it took one of his agents years to track down the missing sign.

When the sign was traced to Heubener, the elderly Yankee insisted on talking to Ford personally about selling it. Ford made a special trip to Dorchester and Heubener, after a long chat, asked for a one-cent check.

He promised to cash the check on Ford's books would balance—and did so, after making a photostatic copy.

Maternal Emotions Charged With Upsets in Children

BECKENHAM, England—Mothers are responsible for the mental and emotional troubles of 120 adolescent boys and girls sent by police courts to the Bethlehem Royal hospital for treatment, says a doctor.

Dr. W. Warren, physician at the hospital, says in the British medical journal, "Lancet," that in 46 per cent of the cases, the behavior of mothers was regarded as the emotional cause of breakdowns of youngsters, ranging from 12 to 18 years of age.

In many cases, Dr. Warren says, it is necessary to treat the mother.

The abnormalities of mothers, which most often affect their children are: over-anxiety, rigidity, hostility or rejection.

Such attitudes, Dr. Warren says, cause split personalities, perplexity, bewilderment, delusions and rages, including stealing and arson, that have led to court action.

Suspicious Looking Men Are All Secret Police

PARIS—Paris was celebrating the centenary of the birth of Marshal Ferdinand Foch. The authorities were assembled on the Tribune. Soldiers were marching past the statue.

A police captain, noticing suspicious looking individuals near the place where President Vincent Auriol was standing, told his subordinates:

"Go chase away those fishy looking types moving in on the president of the republic."

The gendarmes came back without having accomplished their mission.

Impulsive Mechanic Takes Coin in 'Wayward Bus'

NEW YORK CITY—Police say mechanic Adolph Maier obeyed an impulse. He hopped into one of his company's buses and was off on a free-hour tour of Manhattan and the Bronx.

Sometimes he'd pick up passengers. Sometimes he'd ignore a waiting crowd at a bus stop.

He drove well, but with disregard for company regulations.

That's what caused the regular drivers along the route to telephone the office about the bus.

When police caught up with him they said his coin box indicated $60 in fares—for 58 passengers—that he had only 25 cents in the till.

A charge of grand larceny, in adding theft of the bus, was lodged against him.

India Attempts to Harness Its Rivers to Feed Millions

The United States, with all its technical and industrial resources, still has not completely solved the problem of controlling and utilizing its rivers. The Tennessee Valley Authority has proved a model for the engineers of the world but there is still much to be done. Only 20 per cent of the water in rivers and streams of the Missouri River basin is being used for irrigation.

The Republic of India, America's sister republic in Asia, still has an immeasurably greater job ahead. It is estimated that only 6 per cent of the water in the country's rivers is now being utilized.

But the Government of India is determined to harness the rivers and end two strange contradictions—India, a predominantly agricultural nation, must import millions of tons of food; India, a nation rich in natural resources, has a population that is largely poor.

The yield per acre in India is now among the lowest in the world, because of primitive methods of farming and an unreliable water supply. Out of 251,000,000 acres of cultivated land, only 48,000,000 are irrigated. The remaining 81 per cent of the land depends for successful crops on the whims of the capricious monsoon and faces the twin risks of drought and flood. India has been forced to import a minimum of 6,000,000 tons of grains a year to prevent famine—and India's population is growing at the rate of 4,000,000 a year.

Average Auto Runs 120,000 Miles Before It Is Scrapped

It's a long, long road to the scrap heap for America's average automobile today—120,500 miles in fact.

The average auto today "lives" to be 14 years old. In 1927 cars were junked at 6½, after a total of 75,750 miles.

In 1951 there were more cars in the 10 years and older category than in 1950 and three times as many as in 1941. In 1941, 1950 and 1951, respectively, registered cars of 10 years and older numbered: 4,757,000; 14,827,000; and 15,553,000. In spite of this, more old cars were junked in '51 than in any previous year, and the average age of passenger cars was reduced from 7.8 years in 1950 to 7.3 years by the end of 1951.

Tight credit terms, keeping newer cars out of reach of most families, are partly responsible for the increasing number of over-age cars on the roads.

No Rabies in Britain

In Britain there has not been a single case of rabies outside of quarantine kennels since 1922! This is quite a record, as will be admitted by health authorities in the United States and in the many other countries where the disease occurs frequently. How has this enviable situation developed? The fact is that rabies has been stamped out by quarantine. Very strict quarantine too, as anyone who has wanted to take a pet into Great Britain can testify. The rules involve a certain amount of hardship—for the owners, that is. The period of quarantine for every dog and cat is six months—long enough for some animals to forget their masters if the latter do not visit their pets. And there are fees to be paid that deter many owners from even thinking of importing Fido or Felix.

A New Story

Crop dusting from airplanes is an old story—but now comes word that we may have airborne liquid fertilizer spreaders in the future. Describing aerial spreading of fertilizers as potentially a promising development, a University of Nebraska soils researcher said the method would make possible a more rapid method of spreading nitrogen over large areas, and a later application to growing crops than is possible with farm machinery. In tests already conducted as much as sixty pounds of nitrogen has been sprayed on one acre of corn at the tasseling stage without injury to the crop. The method also has been used on winter wheat and alfalfa. But the scientist emphasized that more research must be done before the airplane method of applying nitrogen can be recommended for general use.

Whimsical Chochocho

In Denmark, tourists as well as Danes love to ride in a unique excursion train that is made festive with gay-colored paints. The engine, which looks like an enlarged toy, is painted geranium red and wears a tip-tilted gold crown in its stack. One car is painted green. A second is yellow and has green boxes at the windows which contain brightly blooming geraniums. A third car, painted blue, has a chimney with a stork perched upon it. In Denmark it is considered great good luck to have storks nest on your rooftop.

Curiosity Kills Mice

A new mouse trap has been developed, and guess who is beating a path to the manufacturer's door? That's right, the mice. The new trap is based on the fact that mice are very inquisitive and will not be able to resist sticking their heads into the snare. So now curiosity kills the mouse.

Chapman-Minter Enter Window Decoration Contest

The skill of the experts who prepare window displays in stores throughout the country is at stake during the week of April 21 to April 26.

Chapman-Minter Dry Goods has entered this contest with special displays of Fieldcrest textiles, hopeful to secure a valuable prize. Each store competing is given an identical set of display posters—so the winning displays must show some special ingenuity.

The prize offered by Higginbotham Bailey Company, exclusive Fieldcrest distributor for this territory, include a $275.00 Fieldcrest Display Fixture as first prize; new style, full size men's nequin, natural hair, rubber hands, as second prize and a Fieldcrest Electric Blanket as third prize. In order that all stores have the same opportunity, regardless of the size of the city, three classes of entries are set up, one for each size city, with identical prizes for each class. Judges of the contest are prominent in the merchandising world: Mr. Johnson, advertising manager, Sanger Brothers, Dallas; Mr. Silverblat, advertising manager, A. Harris Company, Dallas, and Miss Trahee, advertising manager, Neiman-Marcus, Dallas. Chapman-Minter are franchised retailers of Fieldcrest products.

Dismal Swamp Is Eastern Hideout Of Wilderness

A lonely morass of almost unbroken wilderness still stands in the center of the crowded eastern seaboard. It is the Dismal Swamp.

The "Great Dismal," as it is sometimes called, spreads over half a million acres of watery jungle in seven counties and two states. It is nearly as wild today as it was when the first English colonists in America settled 40 miles on either side of it, at Roanoke Island, North Carolina, and Jamestown, Virginia.

Ax, drainage ditch, and plow have shrunk the Dismal by a third since colonial days and threaten it further. But botanists and foresters still describe its gloomy heart, half the size of Delaware, as the finest outdoor laboratory of its kind on the continent, a "relict area" which holds a natural, undisturbed plant community.

Refuge for Slaves The swamp is the kingdom of raccoons and otters, snakes and bears, wild ducks and deer. It has a permanent human population of one family.

Escaped slaves, fugitives, and moonshiners hiding out in its depths have built a lasting reputation for mystery and danger matching the Dismal's quicksands, its tangled thickets and brush-choked "lights," its dark, sponge-wet bottoms.

More than half the swamp, including its least explored regions, lies in North Carolina, but lonely Lake Drummond, three miles long and nearly as wide, is entirely within Virginia. Oddly enough, the surface of the lake is as much as ten feet above the general level of the swamp, which slopes away from the lake's leaky rim like an inverted saucer.

George Washington and Patrick Henry were among the swamp's first landowners, investing in the Dismal's gums, cypress, maple and southern white cedar. Lumber companies cut canals and ditches, one bearing Washington's name, to bring out the timber. These narrow waterways still offer the only access to the heart of the swamp. But today the George Washington Highway (U.S. Route 17) skirts the Dismal's eastern edge. An engineer described it as "all water and no bridges," before the road was hard-surfaced in the 1920's.

The official said that his firm's studies also showed that "another

Colored Fish A young milk truck driver in Milwaukee has discovered a way to turn rainbows any color of the rainbow. He puts the fish into a solution for two minutes. They are then returned to fresh water where within an hour they turn red, blue, green, yellow or any color, depending upon the formula used.

Winger Process A new process by which surplus milk can be canned and preserved indefinitely without refrigeration has been developed at Colorado A. & M. Called the Winger system, it is expected to put milk into the grocery store about five cents a quart cheaper than fresh milk.

Women Live Longer All over the world men are dying much faster than women, a United Nations survey revealed. The survey said one reason might be that fewer women die in childbirth, while dangers to men, including accidents and work hazards, remain about what they have always been.

Westward The Slavic race—which includes Russians, Poles, Czechs, Slovaks, Bulgarians, and Yugoslavs—has moved so far westward since World War II that it has pushed the German border of the Middle Ages, according to a University of California geographer.

Man Has Wife Arrested For Betting on Horses

MINEOLA, N.Y.—"She dipped into his bank account to play the horses." That's the charge of Enio Barata against his wife Julia. He had her jailed.

The 42-year-old mother of four children was held for a grand jury when she was unable to post $1,000 bail.

Barata, 44, said she cashed at least 66 checks by signing them in the name of his former business partner. Barata had retained the joint checking account after the partnership ended a few years ago, he said.

Mrs. Barata was charged with forgery.

Scientists Discover Negroes Hurt Most by Atomic Heat

People with heavily pigmented skins, particularly Negroes, will suffer more than any others from the heat of an atomic explosion.

This has been scientifically established in experiments conducted by Dr. Konrad J. K. Buettner who is now in the department of engineering on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

Armed with this knowledge, the Negro will stand a better chance of survival in event of an atomic bomb attack, Dr. Buettner explained.

The University of California climatologist has conducted experiments with the skin of dark and light pigs, exposed to temperatures of more than 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit—approximating the temperatures of an atomic blast.

In these experiments Dr. Buettner found that dark-skinned pigs can absorb as much as 90 per cent of the heat given off by a sudden blast. Light skin can reflect up to 40 per cent of the heat to which it is exposed.

Dark skin, he explains, can protect a person from the ultraviolet rays of the sun, but surviving the intense temperatures released by nuclear explosions depends on how much heat the person can reflect.

Light colored clothing will reflect some of the heat, but the most effective and easiest obtainable protection is a plain white sheet.

Refrigerators With Interior Color Trim Are Latest Thing

Use of color for the interior trim is being featured in the 1952 models of one large manufacturer of refrigerators.

The models are available in a choice of three trim colors described as icicle blue, sunfrost green and luminous gold.

The company said it had decided on interior color trim after it had weighed the results of a number of studies. One survey was based on a study of kitchen colors in hundreds of thousands of homes across the country.

The check showed that the all-white kitchen is becoming a thing of the past," a company official asserted. "More and more home owners are turning to color to soften the kitchen appearance and make it a more pleasant, workable room.

"The icicle blue—a metallic gray-blue—was one color selected because we found that it blended well with 75% of the colors used today on kitchen walls. This also was checked with major paint manufacturers, kitchen equipment producers, home decorating magazines and design experts."

The official said that his firm's studies also showed that "another
