The tragedy took place during the violent earthquakes that rocked Bakersfield, Calif. The building is typical of the damage done to stores in the downtown area of the California city. However, other shoppers in the downtown area were fortunate that some of the roofs resisted the quake and remained secure, as it was this type of damage that caused most of the deaths reported after the Bakersfield quakes. I Strongly Advise all families in Briscoe County to have hospitalization insurance and separate insurance covering polio, encephalitis, etc. Know your agent, know your contract. I believe that most companies and their agents are doing you a favor in seeing you covered. It is too cheap and very unwise to be without.

Please Note:

I am not an insurance agent. I have no hospital. This advice is offered purely for your benefit.

Potatoes for Sheep
Potatoes are valuable feed for sheep—and increase wool yield—according to research conducted at the University of Adelaide in Australia. The Australian studies show that sheep grow up to twenty-five per cent more wool when fed both potatoes and urea supplements to grass. The reason, explains Dr. A. W. Peirce, a member of the university staff, is that sheep need protein to make wool—and grass is very low in protein, however, just adding protein supplement to sheep rations is apparently not enough. The sheep require starch of which spuds are a cheap source—to make the best use of protein a little over three ounces of starch a day was enough to do the trick with Dr. Peirce's test sheep.

New Stamps
New stamps issued last year throughout the world, numbered 2,303 as against 2,827 during 1950. Official de la Philatelic, a specialized Paris publication, also reports that in 1951 Europe accounted for 954 of the new postal stamps; Asia for 525; Africa for 272; the two Americas for 501, and Australia for 51. Of the total number, 975 were commemorative stamps (there were 75 such in 1950), 290 airmail stamps (405 in 1950), 200 special delivery stamps (285 in 1950) and 139 postage due (159 in 1950).

Transfusion Reaction
Allergic reactions following the transfusing of blood can now be sharply reduced, according to a study conducted by a group of doctors at George Washington University Hospital, according to their report, transfusion reaction may occur in as many as ten per cent of the patients receiving blood. Through combining the antihistamine pyribenzamine with the blood, it was found that allergic reactions such as fever, skin eruptions, hives and other undesirable side effects could be almost eliminated.

Surplus foods preserved now will help stretch the food budget dollars during the coming winter months.
