Key's Manuscript Of Anthem Sold To Maryland Group

BALTIMORE — Francis Scott Key's original manuscript of the "Star Spangled Banner" has been purchased by the Maryland Historical Society for $26,400.

The manuscript is on excellent rag paper about 7 by 9 inches, written clearly in ink by Key and with two corrections by him. It was penned on Sept. 14, 1814, in a hotel room in Baltimore, composed from notes Key had made on scraps of paper the previous night.

Key, a native of Carroll County, Md., and practicing law in Washington, had spent the night aboard a British warship watching the English bombardment of Fort Mchenry in Baltimore Harbor. He was inspired by the sight of the "star spangled banner" still floating over the ramparts at dawn after the attack.

Soon after, it was found that Key's words fitted, perhaps subconsciously, the meter of "To Anacreon in Heaven," a popular English song of the time. The "Star Spangled Banner," therefore, was published as a song with that tune.

It was played by the Army and Navy for many years, but was not made an official national anthem until President Woodrow Wilson so ordered in 1916 and Congress confirmed in 1931.

The manuscript will be displayed in a marble and glass case in the society's headquarters.

Clam's Life Gets Study by Experts

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — A group of prominent scientists report that clams have feelings.

The life and well-being of the common clam has been the subject of an extensive study by three top scientists at Rutgers University who have been investigating the possibilities of establishing and operating a clam farm in southern New Jersey.

They have managed to come up with a lot of answers of some consequence to the economy of the state where clammers annually account for one fifth of a $6,000,000 Atlantic Coast business.

The scientists found that clams are sensitive to such things as water temperature, amount of salt in the water, tidefall and tidal currents, air temperature, moon phases, barometric pressure and rainfall.

They also found out that a clam farm would have to be fenced.

To begin with clam farming would be a red-ink operation, they concluded, but after the major problems were solved it would be just as practical and profitable as dairy farming.

Jaywalkers Can Be Jailed in Washington

WASHINGTON—Posters along the streets in the national capital read: "Jaywalkers can be jailed."

The signs are a part of a campaign to keep residents of the city and visitors from "walking themselves to death."

Despite a marked increase in traffic and pedestrian problems during the last 15 years, laws and educational programs have helped to cut pedestrian traffic deaths from a peak of 15,500 in 1937 to 8,600 last year, and to reduce the pedestrian percentage from 39 to 23 per cent of the total traffic toll.

Jaywalking — careless street crossing either against traffic signals or at random in midblock — is responsible for many of the 321,000 pedestrian deaths that have occurred since 1927. Analysis shows that from 60 to 80 per cent of the traffic fatalities in cities are pedestrians.

Jersey City Bans Bussing at Bus Stops

JERSEY CITY—Husbands kissing their wives at Journal Square bus stops had caused considerable traffic problems for Jersey City. Now the Hudson County Boulevard Commission has ordered that motorists stay out of bus zones.

Louis Grasso reported to the commission that buses couldn't pull into their regular stops in the morning because too many husbands, in automobiles, were kissing their wives good-by for the day.

Commission President James P. Clark, putting himself on the side of "kissless bus stops," ordered police to keep cars moving and out of the bus zones.

Happy Birds Sing

LOS ANGELES—A famous California biologist believes that most birds have a song that they sing out of sheer happiness. He calls it the "meditative" song.

This song is particularly prevalent during early autumn, says Dr. Loye Miller. It seems to express a sense of physical well being.

It is true that birds have a mating song or a "real estate" ditty, advertising its claim to certain territory, but like the bathtub baritone or the farmer who whistles while he works, birds have a song of pure contentment.

Pvt. Ted Vardell, of Camp Roberts, California, called his mother, Mrs. Jim Norris, by telephone Saturday night. Ted says he is now supply clerk and is doing fine; he was lonesome and wanted to hear from home.

Miners Want to Shoot at 'Thing' Invading Diggings

BUSH CREEK, Cal. — John Q. Black and John Van Allen, described by friends as sober and hard-working miners, recently asked the Butte County sheriff's office for permission to shoot at a midget-manned "flying saucer" that keeps invading their mountain diggings.

The miners operate a small gold mine in the remote Marble Creek area a few miles north of Bush Creek.

They report that each time the "saucer" lands, a little man "resembling a midget" gets out of the contraption, scoops up a bucket of water in a shiny pail, and hands it to someone inside.

The miners wanted to know if it was all right to shoot at them if they came back again.

The sheriff reported he told the two men he could not give them permission to shoot at anything, but that "they'd better grab it next time it came back, so they would have something to back up their story."

The men said the "saucer" used a tripod for a landing gear. It retracts when the "saucer" takes to the air. It left marks on the sand like elephants tracks and was about 7 feet in diameter and about 4 feet thick.

The little man, they said, wore something like a heavy knee-length parka, and his legs and arms seemed covered with a heavy tweed material.

Mrs. Vi Belcher, owner of the Bush Creek store, said the miners have a good reputation and are not drinking men.

Modern Poet Pens Poem to Save Ship

BOSTON — Donald F. Steward, 25 year old Baltimore historian, has opened a campaign to save the Constellation, the Navy's oldest warship, from rotting in the Boston Naval Shipyard.

He said, after viewing the famed "Yankee race horse" he would start a campaign to recondition and return her to Baltimore.

The Constellation lies berthed next to the Constitution, which was restored to her original sea-going glory in 1930 on contributions of $400,000 from school children in the United States inspired by the poem "Old Ironsides," written 100 years before.

Oliver Wendell Holmes penned the verse when he heard that the Constitution and the Constellation were headed for the junkpile.

Mr. Steward said the Navy Department had informed him it would cost an estimated $4,525,000 to recondition the 36 gun frigate launched at Baltimore Sept. 7, 1797. The ship originally cost $314,000. "Old Ironsides" took to the sea Sept. 20, 1797, at Boston.

Carolina's Outer Banks Will Be Seashore Park

WASHINGTON—America's first national seashore park is being developed from some 30,000 acres of the Atlantic seaboard's most extensive stretch of undeveloped shoreline—North Carolina's Outer Banks.

An 80-mile stretch of the chain of islands shielding the coast will be known as the Cape Hatteras National Seashore Recreation Area when the National Park Service completes its development project.

Angling seaward from the mouth of Chesapeake Bay, the Banks at Cape Hatteras are nearly 30 miles offshore and a scant 12 miles from the Gulf Stream. Here cold remnants of the Arctic current collide with warm Gulf Stream waters to create a fierce swirling sea.

The rugged coastal scenery and its abundant wildlife will be preserved in the new national park.

Stump Blast Causes Man Lots of Trouble

SAN PEDRO, Cal.—A tree stump in Robert Shuman's front lawn has caused him more than enough trouble.

He decided to remove it by burying a stick of dynamite among the roots. He touched it off and neighbors reported flying chunks of adobe soil had:

1. Knocked down a TV aerial.
2. Punched a 6-inch hole in a roof.
3. Dented a parked automobile.

As a result the police asked the city attorney to issue a complaint for illegal use of explosives against Sherman.

As for the tree stump, it is a little the worse for wear, but still firmly embedded in Shuman's front lawn.

One-Man Helicopter

A one-man, collapsible helicopter, which can fly one and a half hours on gasoline, kerosene or diesel fuel oil without refueling, is powered by two pulse-jet engines mounted on the tips of two rotor blades. The tiny helicopter can be dropped from larger planes, unpacked by two men, and put in the air in about 20 minutes. It stands less than six feet high and will carry a load of more than its own 300-pound weight at top speed of 80 miles an hour.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Douglas, of Lubbock, were overnight guests of her sister, Mrs. T. R. Whiteside, on Saturday. On Sunday, accompanied by Mrs. Lily Wofford, they all went to Plainview where they were met by Mr. and Mrs. Joe McWilliams and children, of Amherst. Mrs. McWilliams is the former Gaynelle Douglas and grew up in Silvertown. Mesdames Whiteside and Wofford were accompanied home Sunday afternoon by Mrs. O. T. Bundy, who has been in Midland with Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Mast and children while recuperating from a shoulder injury; she has entirely recovered and is happy to be home again.

Fred Grimland, of El Monte, California, visited his mother, Mrs. W. K. Grimland, from Saturday until Monday. Sunday guests of Mrs. W. K. Grimland included Mr. and Mrs. Roy Grimland, of Amarillo, and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Grimland and children.

Mrs. Orville Turner and Paula Carol made a business trip to Lubbock one day last week.

NOW SAVE MONEY ON LAMP BULBS AT ANY BULB DEALER OR PUBLIC SERVICE

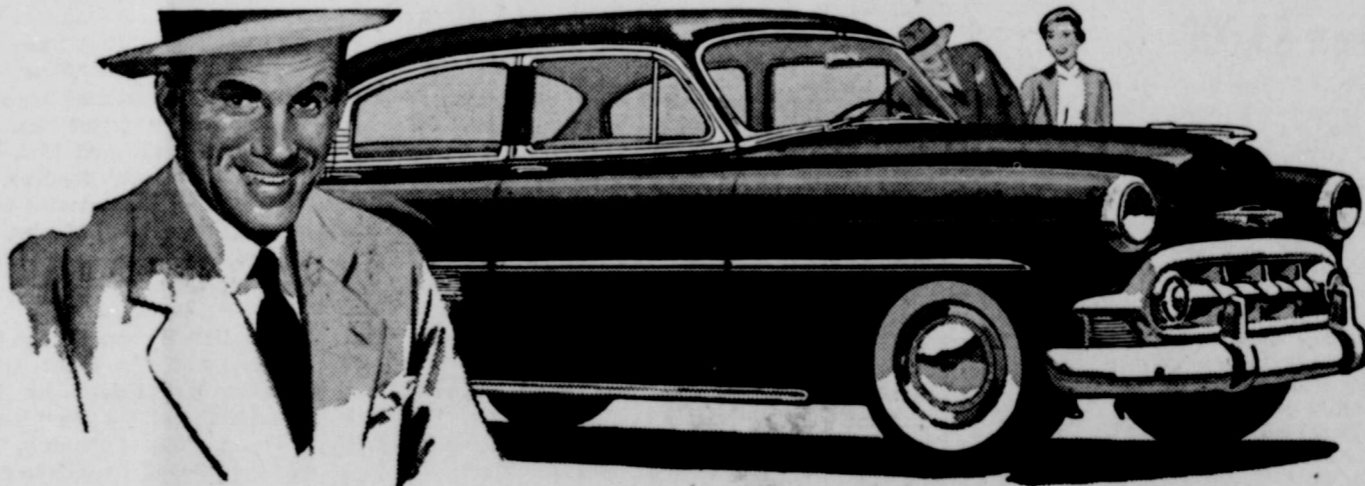

And it is true! You ladies average a married life span from age 18 to 58-40 years. In that time you iron the equivalent of 5 1/2 straight years, 8 hours a day, Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays included. Why not make your "sentence" easy. Iron with an automatic electric ironer. Let it do the "lifting". All you do is sit in comfort, feeding the clothes through the ironer.

British to Use Jungle Trees as Power Source

LONDON—The British have developed a new light steam engine for use in tropics which will burn low-grade fuel, including green wood. They expect it to be an important power source in undeveloped but heavily forested regions of the tropics.

The engine was developed by Sir Harry Ricardo. Sir Edward has calculated that quick-growing Indian eucalyptus trees have a yield of nine and one-quarter tons of wood an acre a year. As the wood contains 0.8 per cent of the solar energy reaching the ground in the tropics in the form of heat, he has suggested that in theory eucalyptus forests could provide a perpetual source of fuel.

He has said that by rotational tree planting and felling, a forest of twenty kilometers square would enable a wood-consuming power station to provide 10,000 kilowatts of power.

The Ricardo engine has been designed for lighter tasks, such as pumping and machine driving. It is hoped that it will have an engine efficiency of about 10 per cent, which on a vegetable-consuming basis is twice as efficient as native fuel, the standard source of rural power in India.

New Capital City Rising in Punjab

WASHINGTON—The National Geographic Society reports a new capital city rising on a fertile plain beneath the foothills of the snow-clad Himalayas is the pride of India's Punjab state.

Chandigarh, named for Chand, goddess of power, is to be a symbol of new India. Where only a mud-built village stirred sparsely three years ago, a modern metropolis of concrete, steel and brick will ultimately house half a million Indians.

Punjab was split when India was partitioned in 1947. The ancient Punjab capital, Lahore, went to Pakistan. Punjab statesmen decided to erect an entirely new city as its capital.

Eastern tradition and Western innovation are being blended in Chandigarh. It is a city of super-blocks, three quarters of a mile long and half a mile wide, each housing 10,000 to 20,000 people. Each neighborhood unit has its own schools, playground, park, club, theater and bazaar.

On a city-wide scale, there will be a central marketplace where modern department stores will compete with the open-air stalls of private merchants. Other planned civic institutions include a hospital, museum, library, university and four colleges, open-air theater, stadium and six swimming pools.

U. S. School Census Totals 32,000,000

WASHINGTON—The U. S. School census is growing by leaps and bounds.

The Census Bureau recently estimated that approximately 32,000,000 persons were enrolled in school or college at the beginning of the school year that ended in June, 1953.

This was, the bureau reported, 1,400,000 more than enrolled the previous year.

Two-thirds of the increase was due to the larger number of children enrolled in elementary schools, about 1,000,000 more boys and girls than the year before.

The estimated 1952-53 elementary school enrollment was 22,800,000; high school 7,200,000 and college 2,000,000.

Miss House Operates Unusual Museum

MANTEO, N. C.—Miss Virginia House of Washington, D. C., has an unusual hobby. She collects model houses.

She recently opened a museum near Manteo to exhibit her collection of 500 model houses from all parts of the world.

Britain is represented by a model of Shakespeare's home, France by a villa of blue porcelain, India by a Taj Mahal carved from bone, and China by a temple that serves as a jewel box.

Her largest house is a prefabricated bungalow given to her by a builder. The smallest is a tiny Blarney Castle that dangles from a charm bracelet.

Her museum is located near Fort Raleigh, where the first English-built house in America was erected of wattle and daub nearly four centuries ago.

Poison Costs $18 Million

An insecticide which costs $18 million a pound was developed by an oil company to use in studying how insects are killed by household sprays. A tiny sample of this expensive insecticide was made by forcing flowers to "breathe" a radioactive gas. Result of the study might be development of low-cost chemicals to "step up" effects of the so-called pyrethins, derivatives of the pyrethrum flower, which
