Auxiliary Enrolls Strength for Activities of 1954

Enrollment of membership strength for patriotic service during 1954 will engage the efforts of the women of the American Legion Auxiliary throughout the country during November, according to Mrs. J. L. Self, membership chairman of William-Graves Unit of the Auxiliary.

Heavy advance enrollment for the new year is reported by Mrs. Self, with more than 150,000 enrolled before November 1. Intensive membership efforts will be made between Armistice Day, November 11, and Thanksgiving Day, November 26.

"In addition to re-enrolling its present 985,000 members, the American Legion Auxiliary is seeking to bring in enough new members to reach a strength of 1,000,000 in 1954," Mrs. Self said. "The expanding need for the services the Auxiliary is giving for war veterans and their families, for the nation's security and for the protection of American democracy requires an expanded membership."

"Our local Auxiliary Unit is inviting all eligible women in the city to come into the Auxiliary at this time. We are offering them opportunity to serve effectively side by side with The American Legion for the welfare of war veterans and the safety of our country in this age of aggression."

Dec. State Draft Quota Announced Monday, 1,264

Austin—A December state draft quota of 1,264 men was received Monday at state Selective Service headquarters, Brigadier General Paul L. Wakefield, state draft director, said Tuesday.

The quota is the Texas share of a national call for 23,000 men. The November quota, announced in late September, was 1,210. The October quota for Texas, now being filled, is 1,208.

General Wakefield said that, under present plans, local board quotas to fill the December call will be placed in the mail "sometime next week."

State draft boards will also receive a call for physical examinations, to be sent out also next week, for delivery in December. The state call for December examinations will total only 986 men.

Instructions were received from national Selective Service headquarters that all deliveries of men in December be made through December 18 on account of Christmas holidays.

Instructions also were received that, where possible, only men 20 years old or older would be inducted in December. If necessary, any board may call men under 20 to reach its quota.

The number of men under 20 being inducted in Texas continues to be less, General Wakefield said. Sixteen men out of every 100 inducted in September were under 20. The figure was 19 out of every 100 in August.

This compares with 32 out of every 100 the past June. General Wakefield attributes this mostly to a reduction in monthly quotas, which was forecast even before the truce in Korea. He says he expects draft quotas to go up by June of next year.

Future Is Here, Supersonic Gear Already Perfected

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—The Army Air Force reports that supersonic gear for pilots has already been created.

The latest is a new helmet for pilots who some day may have to bail out of supersonic planes. The helmet, custom built to fit each wearer, was designed by Douglas Aircraft engineers to stay on the pilot's head during bail-outs. Present helmets tend to blow off, tests revealed. This strips the pilot of head protection and snatches away his oxygen supply.

By cutting slots into the new helmet behind the forehead portion, the designers were able to make the helmet stick to its job. The slots create a small vacuum that holds the helmet firmly in place.

They also permit air to escape from inside the helmet. This prevents the building up of air pressure inside the helmet that eventually becomes so great that it blows the helmet off the pilot's head.

Navy Says Waves Will Go to Sea

WASHINGTON—The Navy Department has announced that Waves will be assigned to sea duty in the future.

The announcement breaks a long standing rule that enlisted women could not be assigned to military billets on board ship.

The Waves, to be drawn from volunteers in the Hospital Corps, will fill sixty-three billets on ships of the Military Sea Transportation Service. They will supplant twenty-four officers of the Navy Nurse Corps, who will be assigned to short duty.

A minimum of two enlisted Waves will be assigned to each ship, and only if a Navy nurse is already on board. The tour of duty for the seagoing women will be twenty-one months.

To be eligible for sea duty, a Wave must be 21 years old or more and have served at least twenty-four months in the Navy. Of the sixty-three available billets, twenty-eight are in the Atlantic and thirty-five in the Pacific.

U. S. Navy To Build Second Atomic Sub

WASHINGTON—The Navy has announced the construction plan of a second atomic submarine. The first atomic sub has been under construction for some time and is expected to be completed soon.

The power plant for the second nuclear sub, named the Sea Wolf, is being built by the General Electric Company. A land-based prototype of this machinery has been under construction at West Milton, N. Y., for nearly a year.

The Navy has estimated the first atomic submarine, named the Nautilus, will cost $29,000,000 exclusive of the power plant. The second atomic submarine may run to $32,700,000, also without power machinery.

Both submarines were contracted by the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corporation at Groton, Connecticut.

Ahead of her in the gubernatorial ranking are the lieutenant governor and president of the state senate.

New High Speed Camera

LOS ALAMOS—University of California scientists have developed a new camera, believed to be the fastest of its kind ever constructed. It is capable of photographing explosive phenomena at speeds up to 3,500,000 frames per second, about 150,000 times as fast as the usual picture one sees at the theater. Its primary usefulness is for photography of high-speed events that are self-luminous or that are illuminated by very intense explosive light sources using an argon atmosphere.

Frozen Juice Becoming Nation's Favorite Drink

WASHINGTON — According to the United States Department of Agriculture, frozen orange juice is becoming the nation's favorite drink. Americans are drinking it faster than it can be processed. The department estimates that household purchases alone are currently running at a rate of about 55,000,000 gallons a year, in addition to the large amount used by hotels and restaurants. The department estimates the total output of frozen orange juice concentrate this year at about 50,500,000 gallons.

The official said there was no immediate danger of an orange juice shortage because producers could draw on their cold storage stocks built up in past years when the demand was not so great. These stocks totaled about 23,242,000 gallons at the end of June.

Frozen orange juice was introduced to the American market in 1948. Department figures show that it has increased steadily in popularity and now is used more or less regularly by 30 per cent of the nation's families. The average retail price in June was 16.1 cents per can, compared with 15.3 cents a year earlier. Experts predict the price will continue inching up until supply catches up with demand.

'Water Bombs' Used To Curb Bush Fire

TORONTO—The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests has found, after having tried scores of chemicals, that they can slow the progress of fires in tinder-dry areas quickest with water. They do not do it by cloud-seeding—shooting dry ice or silver iodide crystals into moisture-laden atmosphere to induce rain in the manner widely tested during recent years. This method, they assert, is expensive and too uncertain. Instead, they send into the bush planes loaded with specially made paper containers. The planes land on lakes or rivers near the blaze. After having unloaded fire fighters, who will head across country to the fire with extinguishers, the aircraft's crew fills the paper containers with water and flies over the fire area.

The containers, each holding 3½ gallons, are dumped in the path of the flames. The paper breaks when it hits trees or brush, spilling the water about and halting the fire's progress.

Landlord Set His Own Rent Control Rules

ST. LOUIS—Now that he is free of federal rent controls, Arval H. Pulley of St. Louis has established controls of his own.

He began by increasing rents from $26.25 to $30 a month. He also added a charge of $15 a month for each pet.

Along with the new rent, Mr. Pulley handed each family a list of 19 rules on how they were to behave while living on his property.

He established a 10 P. M. curfew. After that hour, he said, "all noise will cease." He forbade children to eat in the front or back yards "at any time." All children must be kept off fences and rails on the back porch, he decreed.

He warned his tenants that violations of his rules would result in penalties ranging from $10 to $15.

Highspeed Toll Roads Are Planned In East

WASHINGTON — Virginia and Massachusetts are planning new high speed toll roads that will cost approximately $400,000,000. They will be built, it is reported, entirely with local funds, without federal grants-in-aid.

Virginia's new superhighway will cross the state on a north-south line roughly parallel to U. S. Route 1. It will connect on the north with the proposed Maryland toll road, which is a continuation of the New Jersey Turnpike, and on the south with a proposed North Carolina Turnpike. The Massachusetts road will run from a point near Boston to a point near the New York state line.

Squirrel Gets Homesick

RICHMOND, Va.—The state of Virginia has a homesick squirrel.

The animal, identified by a creased right ear, was noticed bounding across the lawn recently, after it and 36 others had been shipped to a state park 20 miles away. The state had disposed of the squirrels in this manner after having decided that the rodent population of the capitol grounds was becoming too large. How the squirrel found its way back is a mystery, but no one has suggested that it be exiled again.

Dead squid tied to a pole so frightens lobsters on the shores of New Caledonia that they can be caught by divers wearing goggles and gloves.

U. S. Population Hits 160,000,000 Mark in August

WASHINGTON—In August the population of the United States passed the 160,000,000 mark.

The figure was registered on an automatic census calculator in the Commerce Department with a clang of bells and flash of lights. The calculator is a map of the nation standing 10 feet high, topped by an over-sized gadget that registers population the way an automobile speedometer registers mileage.

It records a new resident every twelve seconds as the net result of a series of complicated calculations: a birth every eight seconds, a death every 21 seconds, an immigrant every two minutes and an exit by someone leaving the country every 17 minutes.

The machine's speed is changed frequently. Two months ago the department stepped up the birth calculation from one every nine seconds to one every eight.

The nation's population has been growing at a rate of more than 2,500,000 a year since 1927.

Between the April, 1950, census, when the official count was 151,000,000 and July 1, 1952, there was an increase of population in 38 states and the nation's capital. Nine states, mostly southern, showed decreases and Montana registered virtually no change.

Friendly Octopus Scares Navy Diver

OTTAWA—Chief Petty Officer Robert Wigmore, a naval diver, recently found a friendly octopus, but Wigmore did not return the friendship.

He was working near piling 30 feet below the surface in Esquimaux harbor when he felt a gentle tapping on his shoulder.

He turned, looked and yelled. What he yelled indicated he wanted to be back aboard the diving tender in a hurry.

Clinging to a piling with five of its eight tentacles was an octopus. Its three other tentacles were groping through the murky water in the Chief's direction.

Back aboard the tender, the chief was assured that the octopus would not have harmed him. But Chief Wigmore said the shipmates did not offer to don the diving suit to prove their point.

Perhaps a great friendship has been ruined, the Chief said, but he isn't interested enough to find out.

Ohio County Installs Unique Siren System

COLUMBUS—If enemy bombers ever penetrate as far as Ohio's Franklin County, they will find the sheriff's office one jump ahead of them. One touch of a push button will sound the alert on 56 sirens throughout the county, including the state's capital, Columbus.

The new air raid warning network, was made possible by special electronic tone and rapid equipment. An electronic tone, broadcast by the sheriff's radio transmitter near Columbus starts the sirens.

The law-enforcement network is used because it ties in with radio telephones on fire and emergency vehicles.

An operator is on duty round the clock. When the raid is on, he pushes one button; when the danger is past, another button sounds the all-clear.

Denver Grows Wheat On 1,100-Acre Airport

DENVER—As its share of a wheat crop, Denver recently received $5,600. The 285-acre crop was harvested from the municipal airport.

The unlikely merger of commercial aviation and wheat farming in Denver dates back to six years ago when the city leased 1,100 acres between runways of Stapleton Airfield to a grain company. This season 815 of the acres lay fallow.

In August the lessor planted about 550 acres in winter wheat and the rest of the land in winter barley. The city gets 40 per cent of the cast yield. Meanwhile, grain farming tends to hold down dust, to cut the danger of weed fires and to serve as a weed control measure in itself.

Fish Resources Are Starvation Barrier

WASHINGTON—People all over the world are finding that fish once thought useless are important food items.

For instance, until 1934 commercial fishermen thought of rosefish as marine trash and threw them back. Now they are being marketed in many sections of the country.

Similarly, swordfish was all but unknown outside of New England until after World War I. Fishermen cursed it as a smasher of nets and a destroyer of marketable varieties of fish.

In the absence of prejudice, most things from the water are delicious. It is, after all, a matter of education.
