

County Chairman Explains 1964 Wheat Program 'Controls'

Wheat producers who plant within their allotments and meet the diversion and conservation provisions of the 1964 wheat program need have no worries about program penalties if the 1964 wheat program is approved by growers in the May 21 wheat referendum, Louie Kitchens, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said today.

"There's been a lot of loose talk about controls and penalties in the 1964 wheat program," the chairman declared. "Actually, the 1964 wheat program is similar in most respects to the 1962 program, and any new provisions represent modifications to improve and bring the old program up to date. We hope that farmers will not be misled but will get the true facts before they cast their ballots on May 21."

Mr. Kitchens explained that the 1964 wheat program includes two types of penalties: (1) A marketing quota penalty, which has been a part of wheat programs since 1938; and (2) A land-use penalty, which is new and represents an effort to encourage farmers to meet land-use program provisions similar to those in effect for the 1962 and 1963 wheat programs. In more detail:

A marketing quota penalty will affect producers who overplant their allotment and do not postpone the penalty by storing the excess wheat production under bond or avoid it by delivering the excess wheat to the Secretary. The penalty will be 65 percent of the May 1, 1964, parity times the number of bushels of "excess" wheat. The "excess" will be twice the normal yield per acre times the number of acres in excess of the farm allotment; if the proven actual yield is lower, the ASCS county committee may reduce the excess to the actual yield. (These provisions are similar to those in effect for 1962-crop wheat.)

A land-use penalty can apply if an unauthorized crop is produced on the acreage required to be diverted from the production of wheat, up to a maximum 11.11 percent of the 1964 allotment. The penalty will be 65 percent of May 1 parity times the farm normal yield for unauthorized use of acreage which should have been diverted.

The chairman explained that a producer who grows wheat within his 1964 wheat allotment and meets the diverted acreage requirement but fails to meet the normal conserving acreage provisions will not incur a land-use penalty. However, his eligibility for diversion payments, price support and marketing certificates would depend on his meeting all three program provisions.

Masako Nakabe Will Be Silvertown's First Foreign Exchange Student

Masako Nakabe from Tokyo, Japan, will be Silvertown High School's first foreign exchange student.

Miss Nakabe will be a student in the local school, a citizen of the community and a member of the Carman Rhode family from August 1963 until June 1964.

Masako is 17 years of age, is 5'5" tall and weighs 105 pounds. The subjects in which she is most interested are English, chemistry and piano. Her preference in sports is tennis.

She has three older sisters. Her mother is a homemaker and her father is a chief metallurgist. She has studied English five years.

Masako stated on her application for participation in the foreign exchange program that her father believes "One cannot only learn about foreign countries, but also rediscovers one's own country after going abroad."

The funds for Miss Nakabe's support through the American Field Service were raised through the efforts of the Silvertown High School Student Council.

Mrs. Alvin Redin is president of the local chapter of the American Field Service which will act as the go-between in the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhode and Sandi will be Masako's family during the months that she is attending school in Silvertown. They were chosen in the New York office of the American Field Service by workers who were striving to place the foreign student in the home into which she would best fit. Individual characteristics were carefully matched on the application forms, and the "adoption" was affirmed for a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhode and Sandi will be exchanging correspondence with Masako very soon, and as they become better acquainted the date of her arrival will be fast approaching.

Masako Nakabe of Tokyo, Japan, will be Silvertown's first foreign exchange student. Arrangements for her coming to Silvertown have been made through the American Field Service.

Mr. and Mrs. Carman Rhode and Sandi will be the family of Masako Nakabe, Silvertown's first foreign exchange student, during the 1963-64 school term. Mr. Rhode is in business here and Mrs. Rhode is a former teacher. Masako will be a senior and Sandi a junior in Silvertown High School next year.

So that Masako will feel at home in Silvertown and have wearing apparel which is similar to that worn by the other girls in the school it may be necessary for clothing of her size to be collected in the "closet" to be given to Masako in the name of the American Field Service to avoid embarrassment.

She will receive an allowance of approximately $10 a month to cover incidentals, and will receive meal tickets without charge from the school cafeteria. The Student Council hopes to be able to pay her class expenses, graduation expenses, class ring, yearbook expense, etc.

The program is not designed to let the expense of a foreign student's coming fall upon the "adoptive" parents, but rather on the community and the AFS. The "Cinderella Closet" plan is one which has been operated successfully in other communities.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Paraphrasing a famous line of literature "The American people are the American people, and the State Department is the State Department, and never the twin shall meet."

That would appear to express the basis of a recent statement by Congressman H. E. Gross of Iowa in which he urges all Americans to emulate the position taken by the city government of Columbus, Ohio.

C. W. Harder

Without equivocation, Rep. Gross states U.S. State Dept. is bringing pressure on the big department stores, especially those in chains, to buy, stock, sell merchandise produced in Communist nations.

He points out that this is most inconsistent with the official concern over unemployment in America, as goods produced under the slave labor of Communism is not reflected in jobs for any American.

He then points out how Mayor W. Ralston Westlake and the City Council of Columbus, Ohio has handled this situation.

The city government has passed an ordinance which provides that any wholesaler or retailer of Communist made goods in Columbus must obtain a license and pay a $100 per year fee and such license must be conspicuously posted so that customers are aware they are being asked to buy Communist merchandise.

In addition, such a place of business must prominently display signs with letters not less than 5 inches high telling that Communist made goods are being sold, and any advertising must also state this fact.

Violation can mean a $500 fine, six months in jail, or both.

So once again, the heartland of America takes the lead in proclaiming an American principle, and also a much deeper wisdom of how to combat Communism than the bureaucrats.

Because Russia, China, and all Communist nations have never been able to socialize the farmer and get production of food, the big domestic problem of the Communists is to get enough food. Without food, their systems would collapse.

They can, and are, buying foods from nations considered American "allies." But these "allies" want money for food they sell Communists.

But with Communist nations selling their goods to America for dollars, they then have the money with which to buy food to keep their people from rioting, keeping their armies well fed, and thus in a position at the proper time to attempt to make good Nikita's boast to bury America.

Congressman Gross is urging that more communities follow the example of Columbus, Ohio. It seems an effective and legal way for the American people to fight communism despite the State Dept.

Or, at least, up until this time, no Federal troops have been ordered into Columbus to protect a Polish ham.

Olney Creates Home-grown Industry

When an aeronautical engineer and the business leaders of Olney, Texas, got together, a new home-grown industry was born. The product: an agricultural aircraft especially designed for crop dusting and spraying.

Now, 4 1/2 years later, Snow Aeronautical Company employs 57 skilled workers in this West Texas community of 3872, and has sold aircraft in many agricultural states of the Union and in seven foreign countries.

Success of this thriving local enterprise is evidenced by a plant expansion program which will double the factory size when construction is completed this Fall. It is another reason we say big things are happening in General Telephone towns.

These towns are on the move. Community improvements are under way, local resources are being developed, new businesses, new industries are coming in. ## A POINT OF VIEW ABOUT ENGLISH

by Mrs. Alice Lacy

Why is English important to my child? Throughout life boys and girls will need to talk to others, listen to them, read what they have written.

If speech is effective, others will pay attention. Almost all men and women in important positions can express themselves clearly. While yet children, if they learn to listen intelligently, they have a better chance to succeed in college or in a trade or a profession.

When children learn to write well, they can compose interesting and informative letters and can prepare reports and other forms of writing necessary to success in business, industry and the professions.

If children can read skillfully, a world of information is open to them. Through newspapers, magazines, books, young people can increase their understanding and widen their horizons. Regardless of their life work, reading will contribute to their success and to their pleasure.

English is the native language of nearly 300,000,000 men, women and children. It is a second language for even more. Foreign exchange students who have visited our school tell us that they are taught English from their early school years.

English is the language of much of the world's most magnificent literature, a part of the ever-growing heritage of the best that has been thought and written, available to all of us in the writings of Chaucer, Shakespeare, Milton, Emerson, Whitman, Churchill, Frost, and hundreds of eminent authors. Their wisdom, their keen observation, and the power and beauty of their language have contributed richly to man's understanding of mankind.

Most teachers attempt to teach "good" English. Good English is more than correct spelling, or using the right verb, or the proper pronoun, or putting commas where they belong. Such things are important, but correctness alone does not result in good writing or speaking. Knowledge of grammar, without practice in using that knowledge, does not result in good English. Analysis of sentences and drill on forms are not enough. A student theme maybe free of "errors" yet not be good English because it says nothing significant, or because it is vague, badly organized, or lifeless. Good English involves clear thinking, careful organization of thoughts, and a choice of words that most clearly and effectively convey those thoughts.

The language arts teacher knows that English, like every other language, is constantly changing. The English of a thousand years ago looks now like a foreign language, and even that of five or six centuries ago (the writings of Chaucer, for example) differs much from ours.

This question poses a thought-provoking problem. English has two primary responsibilities: language and culture.

Take literacy, the competence to handle languages with sureness and cleverness. To be literate today, one must be able to resist the tendency to revamp good English rules so that they conform to actual usage. Regularly, via radio or television, we're confronted with such illiteracies as "May the Lord bless you real good," or the broadcaster feels "badly" or "long time no see" or "He's scared but good" or "Those kind of people are high-type fellas, just like you and I" etc., etc.

To resist such erosion of our language, and dare to be literate is indeed a challenge worthy to be met with complete confidence and self assurance in order that we may maintain stability and poise in our every-day speech.

Now, let us consider briefly the cultural element of the English Department. Is the subject too "high falutin'"? It is of little value? Let us be reminded that when we speak and write we reveal what kind of people we are. We aren't necessarily "high falutin'" if our education is showing. Throughout life we will find useful our development of the four English language arts basic skills: reading, writing, speaking and listening. English doesn't have to be the great big ogre. It can be an interesting and useful subject. A very great asset in being successful in this highly important basic subject is the attitude of the student.

Plaque Designs For Canyon Amphitheater To Be Shown

Design drawings for plaques which won first place and honorable mention in county competition recently sponsored by the Federated Women's Clubs and the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce for the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, will be exhibited in the foyer of the Amarillo City Auditorium May 16-18 during the run of "My Fair Lady" and thereafter for graduation guests.

The winning designs will be carved in stone and mounted on the wall of the new outdoor theater in Palo Duro Canyon State Park. Drawn by high school students, the designs represent the outstanding characteristics of each of the 41 Panhandle counties entered in the contest. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Latham, representing the Fine Arts Council of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, handled the complicated details necessary for the smooth functioning of the contest, which was initiated last January, and members of the Federated Women's Clubs in the respective counties made the school contacts and took responsibility for the judging.

The winner from Briscoe County whose drawing will be exhibited at the Auditorium is Jerry Garrison from Silverton.

Students from Briscoe County who won honorable mentions for their drawings, which also will be exhibited, are Jimmy Walker, Carron Montague, Becky Thomas, Kathy Peugh, Johnny McGavock and Steve Harvell, Silverton; and Sammie Sue Johnson, Quitaque.

The contest was part of the Panhandle-wide program of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation for preserving the heritage of the north plains, and for the completion of the canyon amphitheater, where a musical drama built around the history of the whole area from Indian days, through the early settlement stage to the present era of prosperity will be presented. Numerous descendants of settler families are underwriting the cost of various units of the theater and the production as memorials to their pioneer forebears.

The drama, which will have some resemblance to the all-time favorite musical "Oklahoma" but with deeper significance, is now being written by Paul Green. His "Lost Colony" at Roanoke County, North Carolina, and "The Common Glory" at Williamsburg, Virginia, which is the dramatization of Thomas Jefferson's struggle for democracy, are only two of the nine outdoor dramas which this Pulitzer-Prize-Winning author now has running in the United States. He has several others in the planning stage. Some of his productions have been running since 1944, bringing unheard of prosperity to the areas sponsoring them. The musical score for the Palo Duro Canyon production is being written by Isaac Van Grove, Hollywood composer-director, who had collaborated with Green on other productions. Recognized professional actors and singers will perform in the production.

Mrs. Ples Harper is president of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation and seventy-five prominent Amarillo, Canyon and Panhandle area men and women serve on the board of directors.

Burglar proof

Uncle Sam (who knows which side his bread is buttered on) has taken some pretty thorough steps to guarantee the safety of your U.S. Savings Bonds.

For example, suppose you have a Bond stolen before you have a chance to put it in the bank or some other safe place.

You haven't a worry. It's registered in your name and you're not out a cent.

The government gives you another Bond—no charge. Even if you've forgotten the serial number and the date and place you bought it (though having this information speeds up the process).

A microfilm record is made of every U.S. Savings Bond sold. The essential data on the Bond you bought can be found with little more than your name for a clue.

This theft protection is just one more of the many reasons why your fellow Americans have over $46 billion invested in Savings Bonds—a powerful answer to the people who threaten to bury us economically.

So buy Savings Bonds. And see if you don't feel pretty good about it.

Quick facts about U.S. Savings Bonds

- You get $4 for every $3 at maturity
- You can get your money any time
- You can buy Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan
