

BRISCOE COUNTY NEWS

THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1964 Silverton, (Briscoe County) Texas VOLUME 55 NUMBER 15

...And Then There Was One

Two doctors were practicing here without a hospital until this week. One was a surgeon, and was unable to practice surgery often enough to maintain the skills which he studied extra years to learn.

At 9:30 a.m. Monday, April 6, Dr. Jim Wurgler left Silverton. It wasn't necessarily that he preferred to go, and he left many friends behind. The situation was that in order to pursue his chosen career, that of a surgeon, it was not practical for him to remain in a town without a hospital.

... And then there was one.

As you probably know, there are a number of local residents who have become alarmed at the thought of being without local doctors and have had several meetings to try to determine the feasibility of building a hospital. Since some favorable information has been found, these interested persons have decided that the proposition should be placed before the property-owning taxpayers of Briscoe County so that each individual can have his chance to say whether or not he believes Briscoe County needs a hospital.

At this time the Great Southwest Bonding Company of Dallas and a firm of Lubbock architects are (without cost to Briscoe County) surveying the hospital facility needs of Briscoe County and are making preliminary sketches and estimates of cost. This information is to be finished by Friday of this week, and will be presented in next week's paper.

Those who gathered Monday evening in the dining room of the "66" Restaurant to discuss the county's need for medical facilities were Jim Mercer, George Miller, Wayne McMurtry, Hugh Nance, Leon Grosdidier, Gaston Owens, True Burson, Elbert Dickerson, Bill McCracken, Roy Morris, Edwin Dickerson, Charles Sarchet, F. E. Hutsell, Gene Morris, John Hinds, Dee McWilliams, H. A. Cagle, Rev. Carl Nunn, Jack Strange and Earl Cantwell. (The name of Ray Teeple was omitted from the group of men listed in last week's paper who have attended previous information meetings.)

Joe Smith of Lubbock, who is with the Great Southwest Bonding Company, Bill Cox and Don Kittrell, architects, all experts in the field of hospital planning, were present to answer some of the questions which members of the group asked.

In next Thursday's issue of the Briscoe County News there will be estimates of the cost of a hospital and examples of how the tax would affect various taxpayers. The next step will be the circulation of a petition on which will be needed the signatures of 10 percent of the property-owning taxpayers in Briscoe County (who have paid poll tax) requesting a bond election. Several reasons have been outlined by the State Board of Health and experts in the field of hospital planning which indicate that the voters should review the information which has been presented and be prepared to vote on the issue as soon as possible. These reasons, outlined briefly, are as follows:

1. Briscoe County residents cannot afford to build an adequate structure without financial help.
2. Help is available in the form of a dollar-for-dollar matching grant from a state-administered federal fund called the Hill-Burton Fund. It is important to understand that, aside from making sure that the money is spent for an adequate hospital building and equipment, there is no influence or control by either the state or federal authorities.
3. If Briscoe County is to qualify for fiscal year 1965 funds, the bond issue for our half of the money must be passed and preliminary plans submitted to the state office with a request for Hill-Burton assistance before May 31, 1964.
4. Although the original Hill-Burton Act set out to furnish "adequate hospital, clinic, and similar services to all their people" and although the major amendment to the original was called "Community Health Services and Facilities Act of 1961," there is at this time a move underway to limit the hospital size by law to a minimum of 25 beds, and possibly 50 beds. This would mean that after this year help may no longer be available for populations such as that of Briscoe County.

The state bases the need for hospital facilities at four beds for each thousand people, and on this basis our need is for a 16-bed hospital.

5. It is to be noted that a hospital district would build and operate the hospital, but the bond issue will call for county bonds. The hospital district cannot be voted on until the state legislature is in regular session in 1965, because the legislature must approve the formation of a hospital district for Briscoe County. If Briscoe County voters wait to vote the bonds for the hospital until after the hospital district is assured, then it may be too late to make application for the matching Hill-Burton funds without which we cannot build a hospital. No bonds could be sold until after the hospital district is organized.

We have enjoyed the services of two doctors... now there is only one. If we say "no" to the bond issue someday there'll be none! On the other hand, if we build a hospital, doctors may come and go—but we'll never be without a local doctor!

State Accepts Water Rights Application

All Around the Town

by Mary Ann Sarchet

Claude Loudermilk stopped by the newspaper office early this week (how good it was to see him and about, and looking so good after 30 days in bed) to tell us how much it has meant to him to have doctors in Silverton. A month ago Claude was stricken with a heart attack at his home here. The doctor was immediately available as well as an ambulance, but Claude told us this week, "If it hadn't been for the doctor who started medication immediately I wouldn't be here. I couldn't have made it to Tullia. When a heart attack strikes you, it just knocks you down. I'd just like for everyone to know that I owe my life to our doctor!"

He went on to tell us, "I don't know much and wouldn't have to say much for a hospital—but I would be willing to chip in some extra. There are a lot of things we can do without, but we need doctors and a hospital to keep them here."

Those who have enjoyed good health and haven't looked ahead to the possibility that it may not continue always should realize that heart attacks, strokes and other serious illnesses are no respecters of persons. They usually strike without warning and are often swiftly fatal. We cannot keep doctors here indefinitely without hospital facilities. How would you like to go through what Claude has been through without a doctor within 25 miles?

I urge you not to wait until you hold a dying child or other loved one in your arms to realize through your tears that a hospital is needed here.

An interesting fact is that 50 percent of the population carried hospitalization insurance in 1950. In 1961, 75 percent of the people had hospitalization insurance. Last week when a committee from here visited the new Hall County Hospital at Memphis, 80 percent of the patients in that hospital that day were covered by hospitalization insurance—and the hospital was full and was putting a bed in the hall when they were there.

An increased coverage by hospitalization insurance coupled with the economy of a new hospital structure planned with economical operation in mind, should help lessen deficit operations.

Fred Mercer will be a guest of the Silverton Young Farmers Chapter tonight (Thursday, April 9) at 8:00 p.m. at the high school. Mr. and Mrs. Mercer are pictured in Hong Kong. Some of the movies the Mercers made on their recent trip abroad will be shown. The public is invited.

Bill Long, chairman of the proposed Mackenzie Reservoir project, recapped the progress which has been made by the steering committee to date early this week.

Four meetings have been held by the mayors and two representatives of the cities of Silverton, Tullia, Floydada and Lockney. In these meetings, engineering groups, bondsmen and bondsmen's attorney have been selected.

The committee has received a letter of acknowledgement from the state water commission stating that the application for water rights has been accepted and reviewed by Judge Otho Dent, a member of the water commission. The Mackenzie Reservoir project seems to be of a feasible nature, according to Judge Dent.

Additional planning is continuing on what Long hopefully refers to as the "1970 Project." If all continues to go well he speculates that some action could be taken by 1970.

The completion of the Mackenzie Reservoir could be a turning point in the life of the community, the benefits of which are countless to every resident of the area.

Will Your Chicken Lay a Golden Egg?

Start a 4-H poultry project and find out

Shown here are starting salaries and potential earnings in five of the poultry sciences

The 4-H Club members enrolled in a poultry program soon learn that to raise even a small flock successfully requires some knowledge of the poultry sciences related to feeds, breeds, disease control and production.

They get this information from extension poultry bulletins, from the local 4-H Club leader and from the extension worker. And applying what they learn often produces the "golden egg" that discloses a future career.

Project Determines Career
High school students say that experience gained in tending a flock of birds determined their choice of college courses to prepare them for a career in the poultry industry.

The $6 billion industry in the United States involves scores of specialized fields such as engineering, genetics, nutrition, pharmaceuticals, and large-scale production. And, according to a recent survey made by the Western Poultry Congress, there is a shortage of college trained young people to fill these jobs.

Among 500 commercial firms surveyed recently, the lowest starting salary for college graduates was $5,000 (see illustration above) and potential earnings over $30,000.

Jobs Go Begging
What's more, the survey reveals that in one year less than 100 students were graduated with a bachelor's degree in poultry science. There were more than 250 jobs waiting to be filled.

One prospective employer, Heisdorf & Nelson Farms Inc., helps to get 4-H'ers started in a poultry project, and offers incentive awards along the way. Through arrangements made with the National 4-H Service Committee and the Cooperative Extension Service, the firm annually provides six national $500 college scholarships, educational trips to the National 4-H Club Congress and medals for high ranking poultry members in the county.

Statistics forecast that many boys and girls will leave the farm to earn a living elsewhere. There appears to be a golden egg in the poultry industry.

LIVE A LITTLE LONGER

Today, because of the tremendous improvements made in medicine and prescription pharmaceuticals during the past few years, there are over two million Americans living who, without these advances, would not be living.

In the prescription you buy today, you are often buying cures where, in the past, only temporary relief was available. This is resulting in a longer life expectancy for all Americans. Average life expectancy is now over 70 years.

The average prescription costs about $3.25. In the minds of many people, this is a modest price to pay for the world's highest health standards.

Wedding Vows Read In Lockney Church

Wedding vows were exchanged at 7:00 p.m. Thursday in First Baptist Church at Lockney by Miss Sheryl McCain and Delvin Bybee. The Rev. Gene Hawkins officiated in the double ring ceremony.

Six Flags Over Texas Opens On April 18

The six bright flags that flutter above the rolling Texas prairie midway between Dallas and Fort Worth herald a success story rare in the U. S. amusement business.

But, indeed, more than that, they symbolize a unique vacation delight for any American family—an experience in fun that is equally rich in the history and tradition that helped build Texas and all of the nation.

Beginning April 18, SIX FLAGS over Texas will open its fourth season. The three previous years have seen a story of development and public acceptance practically unparalleled in amusement enterprise. Over three million parents and youngsters have visited SIX FLAGS. Daily attendance has hit 20,000 to 24,000. And, even so, this "park" still now only is beginning to become known to new patrons in distant areas of the country. The new season looks like another record-breaker.

Winter Survival Studies Show Overwintering Below Cap

Final ground trash examinations to determine winter survival of the boll weevil, were made during the period March 2-17. Similar trash examinations were made in January to secure information on populations that had gone into hibernation in different types of cover. In both instances the trash samplings were made above and below the Caprock, with a majority of the records being made in areas where the weevil had appeared in heaviest infestations in 1963. This study is a part of the boll weevil research program that has been made possible by financial support received in the form of a grant in aid to the South Plains Research and Extension Center, Texas A&M University, Lubbock, Texas, by the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. These winter survival studies were conducted cooperatively with assistance by personnel from Plant Pest Control and Entomology Research Divisions, USDA, Texas Department of Agriculture and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

The trash collections were taken from measured areas near cotton fields where the weevil was known to appear during the late summer of 1963. In all instances collections were made in areas with heaviest ground cover, or where most protection was afforded the weevil. The trash was taken from areas adjacent to cotton where possible since populations of hibernating weevils are normally much heavier at such locations than in cover well removed from the crop.

Attempts were made to sample all types of cover on the High Plains bordering the Cap. This was done while trying to determine of the weevil may survive on the High Plains. Since growers believed soil bank land, planted to Sorghum alnum, might be affording winter protection for the weevil, and since these plantings included much more area than other types of cover, surface trash examinations were concentrated on these plantings. All ground cover that offered possible winter protection for the weevil was checked. Below the Caprock sorghum alnum, shinnery oak and a number of other limited areas of cover were also examined for overwintering weevils.

The trash was collected in canvas bags and carried to an enclosed area for examination. The samples were run through a machine especially constructed to remove the coarse trash and fine soil. The remaining trash was spread in layers no more than three-eighths inch in thickness on an electrically heated table, where live weevils were forced to the surface within a few minutes.

The results of trash examination in six counties are summarized below. It will be noted that sorghum alnum failed to yield a live weevil, above or below the Caprock. Other grasses, tree leaf cover, old gin trash and cotton bolls were also negative on the High Plains. One live weevil was recovered from 28 square yards of shinnery oak cover nine miles south of Crosbyton, at a point where the High Plains grades off into Blanco Canyon.

A majority of live weevils were collected from shinnery oak leaf cover below the Caprock. A total of 22 live weevils were recovered from 47 square yards of trash. Heavy leaf cover from willows, along a river bank, had one live weevil in three yards of trash. Other positive records below the Caprock were three live weevils from five square yards of trash from a fence cover that was covered with a heavy Johnson-grass growth and one live weevil from 12 square yards of cottonwood and grape leaf cover in the bottom of Blanco Canyon four miles from cotton.

A summary of the trash examinations by counties shows greatest weevil concentrations were found in the Afton area, in the northern part of Dickens County. Shinnery oak growth covers a much greater area, with much larger plants, than found in any other locality in the six counties checked. Weevil infestations in this area in 1963, as well as those in adjoining areas above the Caprock, indicate overwintering weevil populations were also greatest in this area in 1963.

Considering only locations where trash examinations were made in January and March it will be noted that weevil mortality was quite heavy since the earlier examinations. These records indicate approximately 70 percent mortality since January. Although such indications may appear quite encouraging, a considerable weevil population is yet alive. Since weather conditions, before and after cotton is planted, greatly influence survival and later infestations, it is not possible to forecast weevil activity in the 1964 crop.

Live weevils were found above the Caprock in shinnery cover in Crosby County and in that county below the Caprock in tree leaf cover. In Dickens County live weevils were found below the Caprock in shinnery and willow leaf cover along a river bank.

In Garza County live weevils were found in shinnery and Johnson-grass fence cover.

No live weevils were found in Briscoe County. Three yards each of sorghum alnum and shinnery were examined below the Caprock in Briscoe County.

County 4-H Tractor Contest Is April 18

The County 4-H Tractor Operator's Contest will be held on April 18, beginning at 9:00 a.m. on the Silverton Gin yard.

The Tractor Operator Contest will consist of four parts, each of equal value:

Part I—A written examination of 25 questions taken from the 4-H Tractor Manuals.

Screwworms On The Move In Texas Again

Screwworms are on the move in Texas again, and livestock producers must take precaution in handling their livestock if they do not want the insects to spread across the state, Leon E. Grosdidier, County Agricultural Agent, warns.

It is reported that several infestations have already been detected in various parts of the state, and, with the coming of spring weather and an increase in livestock management practices, few areas can be counted completely safe from screwworm attack.

Spring is an ideal period for screwworms because of the mild, moist weather, the county agent indicated. In addition, such activities as calving, farrowing, and shearing, along with routine surgical operations, provide thousands of wounds that are open invitation to screwworm infestation.

He expressed alarm that many farmers and ranchers are reported not using smears, sprays, or other screwworm preventatives, and are allowing their animals to go unchecked and untreated. This practice could quickly result in an explosion of screwworm cases in this county and throughout the state, he said.

County Agent Grosdidier pointed out that although the statement recently released by the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation, the United States Department of Agriculture, and the Texas Animal Health Commission that screwworms have been eliminated from the overwintering areas of the Southwest, he warned that screwworm cases could occur because of insects migrating into the United States from Mexico. Cases caused by migratory flies, if not detected and treated promptly, could permit the screwworm to become re-established in Texas.

To prevent this from happening, producers are urged to inspect their livestock frequently, treat wounds and infestations, collect larvae samples, and report cases immediately so that emergency measures can be taken. Sterile screwworm flies will again be dropped near all cases reported, the county agent said.

FBLA Salad Supper Held Thursday

The Silverton chapter of Future Business Leaders of America had its annual salad supper on Thursday, April 2, from 6:30 until 9:00 p.m. The salad supper, a party for members, is one of the highlights of the year for FBLA.

At 7:00 p.m. the members were called to order, and O. C. Rampley, Principal of the high school, gave the invocation. This was followed by a skit by Janice Lewis and Cheryl Cowart.

Dianne Davis and Jeanne Davis were accompanied by Jerry Garrison as they sang "April Showers," "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning," "I Whistle A Happy Tune," and "Pennies From Heaven."

Following the music, Lester Grabbe, FBLA President, welcomed the members and guests. After the meal, members played dominos, "42" and card games until 9:00 p.m.

Guests present were Superintendent J. S. Hinds, Principal O. C. Rampley and honorary members, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Cagle and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Brown. The chapter's sponsor, Mrs. O. C. Rampley, was also present.

The menu included meat salads, vegetable salads, fruit salads, potato salads, relishes, tea and crackers.

The theme for decorations was "spring." Down the center of the tables was a blue ribbon with blooming tree twigs. On the piano was a small tree branch complete with a bird nest, bird and eggs. Place favors were name cards with miniature umbrellas for the girls and miniature top hats for the boys.

Play Presented In Assembly

The District One-Act contest play, "The Bishop's Candlesticks," was presented in assembly on Wednesday, April 1. The presentation was a practice for the district contest on Thursday, April 9, at Crosbyton.

The play, based on an incident in Victor Hugo's LES MISERABLES, takes place in a small town in France in the early 19th century in the home of a bishop. A convict who has just been released from the galleys shows up at the bishop's house. The bishop treats him kindly, gives him a good meal and provides him a place to sleep.

This kindness does not turn the heart of the convict, however, and as soon as the others retire, he takes the bishop's only real objects of worth, two silver candlesticks, and leaves the house.

He does not get far before being apprehended by the police, who bring him back to the bishop's house. The bishop defends the convict and gives him the candlesticks as a gift. This is too much for the convict, and he repents and begins an honest new life.

The characters are Sharon Weaver, as Bappie, the bishop's sister; Sandi Rhode as Clotilde, the serving woman; Rocky Curby as Monseigneur Bienvenu, the bishop; Joe Self as Jean Valjean, the convict; and Robert Bomar as the captain of the police.

STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER

Do We Use What We Learn?
by Lester L. Grabbe

Everyday we learn. We learn at school. We learn at home. We have experiences. We meet new situations. We learn—that is, I say we learn, but do we really? Do you learn something if you don't use it?

What is the purpose of acquiring knowledge if it is not used? If we don't use what we know, we are just cluttering up our minds with facts. What is the purpose of learning math, science, language, etc. if they are not put to use? There is no purpose—that's all.

I'm not saying that you should sit back and not learn. We should learn and accumulate all the knowledge we can. But we should put that knowledge to use. And can you think of any knowledge that cannot be put to use in one way or another?

The saying goes that experience teaches. It's supposed to, anyway. But some people seem to make the same mistakes over and over again. This is because they have not learned, even though they may have a very thorough knowledge of the mistakes they have made.

And some students go to a class with the attitude of getting a credit. A student should not take a course he will not use. Of course, some courses are compulsory, but this is because everyone needs to use what is taught in them.

Yes, life would be happier, easier, more enjoyable and more productive if we would only make use of the vast storehouse of knowledge every single one of us has. Are we going to make use of what we have learned?

Senior Grade Averages Released

Grade averages of the twenty-three graduating seniors were recently released by O. C. Rampley, Silverton High School Principal. The averages are for the first seven semesters of high school, and reveal a class average of 83.205. The last semester grades could affect these averages, but probably would not be sufficient to change the individual student's standing in his class.

Farmers Able To Harvest Crops Up To 20% Faster In 1964

This cell-type separating grate in 1964 Combines will help farmers harvest up to 20% faster.

A major engineering breakthrough in the design of combines will make it possible for a farmer to step up his harvesting capacity as much as 20 per cent in 1964 without buying a bigger model combine.

Engineers at the John Deere Harvester Works in East Moline, after years of intensive research, have developed a cell-type separating grate which solves a problem that has plagued harvesting operations since the advent of power farming.

The power to move through fields faster has been available, but farmers have had to throttle down because grain loss climbed sharply as ground speed was increased. If farmers wanted to harvest their crops faster, they had to invest in bigger model combines.

With the new cell-type grate, farmers will be able to move at faster ground speeds without suffering higher grain losses. The harvesting capacity of every size of combine—from the smallest pull-type drawn by a tractor to the largest self-propelled—will be stepped up as much as 20 per cent.

The grate, like most inventions, is relatively simple. But its development required intensive studies of the functioning of a combine.

As a combine gathers crops, it feeds them between a threshing cylinder and a grate, called a concave because of its shape. This separates up to 50 per cent of the grain from the straw and husks. The remaining grain slides with the straw across flexible rods, called finger extensions, onto straw walkers. As the straw is "walked" out of the combine, the action is designed to separate the remaining grain.

Through extensive tests of each of these actions, John Deere engineers found that as the ground speed of the combine was increased, the straw moved across the walkers faster and more grain was lost.

They concluded the easiest solution was to separate more of the grain before it reached the straw-walker area. They replaced the flexible finger extensions with a rigid cell-type grate. Now as the straw passes under a beater onto the straw walkers, the grain hits cross bars in the grate—and is deflected downward and is saved.

Less grain now reaches the straw walker area, and it is possible to step up ground speeds without suffering higher grain loss.

Sam Brown, a student at Baylor University, spent the Easter vacation here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Brown. Mrs. Flora
