Muleshoe gets light snow job

By MARTHA TOLES FROST
City Editor

Muleshoe's low dipped to 6 degrees during last weekend's cold snap, while temperatures in some Panhandle towns plunged to below zero—with a minus 3 recorded in Amarillo and a minus 2 at Dalhart.

Eight Texas towns recorded record lows Sunday, with 4 degrees reported at Wichita Falls, 6 at Abilene, 8 at Dallas-Fort Worth and San Antonio, 12 at Waco, 22 at Houston and Beaumont, and 26 at Galveston.

The cold snap was welcomed by area farmers:

"The cold weather was great," said County Commissioner Butch Vandiver, who farms three miles north of Muleshoe. "It probably killed off a lot of the bugs that give us problems with the crops."

The cold snap probably killed off a large portion of boll weevils, all but 10 to 15 percent of the pests, James Leser, an entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Monday.

"It's the best cold period we've gone through since the 1989-90 winter," Leser said, referring to the last harsh winter until now, when only 1.6 percent of the boll weevil population survived a 12-day freeze. (Nearly sixty-two percent of the boll weevils made it through the 1994-95 season, which had only one day with a low below 20.)

Although Vandiver was

MHS stays alive with 54-47 win

Win and wait.

And the waiting is always the hardest part.

Muleshoe beat Littlefield, 54-47, on senior night Tuesday at WJHS gym, then found out later that its playoff hopes are still alive.

Friona beat Dimmitt, 52-31, tightening the race for the second playoff spot in District 2-3A.

With the win at Dimmitt, Friona (8-1 in district) clinched the district title.

Dimmitt is second at 6-3. Muleshoe and Littlefield are tied for third at 5-4.

Muleshoe ends the regular season at Friona Friday. All they can do — you guessed it — is win and wait. A Muleshoe win, combined with a Dimmitt loss at Shallowater and a Littlefield win at home against Floydada, would create a three-way tie for second and force a playoff.

It's Muleshoe's only shot at the playoffs.

Playing frontrunner for a change, Muleshoe jumped out to early leads in both the first and second half. The Lady Mules (20-9 overall) trailed just once, 15-14, midway through the second quarter.

Mandy Cleavinger, Allyson Field and a 2-2-1 three-quarter-court press keyed a 10-0 run to start the second half, giving Muleshoe a 34-24 lead.

Cleavinger, who scored a game-high 19 points, had a three-point play and added a free throw after being fouled on putback.

Field had a three-point play, a free throw and also assisted Cleavinger's bucket.

Littlefield (15-11) got within three, 36-33, with a little more than two minutes left in the third quarter when Muleshoe got sloppy with the ball.

But Muleshoe scored the first five points of the fourth quarter, and made enough free throws the rest of the way (13 of 19 in the fourth quarter) to sweep the season series with Littlefield.

"It was sad," said Cleavinger, who played on

Harris second-in-command as Mayor Pro-Tem

By MARTHA TOLES FROST
City Editor

Muleshoe City Councilman Rex Harris has had no opportunities to serve in his official capacity as Mayor Pro-Tem since he was elected to the office during a City Council meeting in October.

Although Harris' position as Mayor Pro-Tem is ceremonial in nature, the Mayor Pro-Tem performs "all the duties of the Mayor in the absence or disability of the Mayor," according to the Muleshoe City Charter.

"I thought he was the best man for the job," said Councilman Tom Bonds, who nominated Harris for the office. "He is a qualified, intelligent man who has a concern for the City as a whole."

Muleshoe's last Mayor Pro-Tem was A.V. Woods, who resigned as Councilman in March 1995 and moved to Farwell.

Also nominated for the position was Councilman Juan Chavez, who has served on the City Council since May 1992.

Harris was elected in a 3-2 vote Oct. 17, with Bonds, Mayor Robert Montgomery and Harris voting for Harris, and Cliff Black and Chavez voting for Chavez.

Montgomery said Harris has been very active in the community through various activities and that his experience on the City Council and his knowledge of City affairs will be of great benefit in his role as Mayor Pro-Tem.

Harris, who has been on the City Council since May 1993, also has been active on the

Stalled bipartisan farm bill plants alternative ideas among farmers

By RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

Congress continues to anger area farmers by its non-action on a bipartisan farm bill.

Farm bill legislation won't be decided for at least another month since Congress recessed Feb. 1 for the rest of the month without passing a farm bill.

One area farmer is ready to shuck government assistance and go it on his own.

"They know they can't just stick a band-aid on it and set it on the back burner," said Claud Gregory, a Parmer County farmer and owner of the North Lazbuddie Gin Co. "(Congress) is not facing the facts when they need to. We need some kind of farm bill in place. We have to prepare the land different for different crops."

Under previous farm bills, the government subsidized crop prices through a deficiency payment program.

The government would set a target price for a particular crop, and if the market price dropped below it, the government would make deficiency payments that would make up the difference between the target price and the actual price.

Without a farm bill, farmers do not know how much money they will receive in government payments. Government payments are a key for farmers to show a bank they have the ability to pay off their loans.

Gregory said he is prepared to plant all cotton. In the past, he also raised corn, milo and wheat.

Lack of moisture has many farmers moving away from corn, a high-profit crop that needs more water, to milo and wheat.

"It's a gamble to do it this way," Gregory said. "But it also gives you freedom to farm the way you want to."

Muleshoe farmer Butch Vandiver grew tired of government intervention and no longer participates in its programs.

"If the government kept their nose out of it, we'd get a better price for our product," said Vandiver, also a Bailey County commissioner. "Ninety-five percent of the farmers wouldn't care if they got a penny from the government if we got a fair price for our product."

Federal Land Bank Association President Bill Liles scoffed at the government "welfare" programs. Federal Land Bank is a cooperative lending institution in Muleshoe that deals solely with farmers. The co-op has more than 300 members in Bailey and Parmer counties.

"As far as I'm concerned, the Congress can stay in recess," Liles said. "We need to get away from the price supplement programs. They're more of a hindrance than they are doing any good."

Til the sun sets

Area farmers like this one along the Friona Highway are spending long days getting the soil ready for planting despite an uncertain future caused by Congress' inability to get a farm bill passed. Congress started a month-long recess Feb. 1.

County cotton production drops drastically in south Dry weather major culprit

A spring hail storm, lack of rain, and a September cold spell all were contributing factors to a substantial drop in area cotton production.

Southern Bailey County was the hardest hit, with production cut in half.

Most of cotton producers in the southern Bailey County are dryland farmers, while most fields in the northern Bailey County and southern Farmer County are irrigated.

"It was just bad weather. No rain," said Charles Moraw, manager of the Muleshoe Co-op Gin. "The hail in May and June, and the cold spell in September (right before harvest) really hurt."

Marow reported production was down by about one-third, with approximately 19,200 bales gin.

The Maple Co-op, the Farmer's Co-op in Enochs, and the Needmore Co-op gins all reported a drop in production of 50 percent or more.

The North Lazbuddie Gin Co. was the only local gin to report an increase in production, a two percent increase to

Cotton production

Editor's note: The following is the number of bales produced in 1995 and the percentage of increase or decrease from 1994.

	1995	1994
Bailey Gin Co.	7,500	-18%
Bula Gin Co.	4,270	-33%
Clay's Corner	7,500	-26%
Enochs Co-op	7,523	-51%
Lariat Gin Co.	4,632	—
Maple Co-op Gin	13,900	-50%
Muleshoe Co-op Gin	19,200	-25%

West Camp Gin Co.	6,865	-11%

9,710 bales.

Owner Claud Gregory said it was a matter of planting about 10 to 15 percent more acres.

"We planted a lot more acres, but the yields weren't very high."

Gregory said his customers lost about 1,500 acres to hail and the dry weather.

Hanlin new County FSA director

Monday was Kim Hanlin's first day of work as the Bailey County Executive Director of the Farm Service Agency.

Hanlin replaces Karen Byrd, who took a similar job in Andrews County in early January.

Hanlin, a 46-year-old father of three, spent the last two years as a county executive director in El Paso.

"I always knew I was coming back to the Plains," said

Hanlin, a lifelong resident of Littlefield until the last two years. "These are my type of folks."

Hanlin said the type of crops grown in Bailey County and El Paso are similar, with cotton and vegetables being the major staples. In El Paso, farmers raised higher-grade, long-staple cotton because of the longer growing season. Other major crops were pecans and chiles.

The FSA is a federal agency that administers incentive programs that allow American farmers to compete in global markets. The agency is a branch of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The Bailey County agency oversees approximately a half-million acres of farm land.

The Hanlins plan to move to Muleshoe.

No deficiency payments for cotton producers in 1995

LUBBOCK—Final calculations have been made and, as expected, there will be no cotton deficiency payment in 1995. The marketing and price figures were released by USDA Jan. 31.

According to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG) the final figures as adjusted by USDA reflect a tremendous change from 1994 to 1995. Cumulative marketings fell from 18.6 million bales in 1994 to 12.9 million bales for 1995. Higher prices to producers and slackening demand are the most significant reasons for the reduction.

Overall, producers received excellent prices for the crop in 1995. On average prices stayed well above the 72.9 cent upland cotton target price. Under provisions of the 1990 Farm Bill, deficiency payments are triggered when the weighted average price received by growers falls below the target price.

Final calculations put the weighted average price received by growers at 76.85 cents per pound 3.95 cents above the 72.9 cent target price. This is bad news for producers who took the 1995 advance payment of 1.85 cents earlier in the year.

Producers will be required to pay back the 1995 advance deficiency payment in 1996. At this time USDA is developing several options for producers who have to pay back the advance payment.

"Producers trying to pull together some sort of plan for the 1996 crop are being held back at every turn," says PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson. "Not only are they not getting the information they need regarding what type of farm legislation will be adopted for 1996, they are now going to be required to repay the 1.85 cent advance deficiency payment they received in 1995, further complicating the job of budgeting for the new year."

The advantage of the emotions is that they lead us astray.

Second quarter kills Mules chances of upset

By RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

Basketball is a game of runs.

Muleshoe hasn't found a way to prevent its opponents' runs from taking a downhill pitch yet.

Littlefield started the second half with a 20-3 run en route to a 60-43 District 2-3A win over the Mules Tuesday on senior night at WJHS gym.

"We still haven't found a way to fight off (runs)," Muleshoe coach Ralph Mason said. "We're not the aggressor. We become passive."

Which played right into Littlefield's hands.

The Wildcats (14-2 overall, 6-3 in district) are probably the most athletic and physical team in the district. A combination of the young Mules can't handle yet.

Jermaine Davis scored six of his game-high 15 points in the run and Cody Favor added a 3-pointer one minute into the third quarter.

Leading 26-22 at the half, the Wildcats turned the game into a track meet in the third quarter by pressuring Muleshoe ballhandlers into at least a dozen turnovers.

Instead of attacking the defense, Muleshoe ball handlers starting picking up their dribble, which only increased the pressure and limited their options.

Senior Josh Slayden led Muleshoe (5-22, 1-8) with 11 points, including a 3-pointer that helped the Mules take an early 8-3 lead. Freshman Carlton Lewis (7 points) also had a 3-pointer early.

Muleshoe stayed within at least five points the rest of Kyle Brown grabbed a loose ball, scored and was fouled with six seconds left in the half. He made the free throw to complete the three-point play and give Littlefield a four-point half-time lead.

They do such a good job defensively," Coach Mason said. "They play tough and aggressive from the start, and the referees usually let that

Cleavinger and Field (11 points) were part of an all-senior starting lineup.

Holly Hutton got her first start of the year.

"I thought she did a great job," Muleshoe coach Jim Gruhlkey said. "She plays smart and does the little things. She always boxes out and gets great position. I think she was sort of a stabilizer."

Hutton scored just two points, on a dump down pass from Brandi Harrison that gave Muleshoe a 36-29 third-quarter lead, but she was willing to be a role player on a team that doesn't have enough basketballs to go around at times.

Gruhlkey was forced to go to the bench early when Field and Michelle Williams each picked up two fouls in the first three minutes of the game.

They met the challenge, combining for 11 points in the first half. Junior Kristen Nichols and sophomore Cassidy Cleavinger had four points each.

Muleshoe took its biggest lead of the first half, 12-5, when a wide-open Cleavinger scored underneath on a bullet pass from Carolyn Schuster 40 seconds into the second quarter.

But Littlefield went on a 10-2 run, taking a 15-14 lead with five minutes left in the half. Marty Carr (11 points) hit a 3-pointer and added a layup for Littlefield in the run.

LadyCat post Trissi Walden scored 7 of her team-high 12 points in the second quarter, which ended in a 24-24 tie.

A 3-pointer by Holly Engelking (9 points on three 3-pointers) with a little less than a minute left in the game gave the Lady Horns a 45-42 lead.

Lazbuddie missed several free throws down the stretch (8 of 26 for the game) before Heather Engelking made one of two free throws, giving Lazbuddie a 46-42 lead.

"We were lucky to get out of there with a win the way we shot free throws," Sudduth said.

Josie Pool led Cotton Center (10-13, 1-3) with 13 points. Sandra Barrera added 12.

COTTON CENTER — Lazbuddie earned a berth in the state playoffs Friday with a 79-46 District 8-1A win over Cotton Center.

Lazbuddie (21-6 overall, 4-0 in 8-1A) can win the district title with a win at Spade Tuesday.

Justin St. Clair led the Longhorns with 21 points, Guy Nickels added 16 points and Jason Thomas finished with 11 as Lazbuddie tied a school record for win.

Using a half-court trap to quicken the pace, Lazbuddie outscored Cotton Center (0-4, 10-13) 48-26.

Armando Garcia led Cotton Center with 15 points (9 of 10 free throws) and Aaron Gast added 14.

"We really got after it in the second half," Lazbuddie coach Gary Grahn said.

Cotton Center was successful in slowing the pace in the first half.

Tips for choosing the right college

GEORGETOWN — If you're a college-bound high school senior, getting a jump-start on your college applications should top your to-do list for the new year.

Most universities and colleges are now processing applications from students who want to enroll in fall 1996, and many will begin making financial aid and scholarship awards in February, said John Lind, vice president for enrollment management at Southwestern University, a selective national liberal arts college located in Georgetown, Texas.

Even more incentive to act quickly: students who apply early get better choices for on-campus housing and are at the head of the line for financial aid.

But where to apply? "Some high school seniors already have decided what career path to follow, which makes choosing a college and a specific major easier," Lind said. "But the vast majority are unsure about their plans, making the task of finding the school right for them rather intimidating."

He said student shouldn't feel pressured to choose a major before reaching the college classroom. Those who need help should visit with their high school guidance counselors for access to information about all sorts of colleges — subjective guides, objective guides, audio-visual packages and, in some cases, computer programs that can connect students directly to college or university admission offices.

Lind said that within the last few years, many colleges and universities, including Southwestern, have created World Wide Web home pages, which students can access by using the Internet and using a search function to find the college or university that interests them. At the sites, students can find information about the school's academic and social programs.

The average student today will change majors at least once during a college career, nationwide figures indicate. Futurist John Naisbitt predicts that the typical student will change careers three or four times during a lifespan — the result of a job market that will continue to undergo major technological advance.

Lazbuddie headed for Science Bowl

Lazbuddie High School's science team will compete with 23 high school teams from around the state at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Pantex Plant Regional Science Bowl held in the Classroom Center at West Texas A & M University in Canyon.

Pantex, located 17 miles northeast of Amarillo, is the nation's only nuclear weapons disassembly/assembly plant.

Juniors Heath Brown and Blake Mimms and seniors Dawn Weir, Travis Barker and Josh Warren were chosen by their science teacher/coach, Debbie Weir, to attend the invitational science bowl.

The educational event, developed in 1990 by the Department of Energy, was created to motivate high school students to pursue higher education in science, math and engineering.

The Science Bows is similar to the television game show "Jeopardy," except that students play on teams of four instead of individually.

Students' science and math knowledge is challenged, and the spirit of competition is heightened with students trying to beat their opponents to the buzzer.

The team winning the Pantex competition will qualify to represent the state in the National Science Bowl finals to be held May 3-6 in Washington, D.C. Winners at the national level will attend an international two-week science camp.

Pantex Plant has been a sponsor of the Science Bowl for the last five years, and Lazbuddie attended the competition last year, making it half way through, Weir said.

encouraged by the cold snap, he seemed concerned about the sparsity of moisture:

"We've got to have moisture to have a crop. We've got to have rain, especially for wheat. If we don't, we won't have a wheat crop—especially on drylands."

R.G. Bennett, a volunteer who measures moisture and temperatures in Muleshoe for the National Weather Service, said he measured only .92 inches of rain in December and even less moisture in January—only .12 inches. Bennett said it has not rained at all this month.

A light trace of "snow dust" which could not even be measured on Friday, resulted only in "dampness," Bennett said.

The 1 inch of snow Muleshoe received Saturday would only translate to about .04 inches of moisture, he said, since the snow was so light and powdery.

No weather-related accidents were reported by the Muleshoe Police Department or the Bailey County Sheriff's Department over the weekend in Muleshoe.

The Department of Public Safety attributed an area-wide avoidance of traffic accidents over the weekend to safe driving—as roads were reported to be slick, especially on overpasses.

The National Weather Service in Lubbock predicts fair, sunny weather and no moisture Wednesday through Saturday, with highs in the 70s and lows in the low 30s.

Scouts earn outstanding troop award

Purdy recognized for contributions

LITTLEFIELD — Boy Scout Troop 620 of Muleshoe received the Outstanding Troop Award at the George White District banquet, South Plains Council of Boy Scouts, held Jan. 20 in Littlefield.

Scout Master Terry Hutto accepted the award for the troop.

Muleshoe's Troop 620 is one of seven troops in the district which includes Muleshoe, Littlefield, Levelland, Morton, Sundown, Sudan and Whiteface.

Also recognized at the banquet was Kermit Price, who was awarded his Eagle Scout rank this year. His primary Eagle project was arranging for the giant Muleshoe landmark to be installed at the Muleshoe Heritage Center.

Dr. Bruce Purdy of Muleshoe, Assistant Scout Master of Troop 620, was presented the District Award of Merit.

The district merit award, which is not always presented every year, is the highest award given to a Scout volunteer.

Betty Griswold, Cub Master of Cub Pack 620, said that Purdy has been working with scouts since his first son, Beulah Shelby (right) receives the Muleshoe Area Medical Center Employee of the Month award for February from Hospital Administrator Richard Murphy. Shelby is a certified nurses' aide who has worked at Muleshoe Area Healthcare Center for about 20 years.

Aaron, now an Eagle Scout, was a cub.

"When his oldest boy got into Boy Scouts, he still helped with the Cub pack, going on camping trips with the boys and helping them earn merit badges," Griswold said. "I think it's marvelous that, being a doctor, he would devote so much time to Scouting."

Purdy's son Tyson is a Boy Scout, and his son Derek is a Bear Cub Scout.

Joe King, district chairman, and Larry Hancock, Assistant Scout Master, both of Muleshoe, received the Silver Spade award for their service to Boy Scouts of America.

City slicker learns Cowboy ways

BAXTER BLACK

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

Carol's story is just another glamorous tale of a city girl who married a romantic Nebraska Sandhills rancher seventeen years ago and became a 'vocational COW assistant' for life.

"So what exactly do you want me to do?" she asked.

"Take the pickup (she didn't learn to drive till she was twenty-nine) then go out there to the Big Pasture (the dreaded Big Pasture where one grass covered hill looks like the next one to her). Start way back there at the gate in the Middle Pasture where we have the heifers now and honk. They'll come follow you and we'll just run'em up through the Big Pasture and put'em where they used to be (she lost him right after 'you take the pickup')."

"Don't get too close to that gate if it's surrounded by water because even in 4-wheel drive you could bury this thing up to the hubcaps (she made a mental note to check behind the seat for a life jacket).

"On second thought, go through the Middle Pasture past the old school-house to the windmill with the green gate panels. Then bring the heifers out that gate with the staple in it into the Big Pasture (Oh, no. The State Gate! Wonder Woman herself couldn't open that gate with her Golden lasso and a come-along). Then you'll have a straight shot to the last gate where Gene bucked off the roan colt (in 1979) which leads to where the heifers used to be.

"I'm gonna take the four-wheeler and go through the other gate where the heifers where 'cause it's closer to the mineral feeder and I can check that windmill while I'm there and fill the feeder. See ya in a bit."

A bit passes.

"Where were you?" he asked, "I moved the heifers by myself and fixed another windmill. When you didn't show up I started lookin'. What are you doin' back here anyway? You could have come out the other gate. You were closer to it, ya know."

She took a deep breath and replied bravely, "I got the heifers through the Staple Gate but it took so long to close it I turned the wrong way. I followed the road to the windmill we'd checked and realized I'd gone too far (not to mention the heifers disappeared). So I remembered what you'd told me, 'If you ever get lost in the Big Pasture get up high, then you can see fence. Go to the fence and follow it to a gate (which is as useless a piece of information to someone like her as finding your way home by looking for moss growing on the north side of trees when you're lost in the woods).

"So I climbed this hill and dropped in to a bull hole (buffalo waller for you okies). The truck made 'that noise' and stopped ('that roise' that causes anyone who doesn't like hiking to break out in a cold sweat). I managed to back the truck out and come back the way I came till I found the Staple Gate where I've been waiting for you to find me."

"Hmm," he says and loads the four wheeler in the pickup and they start back to the house. He drives. As they bounce along the sandy track he puts his hand on her knee and she rests her hand on his shoulder. The truck is still making 'that noise' but it doesn't bother them. They're partners. Together they can handle anything.

ALIEN EMPIRE
Nature Mini-series Airs Over Three Consecutive Nights

There is a world that exists alongside our own, but is only marginally visible to us — a place of indescribable strangeness, where creatures can freeze solid at night and thaw back to life again each morning; where life can exist in a blast furnace; where millions of combatants fight epic wars unseen by human eyes, and billions of messages travel daily along a communications network unintelligible to human senses.

It is a crowded world, with as many as 30 million different species competing for existence. And because they inevitably spill into our sphere, most humans fear and hate them. The irony is that our species could not survive without them.

They are the insects that have dominated the earth for some 300 million years. And the story of their uneasy co-existence with humanity is told in rich and dramatic detail when Nature presents a three-part mini-series, Alien Empire.

Combining cutting-edge computer animation with live-action footage and powerful magnifying cameras, Alien Empire offers a startling "insects' eye-view" of their own extremely complex existence. Filmed and assembled over a span of more than two years by the BBC's Natural History Unit, the mini-series lets viewers ride on the back of a European dragonfly, come face-to-face with giant weevils in the African tropics, and march with vast insect armies ready to clash in battle.

Endowed with strong, flexible skeletons, and, in many cases, the advantage of flight, able to eat anything from crude oil to metal, and capable of enduring the world's harshest climates, insects are nothing less than miracles of design. Indeed, as the mini-series starkly depicts, human intellect is proving to be an insufficient match against the insects' ability to mutate and stay one step ahead of our means of pest control.

Alien Empire, a 3-part Nature mini-series, airs on three consecutive nights, Sunday through Tuesday, February 11th-13th at 8:00 p.m.

Bomber Boys

A half century ago, with quiet determination, the young men of the 29th Bomb Group flew their bombing missions to Japan. This hour-long documentary is the story of frightening night missions, firestorm updrafts rocking their plane, and emergency landings at Iwo Jima in Japan. Jack Hemingway, Ernest Hemingway's oldest son, narrates the story. Jack, too, is a World War II veteran and surviving prisoner of war.

Bomber Boys will be broadcast Monday, February 12th at 10:00 p.m. on KENW-TV.

MULESHOE AREA HOME HEALTH Agency

Featured Employee

Sherry McMasters is a Licensed Master Social Worker. She is from Levelland and she works in Muleshoe on Thursdays and Saturdays.

For 22 years, Sherry has been involved in social work. She has worked in different areas including children and adults, but she really likes working with the patients from Home Health. She likes the fact that most of the people like what they are doing and are willing to work long hours to meet patients needs. She feels like this is more of a calling than a job.

Sherry grew up around Plainview. She is married to Gerald McMasters and they have one daughter Tracey McMasters.

To the Management of Lowe's #399

I like shopping at Lowe's because, when I walk in the door, I'm with long-time friends. I am welcomed like a good friend. All of the employees from Store Managers to Stocker are asking to help. Courtesy Abundant! If you need a special item ordered, the Manager will try to get it for you. The Meat Department & Manager are second to none. The office personnel is super! I like the Home-Owned atmosphere. I will always be a Lowe's patron!

Angeley honored with shower

Friends and family gathered on Sunday, Jan. 14, at the First Baptist Church in Muleshoe to shower Krystal Angeley with gifts and good wishes for her new life as Mrs. Bryan Bennett.

Special guests for the occasion were Pat Angeley, mother of the bride to be; Tiffany Boehning and Misty Angeley, both of Muleshoe, sisters of the bride to be; Katie McDonald of Pampa, friend of the bride to be; Wyletta Bennett, mother of the future groom and Kristi Bennett, sister of the future groom, both of Lubbock; Connie Rendleman of Lubbock, grandmother of the future groom; and Peggy Ray of Sudan, great aunt of the future groom. Joining the festivities later was the future groom, Bryan Bennett.

White, gold, and ecru created the dominant color scheme

used on the refreshment table which was covered with a white linen damask tablecloth and set with brass and crystal appointments. The focal point of the table was the teddy bear bride and groom centerpiece designed by Hellen Adrian. The bears were costumed by Adrian with white wedding attire and surrounded by crystal containers of white silk roses, carnations, dried baby's breath, golden twigs, and dried white fern. Satin ribbons tied in love knots, gold filigree sashes and a white battenberg lace umbrella completed the decoration.

Guests were served hot spiced apricot tea, lemon bars, apricot bars and candied fruit cookies.

The hostesses' gift was an Oster Kitchen Center appliance. Hostesses were Terry Young, Hellen Adrian, Ann Mount, Pat Watson, Diane Brown, Louvenia Garlington, Cindy Purdy, Deborah Noble, Shirley Hicks, Pat King, Alice Liles, Judy Cox, Donna Green, Sandy Chitwood, Judy Wilbanks, Lanelle Skaggs and Diana Harrison.
