VOLUME TWO

SNYDER, TEXAS, FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 1, 1930.

NUMBER FIFTY

ONLY ONE RUN OFF IN COUNTY

Only one run-off will be necessary for county offices. That will be between Brownfield and Moore for the sheriff's place, 147 votes separating them in returns from 22 boxes. Longbottom, who trailed far behind Taylor for run-off honors, in the assessor's race, has stated that he will not enter the August primary.

Every county officer led his field with the exception of Holley, who is trailing Buchanan by 43 votes in 22 boxes. The outcome of this race was in doubt until the final returns came in.

PRECINCTS GET LIVELY VOTING

In the precinct races Saturday three run-offs remain.

Day won in precinct No. 1 over Jones by an unofficial count of 336 to 204. Flournoy was also returned to office in precinct No. 2, with the returns showing 254 to Hunnicutt's 241. Grant led the field in precinct No. 3, but was not enough ahead of the other three to keep Lewis out of the race. Lewis went into second with 148, to be closely trailed by Lemons with 146 and Miller with 143. Johnston was the fourth commissioner in office to be given a lead, but Dowell will be in the run-off. The vote stands: Johnston 240, Dowell 277, Coker 218.

Returns in the hands of this paper indicate that Rector leads in the Precinct No. 4 weigher's race with 114 votes. He is closely trailed by Hooper with 106, while Gleasnie received 86 and Runnels 42.

F. I. Townsend will again be county chairman, receiving 96 votes according to our tabulation. A. Johnston was second with 56 votes. About 25 names were written on ballots for this place.

Ollie Bruton led the constable race in Precinct No. 1 with 93 votes, Otto Williamson coming second with 9. A number of names were also written in this contest, which is a newly created office. Returns for constable in the other precincts are not certain.

MORE MEMBERS FOR CO-OP

More members are being added daily to the Texas Cooperative Marketing Association, according to those in charge of enlistment. Several names are added each day, but bankers, glimmers, business men and several hundred farmers are continuing the enlistment work in the hope that Scurry County may have the most complete branch office in Texas at the very beginning of the season.

Farmers who have not inquired into the merits of the government's plan for cotton marketing are urged to visit their bankers or the Chamber of Commerce for details of the most gigantic program in the history of agriculture.

Official Count to Be Made by Committee In Snyder Saturday

County Chairman F. I. Townsend has called a meeting of the Scurry County Democratic committee Saturday afternoon at the courthouse, for the purpose of making official returns of the primary election held last Saturday.

Since no returns will be official until the committee has checked them, the Saturday meeting will be watched with interest.

Weather Prophets Vision Rain Ahead

"It will rain on or before August 3."
"It will rain within the next forty-eight hours."
"It will rain August 2 and August 13."

More prophecies than that are going the rounds; but prophets who tread where angels dare not venture are sometimes not very popular except as has-beens.

So we will not call any names. The three men who made those prophecies were not altogether positive. Besides, they intend to remain in business here for years to come, and we don't want to dim their reputations.

One is a furniture man; the other two are dry goods dealers.

County Election Returns by Boxes

These returns are unofficial, but are complete with the exception of the County Line box, from which figures were unobtainable. More than 20 hours of extra work enabled this paper to be FIRST with this detailed table.

REUNION HELD BY WOOLEVER KIN AT UNION

Four Days of Fellowship Enjoyed First of the Week by Members of Big Family at Union.

On July 25-28, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Woolever, five miles west of Snyder, the Woolever family held a pleasant three-day reunion honoring the mother, Mrs. Annie Woolever, on her sixty-sixth birthday.

Her two sons and seven daughters and their families were all brought together for this happy occasion. One son and family and also two grandsons were unable to attend.

The family is as follows: E. V. Woolever and family of Slaton; Albert Miller and family of Ira, Claude and Marvin Bishop and families of Ralls, Owen Miller and family of Knapp, Tommie Sterling and family of Knapp, Paul Davis and family of Snyder, Mrs. Mattie Dixon and family, Lee Myers and family and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Woolever and family of Snyder, Claude Woolever of Idalou; also Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wilson and family of Snyder.

Other relatives and friends present brought the total number to 115 who partook of the feast and enjoyed the rare pleasure of these three days.

The early hours of the days were spent in much merriment, telling tales of childhood and recalling happy events of the past. The latter part of the day swimming and all kinds of outdoor games, along with singing and string band music, were greatly enjoyed by everyone.

At the lunch hours the most appetizing meals were served on a long table under the pretty shade trees in the yard. The "fatted calf" and sheep were killed and barbecued, fried chicken, a variety of salads, vegetables and fruits, cakes and pies, along with ice tea and lemonade, made real feasting for all three days.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wilson donated the beef and Cliff Birdwell the sheep. The family wishes to express their appreciation and sincerely thanks the donors. Other donations were made by Mr. and Mrs. Edd Murphy and several other relatives and friends.

As they parted late Sunday afternoon, all expressed themselves as having a perfect time and looking forward to next year's reunion. Pictures were made by several members of the family which were real good and will make nice remembrances for the family of this delightful day.

(The News is indebted to Miss Geraldine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Woolever, for this interesting item).

First Church of Christ

Thomas M. Broadfoot, Pastor.

The following is quoted from Harold Graham, a student in the University of California. It is the most scathing charge that has come from the present generation of youth, and is indicative of the trend of thought of the most serious minded of this group, and should be taken as a bright omen.

"If youth is as important to the future destiny of the world as they say we are, then the future world faces its crisis today. American youth, and that means future American, faces two alternatives—one is chaos, the other is Christ. Thousands of the finest young people in the world are even now slaves to doubt and skepticism and atheism. Respect for law is gone; the sense of right is gone; and the consciousness of a living God is gone. The cause? We have been denied the truth as it is found in Christ Jesus, in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. And you, who have denied us this truth, are betrayers of your trust, selling the finest of American young manhood and womanhood into a life worse than slavery. The hideous skepticism that stalks about under the mask of scholarship is robbing us of all respect for authority and all hope for humanity."

The young man is correct. He has stated just what we have preached since our entry into the ministry. What he has said is fundamental. But he has touched only one point of the difficulty of which there are many. Our ministry has been to deal with these fundamentals in such a way as to bring back to youth and age alike all that which this youth has said is gone—faith in Christ, respect for authority and confidence in a living God. Come! Let us study the word of God together. Sunday sermons: "The Menace of Divine (?) Healing;" "The Kingdom Like a Drag Net."

A lady was entertaining the small son of a married friend.

"Are you quite sure you can cut your meat, Willy?" she asked, watching him intently.

"Oh, yes, mom," he replied without looking up. "We often have it as tough as this at home."

Old Charlie was just a cow pony. All saddle-marked, buck-kneed and lank. With scars where the cruel wire cut him, And Double-O brand on the flank. His sire was just one of the head-- His mother as common as he; But little we thought as we galloped Of blood lines that make pedigree.

He carried us safe to the school house Through the mud or the sleet or the snow, And never put up an objection Whenever we wanted to go. And dull was that bright day of autumn, And many the tears that we shed, When father came up from the barnyard And told us old Charlie was dead.

Sometimes in my dreaming I ride him Again through the snow and the rain And galloping on in my fancy I hear "the wind sing through his mane. I hope on the great day of judgement Somehows and somehows there will be A pasture for faithful cow ponies Like Charlie, without pedigree.

Baptist Meeting at Union Closes Sunday

Twenty-one baptisms, 38 conversions, 19 additions by letter, one by statement and eight by restoration resulted from the revival meeting at Union Chapel, which closed Sunday night.

Rev. Philip C. McGahey, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Snyder, did the preaching. A special service was held Sunday afternoon at the church, at which Dr. M. E. Davis, Bible instructor at Howard Payne College, Brownwood, spoke on "Baptism." Following the service, the ordinance of baptism was administered to 21 members at the Joe Wilson place, three miles west of Snyder. A number of people from Snyder and other portions of the county attended the Sunday afternoon services.

New Snyder Laundry Doing Good Business

The Sanitary Laundry, opened last week, is enjoying a volume of business above her expectations, according to Mrs. W. L. Clark, proprietress. So cordial has been the reception that new equipment is being added and three experienced workers have been employed.

To the People of Scurry County.

I sincerely appreciate the support of each and every citizen who voted for me in the first primary, and I take this means of expressing to you my gratitude.

I am in the run-off primary and I stand, if elected, pledged to a program of active and energetic enforcement of all our laws. I know that I have the energy and ability to make you a good sheriff. If you did not vote for me in the first primary, I earnestly urge you to carefully consider my candidacy in the second primary on August 23. In conclusion, I again thank my friends for a continuation of their support and influence, and I respectfully solicit the vote and influence of every citizen of the county. Yours sincerely, WREN O. MOORE.

O. Randolph Takes Up Duties at Abilene

O. Randolph, prescription man at the Stinson Drug Store No. 1 for two years, left several days ago for Abilene, where he is now connected with the Compton drug store in the Alexander building.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph are making their home in Abilene. They were active in the church and social life of Snyder.

Herbert Pannister, who became a registered pharmacist more than a year ago, will assist Lee Stinson, longtime prescription druggist, in handling the prescription work at store No. 1.

Norman Achieving Success With New Paper at Plainview

A ten-page paper last week was Editor R. S. Norman's donation to Plainview newspaperdom. The Community News, which was started by Mr. Norman a few weeks ago, after he had sold the Herald-Herald, has grown by leaps and bounds.

Mr. Norman is known for his ability to interpret the needs of farmers, and advertisers are rapidly learning that the new paper appeals to them.

Mr. Peewee—"Why did you get me such big shirts? These are four sizes too large for me."

His Wife—"They cost just the same as your size, and I wasn't going to let a strange clerk know I married such a small man."

his all-talking picture debut Wednesday at the Palace Theatre in "The Unholy Three," talking version of his silent success of some years ago, directed by Jack Conway and with a supporting cast which includes Lila Lee, Elliott Nugent, Harry Earles, John Miljan, Ivan Linow, Clarence Burton and Cranford Kent.

"ANOTHER THING WRONG WITH THE MOVIES IS ALL THE FAT WOMEN TRYIN' TO SQUEEZE PAST YOU IN THE SEATS!"

Dickey—"My dad is an Elk, a Lion and a Moose."

Mickey—"What does it cost to see him?"

Bethel No. 1 Beaten By Sardis Nine, 6 to 5

It was a case of too much Sardis at Wolf Park Sunday afternoon, when a large crowd saw Bethel No. 1 get herself a 6 to 5 whipping.

Gladson hurled for the losers, while Underhill and Horton did the Sardis slinging.

The win gave Sardis a two-to-one decision over Bethel in a three-game series during the season.

Two county teams will probably tangle at Wolf Park next Sunday.

"I wish you would help me with this sum, dad," said a small boy struggling with his home work.

"Can't, son," said dad from behind his paper. "It wouldn't be right."

"I don't suppose it would," said the boy, "but you might have tried."

JULY REPORTS GIVE INCREASE IN FEED CROPS

Six Per Cent Reduction of Acreage in Cotton Recorded by State
Commissioner Agriculture.

Feed crops in Texas, as of July 15, show a slight increase in acreage, according to a report from S. H. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture for the state. Cotton acreage over the state reveals an acreage decrease of approximately six per cent, his survey reveals.

Condition of the cotton crop generally averages about 79 per cent of normal.

This report is based on conditions of July 15, and includes reports from more than 200 counties.

Cotton Report by Districts.
District—	No. of Counties	Acre-Condition
East Texas.....	49	92 78
North Texas.....	22	94 79
West Texas.....	44	93 76
Central Texas.....	44	95 81
S. W. Texas.....	37	96 82
N. W. Texas.....	58	97 78
Average for State.....	94	79

Texas harvested 17,968,000 acres last year. A reduction of six per cent this year, including abandonment, leaves 16,889,920 acres, or in round numbers 17,000,000 acres in cultivation.

Forty per cent of the cotton crop is late, planted since May 15, and much of it is not blooming, and not any of this late crop is assured. It is impossible to estimate the outcome of the cotton crop.

Hot, dry weather is reported in every district, and cotton is falling for lack of moisture. Only a few counties report any rain in July. Cotton is reported good in only a few counties. Very little insect damage is reported. The southwestern district reports some damage by boll weevil.

It now looks like the crop may be as short as last year. A short crop would seem to be the only hope for better prices this fall.

Corn is reported good from Austin south to the coast, and some counties of Central and North Texas report good corn. The average yield per acre of corn and oats is estimated to be 20 bushels.

Wheat is poor, generally, because of the extreme drought in March and April. The estimated yield is eight bushels per acre.

Grain sorghum and hay have been increased in acreage and the condition is fairly good, but the late hay crops will be short unless general rains come soon.

Market Conditions.
Prices of cotton and wheat, the main market crops, are very low, and this destroys the purchasing power of the farmer and hurts business generally.

There is a world panic, but the economic writers, employed by big business, say that business is improving and unemployment is decreasing. We have not felt the improvement yet.

Domestic consumption and exports of cotton have decreased 1,882,193 bales during the last 10 months, and may reach 2,000,000 bales by the close of the cotton year, August 1. This is one cause of the low price of cotton. There may be other contributing causes. The outlook for the farmer and business generally is not very bright.

Tribute to Lockhart.

Charley Lockhart, the man of short stature, but long on those qualifications that go to make up a good public official, was circulating around Falfurrias Friday, getting acquainted with the people. He is a candidate for state treasurer, and by the way, would make a good one.

Mr. Lockhart was for 16 years treasurer of Scurry County, and for the past 10 years has been deputy manager in the state treasury department. His is a terse and to-the-point pledge, consisting of eight words, as follows: "Faithful and Efficient Service in Every Public Trust." No man could promise more, and Facts editor, who has known this candidate for many years, knows that Mr. Lockhart will give this kind of service if elected to the office to which he aspires. Give his claims your consideration.—Falfurrias Facts.

Thanks!

To the Voters of Scurry County:
I wish to voice my appreciation for the kindness and courtesies shown me in the past, and for your cooperation shown me as county treasurer; also for the splendid vote given me in Saturday's primary.

I hope for the continued cooperation and friendship of the people of Scurry County during the next term. I will show you my appreciation by rendering you the very best service possible during the next two years. Yours sincerely,
EDNA B. TINKER,
County Treasurer.

Yoders Spend Fourth of July on French Steamer

D. P. Yoder of Snyder is in receipt of an interesting letter from his son, Fred, who is on a tour of countries along the shores of the Mediterranean Sea with his mother. We print the letter, with Mr. Yoder's comment, because of the concern of Scurry County people in the tour being made by the Yoders.

The letter, in part, follows:
Yesterday was the Fourth of July and we had a big time. Everything is going fine, and we will be in Athens in about two hours.

There are three other parties on board our steamer, the Alesia, and two of them are similar to the one of which we are a part. The other is of the "high filutin" kind. The leader of one, the Travel Institute of Bible Research, Mr. Cuff, was born in Palestine, of English birth, and lived there for the first 21 years of his life. He was there last year during the riots, with a party of 45, and visited the mosques and churches that were not even open for worship. He is the boyhood and school friend of several of the leaders in Palestine, and knows the country like I do Texas—better perhaps.

He gave a lecture yesterday on the political situation there, and it was quite interesting. I do not have time to write it all now, but when I get through there I will be able to tell you more.

The principal disturbance started mainly in 1921, but there is a lot of matter-of-fact business connected with it. The Balfour declaration had been sold to the Jews, which gave Palestine to the Jews, and it was not passed by the government of England. Palestine was already the legal property of the Arabs by the act of the houses of England. This caused trouble and the fellow who wrote the declaration, Sir Herbert Samuel, was held responsible and was made the goat. But he wrote an explanation or interpretation of the declaration. Then he was a Jew and was sent to govern Palestine and put the things he had drawn up into effect. He did a fine job, and in two years received a note of thanks from the Arabs of Palestine. The Jews succeeded in getting him removed after four years.

Another Jew was sent to take his place and in one year received a note of thanks from the Arabs—and the Jews got him out. The next was a Jew—who was removed similarly. This is because, regardless of creed or color, the governors, although Jews, could not help seeing the Arabs' side and gave the thing a fair play. The Jews did not want fair play, but crooked stuff.

Cuff said that he could prove that all of the anti-British-Arab literature is published and put out on and by the Jewish press. He debated a Jew, and the Jews in New York admitted and stated that they did not want Palestine for religious but for political and commercial business. He said that the Zionist movement is purely political and commercial and not religious at all. They, the Zionist host of 40,000 Jews immigrate into Palestine yearly, but they forget to tell that 38,000 leave. Forty per cent of the population is pre-Zionist. There are not over 125,000 Jews in Palestine today, and there are about 900,000 Arabs.

All in all, there were approximately 100 killed on each side in the rioting last year. The investigating committee from England found that the Arabs started the riot but had just and worthy means and causes for starting it. The Arabs sent a very cordial note of thanks to the committee. The Jews demanded another committee, although they had the best lawyers. The committee was almost 100 per cent in favor of the Jews when the investigation started, and the Arab representatives did not even know who he was to work through when he did reach Palestine a week after the committee had started work.

I will give you more facts and data later, but I think that is pretty well the sum of the situation.

Dr. Cuff is a very well educated man, and one who has world-wide views. He is not necessarily prejudiced but he sees and knows the facts.

There are several other Texans on board the Alesia. One is from Lubbock, one from Beaumont and a couple from a town below Abilene. I have met one fellow who is of Pennsylvania Dutch stock. His ancestors came from Pennsylvania to Ohio. He was born in Indiana near Gosben.

We have three meals a day, and tea at 2:30 on deck. We have from six to 10 courses each meal except breakfast. A plate, knife and fork with each course.

There are men of wide fame and intellectual training, also of simplicity, nature, on board.
We have from two to three lectures on board the ship daily.
Sincerely, your son,
July 5, 1930. FRED.

Powell Gets Unique Chance to Actually Know Movie Sleuth

William Powell is one of the few Hollywood actors who has had a chance to become thoroughly acquainted with a character he portrays. In "The Benson Murder Case," S. S. Van Dine's popular detective story, which will show at the Palace Theatre, starting Monday, for two days, Powell plays the role of Philo Vance, famous fiction detective, for the third time in as many pictures.

Stage players, appearing day after day in the same role, have an opportunity to profit as they go and to improve their performances as experience suggests. This opportunity for close study of a role is one of the chief claims to advantage advanced by repertory groups, Eva LeGallienne's New York players being an example. But rarely has this opportunity been extended to film players. Generally the screen actor must give the absolute best that is in him at the time the picture is made, and then "forget about it." The chance to repeat the role seldom ever comes.

Delegation Plan to Go to Encampment At Post in Group

A number of Scurry County Baptists have attended sessions of the annual Post encampment since its opening Sunday. The largest crowd from Snyder will probably go Sunday, when members of the senior B. Y. P. U. expect to go in a body.

Rev. Philip C. McGehee, pastor of the local church, is in charge of the boys' work at the encampment and is teaching a study course to the boys' organization, Royal Ambassadors. The pastor was absent Sunday, when Dr. M. E. Davis of Howard Payne delivered interesting messages at morning and evening services.

Dr. P. C. Campbell of Lubbock is encampment speaker. Dr. Davis is Bible instructor, and many other state Baptist leaders are included in the line-up of teachers, song leaders and preachers.

Surgeons To the Tire

To the Voters of Scurry County.

I want to take this opportunity to extend to you my appreciation and thanks for your liberal support in the recent Democratic primary election. I worked hard and made an extensive campaign of the county in support of my candidacy, hoping that I would receive a sufficient vote to elect me to the office to which I aspired.

I want to say that I have never been in a contest of any kind with a finer set of men than were in this race for tax assessor. It has been a real pleasure to associate with gentlemen of this type.

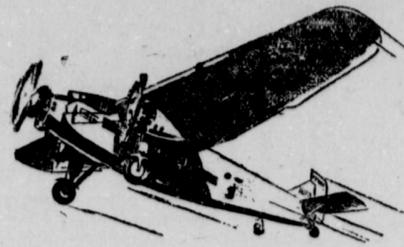

While my hopes were realized to the extent that I received enough of your votes to put me second in the count, I do not feel that I would be justified in going into the second primary with this contest, and I am willing for the vote to stand as it is at present. However, I will say that it is my intention to announce my candidacy for this office for the next term two years hence.

Thanking you one and all and assuring you of the fullest appreciation of your support in the past election, and thanking you kindly in advance, not to forget that I am a candidate for this office in 1932.

Sincerely and truly,
Bernard Longbopham.

The Weekly Dozen.

Unpleasant to the Liver.

Pessimism Pete insists that there's a feelin' comin' a-stealin'—after one becomes a defeated candidate—that isn't pleasant to the liver.

And "One Impeachment Doth Not Spoil the Pie."

"One good turn deserves another," quoth Mr. Jim, as he crossed the prohibition fence and asked folks to forget the yesterdays.

Axiom for Ye Olde Candidates.

We quoted that old English saying in this column not so long ago, but it deserves printing again: "If 'ifs' and 'ands' were pots and pans, there'd be no need for makers. Attention, candidates past and present!

An Oasis, If You Please—Or If You Don't.

Texas has said in no uncertain terms that she is, in the language of the majority, intensely dry. Witness how Sheppard and others in lesser races have led their voting sheep to water.

A Collector Without a Six Shooter.

Scurry County will have a whole sheriff, no matter the result of the primary August 23. But beginning in January he will collect evidence and criminals, not taxes, as he has in the past.

The ABC's Will Probably Come Next.

We once wondered why they called these election scandals the first and second "primary". It's easy to understand, after watching eleven candidates scrapping all over the state, that our plan for electing state and county officials hasn't advanced to the first grade.

Purgatives, Politics, Primaries.

Several new purgatives are on the market each month. What we need is purgatives for our clogged up political system instead of so many for people. Someone has suggested that it will take something better than calomel to improve our cluttered up primary system.

Or It Could Be: "Poverty Down to Politics."

Everybody is wondering now what Ross Sterling will call himself. Jim Ferguson called himself "Farmer Jim" when he first stepped into politics, although he was president of a bank and probably hadn't pulled a goose-neck in many years, if ever. Sterling might call himself "The Humble Man" or "Rorria Ross".

And Don't Forget the Bee and the Ant.

A common American failing, say Europeans, is to attempt to do big things in a few days instead of letting the years do their work. We'll bet a plugged nickel that Ross Sterling, who was unknown to about nine-tenths of Texas three months ago, would be a rotten example for our neighbors across the Atlantic.

Pictures for the Living.

Not many folks who were in Snyder Friday and Saturday failed to view the Snyder News "Rogues' Gallery". Monday morning the whole gallery was removed, together with a dozen or more placards that had accumulated from various candidates' camps. Now the office cut its sweeping crocodile tears, the office boy is sadly wiping the window glass, and the girl-at-the-typewriter is looking in the renewed sunlight-through-the-window.

Charley's the Man—Let's Elect Him.

Even the ordinary editorial caution is going to prevent us from stating that we believe Charley Lockhart to be the most logical, the most capable, the most honest man who is running for a state office in the second primary. Even if Charley's opponent is an old-time newspaper man, we believe that the little man with the big ability, who was Scurry County's treasurer for so many years, deserves election to a post for which he has been in training half his life.

No Love, No Loven, Not Even a Small Bit.

Several weeks ago The News prophesied that there might be some Love lost in the governor's race. Not only was there Love lost, but there is no longer a place for any Loven. Nine candidates have become Walkers

That Contrary Streak.

Probably all of us have a contrary streak in our makeup which contributes to our delight when someone makes a success despite violation of most of the accepted rules.

In one city an Englishman and his wife operate a neighborhood bakeshop. Their little store is scrupulously clean and they bake excellent bread.

The heat, the hard work, and the long hours may combine to make their dispositions unpleasant. They give the impression that customers are an irritation. Their attitude toward the trade is like that of a New York theatre ticket seller.

Each customer is greeted by a lifting of the eyebrows. If a customer asks for brown bread and none is on hand the proprietor, and his wife particularly, seem to take extreme pleasure in saying, "We have none." Before the customer can ask for white bread, the eyes and the eyebrows are directed to the next person in line.

A customer who attempts to indulge in idle pleasantries finds himself as much out of place as though he had laughed at a funeral service.

The shop has neither a telephone nor a delivery wagon. Not a single employe has been added to the staff in ten years.

Yet women drive for miles to buy the bread. Some send their husbands, and others their chauffeurs. The place is crowded. Parking has become a problem. Realtors say that values in the neighborhood have been enhanced.

The moral of this little story is a strange one. It seems to be this: If you can make bread (or mouse-traps) good enough you can be as independent and insolent as a government clerk. But your bread (or mouse-trap) has to be mighty good.—Exchange.

A Big Collision.

I see some scientist has got the earth and the moon billed for a head-on collision some time in the future, and says that all life on the earth will be destroyed. There is one consolation about it—maybe all the Bermuda grass will die, too. But I wish he had told us when it was going to happen or not said anything about it, for I can't work with half the heart now for fear that just about the time we get laid-by it will come and then we have put out all that hard work for nothing. If we knew it was coming any time this year there would be no use making a crop at all. We could all just square off, then burn up the supply of gasoline that is on hand, so it would not be a total loss.

I just wonder why it is that people get along so slow with their work now or why time passes off so fast. This has been a reasonably good year to work and lots of land in this country has not had a plow stuck in it this year. When I was a kid people could get out, clear a big new ground, split rails, fence it and make a crop on it that year, but people could not do that now in two years.

But one reason people could do so much work back in the old days is, the days then were longer than they are now. I worked in the new ground many a day that was forty to fifty hours long, and firmly believe I have piled enough brush in one day to dam up the Mississippi River in four places; but now by the time you get limbered up good it is dinner time, and night is here before dinner is settled.

I remember once when I was a boy I thought the sun had stopped one afternoon, and I never was bothered as bad in my life—but then times was usually when we was hoeing grassy cotton. And another thing then, we didn't have to go to town from one to six times a week. We stayed at home and worked. And we could clear new ground now, split rails and fence it if there were no automobiles, pictures shows or a chance at a jersey cow with every dollar you spend or pay on account. But my old bus ain't for sale if there is never another foot of land cleared.

The merchants rear in the spring because we don't stay at home and work. Then in the fall they throw out every kind of bait imaginable to get us to town; so we just go spring, summer, fall, winter and all for four they might put out a bait and we would not be there to jerk the cork under. The days are just as long as they ever were; we just ain't there enough days.—Coon Creek in Mount Vernon Optic-Herald.

She—"Oh, go and commit suicide."

He—"That's the last thing I'd do."

"Bring out your scales," said the sweet young thing as she drove her Ford in front of a filling station.

"The scales?" asked the attendant.

"Yes, see how many pounds of air I need in my tires."

"Why buy a home?" she asked. "I was born in a hospital ward, reared in a boarding school, educated in college, courted in an automobile and married in a church. Nowadays I get my meals at a cafeteria, live in an apartment, spend my mornings playing golf, my afternoons playing bridge and my evenings are for dancing or the movies. When I'm sick I go to the hospital and when I die I'll be buried from an undertaker's. All I need is a garage with bedroom."

The American Flag.

When Freedom, from her mountain height,

Unfurled her standard to the air,
She mingled with its gorgeous dyes

And set the story of glory there;

The milky baldric of the skies,
And striped its pure, celestial white

With streakings of the morning light

Then, from his mansion in the sun,
She called her eagle bearer down,
And gave into his mighty hand

The symbol of her chosen land.

Flag of the brave! Thy lords shall fly,

The sign of hope and triumph high,
When speaks the signal-trumpet tone,
And the long line comes gleaming on;

Ere yet the life-blood, warm and wet,
Has dimmed the glistening bayonet,
Each soldier eye shall brightly turn
To see thy sky-born glories burn.

And, as his springing steps advance,
Catch war and vengeance from the glance.

Then shall thy meteor-glances glow,
And covering foes shall sink beneath
Each gallant arm that strikes below
That lovely messenger of death.

Flag of the seas! On ocean wave
Thy stars shall glitter 'o'er the brave;

When death, careering on the gale,
Sweeps darkly round the belled sail,
And fringed waves rush wildly back
Before the broadside's reeling rack,

Each dying wanderer of the sea
Shall look at once to heaven and thee,
And smile to see thy splendors fly
In triumph 'o'er his closing eye.

Flag of the free heart's hope and home,
By angel hands to valor given;

Thy stars have lit the welkin dome,
And all thy hues were born in heaven.

Forever float that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us,

With Freedom's soil beneath our feet
And Freedom's banner streaming
'o'er us.—Joseph R. Drake.

The Big Parade.

All this happened in one day!

A twenty-three-year-old boy came into our office to apply for a job.

When we asked him about his present occupation he said he was a parachute jumper.

"I like the work all right," he added, "but parachute jumping isn't steady."

I met a mother whose son is about to graduate from college. What do you think he wants to be? A bond salesman? A movie star?

He wants to be an archeologist.

A man named Volk died in New York City. He claimed the distinction of having torn down more big buildings than any other man who ever lived. But he died without realizing his ambition. He wanted to live to tear down the Woolworth building.

Think of it. Six million people walking daily through the streets, each with his separate home and desire. Who would ever imagine that one of them was constantly saying to himself: "Oh, if I could only tear down the Woolworth building. That would crown my career."

A man with a noisy wife and seven grown children disappeared from his home in Brooklyn, and was discovered some months later in Hartford. Questioned as to why he left his family, he replied that he had done his duty as a father and believed himself entitled to a little peace in his old age. He had taken a job as a night watchman in a deaf and dumb asylum.

Why do I take up valuable white space to set down these apparently unimportant and unrelated incidents? Because, my friends, one of the biggest and least expensive of all pleasures is reading the newspaper and marveling at the eternal freshness and variety of the human race.

Let those who are bilious rail at the "standardization of modern life." It is true that many of the things we

Cooking by Electricity is the Best, Simplest and Easiest Method of Preparing Foods

Cooking by electricity is generally accepted by housewives as the best, simplest and easiest method of preparing food. It is gaining in favor as fast as housewives realize the many advantages of the electric range.

Best, because it retains the actual goodness of foods.

Simplest, because the heat is controlled. Even an amateur can cook with unvarying success in an electric oven.

Easiest, because the electric range is designed to operate with the least amount of attention.

These three advantages have convinced 2,500 housewives served by the Texas Electric Service Company that cooking by electricity is most desirable.

Miss Nobody from Nowhere

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

Twelfth Installment

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE—

Standing on a New York street corner, a young woman suddenly discovers that she does not know her own name nor how she got there. Everything in her past is a blank. She knows only that her name is "Eve." She meets a young man who lives at the hotel where she is registered as Eve Nobody of Nowhere, which she had written in French. Eric Hamilton calls in a nurse specialist, but Eve slips out of the hotel, goes to a little apartment house, where she meets a professional dancer who gets her a job in a cabaret.

As a cabaret hostess she meets many curious people. Then, one night, a man who claims to recognize her comes in. She is afraid of him and runs away, back to the hotel to Eric Hamilton. She has her hair dyed and changes her manner of dress, so that the stranger out of her old life will not recognize her. Then Hamilton persuades her to go through a marriage ceremony with him. As they return to the hotel the man she fears is waiting. Hamilton sends her up stairs and turns to the other man, who says his name is Samuel Henderson of Chicago.

Now go on with the story—

"Thank you, Mr. Henderson. My name is Eric Hamilton, and I'm from Chicago, too. That ought to be a bond."

"Thanks. And now," Henderson added in a level tone, "I'd like to have you tell me what you meant by speaking of Miss Carrington as your wife."

Eric permitted himself a glance of surprise, while mentally he registered the name.

"I meant that the lady and I are married," he suavely informed the caller.

"Since when?"

"Oh, for some little time."

"The hotel people didn't seem to know anything about it. They called her Miss Parsons."

"One doesn't confide all one's affairs to the hotel people, you know," Hamilton mildly pointed out. "And I admit we're newlyweds. Still," he added, "we meant to tell them tonight."

"They call Miss Carrington, 'Miss Berson' uptown and 'Miss Parsons' at this hotel. I can't understand," Henderson went on as Hamilton took this in silence, "why she changed her name after skipping out the way she did. But why the devil should she have two names?"

"Four," Hamilton corrected; "Carrington, Parsons, Berson and Hamilton. But Hamilton is the real one. Berson is the result of a blunder. Some one uptown twisted Parsons into Berson and the habit spread."

"Darned queer, I call it," Henderson muttered. "And cutting me dead when I finally found her," he ended, "that's beyond belief."

As Hamilton made no comment on this outburst, Henderson added with an evident effort at self-control:

"Wasn't this marriage of yours rather sudden?"

"I suppose you might call it so," Eric conceded. "But we've known each other more than a fortnight, and lots of couples don't wait that long. You know, strangers in the same town get better acquainted in a few weeks of vacation than they ordinarily would in a year," he bromidiacally pointed out.

"Vacation?" Henderson broke out, so loudly that his companion had to remind him of the time and place by an apprehensive look around the room. It worked. Henderson lowered his voice.

"Do you realize, young man, that this bride of yours skipped out, without warning, a week before she was billed to make her first American appearance at the most important musical event of the year—the big Chicago benefit for the flood sufferers? . . . And that isn't all she's done," he ended with a groan.

"No," Hamilton slowly admitted, "I didn't realize that. What else has she done?"

Henderson sent him a sudden peering look from his near-sighted eyes, but he was too full of his own troubles to be analytical.

"She's wrecked half a dozen October concert engagements, that's what she's done," he bitterly announced, "including one with the Chicago Orchestra and another with the Philadelphia Orchestra. And she's knocked over the head the prettiest autumn recital ever planned for an artist. That was bad enough; but of course we all made allowances for her because of the awful shock she'd had—"

"She hasn't said much about that shock," Eric confessed. "I wish you would tell me the whole story."

Henderson leaned nearer and peered into his face again, this time more closely.

"See here," he suddenly demanded, "why should I talk over Miss Carrington's affairs with you? I don't know anything about you."

"We're fifty-fifty on that," Hamilton reminded him. "But I'm her husband."

"I've only your word for it."

"I can give you proof any time it's necessary. But first I want to know a whole lot more about you. Where do you come in on Eve's affairs?"

Henderson turned squarely and stared at him. He seemed unable to speak.

"Do you mean to say," he inquired at last, "that my name doesn't mean anything more than a name to you, and that Eve Carrington married you without telling you about me?"

"Not a thing. Not a word."

Henderson hunched forward, eyes on the rug at his feet.

"Well," he muttered, "that certainly ties up the package . . . with a string! I thought no musician could so up the beach, and they sneaked off alone one morning and got that boat into the water and pushed out in it. Their governess thought they had merely run away from her to play on the sand, but just the same, she chased along the beach, looking for them, and on the way another child met her and told her what the youngsters had done. They were pretty far out by that time."

"Yes, go on."

"It was early and the shore was almost deserted; but Eve had happened along with two women she walked with every morning. She and her friends had been standing for a few minutes watching the rowboat and wondering why the devil it was acting so queer. Suddenly they saw it capsize . . . and at the same time the Heckner governess came running toward them, off her head with terror and shrieking that all the children had been in that boat."

Henderson stopped again.

"Eve took just time enough to kick off her shoes before she raced into the water and started for the kids. She realized that it was all up to her, for most of the men were away that day, and the governess and the other two women couldn't swim a stroke. One of them had sense enough to rush back toward town for help, and the other raced around on the sand, yelling."

He stopped again, took the big cigar from his lips, and looked at it as if wondering how it got there.

"I knew those kids myself," he explained. "I'd been at Mackinac over the previous week-end and I had taken the twins out rowing. Oh, well . . ." He restored the cigar to his mouth, puffed at it fiercely for a moment and resumed:

"Eve's a good swimmer, but it was a hard pull, for the boat had upset surprise me, for the Lord knows," and emphasizing every word. "I happen to be Eve's dead father's life-long friend. They're a crazy lot. But this!" He straightened and met Hamilton's sympathetic eyes.

"You see," he added deliberately, "and her guardian, and her manager, and the man she was going to marry!"

Hamilton's breath caught under the blow, but he took it with outward calmness.

"Now that we understand each other suppose you tell me about the shock my wife had before she left Chicago," he suggested. "She doesn't even mention it."

"That's easy, though I guess you've read most of the details. You know all about the drownings, of course."

"I don't even know what you mean."

Henderson took out his handkerchief and wiped his moist face.

"It's very odd you don't know," he muttered. "Hasn't Eve told you anything at all?"

"I've admitted that she hasn't discussed the shock."

"I suppose that isn't strange, really. She was shot to pieces by it, poor girl."

Eric caught his arm.

"Mr. Henderson," he cried, "I wish you'd stop beating about the bush and tell me that whole story from start to finish."

"All right," Henderson agreed. He went on with increasing seriousness:

"I'll start at the beginning. Eve was pretty tired when she got back to America the first of July, after her European tour, and the year ahead of her here was going to be just as strenuous as the past year. She's a genius, you know . . . a wonder. Even now there isn't another American pianiste who can touch her. She'll head all the women players of the world in a few years more. You don't need to know anything about music to realize she's a genius," Henderson was saying. "You have only to hear her play."

"I've never heard her play."

Hamilton spoke absently, irritated by the departure from the main theme. He immediately regretted his words, for Henderson was plainly amazed by them.

"What!" he gasped. "You've known Eve Carrington more than two weeks and haven't heard her play! Still," he now remembered, "she had turned from her music completely during that last week in Chicago—"

"You were talking about the Heckner drownings," Eric reminded him.

Henderson shook his gray head.

"It doesn't seem possible," he said. "I can't imagine Eve away from a piano that long, even in the nervous state she was in. But I suppose it's no more impossible than the rest of this business."

"Eve went to Mackinac early in August, for a fortnight's rest. She was the guest of the Heckners in their summer home there. She's an intimate friend of Mrs. Heckner, who is devoted to her and was doing everything she could to make Eve's first American season a big success."

"Eve is strong for boating and swimming and every sort of outdoor sport," Henderson went on, having replaced the spectacles. "Learned 'em when she was a kid, and keeps herself fit that way. The Heckner children—there were four of them—were crazy about her, and spent most of their time at her heels. They were just learning to row and swim, but of course they were never allowed to go off by themselves. However, they knew there was an old boat a mile or so up the beach, and they sneaked off alone one morning and got that boat into the water and pushed out in it. Their governess thought they had merely run away from her to play on the sand, but just the same, she chased along the beach, looking for them, and on the way another child met her and told her what the youngsters had done. They were pretty far out by that time."

"Yes, go on."

"It was early and the shore was almost deserted; but Eve had happened along with two women she walked with every morning. She and her friends had been standing for a few minutes watching the rowboat and wondering why the devil it was acting so queer. Suddenly they saw it capsize . . . and at the same time the Heckner governess came running toward them, off her head with terror and shrieking that all the children had been in that boat."

Henderson stopped again.

"Eve took just time enough to kick off her shoes before she raced into the water and started for the kids. She realized that it was all up to her, for most of the men were away that day, and the governess and the other two women couldn't swim a stroke. One of them had sense enough to rush back toward town for help, and the other raced around on the sand, yelling."

He stopped again, took the big cigar from his lips, and looked at it as if wondering how it got there.

"I knew those kids myself," he explained. "I'd been at Mackinac over the previous week-end and I had taken the twins out rowing. Oh, well . . ." He restored the cigar to his mouth, puffed at it fiercely for a moment and resumed:

"Eve's a good swimmer, but it was a hard pull, for the boat had upset surprise me, for the Lord knows," and emphasizing every word. "I happen to be Eve's dead father's life-long friend. They're a crazy lot. But this!" He straightened and met Hamilton's sympathetic eyes.

"You see," he added deliberately, "and her guardian, and her manager, and the man she was going to marry!"

Hamilton's breath caught under the blow, but he took it with outward calmness.

"Now that we understand each other suppose you tell me about the shock my wife had before she left Chicago," he suggested. "She doesn't even mention it."

"That's easy, though I guess you've read most of the details. You know all about the drownings, of course."

"I don't even know what you mean."

Henderson took out his handkerchief and wiped his moist face.

"It's very odd you don't know," he muttered. "Hasn't Eve told you anything at all?"

"I've admitted that she hasn't discussed the shock."

"I suppose that isn't strange, really. She was shot to pieces by it, poor girl."

Eric caught his arm.

"Mr. Henderson," he cried, "I wish you'd stop beating about the bush and tell me that whole story from start to finish."

"All right," Henderson agreed. He went on with increasing seriousness:

"I'll start at the beginning. Eve was pretty tired when she got back to America the first of July, after her European tour, and the year ahead of her here was going to be just as strenuous as the past year. She's a genius, you know . . . a wonder. Even now there isn't another American pianiste who can touch her. She'll head all the women players of the world in a few years more. You don't need to know anything about music to realize she's a genius," Henderson was saying. "You have only to hear her play."

"I've never heard her play."

Hamilton spoke absently, irritated by the departure from the main theme. He immediately regretted his words, for Henderson was plainly amazed by them.

"What!" he gasped. "You've known Eve Carrington more than two weeks and haven't heard her play! Still," he now remembered, "she had turned from her music completely during that last week in Chicago—"

"You were talking about the Heckner drownings," Eric reminded him.

Henderson shook his gray head.

"It doesn't seem possible," he said. "I can't imagine Eve away from a piano that long, even in the nervous state she was in. But I suppose it's no more impossible than the rest of this business."

"Eve went to Mackinac early in August, for a fortnight's rest. She was the guest of the Heckners in their summer home there. She's an intimate friend of Mrs. Heckner, who is devoted to her and was doing everything she could to make Eve's first American season a big success."

"Eve is strong for boating and swimming and every sort of outdoor sport," Henderson went on, having replaced the spectacles. "Learned 'em when she was a kid, and keeps herself fit that way. The Heckner children—there were four of them—were crazy about her, and spent most of their time at her heels. They were just learning to row and swim, but of course they were never allowed to go off by themselves. However, they knew there was an old boat a mile or almost a quarter of a mile from shore and her skirt was heavy and the lake was rough. All four youngsters were clinging to the boat when she got out to them, and when they saw her, the twin boys—ten, they were—began to laugh. They thought it was all over now but the fun of the rescue. They told her to take the girls first, which of course she'd have done anyway, so she took the youngest, little Nancy Heckner, who is only seven, and brought her in all right. She flung Nancy to the woman on the shore, to be looked after, and she tore off her soaked skirt and went right out again for the next girl. Mary, who isn't quite nine, Mary was about ready to go under by this time, and the twins were trying their best to help her.

"There wasn't any smiling now, but the boys bucked up when their sister was taken off their hands, and promised Eve they'd hold on till she got back. But Herman said good-bye as she started off, and she didn't like that indication or the way he had looked. It rattled her and she had an awful time getting Mary to shore, for the kid was in a panic. The newspaper did a lot of fancy writing on that second rescue. She got Mary to shore, though, and started back a third time. The women tried to hold her then, for they saw she was about all in, but she went. She went," he repeated softly. "The twins sank before she reached them, so she started diving . . ."

"Go on!" Hamilton begged again, and the big man obeyed after a glance at him. It was clear to each of them now that the other loved the girl they were discussing.

"The woman that ran back to town had found some men in a field," Henderson continued, "and they finally got a boat and reached Eve just in time to save her. It took almost an hour to bring her to consciousness after they got her to shore. They brought back one of the twins, Herman, with her, but he was dead when they got him to the surface. Henry's body wasn't recovered till that afternoon. It was a ghastly business . . . but Eve had saved the two little girls."

"By God! That was stunning!" Hamilton said on a choked breath.

"Of course it was stunning," Henderson agreed.

To the Voters of Scurry County.

I wish to thank the citizens and voters of Scurry County for the support you gave me in the primary election last Saturday for tax collector. Feeling that I have not said or done anything during my campaign to mar the confidence of any one, I hope and trust that I may ever be a friend to one and all alike. I remain,
A. M. McPherson.

I'd Rather.

I'd rather start a trend of thought
That leads an upward way,
I'd rather that the things I sought
Were sought in fairest play;
I'd rather plan with men that build;
That fashion things for good;
I'd rather that my life was filled
With aims for which I stood;
Than win the contest by distrust
Of measures or of men,
Or vanquished foe with unfair thrust
Of word or poisoned pen;
Than stir up strife to lead astray
By passion, hate or spite,
Discussion, discord or dismay
That turns to wrong the right;
I'd rather lose the fight to those
Who stoop to conquer where
The fame when taken at its close
Is ruined with despair;
I'd rather lose the fight than win
If gaining is but loss,
I'd rather have the faith of men
Than success in the dress.

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

Kidney Beans with Tomatoes.

Soak one and a half cups of white kidney beans over night. Drain them and boil in water containing a quarter teaspoon of soda. Fry a tablespoon of minced onion in a little dripping. Add two cups of stewed tomatoes, season with a little salt and two level teaspoons of sugar. Barely cover with water and cook in a fireless cooker or double boiler until tender. This should take about three hours.

Beef and Tomato Pie.

Put meat left over from yesterday's bouillon through the meat chopper. For four cups of beef you will need a pint of canned tomatoes. Grease a baking dish with bacon fat or good drippings and put in a layer of the tomato with a little onion juice, then a few bread crumbs and then a layer of meat. Continue in this way until near the top and then cover over with fresh mashed potatoes. Brush the potatoes with milk and cook for thirty minutes.

Tomato Toast.

Two tomatoes, two eggs, one tablespoon butter, one-quarter cup minced ham, slice of onion, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, six rounds of buttered toast. Skin the tomatoes and chop; mince the onion and mix with the meat and tomatoes. Cook them with the butter in a saucepan about ten minutes, remove from the fire, add the beaten eggs, stir over the fire until it sets, then serve on the toast.

Your Appetizer.

If you are having chicken for dinner, some sort of tomato appetizer is a good choice.

A fruit appetizer precedes lamb or beef very well. A fruit appetizer is also good before veal or pork.

Before fish some sort of vegetable appetizer may be served; or an appetizer containing bacon.

Sometimes have the appetizer placed at each plate when dinner is announced. In this case, there is no choice. Sometimes have several sorts of appetizers passed in an hors-d'oeuvre dish.

Whatever you do, seek variety. It adds a zest to the simplest dinner, and takes away from the monotony of a limited selection of meats. Moreover, it is an inexpensive way to give character to the dinner. For a tomato and fricassee chicken is a far less expensive proposition than broiled chicken, yet it makes a dinner just as interesting.

Too Much Pity.

A man who has won high distinction in his chosen field of labor came into my office not long ago. He walks with a limp, for one of his legs is shorter than the other.

He told me that for years he weat around on crutches.

"I finally threw them away," he said, "and I'll tell you why. I got infernally tired of having people stop to ask me what had happened. I didn't want sympathy. It did me no good, and showed up my operations. I'm lame. I'll never be any better. But I can stand the lameness better than I can stand being pitied."

There is a great waste of pity in the world.

I know, for example, a couple who seem to be curiously mismatched. The woman is ten years older than the man. She is argumentative. She is not a very good housekeeper.

I heard somebody say: "I'm so sorry heard somebody say: 'I'm so sorry for Joe. He might have picked out a lovely young girl, and see what he went and did.'"

Now, the simple fact is that the man and woman are exceedingly happy. I personally can't see what he finds attractive in her, nor why she should have chosen him. But it is none of my business, and I certainly am not going to waste sympathy on two folks who seem to like each other and to be perfectly satisfied.

I live part of every year in the middle of Manhattan Island, and the rest of the time in a New England village. My Manhattan friends say: "What a terrible bore it must be to live in a little town. No theatres, no art galleries, no excitement. How I pity country people."

My village friends say: "I like to go to New York for a visit, but what a frightful place to live! Noise and crime and rush and expense! The poor folks who are crowded together in those big apartments just don't know what real living is. How I pity them."

What an absurd situation. What an emotional waste!

This seems to me to be a pretty good idea—don't weaken your emotional nature by pouring out pity unless you intend to do something about it.

Pity the sick and relieve them. Pity the poor and divide with them. Sympathize with the struggles of youth, and lend a helping hand.

But don't get into the foolish habit of being sorry for anybody who happens to be different from yourself. The chances are that he is spending an equal amount of his time being sorry for you.—Bruce Barton.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Blackard visited with relatives in Colorado Sunday.

VERY LATEST BY MARY MARSHALL

The very word house dress brings to the minds of many dresses of coarse cotton materials, in crude pinks and blues, cheaply made and too generously proportioned. Perhaps house dresses used to be like that, and women accepted them as a matter of course, not expecting to look their best during the busy hours at home.

I had a pleasant sort of surprise in store for me the other day when I was asked to make selections from a number of inexpensive ready made dresses of the house-dress sort. When they were displayed by the models it was difficult to believe that they were house dresses at all. Many of them might have been chosen for sports or summer resort wear.

There was a trimly fitted short sleeved dress of pastel blue pique and a sleeveless dress of green and white cotton print with crisply pleated organdie at the neck. Those of shantung silk especially appealed to me, though their price was amazingly reasonable. One of them, in pastel green, is shown here.

One reason that house dresses nowadays have such an air of smartness is that they are inspired by, if not actually copied from, dresses designed for sports wear.

Teacher—"Now, Ruth, suppose your mother and you and the baby should go out to the park some afternoon, how many would that be?"

Ruth—"It would be two, and one to carry!"

METHODIST REVIVAL BEGINS AT UNION CHURCH TONIGHT

The Methodist revival meeting will begin tonight (Friday), August 1. Rev. Cal C. Wright, pastor of the First Methodist Church at Snyder, will conduct the services. The Christian people are praying that God will bless us again in winning the unsaved of the community.

THIRTY-EIGHT CONVERSIONS DURING BAPTIST REVIVAL

The Baptist revival closed Sunday night after a little more than a week's work. Rev. Phillip C. McGahey, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Snyder, did the preaching. We feel that God has blessed us wonderfully in a spiritual way. There were 21 baptisms, 38 conversions, 19 additions by letter, one by statement and eight by restoration.

Baptismal services were held at 3:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the church. Dr. M. E. Davis, Bible instructor of Howard Payne College, Brownwood, brought us a wonderful message at that time on baptism, after which the congregation journeyed to Joe Wilson's place, where the baptismal ceremony was administered to 21 people.

Nipp has pastored this church for 30 months, during which time he has preached 170 sermons, has had 174 additions to the church, which only had a total membership of 79 when he came but now has 202.

Sunday school was well attended Sunday, and a number of new members added. The Junior B. Y. P. U. gave a very creditable program for little folks who had never been in the work before. Members of the Baptist church who were present Friday night were called into conference and voted to recognize the B. Y. P. U. officers. An interesting prayer service was held Saturday night, with Alvin Cantrell as leader. Uncle George Elkins asked those who believed in prayer to meet with him Sunday morning and pray that his eyes be healed. A number met and a wonderful prayer meeting was held. Uncle George says he can see the light of day and can get about alone again. During these same hours one of our finest young men, Johnnie Hoyle, surrendered his heart to Christ in the meeting at Union Chapel held by Rev. Phillip C. McGahey and also united with the Baptist church there. Our community was made to rejoice because of God's great blessings to us.

PAJAMA PARTY SATURDAY NIGHT ENJOYED BY GIRLS

Fifteen girls of our community went to the home of Mrs. J. A. Martin following prayer meeting Saturday night, where they enjoyed a pajama party. The girls were served punch and cake, and were demonstrating some physical exercises when some "little sissies" arrived. At 12:30 o'clock all the girls went to bed except six, who were very industrious and spent the night singing, eating and "wadin' in the creek." Just as the sun rose Sunday morning, one of the industrious girls, Miss Dell Marie Cumbie, read the nineteenth Psalm, and the girls who sat on the grass near the camp-fire bowed in a word of prayer. They were then served to a regular outdoor breakfast of meat, eggs, coffee and oranges. Those enjoying this affair were Misses Marjorie Helfner, Glyn Weatherly, Elaine Era and Edith Massingill, Ruth Cantrell, Dell Marie Cumbie, Pearl and Zula Carlisle, Alene Ford, Johnnie Mae Coleman, Laticia Elkins, Ola and Bessie Randolph and Georgia Parr.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Editor of The News: I notice that Small and Mayfield refuse to declare for Mrs. Ferguson or Sterling. We all know that they have their preference but are pussyfooting and straddling. Why don't they have manhood and backbone enough to line up for Ferguson or Sterling so we will know where to find them. The truth about it is that they are sweet on Ma. Nero fiddled while Rome burned. I will shout for joy at the political death of Fergusonism. If Small and Mayfield were patriotic and loyal citizens they would do likewise. Hurray for Sterling and honest government. E. C. Ralston, Snyder, July 29. "I didn't know the new stenographer was left-handed." "She isn't—she's just engaged."

To the Voters of Scurry County.

Hello people. This is J. W. (Uncle Billie) speaking: Dear People: I wish to thank you from the depths of my heart for the loyal support you gave me in my race for tax collector. Words cannot express my appreciation, but my heart goes out to you, and I hope to be able to show you at least my appreciation by the way I take care of your business in the office. And now, to you people who did not see fit to support me: I hope you do not feel like Uncle Billie has any ill feelings toward you or in any way things hard of you, for you certainly had the right to vote your choice, so when you meet Uncle Billie, just come up and shake hands just the same as if you had supported him. You voted for a good man and a worthy one. My aim shall be to make my care of the office satisfactory to you. Hoping to meet you in the tax collector's office after the first of January, I am, as ever, Yours, (He) UNCLE BILLIE.

RELIEF FROM THE CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night—next day bright. Bro. Willis Kreager, assisted by Song Leader E. M. Taylor of Snyder, closed a 12-day meeting at Fluvanna Wednesday. Night. Twelve conversions were reported through Tuesday night.

Last Sunday night a 10-day meeting was started at Ira. Bro. Brackeen of the Snyder church also opened a meeting at Camp Springs Sunday night, which is being attended by fine crowds.

BULLOCK IS AT SCHOOLS MEET

Superintendent A. A. Bullock of Scurry County schools left Saturday night for College Station, where he is presiding at the seventh annual conference of Texas County Superintendents and Rural School Supervisors, of which he is president.

The conference is held in connection with the annual Farmers Short Course, to which several 4-H club members from this county are delegates.

Friday is the closing day. One of the most interesting programs ever arranged for the association is being presented, according to daily newspaper reports.

Former Scurry Man Elected.

While Mrs. Mable Y. German was being replaced in the Scurry County clerk's office last Saturday, her brother, Philip Yonge, of Lamesa, was elected as judge of Dawson County by a big majority. He was recently appointed to the place after the resignation of Judge Dixie Kilgore. Mr. Yonge was reared in Scurry County.

To the Voters of Scurry County.

I wish to express in my feeble way my appreciation for the liberal support you gave me in the election last Saturday. I do not command words to express my gratitude, but trust that I will be a servant of the people in such manner that will not come short of their expectations. I want to say to the public that I appreciate the friendship of the three gentlemen who were seeking the office you have again honored me with. Also the high plane on which they have conducted their campaign. Again thanking you for the faith and confidence you have shown in me. My greatest desire during my term of office will be to make you an officer worthy of the name. Asking that you call on me at any time my service is desired, I am Yours for service, Sterling A. Taylor.

TERRAPINS TO RUN SATURDAY

Snyder will create her own version of the race between the terrapin and the hare. On Saturday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock she will present a race between all the hard-shell terrapins that folks want to enter.

In order to provide entertainment for folks who come to town on Saturday, Secretary Watt Scott of the Chamber of Commerce, working with the merchants of the town, will stage the terrapin race each Saturday on the paved street between the Manhattan hotel and the Methodist church.

Prizes totaling about $10 will be given away Saturday of this week and every other Saturday for several months, Mr. Scott announces. This week's prize list is:

Stinson Drug Co.—$5 in gold.
Pierce Barber Shop—Free haircut.
M System—48-pound sack of Ever-lite flour.
Moffett & Noble—Pair of overalls.
Times-Signal—One year's subscription.

Prizes next week will be a $5 pair of pants from Caton-Dodson, a 24-pound sack of Gladioli flour from the Star Grocery and Market, another subscription to the Times-Signal and a free dinner at the Busy Bee Cafe.

Anyone except the merchants giving the prizes may enter a terrapin. All the animals must be dry-land terrapins, according to Mr. Scott. They should be turned in at the Chamber of Commerce office in plenty of time to be checked and numbered.

Each terrapin will be given a number, which will be chalked on its back. The animals will be placed under a tub in the middle of the street and will be turned loose all at once when the pavement gets too hot for them. A 30-foot circle will be drawn and roped off; the first terrapin crossing the line made by this circle will be first prize winner, the second one will get second prize, and so on. Four judges will be selected from the crowd.

One of the biggest crowds of the year is expected to witness the race. Mr. Scott states that enough prizes have already been promised to assure continuance of the races for several months.

JACK AND JUNE SHOW COMING

Jack and June Alfred's big merchants' comedy-drama show is coming to Snyder Monday from Colorado, where it is closing a successful stand. The show, which carries 30 people, will be located on the city lot.

This is said to be one of the few shows that has not closed during the winter. It has been in the Valley for some time before coming to West Texas.

Toby, "the king of fun," is a feature of the tent show. The opening bill is "Greed for Gold." C. C. McAllister, agent for the show, states that this bill and the ones to follow have been given unusual hearings throughout the season. "If you get a merchants' free ticket and come early, you will not be disappointed," he says.

Busy Bee Cafe Now In Its New Quarters

With floors and walls finished in brilliant orange and green, and with the entire building spic and span, the Busy Bee Cafe is to be found two doors north of its former location on Avenue S. just off the public square.

Ollie Morrow, proprietor, invites his friends and patrons to visit him in the new location, where he is rendering the same efficient service and serving the same good food.

Band Boys Work on Association to Care For Their Expenses

Members of the Snyder band are this week soliciting members of the Band Association, which is to be organized in order to care for the bandmaster's salary and other band expenses. They report a liberal response from merchants and private citizens. Fees in the new association will be $1 monthly.

Several Snyder business houses and individuals had already agreed to join hands in seeing that the band remains in Snyder.

The band boys have set 80 members as their minimum, and early results point to securing at least that number.

CITY REVIVAL INTEREST HIGH

The Hofmeister tabernacle campaign at the city tabernacle is now in progress with increasing interest. The evangelist, Dr. Theodore M. Hofmeister, of Pittsburgh, Pa., speaks every night and at 10:00 o'clock on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings. Ralph Leonard Morris of London, Ohio, speaks on "Prayer" at the morning service. He also directs the singing. "Building the Home" will be the sermon subject when a service is held at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

The evangelist says: "This is the dispensation of the Holy Spirit and the same power that God bestowed upon the church of the first century is for the church of today and the same signs, wonders, manifestations and miracles of the early church are for us today. I believe Jesus answers prayer. Our message throughout this campaign will be 'Jesus.' Our motto will be Hebrews 13:8, 'Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever.'" The evangelist will pray for the sick and afflicted during the meetings. Many miracles of healing are reported in the Hofmeister campaign throughout the land.

He urges the sick and afflicted to come to the campaign and attend several meetings before being prayed for. The evangelist said: "This is the day of apostasy. The church is without power. Ministers throughout the world are confessing the lack of interest; but this is the day of the latter reign and God is able and willing to bestow power upon the church if she will follow His command and 'tarry for the Holy Spirit.' The world is hungry for God and we believe a great revival is coming to this city during these days."
