

It is sad, but true, that we all do better work if the whip is applied to our backs occasionally.

William Feather, Philadelphia, Pa.

BY JAKE

ONE who wishes to watch the rest of the world go by could find no lookout point more tempting than a county Interscholastic League meet, such as that to which Snyder was host Friday and Saturday.

Unlike the crowd viewed by the well-known fellow who willied to watch from his house by the side of the road, a League parade will include, generally speaking, only the good.

Scurry County's 1931 meet had a personality all its own. With a mild West Texas sandstorm as flavoring, the events followed one another in a simple order. I was hearing and seeing the workings of that county-wide personality a part of the time.

The experience made me realize that there is probably no other event from one year to another that so nearly reflects Scurry County spirit and progress.

WE were fortunate in having W. C. Hooks of Dunn as general director of an event in which youthful dreams reach their climax. Mr. Hooks admitted, while the final count of points was being made, that he was tempted to butt his head against a brick wall and settle it all. But he didn't do that, thank goodness. He kept on keeping on, with the assistance of the sub-directors, and everybody went home as pleased as if the first places had been equally divided.

It was only fitting that four of the students who had been coached by this persevering superintendent should furnish the feature of the meet. I refer to the two winning debate teams. Boyce Grimes and Martin Murphy represented the boys and Edna Murphy and Jessie Brown represented the girls.

These four youngsters argue more expertly than the average woman who has bossed two or three husbands.

Some folks will say that Fluvanna's winning of the Class B cup for the third consecutive time was the highlight of the meet. There's no doubt but that Superintendent E. O. Wedgworth has a belief of that variety. That loving cup, the permanent property of the "Progs" now, will find a made-to-order resting place in the new Fluvanna high school building.

SNYDER'S neatly balanced track and field squad ranks next in my order of things. It didn't look very good for Snyder to be trailing behind three Class B schools when the final literary points were added. But the athletes certainly won their events, as a rule, without undue effort.

King Slides, athletic director, moving about as efficiently as if he had been directing track and field events all his life.

That tall Goodlett boy from Dunn, a junior high jumper, who was almost six feet above the sod.

Superintendent E. E. Kerr, Hermleigh, who saw his excellent team go to second place, by a few points, in the Class B standings.

Weldon Alexander and Grant Scott taking both boys' tennis finals in easy style.

That Crowder bunch, headliners in the rural division, who won because they weren't afraid to rub elbows with the larger schools.

T. J. Bryant, superintendent at Pryor, walking from one side of the field to the other. He's a fine school man, they say.

C. S. Harris, Canyon's likable "sup," who takes life seriously—and gets by with it so well that I am tempted to get his recipe.

This picture of Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Crowder of Dunn was carried in the Ft. Worth Star-Telegram last week. The couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday, March 10, by having all their seven children, eight of their fourteen grandchildren, and their only great grandchild, at home for dinner and an old-fashioned reunion.

Fiery College President Raps 18th Amendment Opponents

It took Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of McMurry College, Abilene, an hour Sunday evening to "get started." It took him a half hour to finish.

But to the people of every denomination who crowded even the balcony of the First Baptist Church, it was not a lengthy message on "Laws and Outlaws" delivered by the fiery Methodist, who was pastor of the local congregation a number of years ago.

Dr. Hunt preached at the First Methodist Church Sunday morning on "Christian Education," and was invited to the Baptist church so that the crowd might not be divided for the second service of the Baptists' revival.

Dr. Hunt's denunciation of those who would bring legal liquor traffic in any form back to the United States was perhaps the most daring and resolute attack on an outlawed vice ever made in Snyder.

Old men who have been known to sup the wine when it was red leaned forward in their seats, and numbered inward ams as they weighed the speaker's evidence and found it not wanting.

Middle-aged men and mothers, some of whom had suffered the indirect stings of the Demon Rum, shed a few tears, and thanked their Maker for a man who dared to bring the searchlight of truth on the liquor question.

And the younger generation, instead of longing for the luxury of the outside air, heard the visitor with good grace, and took a message into their lives.

It would be folly to attempt a reproduction of Dr. Hunt's address. A few high points, however, will reflect the courage and the strength of this master of things spiritual and things oratorical.

"There never was a time when the American citizen should be brought more into contact with the majesty of the law."

"I have seen more men drunk at one meeting of the cattlemen's convention in Fort Worth than in all the years since prohibition. Those who say prohibition has brought on more drinking are either misinformed or just common liars."

"The ants say they do not want the open saloon. That is only a camouflage. The open saloon is the only alternative if we do away with prohibition. Liquor must be prohibited by law."

Faculty Meeting Offers Speeches By Its Members

The faculty of the Snyder schools continued Tuesday afternoon their series of lectures along professional lines. These, according to Superintendent C. Wedgworth, are to be held bi-monthly. In the discussions Tuesday by five faculty members, ideals, attitudes and traits to be acquired and erroneous traits to be dismissed were emphasized.

Miss Jessyle Stinson, in her discussion of the Denver Survey on Character Education, pointed out the particular advantages of the kindergarten in promoting character education, and showed how the teacher might carry out the three methods of character education.

The origin of extracurricular activities, the causes of their growth, the educational problems associated with these activities, the changes necessary in developing these activities, and the principles of their development were the points emphasized in a discussion of The Future of Extracurricular Activities by T. N. Campbell.

In a discussion of The Ideal Teacher, Miss Mattie Ross Cunningham named four characteristics as most important.

Miss Loyce Clark discussed The Nature of the White House Conference on Child Health. Twelve hundred experts taking part at the conference formulated in sixteen months a health program which has already had wide influence.

W. F. Cox pointed out the group discussion method, such as the Snyder teachers are now participating in, as one of the important steps forward in education.

According to Mr. Wedgworth, the faculty members are preparing interesting discussions for these meetings, and interest is being aroused in these group gatherings.

FRIENDS CALL FOR Old-Timers Meet CHAT WITH TATES

Messrs. Editors: Please allow me to express most cordial greetings to you and also to all our old-time friends—even to all your readers.

The Bible says "A friend loveth at all times." Franklin declared that there is "no better relation than a prudent and faithful friend," and Emerson says "The ornaments of a home are the friends who frequent it." Thus the wise men have reminded us of the value of true friends. My, how our hearts go out to our friends, whether they be far or near!

On last Sunday afternoon we were most happily surprised when some of these good old-time friends parked at our front, thence entering our home. They were Dr. J. E. Dodson, wife and son, Phil (or Nate) and wife and baby. We had never met the young Mrs. Dodson, but she was none the less welcome into our home. It was certainly a great pleasure to be thus remembered by our friends. They came all the way from Pasadena, a distance of some 70 miles, for this delightful, even if short, visit. As usual, they say, "We saw it in the Times."

Many Snyder and Scurry County people will remember the Dr. Dodson and family. They resided in Snyder for many years and helped make that good town. Mr. Dodson has been quite closely connected with business affairs there until quite recently. Their removal from Snyder was evidently a great loss to that community. The young Mrs. Dodson was reared, as we understand, somewhere near Austin, to which locality Phil Dodson went and took her unto himself. It is quite evident that he won a rare prize.

Most cordially,
Mentone Calif. JAS. H. TATE.

Operetta Presented In P.-T. A. Program

The third and fourth grade pupils of Miss Hattie Herm and Mrs. Melvin Blackard were presented in an operetta, "Peter Rabbit," at the regular meeting of the P.-T. A. last Thursday evening.

This operetta was in three acts, combined with music, singing and dances. The work of the children indicated considerable practice and training. Their teachers are to be complimented on their interesting program.

L. M. Lewis of San Antonio has been visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis.

I believe that the greatest need of the teacher in America today is to be conscious of his power. Your most useful service will result when you have carefully and conscientiously considered how you should use your influence with the youth of the nation to make that youth physically fit, socially adjustable and adaptable, an vocationally prepared to render conscientious service to the world. Too often the teacher teaches the subject instead of the child. It is essential to know the subject but it is more essential to understand the child.—Willis A. Sutton.

"Who is really the boss in your house?" inquired the friend.

"Well, of course, Maggie assumes command of the children, the servants, the dog, the cat and the canary. But I can say pretty much what I please to the goldfish."

When little Alex appeared at his grandma's house wearing his first boy's trousers she pretended not to recognize him.

"Oh, it's a strange little boy," she said. "It can't be Alex, because Alex wears rompers."

"But it is Alex, grandma," he insisted, glancing down at his new trousers, "cause I was there and saw mother put 'em on me."

ANDY CUTS ON HIS He Took His Medicine COTTON PLANTING

Andy Trevey doesn't mind calling a spade a spade.

This Scurry County farmer, whose parents, grandparents and great-grandparents must have been Irish, didn't hesitate a few days ago when he said that the cotton-minded farmer is bound to hoe a hard row now and henceforth.

The proof of the pie is in the eating. So Mr. Trevey is planting no cotton this year. He has had his medicine and has seen others take theirs.

Not an acre of cotton is being planted on the Trevey home place, which lies in Southwest Scurry County, with the exception of 10 acres one of the children will plant. The acreage will go to hegar and other feeds.

On the entire place of 275 acres, only 90 acres will go to cotton, the Trevey reuter planting 80 acres in cotton, and a portion in feed.

"I have never known a farmer with plenty of feed to suffer," the farmer says. "Give me enough feed for my stock, and enough home grown food to last a while, and I will live, it makes no difference how low the price of feed and cotton may go."

For several years Mr. Trevey has used a pedigreed cotton seed, and the quality of his cotton year after year has convinced him of its benefits.
