

Mayor Commends Council's Alertness

City Described as Debt-Free, Clean and Cooperative; List of Committees Given.

The City Council's alertness in keeping the city of Snyder on a cash basis, and its continuous eagerness to serve the entire citizenship were points stressed by Mayor H. G. Towle in letters mailed several days ago to members of the new governing body.

In a meeting held last night, the mayor declared, "you will find few towns as clean, with as well kept streets, nor any with a more efficient or economically maintained water and sewer system as Snyder."

This is effective only by the cooperation of the City Council and the citizenship of our little city. We wish to thank the citizens for this valuable interest and cooperation—this saves every taxpayer money."

Committees Named.

In the letter addressed to councilmen, Mayor Towle named the following committees:

Finance—J. S. Bradbury, chairman; W. J. Ely, James A. Clark, Street and Bridge—Lee T. Stinson, chairman; Dwight Monroe, G. H. Heath.

Law Ordinance and Fire—G. H. Heath, chairman; Lee T. Stinson, Dwight Monroe.

Water and Sewer—W. J. Ely, chairman; G. H. Heath, Dwight Monroe.

Building and Grounds—Dwight Monroe, chairman; G. H. Heath, W. J. Ely.

City—James A. Clark, chairman; J. S. Bradbury, Lee T. Stinson, Council Complimented.

Continuing the letter, Mayor Towle said:

"I want to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the splendid and efficient work you all have done during the past year. You have ever been alert to the best interests of the citizens and taxpayers and by so doing you have kept our city on a cash basis."

"In this strenuous financial period, it behooves every citizen to specialize in the departments to which he has been appointed. Study each and every project carefully, take them under advisement, search for new ideas, and suggest cheaper ways of completing the task. The following points seem to me to be of primary importance in discharging our duties to the citizenship of Snyder:

Economies Are Urged.

"1. Each of us should always keep in mind the present and future necessity of any particular project and whether or not it will be of permanent benefit when created."

"2. As to finance, it is plainly the duty of each to figure the cost to the taxpayer of each and every project and the way and manner in which it can be permanently financed at the lowest figure."

"3. In considering the spending of the taxpayers' money we should always take into consideration the percentage of the public that will derive benefits from any improvement and the investment should be based on same."

Citizens Should Cooperate.

"4. Each of us should at all times invite constructive criticism and try to impress upon the citizens their duty to become interested in city affairs, so that they will report to the different departments such matters as may need attention. By this cooperation on the part of the citizens we will be able to save hundreds of dollars in tax money every year."

"5. It is certainly incumbent upon us to consider complaints or requests made by any citizen, regardless of who the person or persons may be. If we are to discharge our full duty we should have the courage to vote our convictions for the general good of the entire citizenship, keeping in mind at all times the idea that our main purpose is to see that every person is accorded equal rights and that we avoid waste of public money and extravagance of our administration."

Rock Fence on West Side of Cemetery To Be Built By Women

Following completion last week of the imposing rock entrance gate to the Snyder cemetery, under leadership of the Woman's Culture Club, a new project is being instigated by the same organization this week. It is the building of a native stone fence completely across the west side of the local burial grounds, to match the design of the gate.

The gate, funds for which were raised by personal subscription by the woman's club, was built through cooperation of material donations, and labor was provided by funds from the RFC till.

Mrs. J. L. Caskey is chairman of the civic committee of the culture club. This committee, with assistance of Mrs. Joe Monroe, is in charge of the campaign for funds for the fence now in progress. The committee urges out-of-town people who are interested in beautifying the graveyard to send donations.

A detailed write-up of the new gate will be published, together with a picture, in next week's Times.

It's a Pretty Lawn.

The courthouse lawn is taking on the graces of spring earlier than expected. The old trees were uprooted early in the year, its lawn was covered with new dirt, and its shrubs were trimmed almost to the ground. Yet the place is becoming already a thing of attractiveness and beauty.

TIGERS NOSED OUT OF PLACE TWO BY ROTAN

Abilene Takes First Place in District Meet—Bedford McClinton Is High Point Man.

The Snyder Tigers, track and field champions of District 8 last year, lost their laurels to Abilene last Saturday, and were nosed into third place by Rotan, which piled up 20 points against the home boys' 19.

By taking their first place, Bedford McClinton ran away with high point honors of the meet, and made a decided success of his fourth and final year as a local track star. He came ahead of the field by yards in his favorite event, the low hurdles, then nosed out Moser, Abilene star, in the 100-yard dash with 10.4 seconds. Another Abilene favorite, Cogdell, bowed to Bedford in the 200-yard dash. The time was 23.1.

Abilene won the meet with 50 points, although she won but two first places in 14 events. Her relay team easily came out ahead of the field for one of the feature wins of the day.

Ashley of Dunn personally accounted for 6 1/2 points for his school. Last year he broke the district vault record by soaring 11 feet five inches, but this year he tied with two others for fourth in that event. The highest mark of the day was 11 feet 4 inches. The fleet Ashley came through for a repeat order on his high hurdles, however, with the fine time of 17 seconds.

Femire of Snyder, who was a good bet to win the 880-yard run, was not quite as good as Westbrook of Old Glory, who won in the spirit-drive with the quick time of 2:07.3. Wiss accounted for another Snyder point with fourth place in the high hurdles.

Shipman of Fluvanna gained two points for his school when he turned up third in the brilliant mile race. McClinton in the low hurdles and Ashley in the high were two of four champions who repeated this year.

Field Supervisor A. M. Cooper stated today that there remained only one more week for farmers to make application for 1933 crop loans.

April 30 is the last day, and as this falls on Sunday, farmers should file their applications for loans not later than Saturday, April 29, if possible.

In Snyder County applications are being taken in Snyder by Charles J. Lewis at the courthouse. Those who desire to secure loans are urged to not wait until the last day to file their applications.

Mr. Cooper stated that there are probably some farmers who have tentatively made other arrangements to finance this crop but he warned that this should be definitely understood and that they will not need a crop loan, as positively no applications will be taken after the closing date.

He is also president of the national association of the profession. Mrs. Towle was chosen last year as president of the women's division of the state organization.

Hundreds of optometrists from all sections of the state are expected to attend. The attendance is due to be larger than usual in that all optometrists of Texas, whether members of the association or not, have been invited to attend. The executive committee recently decided to include non-members in this year's convention the purpose being to discuss many common problems of the profession.

Dr. Thomas McBurnie of Brooklyn, president of the American Optometric Association, will be a guest at the convention and will appear on the program. Dr. William B. Needles, president of the Northern Illinois College of Optometry of Chicago, will be an outstanding speaker on the program. Dr. Charles Sheard of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota, is expected to be present and a dinner will be given in his honor Monday, April 24.

Dr. Nelson Greeman of San Antonio, president of the Texas organization, will preside at the 1933 convention. The convention opens on Sunday evening, April 23, with a public meeting.

Snyder County schools received $2,278 from the state last week. That amount was another $2 per capita payment on the state apportionment, said Superintendent Frank Farmer.

The payment makes $7 of the $16 apportionment paid, according to the superintendent. Five dollars had been received prior to last week.

Report Great Meeting.

The carload of Baptists that went from Snyder to the state Sunday School convention at San Antonio last week returned with the report that no better convention had ever been held. The delegates will make full reports of the session at the church next Sunday, the pastor announced last Sunday evening.

Snyder Golfers Go To Midland Sunday For Third Match

Snyder's Sand Belt golf team will journey to Midland Sunday for their third scheduled game of the season on Midland's Country Clubs course.

The local boys are contemplating stiff competition in Sunday's tilt as the Midland club is tied with Big Spring and Colorado on the top rung of the Sand Belt ladder with 50 points to their credit. Snyder ranks fifth with 38 points.

Those who will make the trip Sunday, reading from first to eighth, are: Earl Fish, J. W. Roberts, Wayne Brown, P. W. Cloud, Walt Scott, Sam Williams, Lee Wilmoth and W. W. Hill. Of course, these positions may be changed slightly as all members of the team will play local competition matches before going to Midland Sunday.

Famous San Jacinto Battlefield

Three Acres To Be Worked With RFC Labor—Seed Available Also To Individuals.

Three acres of the city farm, two miles southeast of Snyder, are to become public garden plots, which will be worked with labor provided by RFC funds.

Announcement of the project was made early this week by Mayor H. G. Towle and County Judge Robert H. Curran. The latter will have charge of the project.

Seed for the garden will also be provided by RFC funds. Products from the venture will be the property of the county RFC committee, to be distributed as the members see fit. The plots will be irrigated from the city disposal plant, which tops the hill above the three acres set aside for the purpose. Many tons of alfalfa and many acres of onions were raised on the slope last year.

Garden seed purchased with RFC funds will also be given to individuals who have proven themselves worthy, according to committee members. These excerpts from the seed regulations sent out to the county committee will make clear the rules governing seed distribution:

"The county relief committee is authorized to purchase seed, and to incur the necessary expenses incident to the making of a garden by every able bodied person on the lists of those receiving relief."

"The position that the Texas Relief Commission has taken is that unless persons are willing to aid themselves to the extent of making a garden, they should not be granted any further relief. We have adopted the following policy: 'No Garden, No Relief.'"

Spirited Voting During Race For Local May Queen

The annual balloting for Queen of the May is being waged this week in Snyder High School with usual gusto. Her majesty, with more than 100 attendees from high school and grammar school, will be crowned on the evening of Friday, May 5, at the stadium.

These are the class candidates for May Queen: Mildred Stokes, senior; Evelyn Erwin, junior; Frances Northcutt, sophomore; Lyndal Westbrook, freshman. For a penny a vote, students and other supporters of the various candidates are seeking to elect their favorites. The balloting closes Friday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock.

The three defeated candidates will be duchesses in the May fete. The queen and each duchess will have her attendant. Ira, Dunn, Hermleigh and Fluvanna schools have been invited to send a duke and duchess each to the affair.

The Parent-Teacher Association is sponsoring the event. The band, Choral Club and other individuals and organizations will take part.

LaRue to Abilene.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. LaRue, local laundries, are in Abilene today, attending at a called meeting of West Texas laundry owners. The session was called by C. R. Simmons of Sweetwater, a state leader in the laundrymen's organization.

DELEGATES GO TO M. E. MEET

A group of 10 delegates left Snyder late Wednesday morning for Big Spring, where they will be present for the Sweetwater district Methodist conference. Some of the local delegates will remain for the Thursday session; others returned Wednesday night. Several delegates from other churches of the county are also present.

The local party was composed of Rev. C. W. Young of Hermleigh, J. L. Carroll of Union, and Rev. S. H. Young, D. P. Yoder, W. J. Ely, A. C. Pruitt, A. Rhoades, I. H. Walton and E. A. Black. Mr. Yoder is district lay leader.

Rev. O. P. Clark of Sweetwater, presiding elder, will be in charge of the conference. A number of matters of vital importance were scheduled to come before the gathering.

Large Scurry County Delegation Attends Rally for Discussion Of State Problems.

Representatives of 21 counties in conference on public school financial problems, called Saturday by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, split into two groups in voting on the resolutions committee report, Sunday's Abilene Reporter-News relates.

The Scurry County delegation was one of the largest at the gathering. It is estimated by C. Wedgeworth, local superintendent, and Frank Finney, superintendent, that at least 25 were present from Snyder and rural schools. The group included a number of trustees and other citizens, as well as many teachers. Finney carried a broad array of patrons and teachers, headed by Superintendent Grady Hamrick.

The Abilene paper continues its report of the meeting as follows: Teachers in Majority.

School teachers, constituting a heavy majority, favored the report, while business men and others opposed it principally because of the item recommending additional taxation as a temporary emergency remedy. A heavy sales tax and graduated income tax was suggested in the report.

Other recommendations were that special emphasis be placed on collection of taxes already assessed with definite steps to make evasion more difficult; that suspension of penalties on delinquent taxes be revoked; that $17.50 per capita apportionment be maintained, even at the sacrifice of other items.

Musical Coterie Entertains Guests With Program Thursday Afternoon

Among last week's outstanding social events was a special program given by members of the Musical Coterie Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. A. C. Pruitt on Avenue U. Hostesses were Mrs. Mmes. Pruitt, J. E. Hardy, W. C. Hooks and J. R. Sheehan.

Each member of the club brought a guest. The program was given in costume, a special and interesting feature being a negro spiritual, sung by Leona Ho man, colored.

With Mrs. W. C. Hooks as director, the following program was rendered:

I. Indian Music: (a) "March of the Indian Phantom," piano selection, Miss Helen Boren; (b) "Pale Moon," vocal solo, Miss Dorothy Strayhorn.

II. Southern Mountain Music: (a) "The Toad's Courtship," vocal trio, Mmes. Elmer Spears, Homer Snyder and W. W. Hamilton.

III. Miscellaneous Folk Songs: (a) "Lord, I Want To Be a Christian," quartet, Glen Curry Snyder, William Hamilton, Virginia Pruitt and Genevieve Yoder; (b) "The Dying Cowboy," Glen Curry Snyder; (c) "Climbin' Up the Garden Stairs," William Hamilton; (d) "Turkey in the Straw," Glen Curry Snyder and William Hamilton; (e) "Good-Night Ladies," quartet, Glen Curry Snyder, William Hamilton, Virginia Pruitt and Genevieve Yoder.

IV. Negro Music: (a) "Lindy Lou" by Strickland, vocal solo, Mrs. J. R. Sheehan; (b) "Massah's in de Cold, Cold Ground," vocal selection, Leona Holman, colored; "Old Folks at Home" and "Old Black Bottom," by Leona Holman, with members and guests accompanying.

Dainty refreshments were served to Mmes. J. C. Smyth, W. W. Gross, Forest Sears, Maurice Brownfield, J. C. Dorward, John Spears, R. H. Odom, R. L. Gray and C. Wedgeworth, Misses Glennie Mouchell and Dorothy Strayhorn, Mrs. T. H. Ray of Lee Verna, New Mexico, Virginia Pruitt, Genevieve Yoder, William Hamilton and Glen Curry Snyder, guests; and to Mmes. Younger Set Has Series of Parties.

Upon the arrival of Misses Jeanette Lollar and Johnnie Mathison from the College of Industrial Arts, Denton, Miss Charlotte Ely of Messrs. College, Abilene, and Miss Roberta Raybon of Lubbock, a former member of "the gang," the younger set's social calendar for the Easter holidays became full of party dates.

Wednesday evening Mrs. Woodie Scarborough made a charming hostess when she entertained the group with a waffle supper at her home on Twenty-Eighth Street, complimenting Misses Mathison and Lollar.

Guests included Misses Mildred Stokes, Ruby Lee, Wanda Newson, Margaret Deakins and the honorees, Messrs. Oscar Brice, Morris Casey, Grover Scott, Travis LaRue, Jesse Browning and Jack Darby.

A dance was given Friday evening at the Manhattan Hotel with Miss Margaret Deakins as hostess.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Sybil Stewart of Sweetwater, Miss Raybon of Lubbock and Misses Ely, Lollar and Mathison. Others in attendance were Misses Nana Hess Egerton, Bonnie Miller, Ruby Lee, Mildred Stokes, Gwendolyn Gray and Wanda Newson; Messrs. Hunter Swan, Jesse Browning, Grover Scott, N. E. Clements, Oscar Brice, J. T. Jenkins, Jack Darby, Travis LaRue, R. C. Miller and Jack LaRue.

Other affairs included informal dinners given Saturday, Sunday and Monday evenings by Misses Mildred Stokes, Gwendolyn Gray and Ruby Lee, and a sunrise breakfast given at the Snyder Country Club Monday morning.

Alpha Study Gives Health Program.

A health program was given, with Mrs. J. E. Sentell as leader, Tuesday afternoon when the Alpha Study Club met with Mrs. J. C. Smyth.

"One Thing I Do to Keep Well" was the response to roll call. "Year Round Cleanliness Versus Semi-Annual Housecleaning" was the title of a paper given by Mrs. Wayne Williams. Mrs. Ivan Dodson gave a poem, "Miss Gertrude Herm speaks on 'The Human Body as a Living Machine,'" and "Communicable Diseases: Their Cause and Prevention" was Mrs. Melvin Blackard's topic.

Mrs. R. L. Williams spoke on "Nutrition in the Home." The art review was given by Mrs. C. F. Sentell.

An ice course, emphasizing a pink and white color note, was served to Mrs. Charlotte Winston of Sydney, Australia, a guest, and to Mmes. Ophelia Blackard, Lila Dodson, Eva Nelson, Lila Dodson, Janie Graham, Ruth Hicks, Ellen Joyce, Lois Sentell, Leola Williams, Leola Moore, Nora Sentell, Dimple Stokes, Helen Williams and Halcyon Sheehan, Misses Neoma Strayhorn and Hattie and Gertrude Herm.

Mr. and Mrs. Gill Entertain Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Gill, 194 Thirtieth Street, entertained friends Friday evening with an enjoyable forty-two party.

Following the games, refreshments were passed to Messrs. and Mmes. E. P. Sears, W. C. Weminger, E. C. Neely, N. B. Sisk, A. R. Porter, W. W. Smith, Willard Jones and John Irwin, Mrs. Josie York Lemley and Mrs. Mabel Y. German.

Scotts Entertain Friendly Fellows.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Scott entertained members of the Friendly Fellows Club Tuesday evening at their ranch home, south of Snyder.

Following games of forty-two, refreshments were passed to Messrs. and Mmes. J. Monroe, W. C. Hamilton, J. J. Taylor, W. R. Bell, Hugh Taylor, W. B. Stanfield, W. H. Cauble, J. S. Bradbury and W. A. Morton.

The forty-two club has just been recently organized. Mrs. Hugh Taylor was elected president, and Mrs. W. C. Hamilton secretary.

Althean S. S. Class Is Entertained.

The Althean Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church was recently entertained in the home of Mrs. J. A. Hood, with Mmes. Hood, W. M. Scott and C. T. Glen as hostesses.

A short business session was held, after which various games were enjoyed during the social hour.

Refreshments were served to Mmes. Annie Autry, Ida Reichardt, Ethel Moreland, Norma Pierce, Wren Griffin, Mae Taylor, Maggie Berry, Sophia Williamson, Ina Bean, Michal Morton, Epha Shields, Nina Hamilton, Dollie Day, Aca Martin, Lizzie Sears, Lillie Bradbury and Jessica Smithers.

Mrs. Bird Helps Grain o' Sand A STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Miss Lucilester Roberson

The noise in the bird's nest ceased for only a second. The little birds were only making sure it was their mother who was calling. The moment she alighted on the edge of the nest they started crying again. All together and all at once. They opened their mouths so wide it looked as if they were nothing but a mouth. "They looked so funny Grain o' Sand laughed.

Mrs. Bird whirled around and looked to see where this noise was coming. "Surely," she was thinking, as she looked into Grain o' Sand's eyes, "such a big laugh could not come from that little grain of sand."

"What are you doing there and why do you laugh so loud? Or was it really you who did it?" she asked.

"Yes, but please excuse me for laughing at your babies. They really are very un-m-m-m, ah-h-h very nice babies. He can't say pretty, you see, for they were so funny looking. And he couldn't say good, because he thought them rather greedy and ill-behaved, so he concluded nice might do. Their mother was quite pleased at that. "Why are they so hungry? Does it take you a long time to find worms?"

"Oh, babies are always hungry. I bring a worm about every five minutes but I can feed only one at a time, you see, so really each one gets a worm about every half hour. But often than that would probably not be good for their stomachs. You haven't told me what you are doing there on that limb."

"Excuse me, I quite forgot that question, Mr. Bird. I fell down here. I was riding on the back of Colonel Horsely when this shower came up. He flew under a limb and stood up-side-down. But I can't stand up-side-down, so I fell off. But I must get back some way or other because I never could get home without Colonel Horsely."

"H-m-m-m," said Mrs. Bird very thoughtfully. "This horsely would make a good meal for one of my children. So he would! He is right up there in this tree, you say?"

"Oh, please, Mrs. Bird," cried Grain in alarm, "please do not let them eat Colonel Horsely. I do so want to get home and see all my family again. Besides, Colonel Horsely is our very good friend."

"Oh, well," she answered with a sigh. "I am a very busy woman with so many mouths to feed. (And Grain thought mouths was the right word!) But I suppose there are plenty of worms, so I will carry you to an upper limb. Perhaps he will let me crawl from under him. Never let me get near him."

Grain climbed upon her back. She carried him straight up, almost to the top of the tree, where she stopped upon a short, dead limb.

"You ought to be able to see him from here," she said. "Any way, he is probably looking for you."

And sure enough he was. But such a frightened Colonel.

"Oh my! Oh my sakes alive!" he cried, as he crawled from under that very limb. "If that bird had seen me! Let's get away quickly. Why didn't you stay on my back, Grain?"

"But I couldn't," Grain explained. "I can't stand with my head downward."

"Well, that's funny. I never have any trouble doing it," said the Colonel, as they started off.

"Excuse me, I had gone only a short distance until they had another adventure."

Mrs. Cox Entertains Ingleside Study Club.

Mrs. W. F. Cox was hostess to the Ingleside Study Club Friday afternoon, at which time a musical program was given.

A paper on "Music During the Revolution" was given by Mrs. W. W. McCarty, after which a duet, "Sundown," was sung by Mmes. Walla Fish and W. W. Smith, with Mrs. J. W. Roberts accompanying at the piano. Following the musical program, Mrs. R. H. Odom told of the life of Oliver Wendell Holmes.

A salad course, featuring a pretty Easter motif, was served to Mrs. A. R. Porter, a new member; and to Mmes. Tom Boren, Tate Lockhart, R. H. Odom, R. J. Randall, W. W. Smith, H. L. Vann, Hugh Boren, J. W. Roberts, Walla Fish and W. W. McCarty.

During the business hour Mrs. W. W. Smith, incoming president, appointed Mmes. Walla Fish, R. S. Sullivan and J. W. Roberts as a program committee to make out the program for the new year. The club will meet Friday afternoon, April 28, with Mrs. Walla Fish.

Business Women Given Jig-Saw Party.

Mmes. L. O. Smith, W. R. Merrill and T. J. McDonnell and Miss Grace Holcomb entertained the Business and Professional Women's Club with a delightful party Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Smith.

Unique favors, which revealed each guest's fortune, were attached to tallies. Jig-saw puzzles afforded lots of fun, but at times, almost grief.

Mint ice cream and angel food cake were served to Mrs. Charlie Winston of Sydney, Australia, Mmes. J. G. Hicks, Wade Winston and John Spears, guests; and to Mmes. Gladys Anderson, Eloise Brownfield, Nancy Caton, Mabel Deakins, Edith Hill, Mabel German, Dora Morris, Maye Rogers, Katherine Thrane and S. H. Young, Misses Kenneth Alexander, Grace Avery and Lal Jo Wilson.

Mrs. W. M. Scott was hostess to the Tuesday Afternoon Bridge Club at Scott's ranch this week.

At the conclusion of the bridge play, an ice course was served to Mrs. Neil Gross, a guest, and to Mmes. R. L. Miller, J. C. Dorward, E. M. Deakins, H. J. Brice, Sidney Johnson and W. H. Cauble.

Save on Taxes

Legislative Service of the Texas Press Association Austin

Austin.—Action of appropriation bills thus far carry out the announced intention of the Legislature to trim government expenses by from 25 to 30 per cent. Several of the major items have been finally acted upon by both houses and are in the governor's hands. There is a difference of expense, because of the House and Senate on the extraordinary appropriations. The Senate amended the House bill to provide for construction of buildings, said to be needed to take care of the increasing number of inmates in various institutions.

This is the only serious difference between the branches of the Legislature with regard to important appropriation bills. For the most part the House schedules have been lower than the Senate, but thus far differences have been compromised without serious difficulty.

The one big question yet to be determined is the amount of support to be provided for the public schools. This situation is more difficult than the other major items of expense, because schools throughout the state are suffering from the double embarrassment of reduced state support as well as reductions in the payments of local taxes.

During the past few years state support of public schools has steadily increased. State apportionment in 1923 was $12,965,900. In 1931 this had been increased to $37,362,312. Special rural aid appropriations in 1923 were $1,000,000. In 1931 they were $2,000,000. Local tax support in the same period increased, though by a smaller ratio.

Increases in support from both local and state sources have far out-run increases in enrollment, earning power of the people and the wealth of the state. Likewise public school costs have mounted more rapidly than have the costs of other functions of state government. Illustrating this point, total property assessments in 1923 were approximately three and a half billion dollars. In 1932 they had increased to slightly less than four billions, a gain of about 14 per cent in taxable wealth, compared with increases in expenditures for public schools of considerably more than 100 per cent from the state and somewhat less than 100 per cent from local sources.

It seems fair to point out that while school enrollment was increasing about 10 per cent and taxable wealth about 14 per cent, public school costs were more than doubled. These percentages are average for the state. The factors vary in different localities.

That it will be a difficult problem to adjust these differences goes without saying. It is clear, however, that if the existing standards of support of the public schools is maintained new sources of revenue must be found.

An income tax bill has received a favorable report from a House committee. The rates for individuals scale from one per cent on the first $1,000 of net income up to seven per cent on amounts in excess of $17,000. For corporations the rates scale from two per cent on the first $1,000 to six per cent on incomes in excess of $6,000.

The sales tax has been killed again in a House committee, but there is talk of it being brought out on a minority report. Its prospects of passage seem slim, but search for needed revenue may win sufficient support to bring about enactment of a modified sales tax on certain specified articles.

Appropriations for the support of the State Board of Water Engineers and the Board of Mental Development have been killed by the House. The items are small, the two combined amounting to only about $36,000 per year. The Senate has not yet received the departmental appropriations bill from the House.

Relieves Women's Pains

Here is an example of how Cardul has helped thousands of women: "I was very thin and pale," writes Mrs. F. H. Scott, of Roanoke, Va. "I suffered from weakness and a severe pain in my back. This pain unrelieved me, and I did not feel like doing my work. I did not care to go places, and felt worn, tired, day after day. "My mother had taken Cardul, and on seeing my condition she advised me to try it. I have never regretted doing so. I took three bottles and it built me up. I gained in weight, my color was better and the pain left my back. I am stronger than I had been in some time. "Cardul is sold by local druggists.

GET UP NIGHTS? Make This 25c Test

Use this easy bladder physic to drive out impurities and excess acids which cause irritation that results in leg pains, backache, burning and getting up nights. BU-KETS, the bladder physic, containing buchu, juniper oil, etc., works on the bladder pleasantly and effectively, similar to castor oil on the bowels. Get a 25c box (45-grain size) from your druggist. After four days, if not relieved of getting up nights go back and get your money. You are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Sold by Stinson Drug Company, Two Rexall Stores. B-34

Two Good Programs For Local Students

Two outstanding programs have been heard by local students within the past week. Last Friday the band, under direction of Clyde Roe, gave its first special concert of the year. Solo numbers and other features pleased students and faculty members. Monday of this week found Charley Winston, who has seen 13 years of auditing service in foreign countries, telling of his experiences in a talk that held the school assembly almost spellbound. He emphasized customs, habits, methods of making livelihoods and other interesting features of life on islands and continents of the world, including the Philippines, Cuba, Borneo, Japan, Brazil, Australia, India and New Zealand.

Local Men Slightly Hurt In Car Crash

Vic Montgomery and "Shorty" Malone were slightly injured early Sunday night when the car in which they were driving five miles east of Snyder crashed into a banana-loaded truck trailer. Officers who investigated the accident are of the opinion that a serious crash was narrowly avoided. The truck that pulled the trailer missed collision with the car by inches, but the trailer was side-swiped, overturned and almost demolished. The car, driven by Malone, was also overturned and badly wrecked.

For the cause that needs assistance;
For the wrongs that need resistance;
For the future in the distance,
And the good that we can do.

THE WEEKLY DOZEN.

Instead of publishing our usual comments on news and views of the week, we are this day choosing interesting excerpts from The Texas Almanac's publication of 1933. "Texas, Let's Talk Texas!"

Variety, Not Size, Counts.
Briefly, Texas is large and it is enormously varied. It is the variety rather than the size that is chiefly interesting and that is latent with great possibility.

Wood—Not to Burn.
In the year 1932 there were, in the East Texas commercial timber belt, approximately 500,000 acres of virgin or old-growth pine and about 250,000 acres of virgin hardwoods.

Acres and More Acres.
Texas has a total area of 167,534,720 acres, of which 124,707,130 acres were, according to the census of 1930, devoted to the agricultural industries of crop growing, livestock raising, dairying, production of poultry and poultry products and miscellaneous minor farm industries.

Oldest Business Institution.
With the coming of April 11, in this year of 1933, the institution that publishes The Dallas Morning News (and The Almanac) closes its ninety-first year of continuous existence. It is the oldest business enterprise—the oldest private institution of any kind—in the state today.

So Bigger Is Texas.
The total boundary line of Texas is 2,846 miles if only the larger bend of the coastline and the major meanderings of the rivers are followed in making the measurements. If the entire tidewater coastline and the many smaller meanderings of the rivers are followed, however, then the entire boundary of Texas is 4,138 miles.

The Lone Star Flag.
The officially adopted flag of the State of Texas is the former flag of the Republic of Texas. The Texas state flag is the only flag of an American commonwealth having previously served as the flag of a recognized independent country. The flag consists of a blue field with a single large star and white and red horizontal stripes, the white stripe being uppermost.

More or Less—Rain.
The highest annual rainfall record in Texas, as among the 150 stations that have been maintained sufficient length of time to have established an average that may be called normal, is that of Bon Wier, Newton County, on the Louisiana border. This station has an annual average of 55.31 inches of rainfall. The station at El Paso has recorded the lowest average annual precipitation, which is 2.86 inches.

What, Knowledge Lacking?
Much remains to be done before the physiography of Texas is known. Topographic maps have been made for only about one-fourth of the state and there are today no surveys for vast areas including the Pecos Valley, much of the Rio Grande Valley, a large section of the Trans-Pecos, the Panhandle and South Plains, most of the lower coastal plains and nearly all of Texas lying east of the black land belt.

We Have a History.
No other state of the American Union has a history as distinctively its own as has Texas; and the history of no other state has been of such momentous consequence in the history of the United States. Eight times has a new flag been planted on Texas soil representing in all six different nations in the following order: Spain, France, Spain, Mexico, Texas, the United States, the Southern Confederacy, and again the United States.

Blood Paid the Price.
From the Texas Declaration of Independence: "Nations, as well as individuals, are amenable for their acts to the public opinion of mankind. A statement of a part of our grievances is therefore submitted to an impartial world, in justification of the hazardous but unavoidable step now taken, of severing our political connection with the Mexican people and assuming an independent attitude among the nations of the earth."

The Happy Medium.
What a task confronts the Legislature! Most of them realize that the happy medium between excessive expenditures and excessive economies must be reached. But how shall they cut? If every citizen would determine to back his Legislature in every worthy economy move, regardless of how it cut his own throat, the task would not be so gigantic.

We Are Not Patriots.

Every true Texan will re-read of the events that transpired on April 21, 1836. He will glory in the sacrifices of the men and women who made Lone Star independence possible.

But most of us are not true Texans. Most of us are not patriots. Political oratory and soft-pedal editorials will invade the state's borders this week from one end to another. We will enjoy school programs (a small handful of us will), and hear ringing radio messages. Then we will drop back into our patriotic desuetude.

No, no, fellow Texans, fellow Scurry Countians. We are not patriots. As compared with the heroes of the Goliad, the Alamo and San Jacinto, we are no more formidable patriotically than an army of earth worms.

Few of us have convictions. And if we have them today, we have others tomorrow. We change convictions as often and as swiftly as political and neighborhood expediency demands it. Gone are the days when most Texans took their stands for right and justice, and when a man's convictions were almost sacred.

We sign petitions that pass our door as carelessly as we sign new I. O. U.'s. We write to our legislators not to put this economy or that economy into effect because it will pinch our own toes. We then condemn the Legislature for inertia and lobbyist control. We underwrite everything and anything that purports to bring new customers to our counters and new pennies into our tills.

But don't fool yourself. The day has not passed when a man or an institution is respected for the convictions he keeps and speaks without prejudice. Indeed, convictions are so scarce that the man or the institution that has one and keeps it is likely to be declared a hero in his own halliwick.

May the stream of patriotism flow over us anew this April 21, as the blood flowed on San Jacinto battlefield ninety-seven years ago. May we learn that the patriotism of sincere convictions is more potent than the patriotism of oratory, flowery language and wishy-washy politics!

Gutenberg's Gun.

Years ago, when Europe's guns were thundering to win victories for selfish dictators and unjust princes, James Russell Lowell, the poet, remarked that Gutenberg's gun has the longer range.

That gun fires on poison gas or shrapnel, but it rules the world. The weapon forged when Gutenberg invented modern printing still is the most powerful on earth.

Japan may win temporary victories against China—but China has Gutenberg's gun on her side. America's financial oligarchy may drumfire its dollars against national progress—but Gutenberg's gun has a longer range.

Scoundrels may plunge a nation into misery, but a Roosevelt, backed by Gutenberg's gun, will rout them in the end.

Has this nation remained calm during the past few hectic days? Then Gutenberg's gun may take the credit.

Has confidence supplanted fear? Then it was the voice of the gun that accomplished the miracle.

The printing press still is the greatest weapon in the world.—Los Angeles Times.

CURRENT COMMENT

BY LEON GUINN

In the East Texas oil field Old Nick has broke loose, all because the Texas Railroad Commission didn't cut through the tape of legality and issue production orders necessary to curb unwanted production. . . . Some foolishly brag it is not constitutional to enforce production orders. . . . Yet this same elique will tell you it is constitutional to tax like the dickens every gallon of gasoline, every gallon of lubricants purchased by the townie and the farmer. . . . In other words, an illicit resource becomes legal when taxable for revenue purposes. . . . Attorney General James Alfred hasn't been Santa Claus to the oil industry because the brief-case idea of constitutionality appealed to the big producer, as well as the lawyer. . . . If the resources placed underground by God can not be rightfully classified as constitutional by the Texas governor (harangued by lobbyists) then it is high time a Roosevelt was ready to take over the task.

A serious thought has entered into foreign politics since Adolph Hitler declared a boycott on Jews in Germany. . . . If 61 per cent of the conceit, 19 per cent of the yen for power were removed from Hitler, the other 20 per cent would represent the attention—one-fifth left to affairs of Germans. . . . The Jews have always helped build up nations, and boycotting them does no one any good. . . . In passing, it might be mentioned the boys working with Hitler assert he has a Napoleonic ambition. . . . Napoleon, like others, overstepped himself.

Last week the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society dedicated its $50,000 museum at Canyon. . . . You can choke a man on sandgrains, you can boost him or kick him, but you can't keep West Texans from dreaming of castles and building them for the benefit and lasting service to the citizenship of the area!

It was privately predicted some time ago that senators would eventually glean enough facts to do house-cleaning in financial circles. . . . Now the senators are getting their bricks and brooms ready to make a clean sweep of J. P. Morgan and associates, badly needed for many years. . . . Hid behind a waxed moustache of veneer, it has been known for a decade that hot-shot financial underwriters of bonds and securities received a tip-off from the house of Morgan on how to pull shady deals in a legal way. . . . Small-fry bankers and cashiers tried some of the wire pulling on a smaller scale, but ended up with ball-and-chain sentences. . . . House-cleaning periodically is necessary, if bad business ethics is to be localized—until the virulence of the get-rich-quick fever abates. . . . It has lasted too long already.

Business acceleration in the Snyder trade district has been definitely noticeable the last 10 days. . . . Retail sales in the grocery and dry goods lines the past week were 10 per cent above the corresponding period last year, with erratic trends evident in the nations group. . . . A bright spot of the increase in volume was in gasoline and lubricants. . . . Some have it that business is clicking at 71.2 per cent of normal, whereas the calendar week of last month was at 68.5 per cent. . . . Advertising volume is placed at a 12 per cent increase, including circulars, etc.—which reflects the healthy condition of this West Texas section. . . . Charts indicate a decrease by May 1, so there. . . . Do not take figures too seriously, because, after all, figures are—just figures.

Seventh Installment

SYNOPSIS—Pauline, sentimental, trustful, sincere and loving love, becomes engaged and marries Dennis O'Hara in the belief that their blissful happiness will continue through all the years. On her wedding morning she awakens with a strange premonition that maybe love does change, a thought buried in her mind by a letter from her closest friend, Barbara, the night before. Pauline adored Barbara, who had been married, was the mother of a child which died, but now divorced and living a life which some of her friends could not understand. Between Dennis and Barbara is a seeming web of personal dislike but both six months after Pauline's wedding, Barbara comes for a short stay. During this visit Barbara confesses to Pauline that there is a man she really loves, but she refuses to tell his name. Barbara decides suddenly to go home and Pauline, Dennis drives her to the station. Irritated, Dennis drives recklessly, and they are in a crash. Barbara is broken. As he returns to consciousness he learns who the man is that Barbara loves. It is himself. Dennis spends several weeks in the hospital. Barbara returns to stay with Pauline, but on one pretext or another fails to visit Dennis with Pauline at the hospital. Pauline plans highly for Dennis's return home. Barbara stays only one day after Dennis's return from the hospital. Much against his will Dennis finds a new attraction in Barbara, who plays the same cool and detached role as formerly. A fortnight after Barbara's return to New York, she receives a letter from Pauline that she and Dennis are coming to New York for a little vacation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

Then she laughed at herself. "There was nothing in the world to prevent Barbara from going off at any moment if she so wished. She was free and she had plenty of money, but there was nobody with whom she wished to take such a journey."

But if she had been married to Dennis O'Hara—she brushed that thought quickly aside, and went hurriedly to her bath.

Jerry Barnett rang up while she was dressing. "Should have rung before," he explained, "only thought you'd be asleep. Tired myself this morning. Awful!"

"I'm as fresh as a daisy," Barbara told him cuttingly. "And I will have to tell you it's all off for Wednesday."

"Oh, I say!"

"Yes; I've got some people coming up from the country," Barbara explained coolly. "And I've got to show them around. Awful bore!"

"Who are they? Didn't know you had any country relations."

"I haven't. It's Pauline and Dennis O'Hara. They're tired of rustication and want a change."

"Well, you'll want a fourth, so what about me?"

Barbara hesitated, and then she laughed. "Oh, very well. You'll like Pauline—she's pretty and—innocent."

"That's another word for stupid."

"You think so? Well, you must judge for yourself. They're going to stay at the Albion—dandy respectable inn, isn't it? I thought a little supper after a show on Wednesday night. Reserve a table somewhere, will you?"

"All right, but I shall see you tonight? We're going to the 'Vestners'! It seems ages since last night."

"All right."

"She rang off, frowning. If only Jerry wouldn't be so slavish. No doubt some women would love such devotion, but she found it irritating. He ought to have married a woman like Pauline."

Barbara spent the morning at her dressmaker's. Madame Celeste had some new creations freshly arrived from Paris that morning, so she untruthfully said. She showed Barbara all her most expensive and exotic models, but Barbara would have none of them.

"I'm going to change my style," she said coolly. "Show me something simple—black or white—nothing oriental."

"But, madame—Celeste was the picture of grief-stricken amazement. Barbara cut her short.

"You heard what I said—something simple in black or white. If you haven't got anything I can go elsewhere."

"I suppose I'm mad—utterly mad she told herself as she drove away. "But it's nice to be different sometimes—it's as good as a holiday," and she thought again of Dennis.

If they could have spent a holiday together! For a moment she let her imagination have full play. She and Dennis down by the sea, walking hand in hand along golden sands with the fresh breeze blowing in their faces. They would be young together, with everything else in the world forgotten. She wrenched her wandering thoughts back to sanity. Dennis did not love her and, even if he did, how soon would they grow weary of each other? No, no, it was far better as it was. Pauline was the wife for him.

Pauline was the kind of woman to make a home for such a man as Dennis. And yet it was by his choice that they were coming to town.

Why had he done it? Barbara told herself she did not know, could not guess, and yet—deep down in her heart there was a little fluttering hope that it was because he wanted to see her.

"You're a fool!" she told herself pitifully again and again, and could only remember that it is better far to be a fool in Paradise than to be wise and have no Paradise at all.

Barbara made Jerry Barnett go with her to meet the O'Haras. It was a pouring wet evening, and New York looked at its worst. Barbara slipped a hand through Jerry's arm as they walked up and down the platform.

"You look very young tonight," he said. He pressed her hand close to his side, and told her in that get-up, New, isn't it?"

"Oh, I've had it some time!" Barbara said carelessly, but she flushed and wondered what he would say if she told him it was all new and excitingly bought for Dennis O'Hara.

She had not slept a wink all night; she had lain awake like an excited girl waiting for the man she loved.

"So absurd!" she scolded herself "After all the experience I've had of men. Of course, it won't last—it's just another of my fancies." She tried to believe in her own words, but it was difficult. She had loved

Dennis for so long—more than a year—and a year was a great time to Barbara. And now Dennis was coming to New York. In another moment she would see him and read the usual almost angry disapproval in his eyes. She gave a little stifled laugh, and Jerry looked down at her.

"What's the joke? Let's share it!" "I am wondering how you will like my friends."

"Oh, all right, I expect! Storm-away likes O'Hara. I told you."

"Yes—did he say anything about Pauline?"

"Only that she was young—just a kid."

"Yes," Barbara's heart contracted. She was so much older than Pauline, in experience if not in actual years. She wondered if she would have stood a better chance with Dennis if she had met him sooner—before her marriage, before she had cultivated this hard, cynical attitude toward life, to hide from the world her bitter hurt and disillusionment. She had done it so well that everybody accepted it now as her real self—all except Pauline, that is—simple little Pauline, who loved her and believed in her despite what other people said.

"Here comes the train," Jerry broke in upon her thoughts, and she drew her hand from his arm and hurried forward. Pauline was at the window, smiling and eager. Barbara saw Dennis lay a hand on her shoulder and heard him say: "Wait until the train stops; there is plenty of time."

Then it stopped and Pauline opened the door and almost fell into her friend's unresponsive arms.

"How lovely to see you again. It seems years. We've brought an awful lot of luggage. I don't believe it will all go on one taxi!"

"I made Jerry bring his car," Barbara said coolly, though her pulses were racing. She introduced them. "Mr. Barnett—Mrs. O'Hara, Mr. O'Hara."

Dennis and Jerry shook hands. "It's very kind of you to have met us," said Dennis, looking at Barbara.

"Not at all. Get a porter, Jerry. I don't call this much luggage. My child," she told Pauline when it was collected.

They got into the car—Dennis in front with Jerry, and the two girls behind.

"We've got tickets for a show tonight," Barbara said; "and we've booked a table for supper afterward."

"Oh, but Dennis ought to rest," Pauline broke out anxiously.

"Nonsense. There was a sharp note in her husband's voice. "I'm not nearly so tired sitting in a train as it is trying to drag myself about the house."

Pauline's face quivered. "Of course, if you're not tired—she faltered. They reached the hotel."

"We'll call for you at half-past seven," Barbara said. "No, we won't."

ine who loved her and believed in her despite what other people said. "Here comes the train," Jerry broke in upon her thoughts, and she drew her hand from his arm and hurried forward. Pauline was at the window, smiling and eager. Barbara saw Dennis lay a hand on her shoulder and heard him say: "Wait until the train stops; there is plenty of time."

How to get to SLEEP

When you can't sleep, it's because your nerves won't let you. Don't waste time "counting sheep." Don't toss and turn needed rest in reading. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin. Drink a glass of water—and go to sleep.

This simple remedy is all that's needed to insure a night's rest. It's all you need to relieve a headache during the day—or to dispose of the pain. Get the genuine tablets of Bayer manufacture and you will get immediate relief.

Bayer Aspirin dissolves always immediately—gets to work without delay. This desirable speed is not dangerous; it does not depress the heart. Just be sure you get the genuine tablets stamped thus:

COMPANY G TO BE INSPECTED

Company "G" 142nd Infantry, the Texas National Guard, is cocked and primed for its annual federal inspection, which commences this evening.

Major Paxton, the regular army, who is stationed at Fort Worth as instructor for the 144th Infantry, is inspection officer. He will arrive on the afternoon train, inspect the supply room and other accessories, then put the men and officers through their paces at night.

Captain John E. Sentell, commanding officer, anticipates a high rating—the highest receivable—especially after the fine drill Tuesday night. The local unit includes 62 men and three officers, Captain Sentell, First Lieutenant Tim O. Cook and Second Lieutenant Tommie Black.

Top rating in the regiment of 19 units has come to Company "G" twice within the past few years, and no ranking lower than third has been received for six years.

Dual Honors Come To Pair of Piggly Wiggly Stores Here

The local Piggly-Wiggly stores broke into the headlines of "The Weekly Turnstile" publication, of the Piggly-Wiggly Corporation, in two successive issues. In the issue of April 7 a story of the stores' glassware premiums was given, and in the most recent issue, it was revealed that the local stores are among 119 in the United States to increase this year's February sales over last year's February sales.

Following is the article regarding the glassware premiums:

"We are increasing our sales substantially," write Maurice Brownfield and Charlie Kelly of Kelly-Brownfield Piggly-Wiggly Stores, Snyder, "by offering glassware as premiums to our customers."

"With each purchase, we issue a register purchase receipt ticket, which is stamped with the amount, the date, and this suggestion, 'Save these receipts. They are valuable! These tickets are redeemable for 16-piece, 19-piece, and 36-piece golden glow or green dinner sets."

"Twenty dollars in purchase tickets, plus 79 cents for the express charges, are required for the 16-piece set; $25 in tickets, plus 89 cents for express charges, are required for the 19-piece set; $50 in tickets, plus $1.49 for express, are required for the 36-piece set."

"Already, in 10 days, we have given 70 sets of the three sizes to our customers, and we have placed an order for 90 additional sets. Housewives in this section are very enthusiastic over our offer. Not a few have made purchases of extra merchandise in order to get the glassware, and almost all have formed a habit of asking for the purchase receipt tickets."

Awning Torn Down.

The Hugginbotham-Bartlett awning, which has borne the torments of wind, rain and sun for many years, is being torn down this week. Manager R. J. Randals and his assistant, Byrdell Martin, have also been adding several touches of new paint and other repairs to the yard.

come in now—you'll want to unpack. So glad you've come."

She blew Pauline a kiss and leaned back with a sigh. "Take me home, Jerry. I feel exhausted."

"You go and dress and come back for me, and don't be late," said Barbara at her door.

He was amazed, when on arriving again at the flat he found her dressed and waiting.

"Great Scott!" he whistled, looking her over from head to foot. Barbara laughed. "Do you like me?"

Suddenly Jerry caught her to him. "Barbara—darling."

No lipstick—no earrings—no nothing in your hair—been used to."

He drew a quick breath.

"Jove, it's not you! But all the same—your divine."

She swept him a mock curtsy, her eyes bright with excitement.

Jerry took her hand and, bending, kissed it.

"I'm almost afraid of you, and yet—" Suddenly he caught her to him. "Barbara—darling—"

She wrenched herself free from his passionate arms.

"Let me go—beast! Beast!"

Jerry's face was crimson with anger.

"Anyone would think you'd never been kissed before—what the deuce is the matter? Other times you've never objected. Oh, I say, chuck it, Barbara! For she had begun to pat his cheek, fearlessly, but with infinite pathos.

He had never seen her give into emotion before, and he was angry and distressed. It was almost as if "Idiot!" She forced a smile, and drained the glass he gave her. "Porgot it. It's too many late nights—my nerves are upset. I'll have to put some color on after all—I look a sight."

She kept him waiting 10 minutes, and he avoided looking at her as they left the flat together. He was a bungler, but somewhere a the back of his slow mind he realized that he had hurt her intolerably, misunderstood her.

In the car he said: "Would you rather not go? I'll explain to O'Hara."

"My God!" said Barbara violently. "What do you take me for? If you ever breathe a word I'll never speak to you again."

They drove to the Alhambra in silence.

"You wait. I'll fetch them," Barbara said. She was out of the car before he could stop her. In the lounge she met Dennis.

An implement expert, sent out by the Massey-Harris manufacturers, will demonstrate the line of implements here next week.

Morbus Sabbaticus.

Published by request of a Times reader, who found this bit of gentle irony in a religious tract.

Morbus Sabbaticus, or Sunday sickness, a disease peculiar to church members.

1. The symptoms vary, but it never interferes with the appetite.
2. It never lasts more than 24 hours.
3. No physician is ever called.
4. It always proves fatal in the end—to the soul.
5. It is becoming fearfully prevalent, and is destroying thousands every year.

The attack comes on suddenly every Sunday; no symptoms are felt on Saturday night; the patient sleeps well and wakes feeling well, eats a hearty breakfast, but about church time the attack comes on and continues until services are over for the morning. Then the patient feels easy and eats a hearty dinner. In the afternoon he feels much better, and is able to take a walk and read the Sunday papers; he eats a hearty supper, but about church time he has another attack and stays at home. He wakes up Monday morning refreshed and able to work, and does not have any symptoms of the disease until the following Sunday.

Remedy—"Be not deceived: God is not mocked" (Gal. 6:7).

Fred Ebling Off To Southwest As Agent

Fred Ebling, who has been telegraph operator at the Snyder and Dermott Santa Fe offices, and has been here for several months, went to Rita Santa, in Southwest Texas, as regular agent, last week. Mrs. Ebling is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ross.

O. B. Bradford, whose home is in Palo Pinto County, succeeded Mr. Ebling on the early night shift here. He has most recently been associated with the Orient railroad.

Beauty In Creation.

I can not feel like ashes
When green enriches meadows;
I think of fluffy sashes
And sunlight in the windows.

This hobo might be aimless,
But let him talk of flowers—
He might be frankly famelous,
But joyful of sweet showers.

Beauty in Creation is divine:
It warms the heart to cheer;
It is far better than a wine.
For it lingers through the year.

Like love, beauty is eternal:
It molds youngsters into men;
For life is but its journal,
A classic to the pleasant end.

My affection is for the Spring
That gives a tang to living—
For memory is a living thing,
And makes our best worth giving.

The mocking bird, a songster,
Sings sonnets of rare beauty;
He goes away at close of day
To sleep all night, the cattle.

Chandler and Nolan Buy Shamblin Cafe

The Shamblin Cafe, east side of the square, was purchased Wednesday of last week by W. H. (Buck) Chandler and Ira Nolan, who are in active charge of the eating place. H. P. Shamblin, former owner, has operated the cafe here since early in 1932.

Both the new operators are well known to Scurry County people. Their friends, as well as others, are invited to come around and get "fed up." Chandler is a former cafe man.

Hurrah For Mrs. Stinson, Editor Of Journal Says

Another bouquet was thrown to Mrs. L. T. Stinson, whose yard won honors in a nation-wide contest recently, when the April issue of the Southern Pharmaceutical Journal came off the press a few days ago.

"This is what W. H. Cousins, publisher, an old friend of the Stinsons, has to say:

"Hurrah for Mrs. Lee Stinson. She just won a prize in a national yard and garden contest in which only a few prizes were awarded in the United States. The fact that Mrs. Stinson got away with one of these prizes with the competition she had to go against is evidence of the kind of a gardener she is. Snyder, Texas, is one of the beautiful small cities of the state, and if its citizens follow the example of Mrs. Stinson it will become a beauty spot not to be forgotten by visitors."

"Our readers may wonder why no credit is given Lee Stinson, vice president of the Texas Pharmaceutical Association, who is Mrs. Stinson's neighbor, but we happen to know that Lee Stinson, known to his intimates of the cow-punching days as 'twenty-six-bar,' is just a boarder around the Stinson home. While Mrs. Stinson cultivates rare shrubs and plants, Lee is cultivating a crop of drug stores, and trying to make two tubes of tooth paste vanish where only one vanished before."

"We can remember the days referred to by that peerless West Texan, Charles E. Coombs of Stamford, as the days when it was a gamble who could stay the longest in West Texas, the people or the prairie dogs. Today West Texas is full of people and the prairie dogs have gone. We can remember when it was considered weak minded to plant anything west of Albany. Now comes a smart woman with a home and a yard that wins. The fact is, only two of these national prizes came to the state of Texas, one of these to Snyder and the other to El Paso.

"Mrs. Stinson has brought rare verdure to the land that knew only cactus and the mesquite. She has demonstrated that, though only God can make a tree, that with human cooperation He makes trees where trees did not grow before. One of the noblest acts of which human beings are capable is the beautification of homes and their surroundings. A home surrounded by a beautiful garden is an inspiration to every passer-by, an oasis on the long trail of those who travel up and down the earth. It takes toil and perseverance to grow and maintain flowers, shrubs and trees, but every home in the State type in West Texas gets miles father from the pioneer belief that all one could raise in West Texas was hay, h— and hereofers. The hearty congratulations of this publication are hereby extended Mrs. Lee T. Stinson of Snyder, Texas."

The prize-winning picture of the Stinson yard was likewise reproduced in the Dallas magazine.

Ben F. Smith Visits.

Ben F. Smith, who is officially associated with the House of Representatives, was back home from his Austin post for several days last week. He reports that it is difficult for the Legislature to do much constructive work on account of wide diversity of opinion among the solemn themselves, as well as among the "folks back home."

Mrs. I. W. Boren and daughter, Miss Pauline, were Easter guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nipper at Turkey.

"The Right Price is the Thing"

JONES IS PRAISED FOR HELPING MR. FARMER

Behind the scenes of the political show in Washington there usually is an unsung hero. In the case of the consolidation of federal loaning agencies, and in the undertaking to reinsurance form, mortgage indebtedness, the hero is Representative Marvin Jones of Amarillo, chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture.

Chairman Jones' bill to take care of both of these financial functions was introduced during the last session of Congress and according to the result of a thorough search of the records, his measure was the first to suggest the consolidation that has resulted in the abolishment of the federal farm board and the reorganization of the farm loaning agencies.

Aid To Mortgage.

He has been working with Chairman Henry Morgenthau Jr. for several weeks, perfecting the plan, and his suggestions have been carried out to a large degree.

It has been Chairman Jones' contention that if farmers were freed of the restrictive burden of short term credits and excessive interest charges, a great part of his battle would be won.

He believes that the heavy mortgage indebtedness of the farmer retards his endeavors. He does not feel that the farmer's credit should flow to him freely and without the application of sound protection for the government.

Believes in "Free Farmers."

Mr. Jones is one of those who believe in the doctrine of the "free farmer." He contends that debt's bind debtors, and that it naturally follows that farmers relieved of the threat of foreclosure and the over-powering load of debt, would be free farmers, entitled to the pursuit of happiness.

Mr. Jones says: "If it were possible for every farmer in America to be free from debt that he could plant his crops in proper season and grow them in independence, he would advance toward prosperity. If there could be linked with his freedom from debts the removal of the discrimination against him through trade barriers and excessive freight rates, he would have a chance for success on the same dead level with the other fellow, and

DIZZINESS relieved by Black-Draught

"I decided to take Theodor's Black-Draught, as I had been having bilious spells," writes Mr. Chas. B. Stevens, of Columbus, Ind. "When I got bilious, I feel sleepy and tired and do not feel like doing my work. I got awfully dizzy. I know then that I had better take something. After I found how good Black-Draught is, that is what I have used. I guess it rids me of the bile, for I feel better—don't feel like I am dropping off to sleep every time I sit down. That, to me, is a very bad feeling. Now, you can get Black-Draught in the form of a SYRUP, for children."

Howard Bros. Improves.

At Howard Brothers station No. 1 there have been several recent improvements. A combination kerosene and gasoline pump has been added. New paint and a few repairs are going in this week. Henry Howard reports sale of a large amount of kerosene within recent weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Snyder had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Turner Snyder of Roscoe.

Local Delegates Expect to Attend P.-T. A. Meeting

Several local delegates are leaving for Brownfield today to attend the annual meeting of the Fourteenth District, Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, which will convene Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. B. M. West, president of the Snyder Parent-Teacher Association, will head the delegation that leaves here today.

Mrs. J. R. Strayhorn of Rotan, former Snyder resident, who is publicity director for the district, favors The Times with the following information regarding the two-day session.

Each association is entitled to one delegate for every 10 members. This means that the Fourteenth District, composed of 24 counties, is entitled to send a host of voting delegates to this conference.

The theme of the meeting is "Safeguarding Childhood Through This Crisis." Several noted people will appear on the program, among them being: Dr. Bradford Knapp, president, Texas Technological College, Lubbock; Dr. E. W. Prothro, director of Nolan County Health Unit; Mrs. J. M. Crane, state publicity director; Miss Bonnie Dorsort, Texas Tech; Miss Helen Hardy, Division of Child Welfare; Miss Mae Murfee, county superintendent of Lubbock County; Mrs. A. C. Sumner, state chairman of Mental Attitudes and a past president of Fourteenth District P.-T. A.; and Mrs. James B. Day, president at this time.

Besides the addresses on the different phases of the theme of the conference, there will be exhibits of yearbooks, record books, posters and pamphlets, and instruction on all phases of parent-teacher work.

The people of Brownfield, assisted by the Terry County Council, are preparing to give lodging and breakfast, besides the complimentary tea and luncheons, to all delegates and visitors.

New B. Y. P. U. Officers.

New officers were chosen Sunday by the senior B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist Church, as follows: Weldon Alexander, president; Joe Brown, vice president; Winnie Haney, secretary; Maxine Shuler, corresponding secretary; J. C. Smith, daily Bible readers' leader; E. J. Braubury, chorister; Polly Harpole, pianist; Cecil Worley, Myrtle Woodin and Raymond Watkins, group captains.

Washington.—A bill is being prepared here calling for the appropriation of a special fund of $400,000 to the present legislature to speak to the country a half hour each week of the year over a nationwide radio hook-up. The amount, it is said, will cover the cost of radio time at the regular rates. It will be pointed out that every time the president goes on the air to discuss important public questions the time is given him without cost by the broadcasters. It will be argued that acceptance of such radio time from private concerns seeking special legislation tends to compromise the government. Sponsors of the bill affirm that no president should be placed under obligation for any "courtesies" of this character "extended" to him.

James H. Hanley of Nebraska has been named to the Federal Radio Commission, thus partially confirming the prediction made some time ago in this column that the body was due for a complete shake-up. Reorganization of the commission is a part of a scheme of Col. Lewis McHenry Howe, life-time friend of the president and his secretary and political adviser for many years.

Col. Howe, it is reported, was incensed over the treatment the Democratic candidate received from the National Broadcasting Company. He intends to see that no such open favoritism will be possible again. Members of the committee who played General Saltzman's game when he was chairman are all slated to go.

Congress has been too busy waiting on the president's manifold program to initiate investigations some of its members have in mind. The heavy firing will have to cease before Congress digs in for the winter as it were.

I have in mind the inquiry that will be made concerning the reasons for the $80,000,000 income tax refunds made during the last fiscal year. Some of the Democrats want to know why Andy Mellon's aluminum company of America got $91,495 and why Andy and his brother, Richard, were both counted in for a refund slice. The curious ones are wondering also how a concern like the United Fruit Company (an integral part of Radio Corporation of America, by the way) could have so far miscalculated its income tax returns as to have received a refund of nearly $3,000,000 last year.

Then, too, the Democrat snooping committee wants to inquire why former Republican Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock and J. H. Roraback, Connecticut utility magnate, Republican boss of that state and a member of the Republican National Committee, were given refunds.

It will be recalled that the Senate of the seventy-second Congress proposed that all refunds more than $5,000 be scrutinized, and that the House set the amount at $20,000. In this form the bill was passed and President Hoover promptly vetoed it after his attorney general had advised him that the provision constituted an encroachment upon the executive powers.

Merritt Picture And Write-Up In Houston Paper

The following write-up of Joe A. Merritt of Snyder, representative from the 118th Texas district, together with a picture of the legislator, appeared in the Houston Post, issue of March 23:

A seasoned hand at the business of law making, as well as in local public service, is Representative Joe A. Merritt of Snyder. Before coming to the thirty-eighth, thirty-ninth and fortieth assemblies. And he has been county tax assessor and deputy tax collector and deputy tax collector of Scurry County, out where the Plains begin.

Billie Jay Elland underwent a tonsil operation at the Emergency Hospital Friday. He is already virtually recovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Norred and little son were guests of relatives in Midland Sunday. Mrs. Norred and son remained for a week's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wilsford and Lewis Wilsford went to Santa Anna Sunday. Mrs. J. C. Wilsford returned home with them.

Word comes to The Times that George P. "Jimmy" Smith, former publisher of this paper, has returned, with his family, to his old home state, Ohio. The family has resided in Houston since moving from Snyder more than a year ago.

Mrs. J. C. Wilsford has returned from Brownwood, where she was called to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. S. E. Hester, who died April 8. Mrs. Hester was a West Texas pioneer, coming here as a bride in 1872. She was a granddaughter of John Dillard, one of the martyrs of the Alamo.

Mr. Merritt favors an elective highway commission of five members, four to be chosen from districts and one at large. He is opposed to any further diversion of the gasoline tax fund.

A number of bills have been introduced by the gentleman from Scurry, among them one providing for release of interest and penalties on delinquent taxes up to the end of next year; one making it a felony to steal cotton; and two measures designed to safeguard depositors in state banks.

Mr. Merritt was born in Columbia County, Arkansas, in 1873. He has lived in Snyder 27 years. He is engaged in stock raising, and has done considerable experimenting in cotton farming. He is a member of the Baptist church and the Masonic and Odd Fellows lodges.

New Features In 1933 Edition Of Texas Almanac

Many new features are contained in the Texas Almanac and State Industrial Guide for 1933, which has just been issued by The Dallas News. There are more than 1,000 articles, statistical tables, illustrations and maps, answering between 50,000 and 100,000 questions about Texas. Every phase of Texas' economic, political and civic development is covered, including farming and livestock, manufacturing, wholesale and retail trade, population, railroads, aviation, highways and automobiles, motor transportation, inland waterways, minerals and mining, government and names of state, district and county officials, education, conservation and numerous other subjects.

A large folded sheet between the leaves of the volume carries political and railroad map on one side and highway map on the other. These maps were made especially for the Texas Almanac and are up-to-date and accurate. As one runs through the leaves of the volume one comes across such interesting miscellaneous articles as "Historic Landmarks of Texas," "Archeological Research in Texas," "Noteworthy Texas Characters," "Program for State Parks," "Health Resorts and Places of Recreation," "Arts and Artists," "Libraries," "Old Cattle Trails," "Bounty Dispute," "Kinds of Salt and Fresh Water Fish Found in Texas," "Home Canning" and "Farm Terracing and Home Tenantry."

If one wishes to know where the principal lakes of Texas are found, how to fly the Texas flag, the depth of the deepest oil well, the amount of oil and gas in Texas reserves, where the McDonald Observatory is to be built, how much is collected from the gasoline tax or the amount of the payroll of Texas railroads, he will find it in the Texas Almanac. While many new articles have been included, the chapters of information that have become standard in the Texas Almanac are retained, completely revised and enlarged. There are more than 7,000 names of individuals in the book. Special attention is given to historical features, particularly those of importance in connection with the tentative plans for a centennial celebration. The volume this year

Wheat on South Plains Reported Good by Railway

Wheat on the South Plains is in fair to good condition, according to the Santa Fe Railway report issued April 1. "The South Plains are getting dry," the report reads, "but the sub-soil moisture condition so far is satisfactory."

Sheep and goat shearing is well under way, the report continues. The spring wool clip is expected to be the largest on record.

Ranches are responding to milder weather and are greening rapidly. Moisture is sufficient to insure early grazing.

Cattle have about recovered the shrinkage caused by cold weather and are in good condition. Feed was plentiful, hence most ranchers held losses to a minimum by supplementing range feed with concentrates.

Cotton planting is well under way in South Texas, and will start in most other sections early in April on lands now being prepared. Unofficial reports indicate that the acreage planted to cotton may be increased. With a heavy carry-over of feed, many areas will reduce the feed acreage and cotton will take up the slack.

LIGHT SHOWER VISITS COUNTY

Rain threatened to invade Scurry County in sizeable quantities Wednesday, but the weather man sent a young sandstorm instead.

As a giant wave of sand rolled off the plains, heavy raindrops, and a few pellets of hail, came tumbling down. But just about the time the dust was settled, the tiny shower became a memory, although the clouds remained up into the early night.

Reports of good rains in regions east encourage the hearts of Scurry farmers, ranchers and business men, however, so the clouds may be kind to this area within a few days. In fact, local prophets are free in their prediction of rain before another week has passed.

MOOAR'S BUFFALO DAYS

Another Chapter From the Holland's Story, By Dr. J. W. Hunt

While Sisk and John Mooar were preparing to come out to our camp, a sergeant and four soldiers, with Amos Chatman, a half-breed Cheyenne Indian employed by the government as a scout, came to Adobe Walls from Camp Supply. Their mission was a mystery, and on being asked, one of the soldiers very indirectly replied that they were looking for horse thieves—a statement which was quickly resented by the hunters present, and especially by a band led by Red Leomin; and there were muttered threats. During the day the soldiers went up the river a few miles to look for trails, and did not come back until the next morning. Amos, the scout, stayed and had a secret conference with Myers, Rath and Hanrahan.

The hunters became more suspicious, and by night were drinking considerably and itching for mischief, because they believed that Amos was an Indian spy. They finally confided to Hanrahan that they were going to hang Amos. Hanrahan began to scheme to save him, knowing he had brought news of grave importance as a government spy, and yet news of such a character that he dared not divulge it to save the breed.

Dark came at last, and Amos came to the back door of the saloon. Hanrahan took him aside and showed him John Mooar's wagon back of Rath's store, and told him to slip out to the wagon and get into bed with John, as no one would think of looking for him there. Amos went into the saloon, got a drink, loudly announced he was going over to Myers's, and went boldly out at the front door. Once under cover of the darkness, he fled to John Mooar's wagon, and explained the necessity of sanctuary, which was immediately granted. He crept in and pulled the tarp over his head.

To cover the scout's getaway, the saloon keeper called all hands to the bar for a drink. Later they hunted for Amos in vain; and when all quieted down, he slipped away; but while in the wagon, he told John what his mission was. Lee, Reynolds, post sutler at Camp Supply, were friends of R. M. Wright, post sutler at Fort Dodge, and Wright was a partner of Charles Rath. Learning the day and the hour that the Indians had planned to attack Adobe Walls and massacre the traders, they had sent Amos to warn the post of impending disaster. The soldiers had been sent as escort to Amos at the request of Lee and Reynolds.

A Close Call.
Amos told John we would have plenty of time to warn me and my companions, and the next morning John took three more teams and two extra men and left for our camp on Red River. With Sisk as pilot, they made forced marches, arriving at our camp. John took me aside and told me of the impending Indian invasion. He brought news also that the buffaloes had got as far north as the Canadian River, so we lost no time loading up and starting to Adobe Walls. All were anxious to kill buffaloes near the stores.

The second day of the homeward journey, it began raining. Noon camp was made near the head of Red Deer, on a flat between two lakes. The horses and mules were grazing about half the number in each lake. The perspective was good, and many buffaloes were in sight. Suddenly a large band of Indians showed up about a mile back, following our trail. A rush was made to get the horses and mules to the wagons. I ran toward the stock on the left. The Indians came on like soldiers, one in the right column blowing a bugle.

Philip Sisk and Lem Wilson were just ahead of me. They had left their rifles uncleaned since the last buffalo kill, and were unarmed. It became evident that something had to be done to halt the oncoming attack, or we should be cut off from our teams.

As he ran, Wilson looked back at me and yelled: "Is your gun ready, Mooar?"
"Yes," I replied, "and I have forty rounds of ammunition."
"Well, for God's sake, hold 'em back, and Sisk and I will get the stock."

The situation was desperate, and seemed all but hopeless. I dropped on one knee and, taking aim, sent a big .50 ball screaming across the front of the charging column. Instantly the horses were jerked about by the launch, and the Indians stopped in a confused huddle. They didn't like my music. Seeing my advantage, I sent bullet after bullet whistling and skittering along each one little closer to the Indians than the last. They soon became more disconcerted and fell back. A precious time was gained. A glance showed me my companions still running toward the horses and along with them the horses. I continued the bombardment until the boys got the teams hitched, and we drove furiously on to Red Deer Creek, a mile away, and crossed it near its head at upper Cottonwood River.

As we were crossing, a fearful bolt of lightning split a black cloud above us, and a crash of thunder seemed to jar the world. Hardly had we gained the opposite bank when a cloudburst sent a wall of water roaring down the channel and out into the valley, flooding the crossing 20 feet deep and completely cutting the Indians off from immediate pursuit.

Sisk and Wilson never allowed their rifle barrels to become foul again on that trip.

Racing For Life.
We now cut through by the most direct route to the Adobe Walls, arriving on the Canadian River, arriving about the middle of the afternoon of the third day. Philip Sisk and John swam the river and engaged Myers's ox teams to get the wagons across the river. While they were going the Indians arrived and charged our camp, riding between the wagons and over the fire, knocking over the coffee pots and skillets. A "lively time" was had by all.

Next morning, John Webb, wagon master, came across with 48 yokes of oxen, two big Murphy seven-foot wheel wagons, and eight drivers. The river was about 700 yards wide and from three to seven feet deep, being at flood from melting snow in the Rockies. The wagons had large frames like hay frames, with 24 yokes of oxen to each wagon. The hides were loaded and lashed down, and the hunters' smaller wagons were trailed. The horses and mules were driven in and swam the river, the oxen being more reliable in deep swift water with the load. The teams were now strung along beside the river, with the pointers' feet at the edge of the water. Then five or six men approached the leaders, and with a concerted shove pushed them into the river. The water was down to the line, they pushed the string oxen in.

Several horsemen rode into the water below the wagons to keep the teams headed across the river, and as the oxen's feet struck bottom, they began pulling with all their might, dragging the swimming oxen and wagons along until the passage was made. The long string of oxen made it possible for some of them to be wading and pulling all the time, while men on both sides of the river kept guard, and men in the river urged on the awkward cavalcade. No Indians appeared during this performance.

Camp was made on the north side of the river, while Webb took the ox teams up to the stockade for the night. Supper was in preparation, when a whooping band of redskins dashed through the camp, shooting right and left. They got a warm reception, the roar of our big rifles mingling with the popping of the Indians' lighter arms and the savage yells of both reds and whites. No hunters were hurt, and the invaders carried away their own dead and wounded.

That day Joe Plummer came in and reported his two men, Dave Dudley and Tommie Wallace, killed by the Indians at the mouth of Red Deer Creek. Anderson Moore came in and reported two men killed south of the river. They were Antelope Jack and Blue Billie. Both camps had been destroyed.

Next day Myers began loading his wagons with hides to be hauled to Dodge City. John and I loaded our extra rifles to Myers's outfit, so his drivers could all be armed. I asked Myers and Rath if they were going to stay, and they said they were. However, I did not believe their assertion, as I knew that they had kept information of the prospective Indian attack on Adobe Walls post from the hunters, and that only Myers, Rath, Hanrahan, John and I, and possibly one or two others, knew of the report the scout had brought, or what his mission was. This was done to keep the hunters and helpers around the post for protection.

The last trek from Adobe Walls to Dodge was begun the next morning. Eight miles out the freighters met Dirty Face Jones, alone, with six mules loaded with powder, lead and guns. He had driven 90 miles without sleeping himself or unharmed his mules. He drove on to the post, discharged his load, slept five hours, put on a half load of hides, and overtook the big caravan the next day at Palo Duro Creek. I was driving the rear team of the long train.

Jones said, "I can now drive as slow as need be."
Prophecies.
The next day we met Ike Shadler with four six-yoke teams at Rifle Pits on the Palo Duro.

John Webb said, "Ike, you hurry back, or the Indians will get your scalp."
On the Bear, the next morning, Myers and Rath came into camp on good horses. They stayed with the train one day and made a night ride into Dodge. Myers left Fred Leonard in charge of his store and Rath left James Langton in charge of his.

At Sharp's Creek the wagon train met a hunter named Burr, with four men. Billie Tyler, one of the four, told of a fight they had with the Indians the day before on the Cimarron, and Burr remarked, "Yes, and you are going to fall early in this war."
The prophecies of Webb and Burr were soon fulfilled. Shadler and Tyler were both killed at Adobe Walls, June 28, and this was the last that Amos had given for the attack.

Arriving in Dodge, June 29, the first news the caravan heard was that Warren, to whom Dirty Face Jones had made his fatalistic statement, that if he was "born to be killed by the Indians, he would be killed by Indians if he went to New York," had been slain and scalped by Indians just on the outskirts of Dodge.

Battle of Adobe Walls.
As I was not a participant in the battle of Adobe Walls, I will not give a detailed account of it. In the "Life of Billy Dixon," by his wife, Mrs. Olive Dixon, there appears the best account of this fight I have ever seen. As a cool and dispassionate participant, Dixon seemed to see the whole fight, and was able to give a true and coherent account of it. His story agrees with the best accounts I got from the lips of other survivors.

The battle may be called the "Alamo of the Panhandle," with this difference—that of the 23 men and one woman who defended the post, only four were slain, and a fifth lost his life as the result of the accidental discharge of his own rifle some days after the fight; while the historic Texas Alamo had no survivor among the defenders.

The odds against the defenders of Adobe Walls was overwhelming. The Indians' numbers have been variously estimated at from 700 to 1,000, but Chief Whirlwind of the Cheyennes told me, when I saw him some years after the battle, that there were more.

Myers's store, with Leonard in charge, had 11 men; Hanrahan's saloon had nine men; Rath's store, with Langton in charge, had eight men and the one woman referred to, Mrs. Olds. All testified that she was as brave and efficient in the battle as any of the men.

The Indians fought under the famous Comanche Chief Quannah Parker. Quannah's mother, Cynthia Ann Parker, was a white woman who had been kidnapped in infancy by the Indians and grew up as the brave Comanche Chief Nocona, who later was killed in battle by Sul Ross and his Texas rangers, while Quannah was still a very young brave.

In all former accounts of the battle, much has been made of the providential cracking of the ridgepole in Hanrahan's saloon. The real cause for the night alarm was kept a secret by a group of men, including myself, who knew the truth. Under a solemn oath, we agreed to keep this secret until there should be but one survivor. He was then to be released from his oath. I am that last survivor, and will give the facts.

Rath, Myers and Hanrahan knew the day and hour of the Indian attack, thanks to the information of Amos, the scout, but they kept the information to themselves, knowing that if the hunters should learn the truth, they would refuse to Dodge City and leave Adobe Walls post to be destroyed. The matter was kept secret after the fight because of the fears of Rath and Myers and a few close friends that the buffalo hunters might bitterly resent not having been warned, and take reprisals.

Hanrahan, brave Irishman, stayed at the post and bore his part in the fight. It is possible that he told gallant Billy Dixon; but if so, Dixon, though no party to the deception, gamely stayed, and is the outstanding hero of the battle. If he knew it, as I think he did, he kept his oath and died with his lips sealed.

No Ridgepole Cracked.
The noise was a pistol shot, fired as a signal agreed upon between Hanrahan and someone else.
At the sound Hanrahan jumped up, shouting: "Clear out! The ridge pole is breaking!"
It was about 2:00 o'clock in the morning. The alarm quickly spread. A slender little prop found conveniently cut at the woodpile exactly fitted under the ridgepole. The prop was utterly inadequate. The ridgepole was two and one-half feet in diameter, and the prop was but eight inches. But in the ensuing excitement it answered the purpose in carrying out the deception.

Dixon says in his book: "We never could find a single thing wrong with the log."
All hands being aroused, they gathered at the bar, took a few drinks, and most of them decided to remain awake. Consequently at 4:00 o'clock they were up, and the surprise attack, so carefully planned by the Indians, met with a counter surprise.

For all that, the Indians had planned well. Most of the hunters were supposed to be south of the river, and ordinarily but eight or 10 people would have been at the post; and, taken unawares, they would have fallen an easy prey to the warriors.

The attack came at daybreak. Out of the fading shadows of the night, shattering the air with blood-curdling yells, the Indians rushed upon the post, catching the Shadler Brothers, and killing and scalping them, in their wagon, and nearly catching Billy Dixon and Billy Ogg, who were outside the post trying to round up the horses.

All the hunters agreed that the Indians charged desperately and showed great daring. They surrounded the buildings and in some instances dismounted and tried to break in the doors. At Myers's store they even shot through the porches into the store. Those inside hastily made new porches through the fresh chinking, which was not yet seasoned. There was no chinking on the corral walls, and the Indians killed all the stock in the enclosure as well as on the outside. The Indians had many horses killed under them in the fight, which lasted most of the day. Billy Tyler was killed in Myers's store, at the door to the corral, during the early part of the battle.

There was a mysterious bueler, who was said to be a negro deserter from the United States army. He had inspired the great confidence among the Indians. He was killed as he was leaving the Shadler wagon with all the groceries he could carry. The Indians showed great bravery in dragging their dead and wounded in up there with the place and show of those that lay closest to the building.

Next day several hunters came in with hides, and men went out at night on horseback to spread the news of the attack among the camps, until all the hunters came in to the post.

The Indians had so many to care for, with their chief wounded, their medicine man and bugler dead, and other heavy losses, that they never molested the hunters who came in later.

Leonard, Langton and Hanrahan were very anxious to get news of the fight to Dodge, as it was evident there would be no more buffalo hunting for a long time. Henry Leas was the bearer of the tidings. Leaving on a dark night, he slipped away leading his horse at the end of a 40-foot lasso, avoiding the road, and going south to near the river. There he mounted and rode up river several miles, finally turning north and traveling without mishap to Dodge.

It was some time before a relief party was organized, and the men at Adobe Walls grew impatient, and began leaving in parties strong enough to feel safe. Finally, in August, a large train of teams was sent to bring to Dodge the remaining hides and supplies. All hides south of the river were lost, and Adobe Walls post abandoned; and the Indians later razed the place. They even tore up the foundation and all of a high order. Chief Whirlwind's account of what happened to Miles's expedition occurs in this chronicle.

Anderson Believes Snyder Pair Should Make Austin Points

Says Presy (Sport) Anderson in the Tuesday morning Abilene News: Although no great damage was done to the records, it is doubted that there was ever a stronger field in district No. 8 than that which gathered here Saturday for the annual track meet. It is predicted that the district No. 8 boys will win a lot of points at the state meet this year.

Outstanding candidates from this section will be Cecil Reid of Big Spring in the miles; the Abilene mile relay team; A. P. Porter of Nolan and Osborne Little of Putnam in the high jump; Bedford McClinton of Snyder in the low hurdles; Willard Moser of Abilene in the 440. Any member of the foregoing group is likely to come in for a first place at Austin.

As long as the Dallas boy who set a new record of 1:56.3 last season is in the running, it is too much to predict a West Texas victory in the 880, but Herman Westbrook of Old Glory and Presaire of Snyder should be up there with the place and show fliers. The pole vaulters were better than average here, and while none is due to win at Austin, any of the following may get a point or so: Archison of Baird, May of Hobbs, Melton of Baird, Ashley of Dunn. The first three named went past 11 feet Saturday; last year Ashley won the district with a record of 11 feet five inches.

This family's bill of $7.06 for a month's natural gas service lists 9,600 cubic feet, used from March 3 to April 3, which included considerable heating weather. If these purchases (for family of four) for cooking, house heating and water heating could be itemized, this is about the way they would look:

- $1.20 to cook 72 meals (had guests five times, with extra good dinners).
- .26 extra bakings (cakes, cookies and gingerbread).
- .30 for bathroom heater for average of two hours per day.
- 1.25 hot water for 75 dish washings, for laundry, shampoos and incidentals.
- 3.53 for three room heaters (running living room heater too high on several occasions, keeping room at 76 degrees).
- .02 hot water for 60 baths.
- .11 high flames (unnecessary) on range burners.
- .09 small leak in dining room heater connection. (Gas man discovered that the wall cock was a cheap lightweight one, the kind that almost always does leak.)

Jesus As a Churchman of His Day

By Rev. Sam H. Young, Pastor
First Methodist Church

The most interesting character of all ages is Jesus of Nazareth. In Him the teacher finds his ideal methods of teachings; He is the author of the finest and simplest system of ethics; In Him and through Him life and immortality are brought to light; His benevolent deeds transcend all others of any age. Jesus, the outstanding character of the ages, never ceases to arouse interest in sincere minds.

May we for a little while think of him as the son of man, forgetting for the moment His divinity, and think of Him as a churchman of His day. What was His connection with and attitude towards the church of His day? We learn that in keeping with prophecy held sacred by Himself and by the church folk of His day He was born into the church; that is His connection with and part of the church of His day came to Him just as it came to every other member of the group. Herod, hearing of His birth, inquired of the chief priests and scribes where He should be born and they immediately turned to the prophet Micah. Thus it is written by the prophet: "In Bethelhem of Judea."

The church leaders of His day recognized the authority of the prophets on the birth of Jesus and also said that He should be a leader in His church. "A priest forever after the order of Melchizedek." The outstanding characters in the early church history were His direct ancestors. So I think there is no question as to His being a church member from His youth up.

Coming into His activities, we find Him teaching in the synagogue. Paul spoke of Him as a priest.

His church loyalty is acclaimed by His miracles. In Matt. 8-2 is a record of His cleansing a leper. He said: "Tell no man, but go and show thyself to the priest and offer thy gift that Moses commanded for a testimony unto Him." Never was there a controversy between Jesus and His church—it was only against corrupt leaders in high places that He criticized.

Paul says of Jesus: "He loved His church and gave Himself a ransom for it." He never came to destroy the church but to bless it—ever ready to make His contribution that His church might be presented a glorious church without spot or wrinkle. Jesus was the last man of His day to stand on the street corners and belittle the church. He never uttered a word nor set motion an influence to harm the church. He sought to make it better, stronger and more beautiful in life as a bride adorned to meet her husband.

Rather than seek to destroy the church—Church building was His high concern, as indicated by His words addressed to Simon Peter: "Thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build my church." Whatever interpretation may be put on these words, it is plain that Jesus was interested in church building. He was never found in the role of a free lance, or an independent. He was concerned in building up the church. Jesus was no come outer. No one can successfully array Jesus against the church of which He is the head.

Not only was His church loyalty in evidence, but He was the most progressive church man of His or any other time. It was He who introduced social service—taking the powers of the church and applying them to deeds of kindness to a suffering humanity. When His social service program became active, multitudes benefitted by it. His progressive ideas and activities brought Him in direct clash with the leaders in the church of His day, incurring their opposition; they wanted to destroy Him. Jesus stood for new undertakings. What a lesson of church loyalty the life and deeds of Jesus teaches humanity. No church man of any age was so abreast with the times, with all times, as was this churchman Jesus of Nazareth. So no one needs to go outside the church program for a reason to be loyal to Jesus. The church program offers the highest and greatest opportunities of Christ loyalty of any realm known to man.

WE FEEL BETTER

Since We Started Going to Church Again . . .

We really do. For a while we felt at loose ends on Sunday mornings, after a week of work and general worrying. We felt vaguely unhappy. We started going to church to cure this restlessness and we found that it not only cured it, but gave us something in its place which we consider invaluable. It gave us peace, faith and hope. Our church comforts us. Your church can do the same for you. Why not go there next Sunday?
