CALL MADE TO ALL MEMBERS OF TREE ARMY

Remaining Twenty Men of Scurry County Quota Asked To Report To Lubbock This Week.

The local reforestation office has issued calls to the 20 remaining young men who have been selected to compose Scurry County's part of the national tree army.

Five men out of the county's allotment of 25 have already been transferred from Lubbock to Fort Hill, Oklahoma, for training, and it is supposed that the final 20 will go to the same preparation grounds.

Joseph Kent, John Gordon, Felix Jarrar, Stanfield Cooper and James Bowen have already gone from this county.

S. H. Hamlett, local manager, reports the following schedule of departures for the remaining 20 men selected:

Tuesday, May 30, to arrive in Lubbock Wednesday morning: Adrian Banks, Albert Skiles, Dewey T. Davis, Elmer Hunter, Aubrey Kincaid of Snyder, John Starns of Hermleigh, William Farquhar of Fluvanna.

Wednesday, to arrive in Lubbock Thursday morning: Henry Weems of Fluvanna, Werner Merritt, Sam Fields, Wade Rogers and Jack Pindley of Snyder.

Saturday, to arrive in Lubbock Sunday morning: Elza Pitts, Shade McGinty, Dewey Ryan, Dodd Rains, James Barrett and Edgar Poe of Snyder, Elbert Justice of Fluvanna, Erwin Woellert of Hermleigh.

Bread Slicing Machine

The Snyder bakery, of which Ralph Mathison is proprietor, has installed a new bread slicing machine, and is now marketing sliced loaves at the same price that has been charged here for unsliced loaves—seven cents. Mr. Mathison reports good sales of the new product.

NO PIFFLE FOR THOSE GRADUATES OF 1933

AN EDITORIAL.

If you think the graduates of 1933 will stand for much piffle, you've made a poor guess. They ask a "New Deal" in social life, in business opportunities, in religious atmosphere. If they don't get it, those of us who belong to the older and the middle generations (those of us who are responsible for the depression) will be largely to blame. These high school graduates need not expect a "New Deal" from anyone, however. They may as well prepare to meet the worst that might befall them; they will then be prepared to do wonders with the best.

Save your piffle for your livestock or your one-year-old babies, graduation speakers, for these new graduates will inwardly count you naught if you don't click with a "New Deal" in platform oratory.

Parents and close friends, treat the graduates as you would treat human beings, not as you would treat superiors or the mules you work. Help them to expand, but don't use either the blacksnake or the bow of obsequence.

There you are, graduates: Advice to those who usually give you advice. May they accept it with the same grace most of you have shown.

High Standards Kept Up Despite Many Economies.

MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM WILL COME SUNDAY

District Attorney George Mahon To Be Principal Speaker For Cemetery Service.

Tribute will be paid Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock to the soldier dead who are laid to rest at Snyder Cemetery.

George Mahon, district attorney and candidate for Congress for the new 19th District, will be principal speaker for the special service arranged by the Will Layne Post of the American Legion. The program will be held at the cemetery. Warren Dodson and John E. Sentell compose the arrangement committee.

The public, especially those personally interested in the dead of the World War and previous wars, is urged to attend the tribute service.

Those who wish to give flowers for grave decoration should see or telephone Mrs. W. R. Esal, who, with Porter King, is in charge of flower distribution.

Ex-servicemen are requested to meet at the cemetery at 2:30 o'clock, a half hour before the regular service.

Following is the complete program: Invocation—O. D. Dial. Decoration of Graves—American Legion and National Guard.

Musical—High School Band, under direction of Clyde Rowe. Memorial Address—Hon. George Mahon.

Favor Feed Fire

Firemen Pan Paver Feed Fire! That might have been the headline for the blaze that attracted firemen to the east side late Tuesday evening. Slight damage to the T. E. Faver garage and the burning of about 50 bundles of feed completed the damage. Origin of the fire was unknown.

GOLFERS DROP ODESSA MATCH

"Believe it or not," the dope bucket was upset again Sunday afternoon when the Snyder Sand Bell Association golfers went down in defeat at the hands of the Odessa squad. The game was played on the Odessa course, and the final score was 16 to 24.

Representative Explains Provisions Of New State Delinquent Tax Bill

The following is a brief outline of the provisions of the delinquent tax bill which has been passed by the House and Senate as amended by J. A. Merritt of Snyder, representative in the House from Scurry County, District 118.

The bill provides that all taxes delinquent to the state, any county and other political subdivisions of the state on February 1, 1933, may be paid at any time prior to July 1, 1934, with interest and penalties which have already accrued deducted. If these taxes are paid prior to October 1, 1933, there will be added a penalty of one per cent; if they are paid between October 1, 1933, and December 31, 1933, there will be added a penalty of two per cent; if they are paid between January 1, 1934, and March 31, 1934, there will be added a penalty of four per cent; if they are paid between April 1, 1934, and June 30, 1934, there will be added a penalty of six per cent.

PLANTERS GET GOING IN WAKE OF FINE RAINS

Thousands of Acres Being Sowed to Cotton in Scurry County After Year's First Downpour.

The trail of optimism and hope blazed by the rains that fell from one end of the county to the other last week has been followed by an army of planters.

Farmers who had waited since early May for just such a downpour have been straddling cottonseed distributors from daylight until dark, and a number of the more hasty ones continued planting Sunday.

It is astonishing how much greenness has come over the county since that first general rain of the year. Buford Browning of Fluvanna, son of John Browning, is one of seven to receive a degree in animal husbandry. Catherine Clay Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cox of the Canyon community, will be one of 14 to receive a degree in chemistry.

Laf-a-Lot Members Meet In Wade Home.

Old Man Weather's stormy attitude failed to daunt members of the Laf-a-Lot Bridge Club and guests Tuesday night of last week when Miss Bonnie Miller entertained in the lovely little home of her sister, Mrs. Forest Wade.

While the wind whistled around the house and rain pattered on the roof outside, the inside of Mrs. Wade's home was bright and cozy. The night and the weather were just right for bridge play. At the close of the games Misses Janice Erwin, member, and Allene Curry, guest, received high score prizes.

Miss Miller, assisted by her mother, Mrs. R. C. Miller, served delicious ice cream and devil's food cake to the following: Miss Margaret Deakins, Ruby Lee and Janyce Erwin and Mrs. Herman Doak, members; and Misses Nell and Allene Curry, guests.

Richard Gardner of Hopewell, Virginia, and Robert Stewart of Corinth, Mississippi, who attended Randolph College, Cisco, the past term, accompanied Rodney Glasscock, also a Randolph student, home Wednesday. Richard and Robert returned to Cisco Sunday morning.

Lost 40 Pounds on Doctor's Advice

"I'm a user of Kruschen Salts as a reducing remedy and can say they are fine. Have lost more than 40 pounds in the past year. Am gradually reducing as my doctor advises." Miss Bertha Waldo, Haman, North Dakota. (October 30, 1932).

Once a day take Kruschen Salts—one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water first thing every morning. Besides losing weight, you'll gain in health and physical attractiveness—constipation, gas and acidity will cease to bother—you'll feel younger—more active—full of ambition—clear skin—sparkling eyes.

A jar that lasts four weeks costs but a trifle at any drugstore in the world—but demand and get Kruschen and if one bottle doesn't joyfully please you—money back. w-2

Miss Atha Doak and Marvin A. White Wed.

The many friends of Miss Atha Doak were surprised this week to learn of her marriage to Marvin A. White of LeBlanc, Louisiana. The wedding took place Monday evening, May 29, at Roswell, New Mexico, with the Rev. J. Atwood, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Roswell, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Doak of this city and Mr. White is the son of Mrs. J. G. White of LeBlanc, Louisiana. Mrs. White has spent most of her life in Snyder, having graduated from Snyder High School. She has attended the Sillers School of Beauty Culture in Dallas, where she received her diploma. Later she opened a shop in Snyder known as the Snyder Beauty Shop, which she now owns and operates.

Mr. White is an employee of the Western Union Telegraph Company. The couple will reside in Snyder temporarily. They were accompanied to Roswell by Mrs. Melvis Neal.

Fred Grayum and grandson, Grayum Knight, were week-end visitors in Albany. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Violet McKnight, who has been teaching in the Albany High School.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Newsom of Wrennet were guests of relatives in Snyder over the week-end. Miss Wanda Newsom, a member of the spring graduating class of Snyder High School, is their daughter.

Side Quit Hurting, Got Stronger, Well; CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. R. L. West, of Huntville, Ala., writes: "I was weak and run-down. I had a pain in my side, and I kept losing weight. I grew nervous over my condition—this was unusual for me, for I am very cheerful when I am well and don't easily get nervous. I knew I ought to take something. My aunt told me I ought to try Cardui, which I did. I began to feel better. I kept it up until I had taken three or four bottles. My side quit hurting and I was soon feeling strong and well."

Cardui is sold at drug stores here.

Miss Georgie Winston Will Be June Bride.

The engagement of Miss Georgie Winston of Snyder to Weldon Howard Hawkins of Fort Worth was announced recently at a party given in the home of Mrs. Jordan Brown at Weatherford. The wedding will take place June 3.

Miss Winston has been head of the Latin department in Weatherford High School for the past three years.

Mrs. Will Winston and Mrs. Edwin Mitchell of Weatherford entertained Thursday evening with a bridge party and miscellaneous shower at the home of the former, complimenting Miss Winston.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Taylor were visitors in Sweetwater and Abilene Sunday.

Shulls Entertain Friends with Fish Fry.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Shull entertained a few of their friends with an enjoyable fish fry Sunday evening in the Winston pasture, south of Snyder.

The party included Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Heath and son of Sweetwater, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Green, Mrs. R. E. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Stinson, Mrs. P. W. Cloud and Misses Vesta Green and Gwendolyn Gray.

Mrs. B. F. Forrester and sons of Trent are visiting with relatives in Snyder.

Mrs. and Mrs. W. W. Hill had as their guests Tuesday Mrs. W. J. Hill and son, R. Dell, of Rotan. Miss Earlene Abbott of Lubbock, a niece, is also a guest in the Hill home.

Pantry Saves Grocery Bill.

"My husband's tobacco bill was larger than our grocery bill last year," declares a member of the Port Lavaca Home Demonstration Club in Calhoun County. The family put up a pantry according to the 4-H pantry plan.

Good Work Done By Pyron H. E. Girls During Past Term

Pyron school closed last week with some very successful work being done in the home economics department. The material sent out by the Home Makers Service Department has played an important part in their accomplishments. The contests entered by the girls have stimulated interest in the class and help them to see the value of using standard materials. Contests entered the past term were dressmaking, Daisy Glass won first prize, Mildred Vernon won second, and Irene Pieper won third. Cake baking—Lulah Evelyn Willis won first, Ethel McWhirter second, and Merle Glass third. Biscuit making—Daisy Glass won first, Lillie Mae Kinney second, and Irene Pieper third. Notebook contest—Daisy Glass placed first, Neva Bourland second, and Merle Glass third. Bertha Nellie Bourland also won first prize in a national essay contest on "How My Home Economics Education Helps Me at Home." With this she also received a special honor certificate. Neva Bourland won the certificate of award for making the highest grade during the term in this department. Much could be said concerning the work done this term, but we are looking forward to better work for next term.—Reporter.

Bridgeman Returns From Western Trip

Pete Bridgeman, long-time owner and operator of the Snyder Transfer Company, returned Tuesday evening from Las Angeles, California, where he visited his wife and his daughter, Mrs. Ben Tefkin. Despite the fact that he made the trip alone, going and coming, Pete says he enjoyed it immensely during the vacation. He reports that business of all varieties is showing a decided pick-up along the west coast.

Six Million Grant For Rural Schools Made

The Texas Senate Tuesday adopted a free conference report on a bill to appropriate $6,000,000 for rural school aid during the next biennium. The House previously had accepted the report. On Monday, the Senate instructed its conferees to continue their deliberations. Senator John S. Redditt of Lufkin Tuesday afternoon moved that this action be reconsidered and the report be adopted. The compromise bill was accepted unanimously without any discussion.

The Times Creed. For the cause that needs assistance; For the wrongs that need resistance; For the future in the distance, And the good that we can do.

THE WEEKLY DOZEN.

Nine O'clock Wives. Talkative Tilly says the depression has converted many a 9:00 o'clock wife into a 6:00 o'clock cook, and many a 6:00 o'clock husband into a curbside bill-broker.

We Agree Again. We heartily agree with the columnist who says that the new rubber bathing suits point toward some snappy styles this summer. And the rubber will not all be in the bathing suits, either.

A Husband With a Job, for Instance. Pessimism Pete suggests that these sweet girl graduates who seem to think that matrimony follows diplomahood should arm themselves with something besides a sheepskin to keep the wolf from the door.

The New Bridge. That new bridge across Deep Creek certainly improves the looks of that meandering stream and its environs. Now, if those wrecked cars along the bank were covered or moved, beauty would have still another excuse for being.

Locust Trees. Locust trees are excellent examples of West Texas fortitude. You can cut them to the ground and send dry weather to sap their life blood, but they come right back in the springtime with tender, graceful shoots that provide shade and comeliness for yards and roadsides.

Veterans' Relief. Veterans' relief under the flying Roosevelt administration is taking on gratifying trappings. For instance, Mr. Roosevelt assumes that unemployed veterans who are physically able want to work, and he is providing places for them in the new reforestation army. Scurry County will probably send several workers.

When the Cows Come Home. The increasing demand for good milk cows is proof positive that the movement toward living at home, even in town, is still gaining momentum. The movement is well and good, but let us not leave the bars of sanitation down while trying to save pennies on milk. One death by typhoid would cancel a good many economy dollars.

No More Foreclosures. The United Benefit Life Insurance Company of Omaha, Nebraska, announces that it will not foreclose on any farm property during the next three years. It appears to the Times that everything is pointing toward the fairest governmental and private attitude toward the farmer that has been evident since the republic was young.

Business for Everybody. The slight slump that has been forced on local business is not discouraging, because merchants know that when Mr. Farmer is working, he is hoping, and when he is hoping, he is more than likely to come out on the long end of the horn. Those who persist in spreading a gospel of gloom and doom for the coming fall should be given a good dose of Rooseveltism.

Says Joe Danciger. From Joe Danciger, independent oil operator of Fort Worth, comes this pithy statement that fairly well represents the attitude of those opposed to production in East Texas oil fields: "It is time the oil industry put its train on the two sound steel rails of supply and demand and cease floundering in the quagmire of monopoly's farcical proration racket."

Strong on the Beer Bill. Congressman Sterling P. Strong is not strong for the beer bill; he is strong against it. He voiced the sentiments of many millions of Americans when he said in a speech before the House recently: "I am not willing to admit the criminal element of this country is more powerful than the United States government, but I do believe, with officers in power who recognize the solemnity of their oath of office wherein they swear to respect and obey the constitution and laws of our country and enforce same, all laws, including the Volstead Act, would be properly enforced."

A Hard Indictment. The seriousness of the tax evasion racket in Texas is summed up in this statement by State Comptroller George H. Sheppard: "This is every citizen's fight. These men are really tax thieves, for they collect taxes from motorists at their pumps even when they do not turn it into the state. Each year gasoline bootleggers have been robbing us of over $1,000,000 in public school money, $1,000,000 in money to pay off county bonds, and $2,000,000 in road money, for that is the way the gas tax is apportioned. In the same way, cigarette bootleggers have been stealing $1,000,000 yearly in school money."

What About a Trades Day?

Snyder has struggled along during the past two or three years without any special effort to make herself attractive to buyers in surrounding communities. Some people trade here for the sake of convenience. Others come because it is almost like home to them. Extra service, good prices, personal salesmanship in Snyder stores are heavy factors, of course. We must blushing confess that Times advertisements bring many people to our city.

Yet, in spite of all these more or less regular factors that bring people into Snyder to trade, visit and swap yards, a number of residents of border communities choose to do most of their buying in Colorado, Roscoe, Lorraine, Post, Lamesa, Big Spring. Why don't they come to Snyder, all things being equal?

The unpleasant truth is that Snyder has not gone out after their business and their friendship as some other trading points have done. There is no finer group of merchants under the sun than one finds right here in Snyder. Although they are not always as aggressive as they might be, they purchase service, fair prices, complete stocks and merchandise as new as one will find anywhere outside the state's distributing points.

Snyder needs to get all her heads together for a special trades day, or some such occasion, at least once a month, that will convince the doubters and the border residents that she is wide-awake, friendly and ready to do business that will be beneficial both to merchant and to customer.

This is an ideal time to start such a series of special days. Let's talk it over, and then put the "New Deal" idea into selling our neighbors on Snyder, the jewel in West Texas' crown of smaller cities.

Prices on Bread. The two local bakeries are to be complimented for keeping the price of bread at seven cents during the past depressing months. Close observers know that the five and six-cent loaves in larger communities were brought on by fights between bakeries, and not because bread should be sold that cheap. Reports from Waco, Abilene and other of the larger centers indicate that the bakers are coming to their senses and are hoisting their prices to seven and eight cents.

Swat the Rooster. No small part of the lessened demand for eggs in summer arises from the fact that housewives learn anew each season to be suspicious of warm weather eggs. It dulls a woman's taste for eggs when she opens a spotted one into a skillet or cake batter or onto a saucer. And many housewives, who are too cautious to open an egg in summer anywhere except in a saucer, one at a time, are convinced that even cheap eggs are high-priced when half of them are bad.—Colorado Record.

Legislators Go Liberal. A summary article in Sunday papers cited the Legislature's attitude on prohibition, race horse gambling and prize fighting to show that the state lawmakers have gone liberal in the past two or three weeks. Liberal, indeed! Dots liberality consist in giving people the vices that would steal away dollars that should be spent for shoes, bread, meat and furniture? Yes, the legislators have gone liberal, but their liberality is aimed at the beer profiteers and the gamblers, and not at the average citizen and the women whose homes will be broken up with beer and gambling.

Probably a railroad coordinator will come, but he won't exactly be a functionary whose chief duty it is to see that every first class ticket draws a lower berth.—Exchange.

"So you advise me to go and work on a farm?" said the tramp at the back door. "Advise you?" retorted the man of the house; "I dare you!"

Plenty of folks are wondering whether, when the administration sets up a managed currency, there will be teachers to give the individual a long-needed lesson in how to manage his part of it.—Exchange.

CURRENT COMMENT

BY LEON GUINN

The latest word in modernism at Washington is a newly-formed organization by Roosevelt known as the "Brain Trust." Raymond Moley is the dean of this connecting link between ideas and the administration, for the objective is to supply a constant high-crust trickle of ideas to the president in order that officials will have graphic suggestions to facilitate office routine. It was Dr. Moley who fostered the theme of "the forgotten man." William Graham Sumner used the theme 50 years ago. Next to the president in influence, idea-sponsor Moley is a bit cynical, legalistic in problem analysis. Roosevelt, Moley, budget man Douglas and other administration officials are cigarette fans, a sure index they are at a higher tension, reach decisions quicker than previous ship of state deckhands.

In Germany Dictator Hitler dreams of a revived "nationalism," preaches the wine dampened phrase called "security." Recently duelling has been sanctioned in Berlin, forbidden since 1927. Which seems to be in keeping with surgical practice to face lift German industries. Since Franklin D. Roosevelt issued his wonderful address via cable to 54 nations on the eve of Hitler's talk, a noticeable change has caused international trade to perk up. Japan is in hot water because world opinion is adverse to its China aggression policy. Japanese officials have a weakness for beautiful blondes with evening things on, which explains the degenerate state of mental activity. The office bulletin at Tokyo says only nice looking girls of good families need apply for positions as stenographers and secretaries in the Jap regime.

The Texas Federation of Women's Clubs is urging our Austin senators to protect Texas wild flowers, yet the solons have reached the temple of sophistication wherein they are unable to draw the line of demarcation between flowers of public property and flowers of a more generous supply. For instance, the wild flowers Providence so placed to harmonize with the landscape become public property when the supply diminishes to the point of requiring state protection to insure a constant reseeded cycle. The Texas bluebonnet for one needs protective measures to keep tourists from other states becoming small-shots vandals in their desire to captivate for a few hours the dewy fragrance of wild flowers, an elixir to jaded nerves. We are already in the water of new bills, so we might as well swim our lives over our heads, but because the humblest soul loves beauty we pray Texas wild flowers will continue to line the banks of leisure's streams, the only earthly paradise we mortals really enjoy.

THE OTHER MAN

by RUBY M. AYLES © DORLING KINDERSLEY BOOK CO.

Thirteenth Instalment. SYNOPSIS—Pauline, sentimental, trustful, sincere and loving love, becomes engaged and marries Dennis O'Hara in the belief that their blissful happiness will continue through all the years. On her wedding morning she awakens with a strange premonition that maybe love does change, a thought buried in her mind by a letter from her closest friend, Barbara, the night before. Pauline adored Barbara, who had been married, was the mother of a child which died, but now divorced and living a life which some of her friends could not understand. Between Dennis and Barbara is a seeming wall of personal dislike by both. Six months after Pauline's wedding, Barbara comes for a short stay. During this visit Barbara confesses to Pauline that there is a man she really loves, but she refuses to tell his name. Barbara decides suddenly to go home and Pauline insists Dennis drive her to the station. Irritated, Dennis drives recklessly, and they are in a crash. Barbara escapes injury but Dennis's leg is broken. As he lies in the hospital she learns who the man is that Barbara loves. It's himself. Dennis spends several weeks in the hospital. Barbara returns to stay with Pauline, but on one pretext or another fails to visit Dennis with Pauline at the hospital. Pauline plans highly for Dennis's return home. Barbara stays only one day after Dennis's return from the hospital. Much against his will Dennis finds a new attraction in Barbara, who plays the same cool and detached role as formerly. Her forthright after Barbara's return to New York, she receives a letter from Pauline that she and Dennis are coming to New York for a little vacation. Upon their arrival a round of gay entertainment gets under way—throwing Dennis and Pauline much into each other's company. Dennis is in love with Barbara. He breaks through all barriers and tells Pauline that he loves her. Pauline is called home by the illness of her mother. Dennis stays on. Barbara is happy. Both fight against love—but over-powering. Dennis declares his love and Barbara admits she loves him. Jerry, married man friend of Barbara's, finds Dennis at Barbara's flat—and goes into a jealous rage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY: But in the morning she laughed at her fears, for there was a letter from Dennis, in which for the first time she said that he missed her—and only God knew what an effort it had cost him to write these words—and asking how much longer she meant to be a deserter. "Dreams don't mean anything," Pauline told herself happily. "I must have been because we had our dinner with the same for dinner." She spent a happy day. The doctor said her mother was better, and there was a wire from her father to say he was returning, and Pauline wrote a long letter to Dennis. "It will be too wonderful, won't it?" she wrote with trembling eagerness. "I think I love you better than ever I did—if it's at all possible, darling. I often wonder how managed ever to be happy before you married me, and if anything happened that we were separated, Dennis, I should die." O'Hara's face twitched as he read her loving words, and for a moment he felt like a happy schoolboy he went downstairs and out into the street. A whole evening alone with her! Would she come now that Stornaway would not be there? Well, he would not tell her until she seemed to stop beating as he waited, and then he caught his breath in a great sigh of relief as he knew it was not she. It was Stornaway: "That you, O'Hara? I say, I'm awfully sorry, but I can't come along tonight, after all. I've been sent for to go home. Old Thompson is ill. Hope it's not leaving you in the card." "No, not at all—I've not booked anything. I'm sorry, though." "Liar!" he told himself chertly as he rang off and went to get his overcoat. "No, not at all—I've not booked anything. I'm sorry, though." "Liar!" he told himself chertly as he rang off and went to get his overcoat.

"Mrs. Stark will not keep you long, sir." She hesitated, looking at him with those quiet eyes that saw so much and betrayed so little. "Mrs. Stark has been a little upset," she added. "Upset?" "I expect Mrs. Stark will explain to you, sir." She went away, leaving Dennis to wait impatiently. When she came he saw that she was ready, dressed and wearing a gown he had once admired. He went quickly to her and took her hands. "What is it, my dear?"

He had seen Barbara every day, but she had never again allowed him to go to her flat, and that morning, looking at himself in the glass while he shaved, it seemed to Dennis that he had aged years in these few days. Pauline's letter had come by the evening post, and Dennis was dressed to go out—he was taking Barbara and Stornaway to dinner. Barbara had refused to come alone "Bring Dr. Stornaway," she had said. "Are you never coming alone with me again?" Dennis had asked, but she had not replied. He stood staring down into the fire, smoking cigarette after cigarette and trying to see beyond the immediate present. Was there to be any beyond? Barbara would not know he divorced me," she said presently. Dennis did not answer. Her face whitened, and she said almost in a whisper: "It wasn't true, Dennis, not—not what you think. But I was so tired of him as he was of me, so I let him think what he liked. I swear it's the truth." "There is no need. I always believe you."

writes of "THE MASTER EXECUTIVE"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy-burdened who will find every business trial paralleled in the experience of "The Man Nobody Knows."

On Meeting an Objection. Every business man knows the value of being able to sense an objection and meet it before it is advanced. Jesus knew that far better. He went one night to dine with a prominent Pharisee. While the dinner was in progress a certain woman of unfortunate experience crept into the room and kneeling down by Jesus began to bathe his feet with precious ointment and dry them with her hair. Jesus knew what that outburst of unselfishness meant to a burdened spirit, and accepted the tribute with gracious dignity. But all the time he was perfectly well aware of the thoughts that were passing through the self-satisfied mind of his host. "Ah," said the cynical gentleman to himself, "if he were a prophet he would have known that this woman is a sinner, and would have refused to let her touch him."

He might have been tempted to put his thought into words, but he never had a chance. Quick as a flash Jesus turned on him: "Simon, I have somewhat to say to thee." "Teacher, say on." It was a half concealed sneer. "There was a man who had two debtors," said Jesus. "One owed him five hundred shillings and the other fifty. Neither could pay and he forgave them both. Which of them, do you think, will love him most?"

Simon sensed a trap and moved cautiously. "I imagine the one who owed him the most," said he. "Right," said Jesus. "Simon, seest thou this woman?" Simon nodded. He began to wish the conversation had not started. "When I came into your house you gave me no water for my feet," Jesus continued with that extraordinary frankness which cut to the heart of things. "But she has washed my feet with her tears and dried them with her hair. You gave me no kiss, but she has not ceased to kiss my feet. You poured none of your expensive oil on my head, but she has taken her precious ointment, which she could ill afford, and anointed me."

The dining-room was silent; every eye was turned upon the Teacher; the poor woman still knelt at his feet, embarrassed that her action should have caused so much comment. "She is like the debtor who owed the five hundred shillings," he said. "Her sins which are many are forgiven, for she loved much. To whom little is forgiven the same loves little." And then with a glance of infinite tenderness: "Thy sins are forgiven," he said to her simply. It is easy to imagine that the conversation rather dragged during the remainder of the meal. Even very supercilious and self-assured gentlemen hesitated to expose themselves to the trusts of a mind which could anticipate criticisms before they were uttered, and deal with them so crisply.

Next Week: A Question Will Do.

know he divorced me," she said presently. Dennis did not answer. Her face whitened, and she said almost in a whisper: "It wasn't true, Dennis, not—not what you think. But I was so tired of him as he was of me, so I let him think what he liked. I swear it's the truth." "There is no need. I always believe you."

"Foolish Dennis!" But there were tears in her eyes—so often now there seemed to be tears in her eyes. "Well—go on," Dennis said after a moment. She sighed and leaned her chin in her hand.

"I've never seen him since—well, since then, until today. He was generous—I've always had plenty of money. And now he wants me to go back with him." Her eyes never left his face. "He says he has never cared for any woman but me, Dennis."

"And you told him you would think about it—about going back to him?" "Yes."

"Did he give you a time limit?" Dennis was white to the lips. She shook her head. "No—I promised to write to him."

She stood up suddenly beside him, tall and beautiful and so utterly desirable, that for a moment Dennis O'Hara closed his eyes. Then she said: "What's the use of hoping for anything—for us, I mean? You know it's no use; you know you can't do—what you think you can."

"You mean—tell Pauline?" "Yes."

He clenched his hands into fists. "Barbara—these must be some other way."

"Yes." She smiled tremulously. "You might come here secretly—as my lover—and we should be happy for the little time we could be together and unhappy for the great while when we had to be apart. And some day it would be found out, and then—"

"I should only mind for your sake." She shook her head sadly. "It wouldn't hurt me—it wouldn't be anything worse than the things people say about me already. But you, Dennis—it would break your heart."

"Am I such a weakling?" "No, if you were it would not matter."

He paced up and down the room restlessly. "If I were an honest man I should go to Pauline and tell her the truth. It would not hurt her as much as it will if some day she finds out that I love you and that I think of you every moment and want you."

"It's because you are an honest man that you can't tell her," Barbara said, and then, as he did not answer, she took up her cloak and held it to him.

"Let us go, Dennis—Mr. Stornaway will be waiting."

He took the cloak from her, but as he laid it over her shoulders he suddenly enfolding her with his arms, pressing her head back against his breast. "Barbara—kiss me—"

Her lips moved to say no, but Dennis silenced the word with his arm, and so for a long time they stood while Barbara gave herself up wholly to the intoxication of the moment.

"Just this once—for the last time," she told herself. "Just this once—for the very last time."

And when at last he released her she was white and shaken and could not meet his eyes, though she tried to laugh.

"Nobody has ever kissed me like that, Dennis," she said faintly. "And was it—happiness?" he asked.

"It was—heaven," she whispered. He told her about Stornaway as they drove away together, her cheek against his shoulder, and her hand in his. "I didn't tell you before. I thought you would refuse to come."

"I ought to refuse now," she sighed. She raised her head and looked at him. "Dennis, this isn't really me at all. I used to be so unhappy—and now, I feel young and warm and without a care in the world." But Dennis O'Hara's eyes were sad as he looked away from her, and the words of Pauline's letter came back to him like a sad reproach—"If anything happened that we were separated, I should die."

They spent a happy evening. "We'll forget everything but that we are together," Barbara said. So they dined and danced and talked of things that were farthest from their hearts. It was as they were leaving that they came face to face with Jerry Barnett.

He had obviously been drinking, and Barbara shivered and drew closer to Dennis. "He pretended not to see us," she whispered. "I think he is a little jealous of you."

"What are you going to help end the depression?" "Well, I get my prescriptions from the doctor because he has to live, and I buy my medicine from the druggist because he has to live; then I take it home and pour it down the sink because I have to live."

"You say that's your mother-in-law? I didn't know you were married."

"Im not. Mother just passed her bar exams."

Alexander had just passed the examination at the army recruiting station. He said to the examiner: "Boss, Ah'd like to ask one favor, now that youse goin' to put me in de army."

"And what is that?" patiently asked the examiner. "Don't put me in de cavalry, because when Ah's told to retreat, Ah don't want to be bothered wif no hoss."

The Seniors of '33

Class History

The purpose of this history is to tell you a simple story of the progress of our class from our beginning as freshmen four years ago up to the present hour.

A history is usually divided into three parts—discovery, exploration and settlement. Ours has been discovery and exploration, but no settlement has yet occurred.

The discovery of the class of 1933 was an accident which occurred four years ago early one morning in September. The teachers of the high school were strolling aimlessly through the corridors, chatting about the just-ended vacation and wondering whether there would be any startling changes in their work during the year beginning at that time. Suddenly they came upon something new and strange. They were certain they had never seen it before, although there were many familiar features about it. Just inside the front door, huddled together in embarrassment and anxiety was a group of boys and girls destined to become the senior class of 1933.

To the casual eye we may have appeared to be merely a group of ordinary boys and girls, well dressed, good looking (we thought) but badly frightened. Those teachers, though, did not accept us as a group of ordinary boys and girls. Their searching eyes singled us out one by one and treated us as distinct and widely separated individuals. They presumed that each of us had special aptitudes and talents, deficiencies and capabilities, and each of the teachers seemed to consider that he alone must discover every special ability or talent or capability possessed by each of us.

The teachers reported what they had discovered to Prof. W. N. Cory, principal of the high school, who asked that the newcomers be summoned before him and permitted to display before him such trophies or items of special interest that we possessed which might recommend us as worthy of further training for American citizenship. We brought along our certificates of graduation from grammar school and our report cards. Some of us presented our report cards with pride and others of the group would rather have not shown them at all. Nevertheless, Prof. Cory decided to accept the entire group and see what he could make out of us. He labeled us "freshmen" and sent us back to the teachers and instructed them to use every possible means to discover the exact capability and special talents of every one of us and develop those tendencies as much as possible. Here is where the period of discovery ended and the period of exploration started.

The teachers started the process of exploring our minds by assigning difficult lessons, apparently trying to find something that we could not learn. They tried most of the time to keep our minds on history, English, mathematics, general science, etc., but at times it seemed no power could prevent our minds from turning to football, basketball and social affairs. To our surprise we found the teachers not only permitting us to do these other things but they helped us at play as well as at work. Miss Effie McLeod told us that some great man had said, "As we journey through life let us live by the way," and that the high school faculty desired to teach us the proper ways to enjoy life as well as the fundamental high school courses.

Our freshman year was both interesting and illuminating. It was interesting because we were studying courses to which we had long looked forward and we were for the first time entering the great activities of school life. It was in this year that certain members of the class began to show up as leaders in certain lines of study. Mable Turner and Frances Clements took the lead of the class early in mathematical courses and have maintained that distinction throughout our high school life. In English, Alberta Sturgeon, Mary Nelle Morton and Jesse Browning have been leading the class and contending for the honor of writing the best stories. Our history classes were led by Stanley Merket and Hazel Bannister who, it is said, have never to this day forgotten a date or minute detail of any historical event about which they have ever read. In our courses in science Damon Worley, Raymond Watkins and George Ethredge have been the most prominent. Here are three of our classmates who do not believe anything which is told them unless it can be proved in a laboratory or by some scientific process. This we have learned is characteristic of true scientists. "Key" Lewis is one of the leading politicians in our class. His political leadership was manifest in our freshman year and during our sophomore and junior years he built up so strong a political machine that at the beginning of our senior year he was elected as our president.

As sophomores and juniors our classmates began to take prominent places in other activities. Letters in

Class Poem

This poem takes the words and thoughts of great masters of literature. They represent our own yearnings, longings, strivings, written long ago by men whose footsteps echo through the corridors of time. I present this arrangement of poems in appreciation of the profound influence of great men of history. Their thoughts ring clear today like "voices out of the past."

"Ye who love a nation's legends, Love the ballads of a people, Call like voices from afar off Call to us to pause and listen, Speak in tones so plain and child-like."

Scarcely can the ear distinguish Whether they are sung or spoken; Listen to this high school poem.

"Ye whose hearts are fresh and simple, Who have faith in God and nature, Who believe that in all ages Every human heart is human, That in even savage bosoms There are longings, yearnings, strivings For the good they comprehend not, That the feeble hands and hapless, Groping blindly in the darkness, Touch God's right hand in that darkness And are lifted up and strengthened; Listen to our simple story.

"Ye who love the haunts of nature, Love the sunshine of the meadow, Love the shadow of the forest, Love the wind among the branches, And the rain-shower and the snow-storm, And the rushing of great rivers Through their palisades of pine trees, And the thunder in the mountains, Whose innumerable echoes Flap like eagles in their cries; Listen to our meditations."

—Longfellow, with alterations.

"I shot an arrow into the air, It fell to earth, I know not where; For, so swiftly it flew, the sight Could not follow it in its flight.

"I breathed a song into the air, It fell to earth, I know not where; For who has sight so keen and strong That it can follow the flight of song?

"Long, long afterward, in an oak I found the arrow, still unbroken; And the song, from beginning to end, I found again in the heart of a friend."

—Longfellow.

"We are architects of Fate, Working in these walls of time; Some with massive deeds and great, Some with ornaments of rhyme.

"Nothing useless is, or low; Each thing in its place is best; And what seems but idle show Strengthens and supports the rest.

"For the structure that we raise, Time is with materials filled; Our todays and yesterdays Are the blocks with which we build."

—Longfellow.

"In the shipyard stood the master with the model of the vessel— 'Build me straight, O worthy master, Staunch and strong, a goodly vessel, That shall laugh at all disaster, And with wave and whirlwind wrestle.'"

—Longfellow.

"Some ships sail east and some sail west By the self same winds that blow, It is not the gales but the set of the sails That determines which way they go."

—Author Unknown.

"The gale that wrecked you on the sand, It helped my rowers row; The storm is my best galley hand, And drives me where I go."

—Emerson.

"Tell me not, in mournful numbers, Life is but an empty dream, For the soul is dead that slumbers, And things are not what they seem.

"Life is real. Life is earnest, And the grave is not its goal; Dust thou art, to dust returnest, Was not spoken of the soul.

"Lives of great men all remind us We can make our lives sublime, And, departing, leave behind us Footprints on the sands of time;

"Footprints, that perhaps another, Sailing o'er life's solemn main, A forlorn and shipwrecked brother, Seeing, shall take heart again.

"Let us, then, be up and doing, With a heart for any fate; Still achieving, still pursuing, Learn to labor and to wait."

—Longfellow.

(The class poem was read by Ruby Lee.)

Class Prophecy

For the sake of momentary amusement let us forget about the present and look into the dim uncertainty of the mysterious future. . . . I meet my fellow classmates at the peak of life's career 30 years from now: A great transcontinental airplane is taking off from Municipal Airport at Dallas. I am one of nearly 100 passengers on that great plane, most of whom are on the way to Washington, D. C., to attend a world's fair being held there.

From the first minute I saw our pilot he seemed to remind me of someone I had known—the likeness haunted me. Then I recognized Damon of our class in 1933. He always got what he wanted, all the way through school. When he was just a tiny chap, he went up to Mrs. Wedgeworth, the superintendent's wife, and asked to borrow her scissors. "Hain't your mother a pair of scissors?" Mrs. Wedg. worth asked. "Sure, she has," Damon replied, "but she doesn't like to have me cut 'in with them." Damon made a fine pilot.

A distinguished lady was just then entering the plane, accompanied by a maid. I asked Damon who she was and he said she was Frances Lewis, an old member of the class of '33. Then I understood why she was drawing so much attention; she had just been appointed head of the Fort Worth schools, and her attractive maid is none other than Essie Ethredge.

I had just taken my seat on the airplane when the "but" came along yelling "candy, popcorn and peanuts." The voice seemed familiar, and when I looked up I discovered that it belonged to one of the members of our class of '33—James Simpson.

When we arrived in St. Louis I noticed Damon talking to the steward and an attractive lady. The lady turned out to be Wynona Cope, but the steward would not have thought it?—George Ethredge!

We were just about to take off for Chicago when a taxi came tearing up, and here were Chuff and Theo, two boys who started in high school plays. They were on the vaudeville stage, and offered, if he would pass the hat for them on the plane, to give their skit. We refused, but told them they could practice on us if they insisted. Here is their "pat-ter, which is supposed to be a foreigner applying for citizenship: "Born?" "Yes, sir." "Where?" "Russia." "What part?" "All of me." "Why did you leave Russia?" "I couldn't bring it with me." "Your business?" "Rotten." "Where is Washington?" "He's dead." "I mean the capital of the United States?" "They loaned it to Europe."

In Chicago they were playing a post-season football game between the University of Chicago and Michigan. We decided to take in the game. Chicago had a woman coach, who had been unusually successful with a champions season. It was our old senior girl, Willie Pearl.

I interviewed her after the game, which her team won, 67 to 0. She gave us the reason for her great success that she had a white football with a picture of a beautiful girl on one side so that the players would never fumble the ball, but would hold it close in their arms. On the other side she painted the picture of Rudy Valle, whom the boys all hated, so they would make long and vicious punts.

"Who is the pretty girl's picture you are using?" I asked. Willie Pearl proudly showed me the picture of Frances Clements, who has been on the stage eyes since who was leading lady in our senior play, "The College Hero."

Our plane was delayed for some work on the motors, and the passengers decided to look over the town. I met Alberta Sturgeon and Mary Nell Morton, two girls from our old class. They were glad to meet me, for they were in the midst of a big argument. Mary Nell was insisting that the pole vault was a loving cup for throwing a rolling pin 67 feet. In the same meet her husband, Raymond, won the 100-yard dash.

We went on to Washington as fast as the plane could carry us, for I had heard of our woman president and wanted to meet her. I sent in my card at the White House, and was amazed indeed to have Hazel Bannister come rushing out and welcome me. She had been president for one term and part of another. Her popularity was great.

As we sat visiting of old days, her maid came to the door, in cap and apron, and handed me a note for orders. "You remember Margaret Deakins, don't you?" asked the first lady of the land. I recognized her then as a member of our class in 1933. The president turned to her, and she was entertaining a man in the kitchen last night, weren't you, Margaret? Dizzy hung her head and replied, "Well, that's for him to say, ma'am. I did my best."

While talking to Diz I learned that Ruby Lee is one of the leading interior decorators in Texas. Mildred Stokes is selling cigarettes and cigars in the leading cigar store in Fort Worth. She had been president of our old school, Key.

And in walked our old schoolmate, Willard Lewis, who had taken the appointment as secretary of the treasury. I told him I'd like to see the mint, where money is made, but he said he trusted no one.

I asked President Hazel about two boys she had working in the Bureau of Statistics for her—Stanley Merket and Hodge Wren. "Is Stanley steady?" "Steady!" she explained; "if he were any steadier, he'd be motionless." The other boy, Hodge, had been out riding with Alberta Mullins, and an officer had put him in jail on a charge of driving while in a state of extreme infatuation; so I didn't see them.

On entering Washington I noticed a large bealy parlor, and on entering the shop I found the proprietor to be none other than Mable Reichardt.

Another one of our classmates is a successful business man in Washington—Garth Austin is head of the Remington & Eancy Newberry Manufacturing Company, and Al-lene Rosson is one of the many employees in the factory.

By the time I reached the fair park I was getting hungry for a good, old-fashioned hamburger, so I stopped at the first hot-dog stand.

To my surprise my old classmate, Ophelia Wilkerson, was selling them, and, believe me, she surely knows how to make hamburgers.

At the fair, of course, there were a large number of comedians. One of them, seeing that I was from Texas, came over and began to talk to me. When I asked him where he was from, he said Podunk. What could be the meaning of this—could I really have found someone else from the old home town? So I asked who he was, and to my surprise, when he removed his disguise, it was none other than Eldon Birdwell. By the way, Eldon told me that he and Mable Turner were married and are very happy.

At the fair they had a large exhibition booth for football, and who do you think was giving football instructions? Old Jesse Browning himself.

While at the fair, who should I meet but Opal Crowder. She was taking notes on the fair so she might write a book on it.

Wanda Newsom, whom we all remember as especially musical, has developed, according to the boys in the Bureau of Statistics, into a marvelous player. She specializes on the victrola, and is very sharp on the needles; in fact, she always C-sharp and never would B-flat, even in high school.

The only member of our class who has not been of great value to the world since graduation is Elmer Watkins. Soon after receiving his diploma, he was sent to an insane asylum and has remained there for the past 30 years. But, of course, this is no great surprise to you, for he was weak-minded all through high school.

I have been traveling ever since my graduation from high school, and I'm now going back to the old home town for a visit.—Vernelle Bradbury.

Class Will

We, the senior class of 1933 of Snyder High School, being of sound mind and reasonably good judgment, do hereby make, execute, publish and declare this to be our last will and testament in the manner following, and do hereby, by this will, revoke any and all wills made by the members of said class heretofore, individually or collectively, including any and all promises, verbal and otherwise, which may in any manner conflict with statements contained in this document, including individual promises, promises made without due deliberation or careful consideration.

It is hereby decreed that any conflicting promises must be regarded as having not been made with due deliberation or careful consideration, and are hereby declared revoked in accordance with this last will and testament made and executed this 20th day of May, the year of our Lord 1933.

Norman York, please come forward: To the senior class of 1934 we bequeath this key of knowledge hoping you will cherish and keep it until it shall be your privilege to hand it on to the next line. We also bequeath to the senior class of 1934 our wonderful example as an ideal class; may they imitate, but never equal, us.

To Mr. Wedgeworth: We will the trees around the campus to keep as school property, to add beauty to our much-improved grounds.

To Mr. Williams: Margaret leaves this package of chewing gum so he may be forced to leave the class and scatter it along the curb in front of the school building.

To Mr. Moore: Elmer Watkins bequeaths this wooden box so he will have something to whittle on during the next conference games.

Aubrey Wiese: Eldon Birdwell gives to Aubrey this map of Snyder so that he can find his way to town without taking the "Northcutt."

Vernelle Bradbury wills the next zero weather to Mr. Williams so he will be able to wear some of his football sweaters.

To Alleen Garner we bequeath Elmer Watkins leaves his ability to eat with Margaret Miller.

To Pickas Bell: Stanley Merket gives the power to please the girls.

To York Murphy goes Ruby Lee's snap as teacher's pet.

To Alleen Garner we bequeath Alberta Sturgeon's desire to become an old maid.

To Hazel Pollard: Wanda Newsom gives her fondness for the boys.

Garth Austin bequeaths to Leslie Kelly his reputation as the high school jelly bean.

To Bob Hamilton is given Damon Worley's trick of looking innocent when caught in mischief.

Willie Pearl Glen bequeaths her smiling disposition to Vera Gay Arnold.

To Eunice Duff we bequeath George Ethredge's chance to become president of the United States.

To Frances Stinson, Evelyn Erwin, Helen Caudle and Irene Wolcott: To Frances, Mildred Stokes bequeaths the honor as president of the Lucky 13 Sports Club and leaves a blank membership; to Evelyn, Margaret bequeaths her membership in the Lucky 13 Sports Club; to Helen, Ruby Lee leaves a member-

Class Song

Tune: "Our Director."

We, the upper classmen seniors of '33, We're about to leave you—we're as sad as we can be; Just look around and see on every cheek a teardrop. We will always be true to dear old S. H. S. and the Tigers, too.

Tune: "School Days."

Seniors! Seniors! We all do misdemeanors— Talking and writing a note to a friend; But now it is time for those good days to end. We are about to go away, Hoping when we return some day, You'll look up and then remember we.

The seniors of '33!

Tune: "How Am I Doing?"

We're the seniors of '33— I guess you know that, too; We're the seniors of '33, There's nothing we won't do, For years we've gone to S. H. S. But now we're ready to confess We're the seniors of '33— And here's farewell to you!

—Wanda Newsom.

Lee's honor as champion speller. Stanley Merket bequeaths his curly hair to Corwin Peterson.

To Mr. Williams: Mable Turner bequeaths this little notebook on "How to Teach Geometry." She requests that he study this all summer so he will not have so many failures in the next graduation class.

To Dolly Trice: Mary Alice Simpson wishes to bequeath this senior ring, because Mary Alice says she will never get one any other way.

To Bonnie McCahey: Stanley Merket bequeaths this package of scarlet red rit so she can dye her hair red if she ever gets that rusty color out.

To Leslie Kelly: I wish to give these two words, marked with correct diacritics and divided properly in syllables, so he may learn to pronounce them: Radio, practically. Mable Reichardt wishes to will the idea of being different to Mary Ruth so when she is a senior A she can disagree on the place for the senior picnic.

"Clail Clark: Jesse Browning bequeaths his ability to coach junior baseball—Wanda Newsom, Margaret Deakins and Willard Lewis.

Fluvanna Play Here.

"Little Miss Jack of the Bowsery," Fluvanna play that was presented in the local school auditorium last Thursday evening, drew a good crowd of appreciative listeners. A trio of snappy vaudeville numbers, plus music by the "Red" Wedgeworth orchestra, enlivened the evening.

If news items should come in the order of their importance, then the lovely rain which we received last week would surely be first. It has been estimated that our community received between two and three inches, falling over a period of two days and nights. All the farmers are wearing broad smiles and are burning fields in order to get as early start as possible planting this week. If the weather remains pretty more than half of all the land will be planted this week.

Miss Evelyn Boone was expected to return to her home here Tuesday. She has been teaching in the Muldeshoe schools the past season. Our school will round out another successful year Friday. Both teachers, Miss Lorene Smith, principal, and Mrs. Tim Cook, primary teacher, will be with us another year.

Hobbs school is also closing this week-end. Graduation exercises will be held Thursday evening. We are proud of the fact that three of the seven graduates are from our community. Those from here are Messes Oma Bayouett and Mary Ellen Davidson and J. C. Fields.

Dorothy A. Swan, Correspondent

Since our last news letter we have had a good rain in the community—enough to plant on—for which the people are very thankful. Everybody is busy now, some working both day and night.

Mrs. Thurber Swan was honored at a shower given by Misses Natha Gillis and Anton White at the home of Mrs. White. Fourteen guests were present, to whom ice cream and angel food cake were served. A number of beautiful useful gifts were presented to Mrs. Swan.

Mrs. F. C. Witt gave the young folks a party Thursday night.

Our school closed last Friday, and a community picnic was held on the school grounds. The patrons expressed their satisfaction with the past school term by re-electing the old teachers.

A large crowd attended singing

Lone Wolf News

Glady's Mahoney, Correspondent

Our community was visited by a nice rain Wednesday last week. The rainfall amount to nearly 2 1/2 inches.

The play, "No Trespassing," was presented at the Pyron school last Thursday evening before a large crowd. The following students took part: Lucille Buckner, Fays Allen, Neva Bourland, George W. H. Borden, George with Pagan, Kenneth Painter, Troy Bowen, L. M. Reid, Odell Kenny, Vernon Lofton and D. Brook. Misses Creola Garner and Virginia Thompson directed.

E. P. Hayes of Hermleigh is visiting in the T. M. Mahoney home.

Mrs. W. C. Darden has been visiting in the home of her children, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Darden, at Inadale. Mr. and Mrs. Darden are the proud parents of twin sons, born May 14. The newcomers have been named Lowell Dean and Lloyd Jean.

Misses Cora Beth and Glady's Ruth Mahoney were visiting Monday in Sweetwater.

E. P. Hayes and E. M. Mahoney were called at Hermleigh Sunday.

School closed Friday, May 26. A program was rendered Friday night before a fine crowd. Graduating exercises were conducted, and diplomas were awarded to the following graduates by Superintendent Grady Hamrick: Lucille Buckner, Gertrude Whisenant, Faye Allen, Vernon Lofton, Dee Brook, Odell Kinney, L. M. Reid and Neal Sayles. Miss Gertrude Whisenant was salutatorian, and L. M. Reid was salutatorian. Certificates were presented to Cora Beth Mahoney, Mildred Coldever, Mary Lois Miller and Odell Miller for not being absent nor tardy during the term. Neva Bourland was awarded a certificate of honor for making the highest average in home economics. Mary Frances Young and Forest Hess were given prizes for being present the most days in the first grade and for making 100 per cent each month in health. The Pyron school term just closing is considered a great success, and our people are looking forward to continuing the work by the school.

Glen McWhirter, student from our community who has been attending school at North Champion, has just been notified that he made the second highest grade in Mitchell County for seventh grade county-wide examinations. Besides his school work, Glen has been trying for a certificate offered by the State Board of Education to the student reading the most books. He has read 25 volumes, and has made reports on 15 of them. Miss Luvenia Wilcox was his teacher.

Lubricated Gas Latest Thing In Modern Car Fuel

Lubricated gasoline, a distinct innovation in motor fuels, was announced today by the Gulf Refining Company through O. H. Carlisle, district sales manager. The new product is the result of extensive experimentation in the Gulf Refining Company laboratories, and is the answer to the problems presented by lubrication engineers by the increased demand of the motoring public for high speed motors.

The new product is being marketed under the slogan "That Good Gulf Gas—Now Lubricated" at no extra cost. Mr. Carlisle pointed out. Salient features of the new fuel, according to Mr. Carlisle, are: Correct lubrication of the valve seats and top of the valve stem, which tends to prevent drying and pitting of valves; plus lubrication to the upper part of the cylinder walls, thereby reducing wear on cylinders and pistons as well as piston rings.

Through use of lubricated gasoline it is now possible to design motors with smaller clearance between piston and cylinder wall and also to use tighter fitting oil rings. In some cases two oil rings are used, all of which reduces crank case motor oil consumption.

Ease of starting with lubricated gasoline is believed assured by the fact that when combustion chambers are flooded with lubricated gasoline in choking the motor valves are less apt to stick, while use of "That Good Gulf Gasoline—Now Lubricated" assures longer life for certain parts of the motor such as valves, guides and piston assembly.

McGahey Back From Trip To Washington

Returning Tuesday evening after a trip to the Southern Baptist Convention at Washington, D. C., Rev. Philip C. McGahey, pastor of the First Baptist Church, reported a series of enjoyable travel experiences.

The 4,000-mile jaunt, made in his own car with three preacher friends as companions, carried the pastor through 13 states and the District of Columbia.

A running account of the trip was to have been made by Bro. McGahey at prayer meeting services last night. He has also promised an article on the trip for publication in The Times.

All Texas Crops Late, According To June Report

This is a portion of the Santa Fe Railway report of June 1 covering crop conditions in Texas: Agricultural conditions over the greater portion of Texas were improved by beneficial rains during mid-May. Prior to this time lack of moisture, except in eastern sections, where the supply was over abundant, has retarded seasonable activity and plant growth to the extent that crops generally were two to four weeks late.

Cotton over much of the state is from poor to fair. South and coastal areas are beginning to suffer severely because of dry weather. Premature blooming is occurring in South Texas. In eastern and north-eastern sections excessive moisture has caused plants to become spindly, and much replanting is necessary. Plantings are complete in central sections are complete in the northern and northwestern areas. Because of the generally dry weather little activity on the part of boll weevil so far has been noticeable, although with the advent of showers this pest could become very seriously injurious.

Wheat in the northwest has improved in some localities with recent rains, but the estimated production is about half what it was last year. Lack of moisture in the range area has severely injured ranges and immediate rains are needed. There were practically no losses of cattle during the winter and at present they are in good condition, excepting that dry weather is commencing to show some ill effects on freshened range cows. A record clip of wool is now moving to strong and strengthening markets.

Pony Carries Young Students 1,500 Miles

Little Miss Maurine Butts, age seven, and her grown-up brother, Voy Lee Butts, aged eight, rode their pony more than 1,500 miles to and from school during the term just closed. Mrs. J. T. Roper, their godmother, relates.

The youngsters live in the Cuthbert community, and attend the Fairview school. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Voy Butts, live four miles from the school building. This record was made despite the fact that Maurine and Voy Lee were absent three weeks on account of measles.

Warning Against Typhoid Made By Health Official

As the summer season approaches, a word of warning is timely to prospective campers, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, summer vacationists, fishermen and others who enjoy getting out into the open, relative to the possible dangers that may be encountered from the standpoint of contracting infection under the changed environment. This is especially true of diseases that may be transmitted through food and water supplies, according to the state health officer.

Typhoid fever is a disease the amount of which is greatest, as a rule, where there is the least sanitation. It is an unnecessary and preventable disease. It is spread from person to person by water, milk, fingers, flies and food. Every case is contracted by taking into the mouth some substance contaminated with typhoid organisms, and these occur only in nature in the bowels and bladder discharges of persons sick with typhoid or from carriers, persons who have had typhoid and who after recovery still harbor the germs in their systems.

Persons planning a vacation or trip where sanitation may not be rigidly enforced or where food handlers are not regularly examined should protect themselves against this disease by being vaccinated. Three inoculations with typhoid vaccine, a week apart, are necessary to secure protection against this disease and the immunity established is good for two years. The purity of water or milk can not be judged by looking at it. Play safe and have your doctor protect you.

Two Highway No. 7 Appropriations Made

The State Highway Department announced appropriations for two portions of Highway No. 7, which traverses Scurry County, at its session Thursday of last week.

Construction of a loop in the town of Post on the new sector of the road that goes on the edge of the Garza County seat called for an appropriation of $1,430. Appropriation was also made for condemnation proceedings for right-of-way on the short strip of Highway No. 7 that runs through Lynn County.

Henry Ford Dearborn, Mich.

May 22, 1933

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users.

We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer — it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience. We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

The Biggest News Since Fresh Gas...

That Good Gulf Gasoline is now lubricated!

GULF stations from Maine to Mexico are now offering a motor fuel that surpasses everything that has gone before.

This great fuel is new in everything but name. It actually gives greater mileage and cuts repair costs—because it lubricates the upper cylinder and valves.

The new lubricating Good Gulf Gasoline contains an upper cylinder lubricant made by an exclusive Gulf process. This lubricant—correctly blended with that Good Gulf Gasoline, the famous fresh gas —makes today's greatest non-premium fuel for modern motors!

It lubricates the intake valves, prevents sticking, and forms little or no carbon!

If you want to get more and lower cost miles out of a gallon of gas, try the new Good Gulf Gasoline today. It doesn't cost a penny more.
