GINS SCORED FOR ATTEMPTING TO GET BANKHEAD LAW REPEAL

Borden County Farmer, Cotton Seed Hermleigh Plans Breeder, Says Propaganda Used to Rile Farmers.

"Scurry County gins are taking advantage of the drouth and general unrest of the farmers and by the use of poisonous propaganda inducing them to sign petitions ask-ing that the Bankhead Cotton Law be discontinued," C. N. von Roeder, Borden County farmer and cotton seed breeder, said in a letter received by The Times early this week.

"It grieves me very much that several of the Scurry County gins are taking advantage of the farmers and by the use of poisonous propaganda inducing them to sign petitions asking that the Bankhead Cotton Law be discontinued. It is an easy matter to get signers to a petition, and no doubt Secretary Wallace will look upon these petitions in that light. We hope at least they will have little weight! Gins Put to Trouble.

"It is true the gins are put to extra trouble to comply with the Bankhead Law requirements. They make less money by virtue of said law because their earnings are bas-ed upon the number of bales they Ginners and cotton buyers cannot be blamed for opposing a law designed to holding cotton reduction down to ten million bales.

"But how in the name of common sense the gins can induce a farmer to oppose such a crop control measure is too much for me. The Bankhead Law effectively controls cotton production and has meant millions—even billions—of dollars to the farmers' pocketbooks. Without the prospects of that law star-ing the farmers in the faces last spring the voluntary acreage control program or contract-signing could not have been successful. Without the Bankhead Law some few large landowners—less than ten per cent of the farmers—could have nullified all attempts at cooperative pro-ful to our gins and cotton buyers. The farmer has been honestly and materially helped by the Bankhead Law, and he had better fight for its retention. He should not bite the hand that's feeding him!

Yachting Takes a Bow.

West Texas' Own Newspaper, the Abilene Reporter-News, dedicates practically a full page of valuable space in its Sunday edition to the estimable sport of yachting. The Star-Telegram tells on its front page what the various yachting terms mean in American language. "Judge Ely's Service."

The Star-Telegram's Sunday tribute to the State Highway Department, and to Judge W. R. Ely of Abilene in particular, is so appropriate for publication in Scurry County that the entire editorial is changes to Dallas, Colorado and being reproduced.

Those who have followed Scurry County's gains from good roads, and have checked Judge Ely's activities and recommendations in this county, will say "Amen!" to the Star-Telegram's statements;

"A speaker at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon for the State Highway Department Thursday expressed the opinion that if all other departments of the Entered at the post office at Snyder, Texas, as second class mail matter, according to the Act of Congress, March, 1897.

State Government operated as efficiently the taxpayers would have no cause for criticism. A speaker at a Dallas luncheon the day previous expressed the hope that the commission, with the change of State Administration, might be kept intact. Both expressions indicate an awakened, if belated, public appreciation of the enormous task imposed upon this body and the remarkable record it has made in discharging it.

"The suggestion that the body be kept intact, we believe, will meet with the hearty approval of all citizens who will recall what highway conditions once were in this State, what they have been for the past eight years and what has been accomplished. It was but eight years ago that the Highway Department was involved in a scandal that resulted in the overturn of the administration then in power and attracted national attention. The new commission found the department $6,000,000 in debt and the State with but 4,000 miles of hard-surfaced roads. two editorials whose meat should prove tasteful to The Legislature was forced to add one cent to the gasoline tax. The new commission set about at once mapping a plan for a state highway system; building for permanency; constructing roads with a view to State rather than local service and co-ordinating the highways already built with those of its statewide plan. Throughout the years since it has adhered rigidly to its purpose; its thoughts have been statewide, not local or sectional, and its members have steadily refused to be detoured from either the originally laid out plan or the general idea of a system to serve the entire State.

"The net results of these eight years have been 14,000 miles of hard surfaced highways as against the 4,000; a reduction in the cost of maintenance from $10,000,000 to $6,000,000 annually; paved highways on which it is possible to travel from one portion of the state to another; and the spending of $250,000,000 without the slightest intimation of dishonesty, graft or favoritism. STUDY LAMPS

Designed by the Illuminating Engineering Society to do the best possible job of lighting the study table, these new and decidedly different Study Lamps are the last word in table type portable lamps. High enough to allow properly diffused light to spread to the farthest edge of the working surface of the table or desk, equipped with a new type of reflector that permits the use of a larger globe without glare and with the added feature of reflected light from the top of the lamp out into the room, these lamps are absolute necessities for close reading or study.

Furniture stores, department stores, electrical dealers and your electric company all carry these lamps in stock and have several styles and types from which to choose. Look them over at your earliest opportunity-at least before school opens if there are children in your home. You'll be amazed at the difference between these and ordinary lamps.

Henry Ford Swings To Steel Making on Independent Scale

Henry Ford is today in full swing on the final move that will give his industry an absolutely independent supply of the 36 different dealer, has just learned.

The move involves the building of two huge new steel mills, instal-laton of a vast amount of special he put in on his farm this year machinery and sufficient additions would have made him without the to his present power equipment to law. Next year we hope most of drive the new mill.

The construction will require ap- however. proximately eight months to complete and will cost between 12 and not democratic. Does not demo 13 million dollars.

When the new mills are ready, Ford can produce 3,000 cars a day wthout buying a pound of steel in the market. He will have attained a position, great manufacturers using steel are dependent on outside producers even the great European and Amerment manufacturers.

Help Snyder grow-buy at home.

Red Moore Razzed At Breckenridge as Kingfish of Snyder

"I'm the Kingfish of Snyder, to that town just what Huey Long is to Louisiana. But the town has got too small for me, so I've moved over to Ranger to show the Oil Belt the kind of football that drove my Class B opponents crazy."

Ottis M. "Red" Moore, former Tiger coach, is credited with making those statements at a gathering in Breckenrdge Priday nig that winch school officials, coaches, eipal butt of the night's razzing by cause he joined the Oil Belt coaching staff this season.

This is how the Star-Telegram tells of Red's razzberries: "Ottis 'Red' Moore, new coach of Ranger, was the chief victim at the dinner this year—Friday night. When Toastmaster Jefferson Davis (Jake) Sandefer Jr. called on Moore for a speech another gentleman (whom many did not know from Moore) jumped to his feet and started speaking as if he were the Ranger coach.

"Fellows," he said, "I am glad to give all of you this opportunity of meeting me. I am a great guy and a wizard coach. If I can ever be of any assistance to you in helping you make your teams better just call on me. I don't expect to have any trouble winning in the Oil Belt but I'll try not to get too many of you coaches fired by beating your teams so badly. I moved into the Belt because I understood you fellows are not so strict about little matters like age and past experience

Those technicalities handicapped me over at Snyder, where I developed all of those good Class B teams. In spite of that interference, however, I won champion-ships and my teams could have beaten anything in the Oil Belt.' While the impersonator spoke Moore blushed and gulped. Later he was introduced and giv en a chance to defend himself. All colors card board at Times
