A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Santa 'speaks' to all children

Santa Claus entered the main court at Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn, Mich., and let out a hearty "ho, ho, ho" for all the children who were waiting to see him.

But Joshua Jividen and Nicholas Patrias couldn't hear Santa's entrance and couldn't verbalize their Christmas lists to him. Both boys are deaf.

That didn't stop David Nordstrom Jr. — a.k.a. Santa — who uses his sign-language skills to give hearing-impaired children a voice at Christmas time.

With the help of his sister, Valerie, the Wayne State University student "hears" everything that children want to see under the tree.

"Most mainstream children have other options with Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny, but deaf kids don't have that many opportunities," Nordstrom said.

Yule display unites opposites

Opposition to a Christmas display on public property in Somerset, Mass., is bringing together some people who aren't usually on the same side of issues: Local clergy and an atheist.

A group of Catholic, Jewish and Protestant leaders have asked town officials to remove a nativity scene and menorah from the grounds of the town office building.

"It is a mishmash that offers nothing of substance to any one faith, and instead trivializes highly meaningful religious displays," the Rev. Paula Durrant told the Boston Herald.

The clergy's stance delighted a local atheist leader who had mounted a constitutional challenge to the religious displays last year.

Somerset's selectmen hope to keep the tradition and will hold a public hearing on the matter, town administrator John McAuliffe said.

Winter's first storm wallops electricity in county

By RONN SMITH
Editor

The first snowstorm of the winter Saturday left some parts of Bailey County without power for up to four days.

Duane Lloyd of Bailey County Electric Cooperative said his crews hoped to get power restored to everyone by the end of the day Tuesday. He said the crews had been working 18-hour days and had help from crews that came in from Lovington, N.M., as well as Littlefield and Floydada.

The worst-hit areas ran from Lazbuddie north and eastward, reaching north of Earth and into the Springlake, Sunnyside and Dodd areas.

The storm's toll included 150 to 200 utility poles being broken off, he said — the worst since a 1988 tornado broke off 188 poles.

He also said that from the cooperative's standpoint, this was "probably one of the worst storms since 1953," when the region received its all-time record snowfall — more than 20 inches in many areas.

In the city of Muleshoe, snowfall was comparatively light. To the west, in the northwestern part of Bailey County, measurements reached the 4- and 5-inch range at some points. To the north, reports from Hereford mentioned 10 inches.

Lloyd said that for the cooperative's equipment, "one of the biggest problems has been getting around out there in the snow and mud."

In that regard, he said, his crews have had plenty of help. "Our members have been helping, pulling us around with tractors. The county commissioners have also been real helpful," he said.

"We'd like to thank our members for their patience," he added. "We'll get everybody on as soon as we possibly can."

The combination of ice and snow on wires and the whipping winds is what spelled doom for the utility poles.

Lloyd said similar losses occurred in the Green Belt Electric Cooperative's service area around Wellington and in the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative at Hereford.

For much of the region, though, the storm's main disruption was travel-related.

An accident involving up to 10 vehicles was reported in front of the tourist information center just west of Texico on U.S. 60-70-84.

New Mexico 209 (the Grady highway) and New Mexico 523 (East 21st Street) were closed in the Clovis area.

Just about all roads in the Hereford area — including U.S.

A county blade scrapes foot-deep snow off a 1-mile section of County Road 1018 where bare fields allowed snow to drift.

60 — were closed, and the closing of Interstate 40 west of Amarillo resulted in extremely heavy truck traffic through Farwell and Clovis.

West of Clovis, U.S. 60 also ended up closed between Fort Sumner and Vaughn, N.M.

Highways leading out of Muleshoe to the northwest, southeast and east all became treacherous Saturday.

Cold little choo-choo

The Muleshoe Express from Muleplex Productions plies its way along last Saturday night's Christmas parade route despite cold temperatures and snowfall earlier in the day. Winner of the $300 first prize in the parade was the Jennyslippers' interpretation of the theme, "Christmases Past, Present and Future," using aliens on the float. Winner of second place (and $150) was Do All Family Enterprises and in third came Arthur and Anna Rodríguez and their antique car pulling a lighted sleigh. The parade went ahead as scheduled despite cancellation of the scheduled open house at the Muleshoe Heritage Center.

15 Mules take 18 all-district spots

By RONN SMITH
Editor

The 1999 District 2-3A all-district football selections have a decidedly "Mulish" look, as Muleshoe filled more positions on the list than any other school — 18 slots to Friona's 17.

The same two schools split the most valuable player honors, with Muleshoe's Mitch Mason winning on the defensive side and Friona's Noel Grajeda taking offensive honors.

Coach David Wood expressed understandable pride in his players, who made it to the second round of the playoffs before bowing to Lamesa last month.

"All-district selections are a great honor, and to have so many on it speaks well of the kids and the program. To have been where Muleshoe has come from makes it even better," he said. "The way they do it with pride and dignity and sportsmanship — that's what it's all about."

As for Mason, Wood rattled off a list of statistics that makes it obvious why Mason would be a contender for MVP:

115 tackles ("he led the team in tackles"), two interceptions and two fumble recoveries, on top of 23 catches for 365 yards and four touchdowns, earning him a wide-receiver spot on the offensive side.

"He's just been a well-rounded athlete for us," Wood said. "He knew the game and was a big leader for us. He has a knack for the football, and he's in on a lot of plays."

Wood's observations about other first-team offensive selections include:

- James Barrett, senior quarterback — 70 pass completions on 154 attempts for 1,094 yards and 14 touchdowns; also added 89 rushing yards and two rushing touchdowns.

"At the beginning of the year, we didn't know who was going to be the

Y2K update:

Traffic signals should be fine

A coalition of Texas agencies known as Readiness 2000 has provided the city of Muleshoe with pertinent information about many of the issues that concern citizens as the new year approaches.

The Journal will be printing some of the material until Jan. 1

More information on any of these issues is available by calling 272-4528.

• No. 2 — Traffic signals should continue to function.

Motorists should drive with care throughout the holiday season but can rest assured that traffic signals should continue to function.

The Texas Department of Transportation does not expect Y2K problems with traffic signals but does say motorists should always be careful when entering an intersection.

The department has been working since early 1998 to upgrade and test equipment on the nearly 6,800 traffic signals on the state highway system.

As long as power is available, traffic signals should handle the Jan. 1 date change without a problem.

If the power goes out, motorists will need to use caution and watch out for other drivers.

People should be aware that causes other than Y2K problems sometimes could affect traffic signals. This can include severe weather or traffic accidents.

Motorists always should take extra care at an intersection with a traffic signal that is not working, and they should be prepared to give other drivers the right-of-way if necessary, according to the department.

Open house rescheduled for Saturday

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

The Muleshoe Heritage Foundation's "Old-Fashioned Christmas on the Plains" open house at the Heritage Center was postponed because of last Saturday's snow and cold winds.

Jean Allison, a spokeswoman for the foundation, said the event will be held this Saturday regardless of whether the elements cooperate or not.

The schedule will be basically the same as what was planned for last weekend, she said, except that the awards in the art contest for Dillman Elementary School second-graders will be presented at 7 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. and the high school band will be unable to play because of a prior commitment.

Added will be entertainment by members of the Camilo Espinoza family, who will sing hymns and western music.

The art contest was a project of the foundation and McDonald's.

quarterback, and he stepped up and made it apparent he was the man for the job. He never relinquished that position. He was especially outstanding in the Perryton and Lamesa games.

"He was the first-team quarterback in a district with a lot of good quarterbacks."

• Danny Ramirez, junior running back — 100 carries, 694 yards, nine touchdowns. "He was our fireplug for the offense. Any time he touched the ball, something great could happen. He could do remarkable things with the football."

He also pointed out that Ramirez only played running back for six games — the last six of the season.

• Matt Conklin, senior offensive lineman — "The cornerstone of our offensive line, he was a returning all-district pick from 1998. He helped the younger, more inexperienced players to understand the game."

• Stephen Woodard, junior offensive lineman — "He played on the same side of the line as Conklin. He's a big kid, and we didn't know where he was going to play. He went both ways. He just decided he was going to be a great player."

• Ryan Hodge, senior kicker — "He was outstanding all year, and had been our kicker last year after moving up from the JV late in his sophomore season."

"The short kicks that we needed, he could drop right in there. This year he also had a 43-yard field goal, which indicates some distance. He made 37 of 41 extra points."

Of the first-team defensive selections, Wood had this to say:

• Roger Whipple, senior defensive end — "He was a two-year starter and anchored the weak-side end. His athletic ability kept people from running his end too much. We called him the Whipple-izer."

• Jeff Shelburne, junior defensive lineman — "He's already had two outstanding years here as a sophomore and junior. He led the defense in tackles (105) — and that says a lot for a down-lineman."

• Darrell Lewis, junior linebacker — "He was probably our most 'fanatical' tackler, with 103 tackles on the year. He caused five fumbles and recovered three of them. He also had four sacks."

Lewis was also a second-team offensive running back. On that side, Wood said, he was "very quick-footed" and had 532 yards on 72 carries, with four touchdowns.

• Jeff Bruns, senior defensive back and punter — "He turned out to be one of our biggest surprises of the year. He was probably the strongest kid on the team for his weight. It helps to have a good athlete back there catching the ball. We all know that punts can be a problem."

• Judd Glover, senior defensive back — "Another big leader spiritually, he was sure able to deliver those big hits."

Moving along to other second-team offensive selections, Wood continued:

• Brandon Broyles, junior wide receiver — "He's mainly a tight end, but he was able to make the second team as a wide receiver. He was probably the kid that came the furthest on the team as far as weights."

• Rhett Green, senior offensive lineman — "The vocal leader of the team, he was the one who stood up before games and made speeches that got other people ready to play."

And of second-team defensive players, Wood said:

• Bradley Thomason, sophomore defensive lineman — "A big, young kid and definitely a standout in the making."

• Clint Black, senior defensive back — "As the free safety, he did a great job of reading other players."

Sometimes there's a gap between marketing and 'real life'

By RONN SMITH
Editor

The column about genetic engineering producing blue roses and carnations by taking the blue gene out of petunias and putting it in other flowers produced a letter from a Clovis reader.

Bill Gaedke related the story of his grandfather, Nicholas Zweifel (apparently a plant breeder of some note), marketing a "blue carnation" early in the 20th century.

He has quite a bit of information about his grandfather, and I don't doubt that the blue carnation was being marketed.

Nurseries have been marketing "blue roses" for 30 years or more, but they are not blue in the sense that you and I would instantly recognize them as blue. Nobody wants to try to sell a rose called "not quite blue, but the closest to blue that we can get."

There's still the little fact, though, that science has never found blue in either roses or the carnation family. This doesn't take away from the fact that Zweifel apparently was several decades ahead of everybody else in producing a unique carnation that could be marketed as blue.

The blue of roses tends to be sort of violet (if it's a dark shade) or lavender (if it's light-colored). The lightest of all these are marketed as "gray," notably the well-known Sterling Silver rose. On close examination, though, it still looks more like a pale lavender than outright gray.

So hats off to Nicholas Zweifel of Milwaukee, who obviously was a man of considerable accomplishment in plant breeding. He might even be a good subject for a future column, since he has descendants in the local area.

According to scientists, though, it will be up to the genetic engineers to put "true blue" in blue carnations.

And they're going to put a lot of other things into a lot of things, apparently.

The December-January issue of Gardens Illustrated offers a couple of further hints along that line.

An article in the magazine states that the trumpet-flowered snapdragons that are now featured in seed catalogs are, in fact, genetically altered.

These are perfectly attractive plants, although I have to agree with the magazine writer that maybe the world didn't absolutely need snapdragons that don't "snap." I'm referring to the way children used to pick snapdragon flowers and make the "dragon mouth" snap open and closed. I don't imagine today's kids would even know what that's about.

Anyway, these modified flowers are apparently the result of a "symmetry gene" known as Lcyc, and no doubt we'll soon see its results in all kinds of flowers.

Way more bizarre is another modification discussed in the same magazine.

It seems that we can now engineer rapeseed (the source of canola oil) to produce an oil that can be made into plastic. The big advantage of this plastic over petroleum products is that the new plastic is biodegradable.

So the dilemma is: Will the tree-huggers think the new plastic is a good idea because it replaces a potential pollutant? Or will they oppose it because of the potential pitfalls of genetic engineering? Stay tuned for blow-up!

My apologies to readers who didn't get the column two weeks ago about starting tomatoes and peppers indoors. I'm not sure which of the papers ran it and which ones didn't.

Happy planting!

Attorneys withdraw claim in tobacco case

AUSTIN — Private attorneys who fought for and won a $17.3 billion settlement against tobacco companies have withdrawn their claim for about $2.3 billion in legal fees from the state.

The lawyers still will collect about $3.3 billion over the next 25 years from a national fund paid into by the cigarette industry.

Michael Tigar, a former University of Texas law professor representing the private attorneys, told the Austin American-Statesman his clients chose between accepting the 25-year payout or collecting $2.3 billion in legal fees

Top teachers singled out

Forty outstanding teachers from across Texas were honored by the Texas Education Agency at the annual teacher of the year awards luncheon in Austin.

Garnering the highest honors were Mary Beth Castillo Tierce, a teacher at Kostoryz Elementary School in Corpus Christi, and Jack Cody, an English teacher from Graham High School.

Tierce was named elementary teacher of the year and Cody is secondary teacher of the year.

Cody will be Texas' representative in the national teacher of the year program in which U.S. teacher will be named national teacher of the year next spring.

TNRCC cites Chevron
The Texas Natural Resource Conservation

Commission has announced it will take action against the Chevron Chemical facility in Baytown.

Enforcement action relates to unreported emissions on Oct. 7 that may have contributed to the highest ozone reading in the Houston area in the last 10 years, the agency reported.

According to the TNRCC, the facility violated Texas law by releasing and failing to report excessive emissions of ethylene and propylene, two types of volatile organic compounds.

The violations could be resolved through a fine and/or corrective action.

'Creative Living' plans annual special during public television pledge drive

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

The annual 90-minute "Creative Living" holiday special will air at 3 p.m. Dec. 11. Shown each year during the winter membership drive, the special presents ideas, recipes and suggestions to help take the stress out of the holiday season and shares some new tips and techniques.

"Creative Living" runs on public broadcasting station KENW-TV from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

This year's special will kick off with Connie Moyers, Roosevelt County Extension home economist. Moyers will share some of her popular food gifts from the kitchen.

Many of these ideas were included in her "Christmas Is for the Birds" holiday program, but for viewers who didn't attend, Moyers will share some of the recipes, time-saving tips and some stress relievers that are good to put into practice all year long.

Jim Howard of the California Table Grape Commission in Fresno will show how to create table centerpieces that feature grapes. Howard also will show how to dress up plain candles and place cards using grapes.

Jewelry is always a great gift selection, and Patsy Shields of Sulky of America in Sellersburg, Ind., will show how to make "no sew" faux jewelry that is washable and dryable.

She will demonstrate a new product called Puffy Foam. Using that and a hot iron, she'll show how to turn this product into a leather-like substance that can be turned into a variety of items, including jewelry.

Bruce Johnson of Asheville, N.C., a furniture refinishing expert, syndicated columnist and spokesperson for Minwax, will show how to create a bulletin board to match whatever room it's hung in.

Anyone who is tired of using the same recipes for holiday fare will enjoy Judy Murray's segment on microwave appetizers. Murray, the test-kitchen manager at Samsung Electronics America in Ledgewood, N.J., will demonstrate making appetizers in the microwave oven. Some of these include a quick cheesy bacon appetizer and a ham roll-up, but the all-time favorite is a recipe for fat-free potato chips.

Ellie Schneider Joos of C.M. Offray and Son Ribbon Co. in Chester, N.J., will show how to turn wire-edged ribbons into beautiful flowers.

And last but not least, Pat de Santis of Wm. Wrights in West Warren, Mass., will show different types of fancy gift wraps.

She even uses mesh instead of wrapping paper, and she'll show how to make bows, tassels and cording ties.

Getting enough calcium in the diet and making fabric-covered roller shades will be featured topics on Dec. 7 at 10:30 p.m. and Dec. 9 at 1 p.m.

Kay Davis of Lubbock, representing Dairy MAX Inc., will explain how getting enough calcium in the diet is a life-long commitment. She will also talk about the dietary requirements for different age groups, discuss the role of vitamin D in the diet and explain why exercise is important in maintaining healthy bones.

Jane Schenck of Durham, N.C., representing Pellon Consumer Products, will show how to make a room-darkening, fabric-covered roller shade, with no sewing involved.

"Creative Living" is hosted by Sheryl Borden of Portales.

Sometimes she floats like Tinkerbell.
She hardly ever stings like a bee.
On the weekend she holds the crown.
Will turning 40 bring her down?
Happy Birthday!
