A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Lottery pot hits $350 million

All the people who regularly play Texas Lotto hoping for a $3 million to $4 million jackpot must have been feeling as if they're really on the sidelines this week.

By late Tuesday, the biggest lottery jackpot in U.S. history had hit $350 million as ticket buyers went wild over the Big Game.

Vendors of lottery tickets in the seven Big Game states had been besieged for days with people hoping their numbers would help them escape their everyday lives.

If the jackpot went to just one person (a drawing was scheduled for Tuesday night), it would be the richest single lottery prize in world history.

After taxes, that lucky person would get either $8.5 million a year for 26 years or a one-time payment of $110 million.

Just how big is that, comparatively speaking?

It's 19 times bigger than all of the prize money given away on "Who Wants To Be a Millionaire." It's enough to pay the entire Minnesota Twins baseball team until 2020.

The odds of winning with a $1 ticket are about the same as putting a finger down on a list of everyone in America and landing on an ex-president. But no one seems to care.

The Big Game is played in Georgia, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey and Virginia.

In Virginia, so many people tried to access the lottery's web site that the server crashed.

The world lottery record is $1.2 billion, set last December by Spain's El Gordo, or the Fat One. But that game spreads itself thin: Thousands of prizes are awarded in a four-hour ceremony that brings the country to a standstill.

The odds that a $1 ticket in Tuesday's Big Game would have all six winning numbers were one in more than 76 million — about the same as flipping a coin and seeing heads 26 consecutive times.

Drawing date: Saturday, May 6
Winning numbers: 5-11-19-42-43-48
Estimated jackpot: $9 million
Winners: 0
Next drawing: Wednesday, May 10
Estimated jackpot: $13 million

On this date in history

May 11 — "Tornado day" in Texas: A funnel strikes Waco, killing 114, injuring 597 and doing $41 million in damage (1953); San Angelo, killing 11, injuring 159 and causing $3 million in damage (also 1953); and Lubbock, killing 26 and causing $250 million in damage (1970).

May 12 — The Battle of Palmetto Ranch, the last battle of the Civil War, is fought near Brownsville (1863).

LOCAL WEATHER

The forecast calls for mostly sunny weather through Saturday, with clouds increasing Sunday and Monday. Thursday should be hot (about 94) but temperatures should moderate to the upper 80s after that. Expect about 56 Thursday morning, then low 50s as morning lows through the rest of the period.

Leal elected mayor; nursing home OK'd easily

By RONN SMITH
Editor

Victor Leal won election as Muleshoe's mayor Saturday, and a proposal for a new nursing home to be publicly financed was endorsed overwhelmingly.

Leal defeated another popular young businessman, Wells Hall, by a vote of 316-174. City officials indicated that the 490-vote turnout could be considered excellent when only one race was on the ballot.

In the Muleshoe Area Hospital District vote on whether the district should construct a new nursing home in Muleshoe, both Muleshoe and Lazbuddie voters approved both the measure itself and a necessary measure to raise the district's allowable tax ceiling.

Members of the district's board of directors had expressed concern over the possibility that the tax proposition would be misinterpreted by voters as approving an actual tax increase.

That may have had some effect, as Lazbuddie voters approved the measure by a vote of only 16-13. The community approved building the nursing home by a much wider margin, 18-9.

In the Muleshoe area, the vote on the tax measure also was closer than the tally on the nursing home itself, but still was favorable by more than 2-to-1 at 348 for and 122 against. The construction project was approved 340-52.

Board incumbents Mike Miller (Place 5) and L.T. Johnson (Place 1) were re-elected with 27 and 43 votes, respectively, while Paul Wilbanks joins the board (Place 3) with 45 votes.

An 'awesome' prom

Most of the students attending Saturday night's senior prom described it the same way: awesome. Amber Futch and Randy Bohler, above, survey the elaborate decorations that turned the school cafeteria into wonderland.

McCaul vaults back onto Three Way board

Marvin McCaul, who resigned from the Three Way School Board several months ago because a family member was going to work for the district, won his seat back Saturday by finishing first in a five-man at-large race.

According to unofficial results, McCaul garnered 50 votes to finish just ahead of newcomer John Furgeson, who tallied 48.

Also elected was third-place finisher Clif Heinrich, with 35 votes.

Rounding out the field were Mary Wilson with 19 votes and incumbent Craig Kirby with 16.

The board was to meet Tuesday to canvass the vote and have a special called session set for 8 p.m. Thursday.

MHS awards assembly, sports banquet slated

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

The public is invited to watch Muleshoe High School students collect honors galore beginning at 7 p.m. May 15 in the high school auditorium.

That's the time set for the school's annual awards assembly.

And the fireworks won't stop there: The all-sports banquet is scheduled for 6 p.m. May 18 at the Civic Center.

Athletic Director David Wood said Tuesday that the event will be catered by River Smith at $10 a plate.

Considering the records compiled by the district's students this school year in both athletic and academic events, a large turnout can be anticipated for both awards presentations.

The competitiveness of the students resulted in an unprecedented number of district championships coming to Muleshoe, as well as the sweepstakes award for winning the most University Interscholastic League events in District 2-AAA.

Betty Griswold has given her life to the Boy Scouts

By JOLINE FRANKLIN
Special to the Journal

When the Boy Scouts presented their Silver Fawn award to Betty Griswold of Muleshoe in 1972, it wasn't just another Scouting award to add to the many she'd collected: The Silver Fawn was created just for her.

"I had won all the other awards, and I was due one, so they had to invent one just for me!" says Griswold, who had been a den leader for 30 years at the time.

Of course, other Boy Scout leaders can capture the Silver Fawn now if they qualify.

Griswold has now been active in Scouting for 58 years and isn't sure if she holds the record for service as a female den leader. She added that there are several men who have been Scout leaders longer than she has, although they get to count at least part of their time as Scouts as well as their years as a leader.

Her long-ago start in Boy Scouting came in Tonopah, Nev., when her younger brother, Ham Thompson, wanted to join the Scouts but most of the town's men were away helping with World War II.

A colonel from Tonopah Army Air Base came to the high school to find someone who would be willing to help out with a Boy Scout troop. Griswold says she and three other students volunteered.

She said that once she got involved (with the Cub Scouts, first- through fifth-graders, with whom she still works), she "just fell" for the little boys and really enjoyed working with them.

In the fall of 1942, Griswold met her future husband, Leonard, who was stationed at the Tonopah base.

She says they met at the town drugstore when she went there to buy a newspaper.

When she entered the drug-store, a girlfriend of hers who worked there called out to Leonard Griswold, "Here's Betty!" and then introduced them.

By the time she left the drug-store (with her future husband walking by her side), she had forgotten all about the newspaper.

Leonard Griswold ended up in the car with his future wife and her parents — and went home with them for an evening of hot chocolate and visiting. It was the first of many.

The couple married July 11, 1943, at the Episcopal Church in Tonopah.

They lived in the Nevada town until 1945, when the young airman was shipped overseas to Okinawa. He returned the following year.

Leonard Griswold also came to love the Cub Scouts. He was a carpenter by trade, and some of his happiest times were helping out the "Cubs" with some craft project or other.

The Griswolds were a dedicated team when it came to Scouting, and Betty Griswold says they always gave their best as they reached out to help Cub Scouts.

Betty Griswold smiles over a cake presented to her when she was recognized for 50 years as a Scout leader.

The couple's three sons — Jack, Dale and Donald — live in Muleshoe. Leonard Griswold died in 1998, and since then Jack has lived with his mother.

But what an investment in countless lives the elder Griswolds made, and what a legacy they leave to their sons.

Dancing to the stars

WILDLIFE REFUGE NEWS

By DON CLAPP

Muleshoe Wildlife Refuge

Most everyone has occasionally seen hawks or owls, but many are not aware of the importance of these birds to the natural environment or that they are protected by wildlife laws.

The most common owls seen are the great horned owl and the barn owl (often called monkey-faced owl).

Both nest in early spring. Great horned owls normally nest in trees, while barn owls usually prefer the eaves or attics of old buildings.

Other owls that may be seen in this area include short-eared owls, burrowing owls (or dog owls) and occasionally long-eared owls.

Owls normally sleep in the daytime and hunt at night. Their diet usually consists of rabbits and small rodents. They have excellent night vision and are quite adept at hunting during darkness.

Both golden and bald eagles are found on the South Plains. Golden eagles are the most common and are often seen during the fall and winter.

American bald eagles normally feed on fish and waterfowl, and a few are usually seen in this area during January and February.

Hawks are the most commonly seen of the raptorial birds (birds of prey). Various species of hawks frequent the South Plains throughout the year.

Many nest here, while others either migrate through or winter here.

The northern harrier (or marsh hawk), red-tailed hawk and American kestrel are normally seen year-round, while ferruginous hawks are common during the winter and Swainson's hawks are frequently seen during the spring and fall. Other raptors that may be seen here include Cooper's hawk, rough-legged hawk, merlin and prairie falcon.

All raptors, as well as nearly all other birds, are protected by wildlife laws. The Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge has a small holding pen where injured birds may be kept until they are taken to authorized wildlife rehabilitation centers — although injured wild creatures are usually best left alone when discovered. (Wildlife authorities should be notified.)

People with good intentions often mistakenly believe that a young animal or bird has been abandoned by its parents when actually the parent is hiding nearby or away searching for food to feed its young.
