KOREA AS A MEAT PRODUCER

Has Advantages, But Industry is Throttled by Taxation

Were it not for the native governmental system which discourages production by over-taxation, Korea might provide the Orient with its best beef supply.

In the opinion of United States Consul-Generaladdock of Seoul, he says that an area of Korea one's attention is attracted to the really fine cattle, mostly bullocks, used as beasts of burden.

It would, per regard for breeding and raising, merit supply a large share of the beef of the East. But unfortunately no agricultural development can be expected of this country under existing conditions.

NO MONEY IN EGGS

One Farmer Declares that Even 35 Cents a Dozen Doesn't Pay

Hank Martin was in from near Opolis yesterday, with two dozen eggs, which his wife had sent in, says the Pittsburg Headlight. He sold them for 35 cents per dozen.

"Pretty good money in eggs, isn't there just now?" remarked a friend.

"Oh, I don't know," replied Hank. "We're feeding our hens wheat that costs over a dollar a bushel, and corn that's worth over 60 cents. We get about two dozen eggs a week out of something like fifty hens that we have to feed. Even at 35 cents, that's only 17 cents a week, and we feed about 25 worth of grain in that time, to the chickens.

I don't figure that there's much money in eggs. Of course if all of our hens laid good we might make something, but if all the hens over the country were laying good we'd be lucky to get 10 cents a dozen for our eggs.

LOSS COMPARATIVELY LIGHT

Advance of Season Changes Tone of Reports From Ranges

Now that the southwestern country has had time to look into the situation, the tone of reports of stock losses by the cold blast of early in February has changed very materially. Sidney Webb, of Clay county, Texas, writing to a Fort Worth house under date of February, said:

"You can rest easy on the steers, for we won't lose 1 per cent. of them, unless there is lots of cold rain in March. The boys told me this morning that the cattle were all right. We have plenty of feed for all that will need feed. The steers here are drawn some, but are all right. I think this is the best thing that ever hit the country, for we will have plenty of grass and fat cattle this year, and a good market."

STOCK DIPPING VAT.

San Angelo, Tex., Will Operate a Large Dipping Plant.

The United States Department of Agriculture has established regulations which permit Southern, cattle when dipped in crude petroleum to be shipped anywhere in the United States at any season—after inspection, says the San Angelo Standard.

This removes the restriction on our market for cattle and will be the means of opening a feeder market here during the whole year, provided there is a dipping station to dip the cattle before shipping. The San Angelo Business Club has led off in the move to construct good facilities for dipping and a good proportion of the stock in a company for that purpose has already been subscribed.

The matter should be pushed through promptly and doubtless will be as it is a business proposition that will doubtless pay a handsome percentage to the stockholders directly—and is of great advantage to every interest in the town and vicinity. Parties north of the quarantine in Sterling, Irion and other counties, can drive here, dip, and ship at any time—as well as all the rest to the south of the line. One of the very best features will be the fact that a large amount of the grease raised in the vicinity will find a ready market, as the cattle will have to be fed while being dipped.

Secretary Wilson has authorized by wire the placing of the station here, and the organization of the company will be proceeded with, in case the necessary stock can be sold.

Before final organization takes place, a meeting of the subscribers for the stock will be called in order that anyone who has subscribed, but desires to withdraw, will be allowed to do so.

The committee will continue to offer the shares for sale and will be glad to have anyone interested in the town and country buy shares in the company to make up capital to put it in operation promptly, so as to widen our market for steers and other cattle, to embrace all points from which buyers may come.

The plan to be established will be equally useful for dipping sheep for scab, goats for ticks, or horses for mange.

NOTES OF THE FASHIONS.

A Variety of Fresh Finery That Enters Into the Up-to-Date Costumes.

Panel effects are much used. The littlest bit of ermine gives an exclusive touch.

A frock of crepe de Paris in ruby red is much admired.

For theater wear the merest scraps of hats are coming in.

It takes a graceful woman to bring out the real beauties of the redingote.

Many of the fur stoles have three little tails falling from the back of the neck.

Short blouse coats of chinchilla fur are becoming youthful, and, to put it mildly, expensive.

Black chiffon made over white is not so somber and is far more youthful than the dead black.

Charming turtles are shown, of white ground with hair-like checks in green, pink, blue or red.

The marabou sets are excessively loved, by one dream of a big, fluffy muff and stole being delicate enough.

Even the rat aspirates deserve sartorially a coat made of his skins lining up among fashionable garments.

For little maids there are cunning silk petticoats, as frilly and rustling as their mother's silken skirts.

Some novel wraps for evening wear are made entirely of feathers—ostrich, marabou or cock's feathers.

Such a pretty white satin girle is ornamented with pearl sequins put on to represent bunches of grapes.

It is better to economize in the number of gowns and to have at least one well-made costume with a set of good furs.

The lace yoke of an old gown may be transformed into a pretty bodice, accessory by adding a ruffle of lace or net.

Turkey Rolls.

Chop fine both white and dark meat; mix it with equal amount of dressing (if made with bread); add to a pint of this two tablespoonsful of sweet cream, one tablespoonful of mayonnaise dressing, one teaspoonful minced parsley, and salt and pepper to taste. Make a crust not so rich as for pie crust and containing a little baking powder; roll out and cut in rounds the size of a small saucer; place a tablespoonful of the meat on half, moisten the edges, turn the remaining half over, press down firmly, prick with fork and bake.—Los Angeles Herald.

Sweet Potato Pates.

Boil the desired number of potatoes, then drain, season and mash. Make a sauce of one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Cook until perfectly smooth; then mix with the sweet potato. Fill shells with the mixture and serve.—Boston Budget.

He Was One Himself.

"Here's a clever story," said the clerk in the bookstore. "It's a tale of border warfare."

"None for me," replied Mr. Starboard. "I get mixed up in that sort of thing though in real life."—Philadelphia Press.

DIDN'T SAVE HIS RECEIPT.

And So This Careful Husband Had to Pay Twice for His Winter's Coal.

There's a man in this town who is always talking to his wife about woman's unbusinesslike ways and how impossible it is to make the sex understand that it is necessary to keep receipts if one would avoid paying a bill twice. He has talked and talked on this subject until his better half has piled up everything in the house with receipts of bills for articles which were long since worn out and the fragments cast away, relates the Baltimore News.

About eight months ago the husband bought the winter's coal and paid for it. It amounted to a goodly sum, and when he tucked the receipt for the money in his overcoat pocket he had that warm sense of well-doing which is given to the man who pays his bills.

When he went home that evening he told his wife about it. "I've paid for the coal," said he, "and have the receipt put away, and I feel like a Vanderbilt in consequence. I wish I could teach you to file your receipts. Some of these days I am going to have to pay your bills twice, and I certainly shall dislike that immensely."

It was a few weeks after this that the man with a sum of generosity gave away the overcoat that had the receipt for the coal in it.

He gave it to a poor fellow who was coming west to find work, and the coat and the receipt person's ten that the coal receipt sent in the bill for the winter's fuel.

The man spent three days' looking for the receipt and it was at the end of the third day that he suddenly dawned upon him what had become of it.

Then he went to see the coal people. They were amiable but firm. They couldn't remember that the coal had been paid for, but they would make every effort to find in their books some mention of the money which the man said he had given them.

Well, they couldn't find it, and so the man in the end had to pay the bill again.

He told his wife, and that lady bit her lip. He had to tell her because she had helped him look for the receipt or the chances are she would never have heard of it. At all events, she didn't say "I told you so" or "I hereafter you will take the blame out of your own eye before you attempt to take the mote out of mine," but the man never tells her now that he's afraid she would.

HOW DEEP SEA FISH DIE.

They "Get Out of Their Height" and "Fall Upward," According to Experts.

The officers of the cable steamer Minia, which was recently endeavoring in mid-ocean to locate and repair a broken cable 1,500 feet below the surface of the water, state that their instruments show the bottom of the ocean to have a temperature below the freezing point, and that there is a total absence of light, says the Philadelphia Record. At this depth the pressure is estimated at about a ton to the square inch in every 1,000 fathoms. The officers say that a great many of the deep sea fish are so peculiarly constructed that they often lose their lives by chasing the instruments toward the surface. They die by what experts call "falling upward." As soon as they get out of their accustomed level the decreased pressure extends the air within them, and the fish shoot to the surface, but are dead before they reach that point.

Deep Diamond Mines. Prof. Henry Miers in lecturing to a London audience recently said that there is no knowledge of the depths to which the South African diamond mines can be worked. The deeper they go the richer they become. Work can be carried on now to a depth of 2,500 feet and it is thought that it might be continued to a depth of 5,000 feet or even 10,000 feet if engineering difficulties could be overcome.

Sensors Discuss Evil of Leasing System and How Such Are Obtained Through Fraud They Will Be Canceled.

Washington, March 1.—The senate spent almost the entire day considering items in the Indian appropriation bill. There was quite a lengthy discussion of the committee amendment prohibiting the use of tribal funds in the support of sectarian schools.

There was a long and technical debate on the committee amendment authorizing the cancellation of leases in Indian territory when they are obtained by fraud or for "grossly inadequate considerations."

In connection with another feature of the same amendment there was a general debate of the leasing question which was participated in by Bailey, McCumber and Hepburn.

PRESIDENT SMITH'S PRINCELY INCOME.

The Retiring Senator Said the Business Policy of the Church Amounts to a Monopoly, While Its Head Has an Income of $1,600,000 a Year—Question of Religion Not Involved.

Washington, March 1.—Mr. Kearns, being recognized, said he could not permit the occasion to pass without saying what it seemed should be said by a senator, under such conditions, before leaving public life. He then reviewed the history of Utah and recited the conditions under which statehood was granted.

JOSEPH SMITH. Whose income is $1,600,000 annually.

"That the Mormon leaders would live within the laws pertaining to plural marriage and the continued plural marriage relation, and that they would enforce this obligation upon all of their followers, under penalty of dis-fellowship."

Continuing, he said: "Utah secured her statehood by a solemn compact made by the Mormon leaders in behalf of themselves and their people. That compact has been broken wilfully and frequently. No apostle of the Mormon church has publicly protested against that violation."

DENOUNCES CHURCH.

Mr. Kearns Regales Senate with Alleged Perfidy of Mormonism.

SMITH LIVES LIKE A MONARCH.

Over a Million Dollars in Earnings Annually Go to the Head of the Church Says the Utah Senator.

Washington, March 1.—Mr. Kearns, being recognized, said he could not permit the occasion to pass without saying what it seemed should be said by a senator, under such conditions, before leaving public life.

"That the Mormon leaders would live within the laws pertaining to plural marriage and the continued plural marriage relation, and that they would enforce this obligation upon all of their followers, under penalty of dis-fellowship."

Continuing, he said: "Utah secured her statehood by a solemn compact made by the Mormon leaders in behalf of themselves and their people. That compact has been broken wilfully and frequently. No apostle of the Mormon church has publicly protested against that violation."

"I know the gravity of the utterances that I have just made. I know what are the probable consequences to myself. But I have pondered long and earnestly upon this subject and have come to the conclusion that duty to the innocent people of my state and obligation to the senate and the country, require that I shall clearly and definitely define my attitude."

KANSAS LEGISLATURE.
Attorney General Requested to Go After Fire Insurance Companies—Many Bills Acted Upon.

Topeka, Kan., March 1.—The senate has adopted Senator Waggoner's resolution, which is as follows: "Resolved, by the senate, the house concurring, that the attorney general be, and he is hereby directed and instructed to forthwith institute necessary proceedings and by all existing remedies to break up and destroy all pools, agencies, agreements and combinations, of any kind, and nature, intended and destined to fix and maintain uniformity of rates, and which tend to prevent free and unrestricted competition among fire insurance companies."

A concurrent resolution has been introduced in the house by Mr. Landier, of McPherson, providing for an investigation by the legislative committee of the International Harvester company.

The house refused to concur in the senate amendments to the house railroad bill and the measure will go to a conference committee. The friends of the senate measure hoped that the house would concur in the senate amendments, but the vote against concurring was unanimous.

The conference committee on the congressional apportionment bill has failed to agree. A new conference committee will be appointed. There is a probability that there will be no congressional reapportionment in this session of the legislature.

The Price raid claims were knocked out in the house. The ways and means committee reported adversely on the bill appropriating $130,000 to pay these claims, and it is not likely that the bill can be revived.

The ways and means committee also killed the senate bill appropriating $5,000 a year for a state fair at Topeka.

Favorable action was reported on the bill renewing to the State Poultry association the usual $1,000 a year for premiums.

The Beardsley primary election bill fell by the wayside in the house. Enough republicans joined the democrats to defeat it. After the bill went down, the elections committee was instructed by a resolution introduced by Morgan, of Reno, to draw up a short bill making it a crime to repeat at primaries or for a republican to vote at the primary of another party, or vice versa. Chairman Adams stated that he would also add a provision fixing a residence clause for voters.

The child labor bill passed the senate and now goes to the governor for his signature. It prohibits the employment of children under 16 years of age in packing houses, factories and mines. This was backed by the labor bureau.

House Passes Stock Yards Bill—No World's Fair Investigation—Recent Appointments

Jefferson City, Mo., March 1.—The bill to reduce stock yards yardage and feed charges was passed by the house after a long argument on a motion to indefinitely postpone the bill. The latter motion was made by Watts of St. Joseph and was lost by a strong viva voce vote. The vote on the passage of the bill was: Ayes, 99; noes, 25.

Gov. Folk sent five appointments to the senate. They include: For board of managers of the hospital for the insane in St. Joseph; John S. Majors, Liberty; S. G. Gilliam, Maryville; P. E. Field, Gower, Board of charities and corrections; David Rupp, West Plains; R. M. Abercrombie, St. Joseph.

Dawson of Lincoln county introduced a resolution in the house providing that a joint house and senate committee be appointed to investigate the world's fair commissioners' report. After some discussion the house tabled the resolution on the argument that the investigation could not be finished during the session of the present general assembly and because it provides that Gov. Folk shall appoint a regular auditing committee during vacation to report to the next general assembly.

The house, by a vote of 119 to 9, passed the bill prohibiting bookmaking and pool selling at race tracks or elsewhere in the state. This measure was introduced in lieu of the Godfrey amendment, the original of which was stolen from the records of the house of representatives, rendering the action of that body an anti-gambling bill void.

LIVES IN DEADLY FEAR.
Grand Duke Vladimir a Complete Physical Wreck Since Condemned by the Terrorists.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—The utter impotency of the police in the face of the Terrorist organization is shown by the increasing boldness of the latter all over St. Petersburg. Even on the steps of the public buildings simple notices of Grand Duke Sergius' death were found. They read: "The sentence of death passed upon Sergius Alexandrovich was executed February 17.—The Fighting Organization of the Social Democratic Party."

Moreover the notices were neatly printed, a thing unknown in the days of the late Interior Minister von Plehve, when similar notices were always run off on copying machines. The secret police then were too close on the heels of the Terrorists to permit of the use of a printing press.

The Grand Duchess Marie Pavlovna, whose husband, the Grand Duke Vladimir, is high on the list of those condemned to death, is trying to shield his life with her own. Since Red Sunday the grand duke has not only been showered with threats and warnings but has twice received from abroad formal letters signed by different groups informing him of his sentence to death and of the assignment of men to execute it. At the same time the Grand Duchess Maria, like the Grand Duchess Elizabeth in the case of Grand Duke Sergius, was notified that her life and her son's lives would be spared and she was appealed to not to go abroad in her husband's company. The letters naturally terrorized the family and household of the grand duke who has aged greatly during the last few weeks under the strain of what he insists is the unjust criticism which placed the responsibility for the bloodshed of January 22 wholly on his shoulders. Although the grand duke's health had been falling for over a year he is now almost a complete wreck.

Young Corbett an "Easy Mark."
San Francisco, March 1.—Battling Nelson, of Chicago, made Young Corbett, of Denver, appear the poorest tyro at the fighting game last night when he practically knocked him out in the middle of the ninth round. In order to save their man a complete knockout the seconds threw up the sponge. The man who twice met Terry McGovern was not in it with the young Dane at any stage of the game.

Humors of the Law.
Law and equity are two things which God has joined together and man has put asunder.

When a prisoner in Justice Maule's court was asked whether he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon him, he replied: "I wish God may strike me dead if I stole the ducks." Maule waited for about a minute, and then said: "Prisoner, as providence has not interfered, I must. Three months' hard labor."

A mayor on taking his seat on the bench for the first time informed the bar that during his year of office he would spare no effort to be neither partial nor impartial.—Address of Sir Albert R. in London.

Canned Birds from China.
America is not the only country in the world that excels in canning meats and vegetables. At the St. Louis exposition was shown canned rice birds from China. These little birds are much like our own reed birds, and as they live in the rice fields, they become very fat and luscious. They are esteemed highly in China and are preserved with skill. Portugal preserves immense quantities of fish. Germany has made some interesting experiments in canning. One of these is called calorit, the name referring to the device whereby the vegetable or meat enclosed may be heated by puncturing the can. Two chambers inclose the inner can, one holding lime and the other water. The puncture permits the water and the lime to meet, and the slaking process which follows causes heat.

A FLING IN SOCIETY.
He was only a clerk on a fair salary—a mere part of the machinery of a big corporation. And he was not an essential part of that. He was merely a nut or a screw, the kind that come by the gross. It was not known for a certainty who she was, but it was pretty generally concluded that she was a personage from the fact that she had arrived at the hotel with trunks full of stunning gowns and that she was chaperoned by the regulation gold lorgnette. Nobody investigated what was behind the lorgnette. The very existence of that decorative and impressive aid to the sight was in itself a hall mark of aristocracy. Of course, he lost his heart to her at first sight.

When reference to the hotel register revealed the fact that her name was Smith speculation was rife among the guests as to which of the illustrious families bearing that name she belonged. Was she the daughter of Higbee-Smith, the Standard Oil magnate, or Wellington-Smith, the copper king, or Ogilvie-Smith of California gold-mine fame?

Hutchins said he was sure she was a Higbee-Smith, for she had old man Higbee-Smith's chin. He had often seen him on "change and knew him well—by sight. Knowlton grumbled that he was sure she was a Wellington-Smith, for she had old man Wellington-Smith's cheek. But no one paid any attention to Knowlton, for he had been very properly snubbed by the young lady when he had tried to force his acquaintance upon her the first evening, during the temporary absence of the Lorgnette, and he was naturally sore, for, being a Knowlton, of Knowltonville, he considered himself of good as the best. However, as Billy Miller remarked, with his usual astuteness, she was somebody's daughter, that was sure. They all laughed.

He had occasion to smile often during the week that followed, as he watched each side of the gilded youths since his wings in turn at the flame of Miss Smith's fascinations.

"So you say there is no hope for me?" He heard young Hutchins murmur dejectedly as the canoe glided by the bank on which he sat.

"None whatever." She was dabbling her hand over the side and watching the silvery ripples left by her fingers in the sun flecked water.

"Of course I'm only a broker's clerk now, but I have prospects. My father—"

"One cannot live on prospects," Miss Smith cruelly reminded him.

"I don't expect to." Hutchins drew himself up stiffly. "I am now earning $20 a week—"

"Which is just enough to keep you in wine and cigars."

Hutchins wilted.

"How much—oh how little—do you think you could live on?" he asked presently, when he had recovered. "Five thousand a year? I know some people who do live on that—in Brooklyn."

"I couldn't live on five millions a year—with you—Mr. Hutchins," said Miss Smith, "so that settles it."

And it did settle it so far as Hutchins was concerned. But it was not so easy to convince Knowlton and Billy Miller of their ineligibility to hold the position of Somebody-Smith's son-in-law. Knowlton had visions of a fat bunch of Standard Oil stock as a wedding gift, and Miller thought that the least the Copper King could do for his daughter was to present her with a few copper mines as a marriage portion.

"I never had such a strenuous four weeks in my life," Miss Smith remarked to the lorgnette, as she packed away her stunning gowns the night before her departure.

Crisp, cool October had come. It was a day that made the appetite so keen that it was not even discouraged by the ever-present fried-oyster-and-beef-stew-with-onions odor that hung about the quick lunch restaurant.

He ordered an oyster stew and a cup of coffee, and ate his lunch with his eyes on the clock. Then he picked up his 35-cent check and his eye fell upon his neighbor's, which was punched over the figure 15. From the check his eye traveled to his owner.

"Why, Miss Smith!" he exclaimed. "What are you doing down town? Come to see after your stocks and bonds in Wall street, I suppose?"

Her smile answered the twinkle in his eye.

"Yes," she said, "it is a case of stocks and bonds, but—"

She stopped suddenly as she saw him looking at her wrists, and they both laughed. She had forgotten to remove her paper cuffs!

"I'm in a broker's office," she said; "but you knew it all the time. I saw it in your face the very first week. Why didn't you give me away?"

He looked at her reproachfully. "As if I would! But why did you do it? You seem such a sensible sort of a girl."

"Well, even a sensible girl likes to have a little fling once in a while," she said, looking down in a half shamefaced way. "I had saved a little money and I happened to have some pretty decent clothes, so the woman I board with—she of the gold lorgnette—and I thought we'd like to swell it for a month—just as an experiment."

"And was the experiment satisfactory?"

"Perfectly. I've learned that it's clothes that makes the man." By the way, Mr. Hutchins came into the office the other day while I was writing a letter to the typewriter. I don't think he'll repeat the offer of his heart and hand—"

"So you've had your fill of gilded youths?"

"I most assuredly have," said Miss Smith emphatically. "Give me the man without 'prospects!'"

"Why, certainly," said he, holding out his hand.

"I want to tell you something," she said as they left the restaurant. "That lorgnette was only plated."—N. Y. Press.

TO AFFLICTED MEN

If you are suffering from any of the Chronic Diseases now so prevalent among men, don't be discouraged or give up all hope because you have been treated by others in vain.

Seek the Skill of a Successful Specialist
27 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
21,200 Cases.

Unless you are sound and vigorous in mind and body you will soon find yourself pushed aside to make room for the man who is. I speak with authority gained by an experience of twenty-seven years as a specialist when I say that diseases peculiar to men have been responsible for more failures in life than any other cause. Not so much the disease themselves as the neglect or improper treatment of them, for there is no condition of this prevalent evil which is not curable. Not only is the physical impairment a great misfortune, but the great mental distress which always follows, completely unfit a man for any capacity and tends to make all of his undertakings a failure.
