CATTLE.

Small Mid-Week Run Quickly Taken at Stronger Values. Advance of the week has thus far failed to bring out anything that looks like increased cattle supplies for the near future. There were only 21,000, all told, reported at five markets for today and the half-week total of 60,000 at the same points is $100 less than the small run of first half of last week and 60,000 less than for the corresponding period last year.

On the local market the moderate offerings included only a fair proportion of beef steers and none of these were up to the standard of quality carried by the topsters of early in the week. Buyers were all on hand at an early hour of the forenoon looking for cattle and soon picked up all useful offerings at stumped prices compared with former days of the week. While there were no strictly choice steers offered on the early market there were a few bunches of pretty good medium quality, the best of which averaged 1,200 lbs. and sold at $6.75, the price being considered full strong for this class of steers. Other sales of fairly attractive light and medium weights in a range of 1,000 to 1,200 lbs. were steady to higher as were also the light and cheaper priced grades of steers selling in a range of $4.75 to $5.75. Bulls were well cleared out at an early hour and the local slaughterers would have readily welcomed a much larger supply of attractive and useful beef cattle.

COWS, BULLS AND MIXED.

The supply of cows and heifers was moderate, although larger than Monday and Tuesday. Trade displayed a little unevenness, opening active and strong to higher, but easing off a little during middle and closing hours, finishing about steady with yesterday. A good clearance was made in auction and the market generally was quiet steady to strong, extensions being the higher on first rounds. The showing of topmy stock was larger than on late days but general quality did not indicate much change. A few car string of prime, popular-weight, spayed heifers sold at $8.40, equating best price of the season for carload lots on this market. Other lots sold largely in a range of $3.00 to $5.75 for useful steers with a few choice cows danded at $2.25 to $3.50, but bulk of the offerings were in the $1.00 to $2.00 class. Not many causers were on land and not many were wanted with quotations ranging from $2.00 to $2.75. Cutters and medium killers sold largely at $3.00 to $3.75.

Bull trade was fairly active throughout at firm prices. Calf values were unchanged.

FIGHT VEHICLE TAX.

Auditor Whalen Prepares to Start Collections for Unlicensed Rigs July 1.

Auditor Charles Whalen yesterday raised the question as to whether he should go ahead and order receipts and tags for the collection of the vehicle tax, which falls due July 1. City Counselor Norris, believing that when the supreme court finally passes on the question it will decide that the tax is legal, told Whalen to start the collection when the time came.

Last year the legality of the ordinance taxing vehicles for use on the streets was bitterly attacked by an organization of vehicle owners, represented by Attorney C. C. Crow. The case was tried before Judge Moeman and decided in favor of the city. The case was appealed to the supreme court and has never been disposed of. About $700 paid by vehicle owners is now in the hands of the circuit clerk, awaiting the decision of the supreme court.

"If an attempt to collect the tax is made this year," said Attorney Crow yesterday, "we will most certainly fight it and will adopt the same measures as last year. The money will be paid to the circuit clerk, to be held until it is finally decided whether the city has the right to tax the vehicles. I shall make a strong effort to have the supreme court pass on the question at the October term."

FOUND IN THE RIVER.

Floating Corpse Identified as Miss Lena Uhlinger, Missing Since October.

Floating face upward, and so badly decomposed that it was unrecognizable, the body of Miss Lena Uhlinger, who mysteriously disappeared from her home, 1210 Powell street, on October 16, last year, was found drifting down the Missouri river, four blocks below the Grand Island bridge at 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon, by John and William Frogge, government dyke workers.

Identification of the body was made positive by Henry Uhlinger, park commissioner and United States gauger, and Miss Sophia Uhlinger, brother and sister of the dead girl. A belt around the body and a shoe were shown to Miss Uhlinger in Heaton's morgue, where the body was taken, and she identified them at once as being those her sister was wearing at the time she disappeared.

BLOW TO SPECULATORS.

Norris Rules Tax Purchases Are Not Legal.

Local men who are in the habit of yearly purchasing real estate on which the city taxes have become delinquent will find their profits on the transaction cut down to a considerable extent by a ruling made yesterday by City Counselor W. B. Norris.

Property on which taxes are not paid is sold in November and the speculator who buys it holds the property until the owner settles with him for the taxes, thus profiting to the extent of 10 per cent and 2 per cent a month as interest, which the city allows. A speculator recently offered to pay the 1908 taxes on property he bought for delinquency in 1907, thus hoping to secure the profit of the 2 per cent discount allowed by the city in May. Counselor Norris holds that this is illegal.

STOCK FOOD PLANT HERE.

A. M. Gilliam, recently with the Neudorf Hardware company, has incorporated a new company to be known as the St. Joseph Stock Food Co., and the company is now installing machinery. The remedy is a well-known one, and the company has purchased the exclusive rights and formula. The company will locate in this city, adding another big plant to the already long list.

WESLEY'S WIFE AND CHILDREN.

Two Sons Early in Life Showed Remarkable Musical Genius.

Charles Wesley's reputation has suffered not a little from the overshadowing predominance of his brother, says a writer in Zion Herald. There is no disputing, however, but that at one point he greatly surpassed both John Wesley and George Whitefield—he had a most happy wedded life. It was in the spring of 1748, when he was no longer young, that he first began seriously to entertain thoughts of marriage.

Miss Sarah Gwynne, a girl of 23, daughter of a pious family occupying a high position in Wales, attracted him by her many lovable qualities. Brother John heartily approved the match. There was trouble at first on the part of the bride's people over the question of a settled income, £100 a year being thought the smallest amount that would suffice. This was finally guaranteed from the profits of the books, and Saturday, April 8, 1749, the wedding took place, John Wesley tying the knot.

It was an ideal Christian marriage, blessed with eight children, of whom three grew up, and two became very celebrated musicians. These two were Charles Wesley, Jr., and Samuel. Both showed remarkable musical genius from their earliest years.

Charles was a great favorite with George III, his private organist occasionally at Windsor, and very early created much excitement by his wonderful performance of Handel's works. He played a tune to the harpsichord at the age of two years, and nine months. He was called by one of the highest authorities of the day "the greatest genius in music I met with." His death was in 1834.

Samuel (who died in 1837 leaving a numerous family) was recognized as the best organist of his day and was a gifted composer. At the age of eight he wrote an oratorio called "Ruth" which was much admired. For several years he and his brother gave a series of famous concerts at their father's house. Among his sons were Rev. Dr. Wesley, sub-dean of the Chapel Royal, and also Samuel Sebastian Wesley, organist of Gloucester cathedral, and composer of many pieces, three of which are in our hymnal. The latter died in 1876.

Getting Round a Difficulty.

The late Charles Whitney of Bluffton, Me., was the greatest wit and joker in his part of the country. One evening he and a friend named Bagley started to drive a wagon to Portland, some 15 miles distant. When they arrived in Scarborough it became dark and foggy. Seeing a guideboard in the corner of the fence, Whitney got out, climbed up on the wall, lighted a match, and read on the board, "Portland six miles." They rode about an hour longer, and once more saw a guideboard. Whitney again got out, climbed on the fence, lighted a match, and read: "Portland six miles."

Then he said: "Bagley, get out and find me a rock."

"How big?" asked Bagley.

"About as big as your two fists."

"What do you want it for?"

"Well," drawled Whitney, "I'm going to knock this guidepost off and take it with us, so we'll know where we are." I'm tired of getting out and climbing this wall every hour to find out."—Lippincott's.

MARY AND THE LAMBS

By ROY NORTON

(Copyright.)

Turkey Bill. That's what they called him, because he looked like that graceful bird. Had the same innocence of eye, same craning of skin-bedecked neck, and same general air of curiosity. When Socorro was young there were but four inhabitants to witness the incoming of the Overland; Bill, being a visitor, went along, and that's why he happened to see her first.

Acting as a guide, he carried her baggage to the Williams abode, where he "reckoned she might put up." And in these incidents were the momentous beginnings of Socorro.

Her name was Mary Brown. Why she came no one knew; what she was there for no one knew. But that wasn't a secret very long. She was taking orders for a hair-restorer that was guaranteed to grow fuzz on anything, from Turkey Bill to a Mexican dog. All that was necessary was to buy and apply enough.

To one on the inside, business wouldn't have looked very flattering when Mary came. As a matter of historical fact, Turkey Bill was the only bald-headed man within 100 miles, and he didn't belong to Socorro. He was a cattlemen from 30 miles away, and he hadn't had never particularly bemoaned the loss of nor hankered for more hair. Baldness had been a blessing, because it saved combing.

Mary was a retiring sort of girl, but she didn't have to work overtime to impress Turkey, because he was at the old tucan age where his affections were easily dented.

Turkey ordered a couple of cases, and when he rode back to the valley that night wept unrestrained tears over the big family of orphans that must starve unless all the range bought freely of the remedy.

As a heart-breaker, Mary Brown, sweet, retiring and coy, would have made Cleopatra seem a mere black-smith. Her fame spread for many a day's ride, and it was astonishing how many men there were on the range who were in direful apprehension of losing their suburb locks, although most of them could have sported signs: "Hair to Let."

Mary liked the country, so she built a cabin of great dimensions, not a barbaric thing of adobe, but with lumber shipped in from the west. It cost eleven hundred dollars, Turkey said, and he ought to know, because he loaned her the money.

In addition to her hair-oil business, Mary opened up a manicure shop, and at night she rented it for dances and such. But the manicure enterprise was the most successful thing ever opened in Socorro, because apparently all cowpunchers on the range had been in great distress for manicuring before she came.

There was one modest thing particularly noticeable about Mary Brown. She never bragged of all the cities back east she most have seen, nor interpolated into a conversation "When I was in Wichita, Kan.," or said "You ought to see the swell stores in Omaha. They're just grand." There was nothing boastful about her in this regard. But, although she never even mentioned where she came from, men felt this superiority.

Turkey Bill resolved to travel and get a liberal education thereby. He got a chance, after much effort, to go through to Kansas City with a stock train.

But Bill didn't have a very good time. He saw all the big buildings in Kansas City, and rode on street cars for a half day, then bought a phonograph and a pair of gilt opera glasses for Mary, and got ready to go home. Traveling wasn't what it was cracked up to be. He finally found the freight office, where he was to get a return stock pass, and by this time he was so nervous that when the man who apparently bossed the railroad barked at him through a grating he was glad it was there. Bill was afraid the man would bite. When he tried to find his contract, he fumbled so much that he dropped all the papers and cigars and other things from his pocket on the floor.

That was the place where Turkey met the real kind man. He showed his kindness by helping Bill pick up the scattered documents, and, among other things, a photograph of Mary Brown he had taken along.

"Likely-looking girl," quoth the real kind man, as he handed the picture back. That warmed the cockles of Turkey Bill's heart, if it had any.

The man seemed to be pretty well posted about the town. He took Turkey to a place where they sold things to drink, and then they got to be real good friends.

Jones said he had consumption, but didn't have money enough to get to a warmer climate, although some of his best friends had recommended him to go there. He wanted Bill's advice as to what a man in such a delicate state of health and pocketbook ought to do.

As Turkey Bill was entitled to take another man back on his stock pass, and, having formed a real love for Jones, he offered to take him along.

They had a nice trip west, and Jones' cough kept getting better; but that hasn't anything to do with the story. Most of the boys were glad to see Turkey back, or pretended they were. They took Jones in because he seemed a pretty good sort of fellow, and, in spite of his being such a destitute sort of chap, he certainly was a liberal spender.

Looking back over those early days, it seems odd how every man, as soon as he landed in town, wanted something done to his hands or hair. Jones was no exception. He went around to Mary Brown's early the next morning, but early as he was, Turkey and nine others were ahead of him, so he went away fully decided to come back later. Having nothing else to do, he went to the next best place, and visited the art gallery.

When he emerged from the art gallery a short time later he couldn't help but notice how everybody was headed for the station. Of course, he knew by that that the train was due. He hesitated between a desire to see the great daily event or Mary Brown. Finally he decided this was just his chance, as probably there wouldn't be any one at Mary's. He was pretty cunning.

Just as the last of a lot of empty beer kegs were being put into the express car the spectators of the passing of the train were fairly petrified in Socorro. It was Jones, calm and uncoupling, gently but firmly walking with Mary Brown toward the rear platform of the train. And, worst of all, Mary didn't look as happy as a June bride. Indeed, she seemed rather melancholy, and in tears.

The women looked at each other, at Mary and at Jones. Etiquette forbade any interference, if the couple wanted to elope, but somehow it was all so sudden.

Turkey Bill recovered first, just as Jones and Mary started up the rear steps of the long, dusty Pullman.

"See here, Jones!" Bill called, in a half-pleading way. "In course, it ain't nobody's business if you and Mary is just runnin' away."

"Yes, it is," came a voice from the rear. "We ain't a-goin' to allow no short-horn, sheep-herdin' tenderfoot from away back east in Kansas City to come rollickin' onto this range and run off with our Mary. She's got to give her consent. We don't know but what you're kidnappin' her to hold us up for a ransom."

Loud cries of: "That's right! It don't go—it don't go!" came from the throng. Mary seemed plesed, and showed signs of regret and hesitancy at taking this rash step under the belittlements of a man who wore a boiled shirt. She seemed on the point of addressing her admirers, but a low word from Jones induced her to remain silent.

Jones then shoved himself forward and made a speech.

"You fellows are a set of suckers," he said. "What do you care where Mary Brown goes?"

Turkey Bill's chest expanded as he broke in with an answer. "Care? Care? You unmanicured Plute! I may as well tell you this here Miss Brown—with the emphasis on the Miss—is ingated ter marry me. I'm the bully boy that cares some."

Every man on the platform turned a fiery gaze on Turkey. Some instinctively dropped hands on their holsters. Some were amazed. It looked tricky, and like an undertable deal.

The voice of Jones, in loud, full-lunged, derisive laughter, broke the silence.

"Engaged to marry you, eh? Well, that's good! That's one reason why she's going back east with me. She's under arrest. She ran a matrimonial bureau before she came here, has one hundred gents back there, from all of whom she's got money. And all the backwoods counties aren't heard from yet; but I'm closing the polls right now. I'm an officer, and reckon I'm due to get about $3,000 reward for this trip, and, by the way, I'm much obliged to you for the pass. It helped some!"

Jones opened the Pullman door and pushed Mary inside, politely bowing and lifting his hat to the Socorran as he disappeared. The conductor waved his hand high in the air and the wheels revolved while Socorro stood stunned and speechless in utter bewilderment.

They stood and watched the last vestige of smoke and dust as the train pulled out of sight. Then Skink Billings planted himself in front of Turkey Bill and said very gently: "Pard, was ye lyin' about that bein' ingaged?"

"Not by a hellfussight!" came the sturdy response. "An', what's more, although we was keepin' it a close secret, bein' under promise, I give her $200 to buy an engagement ring with."

More blank-amazement, and then loud volcas in speech. A close tally disclosed the fact that of 27 men present, 19 had furnished various sums for the same purpose; 19 had promised absolute secrecy, and the eight others outside the engagement guild had loaned sweet Mary Brown money with which to bring out her little brothers and sisters from the east.

Turkey Bill silently stepped to the edge of the platform, drew from a pocket in his shirt a three-by-four photograph of Mary Brown, which he tore to tatters and scattered to the winds. Twenty-six other men lined themselves up and followed his example.

Twenty-seven men filed—Indian fashion—to the "Cowman's Rest," and prepared for the night which was to be the most memorable in Socorro's history, while a wise spider began weaving cobwebs over the window panes through which Mary Brown had been wont to smile. And in the dawn, as he started for the ranch, Tomnyson George, with a piece of charcoal, wrote upon her door:

Mary was a little lam.

And great upon the borrow.

She gathered all the fleece we had, And dam near broke Socorro.

HER OWN MEDICINE

TABLES NEATLY TURNED ON ONE PRACTICAL JOKER.

Sharp Lesson, However, Unable to Effect a Cure—Possibly There Is Only One Way to Stop These "Humorists."

Are women practical jokers? The question was being discussed by two men who were somewhat interested in psychology, and as the conversation progressed it became less scientific and more cynical. At last the younger man brought it down to a personal basis, proving only one case, but that one quite conclusively.

"My sister," he began, "used to teach in one of those $1,000 a year finishing schools for girls. The name doesn't matter, but you'd recognize it in a minute if I told you. I mentioned my sister to show you how I heard this. Among the teachers there were a half dozen inveterate practical jokers. One was as bad as another, so perhaps none deserved any sympathy. Now, the youngest of them was the instructor in English and, incidentally, a poet of no mean ability. She had been persuaded by her friends to submit her work to a publisher, with the result that a small volume of poems was brought out.

"In this state of affairs one of the clique of which she was a member saw great possibilities. She taught logic, I think. At any rate she had a deductive mind capable of making plans that would work out nicely. So she wrote letters to 15 or 20 of her friends asking them to write to the poet, saying they had read her book with great interest, paying her all the compliments they could think of without seeming insincere, and asking for her autograph."

"After a while the young woman began to receive the letters. Some were from New York, three or four from cities on the Pacific coast, several from England, and one from Constantinople. You can imagine how elated she was.

"One afternoon she received a note from the teacher of logic. It ran something like this:

"Come up to my room for a cup of tea. I have a new picture which no doubt you would like to see."

"The poetess went, and, according to the established custom, walked in without knocking. No one was in the room, but on the wall was the picture. It consisted of a large gilt frame in which were arranged all the replies that she had sent to those who had written letters in praise of her poetry."

"Well, what a trick!" exclaimed the older man. "What did she do?"

"Sat down and cried, naturally."

"It cured her, I guess."

"No. There's only one way to cure a practical joker."

"They say that the only good Indian is a dead Indian, and it's—"

"I believe you're right!"

Used "Cannon" to Commit Suicide. A Norwich, Norfolk, Eng., blacksmith named Robert Want was found dead in bed at his house, a few days ago, having apparently committed suicide by means of a home made cannon. A loud report was heard one morning, and neighbors who rushed in found the bedroom filled with smoke and noticed a strong smell of gunpowder. Want lay dead in bed with one side of the face blown away. At the foot of the bed was a piece of gas-piping, 18 inches long, which had been made into a cannon. One end had been welded up and a touch-hole bored. Want must have filled the tube with gunpowder, and as he lay in bed held the weapon in one hand while he put a light to the touch-hole with the other. The recoil threw the cannon out of his hand to the foot of the bed.

To the People of Buchanan County. Having filed with the clerk of the county court nomination papers for the office of judge of the Criminal Court of Buchanan County, Missouri, as required by law, which entitles me to a place on the Democratic ticket as a candidate for said office, to be voted for at the primary election to be held on the first Tuesday in August, 1908, I deem it appropriate in making announcement of my candidacy for renomination, to say that I am profoundly grateful to the people of Buchanan County for the confidence heretofore manifested in electing me to said position, and for the continued faith expressed by my fellow citizens of all professions and callings from the various walks of life in so generously signing petitions placing me again before the people for their suffrage. In acknowledging the kindness thus shown, I can only say that I have honestly endeavored to impartially discharge the various duties imposed upon me by law, without fear or favor. How well I have succeeded is not for me, but for the people to determine. I am not unmindful of the great responsibility that one assumes in undertaking to discharge the duties of the office, far greater now, since the establishing of the juvenile court, than heretofore, owing to the large discretionary power lodged in the judge. If by the suffrage of my fellow citizens I should again be nominated and elected to said position, I shall follow the general policy heretofore pursued, striving at all times to render faithful service to the people of my county and state. Very respectfully, B. J. CASTELL.

A POLITICAL MIX-UP

THE OREGON REPUBLICAN LEGISLATURE MAY ELECT A DEMOCRATIC SENATOR.

EIGHTY REPUBLICANS TO TEN DEMOCRATS

People's Choice for Position Appears to Have Fallen on George E. Chamberlain, a Popular Democrat, Twice Elected Governor in a Republican State—Unusual Primary Feature.

Portland, Ore., June 3.—Because of a queer turn of Monday's election it may devolve upon an overwhelmingly Republican legislature to elect a Democrat to the United States senate.

Returns so far received indicate that George E. Chamberlain, Democrat, is the popular choice for senator, his lead over Judge Henry M. Calk, Republican, being about 1,000 votes.

Of the 50 members of the legislature, probably about 80 will be Republicans. It is known that 41 of these are positively pledged to vote for the people's choice for United States senator.

With the exception of the senatorship the Republicans have won practically every office from supreme court judge to constable.

Prohibition was a hard-fought issue in 28 counties, and while the tally clerk cannot give any figures of a definite character, the indications are that a large majority of the counties voted "dry."

Single tax has been beaten. Woman suffrage probably has been defeated. No estimate can be made at this time on other initiative and referendum issues.

Chamberlain is very popular in Oregon, although the state is Republican, he has twice been elected governor.

"What's wrong?" demanded the traveling man, amazed.

The man who had been so rudely awakened could make no reply to this strange accusation; but instead stood gazing stupidly at his midnight visitor.

"I tell you vos all wrong!" reiterated the German, assuming a still more threatening posture.

MAKING HEAVY GUNS

THE WASHINGTON NAVY YARD IS KEPT BUSY.

Forgings Are Brought from Various Steel Works and Assembled—Exact Designs and Measurements for Weapons.

All the big guns for the navy are now made at the Washington navy yard. The forgings come from Bethlehem, Midvale (near Philadelphia) and the Carnegie steel works at Pittsburgh, being supplied under contract and manufactured under the supervision of naval officers, who are assigned to see that the steel is pure and perfect and that it corresponds to the specifications.

Every 12 and 13-inch gun is composed of nine separate pieces. Each piece is so exact in its measurements that they will fit together like the works of a watch.

INTERBOROUGH METROPOLITAN PRESIDENT RETURNS FROM DAUGHTER'S BEDSIDE.

Some Reports Corrected

Declares Memory of Duke de Chaulnes Has Been Grossly Maligned Regarding Cause of Death.

New York, June 3.—On his return from Paris Tuesday Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Metropolitan company, declared that the reports that the death of his son-in-law, the Duke de Chaulnes, was due to indulgence in opiates were infamous libels.

"The duke and my daughter were kneeling at their bedside in prayer," said Mr. Shonts, "when the stroke came upon him that carried him off before medical aid could be summoned.

"The memory of the duke has been grossly maligned and outrageous reports were printed about the manner and cause of his death. The facts are these: On the afternoon of the day on which he died, the duke and my daughter were out riding. They dined together and then retired to their apartment early.

"They were kneeling close together and the duke held one arm about his wife's shoulders. Suddenly he lurched forward and then tumbled unconscious at my daughter's feet. He was a big man and she a slight girl, but she lifted him bodily on the bed and screamed for aid. He was dead before anything could be done for him.

"Upon my arrival in Paris I found my daughter in an alarming condition. Until two weeks ago we feared that her reason had gone, and would never return. It is just two weeks ago Sunday when the turn for the better came.

"My wife and one of my daughters will remain with the duchess throughout the summer. The relatives of the duke have been more than kind to my daughter. They have vied with one another in trying to do for her. The duchess d'Uzes was more than a sister to her, so that she will be among sympathetic friends while she remains in France."

WAS A FAST TRIP

THE BIG BALLOON "CHICAGO" TRAVELED 800 MILES IN ELEVEN HOURS.

RAD THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Balloon Traveled From Quincy, Ill., to Clear Lake, S. D., Before Being Forced to Land by Rain.

Watertown, S. D., June 2.—Compelled to alight because of heavy rain, the Chicago balloon owned by Charles A. Coey and driven by Capt. C. L. Bumbaugh, and Charles Leichter, which left Quincy, Ill., Monday night at six o'clock, landed Tuesday morning at five o'clock in the country eight miles south of Clear Lake, S. D., covering over 800 miles in 11 hours and securing the world's speed record. Capt. Bumbaugh was bitterly disappointed in not breaking the long distance record, and his failure to win the Lahm cup.

Chicago, June 2.—The following telegram dated Clear Lake, S. D., was received Tuesday by W. H. Picketts of the firm of C. A. Coey & Co. from C. H. Leichter, one of the three men in the balloon:

"Landed at Drayer, eight miles southwest of here, at 5 a. m. Tuesday. Figure that we made close to 800 miles in 11 hours, smashing various speed records, as the initial flight was due west from Quincy, a considerable distance beyond Kirksville, Mo., the last town we spoke of, and thence by compass due north, then northeast for a short time, then slightly northwest which landed us here. The actual mileage covered in the 11 hours flight was much greater than would be computed by line-measure.

"From midnight we were harassed by a steady fall of rain which no amount of maneuvering could escape. When the rain first struck us we went up to an altitude of 6,500 feet, seeking a stratum which would be above the rain cloud. Instead of benefitting us we found colder air which contracted the gas, compelling us to throw practically all our ballast. After a straight hour and a half of rain the barometer did not indicate a variance of 60 feet in our altitude.

"When the cold air struck our bag we dropped 1,200 feet in less than a minute. Capt. Coey and Capt. Bumbaugh threw out sand as fast as they could work while I watched the instruments indicating the altitude and conditions.

"The next few hours were thrilling enough to satisfy even the most enthusiastic. It appeared momentarily that we would be compelled to make a landing in the darkness, which frightened even Capt. Bumbaugh, with all his experience in aerial navigation. In the low altitude, however, a warmer rain prevailed, heating the gas and enabling us to hold on until daylight. We hoped that the sun would expand the gas, but instead of sunshine came a cold beating rain which soaked the basket and passengers.

"The basket bumped the ground three times before it became apparent that there was no hope of continuing our flight. When we made our landing we had only half a bag of sand ballast left.

"Under ordinary conditions it is certain that the long distance record would have been broken without question."

It was announced Tuesday night by William H. Picketts, the representative of Mr. Coey, that another trip would be made within a short time, starting from Quincy, Ill.

One of the Largest Drilling and Refining Concerns in the West.

Florence, Col., June 3.—Suits asking damages in the sum of $1,000,000 and praying for a receiver for the United Oil company, one of the biggest oil drilling and refining concerns in the West, was filed in the district court Tuesday by J. THE DOCTORS MEET

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION BEGINS IN CHICAGO.

VIVISECTION WAS THE TOPIC

To Create a Commission to Fight Opponents of the Practice—A Session Devoted to Public Health.

Chicago, June 3.—Vivisection came in for much attention by delegates to the convention of the American Medical association which opened here Tuesday, and was the subject of significant action by the governing board of that organization. By a unanimous vote the house of delegates approved a recommendation to the board of trustees to create a commission, the sole duty of which shall be to watch and oppose the enactment of laws intended to abolish vivisection. While this action was under consideration, Dr. W. B. Cannon, chairman of the section on pathology, advocated a campaign of education against opponents of the practice whom he accused of a selfishness and ignorance, and in another meeting—that of the section on surgery—results of animal experimentation were being described by Dr. Alexis Carrel of New York.

The resolution passed by the house of delegates was introduced originally by Dr. P. M. Jones of San Francisco and was amended by Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago, and owing to an evident unanimity of sentiment, was passed with but little time consumed by discussion of the subject.

The first general session of the convention early in the day was addressed by Dr. Herbert L. Burrell of Boston who made a plea for co-operation between the physicians and the public and for the education of the latter in matters of sanitation. The evening session was devoted to addresses upon matters touching the public health by Dr. William S. Thayer of Baltimore and Dr. Charles Harrington of Boston, Mass.

In the afternoon the various sections of the association held separate meetings at which scientific discussions, particularly pertinent to the branches represented were conducted.

TO STUDY ALIEN AT HOME

PROFESSOR AND STUDENTS PLAN STRENUOUS TRIP.

Party Sails From New York to Visit Immigrant Fields of Southern Europe.

New York, June 3.—With packs on their backs and only enough money to supply their immediate wants, a college professor and ten students sailed Wednesday in the steamer of the Immigrant Lines for the fields of Southern Europe. At the head of the party is Prof. Edward A. Steiner of Iowa university, who persuaded Pennsylvania authorities to make the present experiment. The members of his class are volunteers from the colleges and universities of the middle west. The plan mapped out for the party is to study the alien as he is at home, to learn his language, his habits, his social condition and its causes, and to trace the history of the races that are pouring into America at the rate of several million a year.

The party will make its way through Bohemia, Poland, Russia, Hungary, Austria, The Balkans, and thence to Italy, and from there it will return by steamer to New York, trailing the immigrant all the way across, through the custom, immigrant station, and to his future home.

Upon the completion of this task which will take over a year, the ten men will enter the mining fields of Pennsylvania as social workers and interpreters under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Young Men's Christian association. The year's study is intended to fit them for this work. They will not preach any particular creed, or religion, but with their special training and equipment will strive to get close to these alien men, to teach them the responsibilities of American citizenship and encourage the different nationalities to forget their feuds, which now bring them together only in clashes, causing ugly mobs, knife thrusts and much other unnecessary mischief.

Both sides are claiming a majority of from 10,000 to 20,000. The result will probably not be determined until the official count Wednesday. The Republican nomination for governor is even more uncertain. Garst is running closely with Cummins and Carroll with Allison.

WILD RIDING COSSACKS

Scene in 101 Ranch Show, To Exhibit Here Next Monday

Rough and reckless riding in all its varied forms is seen with the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, which will be here on next Monday, June 8, for two performances, inaugurated by a forenoon street parade. If you own an outlaw horse, one that has defied all your efforts to subjugate him, lead him to the show ground. No matter how evil and vicious his nature, the Miller Brothers promise in advance to tame his spirit and mount an ride him.

In daredevil intrepidity, probably none of the hundreds of horsemen with the big amusement organization from the Oklahoma prairie surpass the Cossacks, who joined the 101 ranch forces straight from military service for the czar on the Siberian border. They are the only members of the show not selected with the 101 ranch, and were selected as the only equestrians in the world able to compare with the native product. Prince Lucca is their chief. He has done duty as a member of the royal guard of Russia, picked for the post for bravery in war and riots. He and his score of comrades perform ex-plaits whose kindle the blood of every beholder. Lumb and even life are at stake every time they circle the arena. Not a week passes that one or more is not carried to the emergency hospital the showmen maintain. Straight poised on the saddle, prostrate on their mount's haunches, dangling by one stirrup or from the pommel, head up or head down or astride the neck with inverted faces, they sweep in broad circles, in apparent keen enjoyment of their feat. American horsemen look on aghast.
