GOOD SHOW OF FAT STEERS

Trade Was Slow to Get Started and Prices Steady to a Shade Lower.

RANGERS SELL A SHADE OFF

Good Supply Showed Up For the Day -Native Butcher Trade Ruled Steady to a Shade Lower-Veals Were Steady-Stock Cattle Lower-Hogs Opened Steady But Closed 5 to 10 Cents Off-Sheep 10 to 15 Cents Higher.

Receipts from January 1, 1910. The following table shows the receipts from January 1, 1910, and receipts for the corresponding time in 1909:

Table with 4 columns: Category (Cattle, Hogs, Sheep, etc.), 1910, 1909, Dec. Inc. (1910).

Live Stock in Sight. The following shows the estimated receipts of cattle, hogs and sheep at the five principal western markets:

CATTLE

Liberal Showing of Pretty Good Cattle, Prices Weaker. There was a moderate supply of cattle at the local point for today but the number arriving at outside points was not above an average for this day of the week.

STOCKERS AND FEEDERS. There was not a big showing of stock cattle in the fresh arrivals for today but the stocker division is carrying a large number of cattle and culminated on former days of the week and buyers are all disposed to take cattle on a lower level of prices.

COWS, BULLS AND MIXED. The local trade did not present much in the way of change in the native cow trade. The supply was moderate in number but included a few very good kinds of fat cows and when the buyers got to going they were willing to take them at around a steady level of prices compared with the market of yesterday.

Yearlings and Calves. There was no particular change noted in the market for yearlings, the best here selling at $8.00 and the bulk of the good fat veals were in a range of $7.50 to $8.00.

Sheep. There was no particular change noted in the market for sheep, the best here selling at $8.00 and the bulk of the good fat veals were in a range of $7.50 to $8.00.

Daddy's Bedtime
Story — The Blind Men and the Elephant

I AM going to tell you this evening," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn. "A story which shows how important it is for one to know what he is talking about before he expresses an opinion about anything. It is an old story about six blind men and how they tried to find out what an elephant looked like.

These six men lived in India, where some of the elephants live. They were very poor men, and because they were blind they could not work. So they sat at the roadside and begged from the people who passed. Very often they heard people speak about the big animal called the elephant, but of course they could not imagine what he looked like, although they often wished they could.

One day the six blind men noticed that there was some excitement near them. They asked the people what the matter was, and they were told that a very large elephant was being led down the road. The six blind men then went together to the place where the elephant was and coaxed his owner to let them touch him so they could get an idea of his size and appearance. Of course they could not see, but they believed that if they could touch him with their hands they could form an idea of his size and shape. The first beggar was very tall. He reached up and felt the elephant's ear. "Why," he said to the others, "the elephant is just like a great big fan!"

The second blind man felt the elephant's leg. "I am sure," he said, "the elephant is round like a tree." The third man stood in front of the animal and reached up and grasped the tusk. "You are both wrong," he said; "the elephant is round and smooth and hard and sharp at the end like a spear."

The fourth blind beggar stood at the side of the big animal and passed his hand over his rough skin. "Why," he said, "you do not know what you are talking about! This animal is just like a wall, only he is rougher."

The fifth man stood close to the man who had felt the animal's tusk; only, instead of grasping the other tusk, he reached out his hand and felt the animal's trunk. Passing his hand up and down it, he cried:

considerable annoyance, also the fact that with every rain the soil was piled up by the shoes of the tennis players.

GETS PAY FOR CHEERFULNESS Atmosphere Imparted by Calm, Agreeable Optimist Is Worth Money to His Employer.

"I have one man in my employ that I pay more than he's worth," said a storekeeper, "because he's cheerful.
He is not an ostentatiously cheerful man, not a babbler; but in his calm and agreeable way he is indomitably optimistic and hopeful, and nothing seems able to make him otherwise; and his cheerfulness helps everybody in the store. Let one of our men come in feeling down in the mouth, in the dumps over something and then let him run up against the cheerful man and the first thing you know the other fellow has lost the dumps and is smiling himself and feeling better.
You see the cheerful man radiates cheerfulness and you can't come within his influence without absorbing some of his spirit. Why, I've come into the store myself when business was dull not feeling very chipper, maybe feeling inclined to gloominess, and then I've had a word with our cheerful man and felt myself bracing up right away and thinking about how we could start things up a bit. He isn't the best salesman in the world, but he gives us an atmosphere, as you might say, that really helps; and we pay him and are glad to pay him for that."

SLEEPY SENTRY WAS A HERO How Sir Roger Palmer's Life Was Saved at Balaklava by Man He Had Protected.

A romantic story is told of Sir Roger Palmer, a Crimean veteran, whose death was recently announced. Sir Roger was a lieutenant, aged twenty-two, when the battle of Balaklava, famous for the charge of the "Six Hundred," was fought. The night before the battle he was going the rounds of the camp when he found a sentry of his regiment, the Eleventh Hussars, asleep at his post. Although he could have procured the man's trial by court-martial, which would have meant a death sentence, Palmer decided to say nothing.

Old Warships as Forts.
The disposition of about thirty ships which have been made practically obsolete as modern fighting ships by the rapid development in the construction of naval vessels and the increased efficiency of the more recent guns, has confronted the navy department with a perplexing problem.

mous chestnuts and hazel nuts, embraces 1,172 square miles of territory and a population of 500,000. The capital and chief trade center, an episcopal city of the same name, is a town of 35,000. Not far from Avellino are the ruins of the famous convent of Mount Vergino, founded in 1119 on the ruins of the temple of Cybele. This convent is visited every year by thousands of pilgrims, many of whom ascend the mountain barefooted and crawl on their hands and knees from the church door to the altar. The chief industries of the town are the manufacture of cloth, hats and cast-has also made them eligible on the same terms as men. The chamber of agriculture is a new institution. The bill providing for its establishment gave votes to women on equal terms with men but did not make them eligible. The Suffrage association at once sent a petition that women be made eligible as members. They pointed out that according to the latest census nearly as many women as men were engaged in agriculture in Wurttemberg, that more than 26,000 of them owned the land which they worked, that Wurttemberg is essentially a district of small farms on which are carried on industries that belong especially to women, such as poultry raising, vegetable and fruit growing, etc. The committee appointed to consider the bill reported against the women, but when the measure came up in the Diet a motion to amend the bill by making women eligible was carried by a vote of 43 against 27.

Rules of Sleep.
Those who think most, who do most brain work, require most sleep, and time "saved" from necessary sleep is infallibly destructive to mind, body and estate. Give yourself, your children, your servants, give all that are under you the fullest amount of sleep they will take by compelling them to go to bed at some regular early hour and to rise in the morning the moment they awake; and within a fortnight nature, with almost the regularity of the rising sun, will unloose the bonds of sleep the moment enough repose has been secured for the wants of the system.
