CATTLE.

Many Short Fed Steers—Market Slow and Weak to Lower. There was a sharp falling off in the number of cattle at the leading markets for the opening trade of the week and yet the number in sight appeared to be fully up to all demands of the trade.

The local supply included a fair showing of steers from better sections but they were mostly of the short fed grades that are just about right to meet hard competition in the western grass country.

Local dealers held a good many cattle over from last week in the stocker division and with the demand from the country stock were not likely to show for the fresh supply this forenoon.

Good to choice feeding steers are quotable at $4.60 to $5.25; medium to good grades $4.00 to $4.50; good to fancy stock steers $4.00 to $4.50.

Stockers and Feeders. Local dealers held a good many cattle over from last week in the stocker division and with the demand from the country stock were not likely to show for the fresh supply this forenoon.

There were but few calves here this morning, and the market held steady for all grades.

TO BLANCH CELERY.

The most satisfactory to blanch celery is to pack the soil around it. First the field must be gone over and each plant must be well banked up with soil.

CROPS HURT BY LIME.

RAISING MORE CORN.

THE FARMER THE ARBITER.

The early morning street car that carries the army of laborers to the scenes of their daily toil is one of the best places to observe the interest that is taken in matters political, moral or financial.

Arguments of the class appeal to the laboring man, because he, more than any other class of citizen, feels keenly the high cost of meats.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How a Little Dog Saved an Army

"I BELIEVE, children," said daddy one evening to Evelyn and Jack, "that you are both fond of dogs, and I am sure you will be glad to hear this story of how a little dog which belonged to a great prince was the means of saving the prince's army from being defeated by his enemies."

"What were they fighting for, daddy?" asked Jack, who likes to hear stories of war and fighting.

"They were fighting because the Spaniards wanted to rule the Dutchmen's country, which is called the Netherlands. The Dutchmen would not let them. The Spanish nation was much greater and more powerful than the Dutch, but the Hollanders were brave, good fighters. And the best of them all was their prince."

"William had a little dog, a spaniel, of which he was very fond. Wherever he went he took with him the little dog, and I am sorry that I cannot tell you the name of the little dog, because he deserves to be well known. One night the Dutch soldiers were lying in camp near a city called Mous. The prince was in his tent, thinking of the next day, when he was to fight a great battle with the Spaniards, who were not far away. He was all alone. Suddenly he looked around for his little dog, but the animal was nowhere to be seen.

"As it turned out, the dog had not gone to the camp of the Spaniards, but the Spanish had come to the camp of the prince. They intended to surprise the camp, capture the prince and defeat his army. And they might have done so if it had not been for the prince's little dog. He had wandered away from the prince's tent early in the evening. When night came he was some distance away from the tent. Suddenly he saw coming toward him some strange looking soldiers. He knew they were not Dutchmen, for when they spoke their voices were different. And the quiet, sly way in which they walked made the dog believe that they were coming for no good purpose, so what did the smart doggie do but run to the prince's tent, jump at his master's leg and bark as loudly as he could.

"The dog must have seen something suspicious," said the prince to himself, and he called his guards. In a short time the whole army was aroused and was able to defeat the Spaniards' night attack."

mals in this country has not, and is not going to depend upon any result of an election to be held tomorrow in this or any other state.

For the past ten years the packers, the stock yards people, the agricultural colleges, the live stock shows and the farm and live stock press have been hammering at the farmers to get them to take a look into the future and go to raising more cattle, hogs and sheep in order to meet the demands for meat foods, and in the face of all of the forces that have been at work the present finds the hog supply of this country is nearly 2,000,000 head short of last year, more than 4,000,000 head short of a normal supply and the price of hog products to the consumer almost at a prohibitive point.

There is nothing surer than that any legislation that will cheapen the price of corn will at once curtail the production, for the farmer will not plant so large an acreage. To the men who make the markets for the live and grain products of the farm a study, it would seem nothing short of a financial panic could reduce the price of pork to the consumer and this would reduce his earning power.

"I am developing the machine on the ranch here," said Mr. Horst, "and this machine is being largely used along the lines of experiment, to make its workings less complicated. In one day with the machine I picked 27,900 pounds of hops on the Oregon ranch, and the machine is capable of picking 60,000, but it is rarely allowed to average more than 20,000 pounds a day.

Statistics, he said, showed that the small farmer was being frozen out, while there was a large increase in the land contained in big agricultural estates, with their managers, superintendents and systematized labor.

Mr. Wallace is a farmer and editor and was elected president of the National Conservation Congress at St. Paul recently. Attorney Clifford Thorne, in introducing the line of testimony exhibited from Mr. Wallace, explained that "the great question to be determined in this case was what constitutes a reasonable return for the farmers. They have based some of their pleas for higher rates on the prices paid to farmers and other producers for their products."

Mr. Wallace entered into a detailed statement of the value of crops and land and the cost of farm labor in 1907-8-9.

"The statistics show," he said, "that in 1907 the average renter of a quarter section lost $392. In 1908 he lost $290, and in 1909 he lost $305. It is only by denying himself all luxuries that the farmer has been able to make a fair living. The apparent loss shown is overcome by the farmer's not hiring the labor, but getting the work done by his children. The average farm boy of 14 years is considered a full-fledged field and stock hand."

Witness said the prosperity usually ascribed to the farmer was an error.

Judge William D. RUSK

—FOR—
CIRCUIT JUDGE

In presenting the name of Judge Rusk the Democrats feel they are presenting a man possessing every qualification for this most important position.

He is one of the acknowledged leaders of the Buchanan County Bar, a man of profound learning, whose legal attainments and sterling character have caused him to be twice elected President of the Buchanan County Bar Association.

Two years ago he was chosen by the members of the bar to serve a term as judge during the illness of one of the regular judges. His ability was at that time so clearly disclosed that he immediately became the logical candidate for the next Democratic nomination. He was urged to be a candidate by the members of the bar, Republicans as well as Democrats, and was nominated unanimously.

The party is fortunate in having secured him to lead its ticket in the election of November 8th.
