FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE.

Some of the metropolitan papers, in their household pages are running "Recipes in Rhyme." Here's hoping that the recipes by the wives, mothers and land ladies are not as bum as the poetry.

COLORING CITRUS FRUITS.

The attention of the Board of Food and Drug Inspection has been directed to the shipment in interstate commerce of green, immature citrus fruits, particularly oranges, which have been artificially colored by holding in a warm, moist atmosphere for a short period of time after removal from the tree.

Under the Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906, an article of food is adulterated if it be mixed, colored, powdered, coated, or stained in a manner whereby damage or inferiority is concealed.

The Board recognizes the fact that certain varieties of oranges attain maturity as to size, sweetness, and acidity before the color changes from green to yellow, and this decision is not intended to interfere with the marketing of such oranges.

OREGON WOOL SITUATION.

Portland Oregonian: "The quality of Oregon clips this year will be better than last year, owing to a good winter and a good spring," according to D. P. Smythe, secretary of the Oregon Wool Growers association.

"What do I think of politics? Don't think much about the thing; it ain't my game. Course, I ain't doing any whitewashing capers, and the purity league would be apt to put the kibosh on my application for the pass word, but you needn't deal me any hand in this politics thing. You have to be too many things at once, or you only think you are a politician.

"It is difficult yet to determine about the price. There seems to be no disposition on the part of the buyers to contract and as the wool has not yet come into the warehouses, there have been no real sales of which I have heard. However, I think the reason for this is the contemplated tariff reduction of the special session of congress. What action congress takes will have a great bearing on the market. It should seem that nothing would be done by the senate until the tariff commission makes its report in December. If such is the case, the wool market will be greatly strengthened and the prices should be as good as last year. Otherwise, there might be a slight decrease."

SHEEP ON CORNBELT FARMS.

Somehow or other there is something very acceptable about the appearance of a high-class flock of sheep on a cornbelt farm, says the Live Stock World. There is no ordinary holding in that region that will, in our present stage of knowledge, sup-

Daddy's Bedtime Story

LIKE most children, Evelyn and Jack are fond of drawing pictures and coloring them with water colors or crayons. One evening before the youngsters were ready for their bedtime story daddy watched them drawing the pictures, and it made him think of a little boy who many years ago was also fond of drawing and who became later in life a great artist.

"This little lad was an American who died almost a hundred years ago," began daddy. "His name was Benjamin West. His home was in Pennsylvania, near Philadelphia. His parents were farmer folk, and they lived a distance from town, so that it was not easy for Benjamin to get drawing materials when he needed them.

"When Benjamin was still a young boy he was sent to Philadelphia to study painting. When he was only eighteen years old he began to make his living by painting pictures. He was twenty-two years old when he went to Italy to study the great, splendid, famous paintings in that country. From Italy he went to England, and he lived in that country for the rest of his life, becoming one of the greatest artists of his time and president of the Royal Academy, to which only the best artists are admitted.

coming from you the professional politician will cut rings around you. If you have accumulated a bundle of grief that is tearing up and down the pike yelling for vengeance; or if you have a large sized reform, microbe surging and insurging around in your system and you are clamoring for the scalp of some politician who is in, don't do anything but remember the hair of the dog.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

FISH. Shrimps—Most of us know shrimps in a salad, and how good they are there. But they make an excellent hot dish if they are served in tomato sauce or in curry sauce.

Fish Chowder.—One pound of bacon cut in dice; bacon that is dry is to be preferred. Place bacon in kettle and fry to a nice brown. Sift one pint of flour into bacon grease and brown; stir constantly to prevent burning.

Salmon Salad.—One can salmon chopped fine, four hard boiled eggs, eight lettuce leaves; mix these with a half cup of dressing, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful ground mustard, pinch of pepper, one pound sugar, one pound butter, one pound flour, one egg yolk, one-third cup vinegar. Heat butter and blend ingredients. Then add egg yolk and vinegar. Cook in double boiler until it thickens. Serve salad on lettuce leaves.

Orange Jelly Salad.—The making of this salad requires little extra effort and has the added merit of keeping well if made in large quantity. Soak one tablespoonful of gelatin in one-third cup of water, add one-half pint of orange juice and let come to boil. Prepare one-third cupful of nut meats. Peel two oranges, divide into sections and halve each section. When the jelly is ready to mold pour a little into the molds, then some nut meats and orange; continue until the molds are filled. When ready to serve turn out on a bed of crisp, small lettuce and pour over a cream mayonnaise.

Stewed Pudding with Fruit.—One and one-half cupfuls of milk, three fourths cupfuls of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of butter, one small teaspoonful of salt, three eggs, three cupfuls of flour and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix powder thoroughly with the flour, add sugar, milk, yolk of eggs beaten lightly, butter melted, and lastly fold in white of eggs. Into molds put a layer of batter, then a layer of fruit until two-thirds full, having dough on top. If canned fruit is used, drain off juice and mix with sweetened whipped cream for sauce.

DICKENS MADE A COLONIST

For Forty-five Years His Son Told in the Australian Bush.

Forty-five years ago a keen, pleasant faced man in a green velvet waistcoat might have been seen on the platform at Waterloo Station, London. At his side was a young fellow of 20, his face flushed with emotion.

"Good-by, my boy, and God bless you," spoke the elder man. "Do your duty and keep up your pluck." The young man thought of all the good times he had had with his father—of all the wonderful talks, and games, and journeys they had enjoyed together—he and the best, the kindest father in all the world—the tears sprang to his eyes.

YES, THERE ARE FLATHEADS

Babies' Heads Are Bandaged in Asia Minor to Produce the Approved Shape. People who are markedly broad-headed are more or less flattened at the back of the head.

With the exception of the better educated people in the towns and in the villages in the mountains all Cretan mothers bind the heads of their children when they try to make them of a nice round form. In fact, when I was pressing home my questions in order to make quite sure of the object the mothers had in view one of them told me that I had a "very bad head," and that my bumps and ridges ought to have been smoothed away in my infancy.

Maori Telephone Lines. The Maori of New Zealand is a fine fellow, and well liked by Europeans. That he is progressive is shown by the up-to-date methods which he adopts in farming, and when he indulges in the luxury of motor cars he always wants the best makes.

Dinner Bell of the House of Commons. The question of the limitation of speeches which has been raised in the house recalls the giants of the past who killed time in the house with their mouths. There was David Hartley, for instance, the sound "Dinner Bell" of the commons. On one occasion he got up to speak, and Sir Robert Walpole—appreciating the truth of that saying about the ill wind that benefits nobody—got up too.

They Are Tinkering With Pisa.

According to the findings of a royal commission appointed to investigate the present condition of the Leaning Tower of Pisa, it appears that, instead of being supported on a massive foundation, the tower rests on a ring-shaped masonry base, with an inner diameter of 24 feet 3 3/4 inches, exactly the same as the inner diameter of the tower. The tower is about 177 feet high, and in 1829 is said to have been 14 feet 5 inches out of plumb; since that time its inclination has been increased by an additional 0.0055 foot per foot of its height. In 1834 an earthquake caused a deflection of about five inches.

In Its Due Order.

Champ Clark, at a dinner in Washington, pleaded indulgence for a somewhat rambling speaker. "He'll arrive," said the Democratic leader, "if you'll only give him time. He is like Dr. Thirdly." "Dr. Thirdly was dividing up his sermon into its appropriate heads one Sunday morning, when a member of the congregation shouted irascibly: "Meat, meat! Give us meat!" "Well," said Dr. Thirdly, promptly, "hold on, then, till I'm done carving."

Save dealer, jobber and catalogue house profit. No such offer as I make in the class of engine I sell has ever been made before in all Gasoline Engine history. Here is the secret and reason: I turn them out all alike by the thousands in one enormous modern factory, equipped with automatic machinery, so that from them I can get less money than some factories can make them at actual shop cost. All you pay for is the actual cost of material, labor and one small profit (and I buy my material in enormous quantities). Anybody can afford and might just as well have a high grade engine when he can get in on a wholesale deal of this kind. It's doing something that never was done before. Think of it! A price to you that is lower than dealers and others can buy similar engines for, in actual lots, for spot cash. An engine that is made so good in the factory that I will send it out anywhere in the U. Leper Colony of Molokai. "The leper colony in Hawaii has not grown any the last several years," said O. B. Thomas of Honolulu. "In fact the number of lepers confined on the island of Molokai has been decreased by the discovery that some of them were not suffering from the disease." "The district in which the lepers live is separated from the mainland by a high range of mountains and the lepers have a regular municipal government of their own. They have their schools and their amusements and pursue their daily work with as much pleasure and industry as the inhabitants of thriving villages."

Dosed by Doser by Arithmetic. Before wireless telegraphy was thought of, and the patient could communicate with the shore doctor, the captain was the ship's doctor, says the London Chronicle. He had a medicine chest with numbered bottles, and a book of instructions. There is a ship's carpenter still living who owes his life to the captain's treatment. It was rheumatism. The captain read in the book of instructions: "In cases of rheumatism one tablespoonful of No. 11 three times a day." There had been a run on No. 11. But "6" and "5" were full. "I reckon that makes '11,'" said the captain. And he cured the carpenter by arithmetic.

Many Disguises. A police sergeant stated at the London sessions last week that to obtain evidence in a betting case he disguised himself on different occasions as a Nonconformist minister, a match peddler, and a sailor.

Reaching the Ideal. The vision that you glorify in your mind, the ideal that you enshrine in your heart—this you will build your life by, this you will become.—James Allen.

BE AS HAPPY AS YOU CAN

Happiness Means Harmony and Harmony Means Health to All Bodily Functions.

No matter what his vocation or condition in life may be, every one owes it to himself and to the world to form a habit of being just as happy as he can, says Orion Sweet Marden in Success Magazine. Happiness means harmony and harmony means health to all bodily functions; it means efficiency. Faculties give out their best when they are normal. To keep happy is, therefore, the best personal economy and surest investment; it insures the greatest possible output of brain and body. Much natural ability is rendered inefficient because men and women do not know that discord, whether in fear, worry, selfishness, hatred or jealousy, is a health and happiness killer; an efficiency blighter. Many men waste more vitality and mental energy in a few minutes of hot temper than would be required in the legitimate running of their business for days.

What would we think of a banker who would open his vaults and throw all his money into the street? But when in a fit of anger or rage a man throws open the safety valves of his mind, and flings out his energy, his precious life capital, character capital, we think very little about it.

We can make ourselves happy or miserable, comfortable or uncomfortable according to the emotions which we allow to pass through our minds. Whatever goes through the mind must reappear in the character and physical condition.

KITCHEN OF OLDEN TIME

Size of Room Seems to Have Been of More Importance Than Its Fittings.

In olden days the size of the kitchen seems to have been of more importance than its fittings in detail. At Hurstmonceux, for instance, there was a kitchen 28 feet high, with three huge fireplaces, and a bakehouse with an oven 14 feet in diameter; then there is an old Welsh kitchen at Penryn Old Hall, near Llandudno, dating from the fifteenth century, which has many primitive culinary contrivances, now obsolete or superseded by more modern devices: a meatjack with a flywheel, a steel toasting stand, and a fan bellows. A wonderful old kitchen is in Battle Abbey, and that at St. Mary's Hall, Coventry, is remarkable for the famous "knave's post," to which possibly recalcitrant scullions were temporarily attached.

Our ancestors fully recognized the advantages of having a large kitchen. An order, dated April 19, 1296, commands Hugh de Nevill to have the king's kitchen at Clarendon roofed with shingles, and to cause two new kitchens to be erected, one at Marlborough and the other at Ludgershall, to dress the royal dinners in, "and it is particularly directed that each kitchen shall be provided with a furnace sufficiently large to roast two or three oxen."

Two Dominant Instincts.

Two dominant instincts are contending in all the affairs of life today. Both of them are hereditary and essential. The one is the instinct to make the most of one's self, to live the individual life, to absorb from the common stock of our inherited treasure and our new-found opportunities everything that will enable one to make the most of himself and to reap the richest harvest for his endeavor. The other is the impulse to be a socius, a social creature, one who loves companionship and likes to work with others. Carried out to its fullest extent and possibility the first impulse makes one a selfish worker, an oppressor, and a tyrant. The second impulse carried out, as we see it has been among the ants and honey bees, destroys the individuality, and makes one an obedient worker who loses the most glorious attributes of the individual.—Christian Register.

Indian Fruit-Cuckoo's Strategy.

The Indian fruit-cuckoo, which, like all members of the cuckoo family, lays its eggs in the nests of other birds and thus avoids the trouble of hatching them, is said to exhibit a great deal of strategy in dealing with crows, its natural enemies. Whereas the hen, an inconspicuous speckled gray bird, conceals herself in the foliage, the cock, remarkable for his brilliant black plumage and crimson eyes, places himself on a perch near a crow's nest and sets up a great racket. The crows immediately rush out to attack him, and he takes to flight with them in pursuit. The hen meanwhile slips into the nest and deposits an egg. Sometimes the crows return before the egg is laid and then the intruder gets a trouncing.

First Robin Story of 1911.

"There's a man out on my street who is going to get into trouble if he keeps up his awful jokes," remarked Billy Thompson, former councilman, the other day. "I heard a robin this morning," he said to me yesterday. "A Robin in February? I said. 'What a whopper!' " "I did, though," he insisted. "What kind of a robin? I asked. " "Heard my wife a-robbin' my pockets of all my loose change. She thought I was asleep."—Cleveland Leader.
