FIGHT COST OF LIVING

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF TOPEKA ARE WORKING OVER MOST DIFFICULT PROBLEM.

BOYS ARE TAUGHT WOODWORKING AND USE OF MECHANICS, AND GIRLS PRACTICAL SEWING AND COOKING.

Topeka, Kan., June 6.—Topeka is combating one phase of the so-called "high cost of living" through its public schools. Or should it be said that it is breaking the high cost rules in several places.

"Prof. A. H. Winter, who has charge of the 2,500 boys and girls who are doing the work under a new plan of instruction, less than a year old, says the work has been introduced in the public and high schools to keep ahead of the times in education.

"An effort is made," he continues, "to make the work as applicable as possible to the environment and needs of the pupil. For this reason some new phases of manual training have been introduced in mechanical science, wood working has been adopted, in it the pupils design and make drawings of the pieces which they later on make in the wood-working shop or the forge shop.

"In sewing, a course in the creating of gowns and hats has just been installed. The art department emphasizes the practical side in training for interior decoration, stenciling, bookbinding and pottery molding."

The result of the advanced ideas that are being carried out in the schools of Topeka, not only trains the pupil to make useful and ornamental articles of quality equal to those bought in shops, but to originate designs and apply those designs to his mind. Another feature—and the one which has to do with combating the high cost of living—is the reduction of the ultimate cost of the articles, whatever article the student chooses.

"Girls' bonnets that sell on the regular markets from $8 to $15 are being trimmed at the manual training building for from $1.50 to $2.75. That represents the cost of raw materials. The labor is not counted in the cost. Dresses of the more simple type are made at correspondingly low cost. Scarfs of silk, painted in original designs, cost but a few cents above the price of the silk. Beautifully designed leather pocketbooks and party bags, made for a few cents. Bookbinders and chairs cost from $1 to $4 or $5. They could be sold for four or five times that price.

The domestic science pupils are studying a similar course—the most practical that can be designed. Girls who study it learn to cook. Simply preparation of foods, but they follow the more complex dishes. The pupils prove their ability by preparing dinners for themselves and teachers at regular intervals.

William Ferguson, of Wellington, Kan., one of the widely-known and extensive cattle operators of that section of Kansas, was at the yards yesterday morning at 11:50 a. m. $2.75. That first to be marketed from his big pastures this year, Mr. Ferguson grazed between 5,000 and 6,000 head of stock in Crow and Clark counties every year, a good share of which are marketed at this point during the annual summer and fall run of grassers. He will have about the usual number to market this year.

"Pastures in the Kansas grazing grounds are in fine shape and cattle are putting on flesh rapidly," said Mr. Ferguson when at the yards. "Prospects confronting the cattlemen this season are very favorable, as everything indicates plenty of grass and a good market for fat grass cattle between the summer and fall. Wintered Kansas-Panhandle grassers will start marketward about the middle of July in pretty bulky volume from present indications. Cattle brought up from the Panhandle in good will, of course, not be ready for the market until about the first of September, or later."

Mr. Ferguson was accompanied by St. Joseph by his son, Dwight Ferguson, who was greatly interested in the sights of the stock yards.

QUALITIES OF HONEY LOCUST

Drought-Resisting Tree May Well Be Grown on Most Farms.

The honey locust is a most beautiful tree and one that might well be grown to some extent upon most farms. It belongs to the legume family of pod producers and has a beautiful compound leaf. It bears very large and has sharp thorns on both the branches and trunk of the tree, says a writer in the Dakota Farmer.

When closely set in the form of a hedge, it makes a most formidable barrier against any kind of stock. The Colorado station in a recent bulletin recommends the honey locust as the most drought resistant of any species of deciduous trees. When this is taken into consideration, it will be seen that this tree deserves a much larger acreage in the north-west. It does not sucker as does its closely related species, the black or yellow locust, and is not nearly as subject to the attack of the locust borer. The writer has in mind a specimen of the honey locust in Jerauld county, South Dakota, which is one of the handsomest trees he has ever seen in the north-west. It is about twenty-five feet high, very spreading, and has proven a rapid grower. Northwest nurserymen highly recommend this tree and offer seedlings and young saplings.

Photograph Taken at State Fair Is Given Publicity.

A photograph taken four years ago at the Kansas state fair is still in circulation and is being given a lot of publicity to the Kansas state fair.

The photograph, which is published in the current number of the Railway Employees' Magazine, of Chicago, shows Secretary F. D. Coburn, of the state board of agriculture, and President Henry S. Thompson and Secretary A. L. Spensler, of the state fair, standing by the side of some stalks of corn reaching up 16 1/2 feet high. The corn is fastened to a telephone pole. There is no fake about this. The crop stalks were brought in from Salt Creek township, and exhibited at the fair that fall.

WILL KEEP THE COWS.

Matured steers will compose the great bulk of the summer and fall cattle run from the range districts of South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado and total shipments will fall far short of last year, according to all reports from those sections. Cows are becoming too valuable to be sent out for slaughter and the disposition will be to hold the lighter steers over. Range conditions are now reported as generally good.

FARMER HEARS THE TRUTH.

Once more, in this year of big politics, the farmer hears that he is the backbone of his native land, and men with smooth tongues loudly praise the hardness of his horny hand; the worker in the shop is told that he deserves the best there is; as for the soldier, bent and old, a priceless heritage is his; the humble toiler in the ditch is lauded for his sterling worth, but everybody hates the rich and wants to chase them off the earth. That is the way the stump talk runs. We are glad, however, to have the politicians tell the truth about the farmer once in four years, anyway.—Live Stock World.

TO RECLAIM SWAMP LANDS.

Congress has been petitioned today by the Southern Commercial Congress to provide a complete survey of all swamp and overflowed land in the United States, to be followed by a plan for draining each individual project as a part of a complete system of reclamation.

The survey would include an examination of the soil of swamp and overflowed lands, showing their value from an agricultural standpoint, adaptability for growing crops and an estimate of the cost of such reclamation. There are more than 80,000,000 acres of such land in the country.

The petition was presented to the senate by Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, president of the Southern Commercial Congress, and was signed by him and Dr. C. J. Owens, secretary-treasurer of the congress.

At the fourth annual convention of the Southern Commercial Congress at Nashville, Tenn., April 8-10, a resolution introduced by John M. Parker, of New Orleans, first president of the Southern Commercial Congress, that congress be petitioned to provide for reclamation of this land, was unanimously passed. The resolution also provided for a nation-wide educational campaign by the Southern Commercial Congress to show the economic value of reclaiming this land, and calling on all commercial organizations to assist in the campaign.

A commission to standardize drainage laws of the various states was provided for in the resolution. This commission was appointed by Senator Fletcher last week. It includes J. O. Wright, chairman, Tallahassee, Fla.; A. W. McKeand, Charleston, S. C.; Joseph Hyde Pratt, Chapel Hill, N. C.; Justin E. Denechauld, New Orleans, La.; Wm. W. Old, Jr., Norfolk, Va.; Walter Clark, Clarksdale, Miss.; A. P. Purdue, Nashville, Tenn.; A. A. Stiles, Austin, Texas; Charles F. Barrett, Shawnee, Okla., and Senator J. P. Matthews, Oakland, Tenn. Daddy's Bedtime Story— Little Ruthie And the Lost Note

Ruthie's Mother Looked at the Note.

THE story hour had come and daddy settled down in his armchair with Jack perched on one side and Evelyn on the other. "My little friend Ruthie, clever as she is in making up rimes," said daddy, "is sometimes a bit forgetful. The other day when kindergarten was over the teacher gave each child a note. It was to ask the mothers to have tea with the teacher on a certain afternoon. "Ruthie tucked her note away in the pocket of her jacket and started home with her little chum. "The little girls hopped, skipped and jumped along the sidewalk. By the time they had reached Ruthie's house the notes were almost forgotten. "The sight of her mother looking out of an upper window made Ruthie think of hers. She felt in her little pocket, but the paper was gone. "Dear me! What should she do? The teacher would be sure to ask about the notes tomorrow. "If all the mothers get them they must be just the same notes, don't you think so?" Ruthie's chum suggested. "May be they are," agreed Ruthie hopefully. "If I could write like teacher p'raps I could write me a note for my mother just like yours. "For a minute she thought hard. Then the two little girls talked over a plan. "They marched boldly up to Ruthie's house. When Ruthie's mother opened the door she was handed a note by her little daughter. "Why, this isn't my note, exclaimed Ruthie's mother. "This note has Ethel's mother's name on the outside. It is meant for her. "Yes, we know, Ruthie piped up, "but I lost the note which teacher gave me to bring to you, and Ethel said she would lend me her mamma's note so you could read it and be sure to come to teacher's tea party. "Ruthie's mother shook her head. "Mother couldn't read it. Notes are for the folks whose names are written on the envelope. It is very rude to read what has not been meant for you. "Ruthie looked puzzled. What should she do? "I'm afraid you'll have to tell teacher you lost the note," mother advised. "Just then a rap came at the door. It was one of Ruthie's schoolmates with the note which Ruthie had dropped in the school yard as she came out. Her little friend had picked it up. "Ruthie handed the note to her mother, and as this was the right one was read."

presentation of the petition, has arranged for publication as a public document the address on drainage of J. O. Wright, chief drainage engineer of Florida, delivered at the Nashville convention of the Southern Commercial Congress.

MISSOURI PROGRESS.

Missouri has room for two or three times her present population, and the farmer, horticulturist, stock raiser, dairyman and manufacturer will be heartily welcomed. Nearly every city, town and rural community in the state offers inducements to the manufacturer, both large and small, as well as the practical farmer.

MISSOURI'S EDUCATIONAL AND SOCIAL PROGRESS HAS KEPT PACE WITH HER ADVANCEMENT ALONG AGRICULTURAL AND COMMERCIAL LINES, AND IT IS OUR PROUD BOAST THAT THROUGHOUT THE STATE THERE IS A CHURCH ON EVERY HILLTOP AND A SCHOOLHOUSE IN EVERY VALLEY.

Long since has been dissipated the foolish notion that the average Missourian was a walking arsenal, and that a bandit lurked behind every tree. Missouri, with her great state university, her splendid normal schools and colleges, all with an attendance of more than eighty thousand students, as well as her more than twelve thousand high schools and district schools, where more than one million children go each year, attest strongly to the fact that this state ranks high in education and culture.

Because of Missouri's diversified farm products a complete crop failure is unknown; in fact, each year has shown an increase in the agricultural production of the state, as well as in the output from the mines, forests, quarries, dairies, rivers and streams, and other smaller sources.

Although Missouri ranks high as an agricultural state, it is safe to say that when her swamp lands, which exceed two million acres of fine agricultural land, are properly drained and producing, she will rank even higher than she does today. Whether it be along the lines of agriculture, horticulture, mining, dairying or manufacturing, the state is found in the front rank, leading many productions, and standing high in all others.

THE 1912 YEARBOOK OUT.

Agricultural Secretary's Yearly Report Features Volume. Washington, D. C., June 6.—The eighteenth volume of the Yearbook (1911) has just been issued by the United States department of agriculture. In appearance and make-up it differs but little from its predecessors. It contains thirty-one articles, sixty-seven full-page illustrations, of which nine are colored, and twenty text-figures. The department's appreciation of the services Seaman Asahel Knapp rendered to agriculture during his long career is indicated in the selection of his portrait as a frontispiece, and in printing his biography as the first article in the volume. The fifteenth annual report of the Secretary for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, occupies the first 142 pages and gives a "general report of the operations of the department," which under the law must form a part of the volume. This report supplemented by the statistical matter found in an appendix of 300 pages gives a more complete and comprehensive summary of agricultural conditions in the United States than can be found in any other single publication. The 354 pages comprising the body of the volume contain the thirty articles contributed by the members of the scientific force of the department, and present data upon many of the important questions now occupying the attention of agriculturists, topics equally vital to the agricultural and urban population, both as producers and consumers of the foodstuffs of the nation. The importance of the forests to the agricultural welfare of the country and the prominence of forestry in the department's work are reflected in two papers, entitled "Tree planting by farmers," and "The business aspect of national forest timber sales."

AUTO SHOW FOR NEW YORK

Arrangements Made to Hold Imposing Exhibition Next Winter.

New York, June 4.—New York will have but one automobile show next winter, and it will be so big as to make necessary the use of two buildings. This has been settled definitely by the signing of a contract for the use of Madison Square Garden by the Automobile Board of Trade, which also has a lease on the new Grand Central Palace.

The combined shows will be held under the auspices of the Automobile Board of Trade, the exhibits being divided between the new Grand Central Palace and Madison Square Garden. According to present arrangements the show will be open to all makers of motor cars and accessories. It is not unlikely that a single ticket will give admission to both buildings, with arrangements for conveniently transporting visitors from one to the other.

Vast Crops Are Turned Out and Much Stock Raised—Land Farmed by Tenants on Share System.

Galveston, Tex., June 4.—The "Taft farm," as it is generally known, is the place to see scientific farming.

It is the intention of the company to gradually increase its fields until it gets 50,000 acres in cultivation.

A large part of the land in cultivation is leased to tenants on the share system.

The plantation is divided into thirty farms, with several villages where neat and freshly painted cottages are provided for the tenants.

At the packing house from twenty to twenty-five hives, some sheep and a number of hogs in the winter season are slaughtered daily.

The company has also made some extensive improvements at Portland, on Nueces Bay, among which may be noted the building of a large warehouse.
